There is but one way out, for those as for other workingmen: Public ownership of the means of production—in this case, of the mines, smelters, railways, water-power, etc.—established by a working-class party on such a basis that the whole value of the product shall be secured to those who do the work, with no deductions of rent to landlords, dividends to stockholders, or interest to money-lenders.

That is the Socialist proposition. It is just, because the landlords, stockholders, and money-lenders, as such, perform no useful service in the process of production. The working class digs the ore from the earth, transports it, smelts it, works it up into useful articles. Wage workers even do all the work of management and superintendence. The share of the product which goes to the account of rent, interest, and dividends is so much taken from the useful elements of society and given to the useless and pernicious ones.

It is necessary. Man can live only by the product of human labor—his own or another's. So long as some are allowed to live by the labor of others, those others must be overworked, underfed, badly clothed, badly housed, badly educated, and oppressed. As industry develops a large part of them are denied the right to exist even on these terms, are thrown into the army of the unemployed. Thus society is divided into hostile classes, crime and vice and disease and suffering are bred by haughty luxury on the one hand and by abject poverty on the other, social good feeling and self-respect are undermined, and incalculable evil results. To put an end to these evils we must strike at the root, at the private ownership of the means of production.

It is for this purpose that the Socialist Party exists. Support it, work for it, vote for it, and we can have Socialism in our time.

TRUST NOTES.

It is reported that an employe in a French tobacco factory has invented a machine which makes the head on cigars after they are rolled and does the work of about a dozen hands. Under Socialism this would save work and give the people more leisure. Under capitalism it will throw some men out of work, make the others toil harder for a poorer living, and give the employers more profits.

General prosperity prevails. If you want proof of it, read the financial page of one of the great dailies—net earnings of railway companies increasing, big corporations of all sorts paying high dividends, trusts looking around for opportunities to invest their surplus. What more do you want? Of course you own some Steel Trust stock or hold some Tobacco Trust bonds? No? Well, then, you don't count. You may not be prosperous, but you're nobody. General prosperity prevails.

Current reports that the Borden Condensed Milk Company has bought out the Michigan Condensed Milk Company.

The Atlantic Rubber Shoe Company, a $10,000,000 New Jersey corporation, has organized five subsidiary companies for the purpose of owning the Trust's patents in Germany, France, Great Britain, Belgium, and Russia respectively. Reports say: "The organization of these five companies will obviate the necessity of paying taxes on the transfer of rights, patents, or stock in the countries named." What patriotic fellows those capitalists are!

Whiskey Trust won its suit in the Federal courts. Injunction against Trust magnates dissolved. Quite right; injunctions should hold only against workingmen.

Drydock and shipbuilding company. Baltimore increases capital from 0,000 to $400,000. Probably in anticipation of sale to Government.

[illegible]oration Trust Company of Delaware [illegible] the Diamond State Trust Company will consolidate; capital, $2,000,000.

Several storage battery companies consolidate with capital of $10,000,000.

The street railway and power companies of Birmingham, Ala., are combining.

FLATTERY CHEAP.

Rev. Dr. Rainsford addressing the New York State Household Economic Association, the other day, on "Home Economics Among the Poor," commended the work of introducing hygienic cooking and cleanliness into the tenements, but emphasized the necessity of understanding how to approach the laboring classes, who could teach the rich as well as be taught by them. He said, in part: "The standards of the poor are higher than those of the rich—purity is more practiced among them than in the ranks of the rich. I would to God that the rich fathers gave to their children what the tenement fathers give to theirs. Ladies, take off your shoes when entering the houses of the poor—you stand on holy ground!"

So runs the report. On which our comment is, in the words of a homely old proverb: "Fine words butter no parsnips." Dr. Rainsford and the other sensational preachers are always ready to pay us compliments, for flattery is cheap; but what have they or their class ever done for us?

It becomes more and more evident that the working class must depend upon its own efforts for its emancipation.

THE WESTERN LABOR UNION.

Account of Its Work During the Last Year.

A Portion of Daniel McDonald's Statement in Reply to Attacks by the American Federation of Labor.

As is probably well known to most of our readers, the greater part of the unions in the Rocky Mountain states are not affiliated with the American Federation of Labor, but have a separate federation of their own, the Western Labor Union, of which the Western Federation of Miners forms an important part.

Especially during the last year, the A. F. of L. has made vigorous war upon this body, sending organizers into the field to build up rival unions, and engendering much ill feeling on all sides. There are many, even in the East, who think that this war could have been avoided and that the two federations could have been brought to work harmoniously together and eventually, perhaps, to amalgamate, had it not been for the personal ambition and imperiousness of prominent leaders.

On this question The Worker is not in a position to give a decided opinion or to attempt to apportion the blame. We did, however, as will be remembered, criticise President Gompers for not bringing this matter—surely one of the most important with which he had to deal—before the December convention of the A. F. of L. in his annual report. We think it only fair, moreover, to present to the workers of the East a partial account of the work the W. L. U. has done, extracted from a statement by President Daniel McDonald, published in a recent number of the Colorado "Chronicle." President McDonald says in part:

"The causes which impel the issuance of such a letter at this time, are not of a light and transient nature, but such as demand the investigation and attention of organized labor throughout this broad land. For a while there was a hidden method of destruction against organized labor carried on in the city of Denver, but as the time passed by, this tacit warfare was laid aside and a more open and manifest policy was, and is at present pursued. From its inception it grew into an ignorement, and to-day it is boasted that it is the established policy of the paid talent of the American Federation of Labor to disrupt organized labor in Denver and put out of existence the Western Labor Union. That such is true need only to be mentioned to be substantiated. * * *

"From the rapid progress which the Western Labor Union has made throughout the West, it is rational to conclude, that had the A. F. of L. supplied the wants of the people, the W. L. U. would never have graced the field of unionism. If then, necessity was it mother, it must have been born for a purpose; and such being the case, its rapid progress is no indication that the wants that urged its being have been satisfied and that with them should go the organization that afforded them relief. * * *

"Actions sometimes carry more effectiveness and argument than words; so the following will speak for itself:

"On and about May 1, 1901, complaints reached the W. L. U. office that organized labor in the city of Denver was slowly becoming stagnant, and unless some action was taken in that field, the wage earners already organized would suffer. In May I visited the city, and at once became convinced that a more active campaign of some kind was necessary, and directing an organizer into the field, operations were commenced May 9. The firemen and engineer helpers were organized, and in one month had an organization of 155 members. Soon after, the beer bottlers and bottle beer drivers were organized with a membership of fifty-three in good standing. On June 5 the Blacksmiths' and Helpers' Union No. 163 was placed within the pale of organized labor, and in three months had a membership of 182.

"The Laundry Workers' Union was then brought into existence, June 18, beginning with seventy-two members. The grocery employees came next, with a membership of 121. A few days elapsed in doing organizing work, and on August 20 the lumber employees were an organization of 123 members. * * *

On September 25 the fuel workers and team drivers were organized. On September 26 the expressmen were organized, with a membership of fifty-two. The stablemen were soon afterwards organized, with a membership of ninety. Wholesale grocery and commission house employees came next, with the back drivers soon afterwards, both organizations doing well from the beginning.

"Mattress makers were then organized, starting with the exception of one man, with every mattress maker in the city. Seeing the deplorable condition of the ash haulers of the city, work on this class of labor was taken up, and soon a flourishing organization was in existence.

"The next move was the bringing about of an organization of the Dry Goods and Clothing Stores Delivery-men's Union No. 213. The stenographers were then unionized, and placed upon a substantial platform, having a membership of near 200.

This work has been done in a field where organization was needed, and where the conditions were deplorable beyond mention.

"By diligent and persistent effort, systematically carried on, the W. L. U. has brought within the pale of unionism, in the city of Denver alone, 3,804 men, * * * thus increasing the power and influence of organized labor, stimulating courage in the breasts of the working people, creating an agitation for better conditions and disseminating and broadening the spirit of independence and self-reliance among the wage earners of that city.

"Since last May the W. L. U. has issued seventy-one charters. Seventeen of these were issued to unions in Denver, and the other fifty-four to unions throughout the inter-mountain states.

"The foregoing statement of our actions is a true account of the detrimental work charged by the A. F. of L. * * *

"The field where the struggle is now going on has had no work done worth mentioning by any organization during the past ten years. Complaints of workingmen came daily to my office, telling of the influence of organization among the workingmen and women, and asking that some steps at once be taken to eliminate the existing conditions. This alone prompted the W. L. U. to take up this work which has caused such great opposition from the sluggards."

DIVISION OF LABOR.

By Owen R. Lovejoy.

A stock argument of the defenders of industrial competition is that the "working classes" are so shiftless and dishonest in their work that only the spur of constant supervision can drive them to honest labor. This supervision, moreover, can be secured only at the cost of salaries far beyond the amount which the public would ever consent to award. Therefore gigantic private industries, or corporate interests, are essential to secure the quality of "managerial" talent requisite to get workmen to do their work with zeal and honesty.

Consistency would compel the admission that, if self-interest is the motive for wise management, its extension to those who labor below in the details of the industry would secure wiser and better labor from "the hands"—that some sort of interest would be a distinct advantage. But, with astounding naivete, even the principle of self-interest is abandoned when it becomes troublesome—as it most speedily does—and specialization is made the working formula in production and distribution. And with that dire results!

John Ruskin says: "We have studied and much perfected of late the great cilivized invention of the division of labor, only we give it a false name. It is not, truly speaking, the labor that is divided, but the men—divided into mere segments of men, broken into small fragments and crumbs of life; so that all the little piece of intelligence that is left in a man is not enough to make a pin or a nail, but exhausts itself in making the point of a pin or the head of a nail. Now it is a good and desirable thing to make many pins a day; but if we could only see with what crystal sand their points are polished—sand of human souls—we should think there might be some loss in it also. Men may be beaten, chained, tormented, yoked like oxen, slaughtered like summer flies, and yet remain in one sense, and the best sense, free. But to smother their souls within them—to blight and blur the branches of their human intelligence, to make the flesh and skin into leathern thongs to yoke machinery with—this is to be slave masters indeed. It is this degradation of the operative into a machine which is leading the mass of nations into a vain, incoherent, destructive struggle for a freedom of which they cannot explain the nature to themselves."

It is not alone that men are overworked, or that they are underfed. Men and women have endured overwork and become glorious in their sacrifice. Men and women have lived for days with under rations, in days when heroism was demanded for a great struggle. It is not this; but it is that, under the wheels that are grinding out the marvellous products of our industrial enterprise, the thousands of laborers who have become a part of the machine to which they are bound, have no pride or pleasure in their work and no stake in its value. Imagine a man finding variation or interest enough in the pin points he polishes to give him food for thought, or the joy of an inspiration to excel.

I have a friend who is one of fifty-five required in a factory to make a common shoe. The factory is not his, the tools are not his, the shoe he helps make is not his, even the oportunity to come to the factory and use the tools and make the shoe does not belong to him—he is there by sufferance. The man who does own the factory and the tools and the shoe is kind enough to let him come there and become the fifty-fifth fraction of a shoemaker—so long as he is apreciative of the "job" and makes no demands, and does not mix his brains with the brains of the other fifty-four and stir up discontent. Yet we complain of the quality of our shoes and despise the character of the workman.

If self-interest is the spur of industry then let the principle be applied to the last man in the community. The competition which is the life of trade to-day, is also the destruction of Art and the death of Manhood.

A PEN FULL OF HOGS.

Modern society should be like a company of ladies and gentlemen at dinner table where each, knowing that there is enough for all, strives to have his fellows served bountifully. Instead, it is like a pen full of hogs into which a pail of swill has been thrown where each, fearing that he will not get enough, grunts and pushes and roots, and with much struggling and biting, strives to get all he can for himself, not caring that his neighbor goes hungry.—Free Lance.

OVERPRODUCTION.

There are billions of dollars worth of unused goods in the United States, and there are millions of working people in the United States who are in need of the unused goods. The working people cannot get the unused goods, because they are held by members of a class that does no productive work. This non-producing class, that lives by taking what others make, is endeavoring to sell the unused goods to foreigners. They say they must sell the unused goods to foreigners, so that working people in the United States can have work to earn wages.

If there was no class living off the working people of the United States, there would be no goods unused while anyone who had need of them was left unsupplied. The class who do no useful work are dogs in the manger. They cannot use the goods themselves, and they will not let the working people who made the goods use them.—The New Era.

—If you cannot afford to give ten dollars for the Socialist Daily, club with your neighbors and give more.

THE LABOR SECRETARIAT.

Secretary Harriman Issues Report Covering First Year's Work.

Although Still in Its Infancy and the First Institution of the Sort in America, the New York Labor Secretariat Has Amply Proved Its Usefulness.

The Labor Secretariat of New York has completed the first year of its existence and has proven its right to survive. It began weak and small, under great difficulties, especially in that, so far as this country is concerned (the system is well developed in Germany), it was a first experiment and therefore could command confidence of but a small part of the organized working class whom it was designed to serve. A year's work has shown its usefulness; it has won the adhesion of a much larger number of unions than at first supported it, and others are coming in.

Plan of the Secretariat.

As the institution is but little known in America, we may briefly describe its plan. It is founded upon a federation of trade unions, each paying small dues for its support—in this case half a cent weekly for each member—and is governed by a body of delegates who choose the Secretary and the Board of Managers under whose direction he works.

The first duty of the Secretary is to act as legal adviser for the affiliated unions and for their members in all cases where they are involved as wage-workers, whether criminal or civil, whether as plaintiff or as defendant. Among such cases may be cited actions for the enforcement of labor laws and the punishment of capitalists violating them; resistance to injunctions issued against unions and defense of members arrested for picketing or otherwise serving the unions; actions for the collection of wages due, for damages in case of death or injury to employees at their work, and others of similar nature.

It is intended that the Secretariat shall also collect and compile such statistics and records of labor organizations, of industrial conditions, etc., as may be useful to the union. This branch of the work has hardly been taken up as yet by the New York Secretariat, but it will soon be begun.

Job Harriman was chosen as Secretary when the institution was started a year ago, and his work seems, if we may judge from the increase in membership, to have been very satisfactory to the workingmen concerned.

Summary of a Year's Work.

The report shows that 111 cases were taken up by the Secretariat, of which 3 were suits for unpaid wages, 19 were for damages, 38 were in the criminal courts.

Out of a total of $375 claimed in wage cases, $352 has been collected. This does not include some cases withdrawn at the request of the claimant's organization; and it leaves out of account, also, one case in which judgment has been secured for $74 in favor of C. M. I. U. No. 90, but which has not yet been collected.

Of the damage cases, three have been dismissed, nine are pending, and seven have been settled, in or out of court, for a total of $1,407.04.

Of the criminal cases, 18 were against law-breaking employers. In these 14 convictions were secured, while only four of the prosecutions failed. The other 20 were in defense of workingmen arrested for "conspiracy" or on other charges for their activity in strikes and boycotts. In 16 cases the defense was successful and in four it failed. Three of the defendants were fined for distributing circulars on the streets in violation of a city ordinance. This ordinance is constantly violated with impunity by business men in the distribution of advertising matter; but as the circulars given out by these three men stated the unpleasant truth about a capitalist law-breaker and asked workingmen not to patronize him the penalty was imposed. The other case was also one of boycotting, a workingman being fined for sticking a paster on a private building, thus "defacing property." This also is constantly done by business men without interference.

Low Cost of Service.

The Secretary conducts these cases and does the other work of his office upon a fixed salary. The total expenses of the office, including salary, rent, costs of court, etc., has been $1,451.48, or an average of less than $13 for each case. If the unions and their members had had to employ private counsel in each case the fees alone would have far exceeded this amount. Under such conditions, of course, many of the individual cases would never have been pushed, as a workingman can seldom afford to sue for unpaid wages or for damages, knowing that, if he does, the costs and fees will probably exceed the amount won. The defensive cases alone would undoubtedly have cost the organizations far more, if taken up by private counsel, than the whole year's work cost through the Secretariat; and the prosecutions for violation of labor laws would probably never have been begun. The advantage of such an institution will readily be seen from the figures given, even without taking into account the fact that in a number of cases wage-claims were paid without litigation because the employers knew that, if they persisted in witholding them, the Secretariat would push the cases without cost to the claimants.

Enforcement of Labor Laws.

Although 14 convictions were secured out of 18 prosecutions for violation of labor laws—mostly in regard to Sunday closing and hours of labor—only a beginning has been made in this line and it must be pushed much more vigorously before the employers will show much respect even for the very mild and inadequate labor laws which we now have.

Secretary Harriman, in his report, shows the difficulties which had to be met in this work. The police are very slow to arrest "respectable business men," although ready enough to take poor laborers and mechanics; in this they only take their cue from the city administration and can hardly be blamed as individuals; they know that a police officer who is too efficient in catching capitalist criminals is as likely to get into trouble as one who is too negligent in dealing with strikers or boycotters; until we have a Socialist mayor or, at least, a Socialist vote big enough to frighten the old parties, this obstacle will stand in the way of enforcement of the law.

The judges have been equally dilatory and more blamably so. Warrants have been refused. Cases have been repeatedly postponed so as to tire out the witnesses who, being workingmen, could not afford to lose their wages in order to appear repeatedly in court. The judges have watched carefully for any loophole in the law through which the lawless employer could escape—and the Republican and Democratic legislators have generally been pretty careful to provide such loopholes.

Difficulties in the Way.

One instance may be cited. Section 171 of the Penal Code makes it a misdemeanor for any employer to coerce workingmen not to join any labor organization by making that a condition of securing or retaining employment. It was the intention of the workingmen, when they asked for the passage of this law, to secure their right to belong to trade unions and to make it a punishable offense for employers to interfere with that right. But the politicians at Albany who drew up and passed the law—and posed as "friends of Labor" on the strength of it—left out the one word "withdraw." As the law stands, therefore, a employer may require his men to sign a contract to withdraw from their present unions and not to join other unions. This perversion of the intent of the law came to light in one case where the Secretariat asked for a warrant and the warrant was refused. Socialist legislators would, of course, have made the law adequate; and a Socialist judge, even with the inadequate law, would have issued the warrant upon consideration of the plain ostensible intent of the law.

Other cases of shameful bias on the part of judges in favor of employers and against workingmen are given, as one in which a workingman was charged with conspiracy. When the complaint was first presented the judge saw that it was not sufficient; but, instead of dismissing the case, he held the accused and gave the prosecuting capitalist two days to draw a new complaint. Then, when the case came to trial the prosecution could not bring evidence to prove the charge of conspiracy, and the court intervened to change the charge and refused to allow the introduction of new evidence for the defense.

Socialist Votes Needed.

These and many other experiences of the sort prove the stern necessity of electing Socialist workingmen to legislative, executive, and judicial offices—men who would use the law against the capitalists just as the present officials use it against the working class. Every increase in the Social Democratic vote will, of course, help to inspire legislators, mayors and district attorneys, and judges with respect for the working class and will make easier the work of the Labor Secretariat. In the meantime, this institution should be strengthened and extended, for it is capable of doing much for the relief of the present sufferings of the workers.

The office of the Labor Secretariat is now at 320 Broadway, Room 701, where the Secretary may be consulted on business by members of affiliated unions and by others desiring information about the institution.

TRADE UNION NOTES

The May Day Conference will meet at the Labor Lyceum, 64 East Fourth street, Saturday evening, May. 29. All trade unions and Socialist organizations should send delegates to ensure the success of the May Day demonstration.

Working women in Cleveland have formed a Woman's Federal Labor Union.

Secretary Wilson of the United Mine Workers states that the membership of that organization is now 232,289.

Unionists of Los Angeles, Cal., are disturbed. The retail grocers have started a blacklist. The union people assert that in case of strike the grocers will refuse to extend credit because the workers will not be in good standing finalicially.

The firm of Schwarzschild & Sulzberger, meat packers, who have long posed as a union concern, locked out building craftsmen, demanding that they work ten instead of eight hours a day and at lowest wages.

Union cigarmakers in Porto Rico have secured an advance of $1.00 per thousand. Comrade Iglesias has been getting in his work.

J. Ross Clark, a prominent California capitalist remarked at a banquet recently that "The curse of the workingmen to-day is these infernal trade unions." On which the Los Angeles "Socialist" comments simply: "The advice given by the capitalists is good advice not to take. If trade unionism is hell to the capitalist, that is the pit in which we desire to reside."

As was to be expected the attempt to impeach Judge Cowing has been abandoned as useless. A benefit will be held for Engineer Horn. The Actors' Protective Union and the Letter Carriers' Band have volunteered their services for the occasion. It will raise funds to carry the matter into the civil courts in an effort to secure a judgment against Contractor Pucci for the injuries inflicted in his brutal assault.

Have you heard of the Marshall Bill, which seeks to remove the limit upon the working hours of women and children, introduced in the New York Legislature by Mr. Marshall, state senator from Brooklyn and a good and faithful servant to the capitalist class? Even a bill to increase the slavery of women and children must be fought by the labor unions because of the subserviency of capitalist legislators. These tools of the capitalist class are ever ready to help the capitalist squeeze profits even from the blood of women and children. Fellow workingmen, you see the situation. Why don't you protest in an effective and manly way by voting for the Social Democratic Party and electing representatives of your own class?

The reporters of the St. Louis dailies got badly snubbed at the grand banquet given Prince Henry by the St. Louis Club. Reporters generally, although they are wage-workers and often very badly paid ones at that, consider themselves vastly superior to common workingmen, as do most of the teachers, musicians, artists, clerks, and other so-called "intellectual workers" and "salaried workers." These reporters in St. Louis, however, seem to have got a lesson.—Insurance agents of St. Louis are organizing a union.—St. Louis Brewers' Union made a second donation of $500 to their locked-out brothers in Cincinnati. Their first donation was $350.—Comrade John C. Chase addressed the St. Louis C. T. & L. U. and was well received.

National Platform of the Socialist Party.

The Socialist Party of America in national convention assembled, reaffirms its adherence to the principles of international Socialism, and declares its aim to be the organization of the working class, and those in sympathy with it, into a political party, with the object of conquering the powers of government and using them, for the purpose of transforming the present system of private ownership of the means of production and distribution into collective ownership by the entire people.

Formerly the tools of production were simple and owned by the individual worker. To-day the machine, which is but an improved and more developed tool of production, is owned by the capitalists and not by the workers. This ownership enables the capitalists to control the product and keep the workers dependent upon them.

Private ownership of the means of production and distribution is responsible for the ever increasing uncertainty of livelihood and the poverty and misery of the working class, and it divides society into two hostile classes—the capitalists and wage-workers. The once powerful middle class is rapidly disappearing in the mill of competition. The struggle is now between the capitalist class and the working class. The possession of the means of livelihood gives to the capitalists the control of the government, the press, the pulpit, and the schools, and enables them to reduce the workingmen to a state of intellectual, physical and social inferiority, political subservience and virtual slavery.

The economic interests of the capitalist class dominate our entire social system; the lives of the working class are recklessly sacrificed for profit, wars are fomented between nations, indiscriminate slaughter is encouraged and the destruction of whole races is sanctioned in order that the capitalists may extend their commercial dominion abroad and enhance their supremacy at home.

But the same economic causes which developed capitalism are leading to Socialism, which will abolish both the capitalist class and the class of wage workers. And the active force in bringing about this new and higher order of society is the working class. All other classes, despite their apparent or actual conflicts, are alike interested in the upholding of the system of private ownership of the instruments of wealth production. The Democratic, Republican, the bourgeois public ownership parties, and all other parties which do not stand for the complete overthrow of the capitalist system of production, are alike political representatives of the capitalist class.

The workers can most effectively act as a class in their struggle against the collective powers of capitalism, by constituting themselves into a political party, distinct from and opposed to all parties formed by the propertied classes.

While we declare that the development of economic conditions tends to the overthrow of the capitalist system, we recognize that the time and manner of the transition to Socialism also depend upon the stage of development reached by the proletariat. We, therefore, consider it of the utmost importance for the Socialist Party to support all active efforts of the working class to better its condition and to elect Socialists to political offices, in order to facilitate the attainment of this end.

As such means we advocate:

1. The public ownership of all means of transportation and communication and all other public utilities, as well as of all industries controlled by monopolies, trusts, and combines. No part of the revenue of such industries to be applied to the reduction of taxes on property of the capitalist class, but to be applied wholly to the increase of wages and shortening of the hours of labor of the employees, to the improvement of the service and diminishing the rates to the consumers.

2. The progressive reduction of the hours of labor and the increase of wages in order to decrease the share of the capitalist and increase the share of the worker in the product of labor.

3. State or national insurance of working people in case of accidents, lack of employment, sickness and want in old age; the funds for this purpose to be collected from the revenue of the capitalist class, and to be administered under the control of the working class.

4. The inauguration of a system of public industries, public credit to be used for that purpose in order that the workers be secured the full product of their labor.

5. The education of all children up to the age of eighteen years, and state and municipal aid for books, clothing, and food.

6. Equal civil and political rights for men and women.

7. The initiative and referendum, proportional representation and the right of recall of representatives by their constituents.

But in advocating these measures as steps in the overthrow of capitalism and the establishment of the Co-operative Commonwealth, we warn the working class against the so-called public ownership movements as an attempt of the capitalist class to secure governmental control of public utilities for the purpose of obtaining greater security in the exploitation of other industries and not for the amelioration of the conditions of the working class.

LOOK HERE, COMRADES!

A GRAND CONCERT AND BALL

is arranged by the Progressive Workingmen's Societies of the Bronx for next

Saturday, March 22, at Ebling's Casino,

156th STREET AND ST. ANN'S AVENUE.

The proceeds will be given to the campaign fund of 34th and 35th Assembly Districts, S. D. P. Come and bring your friends.

HOW CAN YOU!

CELEBRATE THE COMMUNE AND

NOT READ

ITS FULLEST AND MOST AUTHENTIC STORY,

THE HISTORY OF THE PARIS COMMUNE

—BY LISSAGARAY—

THIS IS THE AUTHOR'S PREFACE:

Who made the revolution of the 18th of March? What part was taken by the Central Committee? What was the Commune? How came it that 100,000 Frenchmen are lost to their country? Who is responsible? Legions of witnesses will answer.

No doubt it is an exile who speaks, but an exile who has been neither member, nor officer, nor functionary of the Commune; who for five years has sifted the evidence; who has not ventured upon a single assertion without accumulated proofs; who sees the victors on the look-out for the slightest inaccuracy to deny all the rest; who knows no better plea for the vanquished than the simple and sincere recital of their history.

This history, besides, is due to their children, to all the workingmen of the earth. The child has the right to know the reason of the paternal defeats, the Socialist Party, the campaign of its flag in all countries. He who tells the people revolutionary legends, he who amuses them with sensational stories, is as criminal as the geographer who would draw up false maps for the navigators.

The "History of the Commune" should be in the library of every Socialist, for it recalls one of the grandest epochs in the history of Socialism, an epoch which will never be erased from the history of mankind.

The "History of the Paris Commune" contains 500 pp., is bound in cloth and published in two editions, Popular edition, price $1.00, Library edition, price $3.00.

As premiums for this occasion, the "Silver Cross" (cloth, price 50 cents) is offered with the popular edition and the "People's Marx," cloth, price $1.50) is offered with the Library Edition, on orders sent in before April 1.

ADDRESS . . . .

THE INTERNATIONAL LIBRARY PUBLISHING COMPANY,

23 Duane Street, New York.

Send for Descriptive Catalogue.

FACTORY TO POCKET

Waltham Watches, solid gold, fast diamond settings in case; Retailers' price, $42.05 to $50.00; [illegible] by mail, $17.75. W. F. DOLL MFG. CO., 175 Broadway. Estab. 1876.

ABBOTT BROS.

Bakery, Coffee and Lunch Room

110 Bleecker Street, New York.

Kangaroos are welcome; no line drawn on smaller animals.

WANTED TO PURCHASE.

"The Jesus of History," by Sir H. Hanson of Australia. Socialist Literature Company, 184 William street, New York.

BUY UNION LABEL GOODS.

THE WORKER'S
GREAT MAY DAY NUMBER.
Eight Pages. Highly Valuable Articles. Ready May 1st.
Less than 100 copies, per copy 1 cent; 200 copies, $1.20.
100 copies, 75 cents; 300 copies or more, per 100, 50 cents.
ORDER AT ONCE.
USE ORDER BLANK YOU FIND IN THIS NUMBER.

The Worker.

A WONDERFUL BOOK.
"Railroading in the United States."
BY BEN HANFORD.
Price, 5 Cents. One Hundred Copies, $2.50, Postpaid.
ORDER AT ONCE.
SOCIALIST LITERATURE COMPANY, 184 William St., New York.

VOL. XII.—NO. 1. NEW YORK, APRIL 6, 1902. PRICE 2 CENTS.

TO ENSLAVE THE SAILORS.

An Infamous Bill Introduced at Washington.

Should Be Entitled "A Bill to Authorize Kidnapping of Sailors and Deprive Them of Civil Rights"—A Thing to Be Remembered at Next Election.

Resolutions adopted by the Central Labor Union of Portland, Me., call attention to an infamous attempt being made by the "representatives of the people" at Washington to fasten the yoke of slavery still more firmly upon the sailors, who are already the victims of most outrageous laws devised in the interest of ship-owners, merchants, and fishery companies.

The resolutions, which we here reproduce, state the matter so clearly that comment is hardly needed:

"Whereas, An amendment of great importance to seamen and others has been introduced into Congress, Jan. 21, 1902, by Amos L. Allen, Representative from this district, which is known as H. R. 9885, to amend Chapter 7 U. S. Rev. Stat. as amended Dec. 1898, by the re-enactment of Sec. 4599, and

"Whereas, The purpose of this amendment is that

An Infamous Bill.

"'Whenever any seaman or apprentice neglects or refuses to join or deserts from or refuses to proceed to sea in any vessel in which he is duly engaged to serve, or is found otherwise absenting himself therefrom without leave, the master or mate, or owner or consignee or shipping commissioner may in any place in the United Staes, with or without the assistance of the local public officers, and also at any place out of the United States, if the laws of such place permit, apprehend him without first procuring a warrant, and shall if it is practicable convey him before a court of justice to be dealt with according to law, and may detain him in custody for a period not exceeding twenty-four hours and may if there is no such court at or near the place at once convey him on board.

"'If such an apprehension appears to have been made on insufficient grounds, the master, owner, etc., who makes the same shall be liable to a penalty of not more than one hundred dollars; but such a penalty, if inflicted, shall be a bar to any action for false imprisonment.'

"Whereas, The re-enactment of the above law would reinstate a law that is exceptional in jurisprudence; and which places an arbitrary power in the hands of private citizens which cannot but lead to abuse, and which further establishes a dangerous example for other employers of labor, and

In Interest of Ship-Owners.

"Whereas, The greedy and selfish nature of this law in the interest of the capitalist owner of the vessel is shown by the smallness of the $100 fine for false apprehension and by the fact that such a fine shall be a bar to an action for false imprisonment, and whereas

"The false arrest of a landsman would render the person causing that arrest to a fine from one thousand to three thousand dollars. Therefore, be it

"Resolved, That we the Central Labor Union of Portland emphatically condemn such a law as reactionary and obsolete, reinstating marine slavery and thereby contrary to the constitution of the United States; unjust because it discriminates against seamen more than landsmen; pernicious because it will lower the standard of intelligence among seamen; dangerous in the establishment of a precedent that may be used against other branches of organized and unorganised labor; and finally because it is detrimental to the best interest of our own merchant marine.

"Further resolved, That a copy of these resolutions be forwarded to our daily papers, to our members of Congress, to the American Federation of Labor and to the House committee of merchant marine and fisheries."

Who Is Mr. Allen?

Mr. Allen is only one of three hundred and fifty-seven men—almost all either professional politicians, lawyers, or business men—elected largely by the votes of the wage-workers, but first nominated by the political machines endowed and controlled by the capitalist class. It is natural that he, along with his three hundred and fifty-six associates in the House and the ninety millionaires in the Senate, should carefully look after the interests of the class that owns the land, the factories, the railroads, the mines, the ships, the docks and warehouses, and the other capital of the country.

They will continue to do so until the men who work on the land, in the mills and mines, on the railroads and docks and ships—the wage-workers of the land—relegate them to private life and send men of their own class, on a working-class platform, to make the laws. That is what the Socialist Party is in the field for.

There are plenty of plain workingmen in Portland perfectly competent to take the place of the Dishonorable Amos L. Allen, competent to defend the interests of the sailors and other workingmen as well as he defends the interests of ship-owners and other capitalists. The same is true in every Congressional district in the country. Such men will be on the ballot next fall, as Congressional candidates of the Socialist Party. They, and they alone, should have the workingmen's votes. Votes are more effective than resolutions of protest.

Two men were arrested last week in this city, at the instance of officers of the C. M. I. U. on a charge of forging union cigar-box labels.

THE SMALL INVESTOR.

A Page for the Future Historian from the Last Days of Capitalism.

Haughty Contempt of Great Capitalists for Desires of Small Fellow Stockholders Shows the Irresponsible Power They Wield.

One of the favorite arguments of the defenders of capitalism at present is to point out that in all the trusts and great corporations there are large numbers of small stockholders, people who have invested a few hundred dollars, perhaps the savings from years of hard labor, along with the scores of millions of the Morgans and Rockefellers. In view of this fact, we are told that the ownership of capital is really more widely distributed than ever before, and the phrase, the "great middle class," which formerly applied to small independent property-owners, is now used to designate these small stockholders in corporations.

The Uses of Small Investors.

It may readily be admitted that there are very many such small stockholders. The promoters of a trust always send out their glowing prospectuses broadcast to tempt people who have some small savings to invest them in the new enterprise. But they are very careful not to allow these small stockholders to get control of the corporation or, in fact, to have the slightest share in its control. They are ready to use the small investors' capital, and by their own control of the corporation's policy they are able, when they will, to "fleece the lambs," to compel the little men to sell their shares at a heavy discount, or to do whatever suits the interest of the great magnates.

How completely the small stockholders at the mercy of the few great ones was shown in last week's meeting of the Metropolitan Street Railway Company, called for the purpose of leasing the property of the company (the whole trolley system of Manhattan and the Bronx) to the Interurban Company organized by the Widener Syndicate. The scene, as reported in the leading capitalist papers, was so instructive that we only regret our inability to reproduce it in full. The partial report is taken from the "Evening Post." The Mr. Cleveland mentioned represented a numberof the stockholders who opposed the lease, considering it as a scheme to defraud them of their interest in the concern. The discussion, as reported by the "Post," dramatically illustrates the unbridled power of the greater capitalists and their contempt for all that opposes their will.

An Instructive Discussion.

"When Mr. Robinson had taken his seat and was looking from Mr. Widener to Mr. Anderson and Mr. Cleveland across the big table, Mr. Widener arose. He was dressed with most apparent care, and had a large pink flower in his buttonhole. He looked entirely cool and, in fact, remained so throughout the stormy meeting.

"'The tellers will now take the vote upon the proposed and recommended lease,' he said, as if there was really very little concerned in the matter.

"Mr. Cleveland, who evidently had been waiting for something to happen, arose and asked mildly:

"'Am I to understand that the lease embodies the contract?'

"'Yes,' Mr. Widener replied, 'the contract can be read while the vote is being taken, if any one wishes it; it will save time.'

"'We wish a discussion of this matter, Mr. Chairman,' Mr. Anderson said. 'Let us discuss it before we vote on it.'

"Mr. Widener's manner was eminently cold so far as this proposition was concerned. Mr. Cleveland saw it, because he said quickly:

"'How can we be expected to vote upon it until we have discussed it?'

"'Well,' Mr. Widener said, without a moment's hesitation, 'you can vote for it, and discuss it afterwards.'

"There was an amazed murmur which had no effect at all upon Mr. Widener's easy, semi-indifferent manner.

"'Do you mean to say, Mr. Chairman,' Mr. Anderson demanded, 'that we must vote and then discuss?' He looke dincredulously at Mr. Widener.

"Mr. Cleveland advanced a step towards the chair and said:

"'You wish us to be executed first and then tried, is that it? We object to voting before discussion.'

"Mr. Widener smiled, with a bored sort of expression, and said: 'Well, sir, you may withhold your vote until after the discussion.'

"The chairman looked as if he had settled the matter entirely, and was about to sit down, when John F. Doyle sprang up.

"'I move,' he said, 'to lay the resolution calling for a vote upon the lease on the table until the matter shall have been fully discussed.'

"But this, although seconded, had no effect upon Mr. Widener. He was just as cool as the pink flower in his coat. Mr. Doyle might just as well have kept silence, because the chairman gave no sign of having heard him at all. Mr. Doyle looked surprised, and was about to repeat his motion when Mr. Widener said calmly:

"'The motion is out of order. The chair orders that the vote shall be taken.'

"'Well, this beats Tammany Hall,' exclaimed Mr. Anderson in a loud voice aside; then to the chair he said:

"'I move that a committee of five be appointed to examine the lease of the Metropolitan to the Interurban Company, to ascertain the legal status of the Interurban Company, to examine the contract between the Securities Company and the Interurban Company and between the Securities Company and Kuhn, Loeb & Co., to look into any matter connected with the proposed lease, and to report to the stockholders.

"'Furthermore, I move that the meeting adjourn for thirty days to enable the committee to perpare its report.'

"Mr. Cleveland at once seconded the motion ,and Mr. Widener unbent far enough to say: 'The chair orders a stock vote upon the motion.'

"Mr. Cleveland voted 500 shares, Mr. Anderson 1,250, for Mrs. Cardezas; Mr. Scharps 500, for H. Content & Co.; Mr. Wormser 20,000; Mr. C. P. Chandler 700, Mr. Doyle 500, Mr. Henry J. Fink 102, Mr. Fromme, for Isaac Fromme, 150, and Mr. Cloyd 100.

"Then the corporation cast its vote, in the neighborhood of 400,00 shares, and Mr. Anderson's motion was swept out of sight.

"Mr. Widener beamed about him and made ready for the next move. About this time Mr. Cleveland, who had inconspicuously requested that a copy of the by-laws of the Metropolitan Company be given to him, asked Mr. Widener:

"'Have the by-laws been found, Mr. Chairman, or are they lost, strayed or stolen? I should like to see them.'

"'The by-laws have nothing to do with this meeting,' Mr. Widener replied.

Vote First, Then Discuss.

"'We will take the vote and then proceed to that matter,' the Chairman said. Here he gave the first sign of irritation. 'I don't see why you make all these dilatory motions,' he said. 'They will keep people here all day.' (Mr. Cleveland and Mr. Anderson were now standing near the large table, at the head of which Mr. Widener, with the cool, pink flower, was presiding. Mr. Cleveland strode forward and said:

"'Do you refuse to have the by-laws produced?'

"Mr. Widener looked at him as if he had asked for the moon and Mr. Cleveland continued:

"'I want to put you down as refusing to give them. Mr. Vreeland. I appeal to you. I want to put you down also as refusing these by-laws.'

"Mr. Vreeland was sitting some distance away with his back to a window.

"'I've nothing to do with this meeting,' he said. 'You can put me down as you please.'

"Mr. Cleveland appealed to Mr. Warren, the secretary, who then went out to get them.

"'I move we adjourn until we get the by-laws,' Mr. Cleveland said.

"'You're out of order,' Mr. Widener replied cheerfully.

"'Do you refuse to put my motion?' said Mr. Cleveland, warmly.

"'Yes, I do,' and the chairman sank back in his seat amid a storm of protests by Mr. Cleveland and Mr. Anderson.

"'Are not motions to adjourn always in order?' Mr. Chandler asked; then, sotto voce, 'I can move to adjourn until the Nile freezes over, and not be out of order anywhere but in these meetings.'

"Several minor squabbles occurred after this, the minority representatives seeking in every way to overcome the chair's declination to permit discussions before the final vote, but unsuccessfully. The agreement between the Interurban and the Securities Company was read, and Chairman Widener, for the tenth time, at least, said:

"'The question now before the meeting is the vote upon the lease.'

"But Mr. Cleveland and Mr. Anderson were at their guns. The former cried out:

"'I move that this Interurban Company furnish a statement of its debt, and to whom it owes what it owes, and how this is secured by stocks or other collateral.'

"'That's got nothing to do with it,' Mr. Widener exclaimed. 'You can't make any resolutions until the vote. The officers of the company are the ones to ask for the information you wish; this meeting was called to vote. Now, if no one else desires to vote we'll close the polls.'

"Mr. Cleveland protested in vain and appealed from the chair's decision. Mr. Andrews walked up close to Mr. Widener and said with vehemence:

"'I protest, too. How can you lease this valuable franchise to a corporation which possesses only four or five miles of railway and has no franchise, except in Westchester and the Bronx? As I represent 1,250 shares, I say I can't see how this can be done. I ask what guarantee can the Interurban Company give to pay 7 per cent., to live up to its obligations? I protest.'

"I'm Satisfied."

"Mr. Widener spoke up: 'I got a circular from the company which gave me all the information necessary, upon this point, and I'm satisfied. I'm here to vote.'

"As a director, Mr. Cleveland appealed to Mr. Widener again:

"'I ask you to refrain from insulting the intelligence of the stockholders, and give the information we ask for.'

"Mr. Widener's repty to this was:

"'The polls are closed, gentlemen.'

"A few minutes later the vote was counted, and the lease was ratified."

"I Am the State."

As Socialists, we have no interest in the battle between little and big profitgrinders. We are for the working class, against all exploiters, great and small. But it is worth while to observe such an incident as this. Mr. Widener's "I am ready to vote; you can vote for the lease and discuss it afterward," reminds one of the French king's "I am the state." Against the murmurs of the factious nobles the French king was all-powerful. But there came a day when the people said, "We will be the state," and king and lords went down together.

FOR THE DAILY.

Meeting Is Called for Permanent Organization.

Every Earnest Comrade Should Become a Member of the Publishing Association—Remember the Benefit Concert on May 4.

The meeting for the permanent organization of the publishing association for the coming English Socialist daily is to be held on Thursday evening, April 3, in the Labor Lyceum, 64 E. Fourth street. Every party member of New York City or vicinity who can, by any possibility, be present at that time should do so. Every party member should feel it his duty, not only to help in the establishment of the daily, but also to take part in directing its course from the first moment of its existence.

The Finance Committee makes the following report for the week:

Amounts Pledged.

Following is a statement of amounts pledged for the Socialist Daily Fund u pto Mar. 31:

Previously acknowledged	$3,013.50
A. Reinlieb	10.00
Matthew Kirsch, Niagara Falls	3.00
Geo. W. Melb	10.00
Joseph A. Goldstein	24.00
Pedro Jose Castano, Providence	5.00
A. Siff	5.00
Wm. Mohr, Lawrence, Mass.	3.00
Louis Martin, Lawrence, Mass.	2.00
Fred Tepper, Lawrence, Mass.	10.00
M. Abrahams, Methuen	10.00
Edward L. Shewenson, Cincinnatic, O.	12.00
Dr. F. E. Schelbe, Toledo, O.	10.00
Total	$3,117.50

Cash Contributions.

The following statement of cash received includes payments on pledges as well as a number of direct cash donations:

Previously acknowledged	$376.00
A. Reinlieb	1.00
P. Levine	1.00
Louis Rauch	1.00
B. 2, 20th A. D., Brooklyn	2.00
Otto Fricke, Corona	1.00
Joseph A. Goldstein	2.00
Dr. Robert K. Kneass, Baltimore	5.00
Pedro Jose Castano, Providence	.50
A. Siff	1.00
Richard Bock	2.00
F. Grossly	1.00
Ch. H.	15.00
Fred Schoettle	5.00
Geo. Volkert	1.00
Axel Wahlenberg, Suffield, Conn.	10.00
Wm. Mohr, Lawrence, Mass.	1.00
Br. 181, W. S. and D. B. Fund, Lawrence, Mass.	10.00
Total	$435.50

Notice to Contributors.

Pledges should be sent and checks and money orders made payable to the Socialist Daily Finance Committee, 184 William street, New York. Communications may be addressed to Henry L. Slobodin, 60 Second avenue, New York.

The Worker will contain, each week, a list of contributions received up to Monday preceding the date of issue.

If any contribution sent is not promptly acknowledged the sender should at once inform the Committee, that the matter may be investigated and set right.

Those who have made pledges should remember to send in the monthly instalments promptly, saving the trouble and expense of notifying them. Let each one feel his personal responsibility for the work we have undertaken and his power to hasten the coming of the Socialist Daily.

The May Concert.

During the present month the comrades should lend all their efforts to make the greatest possible success of the Damrosch Concert at Grand Central Palace on May 4, the net proceeds of which are to go to the Socialist Party Fund. Each comrade in New City or vicinity should make it a point to sell as many tickets as he can and also to see that his union and other organizations to which he may belong are supplied.

H. C. Bowerman has charge of the distribution of tickets and he may be addressed at the W. E. A. Club House, 206 E. Eighty-sixth street. Every Sunday afternoon the committee in charge meets at the same place and all comrades who are willing to help should be present. So far as possible, money collected on tickets should be turned in before the concert, as a considerable sum is necessary to defray expenses.

Organizations in all parts of the country can participate in the work by purchasing the souvenir journal of the concert, "May Flowers." The price is, for single copies, 5 cents; in quantities of 25 or more, 3 cents a copy. The sale of 10,000 copies of this beautiful souvenir would add very materially to the fund for the daily. Send orders, with cash, before April 25, to H. C. Bowerman, W. E. A. Club House, 206 E. Eighty-sixth street, New York City.

GAIN IN MILWAUKEE.

Dispatches, suppressed by most of the daily papers, announce that the Socialist Party polled 6,500 votes in the city election in Milwaukee last Tuesday. This is a gain of about 1400 over the vote cast in the last election, that of November, 1900.

Our vote in Chicago is also about 6,500, in spite of the "public ownership" campaign.

—J. Pierpont Morgan has what might be termed a cinch. Any one who does not like Mr. Morgan's country can leave it only in one of Mr. Morgan's boats.—Chicago Daily News.

NON-PARTIZAN HUMBUGGERY.

Does Not Fool Toledo Workingmen.

Central Labor Union Sits Down Hard on Golden-Rule Get-Together Scheme—Bryanite Orphans Issue a Curiously Puerile Document.

The Central Labor Union of Toledo, O., at its first meeting in March, received a communication from the "Non-Partizan Federation." Delegate Jos. P. Keating of the Typographical Union, moved that the letter be returned to the writer, on the ground that there is an organized party in the field whose mission is the liberation of the wage-workers. Amendments to discuss the letter were made and amended until a substitute, providing to make it the special order at 10 o'clock on March 27, was at last carried, the discussion to be in committee of the whole.

When the day and hour arrived an effort was made to force adjournment, and thus prevent debate, but Business Agent Usher of the C. L. U. remarked that he saw too many there who had not been present for a long time, and who were no doubt present to hear the subject debated, and urged the delegates to be consistent and fair. Usher was elected as chairman of the committee of the whole. The letter was read as printed in the local labor paper, and in response to requests for the reading of the letter-head it developed that the following persons were named thereon as the advisory board of the Non-Partizan Federation: Hon. Samuel M. Jones, Eltwood Pomeroy, Frank Parsons, M. L. Lockwood, John R. Commons, Rev. H. F. Bigelow, H. D. Lloyd, Geo. McK. Miller, Louis F. Post, Geo. K. Sherman, Dr. C. F. Taylor, and Geo. H. Shibley.

Delegate Keating renewed his motion to return the letter to the writer. He opened the debate by reading from a recent magazine article by the promoter of this new enterprise, plainly showing how "non-partizan" he was. Keating also recalled the fact that this promoter, Eltwood Pomeroy, and Frank Parsons were the individuals who, on the eve of the last presidential election, for the obvious purpose of misleading the sympathizers with Socialism at a critical moment, issued a despicable letter urging Eugene V. Debs to betray the trust imposed in him as the standard bearer of the Socialist Party and withdraw in favor of their capitalistic idol—a practical example of the loving and beautiful non-partizan spirit. He further showed that most of those named as the advisory board were strenuous workers in "dumping" the People's Party at the feet of the same idol. He then took up the subject of the initiative and referendum, stating that his union had it in operation and that he favored it as part of a general scheme, but that in the field of capitalist politics it was a two-edged sword. To illustrate he said: "Supposing the question of hanging Eugene V. Debs had been submitted to the whole people when he was placed on trial for conspiracy, what do you think would have been the result? Why, he would have been hanged as sure as the sun rises. Why? Because of the misrepresentation of the capitalist press. Let me bring it closer home. How would the Metal Polishers have fared here in Ohio on a referendum on the matter of the National Cash Register strike, communities being flooded with illustrated papers from Dayton depicting the beauties of the N. C. R.? While the capitalistic press moulds the minds of the people of this country, I, as a trade unionist, am opposed to the placing of this means of outlawing us in their hands. Economic education will bring the initiative and referendum as a logical development, but must precede its adoption.

"Those who are informed know that the 'practical' methods of these professed 'non-partizans' wiped out the People's Party in Ohio, and that a party made up of several reforms was instituted with a single-plank platform, demanding the initiative and referendum. In 1899 it cast 7,799 votes in the state; in 1900 it received 4,284 votes; and in 1901 the votes grew to 2,718, which should make plain how people rally to a movement based on a means instead of an end."

He showed that parties are the organized representation of class interests, and pointed out which class each of the present parties represent—the Socialist Party representing the interest of the wage-working class. His reference to the promised $2 was pointed and pertinent.

Delegate J. J. Doyle of the Flint Glass Workers' Union followed in an address that was a surprise for its clear and forceful plea for class-conscious political action on the part of the workers. He said that Labor was just beginning to waken, and that to draw the workers' attention away from the most patent fact of history—the class struggle—the capitalists would try to divert and divide, and he warned them against such moves as this or local moves based on personality. Some of his epigrams were fine. He said he was proud of the fact that the national convention of his organization was on record in favor of economic and political discussions.

Delegate Charles Parker of the same union spoke briefly, showing the absurdity of "non-partizanship."

Delegate J. P. Egan of the Typographical Union took the floor, and in his characteristically fair manner dissected the letter, making plain its weakness and absurdity. Speaking of the promised political preferment he said that the bane of the American labor movement had been the members with political aspirations, and he pictured the development of a labor leader as a capitalistic politician in true colors. He congratulated the C. L. U. on taking the stand it had on this discussion, as it promised much for the future in the way of a knowledge of higher politics. He said: "I feel that I am right in my political position, but I can afford to work and wait until the logic of events brings you all to my way of thinking. I do not care to force matters. The changes on the industrial field are going on fast enough to suit me, and I know that the political plan which I advocate must logically follow."

Much to the surprise of all, not one word was said in favor of the "non-partizan" scheme proposed in the letter. Silence reigned until the question was called, and then it was a unanimous vote to return the letter to the writer—not a sign of a vote to the contrary.

Such is the fate of the "Non-Partizan Federation" in a city where the practical results have proven a disappointment to the hopes of many an ardent advocate. The concensus of opinion here is to the effect that the Bryanite orphans who constitute the advisory board of this latest scheme are trying to shape a lever to be used in forcing themselves back into a place in the house of their fathers. It will prove just as "practical" as some of their past work. C.

Toledo, O., Mar. 28.

The Worker cannot spare space to reprint the whole of Mr. Shibley's curiously puerile circular, but the important parts are here presented. We have taken the liberty of putting some words and phrases in large type—an honor which they well deserve. Some comment will be found in the editorial coulmns.

"The time for electing aldermen is near at hand in most cities, and such is probably the case in yours. * * * The only question is as to the best plan of campaign. * * * You and a few friends can easily start in your city a movement that will at once establish majority rule—the referendum and initiative—and, in addition, will be heralded throughout the state and throughout the nation as a victory for organized labor, it being their movement. * * *

"It is almost no trouble to start an organization. A few of you can join together and adopt the constitution. * * * Then elect an executive committee. THE EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE WILL THEN ELECT A CHAIRMAN, SECRETARY, AND TREASURER, AND NAME AN ADVISORY COUNCIL. Then you are ready to publish your letter-heads and to begin the work. At the first mass-meeting of the trade unionists, they will endorse your plan; and probably you can get all your trade unions to become members. Each organization that joins will elect a vice-chairman, and these will constitute the committee that controls the Federation for Majority Rule. You should also get as many of the other non-partizan organizations of your city as possible, the Merchants' Association, Municipal League, and other good government clubs, and possibly the young people's societies of the churches. The Turn Verein Society will join you, for they have in their constitution a demand for the adoption of the referendum and initiative. The Single Taxers will be with you; also the Populists, SOCIALISTS, Union Reformers, and most of the Democrats, for their national platform demanded this reform; and many Republicans. No politician will dare to argue against majority rule; while the ignorant objections that are raised against the proposed machinery for establishing majority rule you can quickly brush aside. * * * The Populists and Union Reformers will be especially helpful in explaining the benefits of the referendum and initiative.

"Try and take up the work. WE WILL PAY TWO DOLLARS toward your first letter-heads, upon receipt of one of them, giving the names and Post Office address of the officers and advisory council and the official headquarters. If you cannot act as secretary, do try and get some one to take hold of it. Surely there is some one who can do the small amount of work involved. The success of the movement WILL PLACE THE ORGANIZER IN LINE FOR TRADE-UNION AND POLITICAL HONORS, as well as being a personal satisfaction."

ADVANCE IN CATSKILL.

The ticket of the Social Democratic Party received 27 "straight" ballots in the village election—that is, 27 voters supported all the Social Democratic candidates and no others. There were many "split" ballots on which one or more of our candidates were voted for. The highest Social Democratic vote was 66.

This applies only to the village of Catskill, which does not include the whole of the township. In the last general election, we cast but 23 votes for the head of our ticket in the whole township, and but 28 in the whole of Greene County.

If all of the 27 voters in the village of Catskill who showed themselves firm and class-conscious Socialists at the polls last week will unite in the local party organization and work systematically during the next seven months they can register a much larger gain at the state election. At the very least, they ought to double the straight vote in their village and beside, carry the knowledge of Socialism into every farm and village in Greene County.

VOTE IN RAMSEY, N. J.

The town of Ramsey, in Bergen County, N. J., cast 39 votes for the ticket of the Socialist Party in last week's election. The comrades in that place are pleased with the result and believe that they will do still better next fall.

MASSACHUSETTS LEGISLATURE.

Representative MacCartney "Stirs Up the Animals."

His Speech on Trolley Franchises Makes a Genuine Sensation—Open Charge of Corruption Elicits No Denial.

F. O. MacCartney, Socialist member from Rockland in the Massachusetts Legislature, "stirred up the animals" last Thursday in a way that compelled the attention, not of the legislators only, but of the whole public. The Boston "Post," in introducing a two-column report, said:

"The members of the lower branch of the Legislature were given an oratorical lashing yesterday afternoon, which they will not soon forget, and the committee on street railways in particular is expected to feel the sting for some time. It was Representative MacCartney, one of the Socialist members, who administered the tongue-lashing, and he did it in a manner that created a sensation.

"The Legislature was not the only body caustically arraigned. The Boston Elevated Company, and its progenitor, the West End Street Railway Company, filled in as the dual object at which Mr. MacCartney struck with charges of corruption in securing legislation.

"The speech was one of the most severe of its kind ever made. Mr. MacCartney was fighting to have his new bill for public ownership of street railways adopted in place of the adverse report of the street railway committee on another bill of his. When he had finished the half-hour attack, he called on the members of the committee to make answer, but the answer was confined to moving the previous question."

The Socialist members spoke with such telling effect that a majority of the members did not dare go on record for cutting off debate and when, after the discussion, a vote was called for, it was found that many old-party members had "sneaked" and the sergeant-at-arms had to be sent after them to get a quorum.

MacCartney's bill was defeated by 98 to 61, but, says the "Post," "the friends of the street railway committee were obliged to do some active scurrying to get all their votes into the House."

MacCartney's bill makes it lawful for the state or towns and cities in the state to purchase, own, and operate any or all street railways. It requires a referendum on such purchase upon petition of 10 per cent. of the voters, and provides that the purchase price shall be the estimated cost of duplicating the plant, allowing nothing for franchise or good will.

Inside History.

In support of his motion MacCartney said in part:

"I will give an epitome of this Elevated railroad, and an expose which is based on facts. In 1886 the West End Land Company was formed by William C. Whitney. This company got a tract of land for $2,000,000. In less than a year the shares had gone up from $8 to $38. In other words, while the capital had invested only $2,000,000 the stock was sold at an advance of $30, giving a profit of $7,000,000.

"How could they give a profit of $7,000,000 on $2,000,000? They got control of the five street railway companies and combined into the West End Street Railroad Company. This company was incorporated for $5,000,000, yet the transaction had a bearing on the West End Land Company. The stockholders of the land company held 785,000 ont of the 800,092 of the combined shares. In other words, the stock was absorbed.

"Then the West End Street Railroad Company came before the Legislature. What did the committee on street railways do?

Whitney's Graft.

"Mr. Whitney asked that these five companies, whose combined capital was only $6,000,000, be recapitalized for $12,000,000, or an over-capitalization of $6,000,000. The Legislature authorized that, through the committee on street railways. The Railroad Commission objected and allowed only a capitalization of $6,000,000.

"The dividends at this figure became so great that the capitalists could not hide from the public the outrageous conditions and the huge profits that were steadily accruing. In 1896, 'Joe' Meigs came here to this Legislature and got a franchise for an elevated road. He got that for nothing.

"In 1897 Meigs sold the franchise to Whitney, Kidder, Peabody & Co., J. P. Morgan and other capitalists for $400,000. That meant $400,000 clean profit. Again there began the necessity of hiding the dividends from the public. The West End Land Company was the pocket corporation at first. In ten years a second pocket corporation was necessary, and the Elevated company came into existence.

"The Elevated Company asked for a capitalization of $15,000,000, and the Legislature allowed it. The Railroad Commission allowed only $10,000,000. All the Elevated Company asked was a gift of $5,000,000. The Legislature was willing, but the commissioners cut it down 33 pe rcent.

What Is the Object?

"What is the object of this overcapitalization? First, to hide profits, second, to keep fares up, and, third, to prevent public ownership.

"The bill which the street railway committee offers us sweeps away the last vestige of protection, yet it was passed by the House and amended by the Senate. But the bill that stands amended is as bad as the original. The bill was sneaked through.

"This Elevated company and the corporation that controls all the other street railways of Massachusetts is the greatest menace to political purity we have in Massachusetts."

Corruption Directly Charged.

The next portion of MacCartney's speech drew the undivided attention of all the members. He read from a special report of an investigation made some time ago regarding the lobby return of the West End Company. The account was as follows:

To lobby expenses, $22,000; to attorney for influence in legislation, $10,000; to attorney, $5,000; to dinners for members of the Legislature at the Algonquin Club, $1,922; for carriages for members of the Legislature, $584; to expenses for publishing speeches, $7,000.

As MacCartney gave the figures he made interpolations that caused additional interest to be paid to his speech. "Have you ever dined at the Algonquin at the expense of the West End, or the Elevated Company?" he asked. "That is what your predecessors did. You're not up with them if you haven't.

"I want to say here that some people may think it well to commence suit against me for these statements, but I welcome any suit that can come. Have you ever ridden in carriages at the expense of these railway companies? If you haven't, you are not up to snuff."

FOR THE 7TH, 9TH, AND 25TH A. D.

Every reader of this paper residing in the 7th, 9th, or 25th Assembly District who is willing to join the Social Democratic Party is requested to come on Saturday evening, April 5, to the house of Comrade Chas. Wecklein, 508 W. Twenty-sixth street, top floor, where the organization formed last Friday will meet to perfect its plans of work. Come, and bring with you any friends who are interested in Socialism.

—Do not pray for easy lives; pray to be stronger men. Do not pray for tasks equal to your power, but pray for powers equal to your tasks.—Phillipps Brooks.

CHALLENGE ACCEPTED—

S. D. P. State Committee Takes Up Bishop's Defiance.

Workingmen of Buffalo Will Have a Chance to Hear Both Sides—The Question Clearly Defined.

The State Committee of the Social Democratic Party of New York has taken up the gauntlet thrown down by Bishop Quigley, as shown by the following letter which was approved at last Monday's meeting:

"James E. Quigley, Bishop of Buffalo.

"Sir:—In the Buffalo 'Volksfreund' of Mar. 20 appears a challenge, over the signature of Dr. A. Helter, to the Social Democratic Party, to debate the two following propositions:

"'(a) Only Socialism can emancipate the working class from wage slavery;

"'(b) Everybody should join the Social Democratic Party.'

"Understanding that Dr. Helter acted as your representative and that this challenge is issued with your consent and by your authority, we, the New York State Committee of the Social Democratic Party, hereby accept this challenge.

"We will discuss the questions at issue with you or with your representative at any time and place that may be agreed upon by your and our representatives.

"We expect to be notified to whom to address further communication.

"Yours truly,

"NEW YORK STATE COMMITTEE,
S. D. P.

"LEONARD D. ABBOTT,
"Secretary.

"New York, Mar. 31, 1902."

The workingmen of Buffalo will now have an opportunity to judge whether or not the Bishop was justified in his assault upon the Socialist movement. The discussion, according to the terms of the challenge, will bear solely upon the real question at issue—the aims and methods of the Social Democratic Party and its relation to the interests of the working class. This is as it should be. The Social Democratic Party takes no stand, on one side or the other, upon theological questions. It is neither for Christianity nor against it, neither for the Catholic Church nor against it. It is a political organization, having for its object the abolition of wage slavery and for its method independent political action of the working class to establish collective ownership of the means of production. Its members are free to hold what religious opinions their private judgment, experience, or feelings may dictate, Catholic, Protestant, Jew, and Atheist meet on terms of equality in the party organization and work harmoniously together for the interests of the working class. That our representative must now meet an official spokesman of a certain church in debate is due solely to the fact that the officials of this church have chosen to leave the field of religion for that of politics in order to make a direct attack upon our party and upon it alone.

If both the debaters will adhere closely to the question as it is formulated, much good may result from the discussion. Dr. Helter is no doubt an able speaker and a learned man and will make the best of his side. Who will represent the Socialists in the controversy is not yet decided, but we have no fear of the result.

The Worker.

AN ORGAN OF THE SOCIALIST PARTY

(Known in New York State as the Social Democratic Party.)

PUBLISHED WEEKLY

AT 184 WILLIAM STREET, NEW YORK,

By the Socialistic Co-operative Publishing Association.

P. O. BOX 1512.

Telephone Call: 302 John.

TERMS TO SUBSCRIBERS.

Invariably in advance.

year	50c.
months	25c.
copies	2c.

Bundle rates:

than 100 copies, per copy	1c.
copies	75c.
copies	$1.20
copies or more, per hundred	50c.

Weekly Bundles:

per week, one year	$1.75
per week, one year	3.50
per week, one year	7.00
per week, one year	12.50

Address all business communications, and make money orders, checks and drafts payable to The Worker.

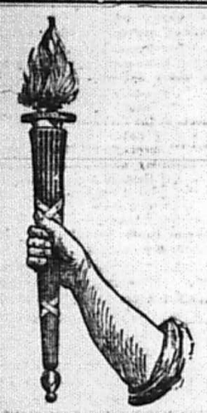
Communications concerning the editorial department of the paper should be addressed to the Editor.

Entered as second-class matter at the New York, N. Y., Post Office on April 6, 1901.

UNION PRINTER

SOCIALIST VOTE IN THE UNITED STATES.

In 1888 (Presidential)	2,068
In 1890	13,331
In 1892 (Presidential)	21,157
In 1894	33,133
In 1896 (Presidential)	36,564
In 1898:
S. L. P.	82,204
S. D. P.	9,545
In 1900 (Presidential):
S. D. P.	96,918
S. L. P.	33,450



THE PARTY'S EMBLEM.

The eight-page special May Day Number of The Worker will contain an article by William Mailly upon the record of James F. Carey and Frederick O. MacCartney in the Massachusetts Legislature. This will be good propaganda matter, not only in Massachusetts, but all over the country.

Every party member and every reader of The Worker in Greater New York or vicinity should help in making the Damrosch Concert on May 4 a success. Now is the time to get tickets and sell them. Remember, it is for the Socialist Daily Fund.

READ AND THINK —AND ACT!

"Printers' Ink," a periodical devoted to the interests of publishers and advertisers, and whose information concerning newspapers is regarded as reliable, is of the opinion that the great "captains of industry" have thrown out their nets and are hauling in influential papers.

"It is rumored," says "Printers' Ink," "that Munsey represents the Steel Trust, and in buying the New York 'News' and Washington 'Times' has only made two steps in a journey. He will, it is said, be a bidder for the Philadelphia 'Record,' the object being, so rumor asserts, to control practically all the one-cent papers—a hundred of them, one said a thousand. What is wanted is TO REACH AND INFLUENCE THE LABORING PEOPLE.

"If the Steel Trust succeeds, as it probably will, all the cheap papers of the large cities, the Hearst dailies excepted, will come under its control. Eventually it may acquire even the Hearst publications. A newspaper trust, by rendering publication of dailies devoted to the public interests impracticable, would strengthen all trusts.

"Instead of being used for the purpose for which freedom of the press is guaranteed in the constitution, the power of the press would be systematically employed to misinform and deceive the people and to maintain and strengthen privilege at the expense of equality. A free press is indispensable to free institutions."

This falls in very well with the following statement, taken from the columns of the "Editor and Publisher," another periodical published for circulation among newspaper men:

"The trust magnates are taking a great deal of interest in the newspaper business now. John W. Gates, the steel magnate, is said to have furnished the capital with which George W. Hinman purchased the Chicago 'Inter-Ocean.' Senator W. A. Clark owns six of the leading newspapers of Montana. James J. Hill, the most prominent railroad figure in the central west, is the proprietor of the St. Paul 'Globe,' and owns a controlling interest in the 'Pioneer Press' and the Minneapolis 'Tribune,' and holds a $300,000 mortgage on the 'Post-Intelligencer' of Seattle. It is said that he also owns a controlling interest in the majority of the papers along the line of his railroad."

The power of the press is so generally recognized that it seems idle to dilate upon it. The molding of "public opinion" through the editorial columns, great as is the influence so exercised, is even less important—and, when under capitalist direction, even less pernicious—than the power wielded through the coloring and distorting or even the actual suppression and fabrication of news to suit the interests of those who control the newspapers.

The capitalists of this country are waking up to the necessity of defending their class interests and of thwarting the labor movement as represented in the mills and mines by the trade unions and at the ballot-box by the Socialist Party. They are always ready to use force to crush the resistance of the workers when this can be done in no other way. But they understand that fraud is generally cheaper and more effective than force. There is a saying attributed to Napoleon to the effect that one newspaper is worth thousands of bayonets. Our Napoleons of industry—as cold, as cruel, and as false as the Corsican—know the wisdom of that saying even better than he.

Whether or not the statements of "Printers' Ink" and the "Editor and Publisher" are altogether correct—and we have no reason to doubt them—at least no one can fail to see that the privately owned daily press is already largely dominated by the influence of organized capital and that this capitalist control is steadily growing more complete and being used more skilfully.

We can foil this invention of the enemy in only one way: By establishing a daily press owned by working class organizations—best of all, owned by the members of the Socialist Party—and therefore responsible solely to the working class.

The existence of one such paper would go far to offset the most powerful combination that Munsey or any other capitalist agent can form. But we need not stop with one. As the French say, "It is only the first step that costs." By the time a Socialist daily in the English language in New York has successfully completed a single year of its existence, the movement will have begun for a similar undertaking in Chicago, in San Francisco, perhaps in Boston, Philadelphia, St. Louis, and other cities. And every new paper in the series will be easier to found and to maintain than the ones that preceded it.

The task has begun here in New York. It has been taken up with a full realization of its difficulties, and with a firm resolution to carry it through to success. The only question is one of time; and that depends upon the sacrifices which the members and supporters of the Socialist Party, the progressive trade unionists, and the sincere sympathizers with the working class here and throughout the land, are willing to make.

Here and throughout the land, we say—and we say it advisedly. The Republican politicians of the Far West know how much they owe to the New York "Sun." The Democratic politicians of the Far West know how much they owe to the New York "Journal." What is true on their side will be still more emphatically true on ours. The Socialists of Massachusetts, of Ohio, of Illinois, of Montana, of California, should feel the same enthusiasm for the Socialist daily and work for it as enthusiastically as the Socialists of New York City.

Comrades, what will you do? How soon shall the Socialist daily make its first appearance? Let us hear from you. Show your interest by word, if you like; but do not fail to show it by deeds.

Literature Agents of subdivisions in New York and vicinity and of locals all over the country should order the journal of the May Concert. See advertisement elsewhere in this paper.

"NON-PARTIZAN HUMBUGGERY."

There can be no doubt that the success of such a nondescript, heterogenous, boss-ridden aggregation as the "Non-Partizan Federation" referred to in our Toledo correspondence would, as its promoter so naively suggests, "be heralded as a victory for organized labor." The capitalist press is always ready to herald Labor's defeats as victories and to misrepresent everything connected with the labor movement.

The instructions for "laying the wires" are also naive. "A few of you" can get together and elect an executive committee and this committee will then elect all the officers. This having been done, you will take the rest of the working people into your confidence—so far as suits you "At the first mass meeting of the trade unionists they will endorse your plan"—right off, without discussion or deliberation—unless, indeed, some naughty Socialist kicks over the traces by suggesting that they look before they leap.

This is, indeed, a very democratic method of procedure for a body that professes to advocate "majority rule"—very different from that of the "unpractical" Socialist Party, in which the officers are elected directly from and responsible to the rank and file and in which all important matters are regularly decided by referendum.

When Mr. Shibley so confidently assures his friends that the Socialists will fall into the trap, however, he does an inexcusably stupid thing—for not only does he know it to be false, but he should well know that it will deceive nobody. It is pretty well known by this time that the Socialist Party is proof against fusion and confusion.

The "merchants' associations," however, are not so intolerant—for a good reason. They are generally willing to play partners with labor organizations foolish enough to believe in them, on the one condition that the labor organizations be the silent partner.

Perhaps the affiliation of merchants' associations may explain the source of the two-dollar bills that Mr. Shibley is so ready to distribute among his wire-pullers. The Socialist Party continually calls on its members to contribute their nickels and dimes, instead of scattering money among them. The difference is a significant one.

Equally significant of the character of this movement which is to purge the political world of corruption, is the phrase near the close which we have put in large type. "The success of the movement WILL PLACE THE ORGANIZER IN LINE FOR TRADE UNION AND POLITICAL HONORS."

Against a "non-partizan" movement, founded on the attempt to unite capitalists and laborers, organized in the dark, ruled from above, supplied with money from some unknown source, and held together by the hope of personal honor and gain, we set the Socialist movement, founded on the interests of the wage-working class, public in its methods, directed by the majority vote of its members, depending upon its rank and file for its funds, and inspired by the sentiment of working-class solidarity. Between two such movements, we know which will remain true to its avowed aims and which will survive.

ARE NOT THESE THINGS PRACTICAL?

Americans pride themselves on being a "practical" people. They want to "see how a thing works" before they will believe in it, and even very small actual results have more weight with them than the most strictly logical arguments.

The record of the two Socialist members of the Massachusetts Legislature, as reported from week to week by Comrade Mailly in this paper is a very practical demonstration of what Socialist politics will do.

Carey and MacCartney have not been able to carry any important measures through the Legislature as yet. But their work has not been without results. They have been so alert, so consistent, and so aggressive in their advocacy of the interests of the working class that they have compelled the respect of the old-party politicians, not only for themselves as individuals, but for the movement which they represent. The capitalist agents at the State House have learned that the Socialist representatives cannot be bribed or cajoled or bullied into the betrayal of their trust or even into silent acquiescence; and this knowledge makes them very careful not to go too far in their accustomed violation of the interests of Labor.

To have accomplished even such negative results is a great gain. If two Socialist members can put the whole force of bi-partizan capitalist representatives on the defensive, how much more, in the way of positive progress, could be done by a minority of even ten or twenty Socialist legislators from different parts of the stae? And how well worth while it would be to send a Socialist delegation that could carry over the heads of both old parties its measures for the benefit of the working class. In each of the large cities and factory towns of Massachusetts may be found workingmen as honest and, in their several ways, as able as Carey and MacCartney, who, if elected on the uncompromising platform of the Socialist Party, would stand just as firmly for Labor's cause. The time for lobbying and begging for legislative favors is past. The time has come for the working class to elect its own men to make its own laws.

As examples of the sort of legislation for which, pending the final victory of Socialism, our representatives in the Massachusetts Legislature have fought, we need mention but two which they have introduced and advocated in the present session. Both are commendably brief and clear in their terms, and both have a direct bearing on the battle which the workers have to carry on, the year round, against capitalist aggression.

The first is to prevent one of the commonest methods by which strikes are broken—the use of deceit to entrap workers into a position where they cannot well refuse to scab. Its provisions are as follows:

"Section 1. If any employer, during the continuance of a strike among his employees, or during the continuance of a lockout of his employees, publicly advertises in newspapers, by posters, or otherwise, for employees, or by himself or his agents solicits persons to work for him, he shall plainly and explicitly mention in such advertisements or oral or written solicitations, that a strike has occurred among his employees, or that a lockout exists.

"Section 2. If any person, firm, association, or corporation violates any provision of this act, he or it shall incur a fine of one hundred dollars for each offense, of which sum one-half shall go to the person who makes the complaint against him or it."

The second assures to workingmen the same right of open and direct argument and persuasion in carrying on their battles that is already guaranteed to capitalists opposing them. It reads thus:

"In case of a strike or lockout or other dispute between an employer and his employees, it shall be lawful for the employees, or for other persons, to picket or patrol the neighborhood of the place of employment or any other place to which they have lawful access, and personally or by means of banners, posters, circulars, or otherwise, to solicit or persuade persons not to enter or not to continue in the employment of the employer."

These two propositions have raised a storm of denunciation in the capitalist press. That is a good reason why workingmen should give them thoughtful consideration.

Think of it, you workingmen who have had the experience of travelling to some distant city to answer an alluring "help wanted" advertisement, only to find that your prospective boss wanted you to scab—who have found yourselves stranded penniless, perhaps, in a strange place, with no alternative but scabbing or tramping—do you not think that first bill is a good one?

Think of it, you workingmen who have been enjoined against walking on the streets near the shop from which you were locked out or speaking to the men who, perhaps ignorantly, took your places—you who have been clubbed and thrown into jail for violating such injunctions—do you not think that second bill is a good one?

If you would like to see such laws enacted and enforced, you have but one course open to you. The Socialist Party is the only political organization that advocates such measures and your part is to join that party, help nominate its candidates, help spread its principles, and help elect the men of your choice to legislative, executive, and judicial office to carry out your will.

Now is the time to begin.

The United States Senate Committee on Rules has reported favorably on the following proposed rule:

"No senator in debate shall directly or indirectly by any form of words impute to another senator any conduct or motive unworthy or unbecoming a senator."

Such a rule is made necessary by the certain knowledge of every member of the Senate, that he and every other member is habitually actuated by motives unbecoming to any man who has sworn a solemn oath to guard the interests of the people. People who live in glass houses must needs have strict rules against stone-throwing.

Several labor leaders are reported to have recently discovered that "Hanna is no friend of labor." We congratulate these discerning ones upon their keen perception. If this intellectual development continues, they may ultimately discover that two and two are four, or that the robber is not the benefactor of his victim.

The capitalist papers can hardly find words to express their horror at the bill introduced by Representative Carey in the Massachusetts Legislature making it lawful for strikers to persuade other workers not to take their places. They have never suggested that it should be made unlawful for capitalists to hire private detectives and spies to disrupt trade unions and private policemen to bully and maltreat strikers. It makes all the difference in the world whose ox is gored.

CHILDREN WONDER WHY.

Cannot Understand Why One Has So Much and Others Have So Little.

Even the children of the plutocrats realize that the so-called civilization we live in is wrong. On Easter Sunday I was standing at the corner of Fifth avenue and Forty-seventh street, watching the parade of millinery and silks and satins. Not far from me stood four or five wretchedly dressed children—the products of poverty. They were gazing in open-eyed wonderment at the passing of the fashionable throng. I joined the line and started toward Broadway, taking up a position behind an aristocratic couple who were accompanied by an expensively gowned little girl who did not appear to be more than seven years of age. The little one noticed the group of juvenile wretchedness, and with much concern expressed in her voice she inquired of her father:

"Papa, why don't those children put on their Sunday clothes on Easter Sunday?"

"Perhaps they haven't any," carelessly replied the man.

"Well, why haven't they?" persisted the little one.

"Oh, keep still. Don't talk so much," was the man's reply.

"Tell me, won't you, papa," persisted the child, who evidently thought the parent was keeping some knowledge from her.

But the little girl obtained no more information as to the reason why wretchedness should strike some of God's people and not others, and it is doubtful if her father knew or had ever given the subject a thought. This incident goes to show that the innocence of childhood notices the misery that has so unjustly been dealt out to the youth of the poor.

HENRY T. JONES.

Brooklyn, N. Y.

—If you want Socialism in your time you should not only vote for it but get others to do so. If you wait for others to do the work you have no right to expect it even in your children's time.

GOVERNMENT OWNERSHIP AND CLASS RULE.

The Working Class Must Become the Ruling Class—Government Employees Under Class Rule—Would Capitalist Public Ownership Make the Transition to Socialism Easier?

BY COURTENAY LEMON.

Government, national, state or municipal, by its every act shows itself to be the instrument of class rule. The class that rules is the class that owns the tools used in producing the necessaries of life and is thus able to dictate to the people the terms under which they may live and labor. Government is the weapon with which this owning class keep the workers in subjection and maintain their own supremacy. The use of militia and police against strikers, the subserviency of all law-making bodies to the capitalists, the action of the courts in declaring labor laws unconstitutional, the constant injunctions against strikers, the subsidies to various capitalistic interests—in short, the whole attitude of government, both national and local, should make it obvious to the most obtuse intellects that the powers of government are used to protect and further the interests of the capitalist class and aid them in plundering the workers of the product of their labor.

THE WORKING CLASS MUST BECOME THE RULING CLASS.

But, notwithstanding the fact that government is now the instrument of capitalist class rule, it is often contended that mere government ownership or municipal ownership would better the condition of the people and liberate them from wage-slavery. This is often thought to be the Socialist position. It is not. Socialists want first a change of the governing class. Government ownership will be for the benefit of the class in control of the government. If the capitalist class controls the government, government ownership will be for the benefit of the capitalist class. If the working class controls the government, government ownership will be for the benefit of the working class. Socialists believe in government ownership only when the working class has become the governing class; and the first and only step towards Socialism is, therefore, the gradual capture of the powers of government by the working class, in order that by its own victory it may abolish the system which gives rise to classes and class rule and establish industrial democracy in its stead. The working class must become the ruling class for the very purpose of abolishing class distinctions.

GOVERNMENT EMPLOYEES UNDER CLASS RULE.

If those who advocate public ownership, irrespective of a change in the ruling class, do not comprehend the fact of class rule or realize its importance, an examination of the condition of government employees and "public servants" should convince them of the futility of municipal ownership of "public utilities" or government ownership of railroads under a capitalistic municipality or government, as far as any benefit to the working class is concerned. Let us investigate the condition of government employees, and then consider what would be the condition of motormen and conductors on street railways under public ownership, or railroad men under government ownership of railroads, as long as the government remained in the hands of the capitalist class.

Letter carriers, postal clerks, policemen, firemen, street cleaners and public school teachers are all overworked and underpaid. Congress is now being petitioned to better the condition of the letter carriers. In New York City the policemen are pleading for the abolition of the "three-platoon system" under which they have to be on duty for an almost incredible number of hours. Only a short time ago Chicago school teachers were carrying on a campaign to make corporations pay their taxes in order that they might get living salaries. In Pittston Township, near Wilkes Barre, Pa., fifteen public school teachers went on strike last November on account of the nonpayment of their salaries, and have just won the strike and returned to their schools. At West Point a number of waiters employed by the government recently threatened to strike; the head of the commissary department quietly sent to New York for new men to take their places and then discharged them, notwithstanding the fact that some of them had held their positions for twelve years.

The members of the working class employed by the government are always overworked by the government and underpaid and always have been under both Republican and Democratic administrations. Both of these old parties are in the service of the capitalist class, uphold the capitalist system, and hold the working class in contempt except at election time. Between the two they split the working class vote, and not until the workers join the political party of their own class and elect workingmen to office will there be any relief or any possibility of government ownership for the benefit of the working class. Government employees are overworked and underpaid because the expenses of government are paid by taxation and taxes are paid out of that part of the product of labor which would otherwise go to the capitalists. Taxes are money out of the pockets of the rich and therefore capitalistic governments economize by exploitation of their employees.

Municipal ownership of "public utilities" or government ownership of railroads would mean still greater concentration and consequently, under a capitalist government, a reduction in forces and an increase in the army of the unemployed; while the direct control of this body of workers by a capitalistic government would render them more helpless than ever.

However, it is not probable that government or municipal ownership will be established by a capitalist government except as a last resort, since the middle class, the small capitalists, who would profit most by it, are an impotent and dying class. But there is danger that much time and energy will be wasted in the advocacy of public ownership which should be devoted to pointing out the class interests of the workers and organizing them for the class struggle on the political field.

IN EUROPE.

Some Socialist sympathizers think that if public ownership is inaugurated by one of the capitalistic political parties under pressure of a popular sentiment which threatens their power, that administration for the benefit of the workers will quickly follow. This supposition is not justified by conditions in Europe. In European countries government ownership of railways and of the tobacco industry prevails to a large extent, but the exploitation of labor still continues and democratic administration has not followed state ownership under capitalist class rule; on the contrary the slavery of the workers has been increased by the direct application of governmental power, as when the Italian railway employees were recently put under martial law in order to prevent a threatened strike.

WOULD IT MAKE TRANSITION TO SOCIALISM EASIER?

Those who advocate any kind of public ownership may contend that if public ownership was established, even by a capitalist government, it would make the transition to Socialism much easier because the Socialist Party would have the "public utilities" owned by the state already in its hands as soon as it gained control of the government, and would thus be relieved of the necessity of wresting them from private owners and would be left free to the task of inaugurating democratic control for the benefit of the people and proceeding to the socialization of all the means of production. It may be claimed, for instance, that if Socialists gained control of the government of a city or state, while the national government still remained in the hands of the capitalists, they would be unable to take over privately owned "public utilities," et cetera, because the capitalistic national government would prevent them from doing so; whereas, if the city or state owned these "public utilities" the Socialist officials could simply proceed to raise wages, shorten hours of labor and operate them in the interests of the people. But it must be remembered that if a capitalistic government inaugurated public ownership of public utilities it would buy them out, giving bonds. Payment of interest upon these bonds, if continued, would correspond to the profits now drawn by the private owners, and a Socialist local government would no more be allowed to repudiate these bonds than it would be to confiscate the railways, et cetera, had they remained in the hands of private owners. And Socialism will not advance in any particular state alone, but simultaneously in all states. When the Socialist Party has captured any large state, a national victory will not be far away.

And in the case of national government ownership of railroads the repudiation of bonds would meet with just as great opposition from the capitalist class as would the direct confiscation which Socialists propose.

To sum up, government ownership under capitalistic government would be of no benefit to the working class, its indiscriminate advocacy is now a distinct hindrance to Socialist propaganda; and its existence could be of only incidental aid in the transition to real Socialism.

BOLTON HALL EXPLAINS.

Bolton Hall requests us to state that his failure to appear as expected at the Club House in Eighty-sixth street on Sunday afternoon, Mar. 23, was due to a misunderstanding for which, he thinks, the committee was to blame. He writes: "The letter of request said nothing about the hour; therefore I supposed it was to be in the evening and appeared in good time, only to learn that the audience had been there at 3 o'clock in the afternoon and gone away. This is an instance of the loose methods of arrangement that make most reform meetings only qualified successes."

Mosquito Bites

By PETER E. BURROWES

A Danish diplomat, disgusted with the avarice and crookedness of American patriots, but wanting, on behalf of his own government, to sell an island and the human stock thereon to this crooked generation, was obliged as vendor to become as crooked as the vendees, and therefore added the bribe they demanded to the price of the islands, but made a report of the filthy ways of our public press and rulers to his own ruler. Some of our public men, called Democrats, who were unfortunately not in office and therefore were offered no bribe, are squeaking and have demanded an inquiry. A committee has been appointed, but as the press sagely says, that is probably the close of the incident.—NEXT!

Sometimes fits of moral enthusiasm strike all sorts of people. The strokes are very erratic and any one is liable to be hit. Even political magistrates whose whole moral bringing up has been the immoral "pull" of the boss are sometimes stricken by it, and the way of its coming is unknown to men. But concerning the times and seasons, we know that in our country the fit comes before election, and then the patient sleeps it off during the term of office. Messrs. Roosevelt, Low, Jerome, and others are now in the somnolent period.

The New York Telephone Company, which never had a moral fit itself, is nevertheless giving fits of it to Justices Hinsdale, Wyatt, and Mayer of New York. First the company offers bribes in the way of rewards to ex-convicts and policemen for finding boys that steal pieces of wire. Out of the amount of the bribe the ex-convicts and police can afford to pay boys to steal wire and then catch them. Human lives are plentiful and the state can afford to blast a few more innocent youths for the support of that dear old god, "The Company's property."

It seems to be so startlingly new to these judges to discover that policemen, private detectives, old convicts, and wealthy corporations should all be banded together to make criminals, that one almost doubts whether these gentlemen were lawyers before they became judges. What! Not know that the property lawmakers of the world have hardly any other trade than the creation of artificial crimes and the consequent incrimination of the innocent. Oh ye Rip Van Winkles, where have ye been slumbering?

They tell us, those who don't know or don't want to know, that the Quigley bishop and Corrigan, the New York dignitary, are not acting officially as the Catholic church. But they cannot tell us what constitutes an official action of that organization, or in what other way the church could act officially but through Quigley, Corrigan et al. The struggle is not at Rome. It is here, between Labor and Capital, in this state of New York and all other states; and official Leo stands ready to endorse whichever seems to be the sure winner.

It is reported that over in France Brother Vanderbilt, one of them, has been locked up for tearing madly through the streets on his automobile. France either does not know him or France wants to pick a quarrel with this great country which endorses Vanderbilt's pranks and all the pranks of the automobility. Or else poor old Lawrence Stern was simply in the right when he said, "They order these things better in France."

Mr. Morgan has given evidence before a committee properly appointed to believe him, that all he sought to do in the Great Northern gamble known as the merger, was to obtain "moral control." Now will any one tell us how Morgan could obtain moral control by the methods revealed as his own and fellow conspirators'? Granting, that capitalistic society provides no other means of obtaining control but immoral means, it is relevant to ask whether the control of one rogue may not be more moral than that of another. In this case we must know whether the sleek Morgans and Rhodeses are more of a moral control than the plain, old-fashioned highwaymen hanged at the cross roads in the last century.

Her profound simplicityship, that dear, sly, sleek, old dotard who wears the feathers and goes by the name of the Brooklyn "Eagle," gravely informs her readers that Cecil Rhodes was a Socialist. Of course the wheezy old biped says this in good faith. Everything she does not understand, or does not quite like, is Socialistic. Socialism is to American newspaper hacks what adverbs used to be to grammarians. Every word they could not classify was an adverb.

Our Esteemed Contemporaries (and OTHERS)

The Wage Worker.

Honest men and women, whether Catholics or Protestants, will resent the appearance upon the political field of their church oracles as political bosses.

Boston Herald.

A dispatch from Berlin states that it is estimated that in the coming elections for members of the Reichstag the Socialist Party will poll a little over 3,000,000 votes, which would give them something over 100 seats out of the total of 397 deputies, and, therefore, place them in a very strong position politically. In the last twenty years this Socialist Party has advanced at a rapid rate. In the elections of 1880 the total vote for Socialist candidates amounted to about 312,000. In the elections of 1884 these figures had grown to 550,000 votes; in 1887, 763,000 Socialist votes were cast, and in 1890, 1,527,000 votes were recorded for this party, the first time that its total exceeded that obtained by any other political division. Nor did the growth stop at that point. In 1893 they polled 1,787,000 votes, and in 1898 passed the 2,000,000 mark, receiving 2,107,000 votes, and now, according to this Berlin dispatch, it is expected that in the approaching elections they will obtain about 1,000,000 more votes than they did in 1898; and will, therefore, continue to occupy by far the strongest position in the German parliament. As the Socialists are the Kaiser's pet aversion, this steady growth in their number must be a far from pleasant tribute to the German Emperor.

Cleveland Citizen.

Mark Hanna's sub-committee of the "Peace Committee" of 24 to 12 of the Civic Federation to conciliate and arbitrate labor troubles is composed of the following gentlemen: M. A. Hanna, Samuel Gompers, Oscar S. Strauss, Chas. Moore, Ralph M. Easley, Archbishop Ireland, Bishop Potter, Franklin MacVeagh, John Mitchell, Frank F. Sargent, James Duncan, J. Kruttschnitt, William H. Pfahler, and Marcus M. Marks. From the looks of things this sub-committe is now 10x4 in favor of capital, or two and one-half to one, and, of course, the workingman will be well taken care of. 'Rah for Hanna!

A GOOD EXAMPLE.

A Socialist railroad man in St. Louis, in sending in a second order for Hanford's "Railroading in the United States," writes:

"I find 'Railroading' an excellent educator. My six copies have been read by twenty-two people so far. I have every book returned to me just as soon as the borrower finishes it, and I take particular pains to see that none are idle. By this method a great army of workers are making Socialists in St. Louis."

This may serve as a suggestion for many comrades. For half a dollar you can get twenty copies of Hanford's pamphlet; or, if you want a varied assortment, you can send 40 cents for the twelve pamphlets advertised elsewhere in this paper under the head "An Offer." Then you can keep those circulating among your friends so that they will reach scores of workingmen every month. Try it.

Current Literature

All books and pamphlets mentioned in this column may be obtained through the Socialist Literature Company, 184 William street, New York.

WHERE WE STAND. By John Spargo. A lecture originally delivered under the title: "Our Position, Economic, Political, and Political." New York. The Comrade Publishing Company. Pamphlet, 24 pages. Price, 5 cents.

Comrade Spargo has delivered this lecture on many occasions—we suppose some hundreds of occasions—in Great Britain and in the United States and Canada; and wherever it has been heard it has received most enthusiastic encomiums. Doubtless this praise has been due partly to the speaker's magnetic eloquence, to the way in which he throws the whole force of his personality into his delivery, whether in a set lecture or in extemporaneous discussion; but very much of it is also due to the lecture, as apart from the lecturer—to the excellence of the literary style and the clarity of the argument.

The title sufficiently indicates the breadth of the field covered. It is a somewhat ambitious undertaking, to present the position of the Socialist Party from the economic, the ethical, and the political point of view within the scope of an evening's talk or, in print, within twenty-four not too closely printed pages. Certainly much that the author would wish to say must be omitted, much that he would wish to explain must be merely hinted at; only the great lines of the argument can be carried out in full, for in order to impress them upon the hearer's or the reader's mind there must be some reiteration and much use of illustration. Comrade Spargo has shown good judgment in this difficult task and the lecture in its printed form should be of great service to the cause.

We must commend the publishers for the excellent form in which they have issued the pamphlet. Not only is the paper good and the print clear, but the work is very free from typographical errors. We hope it will not be considered hypercritical in us, however, to protest against the legitimation of such a word as "alright" in place of "all right." We doubt if even the newest padded dictionaries would sanction it.

In last week's issue we gave the price of Father McGrady's "Clerical Capitalist" as 5 cents. The price is actually 10 cents a copy.

"Wilshire's Magazine" for April will not be out till the middle of the month. It will contain an article by Julian Hawthorne on "The Soul of America."

The leading article in the March "Craftsman" is a thoughtful treatment of "The Gothic Revival," explaining Gothic architecture as an embodiment of the social forces of the age to which it belonged. A. M. Simons contributes a valuable paper on "The Economic Foundations of Art."

ANOTHER PAPER EXCLUDED.

"Push," a monthly paper published at California, Mo., has been refused admission to the mails as second-class matter under Madden's rulings. "'Push' is devoted more especially to systematizing religion into a science," say the publishers. It supports the Socialist Party. Its subscription price is 50 cents a year or 5 cents a number.

OFFICIAL

NATIONAL EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE.—Secretary, Leon Greenbaum, Room 427, Emilie Bldg., St. Louis, Mo.

NEW YORK STATE COMMITTEE—Secretary, Leonard D. Abbott, 64 E. 4th st., New York. Meets every Tuesday at 8 p. m., at above place.

CALIFORNIA STATE COMMITTEE.—Secretary; Thos. Beraford, 609 Stevenson street, San Francisco. Meets on first and third Fridays in the month.

COLORADO STATE COMMITTEE.—Secretary, Chas. La Kamp, P. O. Box 144, Goldfield.

CONNECTICUT STATE COMMITTEE.—A. B. Cornelius, Secretary, Room 8, 746 Chapel street, New Haven. Meets second and fourth Sunday of the month at above place.

ILLINOIS STATE COMMITTEE.—Secretary, Chas. H. Kerr, 56 Fifth avenue, Chicago. Meets first Tuesday of the month, at 1202 Ashland Block.

INDIANA STATE COMMITTEE.—Secretary, Jas. Oneal, 831 N. Third street, Terre Haute.

IOWA STATE COMMITTEE.—Secretary, W. A. Jacobs, 216 E. Sixth street, Davenport.

KANSAS STATE COMMITTEE.—Secretary-Treasurer, W. L. Nixon, Abilene.

KENTUCKY STATE COMMITTEE—Secretary, A. A. Lewis, 331 Alcott street, Covington.

MAINE STATE COMMITTEE.—Secretary, Fred E. Irish, 322 Riverside street, Woodfords.

MASSACHUSETTS STATE COMMITTEE—Secretary, Squire E. Putney, 4 Belmont Court, Somerville.—State Committee of Massachusetts Socialist Clubs. Secretary, Winfield A. P. Porter, 614 Windsor Building, Boston; Organizer, Wm. Mailly, same address, to whom all matters concerning organization should be addressed.

MICHIGAN STATE COMMITTEE.—Secretary, John A. C. Menton, 1315 Saginaw street, Flint.

MINNESOTA STATE COMMITTEE.—Secretary, Geo. H. Lockwood, 125 Nicollet avenue.

MISSOURI STATE COMMITTEE.—Secretary-Treasurer, E. Val Putnam, Room 9, 22 N. Fourth street, St. Louis.

NEBRASKA STATE COMMITTEE.—Secretary, George E. Baird, 1804 N. Sixteenth street, Omaha.

NEW JERSEY STATE COMMITTEE.—Secretary, M. M. Goebel, 14 Bridge street, Newark. Meets second Saturday of the month, at 7:30 p. m., at 124 Market street, Newark, N. J.

NEW HAMPSHIRE STATE COMMITTEE.—Secretary, Louis Arnstein, 18 Watson street, Dover.

NORTH DAKOTA STATE COMMITTEE.—Secretary, Math. Ribskiess, Fargo.

OHIO STATE COMMITTEE—Secretary, W. G. Critchlow, 26 Pruden Bldg., Dayton. Meets every Monday evening.

OREGON STATE COMMITTEE.—Secretary, W. S. Richards, Albany.

OKLAHOMA TERRITORIAL COMMITTEE.—Secretary-Treasurer, Dr. H. R. Dean, P. O. Box 1116, Oklahoma City.

PENNSYLVANIA STATE COMMITTEE—Secretary, J. Mahlon Barnes, 1322 Arch street; Treasurer, Jos. K. Edelman, 806 W. Cambria street.

PUERTO RICO TERRITORIAL COMMITTEE.—Secretary, Saturnino Sone, San Juan.

TEXAS STATE COMMITTEE.—Secretary, S. J. Hampton, Denham.

WASHINGTON STATE COMMITTEE.—Secretary, Geo. W. Scott, 86 Virginia street, Seattle. Meets first Sunday in the month, 8 p. m., at 220 Union street.

WISCONSIN STATE COMMITTEE.—Secretary, E. H. Thomas, 614 State street, Milwaukee.

NOTICE—For technical reasons, no Party announcements can go in that are not in this office by Tuesday, 9 p. m.

MASSACHUSETTS.

OFFICIAL CIRCULAR.

To the Socialist Clubs of Massachusetts.

Comrades:—International Labor Day is close at hand, and Socialists throughout the world are preparing to celebrate, more thoroughly than ever, the day dedicated to the cause of Labor. Wherever the workers are struggling for emancipation, there will the First of May be observed in a dignified and fitting manner. As time passes, the necessity for the class-conscious workers of the world having one day upon which they can emphasize their detestation of the present wage system and their desire for Socialism grows more and more imperative. Especially is this the case in our own country where the legal holiday set apart as Labor Day by a capitalist government is becoming less and less proletarian in its observances and character.

In Massachusetts the Socialists should observe International Labor Day as much as possible. Nowhere else in America have the workers more reason to rejoice than in this state, where the voices of Socialists are heard daily in the legislative halls, demanding against capitalism and its horrors in the name of the working class. Nowhere else have the Socialists made themselves felt as much as a living power in the political life of the people, and nowhere else have the capitalists been compelled to throw aside their seeming enmity and reveal themselves in their true light as exploiters and deceivers of the working class.

Your State Committee therefore urges all clubs in Massachusetts to make preparations to celebrate the workers' day. The First of May, as generally and unanimously as time and circumstances will permit. Mass meetings should be held and trade unions should be invited to participate. Capable speakers should be secured and literature distributed. Your attention is called especially to the May Day number of The Worker, which will consist of eight pages and will contain articles of special value and interest for propaganda purposes. Extra copies should be ordered and a large circulation given this number.

We trust you will see the wisdom of making this celebration universal within our state, for by so doing we not only identify ourselves with the international character of our movement, but we shall also show the comrades of Socialism that the Socialists of Massachusetts are always active in the cause and alive to the opportunities of the hour.

FINANCIAL SECRETARY.

Your attention is called to the fact that W. E. Dixon has resigned as Financial Secretary-Treasurer, and all orders for due stamps, due cards, and other supplies should be forwarded after notice to David Goldstein, 37 Maywood street, Highland District, Boston, who is acting as financial secretary-treasurer temporarily.

CHANGE OF PARTY NAME.

The legal party name has been changed by legislative enactment from "Democratic Social" to "Socialist." This fact should be advertised as widely as possible in all printed matter, at public meetings, etc. This is important and will save much confusion in the next campaign.

QUARTERLY REPORTS.

Secretaries of clubs should see that the quarterly reports of membership, finances, and progress, are made immediately, as the new quarter begins April 1.

MONTHLY DUES.

Clubs are urged to see that the regular monthly dues are regularly remitted. The work of the State Committee is hampered through lack of funds, and as the expenses of the legal party political are defrayed by the Massachusetts Socialist Clubs, comrades should see the necessity of dues being paid promptly. The national organization is in needs every cent available to carry on its work.

EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE, MASSACHUSETTS SOCIALIST CLUBS.

(Note.—The price of the May Day Number of The Worker, referred to in this circular, is the same as for regular issues: Bundles of less than 100, one cent a copy; 100 copies, 75 cents; 200 copies, $1.20; 500 or more, 50 cents a hundred; cash must accompany all orders for the May Day Number, as the prices barely cover cost of paper, press work, and mailing.—Pub.)

STATE EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE.

Meeting held Mar. 30 with Page, Goldstein, and Porter present and Goldstein in chair. Minutes last meeting read and approved. Voted that the call for May Day celebration as prepared by Mailly be accepted, forty mimeograph copies be secured for sending to clubs, and that it be published in The Worker. Financial Secretary authorized and instructed to order one of the new record books from National Secretary. Voted that bills for two rubber stamps, 80 cents, and for postage, etc., $1.40, as presented by Temporary Financial Secretary Goldstein, be paid. Voted to endorse Secretary's letter of the 21st instant to National Secretary Greenbaum. Voted to adopt form of charter presented by Goldstein and one hundred copies ordered printed. Auditing committee reported progress. Copy of tabulated results of national referendum A, prepared by Mailly, filed. Totals of said vote as follows: Question No. 1, yes, 294; no, 60; majority for yes, 234. Question No. 2, yes, 95; no, 153; majority for no, 58. Question No. 3, yes, 223; no, 40; majority for yes, 183.

Adjourned to meet Wednesday, April 9, at 7:30 p. m.

W. P. PORTER, Secretary.

Don't write on both sides of paper.

CORRESPONDENCE

Don't send anonymous letters.

School of Social Economy.

Editor of The Worker.

It is proposed to start a local branch class of the International School of Social Economy in New York City, which will be open to all who wish to join until the limit of twenty members is reached. The course consists of twenty lessons and the tuition is only one dollar for the entire course. The series of lessons covers all the matters most frequently in dispute between Socialists and others and is a great aid in the work of better preparation to defend the cause of Socialism as a writer or speaker or in daily conversation with others. Job Harriman says in regard to the course: "These lessons are based on a sound premise, are historically correct, are linked logically together, are self-explanatory, are of the highest merit and supply a want long felt in the propaganda of Socialism in America." More than one-tenth of over 1,100 of the members of the Socialist Party are taking these lessons at the present time. It is proposed that the class meet weekly. The first meeting of the class for organization will be Friday evening, April 4, at Beckmann's Hall, Northeast corner of One Hundred and Forty-second street and Eighth avenue, when fuller details will be explained. A teacher with the highest qualifications has been secured to conduct the class and it is hoped that the remaining vacancies in the class will be speedily filled. For further information address Edward Perkins Clarke, 501 West One Hundred and Sixty-fourth street, New York City.

EDWARD PERKINS CLARKE.

Jesus and Private Property.

Editor of The Worker.

The church of to-day is so vociferous in the defense of private property that some one should rise right up and show them that, if they are right, then their professed Master and his followers for over a thousand years were wrong. Why "scholars" do not teach this may be a mystery, but they are earning the suspicion and contempt of the "uneducated" workers.

Every school should have read at least a part of Josephus' works, and there we read of the Essenes, a sect of the Jews which included many thousand persons, that lived in a state of property in common, and had attained a virtue "unequaled any other men, Greek or barbarian." This sect is referred to here in order that it may not seem improbable that a larger group of people "had all things in common."

Of course these scholars have read the Bible, and there have learned that Jesus taught his followers to say "OUR Father," "Give us this day OUR daily bread." Is that competition or brotherhood? He owned no house to which he could go as his home. His disciples placed their money in a common purse.

Jesus said "Come unto me all ye that labor . . . and I will give you rest." Stripped of its sophistical paint, here was an appeal to the laboring class to join a communist body and so gain a security which would relieve their restless anxiety. So, while the other sects strove to thwart the young movement, the Essenes never appeared in that role. The propertied class, however, were so enraged that according to James "the RICH" put Jesus to death. Many other sayings will readily occur to the scholar and can easily be found in the Gospels by the uneducated.

After his death this common ownership was kept up and none of them said the things in his possession were his own, for they "had all things in common."

Some scholars have said that this was a temporary arrangement, but the facts prove that claim to be false. For a study of this, the scholars are respectfully referred to a book entitled "Catholic Socialism," by Francesco S. Nitti, professor of Political Economy in the University of Naples. Prof. Nitti has made a study of this subject and his book contains many quotations from the writings of the Church Fathers. On page 64-71 may be found the following, together with the name of the writings from which he quotes them:

"All is in common with us except women."—Tertullian.

"We carry on us all we possess."—St. Justin.

"Nature gave all things in common for the use of all. Usurpation created private right."—St. Ambrose.

"The rich . . . are truly as robbers."—John Chrysostom.

"Property is not a natural right."—St. Augustine.

"Opulence is always the result of theft."—St. Jerome.

"Private property . . . the fruit of iniquity."—St. Clement.

"Rich man . . . a thief."—St. Basil.

"Private property originated in usurpation."—St. Augustine.

The writers here quoted show how private property was regarded even to about the middle of the fifth century.

"It was not," says Prof. Nitti, "until the thirteenth century . . . that ecclesiastical writers went out openly maintaining the right of property."

So little regard was given property that "to refuse to help the poor was worse than to rob the rich."

What a change from this old church to the one of to-day. To-day the church upholds the use of the courts and the army and navy to protect what the old church called theft and usurpation.

The prayer, "Give US this day OUR daily bread," should now read "Give ME and MINE this day the daily bread and give us one monthly mouthful at the communion supper."

NELSON J. WEST.

Springfield, Mass., Mar. 27.

On Separate Organization for Women.

Editor of The Worker.

I note in The Worker of Mar. 2 two letters from women comrades of the Socialist Party against separate organizations for women, and as I believe that women readers of The Worker may be considering what course to take with regard to such organizations, I beg the favor of space for a reply.

It is inevitable that there will be differences of opinion among Socialists as to methods of propaganda and such differences are best reconciled by time and practical experience. I will, however, state the position of the women of the Socialist Party who are joining separate organizations, as it appears to me.

The woman who has worked earnestly and conscientiously in a political organization for Socialist propaganda, must have learned much that is of value to her. By no outside observation or passive paying of dues, could she have gained the knowledge of Socialist principles their practical application to politics which she has gained, if intelligent, by her own participation in organized work for political purposes. In no other way could she have gained so clear an insight into the character, reasoning, and aims of those who have undertaken to work in this line, or have been so well able to comprehend their ambitions, temptations, and discouragements. In short, she should find herself at the end of any considerable period of such work a wiser, more charitable, broader woman than in the beginning, and should be glad to give credit to the political organization in which she has gained her experience.

But should such a woman confine her energies entirely to the political field? As well ask Walter Thomas Mills to forego his project of a School of Social Economy, and give all his strength to the political movement.

Active work in the interest of Socialism is to-day being carried forward in two ways—by instruction along economic lines, through our party papers, magazines, and all possible use of the public press, and, secondly, by the use of political power. The political action is at present mainly a means of practical education, while the educational activity is intended to develop political action. The two movements supplement each other.

The Socialist Party is organized primarily for political action, and does not attempt to cover the whole educational field. It confines its work mainly to the adult man, the voter. Possibly it is as well that it should. Concentration gives power. But there is a new crop of voters coming up to the polls each year. How about them? Before they have arrived at the age of sixteen they have formed opinions upon political questions. They hear little about Socialism, and the probability is that what they do hear is not favorable to it. Yet it is only reasonable to say that it is in this very class that the strong hope of Socialism is to be found.

It is not usual that a man takes his wife and children to the Socialist meetings with him. We must suppose either that it is impossible for the wife to come, or else that the husband has not succeeded in convincing her that it is a desirable place to come to. Out of an organization of fifty members, how many wives of members belong to the party? Apparently, then, if women are to be converted to the principles of Socialism, the women Socialists must do the converting.

I have been told by German Socialists that in Germany there are what are termed socialist Sunday schools, schools for the teaching of Socialist principles to young people, but I know of no such school in connection with the Socialist Party here. Why is it that so little interest is taken by the party in the work for women and children?

There is a very simple explanation for the slowness of the men in the political organization to take up such work as the education of women and children, and that is that the Socialist Party is organized primarily for political purposes and naturally concerns itself with those individuals who have political power, and the women and children have none. The confusion of thought arises from the fact that the organization has been doing propaganda work. If women will consider that this propaganda is being carried on inside the party only as an aid and adjunct of the political action, and must be subordinate to it, they will then understand why time is not spent upon non-voters.

The Socialist Party is mainly a training school for Socialists as voters and public officials. The natural road to public office in the interest of Socialism is through service in some capacity in the Socialist Party, consequently the offices in the party are but the stepping stones to public office. But, in most of the states of the United States women are disqualified for public office or even as electors. Here I would call attention to the influence of our present political institutions upon the internal affairs of the Socialist Party. If men must hold the public offices it is only reasonable to expect they will be put into the offices of the party, which are only a training and a test of their fitness for broader service. In short, as men must eventually represent women under present conditions, they will control the political party, even though the number of women members greatly increase.

It is therefore vain to hold out to the women the suggestion that if enough women should join the Socialist Party to gain strength for their opinions, the Socialist Party would itself begin the education of the young. If women should ever gain control of the party one of two things must occur, either the women themselves must become eligible politically, or else the organization must lose its political character and become merely educational. It is impossible that there should be complete equality for men and women inside a political party while women have not equal political power with men.

It is safe to say that not a man or a woman inside the Socialist Party would be more delighted to see the women come into it than the very Socialist women who are starting the separate organizations. It is because they are not coming in that some of the Socialist women are going out after them. They see that there is a broad field for education which is untouched. They aspire to enter this field and do their little best to enlighten some corner or corners of it, and like thorough Socialists they believe that they can do this better by acting cooperatively in an organization than by working separately as individuals. They have not resigned from the party organization; they are not preventing other women from joining the party organization; they have not established a rival political movement. They simply propose to undertake certain educational work in the way which seems to them most likely to be successful.

There are those who think that all that is necessary to bring into immediate realization the Co-operative Commonwealth is to vote the Socialist ticket. What would voting the Socialist ticket do? It would simply put into office a set of men calling themselves Socialists. Unless the public is informed as to what it needs in the way of measures for its welfare, unless the public is educated in the principles of economics and administration of affairs, the common people will never gain anything of benefit to themselves.

In all questions bearing upon the welfare of the human race, there is only one sure road to improvement, and that is to increase the enlightenment of the masses; a slow road, one that offers small prospect to the enthusiastic or the ambitious, but the only road to human betterment. Upon the gradual uplifting of the great mass of mankind rests the only sure hope of every project for better conditions.

The field of education, then, is an honorable and a useful one. Education must PRECEDE political action, as it does in the case of men, and it must do so in the case of women. If women will not or cannot come into the Socialist Party to be educated, we must go out where they are and educate them.

It will be asked why we exclude men from active membership in women's organizations. The reason is an excellent one. To educate women in methods of organization, which is necessary if you would have them intelligent thinkers and active workers in the economic field, you must at first not encourage them to take prominent and active part in the work of an organization. Now, it is at present the case that women from force of habit yield to men the leadership almost invariably in any contact with one is composed of both men and women. By this means the women get no experience. The men hold the offices, they handle the money, in short, they run the business of the organization, and the women are mere helpers and lookers on. As a case in point I will mention the Laundry Workers' Union of this city, in which at least half the members are women, yet in which I was informed very recently that there was not one woman officer.

A woman's organization in which women take an active, self-dependent part in all matters is doing more to educate them for their future place in a Socialist Democracy than any organization in which women cannot be content to play, as one writer says, "the old role that we have played for thousands of years, and cajole and persuade and so forth."

A self-dependent, open, fearless character is the attribute to be cultivated for the woman of the future. She who must stoop to cajolery to hold her own in an organization composed partly of men, while she looks to the future for independence has not yet found the secret of Socialism. The woman who cajoles no man, flatters no man, has already in spirit cast off her fetters.

This activity on the part of women is an encouraging sign, and should be hailed with delight by all Socialists. The fact that women are independent enough to attempt separate organizations, instead of dangling meekly to the coat-tails of an organization which must be run by men, speaks hopefully of a time when women will form as many organizations as they please, whether with men or without them.

JOSEPHINE R. COLE.

San Jose, Cal., Mar. 9.

(Note—In general, we cannot publish communications so long as the foregoing, but in this case we make an exception, because it is an unusually clear statement of one side of the case. We would, however, especially request correspondents to be brief, as our space is all too little for the matter we have to publish.

We may observe that, however it be in the West, the German and Jewish comrades in New York and vicinity maintain a number of such schools as are referred to in this letter; also that we have, in the English speaking movement (which includes a large portion of the children of German and Jewish comrades) young peoples clubs, which combine Socialist and general education, social pleasure, and practical party work—raising of funds, distribution of tickets, clerical and committee work, etc. These institutions are not so numerous nor so efficient as they might be (or as they will be in the future), but they are doing good service. And experience shows that they are useful in direct proportion as they are kept in close connection with the party organization. It may be remarked, too, that these clubs are very successful, in very many cases, when they include both girls and boys in a single organization, thus interesting the young women in the political movement and training the two sexes to work together in comradeship.

Both in New York and elsewhere, there are many women who are active party members and serve on executive and campaign committees, as secretaries, as party speakers, and in other functions in the political organization. So far as our observation goes, their work is efficient and they have just as much influence as if they were men. By thus working together in one organization for a common end, not dividing the field but living up to the party declaration for the political equality of the sexes, both men and women learn to understand each other and prepare themselves for the time when this equality will be realized in the political organization of the state. In a word, we think that what our correspondent declares to be impossible is not only possible but actual.

As to the criticism of those "who think that all that is necessary to bring into immediate realization the Co-operative Commonwealth is to vote the Socialist ticket," we would suggest that the very fact of voting the Socialist ticket implies that previous education which our correspondent rightly thinks so needful. People vote the Socialist ticket because they have found out what Socialism is and have become Socialists. What more do we want? The work of the Socialist Party is distinctly a work of education; and the most important part of this education—more important even than a theoretical understanding of the doctrine of surplus value and the class struggle—is the practical education which is won by actual work in the labor movement.—Ed.)

FOR THE NATIONAL PROPAGANDA FUND.

An Appeal by the National Committee to All Party Members and Sympathizers.

To the State and Local Organizations of the Socialist Party.

Comrades:—At the meeting of the National Committee in this city on January 24, 25, and 26, 1902, the work that has thus far been accomplished by the national organization and the means of continuing the same were taken under advisement, and after due consideration, we decided to issue this appeal to the state and local organizations and to all of the comrades of our party for such amounts as each may be able to contribute as donations to a National Propaganda Fund.

The purposes of this fund are to enable us to continue the great and far-reaching task already begun of giving the greatest possible degree of general publicity to the aims and methods of the Socialist Party; to extend the influence of our party as a vital political factor, especially in the various economic organizations of the working class; to be the means of communicating advice to and co-operating with comrades in their efforts to agitate, organize, and educate the proletariat; and to assist the local and state organizations and the Socialist press in general in extending the scope of their respective activities.

Official records show that 470,000 pieces of printed supplies, especially intended for party organization, have been used throughout the country since the Unity Convention designed by and supplied through the agency of the National Committee. The National Secretary's report, showing an increase of membership in good standing of 50 per cent. since the Unity Convention, is eloquent evidence of the splendid achievements of our comrades in the townships, cities, counties, states, and territories.

During the past six months the demands of all kinds upon your National Committee from every section of the country have been far beyond our resources, and we have been repeatedly handicapped by lack of funds. At this writing, while the business of the party is increasing heavily from day to day, our financial receipts are not sufficient to enable us to meet the most important requirements of the party work, and it is urgently necessary that the comrades render immediate financial aid to the national organization.

As a means to this end we again call the attention of the comrades to the National Propaganda Fund. Donations to this fund should be sent to the National Secretary, and will be acknowledged weekly in the Socialist press.

LEON GREENBAUM,
National Secretary.
427 Emilie Bldg., St. Louis.
By order National Committee, Socialist Party.

Donations to the National Propaganda Fund have been received as follows:

Amount reported to Mar. 22	$217.28
Dr. R. L. West, Monett, Mo.	1.00
Chas. Babbitt, St. Louis, Mo.	.50
Local Wheeling, W. Va.	1.53
Local Taunton, Mass.	8.50
28th A. D., New York City	2.00
31st Ward Branch, Chicago, Ill.	5.00
Local Albany, Oregon	1.40
Total received to Mar. 29	$266.93

NO THEOLOGICAL DISCUSSION.

The Worker is requested to publish the following resolutions adopted by Branch 2, Waterbury, Conn.:

"Whereas, Socialism as a science is not concerned with theological dogma, nor can the world-wide Socialist Party, which must include the people of all religious and forms of beliefs and unbeliefs, have an established religion, but must exercise the broadest tolerance toward all, ignoring such differences, therefore be it

"Resolved, That we decidedly object to the discussion of theological dogma or religious questions in our weekly party organ, because such things are foreign to our propaganda and likely to stir up controversy and bitterness.

"We have trouble enough of our own over differences upon questions which are our proper concern. In controversy with people of religious prominence or position, care should be taken to confine discussion to questions of politics and ethics only."

The Worker quite agrees with the position here defined.

CARNEGIE'S CONFESSION.

In his address at the opening of the Stevens Institute of Technology, in Hoboken, Andrew Carnegie, in accepting a casket containing a piece of the first steel rail rolled in America, said: "I had no inventive mind, simply a mind to use the inventions of others. I think a fit epitaph for me would be, 'Here lies a man who knew how to get around men much cleverer than himself."

Here is an open capitalist confession that genius is the prey of the ruling class. Carnegie's only title to his many millions is his ability to "get around" better men—by a species of low cunning to separate them from the fruits of their skill and genius.

Truly, this is a perfectly legal title, but one which is morally indefensible. Carnegie's confession accords perfectly with the Socialist claim, viz., that no great fortune is the result of its owner's exertions, but comes from filching the product of others' brains and brawn. A self-confessed parasite, Mr. Carnegie is nevertheless held up before the youth of our country as one whose example should be emulated.

"There would be no incentive under Socialism," says the capitalist press. And Carnegie's testimony is to the effect that the reward of genius under the present system is to be robbed by cunning manipulators who know how to get around their intellectual superiors who are less versed in the intricacies of commercial crookedness.

There is no pretense on Carnegie's part that inventions would not have been just as numerous had he not been on earth to "get around" the inventors. He has added not a mite to the world's store of knowledge, has never created a single useful thing in all his life, yet by the tortorous tricks of trade he is able to amass three hundred million dollars, while thousands of "cleverer men" have gone down to the grave "unwept, unhonored and unsung."

But Carnegie had a mission to fulfill, and it is completed in the formation of the great Steel Trust, which has demonstrated the folly of competition and the superiority of a highly organized and centralized system of production. He has taken one of the necessary steps toward the collective ownership of industry, which will be inaugurated by the Socialist Party. It will be all the easier for a working class government to take possession of one trust than of a score of similar industries, and to establish the Co-operative Commonwealth, in which there will be small place for the kind of ability that is used to "get around" men much cleverer than its possessor.—The Exponent.

—A professed Socialist who doesn't work for Socialism is as bad and as foolish as a professed Christian who violates the Ten Commandments.

"WHERE WE STAND."

A lecture by John Spargo, editor of THE COMRADE. Originally delivered under the title, "Our Position, Economic, Ethical and Political." Five cents a copy, 10 for 35c., 50 for $1.40, 100 for $2.50, postpaid. Order now.

ILLUSTRATED AGITATION LEAFLETS.

Published by the COMRADE PUB. CO., 11 Cooper Square, N. Y.. "The Worker with the Capitalist Mind," by Herbert N. Casson, fifth edition; "Dialogue between the Machine Gun and the Mauser," by Frank Stuhlman; "A Lesson from the Donkeys," by John Spargo. You should use these leaflets for distribution, as they are sure to be read by everybody who gets them. Price, 10 cents a bundle of 50, one kind or assorted.

SPECIAL.—Upon receipts of 50 cents in one-cent stamps we will send THE COMRADE, an illustrated Socialist Monthly, for three months, 100 illustrated leaflets, and a copy of "Where We Stand."

THE COMRADE PUBLISHING CO., 11 Cooper Square, New York (373 Bowery.)

ORDER BLANK FOR THE WORKER'S GREAT MAY DAY NUMBER.

THE WORKER,
184 William Street, New York.

Enclosed find $..... for which send me.....copies of your issue of May 1st.

Name .....

Address .....

..AN OFFER..

"Railroading in the United States," by Ben Hanford	5 cents.
"The Clerical Capitalist," by Rev. Father McGrady	10 cents.
"Why Workingmen Should Be Socialists," by H. Gaylord Wilshire	2 cents.
"Labor Politics and Socialist Politics," by Algernon Lee	3 cents.
"The Proletariat," by Karl Kautsky	5 cents.
"The Class War in Idaho," by Job Harriman. Third Edition.	5 cents.
"The Communist Manifesto," by Karl Marx and Frederick Engels.	10 cents.
"The Development of Socialism, from Utopia to Science," by F. Engels	5 cents.
A Debate on the Tactics of the S. T. & L. A. Toward Trade Unions between Daniel DeLeon and Job Harriman	5 cents.
"The Attitude of the Socialists Toward the Trade Unions," by N. I. Stone	5 cents.
"The Capitalist Class," by Karl Kautsky	5 cents.
"Now and Then," a Socialist play by Frederick Krafft	10 cents.

On receipt of only 40 cents above 12 books will be mailed postpaid.

SOCIALIST LITERATURE COMPANY,
184 WILLIAM STREET, NEW YORK.

Largest assortment of Literature on the Labor Question. Catalogue Free.

PARTY BUTTONS.

We now manufacture three different sizes in one-half, seven-eighths, and one and a half inch diameter. Either Socialist Party, Social Democratic Party or the one-half inch size simply with Arm and Torch Emblem.

CASH MUST ACCOMPANY ALL ORDERS.

1 Button . .	5 Cents.
12 Buttons . .	25 Cents.
25 Buttons . .	50 Cents.
100 Buttons . .	$1.75

SOCIALIST LITERATURE COMPANY,
184 WILLIAM ST., NEW YORK.

SPECIAL NOTICES.

Under this heading any matter of interest to the Social Democratic Party or Socialist Party will be inserted at FIVE CENTS PER LINE EACH INSERTION. Six words about equal one line. Cash must accompany advertisement IN EVERY INSTANCE.

18th and 20th Assembly District, S. D. P. Business meeting Thursday, April 3, at 421 First avenue.

DON'T WEAR YOURSELF OUT TRYING TO SPREAD SOCIALISM, but take hold of things by the smoothest handle. New ideas and labor-saving devices in propaganda material. Samples for 2c. stamp. FRANK OHNEMUS, 196 Park Place, Long Island City, New York.

BOROUGH MEETING LOCAL KINGS COUNTY APRIL 5, AT LABOR LYCEUM.

To discuss the needs of the movement in the county.

"The Christian Church and Slavery in the Middle Ages," lecture by Edward King at club rooms of the Young Men's Educational Club, 231 Broome street, on Sunday, April 6. Admission free.

Young man (19) wishes to work in a brewery. Address I, care The Worker, 184 William street.

NOTICE.

Providence comrades who wish to join an English speaking local of the S. D. P. are requested to meet at my house Sunday, April 6, at 10 a. m. Those who cannot be present are requested to communicate with the undersigned.

A. P. WORKMAN,
74 Gay Street, Providence, R. I.

AN IMPERTINENT SUGGESTION.

The cost of living among the workers of Manhattan is being investigated by the United States Labor Bureau. Why is it that the working people are always the ones investigated? Why not have an investigation on the living expenses of Carnegie, Rockefeller, Morgan, Schwab, and the other great employers of labor? Such data, if given publicity, would raise such a furore that the wage-earners employed by these men would have the sympathy of the public when next they asked for an increase in wages of ten cents per day. By all means let us investigate what the employing classes expend for their living. A comparison is only just.—Typographical Journal.

R·I·P·A·N·S

I USE RIPANS TABULES FOR PERIODIC HEADACHES, ALWAYS WITH QUICK RELIEF. ONLY LAST EVENING A LADY ASKED ME WHAT I THOUGHT GOOD FOR PAIN IN THE STOMACH FROM EATING RICH FOOD, AND I GAVE HER A RIPANS TABULE. TO-DAY SHE TELLS ME SHE HAS BOUGHT A PACKAGE, THE ONE I GAVE HER HELPED HER SO MUCH.

At druggists.

The Five-Cent Package is enough for an ordinary occasion. The family bottle, 60 cents, contains a supply for a year.

LAWYERS.

MORRIS HILLQUIT,
Attorney-at-Law,
320 Broadway. Telephone 2576 Franklin

L. D. MAYES, LAWYER,
245 Broadway, New York City, Borough of Manhattan. Practice in all Courts. Consultation free

H. B. SALISBURY,
COUNSELLOR-AT-LAW
309 Broadway, Room 933. 50 Union Square.

Simon Sultan,
Counsellor at Law.
87 NASSAU, corner FULTON STREET,
(FULTON BUILDING.)
Residence 110 West 120th st., New York.

MR. SCHWAB'S SALARY.

That enormous salaries are abundantly earned so far as the immediate parties are concerned is true, and any one who produced less for his employers than he received, would be discharged. Economically, however, such salaries are not always earned. Bill Sykes earned all that Fagin gave him as between himself and Fagin, but the wealth of London was not augmented by the skill and business prescience of Mr. Sykes.—Justice.

NO TRUSTS! NO PRISONS! NO SWEAT SHOPS!

Shirts, Waists, Collars or Cuffs

BEARING THIS LABEL ARE O. K.

INTERN'L SHIRT-WAIST & LAUNDRY WORKERS' UNION REGISTERED

This label is sewed on Shirts and Waists just below the tab or bosom and is stamped in miniature on Collars and Cuffs

No Chinese exclusion act needed when up-to-date Union Laundries use this Label to stamp Price List Slips on your laundry packages. Ask for it.

EGYPT...

Southern Illinois. A real Garden of Eden. No place in the United States produces a greater variety of finer fruits, vegetables and grains, or more of them. Splendid climate and water. Cheap lands. THE FARMERS' INSTITUTE, Carbondale, Ill., will tell you all about it. Four months for ten cents. Sample copy for two-cent stamp.

"Railroading in the United States."

BY BEN HANFORD.

PRICE, FIVE CENTS.

40 Copies $1.00
1000 " 25.00

Sent on receipt of price.

SOCIALIST LITERATURE COMPANY,
184 William Street, New York.

PUBLICATIONS.

CO-OPERATE IN PUBLISHING SOCIALIST BOOKS

That is the way to get them at actual cost. $10 cash or $1 a month for a limited number of shares in our business with the right to buy books at the prices in second column, postage included. Others have to pay prices in first column.

The American Farmer. Simons. Cloth	.50	.20
Collectivism. Vandervelde. Cloth	.50	.30
Collectivism. Vandervelde. Paper	.25	.10
Liebknecht's Life of Marx. Cloth	.50	.30
Last Days of Paris Commune. Cloth	.50	.30
Engels' Feuerbach. Cloth	.50	.30
Love's Coming-of-Age. Edward Carpenter	1.00	.60
Socialism Utopian and Scientific. Engels. Cloth	.50	.18
Socialism Utopian and Scientific. Engels. Paper	.15	.05
Socialism. Wilhelm Liebknecht. Paper	.10	.05
Life of Engels. Kautsky. Paper	.10	.05
Pocket Library of Socialism. Per copy	.05	.02
Pocket Library of Socialism. Per 100, assorted	2.75	1.00
International Socialist Review. Per copy	.10	.05
International Socialist Review. Per year	1.00	.50

Our co-operative plan is fully explained in a booklet entitled "How Socialist Literature is Published," mailed free on application. Locals Chicago, Philadelphia, Erie, Minneapolis, Davenport and many others are already with us.

CHARLES H. KERR & CO. (Co-operative)
56 Fifth Avenue, CHICAGO.

Just Received from England
A large importation of

"CAPITAL," by Karl Marx.

Only authorized edition, translated by Samuel Moore and Edward Aveling, and edited by Frederick Engels.

CONTENTS:

Prefaces by the author and editor.
Part I.—Commodities and Money.
II.—The Transformation of Money into Capital.
III.—The Production of Absolute Surplus Value.
IV.—Production of Relative Surplus Value.
V.—Production of Absolute and of Relative Surplus Value.
VI.—Wages.
VII.—The Accumulation of Capital.
VIII.—The So-called Primitive Accumulation.

Library Edition, cloth, $2.50, postpaid.

SOCIALIST LITERATURE CO.,
184 William Street, N. Y.

EMILE ZOLA'S

POWERFUL REALISTIC NOVELS.

Paper covered, neatly printed, 25 cents each; postage, 5 cents extra each volume.

"The Ladies' Paradise," "Money," "Abbe Mouret's Transgression," "Human Brutes," "A Love Episode," "Nana's Brother, Germinal," "Rush for the Spoil," "Therese Raquin," "The Joys of Life," "The Fortune of the Rougons," "The Conquest of Plassans," "Pot Bouille" (Piping Hot), "L'Assommoir," "Nana's Daughter," "A Dream of Love."

Any volume sent postpaid on receipt of 30 cents.

Send for catalogue of Socialist publications, sent gratis to any address.

SOCIALIST LITERATURE CO.,
184 William Street, N. Y.

L'UNION DES TRAVAILLEURS,

730 Washington Ave., Charleroi, Pa.

A weekly advocate of Trade Unionism and Socialism. Should be read by every French speaking worker.

Send for sample copies.

Subscription, $1.00 per year.

SUBSCRIBE FOR
THE REFERENDUM,
the only English Socialist paper in Minnesota. Published at Faribault, Rice County. Fearless, bright, spicy; 75 cents a year, in advance; 35 cents for 6 months. By E. B. FORD.

THE DECATUR LABOR WORLD

Decatur, Ill.

AN UP-TO-DATE LABOR PAPER.

Subscription $1 per year, in advance.

HAS A WEEKLY CIRCULATION OF 3,500 COPIES.

Advertising rates quoted on application. Address:

THE DECATUR LABOR WORLD,
231 N. Main St., Decatur, Ill.

WHO WILL DO YOUR LAUNDRY WORK?

I. X. L. LAUNDRY, GUSTAV LEIST, 241 East 42d St.

Dr. C. L. FURMAN,
DENTIST,
121 Schermerhorn street, Brooklyn.

COMRADES, PATRONIZE . . .

FRED. SONNENSCHEIN,
UNION BARBER SHOP
84 E. 4th Street, New York.

LABOR ORGANIZATIONS.

Standing advertisements of Trade Unions and other Societies will be inserted under this heading at the rate of $1 per line per annum.

CIGAR

PARTY NOTES.

At last Friday's meeting of the 4th A. D., in the headquarters at 209 East Broadway, a committee of five was chosen to take charge of outdoor agitation. The report of the Organizer that the Fourth is entitled to the banner by its vote cast in November was received with great applause, and it was resolved to hold a festival early in May to formally receive the banner. Comrade Wood's lecture was well attended. On Friday, April 4, there will be a free public meeting in the Pacific Hall, 209 E. Broadway, with good speakers. All sympathizers should bring their friends with them.

The 12th A. D., at its meeting last Friday, decided to hold an open-air meeting at the corner of Broome and Suffolk streets, on Saturday evening, April 5. On Friday, April 4, before the regular business meeting, there will be a public discussion on "Political Action as a Means of Propaganda," in the regular meeting room of the district, 96 Clinton street.

At the last meeting of the 18th and 20th A. D., Comrade Paulitsch presided. The vote on the proposed amendment to the national party constitution, empowering the N. C. to arrange interstate propaganda tours was in the affirmative. Five dollars was voted to the National Propaganda Fund. Tickets were accepted from the Socialist Band. J. N. Wood was elected as delegate to the May Day Conference. Comrades Boettger and Kramer were elected as Auditing Committee. It was decided to obtain lists of enrolled voters in the districts, to send them The Worker and begin a house-to-house canvass. Committee on the Klippell case reported progress; a committee from the Tailors' Union was given the floor to make a statement on the case and Comrades Wunderlie and Wood were elected to act with them.

The 19th A. D. at its last meeting instructed its delegate to the G. C. to get 25 more tickets for the May Concert for the Socialist Daily Fund; a first instalment of 25 had already been received. The district also accepted 25 tickets from the Socialist Band. Comrade Funk was elected to take charge of tickets. Comrade Klauber was chosen as delegate to the May Day Conference. It was voted that half the net proceeds of the picnic of West Side organizations should go to the Socialist Daily Fund. Dues were raised from 10 cents a month to 25 cents a month, beginning with May 1.

The 23d A. D. has ordered 300 copies of the May Day Number of The Worker, and got a thousand copies of the leaflet, "To the Catholic Workingmen," for free distribution.

The "smoker" held by the 30th A. D. last Friday was a great success. The large hall in the Club House was well filled with comrades of the Thirtieth and visitors from neighboring districts. Emil Freese kept the crowd laughing throughout the evening. A fine beer stein, donated by Adolf Jablinowski, was disposed of by auction, adding $11 to the handsome sum which was netted for the district treasury. If the comrades of the Thirtieth will shew as much interest in their district meetings during the next seven months as they did in Saturday's festivities, the prize banner which the Fourth now holds may grace the Club House in Eighty-sixth street next year.

The 21st A. D., Brooklyn, will hold an important special meeting Sunday, April 6, at 2:30 p. m., at Keystone Garden, corner of Pennsylvania and Glenmore avenues.

Miss Frances Nacke of San Francisco, who is in the city for a short time on her way to Germany, will speak at Colonial Hall, One Hundred and First street and Columbus avenue, on Sunday, April 6, at 8 p. m. Her subject will be: "The Child and Socialism."

The New York Socialist Literary Society, 117 Forsyth street, will hold a special meeting on Monday evening, April 7, which all members should attend. As the building in which the present headquarters are situated is to be torn down, new quarters must be secured at once, and the committee chosen for that purpose will make its report at Monday's meeting.

The Young Men's Educational League will hold a public meeting Sunday evening, April 6, at 331 Broome street. Edward King will lecture on "The Christian Church and Slavery in the Middle Ages." Admission is free.

John Spargo will lecture on "The Meaning and Message of Socialism," Friday evening, April 18, at Beckmann's Hall, One Hundred and Forty-second street and Eighth avenue.

The Washington Heights Branch of the New York Public Library has refused to put the "Appeal to Reason" on the reading room tables, on account of the seditious doctrine it advocates.

Maine Socialists are reported to be very active. Comrades in the different locals should send occasional notes of their doings to The Worker.

Ben Hanford will be the principal speaker at the May Day meeting in Boston.

The Boston Central Committee at its last meeting adopted local constitution and by-laws as approved by referendum. Comrades Mailly, Mahoney, Cutting, Dyer and Worcester, all trade unionists, were elected as a committee to arrange the May Day Celebration, it being hoped to make this a still greater success than the Commune celebration just held. Officers of the Central Committee were elected: Organized, Wm. Mailly; Recording Secretary, L. Marcus; Financial Secretary, I. E. Worcester; Literature Agent, S. Touvin; Auditors, Jos. Muffi; B. Glasser, Jos. Spero. All branches gave favorable reports except Brighton and Ward 8, which are in bad condition and will be visited by the Organizer.

Geo. G. Cutting will speak on "Law Versus Labor" for the Somerville Socialist Club, Hill Building, Union Square, Somerville, Sunday evening, April 6.

Local Providence, R. I., of the Socialist Party, meets on the second Sunday of each month at the hall of the German Dramatic Society, 9 Elswald street, Olneyville. Emil Bernstein is Organizer and Paul Loegel, Recording Secretary. Workingmen and workingwomen are invited to attend the meetings and join the organization.

The Polish comrades in Philadelphia have been holding a series of meetings in different parts of the city with good results. Good speakers, in Polish and English, addressed attentive audiences at Nordling's Hall, Eidrich's, Kosciusko Hall, Polish Hall, and at Mananyunk. Comrades Fischler, Moore, Kuppinger, and Caldwell all took part in the work. Many subscriptions were taken for the Polish Socialist paper, "Robotnik."

Comrade Geo. E. Bigelow spoke in Wilkes Barre on Sunday afternoon and evening, Mar. 30. The afternoon meeting at Reilly's Hall was free and was attended by about fifty persons; a collection to help defray expenses brought in $1.65. Admission to the evening lecture in the C. L. U. Hall was by ticket; 150 tickets at 10 cents each were sold, and over 100 persons attended. Thus all expenses of the meetings were well covered. Both audiences were very enthusiastic. Comrade Bigelow quickly sold all the Socialist books and pamphlets he had with him and many would-be buyers were disappointed that he had no more. A quantity of leaflets and papers was distributed free. The Wilkes Barre comrades are well pleased and will soon have other good speakers in town. Local readers of The Worker should watch for announcements.

H. Gaylord Wilshire has made a number of dates for lectures during the next two months. On April 3 he is at Louisville, Ky.; April 5, at Cincinnati; April 6, Covington, Ky. Massachusetts will have his services April 24 to 29 inclusive, and for May 22 to May 31 he will be speaking in Michigan. All his engagements are made under the management of locals of the Socialist Party.

State charter has been issued to Colorado.

Wetherford, Okla., has applied for chatrer.

Comrade McCaffery, taking advantage of a strike, succeeded in organizing a local of the party in Nebraska City, Neb. He also organized Lincoln.

City Clerk refused to file nominations of Socialists in Lincoln, Neb. Mandamus suit to compel him to do so has been won by the party. Republican and Democratic party both filed objections, showing they are two wings on the same bird. Both old parties have combined against the Socialists in Plattsmouth, Neb. Feeling is running high. Comrades have hopes of election in Omaha City, Neb., because of late strike and action of trade unions.

Comrade Boomer has reorganized Locals Lehi, Silver City, and Salt Lake City, Utah. A convention will be held shortly to perfect state organization.

Comrade William Mahoney of Indianapolis had an exceedingly able article on "Trade Unions and Socialism" in the February issue of the "American Pressman."

THEY APPRECIATE CAREY'S WORK.

Portland, Me., C. L. U. Extends Greeting to Him and Also to the Boston Strikers.

The Central Labor Union of Portland, Me., at its meeting of Mar. 19, passed the following resolutions bearing upon the Boston strike and on Comrade Carey's record in the Legislature:

"Resolved, That the Central Labor Union of Portland affirms its belief in sympathetic strikes whenever the cause is just.

"It affirms that the sympathetic strike is founded upon unselfishness because it jeopardizes the existence of the workingman's home for the cause of the brotherhood of unions.

"It affirms that the labor unions and the capitalist unions called 'Trusts' are both legitimate unions and will remain so as long as the present competitive system shall be allowed to exist. Believing that the strike of the teamsters of Boston was founded on justice and endorsing the sympathetic strike of the other unions, the Portland Central Labor Union extends its sympathy to the united labor of Boston for the recent strike and further believes that the action will greatly stimulate the cause of unionism throughout the nation.

"And be it further resolved, that the Portland Central Labor extends a vote of thanks to Hon. James F. Carey of Haverhill for the introduction into the Massachusetts House of Representatives of a bill for the re-establishment of the right of labor to picket and patrol in time of strikes, which means the legitimate use of moral suasion. And we further heartily endorse the words of Mr. Driscoll before the committee at the State House that 'Labor is not here to beg, but to demand justice."

The C. L. U. recently addressed to the two United States Senators from the state of Maine a communication in favor of election of Senators by direct vote of the people. They got very little recognition from those august gentlemen, however. Mr. Frye gave a formal answer, acknowledging the receipt of the letter, and Mr. Hale could not spare time for even that hollow courtesy. The Senators are too busy attending to the interests of the capitalists to waste time in considering the opinions of workingmen.

The election of a few Socialists to the Maine Legislature would at once compel the respect of these "servants of the state" and strengthen the hands of Carey and MacCartney, who are so bravely fighting the battles of Labor in the State House at Boston.

MAINE'S PLATFORM.

Declaration of Principles, Demands, and Resolutions Adopted by State Convention of Socialist Party.

Through some mishap or misunderstanding the report of the state convention of the Socialist Party of Maine failed to reach us at the proper time. We are requested, however, even at this late day, to present the platform and resolutions there adopted, which are as follows:

State Platform.

"The Socialist Party of Maine, in convention assembled, endorses the constitution and platform of the Socialist Party of the United States of America.

"It also affirms its allegiance to the International Socialist movement, now organized in eighteen nations of the world, as the only salvation of the workingman from the growth of the international trusts.

"Private ownership of the means of production and distribution is responsible for the ever-increasing uncertainty of livelihood and the poverty and misery of the working class, and it divides society into two hostile classes—the capitalists and wage-workers. The once powerful middle class is rapidly disappearing in the mill of competition. The struggle is now between the capitalist class and the working class. The possession of the means of livelihood gives to the capitalist the control of the government, the press, the pulpit, and the schools, and enables them to reduce the workingman to a state of intellectual, physical and social inferiority, political subservience and virtual slavery.

"The econmic interests of the capitalist class dominate our entire social system; the lives of the working class are recklessly sacrificed for profit, wars are fomented between nations, indiscriminate slaughter is encouraged and the destruction of whole races is sanctioned in order that the capitalists may extend their commercial dominion abroad and enhance their supremacy at home.

"But the same economic causes which developed capitalism are leading to Socialism, which will abolish both the capitalist class and the class of wage-workers. And the active force in bringing about this new and higher order of society is the working class. All other classes, despite their apparent or actual conflicts, are alike interested in the upholding of the system of private ownership of the instruments of wealth production. The Democratic, Republican, the middle-class public ownership parties, and all other parties which do not stand for the complete overthrow of the capitalist system of production, are alike political parties formed by the propertied classes.

"The workers can most effectively act as a class in their struggle against the collective powers of capitalism, by constituting themselves into a political party, distinct from and opposed to all parties formed by the propertied class.

"While we declare that the development of econmic conditions tends to the overthrow of the capitalist system, we recognize that the time and manner of the transition to Socialism also depend upon the stage of development reached by the proletariat. We, therefore, consider it of the utmost importance for the Socialist Party to support all active efforts of the working class to better its condition and to elect Socialists to political offices, in order to facilitate the attainment of this end.

"We declare that the aim of Socialism is to give the wage-earning class the full product of its labor. To this end we advocate the following

Immediate Demands.

"1. The collective ownership of all means of transportation and communication and all other public utilities as well as of all industries controlled by monopolies, trusts and combines. No part of the revenue of such industries to be applied to reduction of taxes on property of the capitalist class, but to be applied wholly to the increase of wages and shortening of the hours of labor of the employees, to the improvement of the service and diminishing the rates to the consumers.

"2. Eight hours shall constitute a day's work on all state work, whether under contract or not, with the ultimate abolishing of the contract system on all state work.

"3. A strong and effective employers' liability law.

"4. Strict enforcement of the child labor law with penalty for non-fulfillment of the law. The law is now defeated by the inability of the parent or parents to provide support for their children, owing to a low wage, therefore clothing and food for children should be furnished by the state or municipality when necessary.

"5. Reorganization of the State Department of Labor. The members of this department shall be selected from bona fide members of trade unions, and their duties shall be to look after all interests of Labor.

"6. Inauguration of a system of public works, which in times of business depression or involuntary idleness shall give employment and relief to thousands of workers, saving them from terrible suffering and misery.

"7. (a) Equal civil and political rights for men and women. (b) Equal pay for equal work performed regardless of sex.

"8. We declare that corporations must bear their just proportion of taxation; and franchises and wild lands shall be taxed to their market value.

"9. A law should be enacted permitting cities or towns to own franchises if desired.

"10. Progressive decrease of the military forces of the state. We denounce the system of military instruction in any school in the state and demand the withdrawal of state aid from schools having military instruction.

"11. We advocate the initiative and referendum, direct primaries, proportional representation, and right of recall of representatives by their constituents.

Resolutions.

"(a) We advocate the inauguration of a system of public markets to do away with the middle man and speculator between farmer and consumer.

"(b) We advocate a strict enforcement of the pure food laws, and of the law upon oleomargarine.

"(c) The liquor question is primarily a national question. We favor the national manufacture and complete national control of the sale of pure liquor at cost.

"(d) We call the attention of the Postal Department to the fact that the Third Assistant Postmaster General has exceeded the limitation of his office in declaring the Socialist paper, the 'Challenge' to be disqualified from entering the mail as second class matter, and in maliciously obstructing the 'Appeal to Reason.' We therefore demand that these matters receive immediate attention.

"(e) We protest against the arrest of Santiago Iglesias in Puerto Rico, organizer of the American Federation of Labor, upon the charge of a 'conspiracy to raise wages.' This old Spanish law permitting imprisonment upon such a charge is contrary to the spirit of American institutions; but it clearly represents an example of laws made by the capitalist class in the interest of the capitalist class as opposed to the interests of the working class.

"(f) We also endorse the following Farmers' Resolution: Whereas, The farmers of this country and especially of this state are directly affected by the Railroad Trust, the Manufacturing Trust, the Storage Corporations, and by the new and gigantic machinery in use on the great capitalist farms of the West, and Whereas, The result of these trusts have been to increase mortgage indebtedness and landlordism whereby the small farmer is being gradually crushed out or reduced to the position of a mere wage earner or wage slave on his own land, therefore be it

"Resolved, That the interests of the farmer are identical with the interests of the wage worker in the abolition of the system of capitalism and in the adoption of the public ownership of the trusts through Socialism and the establishment of the Co-operative Commonwealth as the only means whereby the farmer shall receive the full product of his labor."

SOCIALIST DODGERS.

So, "Brother" Abner McKinley was "seen" by the agent of the Danish government in the distribution of the $500,000 bribe fund for the purchase of the Danish Islands by the United States. It seems that grief over the death of his brother has not impaired Abner's patriotism. Hats off before Abner the Patriot!

Congressmen bribed. Associated press bribed. Senators bribed. Wild dance of bribers, bribees, and bribes. Nothing new.

Our father, wherever thou art; give us our daily Socialist paper and we will try to make a little heaven on earth. We will give it to our enemies as they give it to us—you bet. Amen.

The Catholic church is at its old-time tricks. The ancient, crazy creature is licking its chops at the sight of so many Socialists that gambol about un-roasted. The poor thing cannot get even a smell of burnt Socialist flesh. Unregenerate times!

Here are a few facts as to the intensity and productivity of the labor of the American miner. The figures are mostly Dr. Foster's and for 1900. Coal production of the world, 767,636,204 tons. By the British Empire, 248,000,000; by the United States, 245,000,000; by Germany, 150,000,000.

The number of coal miners throughout the world was about 4,500,000. The British Empire had 1,500,000, the United States had 500,000, Germany had 733,000.

Tons of coal mined in 1900:

By the British miner, 165; by the American miner, 490; by the German miner, 205.

The death rate from accidents per thousand for the world is 1.02. For the British Empire, 1.29. For Germany, 2.19. For the United States, 3.29. For Belgium, 1.05.

An editor of a successful daily newspaper writes in the "Atlantic Monthly" on the subject "Can a Newspaper Editor Be an Honest Man?" His answer is a most decided negative. Jerome should be asked to write on the subject "Can a District Attorney Be an Honest Man?"

Ten dollars will not make you nor break you; but ten dollars will help considerably to make the Socialist daily and to break up the capitalist's heaven and workingman's hell.

The state legislature has relieved the Brooklyn Rapid Transit Company and the Metropolitan Street Railway Company of a state tax amounting yearly to $150,000 by virtually abolishing the state tax on corporations, except railroad corporations. How then are the above companies relieved of the tax? Well, it so happens that each of them is incorporated as a security company. See that curve?

You do not need to wait with your donation until others swell the Socialist daily fund to a considerable size. For others wait for you. Show the way. H. S.

IN PHILADELPHIA.

Local Philadelphia of the Socialist Party has handsome headquarters at 1022 Arch street, which are open every afternoon and evening. All who are interested in Socialism are invited to call.

Lectures are held every Thursday evening. The program for April is as follows:

April 3—Fred W. Long, "The Time for Action."

April 10—Geo. E. Bigelow, "The Fetish of Private Property."

April 17—Leonard D. Abbott, "Socialist Poets and Painters."

April 24—R. Albus, "Universal Brotherhood: Through Socialism or Mysticism?"

On Wednesday, April 23, Comrades McGrady and Bigelow are to speak in the Academy.

The Pennsylvania State Committee meets at the headquarters on the first and third Monday evening of each month; Local Philadelphia on the second Sunday evening; and the Central Committee on the first and third Wednesdays.

——Life without labor is guilt; labor without art is brutality.—Ruskin.

THE MOVEMENT IN NEW JERSEY.

Secretary Goebel Presents a Statement of the Existing Conditions in That State.

A meeting of the new State Committee of the Socialist Party of New Jersey will be held on Sunday, April 6, at 3 p. m. sharp, at headquarters, 124 Market street, Newark. Every member is urged to attend without fail. Counties which have not yet elected their delegates should do so at once. Delegates are requested to urge their counties to send in all moneys due the State Committee, in order that the work may be not be delayed.

GENERAL CONDITION.

There are on April 1 forty branches in New Jersey, with a new one practically ready for a charter. These branches are located in eleven different counties, Hudson leading the list with sixteen branches. This leaves seven counties unorganized. Comrades living in these unorganized counties are requested to aid the state officers in effecting organization. While some of the branches are doing very little, the conditions in the state are an improvement over the conditions of even six months ago., and by hard and systematic work this state can be put in position to poll 10,000 votes in the next presidential election. To do that every comrade should push the following lines of work:

1. Circulation of literature and getting subscriptions to the party press.

2. Letting nothing stand in the road of service to his branch.

3. Trying to get a branch in some neighboring unorganized place.

4. Holding as many open-air meetings as possible.

ESSEX COUNTY.

Among the branches that should be mentioned as doing valuable work for Socialism is Branch 7 of Newark. This branch was formed only about ten weeks ago, with a membership made up almost entirely of Socialists who had never before been connected with the party work, and was organized with the purpose of giving all its energies to propaganda work as far as possible, and especially to the circulation of literature and enlarging the circulation of the Socialist press. It has already secured nearly 150 subscriptions to Socialist papers, besides the sale or distribution of a large quantity of leaflets, pamphlets, and books. Its meetings have been largely attended, usually taxing the capacity of the meeting place, among the speakers being Comrades Cole, Strobell, Burrowes, Dey, Goebel, and Parsonette. Leonard Abbott is listed to speak at the next meeting. A fact rather unusual and perhaps worthy of note is the variety of occupations represented among the membership, there being four physicians, a Baptist preacher, a novelist, two chemists, a mechanical engineer, contractor and builder, and masons, printers, engravers, etc., enough to make it a representative organization—every one of them standing squarely upon the principle of the class struggle.

Another branch in Newark that is doing good, steady, persistent work for the cause is the Thirteenth Ward Branch. They are preparing to try to enlarge the subscription list of The Worker, their plan being, thanks to the generosity of Comrade Rubinow, to send The Worker to a selected list of names for a month and then call upon them and solicit their subscriptions. If this plan were generally followed the result would be surprising.

Branch 4 of Newark is making steady progress and reaching the trade unionists more effectively than has previously been the case in Essex County. Comrade McIntosh has been especially valuable in this work. They hold public meetings every Sunday night at 124 Market street, to which all are welcome.

OCEAN COUNTY.

It is compartively easy to work in a county where there are from 300 to 1,800 men who think as you do. The men that deserve especial mention are those who are willing to be pioneers. Such is the branch at Point Pleasant, in Ocean County. There were only five votes cast there for Vail, but they have organized with six members and keep adding to their numbers and holding meetings right along. Being all poor men they lack the means to do what they feel should be done. They make a special appeal for literature from any comrades able to spare it. Send to E. M. Davis, Point Pleasant, Ocean County.

UNION COUNTY.

Elizabeth as usual is doing good work, thanks to the able assistance of Comrade Paul Koch and many others. They have a very good singing society and good headquarters. They have elected as organizer Comrade Gerhart, formerly a faithful worker of Essex County.

Plainfield Branch is getting ready to take its proper place in the ranks. It has not made much noise, but has circulated a large amount of literature and worked in a quiet and effective way for the cause.

BERGEN COUNTY.

This county seems to be getting alive all over. Comrades Dobbelaar, De Yoe, Dabo, Thompson, and Blenckstone being factors in this result. Comrade Thompson, as secretary of the county local, replies more promptly to communications from state headquarters than any other in the state, unless it be Comrade Glanz of Passaic. There are branches at Ramsays, Fort Lee, Carlstadt, Woodridge, Pietzburg, and now word comes that a branch is ready to start at Ridgefield. The Pietzburg branch held a very good meeting on April 24, with Comrades Dabo, Blenckstone, and Goebel as speakers. They are trying to organize at Hackensack. Any comrade there should write Comrade Abram Thompson, Ridgewood. "Let not him that hath a mouth say to another: Blow." The only good Socialist is the one that takes at least one Socialist paper and belongs to an organization. If there is none, so much the more reason for starting one. Steam is no good unless you have a boiler to put it in. Ditto Socialist sentiment unless you have an organization to make it count a hundred and a thousand fold.

HUDSON COUNTY.

This county has been alive a long time, and is likely to be more so, judging from present indications. The West Hudson branches have just closed a fair that has cleared at least one hundred dollars. A year ago there was but one branch in West Hudson, that at Arlington. Now there are four—including two in Harrison and one in Kearney. They have nominated a local ticket.

Hoboken is also making good progress, Branch 2 especially, every meeting seeing new members added.

Jersey City branches are steadily at work, and will show even better results at the next election. Hudson County Socialists may disagree now and then as to party tactics, but that is never allowed to interfere with any comrade willing to work being used in whatever direction his ability fits him for. The result is steady progress and good feeling.

CAMDEN COUNTY.

Local Camden County reorganized recently as a result of a visit of the State Organizer there. It has taken in some valuable new workers to build up an effective organization. The Philadelphia comrades should help Camden all they can, even though it is not in their state. Socialism knows no such things as state or national lines. And the Camden comrades should go over and take a look at the Philadelphia headquarters, 1022 Arch street—the best in the country.

PASSAIC COUNTY.

Comrade Glanz as organizer is one of the faithful in this county. They have recently organized a new branch in Paterson—the branches at Haledon, Passaic and Second Ward Paterson are also working and doing what they can. There should be a Socialist band in Paterson—and lots of open-air meetings this summer.

GEO. H. GOEBEL,
State Secretary.
14 Bridge street, Newark.

MAY DAY CONFERENCE.

The first meeting of the May Day Parade Conference was held on Saturday, Mar. 29, at the Labor Lyceum. Delegate Sjoeholm of the Journeymen Tailors was elected temporary Chairman and Julius Gerber Secretary. Delegates Taufer, Cohn, and Heidelbach were elected as Credential Committee, whereupon a recess was taken, after which the committee reported the following organizations represented:

Social Democratic Party—4th, 6th and 10th, 12th, 14th and 15th, 17th, 23d and 28th Assembly Districts.

Dramatic Society Karl Marx, Socialist Liedertafel, Arbeiter Liederkrantz.

Workingmen's Sick and Death Benefit Society—Branches 24, 68, 70, 158, and 160.

United Engineers, No. 1; Amalgamated Wood Workers, Local 172; Metal Polishers and Buffers, Local 34; Coppersmiths' Union; Amalgamated Meat Cutters and Butchers, Locals 174 and 175; Ship and Machinist Riggers, L. A. 1635, K. of L.; United Journeymen Tailors' Union; Custom Upholsterers' Union, Local 44; Harlem River Freight Handlers' Association; Cigar Makers, No. 90; Cigar Packers, No. 213; Architectural Iron Workers, Locals 335, 401, and 434; International Association of Machinists; International Bakers, Nos. 1, 50, and 164; Bakers' and Confectioners' Association; Brotherhood of Carpenters, Locals 309, 375, 476, and 513; German Waiters' Union, No. 1; East Side Waiters' Union, No. 3; Children's Jacket Makers' Union; Vest Makers' Union, Local 16 of U. G. W.; Bricklayers' Union, Nos. 11 and 35; Locals 15 and 18 of the Piano and Organ Builders' International Union.

The committee recommended the seating of all delegates. The delegates of Brotherhood of Carpenters protested against the seating of the delegates of the Amalgamated Wood Workers' Union, claiming that that organization is not a bona fide labor organization, and that it was only organized to injure the Carpenters of this city. After some discussion it was decided to seat the delegates of the Amalgamated Wood Workers, the opinion being that it is not for the May Conference to decide or determine which is and which is not a bona fide labor organization, as long as they are recognized as such by the local and national bodies; whereupon the delegates of the Carpenters withdrew. A committee was elected to visit the Carpenters and explain to them the reasons for the action of the Conference.

Delegate B. Korn of the German Waiters was elected as Chairman and J. Gerber as Secretary. Delegates Haufman, Morton, Eiser, Simon, Panzer, Cohn, and Miss Ginsberg were elected as an Executive Committee to make all necessary arrangements. It was decided to hold the parade on Saturday, May 3. All arrangements were referred to the Executive Committee.

In order to cover the expense of the Conference, it was decided that each organization be requested to contribute as much as possible, but not less than $2. Decided to meet every Saturday evening until the parade. All organizations not represented are requested to send delegates to the Conference which meets every Saturday at the Labor Lyceum, 64 East Fourth street.

Adjournment followed.

J. GERBER, Secretary.

LOCAL 41 REPUDIATES PRESIDENT JOHNSON'S ACT?

The Worker has received the following communication, on the official letter-paper of the Musicians' Mutual Benefit Association, Local 41:

"To the Editor of The Worker.

"Dear Sir:—In view of what has transpired at the meeting of the C. F. U. Sunday, Mar. 23, referring to the trouble between the Brewery Workers and the Engineers and Firemen, Local 41 desires to be set right before the labor public.

"Our delegation on the floor of the body took no part in the proceedings, therefore Local 41 should not be held responsible for the actions of the Chairman of the C. F. U.

"Respectfully,
"LOCAL 41."

"New York, Mar. 26.

We are not in a position to say whether or not this letter is official—whether it enamantes from Local 41 as a body, from the officers as such, or from officers or members as individuals.

The occasion of the letter is the general disapproval of the arbitrary rulings of President Johnson of the C. F. U., a member of the Musicians' Local 41, against the Brewery Workers.

We would add only this comment: President Johnson is still a member of Local 41 and one of that union's representatives in the central body. He is still under their jurisdiction. If they disapprove of his action they have power to hold him responsible. If they approve of his action they should not try to escape their share of the responsibility.

It pays, in the labor movement, to be frank and fearless. The question involved in the Brewery Workers' fight is an important one and it cannot be dodged forever. The unions that take it up seriously and honestly, determine their position by careful discussion, and then declare that position openly and directly will command the most respect and fare the best.

CAREY AND MacCARTNEY WILL BE BUSY IN APRIL.

Comrades Carey and MacCartney, the two Socialist members of the Massachusetts Legislature, have a good deal to attend to outside their official duties. They are constantly called upon to address meetings in various parts of Massachusetts and the neighboring states.

Carey spoke at Somerville last Sunday evening for the Socialist Club. His dates during April so far are as follows: April 2, Cambridge, before a students' club; 4, Milford; Sunday, April 5, Salem, Knights of Columbus, afternoon; Lynn Liberal Forum, 71 Munroe street, evening, 8, Lynn Central Labor Union; 10, Charlestown Socialist Club; 11, Neponset Socialist Club; 15, Waltham Socialist Club; 18, guest at the Lawrence Central Labor Union's annual ball; 19, guest at the banquet of the Lawrence Typographical Union; 20, Mass Meeting of the Boston railroad men in Paine Memorial Hall; 25, Farmington, N. H.; 26 and 27, in Bristol County; 30, Springfield Socialist Club's May Day Celebration.

MacCartney addressed a good meeting at Webster on Monday, Mar. 24, for the local Socialist Club and on the following Thursday he spoke upon invitation before a large and enthusiastic meeting of the Lumber Teamsters' Union in Boston. His dates for April so far are as follows: April 2, Walpole; 8, Brockton fair; 11, Cambridge Socialist Club; 18, New London, Conn.; 20, Mass Meeting of Boston railroad men in Paine Memorial Hall; 21, Woman's Club, Allston; 25, 26, and 27, in Bristol County; 30, Springfield Socialist Club's May Day celebration.

National Platform of the Socialist Party.

The Socialist Party of America in national convention assembled, reaffirms its adherence to the principles of International Socialism, and declares its aim to be the organization of the working class, and those in sympathy with it, into a political party, with the object of conquering the powers of government and using them for the purpose of transforming the present system of private ownership of the means of production and distribution into collective ownership by the entire people.

Formerly the tools of production were simple and owned by the individual worker. To-day the machine, which is but an improved and more developed tool of production, is owned by the capitalists and not by the workers. This ownership enables the capitalists to control the product and keep the workers dependent upon them.

Private ownership of the means of production and distribution is responsible for the ever increasing uncertainty of livelihood and the poverty and misery of the working class, and it divides society into two hostile classes—the capitalists and wage-workers. The once powerful middle class is rapidly disappearing in the mill of competition. The struggle is now between the capitalist class and the working class. The possession of the means of livelihood gives to the capitalists the control of the government, the press, the pulpit, and the schools, and enables them to reduce the workingmen to a state of intellectual, physical and social inferiority, political subservience and virtual slavery.

The economic interests of the capitalist class dominate our entire social system; the lives of the working class are recklessly sacrificed for profit, wars are fomented between nations, indiscriminate slaughter is encouraged and the destruction of whole races is sanctioned in order that the capitalists may extend their commercial dominion abroad and enhance their supremacy at home.

But the same economic causes which developed capitalism are leading to Socialism, which will abolish both the capitalist class and the class of wage workers. And the active force in bringing about this new and higher order of society is the working class. All other classes, despite their apparent or actual conflicts, are alike interested in the upholding of the system of private ownership of the instruments of wealth production. The Democratic, Republican, the bourgeois public ownership parties, and all other parties which do not stand for the complete overthrow of the capitalist system of production, are alike political representatives of the capitalist class.

The workers can most effectively act as a class in their struggle against the collective powers of capitalism, by constituting themselves into a political party, distinct from and opposed to all parties formed by the propertied classes.

While we declare that the development of economic conditions tends to the overthrow of the capitalist system, we recognize that the time and manner of the transition to Socialism also depend upon the stage of development reached by the proletariat. We, therefore, consider it of the utmost importance for the Socialist Party to support all active efforts of the working class to better its condition and to elect Socialists to political offices, in order to facilitate the attainment of this end.

As such means we advocate:

1. The public ownership of all means of transportation and communication and all other public utilities, as well as of all industries controlled by monopolies, trusts, and combines. No part of the revenue of such industries to be applied to the reduction of taxes on property of the capitalist class, but to be applied wholly to the increase of wages and shortening of the hours of labor of the employees, to the improvement of the service and diminishing the rates to the consumers.

2. The progressive reduction of the hours of labor and the increase of wages in order to decrease the share of the capitalist and increase the share of the worker in the product of labor.

3. State or national insurance of working people in case of accidents, lack of employment, sickness and want in old age; the funds for this purpose to be collected from the revenue of the capitalist class, and to be administered under the control of the working class.

4. The inauguration of a system of public industries, public credit to be used for that purpose in order that the workers be secured the full product of their labor.

5. The education of all children up to the age of eighteen years, and state and municipal aid for books, clothing, and food.

6. Equal civil and political rights for men and women.

7. The initiative and referendum, proportional representation and the right of recall of representatives by their constituents.

But in advocating these measures as steps in the overthrow of capitalism and the establishment of the Co-operative Commonwealth, we warn the working class against the so-called public ownership movements as an attempt of the capitalist class to secure governmental control of public utilities for the purpose of obtaining greater security in the exploitation of other industries and not for the amelioration of the conditions of the working class.

Grand Symphony Concert

By the full Damrosch Orchestra of sixty pieces, under the direction of FRANK DAMROSCH, assisted by a Chorus of Six Hundred Voices from the People's Choral Union.

SUNDAY AFTERNOON, MAY 4,
—IN—
Grand Central Palace.

Three beautiful Living Pictures: "THE FIRST OF MAY," "STRUGGLE," "VICTORY."

FOR THE SOCIALIST DAILY FUND.

TICKETS, 25 CENTS. ADMISSION AT THE DOOR, 35 CENTS.

For tickets and information apply to H. C. Bowerman, Financial Secretary, at the Club House, 206 E. Eighty-sixth street.

Where to Lunch and Dine

Comrades, patronize those who advertise in your paper.

ABBOTT BROS.
Bakery, Coffee and Lunch Room
110 Bleecker Street, New York.
Kangaroos are welcome; no line drawn on smaller animals.

PATRONIZE ....
FRITZ'S COFFEE AND LUNCH ROOM, 373 Bowery, bet. 4th & 5th Sts. N. Y. OPEN DAY AND NIGHT.

WATCHES.
FACTORY TO POCKET.
Every day more and more people are BEING CONVINCED that we do save them 25 to 75 per cent. on Solid Gold, Silver, Gold Filled and Gun Metal Watches. W. F. DOLL MFG. CO., 175 Broadway. Estab. 1876.

BROOKLYN BOROUGH MEETING.

A Borough Meeting of the Social Democratic Party of Brooklyn will be held at the Labor Lyceum, 949-955 Willoughby avenue, Saturday evening, April 5. Every comrade should make it a point to be present promptly at 8 p. m., as important business is to be taken up.

IN THE BRONX.

On Friday evening, April 4, a meeting will be held in Webster Hall, One Hundred and Fortieth street and Third avenue, for the organization of the Social Democratic Party in the 34th A. D. All Socialist voters and sympathizers in the 34th A. D. are urged to attend.

SPRING'S MEETINGS.

State Organizer Spring will address the following meetings during the week:

Friday, April 4—Eleventh A. D., at 436 W. Thirty-eighth street.

Saturday, April 5—Street-corner meeting, Broome and Suffolk street.

Sunday evening, April 6—Socialist Educational League, 215 E. Fifty-ninth street.

Monday, April 7—Fourteenth A. D., at 238 E. Tenth street.

Wednesday, April 9—Twenty-second and Twenty-fourth A. D., at 215 East Fifty-ninth street.

FAILURES OF THE WEEK.

"Bradstreet's" reports 183 failures in the United States during the week, against 197 for the previous week and 189, 178, 190, and 226 for the corresponding weeks of 1901 to 1898. About 87 per cent. of the total number of concerns failing had capital of $5,000 or less, and 7 per cent. had from $5,000 to $20,000 capital. As usual, it is the little capitalists who fail.

THE WORKER'S
GREAT MAY DAY NUMBER.
Eight Pages. Highly Valuable Articles. Ready May 1st.
Less than 100 copies, per copy 1 cent; 200 copies, $1.20.
100 copies, 75 cents; 300 copies or more, per 100, 50 cents.
ORDER AT ONCE.
USE ORDER BLANK YOU FIND IN THIS NUMBER.

The Worker.

A WONDERFUL BOOK.
"Railroading in the United States."
BY BEN HANFORD.
Price, 5 Cents. One Hundred Copies, $2.50, Postpaid.
ORDER AT ONCE.
SOCIALIST LITERATURE COMPANY, 184 William St., New York.

VOL. XII.—NO. 2. NEW YORK, APRIL 13, 1902. PRICE 2 CENTS.

NEVER TRUST A CAPITALIST.

Lesson of the Boston Strike "Settlement."

Speakers at Faneuil Hall Enforce the Lesson and Blacklisted Freight-Handlers Applaud.

The six hundred freight handlers who lost their jobs through the "settlement" of the recent teamsters' strike in Boston, held a mass meeting in Faneuil Hall on Saturday, April 5, as a protest against the injustice they had suffered. The meeting was preceded by a parade through the streets.

The principal speakers at the meeting were Representatives James F. Carey and F. O. MacCartney and Geo. A. Bittenhauser of the Cigar Makers' Union. They were all liberally applauded.

J. J. Powers, President of the Freight Handlers' Union, called the meeting to order, and said that the meeting was called to show the public how the corporations had used the Governor to help break the strike. "When we had the business of Boston tied up, the Governor of Massachusetts and the Mayor of Boston came to our committee and asked us to declare the strike off, and on the word of the Governor we did so, expecting to go back to work next morning. But what have they done? Not one of us got our work back and 650 men are now walking the streets of Boston."

He then introduced Representative Carey, who briefly reviewed the industrial situation and then came down to the recent strike. In part he said:

Juggled and Betrayed.

"You were betrayed and juggled by the settlement. You trusted to the word of your masters and you suffered for it. It hardly seems necessary for workingmen to have pointed out to them the treachery of their masters. The history of capitalism is a daily history of treachery. You ought never to have trusted them.

"If the Governor wanted to force the railroads to take you back he could do it. If the Governor should go to the railroads and say, 'We intend to enact hostile legislation,' and if they knew he would do it, they would soon take back every one of you. But no, they don't do that! The Republican Governor of Massachusetts and the Democratic Mayor of Boston unite to deceive the workingmen. And the next year you'll elect the same men."

Yells of "No, we won't."

Don't Blame the Police.

"You blame the police for acting as they did during the strike, but you overlook the power behind the police. Supposing one of you men was Governor; one of you Mayor, and some of you judges, what would you do? Why, the police would have different instructions. They would have to protect the strikers, not the corporations. And you know what sort of judges you have now.

"If a scab driver shoots a boy, the judge fines the boy. The boy should have been invulnerable, he should be bullet-proof. And if one of your agents takes a union button off the coat of a scab driver, why the great legal luminary over in Charlestown gives the laboring man six months for taking off the button that the man had no right to wear.

"That's the kind of men you elect to public office. You elect men who appoint Police Commissioners who order the officers to help the corporations, as they did in the last strike. That's the kind of men you elect. How generous you are!

"You listened to false promises. The first concern of the Governor, the Mayor and the business men was to get the wheels of profit running. That's all they care for. To gain that end, they lied to you. You believed them, and now you are out of a job.

"The Governor said to you, 'Go back, all who can and I'll try to get the rest back.' Then he sent for the 'Physic Federation' to administer a little more chloroform. You ought not to have allowed anybody to settle the strike but yourselves. No matter as to the personal qualities of the Governor and the Mayor and the business men, who love you as fleas love a dog. The fact that one of you is left out is a living example of the baseness and treachery of those whose promises you listened to.

"If you go on strike again—and I hope you will never become so degraded that you will not strike industrially when it becomes necessary—strike politically, too. When you do strike, go in to win or lose and allow no treacherous 'friends' to interfere. Trust yourselves and no other, and when a nose is stuck into your affairs, hit it. If you win, win; if you lose, lose; but don't allow yourselves to be tricked, so that at the end of the battle, you don't know whether you've won or lost."

He closed with a fervent appeal to the meeting for economic and political solidarity and was warmly cheered.

Mr. Bittenhauser followed in a strong speech. He asked that the committee be not blamed too severely. "They were surrounded on all sides, the pressure was too great, and they had to succumb."

Sargent's Change of Heart.

He related a conversation he had with Frank P. Sargent of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen, who was in Boston at the time of the strike as a member of the Civic Federation.

"I asked him," said Mr. Bittenhauser, "what he thought of the situation. He said, 'Deplorable. I never saw anything like it in my life.' That night he received news of his appointment as Immigration Commissioner at $7,500 a year. The next morning's papers quoted him as saying that he was perfectly satisfied with what he had seen.

"The only hope for the workingmen is to unite politically as well as industrially. You should be glad that you have two such men as Carey and MacCartney in the legislature to fight for you. I have been a Democrat all my life; but I am through, and hereafter I vote against both the old parties, and I counsel you to do the same."

Representative MacCartney first gave a brief sketch of the development of industry in the United States and showed how a class struggle was raging in America.

"The recent strike, out of which you emerged sufferers, was a splendid exhibition of class solidarity. There never was a more magnificent spectacle in the history of this nation than the one in which 20,000 Boston workingmen struck out of sympathy with eight of their fellows. These men who struck were heroes.

"The next time that you have a strike and the trade unions try to bring Ralph M. Easley to Massachusetts, fight it to the death. Ralph M. Easley is not your friend, he is your enemy. The Civic Federation was not formed to help organized labor, but to betray it. Have no faith in the Civic Federation. It's a confidence game. You had a full hand and you threw down to your opponent's two aces."

MacCartney criticized the strike committee severely and said they did not realize the responsibility upon them or the significance of the strike, and therefore allowed the situation to slip from their grasp. He advised the men to stick to their trade unions, for the capitalists only desired to see them divided, but to choose carefully the men to direct them.

"The working class, properly organized," he said, "is invincible."

"In conclusion, I want to say, if another strike occurs, fight to the death. Do not trust the professions or promises of any one whose interests are with the capitalist class. I believe that Governor Crane is an honest men, but he could not look at the strike as we did; for he drank in capitalism at his mother's breast."

W. M.

A CHAPTER IN TRADE UNIONISM.

That Newark Dailies Refused to Print and Newark Workingmen Should Consider.

On Friday evening, March 7, during the reports of unions at the Essex Trades Council of Newark, N. J., the delegate from the Coopers' Union reported that the Murphy varnish works were employing scab coopers. The announcement created something of a sensation among the Republican delegates to the Council, who no doubt remembered the fact that Governor Murphy, the owner of the varnish works, had during the campaign, while on a stumping tour, actually got up from his soup in order to go into the hotel corridor to shake hands with a delegation of poor ignorant workingmen, and told them that he was "Labor's friend." What made the report still more disagreeable was the fact that Governor Murphy was paying his coopers six dollars below the union scale—$12 a week, the scale calling for $18.00.

By a unanimous vote the matter was referred to the Arbitration Committee, which is composed of reliable men. The chairman of this committee is Chas. Mueller, Business Agent of Brewers' Union No. 2, one of the progressive men of the Council, and he and his committee went after the Murphy varnish works with characteristic energy.

At this same meeting Delegate Fred McIntosh reported that he was sent on a committee from the Allied Printing Trades Council to appear before the Board of Education, in order to demand that the annual report of that Board be printed in a union office, and that the Board of Education ignored the committee entirely, and placed the work in a scab printing office, as they said, "because the figure was fourteen dollars cheaper than in a union office." Delegate McIntosh, in making this report, referred to the action of the Board as being in line with the treatment that organized labor is receiving all over the country from the stool-pigeons of capitalism, who are always to be found upon municipal boards of all descriptions.

Although reporters from both the "Evening News" and "Daily Advertiser" were present, those sheets would not print a line regarding Governor Murphy's scab cooper shop, or the scab Board of Education.

On March 14, the Arbitration Committee reported that they had visited the varnish works of Governor Murphy, and in the cooperage department found only one union man at work, and he had joined the union just on the eve of election. Delegate Mueller in his report stated that the superintendent of the Murphy varnish works had said they did not know just what the Cooper's Union demanded. This the delegate from the Cooper's vigorously denied, as the Governor was seen previous to election and had promised to have his establishment straightened out. In order to ascertain the truth the Council ordered the delegate from the Coopers' Union to accompany the Arbitration Committee to the Governor's varnish works, which was done the following week, with the result that the superintendent had to acknowledge that they had received official notice from the Coopers' Union regarding scale of wages, etc., but he desired a week to consider the proposition. On Friday evening, March, 28, the Arbitration Committee reported that the cooperage establishment of His Excellency was still scab and likely to remain so.

During the three weeks that the despicable action of New Jersey's high-toned Governor was discussed on the floor of the Essex Trades Council, the daily papers of Newark did not print a line concerning it. This contemptible action on the part of the Newark press towards organized labor is causing even the "safe," the "conservative" element to use their think-factory on their own account.

THE CAMPAIGN IN MILWAUKEE.

The Socialist Vote Nearly Doubled in Seventeen Months.

Figures Reach 8,401—Generally Admitted That Socialism Is Now a Factor That Must Be Reckoned With—Sketch of Campaign.

With the counting of the ballots indicating the election of David S. Rose, the Democratic candidate for Mayor (the man who at the national convention at Kansas City declared "that this standing up and dying for principle is all rot"), by a plurality of about 8,000, one of the most intensely interesting and remarkable campaigns ever fought in this city passed into history. Interesting to us because it was again to measure our strength politically—remarkable on account of the phenomenal growth of Socialist thought. The progress of this growth is best illustrated by the following table, showing the progress of the Socialist vote here in the last four years:

Spring, 1898, for Mayor, 2,430.
Spring, 1900, for Mayor, 2,585.
Fall, 1900, for Governor, 4,667.
Spring, 1902, for Mayor (incomplete), 8,401.

On the other hand, it may also be interesting to record the "growth" of the S. L. P. Their candidate for Mayor, on incomplete returns, received 198 votes, while for Treasurer they got 247, indicating great class-consciousness. In 1896 they cast 444 votes; in 1898, 429; in 1900, 352 in the spring and 245 in the fall.

Whether the growth of the Social Democratic Party is sound and substantial yet remains to be seen. One thing, however, is certain. While our platform contained immediate demands, and while they were mentioned and even advocated, yet on the whole the greatest stress was laid on the desirability of economic liberty, realizable only when classes are abolished and the Co-operative Commonwealth is established. The result therefore warrants the prediction that our growth and strength are healthy and normal. Another gratifying feature is the even strength shown for all of our city candidates.

An Active Campaign.

We started on January 31, when at the city convention, composed of 157 delegates, of whom 99 represented the party and 58 represented about twenty unions, our city ticket was nominated. Little or nothing was done for some time, the Fair and Carnival absorbing all our attention. After the Fair closed, work was commenced in earnest. Fifty thousand platforms were printed in English and German, and 25,000 leaflets and 50,000 copies of the "Herald" and "Vorwaerts" were systematically distributed by the Campaign Committee, besides a vast quantity of literature which each ward attended to. At our meetings no opportunity was lost to dispose of literature and the amount so sold far exceeded any previous efforts.

Comrades Father McGrady, Eugene V. Debs, Seymour Stedman, Thomas Morgan, and W. J. McSweeny from outside did some valuable and effective service. As the fight progressed, interest increased, enthusiasm became wild, and at a meeting held the Sunday previous to election, during the address of Thomas J. Morgan, an audience of over 1,500 that filled the hall to its utmost capacity became almost delirious in its unbounded enthusiasm. They repeatedly applauded and cheered the speakers to the echo.

But much as was done by orators and speakers, the most telling work was no doubt done by the rank and file. It was as much a victory of the plain and lowly every-day workers as it was of the brilliant speakers and orators.

Democrat Rose Sneaked.

In some respects it was a most sensational struggle. David S. Rose, in his speech accepting the Democratic nomination for Mayor, boastfully challenged the "opposition" to debate the merits of his four years of administration. This was our opportunity and we promptly accepted his challenge. But lo! to our severe disappointment, he crawled out of the embarrassing position by refusing to meet us on the ground that he meant only the Republican party. Vain and proud as is Rose, yet he was too cowardly to meet us in debate. Commenting on his failure to discuss the issues, the Milwaukee "Daily News" said editorially, under the caption of "Rose's Rocky Road:" "The advent of the Social Democracy in the local political field is making the road rough and rocky for the demagogues and 'con' men that have talked glibly of their friendship for Labor while playing into the hands of public utility corporations. The educational work being done by the Social Democracy is opening the eyes of Labor to the fact that its 'friends' are often its worst enemies. * * * Outside the promise it gives of eliminating the Dave Rose species of 'friends of the peepul,' the educational work of the Social Democracy cannot fail to have beneficial effect in raising the tone of political discussion. To understand Socialism a man has to devote thought to economic subjects. Socialists are not 'born,' like Democrats and Republicans. They have a well-defined idea of solving economic and social problems. It is not necessary to be a Socialist to realize that the spread of Socialist propaganda inevitably must lead to a discussion of economic and political problems on their merits and that the old-time clap-trap and party appeal will be forced to give way to intelligent discussion. The demagogue and spellbinder, with his superficial denunciation of monopoly and his quack lotions, will find his occupation gone when the workingman begins to do his own thinking."

A peculiar circumstance was the unusual fairness accorded our party by the capitalist press. Almost without exception they treated us fairly until toward the end of the campaign, when they seemed to get scared at indications and hostility cropped out in several instances. No doubt this strangely impartial attitude was due in a great measure to the uncertainty as to which side we would draw most heavily from.

Old Parties Had No Issues.

It was a notorious fact, visible even to the most superficial observer and admitted by some of the minor candidates on the old-party tickets, that neither party had the semblance of an issue except the chase for office.

The Republicans were hopelessly split into factions. There are the "Half-breeds" and the "Stalwarts"—the former representing the "reform" element under the leadership of Governor La Follette, and the latter reflecting the interests of the corporations, millionaires, etc., under the leadership of "Boss" Charlie Phister, the millionaire tanner. Observation shows that the lines between the big and the little fish are being drawn in their own pond in this state. They are separating even in their own party. This party appealed to the voters on the "prosperity" and "full dinner-pail" arguments.

The Democratic party made the run chiefly on its past record of a "wide-open town" and a few public improvements, mainly a new "bridge" across the main street in town. They openly stood for all that is low, vulgar, and corrupt. It is only to the great personal influence and activity of Rose that their success may be ascribed. "Dave" made sixty-five speeches in two weeks, as many as seven in one day. The Democrats at the last moment in their convention added a union plank to their platform. How many suckers nipped at the bait is hard to tell. With "Dave's" record as a "friend of Labor," any who voted for him on the strength of this plank must indeed have been fools. During the May riots of 1886 Rose was second lieutenant of the Darlington Rifles, which were stationed in Milwaukee to shoot the strikers—and did it cheerfully.

Trade Union Sympathy.

Union labor in general is with us. The Federated Trades Council has for years been strongly Socialistic. They have shown their friendship in more ways than mere sympathy or meaningless resolutions. Without solicitation they appropriated $25 to our campaign fund. Several other unions did likewise. These were entirely voluntary contributions, as the party did not ask a cent from any one, using some of the money made on the fair for that purpose. Then undoubtedly the strikes in the metal trades of last spring helped us some. Our comrades seized that opportunity and distributed an enormous lot of literature. The disastrous result of the machinists' strike, coupled with our efforts to point out the cause of failure, gave the movement an impetus little dreamt of.

Summed up, the result is very gratifying, and the campaign will long be remembered as the first fought after becoming an official party. The old parties admit that henceforth we are a factor to be reckoned with and not to be ignored. It has given us inspiration and encouragement to work all the harder for the future. Already our full contest has been commenced and many plans laid to not only hold what we have gained but to even increase our strength and prestige. It makes one feel like shouting, "What's the matter with Milwaukee? She's all right."

H. W. BISTORIUS.
Milwaukee, April 5.

SOCIALISTS AHEAD IN SHEBOYGAN.

In the aldermanic election at Sheboygan, Wis., the Socialist Party cast more votes than either of the old parties. The Democrats, in the Second, Third, Fourth, Sixth, Seventh, and Eighth Wards, cast 1,111 votes; the Republicans, in the First, Second, Third, Fourth, Fifth, and Sixth, had 1,002; the Socialist Party, with candidates in all wards, had 1,403. The total vote was 3,516, so that we have practically 40 per cent.

Nevertheless, we elected but one Alderman, Comrade Mohr, in the Seventh Ward. He had nearly twice as many votes as his opponent, who was supported by both old parties.

In the Eighth our candidate was defeated by but 11 votes. This slim majority for the capitalists was secured only by keeping the workingmen in certain factories until the polls were closed.

MAY DAY IN BOSTON.

The celebration of International Labor Day in Boston will not be held on May 1, as at first intended. The committee were unable to make satisfactory arrangements for that date, and had to arrange to hold the affair on Sunday evening, May 4, instead. Paine Memorial Hall, 9 Appleton street, has been engaged, and, though a trifle late, the celebration will be a noteworthy one. Three of the best speakers in the movement have been engaged in the persons of Ben Hanford of New York and Representatives Carey and MacCartney. There will also be a short musical entertainment. Admission will be free and comrades and friends are urged to work to have the celebration a thorough success. Advertising cards for distribution can be had from William Mailly, Organizer, 330 Shawmut avenue, Boston. Trade unionists are especially urged to be present.

VICTORY IN MICHIGAN.

Two Socialist Aldermen Elected in Battle Creek.

F. A. Kulp and Charles A. Jackson, Candidates of the Socialist Party, Will Take Seats in the City Council.

The Socialist Party has scored its first victory at the polls in the state of Michigan.

A city election was held in Battle Creek last Monday and when the ballots were counted its was found that the Socialist Party had won in the First and Second Wards, electing F. A. Kulp and Charles A. Jackson to the Board of Aldermen. Battle Creek is a city of over 18,000 population.

The Worker has as yet no information as to the size of our vote; but a beginning has been made and new successes in other parts of the state may be expected to follow.

The Socialist movement has made rapid progress in Michigan during the last few years. In the fall of 1898, with the S. L. P. only in the field, there were 1,101 votes. In the fall of 1900 the Social Democratic Party had 2,826 and the S. L. P. 903. In the spring of 1901 our vote was 7,504, although our candidates were on the ballot in but forty-five out of the eighty-two counties; and the S. L. P. polled 3,400 in the whole state.

SEDALIA AGAIN DOUBLES THE VOTE.

Missouri City Has Increased Socialist Vote from 101 to 656 in a Year and a Half.

The Socialist vote in the city election at Sedalia, Mo., on April 1 was 656, out of a total of 2,229, giving us 29 per cent. of the whole vote cast. The Republicans and Democrats ran a fusion ticket. The growth of our vote is shown by the following table:

November, 1900, National 101
April, 1901, Aldermen 252
July, 1901, Mayor, special 324
April, 1902, Mayor 656

The time seems not to be far distant when the Socialist workingmen of Sedalia will take control of the city's affairs.

E. T. B.

ELECTIONS HERE AND THERE.

The total vote in Cincinnati was less than half that cast last fall. The Socialist Party is credited with about 2,000, as against 3,100 cast in November. Our percentage is slightly increased.

In Mystic, Ia., a city of about 2,000 population, the Citizens' Party candidate for Mayor received 176 votes and the candidate of the Socialist Party 163, while the Populist had 26. In the Third Ward our candidate, Geo. Parker, was elected as Alderman. The school election resulted in an overwhelming victory for the Socialist Party.

Victory was won by the Socialist Party at St. Petersburg, Fla. In its first campaign it has made a clean sweep, electing mayor and all other candidates.

TICKET IN OREGON.

The Socialist Party of Oregon has nominated the following state ticket:

For Governor—R. R. Ryan.
For Secretary of State—C. W. Barzee.
For State Treasurer—W. W. Myers.
For Justice of the Supreme Court—C. P. Rutherford.
For Congressman, Second District—B. T. Gerdes.

Nominations for Superintendent of Public Instruction, Attorney-General, and State Printer are to be filled by the State Central Committee.

C. S. Harnich was chosen Chairman of the State Committee, with A. D. Hale as Secretary and W. S. Richards as Treasurer. All are of Albany.

UNEXPECTED VICTORY.

The German Social Democratic Party won an unexpected and encouraging victory in a special election for the Reichstag in the district of Elbing-Marienburg in West Prussia.

In the last general election in 1898 the Conservatives carried this district with 9,346 votes, against 4,473 for the Social Democrats, and 4,673 for the candidates of the Center, National Liberals, and Radicals combined. In the recently held special election, the Social Democratic candidate, König, was victorious on the first ballot—that is, with a clear majority over all opponents.

WE ARE A GREAT PEOPLE.

Of course Socialism is impracticable! In this country we have the more practicable kind—the Carnegie-Morgan-Rockefeller brand—which gives to those on the ground floor incomes ranging from one to forty millions annually. Most of our laborers are on the street, but they do not clean them. They have numerous half holidays, but these come in bunches. They are all free and independent citizens! uncrowned kings! who give the Armours and Carnegies yearly incomes of forty or fifty millions with which to build libraries, churches, and endow colleges. Oh, but we are a great people, we are.—The Liberator.

THEY SET US AN EXAMPLE.

The capitalists among themselves don't know any discrimination in regard to nationality, politics or religion. They stick together for their interests in an intelligent way. Let the workingmen do the same thing, and we shall see different conditions very soon.—Brauer Zeitung.

CHICAGO ELECTION AND ITS LESSONS.

Socialist Party, with "Public Ownership" Movement to Fight, Increased Its Percentage of Total Vote.

Coming events cast their shadows before. Two significant shadows passed in plain sight over the last electoral battlefield. One of them warned the capitalists of the coming Socialist vote in the next fall election; the other gave our opportunist friends a strong hint to follow the example of their straight and uncompromising comrades if they wish to obtain any visible results.

The total vote in the city was only about 65 per cent. of that polled in the mayoralty election of 1901. The Social Democratic Party and the Socialist Party together polled 7,427 votes in 1901. Yet, in spite of the fact that 35 per cent. of last year's voters did not go to the polls this spring, the Socialist Party received about 7,000 votes, if press reports are correct. Nothing can be learned up to date about the official count. As a large vote always comes from our sympathizers, many of whom are certainly among the 35 per cent. of stay-at-homes, the 7,000 votes cast for the Socialist candidates by active citizens augur well for the fall elections, when public interest will be far more aroused. We are so much more satisfied with this result as it shows that an increasing number of workingmen turn a deaf ear to the capitalist politicians' siren song of "public ownership" under the control of old-party bosses.

The capitalist papers with the exception of the "Inter-Ocean," were as mean and unfair as usual. The "Inter-Ocean" has always fearlessly and impartially printed all the news, and did so during this election. Although on the side of the capitalists, it is a fair enemy and we give it due credit.

One of the meanest foes is the "Daily News." It has persistently told the most malicious lies about us, and has a great preference for publishing interviews with prominent European Socialists, whom it misrepresents in the most shrewdly calculating manner. We have always watched it closely, sent clippings of its garbled interviews to the European comrades and published their replies, showing the utter unreliability of "Daily News" reports on anything connected with Socialism.

Much doubt was expressed by the advocates of "immediate demands" whether our short and revolutionary municipal platform would be available for practical propaganda. But an ounce of practise is better than a pound of theory. In speaking to the people on the street and in hall meetings, it invariably became necessary to appeal to the self interest of the workers as against the interests of the capitalists; in other words, it became imperative for us as Socialists to appeal to the class-consciousness of the workers. The capitalist candidates spoke in favor of municipal ownership, the referendum, and the like. One of the most notorious "gray wolves" appealed to the Socialists for support because this platform contained the same planks as our national platform. There was nothing for us to do, if we wished to act as a distinct class party, but to talk "straight" Socialism.

It is obvious that the tendencies of the present economic situation will continue to force the cherished immediate demands into the platforms of the capitalist parties. This simplifies and clears the situation immensely in favor of Socialism by removing the opportunities of the opportunists and establishing the foundation for a unity of thought that will find vigorous expression in a unity of action. The recent municipal election has done much toward demonstrating by practise that the revolutionary Socialists have read the signs of the times correctly, and that our strength lies in a plain and emphatic statement of the simple truths that have made International Socialism what it is to-day—the indestructible basis of a new society which will stand higher than capitalist society, because it will give to the producer his product.

ERNEST UNTERMANN.
Chicago, April 5.

The "Chicago Socialist" for April 5 states that the vote of the Socialist Party is probably over rather than under 7,000 in a total vote of 195,000, as against 7,427 last year in a total of 300,000. Our percentage of the vote is therefore nearly doubled. The vote for our aldermanic candidates seems to have exceeded by several hundred that cast for aldermen last year.

IN ILLINOIS TOWNS.

The Socialist Party had a town ticket in the field in Rockford, Ill., this year for the first time. The old parties had a joint or "non-partisan" ticket. Our candidates polled from 406 to 876 votes, the average being 559. The average vote for the old-party ticket was 2,109. For Supervisor, head of the ticket, we had 562, against 2,145 for the victorious candidate. Thus, for head of the ticket we have 21 per cent. of the total; and on the average for the whole ticket we have 29 per cent.

In the fall of 1900 the whole of Winnebago County gave Debs and Harriman but 85 votes.

There are two party branches in the town and a third will soon be started. Good feeling prevails among the comrades, and work for the fall campaign is already begun.

C. G. B.

Galesburg, Ill., gives the Socialist Party 212 votes for Assessor, 236 for Supervisor, and 232 for Alderman. In 1900 the whole of Knox County gave us but 142.

—THE BREWERY WORKERS' STRIKE AND BOYCOTT IN CINNATI IS NOT OFF, REPORTS OF THE CAPITALISTIC PRESS TO THE CONTRARY NOTWITHSANDING.

THE RIGHT TO STRIKE.

"Another victory for organized labor!"

Workingmen, you have the right to strike!

The Court of Appeals of the state of New York last week handed down a decision that trade unionists have a legal right to declare a strike against the employment of non-union men.

The right to strike, to quit work, is not a "natural, inalienable right." No, it is a right "handed down" to workingmen by the Court of Appeals. Of course, it is quite probable that the court may reverse its decision at some future time, especially as three out of the seven judges dissented from the decision. It is also possible that the Supreme Court of the United States may overrule this decision and alienate this right. But until the court changes its mind you have the right to strike.

Just think what this means.

It means that you have the right to quit work—the right to give up your job to a scab.

Of course, when you quit work you get no money to pay the grocer and the butcher and the landlord, you cannot pay the gas bill, you cannot buy shoes for your children or dresses for your wife; and you must live on nothing. If you try to persuade other men to strike or distribute boycott circulars, you may be arrested. If you make any kind of a demonstration, you may be shot full of holes by the militia. Of course, there is very little chance of your winning the strike, for the capitalists have plenty of money to enjoy life on while hunger and want are bringing you to terms. And if the strike is lost, you may be blacklisted and have to leave the trade or move to some other part of the country where the employers do not know that you are one of the "disturbing element."

But you have the right to strike.

You have the right to starve, for this is a free country.

The employing class also have some rights.

They have the right to "buy in the cheapest market and sell in the dearest." That means they have the right to buy your labor-power for wages as low as hunger will drive you to accept, and to sell what you produce at prices as high as you can be forced to pay.

They have the right to treat you like dogs, to work you overtime, to risk your lives for profit, and to discharge you when you have produced so much for them that a market cannot be found for it all. They have the right to blacklist you for striking and to call out the militia to shoot you. In fact, they have the right to do anything they please and say "the public be damned."

These rights of the capitalists are not "natural and inalienable" either. They are maintained because the capitalists own the government. They are the expression of the POWER of capital. These rights of capital will hold good just as long as the capitalist class has the government behind it. The class that wields the most POWER is the class which always gets all manner of "rights," and "eternal justice" is ever on the side of might. The working class only needs to become conscious of its power, to be the mightiest class in society; has only to put forth its power to capture the powers of government, and, by using them to bring about the common ownership of the means of producing wealth, do away with the system of capitalism against which it now feebly goes on strike.

The decision of the Court of Appeals is naturally called "a victory for organized labor" by the capitalistic newspapers—it is the kind of a "victory" which doesn't worry the capitalists overmuch.

The right to strike doesn't amount to much.

But the working class has one right that does—the right to vote.

When workingmen vote as they strike—against the capitalist, when they become conscious of their class interests and cast Socialist ballots, when they strike at the polls as they do in the shop, the government will be in their hands. And when Socialist judges and mayors and a Socialist governor are in office, all the powers of government, which are now used by the capitalists to break strikes, will be used by the working class officials to make strikes successful, break the power of the capitalists and pave the way to the overthrow of capitalism and the final emancipation of the workers from wage-slavery.

C. L.

NATIONAL CASH REGISTER COMPANY.

"The National Cash Register Company trouble is not settled by any manner of means," a Dayton unionist writes to the Cleveland "Citizen." "The metal polishers talk of putting their agents on the road again to compel the company to recognize them, which it now flatly refuses to do and won't make public a single thing agreed upon by the Fizzle Federation buncoers. None of the men who were locked out are back to work yet, and the same conditions prevail that did before the shut-down last summer."

THE MISSOURI BOYCOTT DECISION.

It turns out that the victory gained by union labor in the decision of the Supreme Court of Missouri, to the effect that workingmen have a right to boycott, is rather a barren affair. The case has been in court four years, and no injunction was lifted because none had been granted. Summed up, the Missouri case resolves itself into this: If an injunction is sprung against a boycotting union by a lower court, it will require a small barrel of money and four years of time to bring the case to an issue. The bosses would have no fault to find with such a proceeding.—Cleveland Citizen.

FABLE OF THE OPTIMIST.

There were once two men—Mr. Democrat and Mr. Republican—who saw some Capitalists hold up and rob a lot of Workmen. Of course, they didn't try to stop the robbery, for the robbers always contributed to their Campaign Funds. But a Socialist happened along, and seeing the outrage, threw off his coat and prepared to attack the Robbers. Then Mr. Republican and Mr. Democrat fell upon a Socialist and Tied His Hands. "You are a Pessimist," "Pessimist, hades!" cried he, "I want to stop the robbery." "Now, don't be rash," responded they, "Don't you know these Good Men return to the Laborers Ten Per Cent. of everything they take from them? How would the Poor Devils live if they didn't do that? You must try to look on the Bright Side of Things." Then Mr. Populist and Mr. Public Ownership Man came along, and seeing Socialist struggling against his bonds, first Tied His Hands a little tighter and then said: 'Don't be a Pessimist. If you will promise to be Quiet and not frighten Capital, we will promise to use our Influence to induce the Capitalists to return to Labor Fifteen Per Cent. of what they take from him. Think of that! Fifteen Per Cent!" And they swelled out with pride at the thought.

P. S.—The robbery still continues.—
—Push.

NOTICE.

The Workingmen's Co-operative Publishing Association.—General meeting on Thursday, April 17, 1902, at eight o'clock p. m., at the Labor Lyceum, 64 East Fourth street, New York. Proposed candidates for membership, not present at the meeting held April 3, will please be present and have their party membership cards ready.

F. H. KOENIG, Secretary.

VOTES ARE BETTER THAN RESOLUTIONS.

Workingmen Who Are Pleading for the Eight-Hour Day on Public Work Should Remember This Next Fall.

The Safety Association of Steam Engineers of New York City is demanding that Mayor Low carry out his ante-election promises in favor of an eight-hour day for city employees. The Association has adopted resolutions condemning the Administration for the abolition of the three-platoon or eight-hour system for policemen and calls on other organizations to do the same. The resolutions close with these words:

"We deplore Mayor Low's inconsistency, his antagonism to the eight-hour principle, and call upon organized labor to acquaint the Mayor of New York of our opposition to his stand on this great question, and assure him that memory shall not forget this 'solar plexus' blow from one who posed as a friend when he needed our votes, yet proved the enemy when these were secured."

We would remind the engineers, the policemen, and other wage-workers that in last fall's campaign there was one candidate for Mayor and only one—Benjamin Hanford, the candidate of the Social Democratic Party—who was himself a wage-worker, belonging to a bona fide labor organization, who had gone through strikes and lockouts for the eight-hour day, and who stood on a platform that distinctly pledged its candidates to these measures, among others:

"All public work to be done upon a public account, without the intervention of contractors or middlemen.

"Eight hours to constitute a maximum day's work for city employees in all departments; and this maximum to be further reduced as fast as it may become practicable to do so."

We know it is not nice to say, "I told you so," and it is not with any feeling of triumph that we do so, but rather with profound regret that the reminder should be needed and in the hope that next fall a far larger proportion of the workingmen of this city will demand their rights at the ballot-box instead of passing fruitless resolutions after election. One thousand additional votes against the capitalist politicians will do more to command their respect than a million petitions and resolutions of condemnation.

—Socialists apply the taxes just in proportion as they have the power to do so. Taxing the rich to feed, clothe and school the children of the poor; building public libraries, baths, universities, factories, railways, etc., and the mayor of Marseilles, France, when requested to call out the militia to put down the recent strike, appropriated instead, from the city treasury, 100,000 fr. to feed the starving multitude.—The Undercurrent.

BUY UNION LABEL GOODS.

The Worker.

AN ORGAN OF THE SOCIALIST PARTY

(Known in New York State as the Social Democratic Party.)

PUBLISHED WEEKLY

AT 184 WILLIAM STREET, NEW YORK,

By the Socialistic Co-operative Publishing Association.

P. O. BOX 1512.

Telephone Call: 302 John.

TERMS TO SUBSCRIBERS.—

Invariably in advance.

One year	50c.
Six months	25c.
Single copies	2c.

Bundle rates:

Less than 100 copies, per copy	1c.
100 copies	75c.
200 copies	$1.20
300 copies or more, per hundred	50c.

Weekly Bundles:

5 per week, one year	$1.75
10 per week, one year	3.50
25 per week, one year	7.50
50 per week, one year	12.50

Address all business communications, and make money orders, checks and drafts payable to The Worker.

Communications concerning the editorial department of the paper should be addressed to the Editor.

Entered as second-class matter at the New York, N. Y., Post Office on April 6, 1891.

UNION PRINTER

SOCIALIST VOTE IN THE UNITED STATES.

In 1888 (Presidential)	2,068
In 1890	13,331
In 1892 (Presidential)	21,157
In 1894	33,133
In 1896 (Presidential)	36,564
In 1898:
S. L. P.	82,204
S. D. P.	9,545
In 1900 (Presidential):
S. D. P.	96,918
S. L. P.	33,450

THE PARTY'S EMBLEM.

The Citizens' Union is very anxious to have the eight-hour law enforced—that is, to see that no one works less than eight hours a day. Mr. Cutting and his friends do not disturb themselves about city employees who are compelled to do overtime.

THE ELECTION NEWS.

The election news presented on our first page this week is certainly of a sort to encourage those who have been giving all their energies to the movement for years and whose labors are now beginning to bear fruit, as well as to rouse the enthusiasm of younger recruits who, lacking the long training of the class struggle, are sometimes inclined to falter and grow weary.

The election of half a dozen city officials in various states would be a small thing to any other party—to any party that depends on old habit and tradition for its support. To the Socialist Party—the party of the young and of the future, the party that runs counter to all old habit and tradition and advances only by carrying conviction to the minds and awakening hope in the hearts of the wage-workers—to us it is a notable step in advance. We know the history of Socialism in Germany and in other countries of the Old World—how small were its beginning, how slow was its progress for many years, what heroic struggles were made to advance its cause; and we know, too, the power it has now attained.

Two or three aldermen in Battle Creek or Sheboygan or any of the other small cities in which we have succeeded, may not be able to do much. But, even without going to Europe for our precedent, we remember that it was not long after the first Socialist took his seat in the Haverhill City Council till two Socialists took their places in the legislature of Massachusetts. The growth of the vote in Wisconsin and Michigan is not confined to the few city wards we have carried, and the voice of Labor may soon be heard through Socialist representatives in the legislative halls at Madison and Lansing—and other states will soon take their places abreast of these.

Two things are worthy of especial note in this week's election news:

First, that the growth of our party is now most marked in the Western states and in the smaller cities and towns of those states. It has been so confidently asserted that Socialism is a foreign importation, that it could never take root upon American soil, that the newly naturalized immigrants in the big Eastern cities might vote for Socialism for a few years but, as they become Americanized they would soon give it up—this has been so loudly and confidently asserted that it has been hard even to get a hearing among Americans.

The gains made by the Socialist Party in Ohio last fall and in Washington, Wisconsin, Michigan, Illinois, and Iowa this spring, will go far to expose this fallacy. Our greatest gains in recent contests have been made in the very fields where "Americanism" is most rampant—whether among natives or settled immigrants—in the towns and smaller cities of the West.

With this we are well satisfied, for it indicates that Socialism has done what has been declared impossible—it has taken root in American soil. And it will grow.

The second point worthy of remark is in relation to the vote in Chicago. Our comrades in Chicago took a most radical position in this campaign—a position which has seemed to us excessively rigid. "Immediate demands" were strictly tabooed. Socialism in its entirety was directly opposed to capitalism in any form and no time was spent. Our Chicago comrades would say no time was wasted—in showing that, even before the complete victory of Socialism, great benefit would accrue to the working class from the growing strength of the Socialist Party. We are not here criticizing the position taken by the party in Chicago, though we may do so at a future time. We mention the matter only to point out that the campaign carried on there was one which would secure the votes only of those who were very completely convinced of the truth of Socialist principles, only of the thoroughly class-conscious. Moreover, the Socialist Party had there to meet a vigorous "public ownership" movement on the capitalist side, which would appeal strongly to all who merely sympathize with Socialism but do not well understand it.

Whether, in the face of these difficulties, we have made any gain in Chicago over the vote cast at the last election is not yet known. Probably we have lost somewhat in the number of votes. But the numerical loss has certainly not been heavy; and when the quality of the vote is taken into consideration, we must consider that a healthy gain has been made.

We have every reason for rejoicing over this week's news. We have every reason to work more vigorously for the state and congressional elections to be held in November.

It is rather curious that when a lot of policemen, being formally instructed by their superiors to enforce the law, start out to do so, their action is spoken of as a "revolt." The phrase certainly throws a brilliant light on our "good" capitalist administration, which, like the "bad" capitalist administration that preceded it, has much less respect for the Law than for the Profits.

The labor organizations of New York City spent a good part of their time during the last four years in the adoption of resolutions begging the Van Wyck administration to enforce the eight-hour law. Since January 1 they have spent a good part of their time in the adoption of resolutions begging the Low administration to enforce the eight-hour law. The difference between the Tiger and the Goo-goo, from Labor's point of view, is the difference between Tweedle-dee and Tweedle-dum. The experience of the next nineteen months will teach a few thousand more workingmen the wisdom of voting for men of their own class for city officials.

INCENTIVE UNDER CAPITALISM.

As you read the daily record of crime as it is given in the papers, ask yourself the question: What motive caused the crime? Did A kill B for his money? Then private gain was the motive and the private profit system furnished the motive. Did C burn his house for the insurance? You have the same motive furnished by the same system. Did D rob a bank or train? Did E forge a note? Did F burglarize a house? Did G steal a horse? Did Congressman H or Senator I sell out? Did an army contractor furnish embalmed beef? Did some one swear falsely to dodge payment of tax? Did money corrupt the court or jury? Was the witness bribed? Is there a suit over property? Did Miss Blank, 17 years old, marry Old Money-Bags, 70 years old, and put him out of the way? Did a lobby defeat a bill? Do corporations defy the law? In every case you have the same motive—private gain—and the private profit system furnished the motive.

Does J run a saloon? Does K keep a gambling house? Does L run a house of prostitution? They were moved by the same motive furnished by the same system. The system is the CAUSE, the evils are EFFECTS. The effects will continue as long as the cause lasts.

But if you voted for capitalism you voted for all these evils and all other evils not named on this page. You may not like to face the fact, but if you voted a capitalistic ticket you voted for murder, war, embalmed beef, destruction of property, robbery, forgery, tax-dodging, corruption of courts and government, and corporation rule. You voted for the saloon, gambling hell and bawdy house. There is no escape. If you voted for the system of private profits you voted for every evil fruit of that system. The fact that you may occupy the amen corner in the church or fill the pulpit does not shield you. You voted for crime when you voted for capitalism.

Socialists are the only ones who do not vote for crime. They vote to remove the system that causes the crime. Public ownership will remove the incentive that leads to corruption of society and the corruptions will cease under Socialism.—Social Economist.

BUY UNION LABEL GOODS.

BERNSTEIN AND BERNSTEINISM.

By Ernest Untermann.

Ever since the "Voraussetzungen des Sozialismus" ("The Premises of Socialism") I made its appearance, Bernstein has been persistently used by the capitalist press of all countries to aim hard blows at Marx and Engels and to attack their creation, the modern revolutionary labor movement. Coupled to such names as Schaeffle, Sombart, Mallock, George and Spencer, Bernstein's name has been continually flaunted in our faces with the taunt that "the greatest mind" among the German Socialists had completely routed Marx and Engels, demonstrated their utter lack of scientific precision, and started a new era of unrevolutionary Socialism. It was repeatedly rumored that the German Socialist Party was breaking up in consequence of Bernstein's brilliant criticisms, and that only a very small minority, composed of inferior intellects, retained their old revolutionary tendencies. The bourgeois world heaved a deep sigh of relief and the death knell of its implacable enemy was accompanied by a flood of praise for the valiant hero Bernstein, who had at last caused the monster to fall.

Reformers of all shades and advocates of step-at-a-time Socialism eagerly took up the new gospel and triumphantly quoted Bernstein in proof of the assertion that Marx and Engels were thrown on the scrap pile, that the "Communist Manifesto" was completely obsolete, that society would gradually and painlessly grow into Socialism without any catastrophe, without the assistance of a class-conscious proletariat, and even—lo and behold!—without the collaboration of that allegedly negligeable quantity in social evolution, the human mind.

Not one out of a hundred of these new prophets had read either Marx or Engels or Bernstein. The latter's writings are not even accessible in English. Hence the wise men of the West relied on the capitalist press for their knowledge of these Socialists. But what the capitalist press does not know about scientific Socialism would fill considerably more space than what it does know. Therefore the whole "new Socialism" of this country presented the highly ludicrous spectacle of men advertising Socialism by advertising their ignorance of it. No wonder that neither Marx and Engels nor Bernstein received justice at such hands.

It would not be worth our while to notice this phase of the subject, had not the effect of those capitalist expositions of pseudo-socialism been felt even in our own ranks. Lack of thorough theoretical training and other difficulties due to the youth of the movement in this country were mainly responsible for this effect. Encouraged by some advocates of Bernsteinism who misrepresented Bernstein just as some Marxists misinterpreted Marx, a good many comrades began to favor opportunism and showed an inclination to give up the revolutionary demands in preference to immediate reform measures. It is for the benefit of these that I wish to show just what Bernstein said and how he desires to be interpreted.

"It has been stated by certain writers," he says in the preface of his "Voraussetzungen des Sozialismus," "that the logical conclusion from my articles would be the renunciation of the conquest of the political powers by the politically and economically organized proletariat. That is an entirely arbitrary interpretation, the correctness of which I emphatically deny. I have opposed the opinion that a speedy collapse of capitalist society is imminent and that the tactics of the Socialists should take an immediate social catastrophe into account. This opposition I maintain to its full extent."

If we do not believe that the proletariat can take possession of the political power by a sudden stroke of violence, then, he continues in the same preface, "we cannot logically object to the declaration that the Socialist Party, instead of speculating on the grand collapse, will for a long time to come have to devote its work to organizing the proletariat politically, educating it for democracy, and fighting for all reforms that tend to elevate the working class and transform the state democratically. That is what I have said in 'The Problems of Socialism,' and what I still maintain to its full scope."

It seems to me that this is precisely what the "Communist Manifesto," Marx' "Capital," the Erfurt Program of the German Socialist Party, and the modern programs of all Socialist parties have been doing right along. And the great majority of Socialists always have been and still are interpreting those documents in this sense. Hence it is hard to understand why Bernstein should have made so many words in order to say what others have said much better before him. But it is characteristic of the man, his style, and his methods, that he has to explain in his preface what he wants to say in his books; that he is constantly forced to complain of being misinterpreted, and that he is forever defining and redefining his position. Bernstein argues that it is not his fault when the capitalist writers read in his writings what he did not mean. With the same justification I can argue that it is not the fault of Marx and Engels, if he reads in them what they did not mean. Only there is this difference in favor of my arguments: Not only the capitalist press, but a good many Socialists read in Bernstein what he now repudiates; but neither the capitalists nor the Socialists, Bernstein included, were ever in doubt about the aims of Marx and Engels. The enemies of Socialism never praised them, as they did Bernstein, who has not once defended himself against these praises. His articles are written in such ambiguous language that even the most indulgent Socialist reader is often in doubt whether he is reading a friend or a foe. Still, his preface to the "Voraussetzungen des Sozialismus," as well as certain passages of this book and of his articles, some of which I shall quote later, show that Bernstein can think and write very clearly, if he wants to.

According to his own confession in the preface of the "Voraussetzungen," "it is the main purpose of this work to equally strengthen the realistic and the idealistic elements in the Socialist movement by fighting the remains of Utopian thought in the Socialist movement." Surely a praiseworthy undertaking which not only Marx and Engels, but all progressive Socialists have always gladly welcomed. While I give credit for his good intention, I question that he has employed an irreproachable method, and I deny that he has accomplished his aim. Let us see in a few concrete illustrations, how Bernstein carries on his fight.

The opening chapter of the "Voraussetzungen" sets out to investigate just how much of the Marxian doctrine is pure science and applied science. And the result of this investigation depends, of course, entirely on Bernstein's definition of these terms and on the question what part he chooses to classify as pure and how much of it as applied science. Right here we are impressed with the fact that Bernstein accepts every term of Marx and Engels with a mental reservation. But where he defines a term differently from those men, he fails to show cause why we should prefer his definition to theirs. And as we follow him in his investigations, we become more and more aware that he confines himself more to probing single words and haggling about intepretations than to building up new truths. Sometimes, when he seems to be attacking the fundamentals of the Marxian doctrine, he is merely throwing stones at certain intepretations of this doctrine by the latter-day followers of Marx. He builds up a seemingly great argument against Marx on his arbitrary interpretation, but this argument stands and falls with the peculiar interpretation chosen by himself. To speak in terse Western vernacular, he makes a big bluff at smashing the rock of scientific Socialism, but he only succeeds in knocking off a few chips, and sometimes he strikes a spark that hits his own eye.

His critique of the materialistic conception of history is a quibbling over the appropriateness of the term "materialistic." He does not intend to deny the value or correctness of "economic determinism," as Enrico Ferri has called it, but he simply sets out by finding fault with Marx for expressing his conception of history in a "too apodictical" and "deterministic" form. After showing that Engels in his later writings modified the "degree" of the deterministic force of economic conditions,[2] he winds up with these words: "The materialism of philosophy or natural history is deterministic, but the Marxian conception of history is not, for it does not attribute to the economic basis an unconditional influence on the different forms of national life."[3] So that the reader is at a loss to know whether Marx's conception of history is said to be too deterministic or not deterministic enough. And if we remember what the capitalist press has made of such criticisms as that, we cannot help exclaiming:

"Im Gauzen, halte dich an Worte!
Mit Worten laesst sich trefflich streiten,
Mit Worten ein System bereiten!"

In short, confine yourself to words!
Words make a splendid argument,
Words make a system's fundament.

In the section on the Marxian doctrine of capitalist development, Bernstein gives one of the clearest and most concise summaries of these fundamental statements that was ever written. I regret that space forbids the reproduction of the entire summary. But as a proof that he can think and write without ambiguities, I quote the following passage:

"The class struggle between bourgeoisie and proletariat is the contrast in the modern mode of production transferred to human beings. It is the antithesis between the private character of the mode of appropriation and the social character of the mode of production. The means of production are the property of individual capitalists who appropriate the products of labor, but production itself has become a social function, a manufacturing of goods by many laborers, based on a systematic division and organization of labor. And this antithesis involves or is seconded by another—the systematic division and organization of labor in the places of production (shops, factories, yards) are offset by the planless distribution of the products in the market."

His comment on this clear summary of Marx's lucid reasoning incidentally shows the fundamental difference between these two men and their methods. On Marx's side a painstaking historical research and an exhaustive accumulation of facts, leading to the creation of a new science and a new political party; on Bernstein's part the tortuous sophistry based on arbitrary definitions, a conscious dragging in of some facts, and an omission, unconscious or intentional, of others, leading to misconceptions and wrong conclusions and sowing strife and schisms in the creation of the man whose disciple he claims to be. "This part of the Marxian doctrine," he says, "has by no means left the brains of its originators in this perfect form. Better than in the materialistic conception of history it can be shown that this part was gradually developed by modifying some originally peremptory statements and retaining only their main outlines."[5] In proof of his assertion that Marx and Engels partly admitted this, he adds: "In the preface of the new edition of the 'Communist Manifesto,' Marx and Engels say, in regard to the revolutionary program (1872): 'In view of the gigantic strides of modern industry since 1848 and of the accompanying improved and extended organization of the working class; in view of the practical experience gained, first in the February revolution, and then, still more, in the Paris Commune, where the proletariat for the first time held the political power for two whole months, this program has in some details become antiquated. One thing especially was proved by the Commune, viz., that the working class cannot simply lay hold of the ready-made state machinery and wield it for its own purposes.'[6] But five years later in the polemic against Duehring, the cart statement is again made. 'The proletariat seizes the political power and transforms the means of production into state property.'[7]

This criticism shows Engels in the light of an illogical brain and elevates Bernstein accordingly. While accusing Marx and Engels of lack of precision, he himself fails to show how this criticism is adding to the "further development of scientific Socialism" which he set out to accomplish. Let me add that he omitted the following passage from Engels' preface to the "Communist Manifesto:" "However much the state of things may have altered during the last twenty-five years, the general principles laid down in this 'Manifesto' are, on the whole, as correct to-day as ever. Here and there some detail might be improved. The practical application of the principles will depend, as the 'Manifesto' itself states, everywhere and at all times, on the historical conditions for the time being existing and for that reason no special stress is laid on the revolutionary measures proposed at the end of Section 2. That passage would, in many respects, be differently worded to-day." Let me ask furthermore: Is it scientific to accept as authoritative a statement made by Marx in one of his earlier works directly after the Commune, when the impressions of that ghastly butchery were still fresh in his mind; when a passionless conclusion was all the more difficult, because all the facts were not yet known? Bernstein knows very well that he must not accept such a statement and use it as the pivot of an argument. For on page 181 of the "Voraussetzungen" we find him saying: "It would be absurd to go back to the prejudices of former generations about the possibilities of political action, for that would be equivalent to retracing our steps farther than they did. . . . To-day some of their premises no longer exist, and no reasonable man will therefore think of criticising modern political action with the arguments of that epoch." In other words, no reasonable man thinks in the light of the facts now at our disposal, that the Communards could not have wielded the ready-made machinery of state for their purposes, if they had been left alone, and if the whole power of the German victors had not stood behind the Versailles government. No critical observer to-day holds that a majority of the proletariat in our time could not transform the means of production into state property, if the workers gained a political victory at the polls. In spite of this admission, Bernstein criticises Engels with arguments of former generations.

Passing on, we find Bernstein saying about Marx's theory of value that it is "founded on an imaginary collectivity." He sums up (pages 44 and 45) that the theory of value is "only a key . . . which, used by the master hand of Marx, led to exposing and demonstrating the inner machinery of capitalism." That this is not an attack on Marx's theory of value, as the capitalist press would have it, is further confirmed by his endorsement of Engels' statement in the preface of "The Poverty of Philosophy" that "Marx has never based upon this theory his communist conclusions, but rather upon the necessary overthrow, which is developing itself under our eyes every day, of the capitalist system of production."[8]

The chapters on the "Earnings of Modern Society," "Social Classes in Production and Distribution," and "Crises and Possibilities of Adaptation," I cannot and need not discuss here. They require a special treatment and are of interest mainly for specialists in statistics and theoretical economics. They do not touch the revolutionary foundation of the labor movement, and their gist is summed up by Bernstein in his preface. The arguments that "the number of capitalists has not decreased, but increased" and that "the middle classes change their character, but do not disappear from society" have been successfully met by Vandervelde[9] and others. Bernstein's statement that "everywhere in advanced countries we see the class struggle assuming milder forms" is not sustained by facts. The increase of female and child labor; the growth of the frequency and extension of strikes in all countries; the brutal excesses of the ruling classes against the starving and striking proletarians of Italy, Spain, France, Belgium, Germany, and Russia; the outrages committed by the American capitalists at Wardner, Coeur d'Alenes, Chicago, and other places of the United States; the suppression of free speech in Virginia; the disfranchisement of large bodies of citizens in the South; the increase of sweeping injunctions; the discrimination of the postal department against the labor press; and the daily more apparent assumption and overbearing attitude of the possessing class against their "free" fellow citizens who have nothing left but their labor-power, and very little of that—all these are very significant symptoms of an acute progress of the class struggle.

As for the contention that "the necessity and occasion for great political catastrophes becomes less and less urgent, the more the political institutions of modern nations are rendered democratic," we have the history of the United States, France, Switzerland, and the South American republics to prove that capitalism produces the same symptoms regardless of monarchical, autocratic, or democratic constitutions. If there is any distinction, it is this, that democratic constitutions make the workers more independent, less disposed to submit to arbitrary oppression and more prone to resort to violence when their rights are interfered with. If Bernstein will come to the industrially highest developed part of the United States he will soon modify his theory.

Moreover, the reaction of proletarian evolution on the industrial evolution carries the germs of catastrophes with it. It is not so much a matter of choice, as of economic necessity. For it is plain that the socialization of the means of production of the nation that dominates the production of the world will exert the most far-reaching and unexpected influence on the progress of socialization in other countries. In this sense the nationalization, e. g., of the railroads in the United States will be an economic catastrophe for the foreign stockholders and may also lead to political complications with outbursts of violence. And the conquest of the municipal powers of cities like Chicago, New York, or San Francisco by Socialists, or the socialization of a whole state, involves a series of political and economic catastrophes that necessarily lead to disturbances.

Commercial crises are the result of overproduction, underconsumption, concentration of wealth, speculation, crop failures and a multitude of minor causes all natural to the capitalist system. As long as this system lasts, crises will be unavoidable, no matter how extended the word market, no matter how thorough concentration of industries may be. Trusts may finally restrict the possibility of crises on the national field, but they are powerless to avoid the results of capitalist anarchy in the world market. See the present industrial situation in Europe, a result of overproduction and competition of the United States.

It may also be well to ask what would be the outcome, if no class-conscious proletariat were ready to save the day for human progress? Answer, you prophets of opportunism! Echo answers: "Opportunism!" How much longer would it be, then, before the working class would be relieved of its misery and come into its own? And would the opportunistic mode of socialization be accomplished without catastrophes? What else are the expulsion of Spain from the West Indies and the Philippines, the filibustering expedition against China, the South African outrage, the Indian and Russian famines, the loss of the American steel strike, the starvation and degeneration of the "crackers" in the Southern states of the Union, but catastrophes, the forerunners of that great final catastrophe, which even Socialism may not be able to avert? How will opportunism prevent it, when it cannot even accomplish industrial evolution without catastrophes? Let the sphinx answer, if it can.

To sum up: Bernstein's work, "Voraussetzungen des Sozialismus" has not demonstrated the fallacy of the economic conception of history, has not offered a better explanation of the problem of value and surplus value, has not refuted the theory of continual retrogression in the general condition of the working class, and has not proved that the transition from capitalism to Socialism will take place without a catastrophe. It has greatly interfered with our agitation and sown discord in our own ranks. But what good has the book done for Socialism? Only this: It has stimulated us to a closer study of Marx and Engels. In this respect Bernstein has accomplished some good.

(To be continued.)

1 Eduard Bernstein, Die Voraussetzungen des Sozialismus und die Aufgaben der Sozialdemokratie. Stuttgart, 1879. J. H. W. Dietz.

2 See Int. Soc. Rev., Vol. 1, pages 631 and 632.

3 Voraussetzungen des Sozialismus, page 14.

4 Voraussetzungen des Sozialismus, page 14.

5 Voraussetzungen des Sozialismus, page 17.

6 Ibidem, page 18.

7 From Karl Marx, "The Civil War in France," page 15.

8 Karl Marx, "The Poverty of Philosophy," preface, page 6.

9 Vandervelde, "Collectivism and Industrial Evolution."

Our Esteemed Contemporaries (and OTHERS)

Cleveland Citizen.

The census figures for manufacturing have been completed for thirty-three states and territories, says the Denver "News." They show that the average wages for all laborers in the manufacturing industries were 8 per cent. lower in 1900 than in 1890. In those thirty-three states and territories 1,004,590 wage earners received an average of $418.48 cents a year, or $1.39 a day, in 1890. In the same states and territories in 1900, 1,463,365 wage earners received an average of $387.63 each a year, or $1.29 a day. In some of the greatest manufacturing states, where the trusts are most powerful, the decline in wages has been greater. New Jersey's industries paid an average of $2.24 a day in 1890 and only $1.52 a day in 1900, the decline being 32 per cent. On the other hand, the compilation of prices in "Dun's Review" for last January showed that the cost of living now is nearly 7 per cent. higher than 1900, and more than 11 per cent. higher than in 1890. The compilation includes food of all kinds, clothing, metals, etc. The average factory worker, therefore, is receiving 8 per cent. less wages than in 1890, and is spending 4 to 11 per cent. more for cost of living.

The Comrade.

If the prize offered annually under the terms of the will of Nobel, the inventor of dynamite, for the best worker for the advancement of international peace and the suppression of war, might be won by an organization, there can be little doubt that the first recipient ought to be the International Socialist Committee, acting on behalf of the great world-wide Socialist movement. No other organization, whether political or religious, has done or is doing so much in that direction. The Socialist Party of the world alone faces the great economic questions from which wars spring and all its acts are directed toward that goal of international solidarity, which alone can end the terrible curse of militarism beneath which the nations are groaning. Others besides Socialists indeed there are who oppose war. Generally, however, these are content to cry "Peace" when to all else it is apparent that there can be no peace. A Baroness von Suttner may cry "Lay Down your Arms!" a Verestchagin may preach peace by painting war in its most lurid aspects, or a Stead declare "War against War," but until the great underlying economic causes are removed war will continue its ravages. Until then, too, preachers of the gospel of "Peace and Good will among men" will continue to pray for the coming of that kingdom of peace with one breath, and for the triumph of might in unjust and inglorious wars with the next, and the hypocrisy of "Peace Conferences" will be perpetrated in.

—Secretary John Hay has refused to apply to England for passports for a man and his wife who wished to take succor to the Boer reconcentrados to relieve their terrible condition. This is our abominable treatment of the citizens of a republic in their contest with the despotic greed of aristocratic England.—The Warren Herald.

Mosquito Bites

By PETER E. BURROWES

The ulcerated flesh of the Tammany sinner has been very good meat for the Tory saint in New York City; by it he has been enabled to put up a show of denunciatory morals and so to enter the heaven of office. But now the Tiger is picked to the bones—what next? Why, live on the ghost, to be sure. Aristocrat moralists of all denominations live on the dead, since they have no living morality of their own to go on with; therefore the Low Tories are now working the ghost of the Tammany Tiger as profitably as they did the old corpse.

Ghost stories are, in fact, the entire moral assets of our city administration. Bribery and corruption are sitting on the right hand and the left hand of every police captain who may pinch the wrong way, or who may not surrrender all that he pinches to the coffers of the saints.

Not since fire and brimstone fell on Lot's old city, fell there ever such a blistering shower as now is raining from saintly pens in black, black ink upon all that is New Yorkly. If the city had fallen to foreign invaders as the result of fierce battle and years of hatred the language of the conquerors would be about the same as that which now passes for correct reform and upstate Republicanism in re New York.

The peculiar thing about the large-pox of New York is that one part of the city should be so entirely free from it, while the other has it so very, very bad. So far as the picture (in black) of Tammany goes, Messrs. Low and Jerome are not bad artists; but they have only given us half the face and the other half is their own. Now turn around, gentlemen, and let us see your side. Pah! You smell to heaven, all of ye, from Philadelphia to Manila.

Never was mayor of a city more surprised (and never was surprise more surprising) than was our capitalist Mayor Low when, the other day, he learned for the first time that the city's poor are fed only on bread and coffee. The pauper army of waste persons, too old, too timid, or too virtuous to become criminals, are therefore starved on the pauper island called Blackwell's, in mistake for Blackman's. Now it is safe to say that such ignorance on the part of Mayor Low is the most suggestive disclosure of any yet made concerning our money-made and money-making official class. Ask him how the poor of Herculaneum or Pompeii lived and Mr. Low can tell you down to an olive; but New York's poor—well, they are foreigners on an island!

The gods are surely on the side of America. Think what a vast advantage it has been to us, that Boerish war of England—providentially waged as it has been, and supplying the regular food for indignation and indigestion which the newspapers and our good citizens require from day to day. How well that daily story of British brutality and Boerish pugnacity has covered our own tracks since the first shot at Manila. How many episodes of our end of it (the tradesman's conquest of the world) would have passed into inferior history had not England's filled the current page.

Human roguery as well as human wisdom has a tendency to crystallize into set phrases. I notice, for instance, that all the newspapers speak of labor strikes as having been "ordered," while the capitalists' strikes are described in terms like this: "After mature deliberation the company arrived at the conclusion that there is nothing to arbitrate."

How to retain the right of executing somebody for knocking up against the president or any other person in the order of succession, and yet be intelligent, liberal, and a republic, is a problem for the few men who still look upon our national legislative as a place for thinkers rather than Spooners. How to retain the right of slaying, so dear to the hears of money rulers, and yet escape the guilt of executing innocent men and letting guilty women go, is another. How the potent few can find pretext for increasing the number of capital offenses while the conscience and judgment of all normal people call for none is another problem; and there are others which Socialism alone can solve.

Every Monday morning the capitalist press treats its patrons (including us poor Socialists, who have no daily press of our own) with a well prepared picture, perverted to order, of the deliberations of our great labor union meetings. These Sunday meetings appear as menagerie pictures. It is not for love of them, but for hate of them that they are reported. The capitalist instinct well knows where the parliaments of the future are in training.

An old driver one night during the recent heavy snow told me, almost with tears in his eyes, that it was a shame and burden to his mind to know that the horses placed before him by the company hadn't enough to eat. Very few of the horses, he declared, now doing the terribly heavy work on our streets, were fed half decently. The carriage horses, he admitted, were all right; in fact, they may be overfed, said he. This man was no Socialist, and therefore failed to see that he was telling the story of his own class when he told the story of the cart horse.

How many S. P. C. A. philanthropists who look for traces of cruelty under the traces of the horses, ever think of looking deeper—under the skin? How many of them look beyond the fellow who shares the brute's burden, bearing by far the crueller and bigger part of it, to the stable and thence to the counting house of the captain of industry? It is a tragedy; but the most tragic part of it is that it is an endless chain of outraged life, outraged by the class that manipulates the dollar and sets the murder going.

Socialist clubs are good things; but they would be better if they were Socialists' clubs. The conditions of a workman's lot do not, it seems, favor club life. They neither fit the man to enjoy it nor to support it. If we could cultivate the club spirit by assembling more together in each other's houses and thus cultivate more fellowship and less landlord, we would, I think, get the cream of the club without the cost. And the cost? Well, that might go to more propaganda.

A choice coterie of hayseed editors filled up at the Fifth Avenue Hotel the other night. They do it every year under Platt's mahogany, and his wine is good. They are delighted with Governor Odell, whom they describe as "a level-headed business man who has the courage of his convictions." Now I hereby offer a reward to any one in the world who can tell men what is meant by a business man's "convictions." They also demanded a more liberal libel law for Republican editors. Fancy more liberal libel laws for them, after reading their output during a New York campaign, and their screech for anti-anarchist laws that would hang the free speaker on the other side!

Current Literature

All books and pamphlets mentioned in this column may be obtained through the Socialist Literature Company, 184 William street, New York.

The April "Comrade" is one of the best numbers so far issued, both in appearance and contents. A striking cartoon, by J. H. Morier, depicting Carnegie in his double rôle as pirate-philanthropist, inspires the hope that the "Comrade" may be able to develop the Socialist cartoon in America to the point of perfection which it has reached in the radical journals of Paris and Berlin. The paradoxes and mockeries of our highly developed American capitalism offer unending material for the satire of the radical cartoonist and any Socialist artist who can combine startling conception with vivid execution has unlimited opportunity to do a great service to the movement and to his own reputation. From a literary point of view the best things in the magazine are "Fate's Fairer Fame," a fine poem by David Lowe, and a beautiful bit by Gardner C. Teall, entitled "Song of the Poor Tears of Souls." Eugene V. Debs tells the interesting story of his conversion to Socialism; Leonard D. Abbott contributes an article on "Verestchagin, Painter of War," and Caroline H. Pemberton writes entertainingly of "The Cigarmaker's Place in Modern Industry." "Forty Years," the new serial by Tolstoy, and Morris' "News from Nowhere" are continued. Poems by Wm. R. Fox, W. Benessi and J. D. Steell, book reviews, an excellent editorial on the Industrial Peace Conference, and a wealth of illustration add to the interest of the number. C. L.

The subject of Socialism is commanding an increasing amount of attention in periodicals of all sorts. In the "Metaphysical Magazine" for March we note an article by J. Bernstein in reply to Tolstoy's objections to Socialism, as embodied in the great Russian's book, "The Slavery of Our Times." In the March number of the "Menorah," a Jewish magazine in the English language) Rabbi Schindler gives "A Definition of Socialism," which, on the whole, is rather surprisingly fair and intelligent.

New Books.

ANNUAL AMERICAN CATALOGUE. A record under author, title, subject, and series of the books published in the United States in 1901, with a directory of publishers. Publishers' Weekly. Price, $2.00.

EMERSON, Ralph Waldo. History; Nature; Self-reliance; Spiritual Laws; The American Scholar. Doubleday, Page & Co. Cloth, 50 cents.

HALSEY, Francis Whiting. Our Literary Deluge and Some of Its Deeper Waters. Doubleday, Page & Co. Cloth, $1.75.

HUGO, Victor. Notre-Dame de Paris, with introduction and notes by J. R. Wightman. Ginn & Co. Cloth, 85 cents.

JENKINS' Vest Pocket Lexicon. A unique collection of out-of-the-way words. J. B. Lippincott & Co. Limp leather, 60 cents.

MEYER, E. C. Nominating Systems; Direct Primaries versus Conventions in the United States. $2.00.

WILKINS, Mary E. The Portion of Labor. Harper & Bros. $1.50.

Any of the above publications sent postpaid on receipt of price by Socialist Literature Company, 184 William street, New York.

THE UNEMPLOYED.

The existence of the unemployed is so common and familiar as to awaken little or no interest, yet it is one of the most remarkable economic phenomena. That there should be people willing to produce wealth that all desire but denied the opportunity, that men should suffer because there are too many hands willing to produce things they want, is certainly remarkable. The paradoxical and unnecessary nature of the evil has naturally prompted many schemes for betterment. It is not only when men are crowding the streets and moving about in search of employment that there is an unemployed class. There is lack of employment when men have not the opportunity to work to their fullest capacity. If men are confined to employments in which their greatest productive capacity cannot find scope, they are to a certain extent unemployed, although they may not be entirely idle. The belief that the condition arises from overpopulation has been dispelled by the appearance of an unemployed element on the western continent.—Butte People.

—Every half-dollar sent to this paper for a new yearly subscription helps to make it a better paper and to introduce it to other people who have not yet seen it.

PARTY NOTES.

The General Committee of Local New York meets at the Labor Lyceum, 64 E. Fourth street, Saturday evening, April 12. Important business will come up.

Peter E. Burrowes will be the speaker Sunday evening, April 13, at the Socialist Propaganda Club, 102 Court street, Brooklyn. His subject is, "The Revolutionary Message." Admission is free.

On Sunday evening, April 13, Frederick Krafft will speak at the Labor Lyceum, Roff street near Richmond Road, Stapleton, S. I., on the subject, "Is Our Country a Republic?" All are invited.

The 7th, 9th, and 25th A. D. have been reorganized into one branch and will hereafter meet on the first and third Saturday evenings of each month at the home of Comrade Wecklein, 508 West Twenty-sixth street.

At the last meeting of the 6th and 10th A. D., with M. E. Braune in the chair, twenty-five tickets were accepted from the Socialist Band and paid for from the treasury, twelve being immediately sold to members. L. Simon and J. Mintz were chosen delegates to the May Day Conference. W. J. F. Hannemann and H. L. Slobodin were chosen to draw up a circular to readers of The Worker who are not yet party members. Decided to recommend holding of open-air meetings at the northwest corner of Houston and Second avenue, southeast corner of Seventh street and Ave A, and northwest corner of Second Ave and Fourth street, after May 1. Money appropriated to pay C. E. C. for postage on circulars sent to enrolled voters in these districts. L. Simon and M. Tanser were elected as committee to wind up affairs of Commune Festival; prizes left over belonging to the 14th and 16th A. D., will be returned and the districts should apply for them to L. Simon, 231 Sixth street; prizes belonging to the 6th and 10th A. D. to be donated to the Free School Festival. One hundred tickets were accepted for the Damrosch Concert of May 3 and Miss Fox elected to take charge of them. Two dollars was donated to the National Propaganda Fund.

The West Side Agitation Committee held a well attended business meeting on April 1, at 326 W. Thirty-eighth street, with Comrade Brown in the chair. It was voted that the proceeds of the picnic on August 24 go to agitation and daily paper funds. The 11th A. D. reported agitation meeting on April 4. Decided to invite all readers of The Worker and enrolled voters of the S. D. P. of the 13th, 15th, and 17th A. D. to this meeting. It was ordered to buy 1,500 copies of the May Day number of The Worker. All secretaries should send addresses and names of the party members. At the agitation meeting of the 11th A. D., Comrade Spring spoke on the evolution of society and the resulting conflict of the classes, urging the listeners to become members of the S. D. P. and work for the emancipation of Labor. Three membership applications were received and some literature sold.

The 34th and 35th A. D., American Branch, at its last meeting accepted twenty-five tickets from the Socialist Band and fifty for the May Concert. Comrades Spranger, Connelly, and Halpern were elected as a committee to look for the most favorable places for open-air meetings. All Socialists in the Bronx are earnestly requested to join the organization and work actively for the cause.

At the meeting held in Webster Hall last Friday to effect a separate organization of the 34th A. D. was well attended and resulted in the formation of a branch with twelve members and more to come. Another meeting was called for the same place, Webster Hall, One Hundred and Fortieth street and Third avenue, for Friday evening, April 11. Comrade Wood of the C. E. C. called the meeting to order and introduced Randolph Modest, who spoke in a very impressive manner on the necessity of energetic party work. The comrades of the Thirty-fourth intend to follow his good advice.

The 18th and 20th A. D. decided that street meetings should be held at the corners of Avenue A and Sixteenth street, Second avenue and Twenty-second street, and Second avenue and Thirty-third street. Two dollars was appropriated for the May Conference, and an order given for 200 copies of the May Day Number of The Worker. The report of the Financial Secretary showed a balance on hand of $21.39; Comrade Anders was re-elected to this office.

The next meeting of the local branch class of the International School of Social Economy will be Tuesday evening, April 15, at 8 o'clock sharp, at 215 E. Fifty-ninth street. All those who wish to make a systematic study of the principles of Socialism should be present at this meeting when the first lessons will be given out. The selection of Comrade John Spargo as teacher is a sufficient guarantee of the value to be derived from this course.

Comrade Bauch presided in the last meeting of the 20th A. D., Brooklyn, Br. 1. On the announcement of the death of Comrade Otto Hammer, the members rose in his honor. It was decided to take 300 copies of the May Day Number of The Worker for distribution. A committee from the newly organized Young Men's Socialist Club was given the floor and their request for co-operation was readily granted and a committee chosen to lend them the desired assistance. The picnic committee reported having secured Liberty Park for July 13.

Comrade Chris. Turner of Newark has lately been elected Business Agent of the local Bakers' Union, to which he belongs, and has started on the trail of the factory inspectors, who are neglecting the enforcement of the law against basement bakeries. Another comrade, C. E. Wind, has been chosen President of the Jewellers' Union. Comrade McIntosh has been invited to deliver the address at the flag dedication of Beer Drivers' Union No. 148 at Haekerte's Hall, on Saturday evening, April 12. Branch 4, Newark, of the Socialist Party, has taken 25 tickets for the Damrosch May Concert.

Comrade Geiger has opened the street-corner campaign in Lawrence, Mass.

Frank Lee of 34 Andrews street is the agent of The Worker in Lynn, Mass.

New Hampshire Socialists will hold a state convention on April 17 at 404 Central avenue, Dover.

A. B. Intram is the agent of The Worker in Chelsea, Mass. His address is 150 Poplar street.

Comrade August Klenke, now state organizer for Pennsylvania, recently spent three weeks in Pittsburg and succeeded in organizing with 72 members, of which 20 were up to the time of organization followers of DeLeon. He writes that DeLeonism is fast disappearing in Allegheny County, the vote in 1900 of 1,160 becoming 286 in 1902. Locals of the Socialist Party were also organized in Brownsville and Roscoe, the latter being supposedly a stronghold of DeLeonism. Since the splendid showing in the Erie election the comrades there are hustling for a daily paper, which they expect to appear on the first day of July.

E. V. Debs is to address the Western Federation of Miners at their convention in Denver, Colo., May 26.

John C. Chase addressed trade unionists in Bloomington, Dixon, Sterling, and Tolnca, Ill., this week.

State charter issued to Minnesota.

Local charters issued to Provo City, Utah; West Palm Beach, Florida; Muldrow, Indian Territory; Nampa, Idaho.

The agent of The Worker for Newport, Ky., is Chas. Westmeyer, 217 N. Fourth street.

A St. Louis comrade writes: "We have a flourishing club in the South End and are increasing very fast—on an average ten new members at each meeting. Something like 1,500 pieces of literature distributed during March, besides books sold by the club."

Advices from Canada say "movement is making steady progress and in course of another year the results of our efforts will be plainly seen." The Canadian Socialist League will furnish the National Secretary with a list of the American subscribers to their paper ("Citizen and Country) and requests that we reciprocate by sending them names of all Canadian subscribers to the American party press.

FOR THE NATIONAL PROPAGANDA FUND.

An Appeal by the National Committee to All Party Members and Sympathizers.

To the State and Local Organizations of the Socialist Party.

Comrades:—At the meeting of the National Committee in this city on January 24, 25, and 26, 1902, the work that has thus far been accomplished by the national organization and the means of continuing the same were taken under advisement, and after due consideration, we decided to issue this appeal to the state and local organizations and to all of the comrades of our party for such amounts as each may be able to contribute as donations to a National Propaganda Fund.

The purposes of this fund are to enable us to continue the great and far-reaching task already begun of giving the greatest possible degree of general publicity to the aims and methods of the Socialist Party; to extend the influence of our party as a vital political factor, especially in the various economic organizations of the working class; to be the means of communicating advice to and co-operating with comrades in their efforts to agitate, organize, and educate the proletariat; and to assist the local and state organizations and the Socialist press in general in extending the scope of their respective activities.

Official records show that 470,000 pieces of printed supplies, especially intended for party organization, have been used throughout the country since the Unity Convention designed by and supplied through the agency of the National Committee. The National Secretary's report, showing an increase of membership in good standing of 50 per cent. since the Unity Convention, is eloquent evidence of the splendid achievements of our comrades in the townships, cities, counties, states, and territories.

During the past six months the demands of all kinds upon your National Committee from every section of the country have been far beyond our resources, and we have been repeatedly handicapped by lack of funds. At this writing, while the business of the party is increasing heavily from day to day, our financial receipts are not sufficient to enable us to meet the most important requirements of the party work, and it is urgently necessary that the comrades render immediate financial aid to the national organization.

As a means to this end we again call the attention of the comrades to the National Propaganda Fund. Donations to this fund should be sent to the National Secretary, and will be acknowledged weekly in the Socialist press.

LEON GREENBAUM,
National Secretary.
427 Emilie Bldg., St. Louis.

By order National Committee, Socialist Party.

The following amounts have been received for the National Propaganda Fund:

Amount reported to Mar. 29	$200.93
18th and 20th A. D., New York	5.00
Local Newport, Ky.	1.60
Local Norwood, Colo.	1.15
20th A. D., Brooklyn, N. Y.	7.00
23d A. D., New York	2.00
Total received to April 5	$277.08

—Don't complain because capitalist papers lie about Socialism and trade unionism. That is their business. If you don't like it, send in your pledge at once for the establishment of a Socialist Daily.

OFFICIAL

NATIONAL EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE.—Secretary, Leon Greenbaum, Room 427, Emilie Bldg., St. Louis, Mo.

NEW YORK STATE COMMITTEE.—Secretary, Leonard D. Abbott, 64 E. 4th st., New York. Meets every Tuesday at 8 p. m., at above place.

CALIFORNIA STATE COMMITTEE.—Secretary, Thos. Bersford, 609 Stevenson street, San Francisco. Meets on first and third Fridays in the month.

COLORADO STATE COMMITTEE.—Secretary, Chas. La Kamp, P. O. Box 144, Goldfield.

CONNECTICUT STATE COMMITTEE.—A. B. Cornelius, Secretary, Room 8, 746 Chapel street, New Haven. Meets second and fourth Sunday of the month at above place.

ILLINOIS STATE COMMITTEE.—Secretary, Chas. H. Kerr, 56 Fifth avenue, Chicago. Meets first Tuesday of the month, at 1252 Ashland Block.

INDIANA STATE COMMITTEE.—Secretary, Jas. Oneal, 831 N. Third street, Terre Haute.

IOWA STATE COMMITTEE.—Secretary, W. A. Jacobs, 210 E. Sixth street, Davenport.

KANSAS STATE COMMITTEE.—Secretary-Treasurer, W. L. Nixon, Abilene.

KENTUCEY STATE COMMITTEE.—Secretary, A. A. Lewis, 333 Alcott street, Covington.

MAINE STATE COMMITTEE.—Secretary, Fred E. Irish, 322 Riverside street, Woodfords.

MASSACHUSETTS STATE COMMITTEE—Secretary, Squire E. Putney, 4 Belmont Court, Somerville.—State Committee of Massachusetts Socialist Clubs. Secretary, Winfield P. Porter, 614 Winthrop Building, Boston; Organizer, Wm. Mailly, same address; to whom all matters concerning organization should be addressed.

MICHIGAN STATE COMMITTEE.—Secretary, John A. C. Menton, 1315 Saginaw street, Flint.

MINNESOTA STATE COMMITTEE.—Secretary, Geo. H. Lockwood, 125 Nicollet avenue.

MISSOURI STATE COMMITTEE—Secretary-Treasurer, E. Val Putnam, Room 9, 22 N. Fourth street, St. Louis.

NEBRASKA STATE COMMITTEE.—Secretary, George E. Baird, 1804 N. Sixteenth street, Omaha.

NEW JERSEY STATE COMMITTEE.—Secretary, M. M. Goebel, 14 Bridge street, Newark. Meets second Sunday of the month, at 3 p. m., at 124 Market street, Newark, N. J.

NEW HAMPSHIRE STATE COMMITTEE.—Secretary, Louis Arastein, 18 Watson street, Dover.

NORTH DAKOTA STATE COMMITTEE.—Secretary, Arthur Bassett, Fargo.

OHIO STATE COMMITTEE—Secretary, W. G. Critchlow, 26 Pruden Bldg., Dayton. Meets every Monday evening.

OREGON STATE COMMITTEE.—Secretary, W. S. Richards, Albany.

OKLAHOMA TERRITORIAL COMMITTEE.—Secretary-Treasurer, Dr. H. R. Dean, P. O. Box 1116, Oklahoma City.

PENNSYLVANIA STATE COMMITTEE—Secretary, J. Mahlon Barnes, 1922 Arch street; Treasurer, Jos. K. Edelman, 806 W. Cambria street, Philadelphia.

PUERTO RICO TERRITORIAL COMMITTEE.—Secretary, Saturnino Sone, San Juan.

TEXAS STATE COMMITTEE.—Secretary, S. J. Haupton, Bonham.

WASHINGTON STATE COMMITTEE.—Secretary, Geo. W. Scott, 86 Virginia street, Seattle. Meets first Sunday in the month, 3 p. m., at 220 Union street.

WISCONSIN STATE COMMITTEE.—Secretary, E. H. Thomas, 614 State street, Milwaukee.

NOTICE—For technical reasons, no Party announcements can go in that are not in this office by Tuesday, 3 p. m.

NEW YORK.

KINGS COUNTY.

The regular meeting of the County Committee of Local Kings County is hereby called to take place at the rooms of the Socialist Club, Ralph avenue and Fulton street, on Saturday evening, April 12.
WARREN ATKINSON, Organizer.

OHIO.

STATE COMMITTEE'S REPORT.

Following is the statement of the Ohio State Committee for the month of March, 1902.

Receipts—

Local Ashtabula	$3.03
Local Portsmouth	3.05
Local Toledo	15.50
Local Fostoria	1.65
Local Dayton	3.03
Local Cleveland	55.00
Local Freeport	1.70
Local Canton	6.75
Local Bucyrus	2.10
Local Conneaut	1.50
Local Continental	2.25
Local Warren	1.01
Local Springfield	2.01
Local Wauseon	1.80
Local Lexington	.90
Local Chillicothe	.50
H. Zurkuhle, donation	.25
H. H. Seeby, donation	1.00
W. Barringer, one sub. Wil.	.50
Unknown, donation	.25
Unknown, Tiffin	.50
E. H. DeWolfe, literature	.15
A. A. Braun, donation	.25
Henry Ackley, donation	.10
J. S. Case, donation	.25
F. W. Brown, donation	.25
L. L. Lowery, donation	.25
Unknown, donation	.10
M. E. Mills, donation	.25
A. W. Rearick, donation	.25
J. W. Burgoyne, donation	.25
Wm. Kelley, donation	.25
O. N. Dover, literature	.01
J. H. Sims, donation	1.00
M. J. Hynes, profit on sub.	.10
Chas. Litz, donation	.10
D. B. Phillips, donation	.25
A. L. Lilley, donation	.10
Dave Morris, donation	.10
W. M. Ralston, donation	.25
Wm. Jenkins, donation	.25
H. E. Fox, donation	1.50
A. J. Swing, card and dues	.21
literature	.40
Fred J. Reitch, donation	.50
W. H. Kilp, donation	.50
T. C. Randolf, donation	1.00
Theo Reverman, donation	3.00
Theo Reverman, one sub.	.50
Keys and buttons	.35
Gus Haas, one door key	.10
W. B. Slusser, donation	.50
"A Friend," Cleveland	5.00
Door keys and buttons	.50
Balance on hand Mar. 1	9.48
Total	$133.14

Expenditures—

Mont. Co. "Reporter," printing	$12.50
National Committee	25.00
W. G. Critchlow, salary	5.50
Wagner Printing Co., printing	9.50
Max S. Hayes, account	11.00
Postage for the month	19.53
Telegrams for the month	1.11
Express for month	1.35
Local Dayton (loan)	10.00
Rubber stamps (2)	.55
Electro cuts (12)	2.10
Literature	3.00
One office cabinet	2.00
One typewriter key	.10
Three Welsbach lights	1.95
Money orders for month	.16
One subscription to The Worker	.40
Ten keys to office	.50
Moving office furniture	2.00
Office supplies	4.33
Balance on hand April 1	21.34
Total	$133.14

During the month of March three charters were issued to Chillicothe, Lexington, and Tiffin. Tiffin was organized under the old S. L. P., but has never before taken a charter under the Socialist Party.

The business from this office for the month has been 103 packages, 180 postal cards, and 941 letters.

Comrade Strickland has been in the field, speaking constantly from the 9th of March to the present date, and Comrade Swing has been working since Mar. 16.

The following locals made no remittances to the State Committee during the month: Cincinnati, Cuyahoga Falls, Painesville, Bellevue, Youngstown, Massillon, Edgerton, Mansfield, Toronto, Bowling Green.

The reports from the various sections of the state denote increased activity and extensive preparations for the summer agitation tours.

Our two state speakers and organizers are not expected to spend all the time in the organized places, and in fact we wish to place them in unorganized places as often as possible, yet locals can get their services when needed by applying ahead of time. If you want a speaker make application and don't wait for us to write. In connection with this we will arrange tours for the without speakers through the National Secretary. We have now twenty-eight chartered locals in this state, and the prospects are very encouraging for the future. While a few of our locals are in a chaotic state, we feel that we will be able to again revive the interest and get them to working in proper shape again.

Every individual member of our organization should be personally responsible for building up the local to which he belongs and should endeavor in every way possible to make the local successful by soliciting members and propagating our principles.
W. G. CRITCHLOW,
Secretary Ohio State Committee.

PENNSYLVANIA.

STATE COMMITTEE'S REPORT.

The report of the Secretary and Secretary-Treasurer of the State Executive Committee of Pennsylvania for the period of April 17, 1901, to January 10, 1902, is as follows:

FINANCIAL REPORT.

Receipts—

From late State Executive Committee, Erie, cash	$126.53
From locals, for dues and supplies	2.2.98
From locals, for special assessment and Unity Convention	5.45
From locals, for literature	1.47
From Campaign Committee, on account	91.45
By voluntary contributions to campaign fund	93.97
By voluntary contributions from Comrade Wittenberg	23.0)
By voluntary contributions from U. T. Association, Philadelphia	100.00
Advanced by the Secretary-Treasurer	21.48
Total	$694.35

Expenditures—

To Campaign Committee, account of debt from 1900	$125.0)
To National Executive Committee, Springfield	63.00
To National Executive Committee, St. Louis balance due to Springfield	15.40
To National Executive Committee, St. Louis, account	72.00
To Chas. Heydrick and J. Mahlon Barnes, for expenses and services in contest case for party name	12).65
To Secretary Quick, expenses	38.29
To Secretary-Treasurer Edelmann, for expenses	11.78
Printing and literature for agitation	65.93
Stationery and sundry expenses	24.15
Donations to strike funds	37.50
Affidavits for nomination papers	21.50
H. H. Caldwell, wages and expenses of organization trip, Sept. 24 to to Nov. 5, 1901	93.00
Total	$694.3.

Audited and found correct March 2, 1901.
J. MAHLON BARNES,
FRANK H. SLICK,
CHAS. GERHMAN,
Auditors, Local Philadelphia.

Contributions to Campaign Fund made directly to the State Executive Committee—

Aug. 7—19th and 20th Ward Club	$3.0)
Aug. 7—German Branch	15.00
Sept. 28—Ed. Moore	2.50
Dec. —Nuschold	2.50
Oct. 7—Jos. Schneider	1.0)
A. Merkel	.50
Oct. 17—Local Pottstown	4.00
Local Erie	9.00
Leadership state local	3.95
40th Ward Club	5.05
Oct. 22—A. Maikus	5.00
German Branch	10.00
Per list of "Tageblatt"	13.72
Oct. 28—Local New Castle	11.95
John Will, Black Lick	1.15
Nov. 8—John Quick	5.00
Nov. 13—Local Lancaster County	5.00
Nov. 14—Local Reading	5.00
Nov. 15—Per list of "Tageblatt"	1.50
Nov. 24—40th Ward Club	1.00
Dec. 23—A. H. Moore, Williamsp rt	1.00
Dec. 30—J. Frederick, Spring Church	1.00
Total	$90.97

On account of the new party name and national executive office, also for the reason, to induce the members to have their dues paid up regularly at the end of every year and thus to establish gradually a complete and reliable knowledge and control of the membership of the party in the state, the State Executive Committee has decided to use from now on, that is from January, 1902, the new membership card issued by the National Executive Committee in October, 1901, which runs only one year instead of four years.

Furthermore the State Executive Committee takes this opportunity now to appeal most earnestly to all comrades to pay regularly the monthly dues. Nothing can be accomplished without money, and the management of the party, the strength and progress of our organization, the extend and vigor of our propaganda work depends upon the financial support from the members.

From the experience gained during last year's work it appears that there is no proper and reliable organization as yet in this grand state, and our progress and movements are greatly retarded under these conditions.

The best way to overcome this would be the employment of a thoroughly educated and experienced person, familiar with both the trade union and Socialist movement, as an organizer, who should make regular circuits through the state, to advise, stimulate and encourage the existing locals, deliver lectures and gather the outside friends, install and instruct new locals, thus establishing an ever live and intimate connection and intercourse between all parts of the state organization.

This is also the joint answer of all locals upon our question how the State Executive Committee could aid them in their work.

But this can only be accomplished if every member pays his dues, that is, pays his dues every month, thus giving the committee the means to work with. The cast of Socialist votes in the state election of November, 1901, shows that we might get from ten to three locals in about fifty out of the sixty-seven counties, and there should be no efforts spared to canvass the state in the way mentioned above.

Fraternally,
J. W. QUICK,
Secretary.
JOS. EDELMANN,
Secretary-Treasurer.
Philadelphia, Feb. 18, 1902.

NEW JERSEY.

STATE COMMITTEE.

The State Committee, Socialist Party of New Jersey, met Sunday afternoon at Newark, and was called to order by Acting Secretary M. M. Goebel. The counties represented were Hudson, Essex, Bergen, and Passaic, the delegates present being Dobbieaar, Rubinow, Billings, Oswald, Coles, Berthold, and Hueck, with Kearns present as proxy for Gillar. On motion Comrade Coles was elected Chairman and M. M. Goebel Secretary for the session. Under communications Comrade Strobell asked permission to donate bill owing to him by committee to amount of $16.08. Granted. Also communication from Local Camden asking if they had the right to select their delegates to State Committee from any part of the state. Decided they could select any comrades in the state in good standing to represent them. Under report of delegates much encouraging news was reported, it being generally agreed that since the state convention things were getting in better condition as a result of the union accomplished. It was voted to print the platform and constitution in both English and German. It was voted to accept with thanks the offer of Comrade Spargo to give one week's services to New Jersey for simply expenses, and that the secretary make arrangements for the same. Also that efforts be made to place the movement on a better basis in Salem, Trenton, and other points, a special agitation committee, consisting of Comrades Kearns, Billings, and Rubinow to have charge of the same. Then took up the referendum on platform and constitution and officers recently submitted to a vote of the party membership. The platform and constitution being adopted by a practically unanimous vote, the only contest being between a delegate and mass convention, the former method receiving 119 votes to 80 for the latter. For officers the vote was as follows: Treasurer, Joseph Gillar, Jersey City, no opposition, 208 votes; Financial Secretary and Stamp Agent, Edward M. Bohlmer, Fort Lee, no opposition, 207 votes; Secretary, H. R. Kearns, Arlington, 112 votes; Chas. Ufert, Jersey City, 91 votes. Comrades Gillar, Dobbieaar, and Kearns were declared elected. Word being received that Comrade Gillar was seriously ill it was decided as a mark of esteem for the long years of faithful service given by him to the cause not to elect a new treasurer, but to appoint a comrade to serve until the end of the term or until such time as Comrade Gillar was able to resume his duties. Comrade A. P. Firth of Kearney was selected to do act. Committee then adjourned until the second Sunday in May, 3 p. m., at 124 Market street, Newark.

M. M. GOEBEL,
Secretary pro tem.

IMPORTANT NOTICE.

All communications for the State Committee should now be addressed to H. R. Kearns, 426 Devon street, Arlington, N. J.

All applications for due stamps should be addressed to Edward M. Bohlbeaar, Fort Lee, with ten cents for every stamp desired, half of this amount being for national dues and the other half for state dues. In counties having a local or county committee application for stamps should be made to the county or local stamp agent. The financial secretary will furnish no due stamps direct to the branches except in counties having no local or county committee.

All communications for the treasurer until further notice should be sent to Arthur P. Firth, 222 Devon street, Kearney. Special attention is called to the following provisions for raising revenue just adopted by referendum vote:

"Ten per cent. of net proceeds of all party entertainments to be forwarded to the state committee."

Compliance with this provision is of the greatest importance as the money received from dues (after deducting national dues) is so small as to allow of much more than pritning bills, postage, etc., so that this percentage from entertainments is very necessary for propaganda purpose.

Don't write on both sides of paper.

CORRESPONDENCE

Don't send anonymous letters.

For New Hampshire.

Editor of The Worker.

When, in the course of human events, society is confronted by some mighty change the pathfinder is always in demand. Whether he proves himself a conqueror or a savior of society will depend upon his moral as well as his intellectual greatness. As a rule, the interest of his class will govern his political action. Henceforth his government becomes a class-government operated by and for the exclusive benefit of the triumphant class. Industrial peace can come only through the uplifting of our class, the class that produces all wealth, viz., the working class. Our second discovery is like unto the first. As a class we can be uplifted only through the public ownership of all the tools of production and distribution, the road to which lies through the ballot box. "The destruction of the tools of their poverty." Most of the evils which now burden society will pass away with the elevation of our class.

To save those that are pure, to redeem those who have fallen in the battle of life is the holy mission of the working class. Society must be saved as a whole. Hence the necessity of establishing the Co-operative Commonwealth. After centuries of endless toil the workingman has commenced to voice the cry of the impending industrial revolution. "Choose ye this day whom ye will serve."

If ye are with us, come to our headquarters, 464 Central avenue, Dover, N. H., on Fast Day the seventeenth day of April, 1902, and help us place a Socialist ticket in the field. The sooner we get an official standing the faster we shall grow.

LOUIS ARNSTEIN,
State Secretary, Socialist Party.

Letter Box

TO OLD "CLARION" READERS.—Those readers of The Worker who are receiving this paper in fulfillment of "Clarion" subscriptions are requested, in renewing or making changes of address, to mention the fact that they are on the "Clarion" list. Also, all subscribers in changing address should give the old address as well as the new one.

"INDEPENDENT."—The reader who called our attention to an article in the "Independent" will confer a favor by sending in his name and address.

—Only under Socialism can the doctrines of the Christian world have full play in a liberated brotherhood of men.—Father McGrady.

"WHERE WE STAND."

A lecture by John Spargo, editor of THE COMRADE. Originally delivered under the title, "Our Position, Economic, Ethical and Political." Five cents a copy, 10 for 35c., 50 for $1.40, 100 for $2.50, postpaid. Order now.

ILLUSTRATED AGITATION LEAFLETS.

Published by the COMRADE PUB. CO., 11 Cooper Square, N. Y. "The Worker with the Capitalist Mind," by Herbert N. Casson, fifth edition; "Dialogue between the Machine Gun and the Mauser," by Frank Stuhlman; "A Lesson from the Donkeys," by John Spargo. You should use these leaflets for distribution, as they are sure to be read by everybody who gets them. Price, 10 cents a bundle of 50, one kind or assorted.

SPECIAL.—Upon receipts of 50 cents in one-cent stamps we will send THE COMRADE, an illustrated Socialist Monthly, for three months, 100 illustrated leaflets, and a copy of "WhereWe Stand."

THE COMRADE PUBLISHING CO., 11 Cooper Square, New York (373 Bowery.)

ORDER BLANK FOR THE WORKER'S GREAT MAY DAY NUMBER.

THE WORKER,
184 William Street, New York.

Enclosed find $..... for which send me.....copies of your issue of May 1st.

Name .....

Address .....

.. AN OFFER ..

"Railroading in the United States," by Ben Hanford ..... 5 cents.
"The Clerical Capitalist," by Rev. Father McGrady ..... 10 cents.
"Why Workingmen Should Be Socialists," by H. Gaylord Wilshire 2 cents.
"Labor Politics and Socialist Politics," by Algernon Lee ..... 3 cents.
"The Proletariat," by Karl Kautsky ..... 5 cents.
"The Class War in Idaho," by Job Harriman. Third Edition. ..5 cents.
"The Communist Manifesto," by Karl Marx and Frederick Engels.10 cents.
"The Development of Socialism, from Utopia to Science," by F. Engels ..... 5 cents.
A Debate on the Tactics of the S. T. & L. A. Toward Trade Unions between Daniel DeLeon and Job Harriman ..... 5 cents.
"The Attitude of the Socialists Toward the Trade Unions," by N. I. Stone ..... 5 cents.
"The Capitalist Class," by Karl Kautsky ..... 5 cents.
"Now and Then," a Socialist play by Frederick Krafft .....10 cents.
On receipt of only 40 cents above 12 books will be mailed postpaid.

SOCIALIST LITERATURE COMPANY,
184 WILLIAM STREET, NEW YORK.
Largest assortment of Literature on the Labor Question. Catalogue Free.

PARTY BUTTONS.

We now manufacture three different sizes in one-half, seven-eighths, and one and a half inch diameter. Either Socialist Party, Social Democratic Party or the one-half inch size simply with Arm and Torch Emblem.

CASH MUST ACCOMPANY ALL ORDERS.

1 Button . .	5 Cents.
12 Buttons . .	25 Cents.
25 Buttons . .	50 Cents.
100 Buttons . .	$1.75

SOCIALIST LITERATURE COMPANY,
184 WILLIAM ST., NEW YORK.

R·I·PANS

I did not know what it was to eat a good breakfast in the morning. By noon I would become so sick and have great pain and discomfort. I got so that I would do without eating as long as I could, so as to avoid the misery. At night I could not sleep. The doctors said I had nervous indigestion. I heard much about Ripans Tabules and at last I thought I would try them. I had only taken one box when I obtained relief.

At druggists.

The Five-Cent Package is enough for an ordinary occasion. The family bottle, 60 cents, contains a supply for a year.

LAWYERS.

MORRIS HILLQUIT,
Attorney-at-Law,
320 Broadway. Telephone 2876 Franklin

L. D. MAYES, LAWYER,
245 Broadway, New York City, Borough of Manhattan. Practice in all Courts. Consultation free

H. B. SALISBURY,
COUNSELLOR-AT-LAW
309 Broadway, Room 903. 50 Union Square.

Simon Sultan,
Counsellor at Law.
87 NASSAU, corner FULTON STREET,
(FULTON BUILDING.)
Residence 110 West 120th st., New York.

SPECIAL NOTICES.

Under this heading any matter of interest to the Social Democratic Party (Socialist Party) will be inserted at FIVE CENTS PER LINE EACH INSERTION. Six words about equal one line. Cash must accompany advertisement IN EVERY INSTANCE.

DON'T WEAR YOURSELF OUT TRYING TO SPREAD SOCIALISM, but take hold of things by the smoothest handle. New ideas and labor-saving devices in propaganda material. Samples for 2c. stamp. FRANK OHNEMUS, 196 Park Place, Long Island City, New York.

NO TRUSTS! NO PRISONS! NO SWEAT SHOPS!

Shirts, Waists, Collars or Cuffs

BEARING THIS LABEL ARE O. K.

INTERN'L SHIRT WAIST & LAUNDRY WORKERS' UNION Registered

This label is sewed on Shirts and Waists just below the tab or bosom and is stamped in miniature on Collars and Cuffs

No Chinese exclusion act needed when up-to-date Union Laundries use this Label to stamp Price List Slips on your laundry packages. Ask for it.

EGYPT...

Southern Illinois. A real Garden of Eden. No place in the United States produces a greater variety of finer fruits, vegetables and grains, or more of them. Splendid climate and water. Cheap lands. THE FARMERS' INSTITUTE, Carbondale, Ill., will tell you all about it. Four months for ten cents. Sample copy for two-cent stamp.

"Railroading in the United States."

BY BEN HANFORD.

PRICE, FIVE CENTS.

40 Copies $1.00
1000 " 25.00

Sent on receipt of price.

SOCIALIST LITERATURE COMPANY,
184 William Street, New York.

PUBLICATIONS.

CO-OPERATE IN PUBLISHING SOCIALIST BOOKS

That is the way to get them at actual cost. 20 cents or $2 a month five months makes you joint-owner in our business with the right to buy books at the prices in second column, postage included. Others have to pay prices in first column.

The American Farmer. Simons. Cloth	.50	.30
Collectivism. Vanderveide. Cloth	.50	.30
Collectivism. Vanderveide. Paper	.25	.13
Liebknecht's Life of Marx. Cloth	.50	.30
Last Days of Rudolf Commonwealth. Cloth	.50	.30
Socialism and Family. Cloth	.50	.30
Love's Coming-of-Age. Edward Carpenter	1.00	.60
Socialism Utopian and Scientific. Engels. Cloth	.30	.18
Socialism Utopian and Scientific. Engels. Paper	.10	.05
Socialism. Wilhelm Liebknecht. Paper	.10	.05
Life of Engels. Kautsky. Paper	.10	.05
Pocket Library of Socialism. Per copy	.05	.03
Pocket Library of Socialism. Per 100, assorted	2.25	1.00
International Socialist Review. Per copy	.10	.05
International Socialist Review. Per year	1.00	.50

Our co-operative plan is fully explained in a booklet entitled "How Socialist Literature is Published," mailed free on application. Locals Chicago, Philadelphia, Erie, Minneapolis, Davenport and many others are already with us.

CHARLES H. KERR & CO. (Co-operative)
56 Fifth Avenue, CHICAGO.

Just Received from England

A large importation of

"CAPITAL," by Karl Marx.

Only authorized edition, translated by Samuel Moore and Edward Aveling, and edited by Frederick Engels.

CONTENTS:

Prefaces by the author and editor.
Part I.—Commodities and Money.
II.—The Transformation of Money into Capital.
III.—The Production of Absolute Surplus Value.
IV.—Production of Relative Surplus Value.
V.—Production of Absolute and of Relative Surplus Value.
VI.—Wages.
VII.—The Accumulation of Capital.
VIII.—The So-called Primitive Accumulation.

Library Edition, cloth, $2.50, postpaid.

SOCIALIST LITERATURE CO.,
184 William Street, N. Y.

EMILE ZOLA'S

POWERFUL REALISTIC NOVELS

Paper covered, neatly printed, 25 cents each; postage, 5 cents extra each volume.

"The Ladies' Paradise," "Money," "Abbe Mouret's Transgression," "Human Brutes," "A Love Episode," "Nana's Brother, Germinal," "Rush for the Spoil," "Therese Raquin," "The Joys of Life," "The Fortune of the Rougons," "The Conquest of Plassans," "Pot Bouille" (Piping Hot), "L'Assommoir," "Nana's Daughter," "A Dream of Love."

Any volume sent postpaid on receipt of 30 cents.

Send for catalogue of Socialist publications, sent gratis to any address.

SOCIALIST LITERATURE CO.,
184 William Street, N. Y.

L'UNION DES TRAVAILLEURS,

730 Washington Ave., Charleroi, Pa.

A weekly advocate of Trade Unionism and Socialism. Should be read by every French speaking worker.

Send for sample copies.

Subscription, $1.00 per year.

SUBSCRIBE FOR THE REFERENDUM,
the only English Socialist paper in Minnesota. Published at Faribault, Rice County. Fearless, bright, spicy; 75 cents a year, in advance; 35 cents for 6 months. By E. B. FORD.

THE DECATUR LABOR WORLD

Decatur, Ill.

AN UP-TO-DATE LABOR PAPER.

Subscription $1 per year, in advance.

HAS A WEEKLY CIRCULATION OF 3,500 COPIES.

Advertising rates quoted on application. Address:

THE DECATUR LABOR WORLD,
231 N. Main St., Decatur, Ill.

WHO WILL DO YOUR LAUNDRY WORK?

I. X. L. LAUNDRY, GUSTAV LEIST, 241 East 42d St.

Dr. C. L. FURMAN,
DENTIST,
121 Schermerhorn street, Brooklyn.

COMRADES, PATRONIZE . . .
FRED. SONNENSCHEIN,
UNION BARBER SHOP
84 E. 4th Street, New York.

LABOR ORGANIZATIONS.

Standing advertisements of Trade Unions and other societies will be inserted under this heading at the rate of $1 per line per annum.

CIGARMAKERS' PROGRESSIVE INTERNATIONAL UNION No. 90. Office and Employment Bureau: 64 East 4th Street, —District I. (Bohemian),

WAGES REDUCED.

Census Bureau Gives Instructive Figures on Tobacco Industry.

How Workers and Capitalists Divided Product in 1900 and 1890—Average Full-Time Yearly Wages Fell from $362 to $350—Average Product Per Employee Increased.

The United States Census Bureau has just issued a bulletin giving comparative statistics for the tobacco industry of the country for 1890 and 1900. The figures show that the average net product per employee was considerably increased in the period of ten years; that in the division of the product between the employees and the capitalists, the proportion going to profits was increased and the proportion going to wages correspondingly reduced; and, finally, that the workers received, not only a smaller share of the value of their product, but actually lower average money wages in 1900 than in 1890.

The statistics are given below for the two years. The figures for number of establishments, total capital, number of employees, total wages, cost of materials, miscellaneous expenses, and gross value of product are taken directly from the bulletin. The net product for each year is ascertained by deducting cost of material and miscellaneous expenses from gross product. Then, deducting total wages from net product, we have left the total profit.

IN 1900.
Number of establishments	11,643
Total capital	$96,004,753
Number of employees	122,775
Total wages	44,550,735
Cost of materials	92,304,317
Miscellaneous expenses	37,561,681
Gross product	211,746,623
Net product	81,880,625
Total profits	$37,329,890
IN 1890.
Number of establishments	15,252
Total capital	$124,089,871
Number of employees	142,275
Total wages	49,852,481
Cost of materials	107,182,656
Miscellaneous expenses	79,495,422
Gross product	283,076,540
Net product	96,398,468
Total profits	46,545,984

In the ten years the number of establishments was increased 29.1 per cent.; the total capital, 11.6 per cent.; the number of employees, 15.9 per cent.; the total wages, 11.9 per cent.; the cost of materials, 16.1 per cent.; miscellaneous expenses, 111.6 per cent.; gross value of product, 33.7 per cent.; net value of product, 17.7 per cent.; total profits, 24.7 per cent.

Analysis of the Figures.

The average net product per employee in 1890, ascertained by dividing the total net product by the number of employees, was $666.92. In 1900 the average net product per employee was $677.55.

The average yearly wages in 1890 amounted to $362.86. In 1900 the average of wages was but $350.40.

The average profit, then, produced for the capitalists by each employee, in 1890, was $304.06. In 1900 the average employee gave the capitalists $327.15.

In 1890 the employees received back 54 per cent. of their net product in the form of wages, while 46 per cent. remained as profit for the capitalists. In 1900 the employees got but 52 per cent. of their product and gave 48 per cent. to their masters.

Taking the figures just as they stand, on the authority of the Census Bureau, therefore, it appears that the result of ten years' of industrial progress in this industry has been an increase in the capitalists' share of Labor's product and a positive reduction of the wages of the employees.

The figures as given do not, however, indicate the full extent of the exploitation in either year, and in each case they overstate the actual wages of the employees. The figures have to be qualified in two respects.

Facts Understated.

First: We have accepted the item of miscellaneous expenses, in each case, as being, bona fide, a part of the expenses of production. This item, however, in all such statistics, covers a multitude of sins. It includes such items of cost of fuel, power, lighting, repairs, insurance, etc., and these legitimately belong under expenses of production. But it also includes an unknown proportion of other items—as rent, extensions of plant, interest on loans and in some cases on bonds, exorbitant salaries to officials, etc.—which really belong under the head of profit. The extraordinary increase in "miscellaneous expenses," as shown in the tables, is undoubtedly made up chiefly of such items as these.

It is impossible to say how great a correction should be made on this account. But it is certainly well within the limits of probability to assume that one-fifth of the amount assigned to "miscellaneous expenses" for 1890 and one-third of that given for 1900 should be added to the net product and to the profit totals.

If this be done the average product per employee in 1890 will be fixed at about $728 and in 1900 at about $864; and the profit per employee will then be, in 1890, about $365, and in 1900, about $514. In other words, if this estimate be a correct one, the product of labor in the tobacco industry was about evenly divided in 1890 between capitalists and workers; but in 1900, out of every dollar of value created by the employees, about 41 cents came back to them in the form of wages and about 59 cents went to the capitalists directly or indirectly concerned, in the form of interest, dividends, rentals, exorbitant salaries and fees, "pickings and stealings," and extension and improvement of plant.

Second: The figures do not correctly represent the average wages of the workers actually engaged in the industry. The figures given for number of employees, 122,775 and 142,275, indicate the average number employed during the two years respectively. As comparatively few had steady employment, however, the actual number of different employees was considerably greater than the average number employed at any one time. In other words, the statistics make no allowance for loss of time, but assume a full year's work for each employee. If the average working time of employees was ten months, then the average actual wages received by the employees were one-sixth less than those given above.

The figures given, representing full time yearly wages, show an average of a little over $1.16 a day in 1890 and a little over $1.12 a day in 1900. This correction, of course, applies to both years, and does not affect what has been said of the divison of the product and of the results of ten years' industrial progress.

Concentration of Ownership.

The statistics give no information as to the concentration of ownership during the ten years. The number of shops and factories was largely increased and the average shop of 1900 was somewhat smaller than that of 1890. But it is a matter of common knowledge that while in 1890 the factories, large and small, were generally owned by independent companies or individual proprietors, at the present time practically all the large factories and many of the small ones belong to the Tobacco Trust, and that the small shops which still remain independent are obliged to buy and sell at terms dictated almost absolutely by the Trust.

GOOD YEAR FOR TOBACCO TRUST.

The statement of the American Tobacco Company, or Tobacco Trust, for the year 1901, indicates that its affairs are in a highly satisfactory condition—satisfactory to the few big stockholders, at least.

The statement shows the following items of profit for the capitalists concerned, in various forms:

Dividends, pref. stock	$1,120,000
Dividends, common	3,270,000
Interest on bonds	180,899
Total	$4,570,899

Besides this, the company added to its assets, out of the surplus product of its employees' labor during the year, the amount of $11,250,359—in real estate, materials and supplies, stock of other corporations, cash, etc.

This brings the year's legal robbery of Labor by this one trust up to $15,821,249. To this must be added an unknown amount paid in rentals and other forms that figure on the books of the company as expenses, but are a part of the unearned income of the capitalist class. And then there must be added the dividends and interest paid to the outside stockholders and bondholders of the numerous subsidiary corporations controlled by the Trust. The Trust holds stock in foreign corporations to the amount of $10,000,000 and in other domestic companies to the amount of $26,000,000. Its total assets are over $91,000,000.

Altogether the showing is one that may well cheer the hearts of the great tobacco magnates, who are now preparing to conquer the whole European field. If the employees, whose wages are slowly but steadily being reduced, do not find the conditions so pleasing, that is a good reason why they should vote for Socialism in order to put an end to the present system of "dividing up."

PROGRESS IN THE UNIONS.

The American Flint Glass Workers' Union is taking a referendum vote and will undoubtedly adopt a political platform in favor of working for the co-operative commonwealth. "Numerous injunctions issued against labor unions," the preamble declares, "have become in the hands of the judiciary an instrument by which the capitalist seeks to destroy the civil and political rights of the workingman. The fact is our judiciary is but a servile tool in the hands of the capitalists. The workingmen can most effectively act as a class in their struggle against the collective powers of capitalism by constituting themselves into a political party distinct from and opposed to all parties formed by the capitalistic class. Formerly the tools of production were simple and owned by the individual workers. To-day the machine is owned by the capitalists. This ownership enables the capitalists to keep the workingmen dependent upon them. The weapon used by the capitalists is the non-representative body of legislators and lawmakers who are elected by the vote of the wage earners. They often use the courts to enforce their ends and call on the military. The wage earner must force said weapons from the hands of the oppressing class."

MACHINISTS IN DENVER.

To All Members of the I. A. M.—Greeting:

Brothers:—In response to numerous inquiries about work in Denver, we wish to state that strouble still exists, and that all machinists are requested to circulate and spread the fact as much as possible in order that we may have some show for the men who have been, and are still, making the fight for fair conditions, by all means stay away from Denver, for this struggle means life or death to our association here.

The history of this fight may be summed up as follows:

On May 29, 1901, the machinists' demand was placed before the manufacturers and in every instance but one was accepted, thereby averting any trouble at that time. On Oct. 4, 1901, the manufacturers posted notices abrogating any agreement that they had entered into, and said we must work sixty hours per week and they also posted a "Declaration of Principles." We appointed shop committees to work with our employers, but they were either discharged or turned down. Our next move was to get a committee from the Denver Trades and Labor Assembly who were also turned down. We still thought that a committee from the Colorado State Federation might make some adjustment, and placed the matter in the hands of the president of that body, but to no avail. We then appealed to the State Board of Arbitration, and agreed to abide by their decision. The employers refused to appear, and after hearing our case gave the decision in our favor on Oct. 28, 1901. On Oct. 29, 1901, one hundred and fifty men laid down their tools and walked out to maintain the principles involved. Now, after five months of the struggle we find that men still continue to come who never heard of trouble in this city, so in order to warn all union men we wish to place this statement in the hands of every secretary in the United States, that it may be thoroughly understood.

Stay away from Denver, brothers. Use your influence to prevent others from coming. We have made settlements with one large and two small shops on the fifty-five hour basis, but they still discriminate against our members, making life almost unbearable, and putting us in a positon where further action is necessary should we desire to enjoy the benefits our efforts have entitled us to.

Assuring you that we will appreciate any action you may take in this matter we are,

Fraternally yours,

J. W. BROWN,
Recording Secretary.
NICOLAS LUDWIG,
President.
Denver Lodge No. 47, I. A. of M.

BREWERS' BALL.

Ale and Porter Brewers' Union No. 21 hold their seventeenth annual ball Saturday evening, April 12, at Wendel's Assembly Rooms, 344 W. 45th Str. Admission is 25 cents.

THE MAY CONCERT

Greatest Affair of the Sort in the Party's History.

The Artistic Side Is Assured, and Financial Success Depends on Efforts of Comrades—For the English Socialist Daily.

Preparations are nearly completed for the great Damrosch concert to be held in the Grand Central Palace on Sunday afternoon, May 4, for the benefit of the Socialist Daily Fund. This will undoubtedly be the finest affair of the sort ever held by the party in this country. The Damrosch Symphony Orchestra is known to music lovers on both sides of the ocean, and a well chosen program presented by this body in conjunction with a chorus of six hundred voices from the People's Choral Union will be a treat to be long remembered by those who hear it.

Another attraction of the afternoon will be the three living pictures—"The First of May," "Struggle," and "Victory"—which will be put upon the stage with the utmost care.

The artistic quality of the entertainment should assure its financial success and will certainly do so if the members and sympathizers of the party do their part beforehand. The distribution of tickets is a large task and all who can should give their assistance. The tickets, which cost only 25 cents, can easily be sold if they are brought before the people.

"May Flowers."

The souvenir program of the concert, "May Flowers," also deserves the attention of all comrades. It will be a handsome journal, containing the words of the songs, reproduction of the living pictures, and special articles and other attractive matter. This journal is to be sold at 5 cents a copy—in quantities of twenty-five or more, at 3 cents. Each assembly district in Greater New York and each neighboring local can easily dispose of fifty copies, and friends of the movement who live at too great a distance to attend the concert can at least share in the work by buying the "May Flowers."

The Financial Secretary of the Arrangements Committee, H. C. Bowerman, may be addressed at the W. E. A. Club House, 206 E. Eighty-sixth street, and from him both tickets and journals are to be obtained. Cash should accompany orders for the journal and settlement for the tickets should, where possible, be made by Saturday, May 3.

Comrades belonging to organizations which decide to take copies of the journal should see that the committee is informed of the number desired by Saturday, April 19, so that the committee may estimate the number to be printed.

All comrades who can assist in the work are requested to come every Sunday at 3 p. m. to the Club House in Eighty-sixth street, where the committee meets.

Remember, comrades, this is for the English Socialist Daily. It is worth all your efforts to make it a complete success.

Amounts Pledged.

Following is a statement of amounts pledged for the Socialist Daily Fund up to April 7:

Previously acknowledged	$3,117.50
Chas. Le Grand, Stapleton	5.00
C. T. Edkins, Greensburg, Ind.	12.00
"The Collectivist Society," New York	100.00
P. Frank, Portsmouth, O.	3.00
A. Semons	12.00
Dr. I. M. Rubinow	25.00
Chas. R. Bach, Rochester	20.00
Eugene Meves	10.00
H. R. Kearnes, Arlington, N. J.	36.00
Total	$3,340.50

Cash Contributions.

The following statement of cash received includes payments on pledges as well as a number of direct cash donations:

Previously acknowledged	$435.50
R. Volkmar, Woodside, L. I.	1.00
David Rubinow, Newark	5.00
J. Solomon, Newark	1.00
P. Frank, Portsmouth, O.	.25
Morris Hillquit	20.00
Gerald Tushak	2.00
Oswald Jensen	5.00
Chas. Gackenheimer	5.00
Otto Naar, Northport, L. I.	10.00
M. Levin	5.00
M. B.	1.00
Dr. I. M. Rubinow	2.00
Otto Christoph, Buffalo	1.00
Eugene Meves	1.00
Wm. Sykes, Worcester, Mass.	5.00
John F. Handlon	2.00
Walter Peate, Philadelphia	1.00
Total	$502.75

Special Acknowledgment.

The following additional sums have been received for the Socialist Daily Fund at the office of The Worker:

H. Werson	$2.50
E. Johnson, Brooklyn	.50
H. Brandt, Boston, Mass.	.50
Jos. Hannigan, New Rochelle, New York	.50
Martin Denni, City	1.00
Wm. Gottschalk, W. Hoboken, N. J.	5.00
M. Philpowsky, College Point	.50
E. Hallweg, College Point	.50
Chas. Meyer, Brooklyn	1.00
P. Werner, City	1.00
John Sullivan, Westerly, R. I.	.50
Louis Roach, 523 E. 82d street	1.00
H. Pick, city	1.00
Alex Fraser, city	25.00
S. D. Frauen Verein, Br. 9, East New York	5.00
John Spenger, on pledge	1.00
W. Droste, Brooklyn	1.00
Total	$47.50

Notice to Contributors.

Pledges should be sent and checks and money orders made payable to the Socialist Daily Finance Committee, 184 William street, New York. Communications may be addressed to Henry L. Slobodin, 60 Second avenue, New York.

The Worker will contain, each week, a list of contributions received up to Monday preceding the date of issue.

If any contribution sent is not promptly acknowledged the sender should at once inform the Committee, that the matter may be investigated and set right.

Those who have made pledges should remember to send in the monthly instalments promptly, saving the trouble and expense of notifying them. Let each one feel his personal responsibility for the work we have undertaken and his power to hasten the coming of the Socialist Daily.

MAY DAY CONFERENCE.

The second meeting of the May Day Parade Conference was held on Saturday, April 4, at the Labor Lyceum and was well attended. Delegate Ramm was in the chair. The minutes of the previous meeting were accepted as read.

Credentials of the following organizations were handed in and the delegates seated:

Social Democratic Party, 8th, 18th, 20th, 19th, 23d, and 34th-35th, Br. 2;
Central Federated Union;
Socialist Liedertafel for new delegates;
Arcade Workers; Ale and Porter Brewers' Union No. 31; Cloth Spongers', Refinishers', and Helpers' Union; Musicians' Mutual Benefit Association, Local 41, American Federation of Musicians; Turn Verein Vorwaerts of New York.

Committees reported on the work done, and from reports it appears that, in spite of all the trouble this year's conference has had to contend with, the affair will be a success.

Final action as to whether we shall have a parade, and when and where, was laid over to the next meeting, which will be held on Saturday, April 12, at 8 p. m., at the Labor Lyceum, 64 E. Fourth street. All organizations which have not sent delegates as yet should do so at once, and have their delegates at the next meeting.

J. GERBER, Secretary.

STATE COMMITTEE.

At last week's meeting of the New York State Committee there were present Abbott, Assel, Jablinowski, Reich, and Slobodin; absent, Bub, Neppel, and Phillips. Reich was in the chair.

A communication was received from Comrade Fischler, asking that the State Committee's leaflet in reply to Bishop Quigley be translated and printed in Polish, as also the party constitution. On motion, it was so ordered.

Locals Dobbs Ferry, Rome, Rochester, Ticonderoga, and Newburg sent in money for supplies, literature, and due stamps. Local Newburgh asked for a speaker, and Comrade Spring was instructed to go there. Local Corning reported arranging a meeting for April 8, with Comrade Sieverman of Rochester as speaker.

The Secretary was instructed to ask the Secretary of State for a copy of the bill amending the election law introduced by Representative Barnes.

Comrade Reich was requested to furnish Organizer Spring with lists of local trade unions in the state.

State Organizer Spring will start on an extended tour of the state in a few days, to agitate for the party and build up the organization throughout the state. The State Committee needs funds to provide for this work, as its ordinary revenues are not sufficient for the purpose. Subscription blanks have been sent out and comrades are requested to raise as much as possible, so that the movement in this state may be pushed forward energetically from now till Election Day. Send in contributions promptly to Emil Neppel, 288 W. One Hundred and Forty-second street, New York City.

LOCAL KINGS COUNTY.

Borough meeting of Local Kings County, S. D. P., was held on April 5, at the Brooklyn Labor Lyceum, with Comrade Warren Atkinson in the chair.

It was decided on motion that the Division Organizers be instructed to conduct the next campaign under the auspices of the General Committee representing this local.

Division organizers were instructed to call a division meeting within thirty days, the purpose of the meeting being: First, to plan locations for outdoor meetings; second, to ascertain who will call upon the registered Socialist voters to enlist them as party members, secure subscriptions, etc.; third, to enlist the assistance of the women workers; fourth, to adopt plans for raising funds.

On motion it was decided to issue a circular letter, stating the purpose of the party and inviting membership, to the workingmen of the city. This action was by amendment referred to the various divisions for their consideration.

Comrade Slobodin presented the plans for the daily paper and the present status of the work toward that object.

Comrade Spring addressed the meeting upon the subject of local organization and his plans for his work as state organizer.

IN ROCHESTER.

At the last meeting of the May Day Conference Committee it was decided to have Comrade Father T. McGrady of Kentucky deliver the address at Germania Hall on May 1. All delegates from unions and Social Democratic branches should attend the conference every Wednesday evening, at Shoemaker's Hall, 17 Andrews street, as there is still much work to be done.

Comrade Frank A. Sieverman will address the Labor Lyceum in City Hall on Sunday afternoon, April 13, on the subject, 'Critics Criticized." All readers of The Worker should attend and bring their friends, as this will undoubtedly be one of the most interesting talks of the spring program.

Comrade Wm. T. Brown has large audiences every Sunday night at Plymouth Church, where he is giving his congregation clear-cut talks on Socialism.

The English Branch has decided to secure permanent headquarters and reading rooms on the principal street, Main street, which shows that the comrades in Rochester are beginning to wake up.

M. J. C.

—Socialists need waste no time booming public ownership under capitalism. We will soon keep the capitalists busy doing that, in the hope of heading off Socialism.—Saginaw Exponent.

CONFUSION IN UTAH.

Organizer Boomer Comes in Conflict with the Middle Class Muddleheads.

Organizer George E. Boomer is having anything but an easy time in reorganizing the Socialist Party in Utah. His stand for uncompromising class-consciousness has met with opposition from the middle-class confusionists and opportunists, and their acts and statements have caused the party local in Salt Lake City to adopt the following resolutions in his support:

"Whereas, Certain persons calling themselves Socialists have seen fit to issue and publish by means of the capitalist press and private letters certain statements reflecting upon both the members of Salt Lake local and Comrade George E. Boomer, National Organizer for Utah; and

"Whereas, As said statements are wholly false and intended to prejudice Socialists elsewhere for the purpose of disrupting the Socialist Party, be it,

"Resolved, That the members of Salt Lake local hereby approve of the action of Comrade George E. Boomer in demanding and securing the repudiation of the distribution of middle-class literature at the Mills meeting; and

"Resolved, That Comrade Boomer, in demanding a strict adherence to the principles of the working class movement as laid down by the national platform of the Socialist Party of America, has our most earnest support and appreciation; and be it further

"Resolved, That all statements to the effect that Comrade Boomer ever denied admission of property owners to Salt Lake local are unqualified falsehoods; that what he did say was, that to carry out the meaning of the pledge of membership to form a party of the working class distinct from and opposed to all parties of the propertied classes it was necessary to see that the control (majority membership) must never get into the control of property owners, and that when the latter did wish to join the Socialist Party they must accept, unreservedly, and without any 'ifs' or 'buts' the propositions, conclusions and tactics as laid down by the working class. The local of Salt Lake again indorses the position as taken by Comrade Boomer, and warns the Socialists of the state and elsewhere against accepting without investigation statements and interviews of the half dozen persons who refused to repudiate middle-class reforms of money planks, old-age pensions and altruism, and who now threaten, unless their reform schemes are allowed to dominate the uncompromising, international movement of the wage slaves to forever abolish both big and little capitalists by abolishing the wage system, that they will start an opposition 'Socialist' party. Not a single application has ever been refused by either Comrade Boomer or the Salt Lake local because of ownership of property. Refusal for such cause alone would be idiotic. But everyone, whether property owner or not, must acknowledge his recognition of the fact that this is not a reform movement in any sense; neither can the movement pause for a moment to lessen the distress of the small capitalist, whether by means of money planks or any other middle class nostrum. The Socialist Party is a party of the working class, and by virtue of that fact alone stands in opposition to the material interests of every other class in society, whether that class be composed of big or little parasites. This position must be accepted by all who desire to join our ranks. They who will not accept this position and stand by it are not wanted. The movement would not be safe in their hands. The statement that persons were refused membership because of owning property is too ridiculous and insane for serious consideration. By raising this false cry the exmembers, Crane, Lawrence, Johnson, Stewart, and a couple of others, are trying to avoid discussion of the truth—that they refused to accept the majority vote of the local that middle-class reform measures be abandoned.

"Fraternally,

"SALT LAKE LOCAL,
"Socialist Party of America."

Last week's issue of the "Appeal to Reason" contained the following paragraph:

"What spite at the movement has the national committee that it turns such a freak as Boomer on a helpless community? From the places he has visited at once spring up dissention. Pension him and send him home or to an imbecile asylum."

In a letter to National Secretary Greenbaum, explaining the situation in Utah, and published in the "Utah Labor Journal," Comrade Boomer says, in part:

"Ben Johnson, a lawyer, who wants to take into the party those who hold appointive office under the capitalistic parties * * * publicly read a long letter from Wayland denouncing me, you and the dues-paying system as adopted by the majority of the members of the party. * * *

"Crane is a discredited office seeker in the two old capitalist parties. He is not a Socialist, and how it is Wayland and other Socialists accept his falsehoods as truth without investigation passes my comprehension. Either they are not Socialists or else they are seeking from any source, however foul, to discredit the national organization."

CALL TO ACTION IN CALIFORNIA.

To Socialists of California.

Comrades:—A state election is to be held in California on Nov. 4 of this year. We Socialists must therefore make preparations to take advantage of the opportunity which an election affords; an opportunity not only to ascertain the gains in our numbers—gains that are inevitable from the spread of enlightenment and the progress of economic evolution; but also, an opportunity to proclaim by the ballot our stern purpose and our conviction that nothing short of the measures outlined in the Socialist platform can emancipate us from the present economic slavery with its numerous attendant evils—evils that necessarily arise from a system of competitive industry and private lordship over the means of sustaining life.

An impartial study of the facts must convince intelligent men that no real improvement must be expected so long as capitalism is permitted to glut its vampire greed on the blood of industry, and to vent its horrible brutality in destroying the homes, crushing the hopes and degrading the character of of the people.

Comrades should not be discouraged by the fact that we have to again petition for a place on the ballot; it is natural that we should be eager to bring about the grand ideal of Socialism, but our eagerness should not blind us to the magnitude of the task, nor should we, in our impatience, undervalue the real and substantial growth of the Socialist movement. In 1894 the first Socialist ticket polled 240 votes; in 1896 we polled 1,611 votes; in 1898 we polled 5,000 votes; while in 1900 we polled 7,572 Socialist votes in California for President; a really marvellous growth considering the difficulties.

The steady increase of Socialist votes causes much inquiry into Socialist principles—indeed the mere petition for a place on the ballot has considerable propaganda value; the constant asking of men for their signatures arouses that curiosity which leads to investigation and conversion.

There is certainly no good reason for being discouraged; even our squabbles have their value, since if we are wise we will profit by the lessons that they teach.

We therefore call you to action, comrades—let us be up and doing. A few hours canvassing by the comrades, each in his own district, and the 12,000 signatures will be secured. Then an hour or so spent each week in distributing Socialist literature, and—behold the result; a harvest of recruits to the Socialist army.

Remember, comrades, that for calling the world's attention to our principles, no voice speaks louder than the ballot; for shaking the indifference and conservatism of politicians, and for casting a portentous gloom over the licentious revels of the rich, nothing is more potent than the significant Socialist vote.

Comrades, fall in line! Take your stations! Do your duty!

CALIFORNIA STATE COMMITTEE,
THOMAS BERSFORD, Secretary,
609 Stevenson street, San Francisco.

PARTY ACTIVITY IN PENNSYLVANIA.

The splendid showing of the Erie Socialists in the recent municipal election seems to have fired the comrades everywhere throughout the state with new vigor and enthusiasm.

Organizer A. Klenke, who rendered such valuable service to Erie, looked in on the Allegheny comrades and left them preparing for all kinds of good work, sent in applications for three charters—already mentioned—and said he never found anything so easy. Comrade Klenke will visit all parts of the state as soon as Erie lets him go. The locals are requested to be prepared to receive him on short notice.

The local in Charleroi, composed of French-speaking comrades, want an English local in that town, and are likely to have it soon, as they are working for it.

New Brighton comrades were out in force to Bigelow's meeting, notwithstanding the inclement weather. Bigelow says the activity there quadrupled since his visit in December. They will be doing some electing there soon.

The Roscoe comrades have a grievance. Pittsburg comrades held on to Bigelow and made him miss the Roscoe date. Well, he was doing good work and he will come to Roscoe some other time.

Rather early for street meetings, but not too early for a live town. Connellsville had Bigelow on a street corner in the afternoon and a splendid hall meeting in the evening. No sympathy politics there among the workingmen hereafter; the class line is now the talk.

Cokeville.—Good meeting. Comrade Elsie Hogue says. They want Bigelow again with more time to advertise. The census of the town can be taken at his next meeting.

Comrade C. M. Cribbs of Black Lick "wants more Socialism in that town. Send Bigelow back or some one else soon."

The specialty of Spring Church is summer crossroad meetings. Halls are scarce, but Comrades Shull and Frederick had the only available hall packed on Mar. 27. Report—"Rev. G. E. Bigelow was with us last night, and Socialism scored a point or two. We had a combination of good weather, good roads, a good audience, in a good place and good speaking. Am glad for your persistency in having Bigelow come here. If you have any more Bigelows send them around."

Williamsport comrades are active and wanted to spread the light; so they also arranged a meeting for Bigelow in the neighboring town of Newburg. A charter will go there before long. This is an example for other locals to follow.

Carbondale meeting adds emphasis to the idea of the awakening of the working class being general in the state.

Wilkes Barre sold tickets at ten cents, covering the capacity of the hall for an evening meeting, and then arranged a meeting for the afternoon. Suppose they will not want any more speakers?

Arrangements made all down the line and good meetings anticipated. Chas. H. Vail lately in Philadelphia and Reading.—J. W. Slayton, candidate for Governor, enthusiastically received at Erie, Springfield, Yoe, Shenks Ferry; several other places wanting speakers; weekly lectures in Philadelphia; Erie and Reading taking in many new members; McGrady and Bigelow in the Academy of Music at Philadelphia on April 23—is a brief review of state activity.

Locals desiring Comrade Vail to lecture during May should write at once.

J. MAHLON BARNES,
Secretary State Committee.
CAROLINE H. PEMBERTON,
Assistant Secretary,
1022 Arch street, Philadelphia.

"Senator Hanna denounced Socialism as inimical to society and to industrial development. Socialistic ideas, he said, are 'un-American and unnatural to us as a people.'"—Daily Paper.

For advertising Socialism Hanna is as good as a score of Socialist speakers. Nevertheless, Dr. Johnson's definition of patriotism as 'the last refuge of a rascal" still holds good.

National Platform of the Socialist Party.

The Socialist Party of America in national convention assembled, reaffirms its adherence to the principles of international Socialism, and declares its aim to be the organization of the working class, and those in sympathy with it, into a political party, with the object of conquering the powers of government and using them for the purpose of transforming the present system of private ownership of the means of production and distribution into collective ownership by the entire people.

Formerly the tools of production were simple and owned by the individual worker. To-day the machine, which is but an improved and more developed tool of production, is owned by the capitalists and not by the workers. This ownership enables the capitalists to control the product and keep the workers dependent upon them.

Private ownership of the means of production and distribution is responsible for the ever increasing uncertainty of livelihood and the poverty and misery of the working class, and it divides society into two hostile classes—the capitalists and wage-workers. The once powerful middle class is rapidly disappearing in the mill of competition. The struggle is now between the capitalist class and the working class. The possession of the means of livelihood gives to the capitalists the control of the government, the press, the pulpit, and the schools, and enables them to reduce the workingmen to a state of intellectual, physical and social inferiority, political subservience and virtual slavery.

The economic interests of the capitalist class dominate our entire social system; the lives of the working class are recklessly sacrificed for profit, wars are fomented between nations, indiscriminate slaughter is encouraged and the destruction of whole races is sanctioned in order that the capitalists may extend their commercial dominion abroad and enhance their supremacy at home.

But the same economic causes which developed capitalism are leading to Socialism, which will abolish both the capitalist class and the class of wage workers. And the active force in bringing about this new and higher order of society is the working class. All other classes, despite their apparent or actual conflicts, are alike interested in the upholding of the system of private ownership of the instruments of wealth production. The Democratic, Republican, the bourgeois public ownership parties, and all other parties which do not stand for the complete overthrow of the capitalist system of production, are alike political representatives of the capitalist class.

The workers can most effectively act as a class in their struggle against the collective powers of capitalism, by constituting themselves into a political party, distinct from and opposed to all parties formed by the propertied classes.

While we declare that the development of economic conditions tends to the overthrow of the capitalist system, we recognize that the time and manner of the transition to Socialism also depend upon the stage of development reached by the proletariat. We, therefore, consider it of the utmost importance for the Socialist Party to support all active efforts of the working class to better its condition and to elect Socialists to political offices, in order to facilitate the attainment of this end.

As such means we advocate:

1. The public ownership of all means of transportation and communication and all other public utilities, as well as of all industries controlled by monopolies, trusts, and combines. No part of the revenue of such industries to be applied to the reduction of taxes on property of the capitalist class, but to be applied wholly to the increase of wages and shortening of the hours of labor of the employees, to the improvement of the service and diminishing the rates to the consumers.

2. The progressive reduction of the hours of labor and the increase of wages in order to decrease the share of the capitalist and increase the share of the worker in the product of labor.

3. State or national insurance of working people in case of accidents, lack of employment, sickness and want in old age; the funds for this purpose to be collected from the revenue of the capitalist class, and to be administered under the control of the working class.

4. The inauguration of a system of public industries, public credit to be used for that purpose in order that the workers be secured the full product of their labor.

5. The education of all children up to the age of eighteen years, and state and municipal aid for books, clothing, and food.

6. Equal civil and political rights for men and women.

7. The initiative and referendum, proportional representation and the right of recall of representatives by their constituents.

But in advocating these measures as steps in the overthrow of capitalism and the establishment of the Co-operative Commonwealth, we warn the working class against the so-called public ownership movements as an attempt of the capitalist class to secure governmental control of public utilities for the purpose of obtaining greater security in the exploitation of other industries and not for the amelioration of the conditions of the working class.

Grand Symphony Concert

By the full Damrosch Orchestra of sixty pieces, under the direction of FRANK DAMROSCH, assisted by a Chorus of Six Hundred Voices from the People's Choral Union.

SUNDAY AFTERNOON, MAY 4,
—IN—
Grand Central Palace.

Three beautiful Living Pictures: "THE FIRST OF MAY," "STRUGGLE," "VICTORY."

FOR THE SOCIALIST DAILY FUND.

TICKETS, 25 CENTS. ADMISSION AT THE DOOR, 35 CENTS.

For tickets and information apply to H. C. Bowerman, Financial Secretary, at the Club House, 206 E. Eighty-sixth street.

SOCIALIST DODGERS.

Rhodes dead is a statesman and a great man. We would not object to have the rest of the crew canonized as statesmen.

"Strike in Mr. Nixon's shipyards against reduction of wages."—Daily paper.

Still, Tammany Hall is for higher wages. If you do not believe it, ask any Tammany delegate in the Central Federated Union.

While the value of the products of St. Louis increased from $229,157,343 in 1890 to $233,629,733 in 1900, the number of wage-earners decreased from 82,911 in 1890 to 82,672 in 1900.

Parkhurst's epigram of the police reforming the reformers instead of being reformed by them expresses aptly, though not intentionally, the hollowness of the reform farce.

You have carried that Daily Socialist pledge in your pocket long enough. Fill it out and mail it to the Finance Committee, 184 William street.

Strikes and lockouts galore! But there is peace and harmony between Hanna and Gompers.

Every Socialist in New York and vicinity should brace himself for an interview with the Socialist Daily Committee. He will be "seen."

"We have had before us many of those who have been and most of those who are now members of the House of Delegates. We regret to report that we found a number of these utterly illiterate and lacking in ordinary intelligence, unable to give a better reason for favoring or opposing a measure than a desire to act with the majority. In some no trace of mentality or morality could be found; in others a low order of training appeared, united with base cunning, groveling instincts, and sordid desires. Unqualified to respond to the ordinary requirements of life, they are utterly incapable of comprehending the significance of an ordinance and are incapacitated, both by nature and by training, to be the makers of laws. The choosing of such men to be legislators makes a travesty of justice, sets a premium on incompetency, and deliberately poisons the very source of law.

"These men, through their corrupt agent, approach the legislative representative of powerful combinations or corporations competing for valuable franchises, and demand and receive of them sums of money ranging from $100 to $100,000 for their individual votes and influence."—Daily Paper.

Thus does the St. Louis Grand Jury describe the character of its city officials. They are doing it in St. Louis almost as well as in New York. Still, the St. Louis workingmen will vote rather for this pack of thieves or any other gang than for the Socialist Party.

"The most important impression fixed in the Chinese mind as a result of the campaign in the North in 1900 is a new conception of Christianity and its results—an impression conveyed by the troops of Christian nations. These troops compared very unfavorably in the matter of common humanity with those of heathen Japan.

"The correspondent says it is reasonably to be expected that the cause of Christianity will suffer further in the near future."—New York Times.

Hurry up missionaries to Japan! The Heathens are going to perdition.

J. Pierpont Morgan protests that America is still good enough for him. Glad to hear it. Thought he might cast it off and sell it with his second hand clothes.

H. S.

Where to Lunch and Dine

Comrades, patronize those who advertise in your paper.

ABBOTT BROS.
Bakery, Coffee and Lunch Room
110 Bleecker Street, New York.
Kangaroos are welcome; no line drawn on smaller animals.

PATRONIZE ....
FRITZ'S COFFEE AND LUNCH ROOM, 373 Bowery, bet. 4th & 5th Sts. N. Y. OPEN DAY AND NIGHT.

THE OPPORTUNISTS.

These middle class reformers, these patchers of bad systems make me tired. Claiming to wish to benefit all classes at once they retard the movement for the benefit of the one class on whose prosperity all classes are dependent. They aspire to be "leaders" and to become such, sacrifice all principle to secure followers. From upholding a principle which will stand all fire, they fall to mere truckling for votes, not caring that the voters shall know for what they vote, rather concealing from them as much as possible. Let us place no confidence in them, but rely upon our own efforts for our emancipation. Stay on the soap box.—Industrial Freedom.

THE WORKER'S
GREAT MAY DAY NUMBER.
Eight Pages. Highly Valuable Articles. Ready May 1st.
Less than 100 copies, per copy 1 cent; 200 copies, $1.20.
100 copies, 75 cents; 300 copies or more, per 100, 50 cents.
ORDER AT ONCE.
USE ORDER BLANK YOU FIND IN THIS NUMBER.

The Worker.

A WONDERFUL BOOK.
"Railroading in the United States."
BY BEN. HANFORD.
Price, 5 Cents. One Hundred Copies, $2.50, Postpaid.
ORDER AT ONCE.
SOCIALIST LITERATURE COMPANY, 184 William St., New York.

VOL. XII.—NO. 3. NEW YORK, APRIL 20, 1902. PRICE 2 CENTS.

FOR THE DAILY.

Two Weeks Left in Which to Work for the May Concert.

Fund Grows Slowly but Steadily—If You Think It Grows Too Slowly, You Know How to Hurry It Up.

Two weeks still remain before the First of May. During that time all who wish to hasten the growth of the Socialist Daily Fund should bestir themselves to push the sale of tickets for the Damrosch Concert in Grand Central Palace.

The tickets have been pretty thoroughly distributed among the labor organizations. Members should now see to it that they do not lie in the hands of the secretaries, but that they are sold in the union meetings and in the shops. Whoever buys and uses a ticket will get four times his money's worth, and after expenses are covered—and they are light—every ticket sold means 25 cents for the Socialist Daily Fund. A quarter is not much. But a few thousand quarters will bring the much desired daily appreciably nearer to realization.

"May Flowers."

The souvenir journal, "May Flowers," should not be forgotten. Present indications are that this will have a large sale. A good number of organizations in New York and elsewhere have given their orders for twenty-five, fifty, or a hundred copies, and others should follow their example. The price is 5 cents a copy, and bundles of 25 or more are to be supplied at 3 cents a copy. Orders should be sent at once, with cash, to H. C. Bowerman, W. E. A. Club House, 206 E. Eighty-sixth street, from whom tickets also are to be obtained.

The Socialist Daily Finance Committee makes the following report for the week:

Amounts Pledged.

Following is a statement of amounts pledged for the Socialist Daily Fund up to April 14:

Previously acknowledged	$3,340.50
Howard Tuttle, Milwaukee, Wis.	12.00
Dr. Wm. S. Hager, Brooklyn	10.00
Ludwig Zakshewsky	10.00
Sam Berkman	10.00
Dr. Jacob Mintz	50.00
Dr. I. Ortman	50.00
Dr. J. M. Rubinoff	25.00
E. Zechnowitz	25.00
L. Boudianoff Boudin	30.00
Frank M. Hill	15.00
Dr. E. C. Duffie, Dover, N. H.	12.00
John Kerrigan, Dallas, Tex.	20.00
E. M. Braune	12.00
D. Bonoff, Los Angeles, Cal	10.00
E. D. Price, Houston, Tex.	5.00
S. Levin, Hartford, Conn	5.00
A. William	15.00
Local Massillon, O.	10.00
Fred Bennetts, Yonkers, N.Y.	10.00
Total	$3,676.50
Cash contributions	260.25
Total	$3,936.75

Paid on Pledges.

Payments on pledges and cash donations have heretofore been reported together. The totals so far received are here separate and separate reports will hereafter be given. Payments on pledges up to April 14 are:

Previously acknowledged	$316.00
Miss E. Rabinowitz	1.00
Fred Tepper, Lawrence, Mass.	2.00
E. Melzer	1.00
Arcaide Chorosh	5.00
D. E. E. Duffie, Dover, N. H.	1.00
John Kerrigan, Dallas, Tex.	1.50
E. M. Braune	2.00
A. William	3.00
Fred Bennetts, Yonkers, N. Y.	1.00
Total	$333.50

Cash Contributions.

The following amounts have been received as direct cash contributions, irrespective of pledges:

Previously acknowledged	$234.25
Patrick Donohue	1.00
Rev. A. L. Wilson	5.00
Dr. P. A. Levin, Saranac Lake.	10.00
I. Goetzkoff	5.00
Wm. A. Bateman, Philadelphia	1.00
Louis Arnstein, Dover, N. H.	2.00
Max Beikert, Jersey City	1.00
Chas. Gunner, Yonkers, N. Y.	1.00
Total	$260.25

Notice to Contributors.

Pledges should be sent and checks and money orders made payable to the Socialist Daily Finance Committee, 184 William street, New York. Communications may be addressed to Henry L. Slobodin, 60 Second avenue, New York.

The Worker will contain, each week, a list of contributions received up to Monday preceding the date of issue.

If any contribution sent is not promptly acknowledged the sender should at once inform the Committee, that the matter may be investigated and set right.

Those who have made pledges should remember to send in the monthly instalments promptly, saving the trouble and expense of notifying them. Let each one feel his personal responsibility for the work we have undertaken and his power to hasten the coming of the Socialist Daily.

AN APPRECIATION.

It makes our eyes sparkle every time The Worker reaches our table, it is so full of clear, concise articles on the class struggle, and also contains the best labor news of any paper published. It ought to be read by every workingman in America. If the daily paper which the New York Socialists are about to publish is proportionately as good as the weekly "Worker" it will do the cause an unlimited amount of good.—Utah Labor Journal.

LABOR DENOUNCES "PEACE CONFERENCE."

St. Louis Unions Call Upon Labor Leaders to Withdraw from Civic Federation.

Organized labor in St. Louis has declared its attitude toward the Peace Conference. The mass meeting called by the Central Trades and Labor Union adopted the resolutions below, after the subject had been gone into thoroughly by the speakers, as expressive of their attitude.

One of the most important features of the meeting was the strong Socialist sentiment which prevailed. Nearly every reference to Socialism was roundly cheered. Indeed, it was a Socialist gala day, and everything points to an almost unanimous support of the Socialist Party by the trades unionists of the city. The workers are beginning to realize the power of the class-conscious ballot and evidently will not be slow to make use of it. The following are the resolutions adopted:

"Whereas, The capitalist class of today, by virtue of its ownership of the tools, machinery, and other means of production and distribution, holds complete control of the wealth created by the working class; and

"Whereas, This ownership and control gives to the capitalist class absolute jurisdiction of the destinies of the working class, dictating their condition in life, giving them employment when it will result in profit to themselves and denying employment when it will not so result, robbing them of the enjoyment which rightfully belongs to them as the creators of all wealth, denying an education to their children and condemning them to the same life of toil and misery that is the lot of parents; and

"Whereas, The enjoyments which should be the pleasure of the workers are permitted only to those who can rob the workers by virtue of their ownership of the means of sustenance; and,

"Whereas, This condition results in an endless class struggle between the tool owners and the tooless, necessitating both economic and political organization on the part of the workers as the only means of coping with their enemies; and

"Whereas, These organizations can be productive of results only when conducted strictly on class lines and without any entangling alliances with the capitalist class; therefore, be it

"Resolved, That Organized Labor of St. Louis, in mass meeting assembled, declares itself opposed to the so-called 'Peace Conference' recently organized in New York City, and be it further

"Resolved, That we call upon those members of Organized Labor who have taken part in its formation and who are now serving in its councils to at once withdraw from it.

"Further, as proof of the wisdom of our action, we would call the attention of our brothers to the fearful injury which has already befallen our movement as a result of the actions of this body in the cities of Boston, Mass., and San Francisco, Cal."

GROCERY CLERKS STILL FIGHTING BUTLER.

The fight between Grocery Clerks' Union No. 496 and James Butler, dealer in horses and groceries, is still on. A conference was held earlier in the month by delegates from a large number of unions in the various trades to arrange concerted action to assist the Clerks in their battle. Committees were appointed and the unions and other labor organizations will hear from these committees and should lend them all possible aid.

Mr. Butler is determined to crush the Union. The Union is equally determined not to be crushed, but to carry on its fight for shorter hours of labor till victory is won. Much will depend on the action of workingmen in other trades in bringing the question to a speedy and satisfactory settlement.

No attention should be paid to the reports given out from time to time that the trouble has been "settled." The publication of such false reports is one of the capitalists' favorite methods of disintegrating and defeating trade union efforts. When a settlement is actually made, the Grocery Clerks' Union will officially announce it, and until this announcement is made workingmen should withhold their patronage from Butler—not only refuse to buy from him, but let him know the reason why.

One delegate in the conference referred sarcastically to the report that Butler is helping to build a church uptown. This is quite in line with capitalist hypocrisy—to grind down employees to the lowest point and then, out of the profits squeezed from them, to build churches and endow colleges and libraries. Let the workingmen show that they appreciate this sort of philanthropy at its true value.

S. L. P. JEWISH DAILY SUSPENDS.

The "Abendblatt," the S. L. P. Jewish daily of New York City, suspended publication last week. This paper was founded in 1894 and was once a great power in the Socialist movement on the East Side. At the time of the party split in July, 1899, it was captured by the adherents of DeLeon and the deposed Executive. From that time it lost much of its influence and has had a hard struggle to maintain its existence. The determining motive in suspending it was undoubtedly to concentrate all the forces of the S. L. P. for the support of the "Daily People," which seems to be in a very precarious condition.

——While he is viewing the industrial development of the South, will President Roosevelt be taken around to see the babies at work in the cotton mills?—Chicago Socialist.

HARRIMAN AND CROSBY DEBATE.

Socialism and Single Tax the Subject.

Cooper Union Filled to the Doors with an Interested Audience, Largely Strangers to Both Sides—A Profitable Meeting.

An audience of more than three thousand people filled Cooper Union to the doors last Friday to hear Job Harriman and John S. Crosby debate the question of Socialism and Single Tax. There were Socialists and Single Taxers there in considerable numbers, of course; but on the whole it was an audience of strangers, very largely composed of young workingmen, who followed the speakers with close interest and keen appreciation.

The debate was conducted on both sides in the best spirit of fairness and courtesy. It is to be regretted that we can give no adequate report of the discussion.

Harriman held his opponent to the book—that is, to George's "Progress and Poverty." Again and again he returned to George's admission that labor creates all wealth, and then, by citation of the familiar facts of industrial life and by apt illustrations he showed that the same reasoning which proves the landlord to be an exploiter of labor applies equally to the owner of other means of production operated by wage labor.

Mr. Crosby, with all the wit and eloquence at his command, tried to convince his hearers that, if the landlord's revenue were appropriated by the community, free competition would again prevail and exploitation would cease. He dwelt almost pathetically on the "precious, sacred right of contract" and used his familiar fish argument: "If I catch a fish, that fish is mine! If I catch two fish both these fish are mine! And if I exchange one of those fish for a fish-line, that fish-line is mine!"

Harriman made short work of the fish story. He reminded the audience that we are no longer living in the day of individual production. Men cannot make what is now considered a human living by fishing with hook and line. We live in an age of great machinery, factories, and railroads. These things are the product of the labor of thousands of workers. They are operated by the joint labor of thousands. Society depends on them for its very existence. So long as these things are held as private property, their owner can and must exploit those who operate them. Even under the Single Taxers' ideal system, the only way a workingman could escape such exploitation would be to go fishing and live on the fish he caught—that is, in one form or another, to go back to hand industry, with no chance to compete in the market.

Replying to Mr. Crosby's plea for the right of free contract, he asked his hearers: "You workingmen, did you ever leave your wives and children hungry at home and go to the owners of a great steel mill, a great railroad, or a great factory, and make a contract with them? Did you make a contract? No. You asked for work. Maybe you begged for work. And you took the wages dictated by competition—a half or less than a half of your product and the employer took the rest."

It is not, perhaps, a very great achievement for a Socialist to defeat a Single Taxer in debate, even if his opponent be as popular as Mr. Crosby and possessed of his undeniably great oratorical ability and his pleasing personality. The odds are too great in the nature of the question. But certainly Harriman never spoke more effectively than on this occasion. The audience was his before the evening was half over, and they stayed to the close. It is doubtful if we ever held a meeting in Cooper Union that did more good for Socialism.

THE MODERN SLAVE-AUCTION.

Thomas Carlyle, whose dyspepsia was responsible for many foolish sayings, said also some profoundly wise things. His description of the difference between the wage-worker and the chattel-slave ought to be graven on the tablets of the memory of every working man and every working woman. The difference between the white wage-worker and the negro slave, he said, consists principally in the fact that the negro slave was bought for a lifetime for so many hundreds of dollars, whilst the wage-worker is bought for so many cents an hour or so many dollars a week, as the case may be. That is the chief difference. Another thing is that we don't give them the trouble to offer us by auction nowadays, but instead we go and offer ourselves for sale, saying, "please buy us at so much an hour or so much a week," for that is what it amounts to when one man has to beg from some other men the right to work. We sell ourselves on the instalment plan—and heaven knows the price is small! Under the old-time slave system the master who had a couple of thousand dollars invested in a slave, would naturally look after the health of the slave, since he would lose if the slave died or was ill. But there is no money invested in the wage-slave and the employer has not that interest in his well-being. If a worker is killed or maimed, what of it? The employer loses nothing and there are plenty waiting to step into his place.—John Spargo, "In Where we Stand."

N. P. Geiger is still in Massachusetts and recently addressed good meetings at Northboro, Taunton, New Bedford, and Lawrence.

GOOD GAIN IN TOLEDO.

Socialist Party Increases Its Vote 25 Per Cent.

We Have 617, Against 481 in November—A Purely Educational Campaign—Methods of Work Described.

The Socialist Party has made another forward step, and a big one, in the city election held on Tuesday, April 8.

The total vote was light—only 17,253 out of a registration of about 28,000. The chief contest was over the office of Street Commissioner, which headed the ticket.

In spite of general lack of interest in the election, the Socialist Party made a numerical gain of 25 per cent. Last fall we had 481 votes for the head of our ticket. Our vote in last week's election is as follows:

For Street Commissioner, Frederick H. Shane, 617.

For Police Commissioner, James B. Sloat, 659.

For Water Works Trustee, Thos. A. Bragg, 67".

For Cemetery Trustee, Wm. Niurt, 674.

For Constables, F. Klitzke, 667; F. Kolbe, 671.

First Ward: For Alderman, J. S. Cowley, 100; for Councilmen, F. Badstuber, 100.

Fifth Ward: For Alderman, A. Cameron, 42; for Councilman, C. Milyard, 28.

Eighth Ward: For Councilman, C. F. Holden, 52.

Twelfth Ward: For Councilman, C. Sass, 38.

Thirteenth Ward: For Alderman, T. C. Enright, 45; for Councilman, Otto Born, 44.

We had votes in all but seven of the one hundred and seven election precincts in the city, which shows that our influence is penetrating to every quarter.

Our entire campaign was educational, devoted largely to clearing up the sentimentalism that has so long dominated in Toledo. The circulation of The Worker was largely extended and, the comrades report, materially aided in the work. Another method that was used for getting Socialist literature before the people may be followed in other cities. The local got one hundred copies each of The Worker, the "International Socialist Review," the "Comrade," the "Socialist Spirit," "Wilshire's Magazine," the Cleveland "Citizen," Lee's "Labor Politics and Socialist Politics," the catalogues of Chas. H. Kerr & Co., and the Standard Publishing Company, McGrady's "Clerical Capitalist" and "A Voice from England," and, to go with the latter, Father Rickaby's pamphlet against Socialism (to which the "Voice from England" is a reply, and on which we placed our local stamp, to show who distributed it). These we put up in a hundred packages, thirteen papers and pamphlets in each, and sold at 25 cents a package. As the various Socialist publishing concerns all give low rates on bundles of papers or pamphlets, this sort of propaganda can be carried out at very small expense wherever there are a few comrades willing to do the necessary work; and it will redound to the advantage both of the local movement and of the Socialist publication agencies.

We had Vail for three lectures early in the campaign; charged admission, 10 cents or 25 cents for the course, and had full houses, all expenses paid and a surplus for other party work. Later we had Chase for one meeting, with similar methods and results. Finally, on Sunday evening, April 6, we had Debs to give the final stroke in the campaign. Here also we charged 10 cents admission and had Memorial Hall filled with an audience of over a thousand people. Needless to say, Comrade Debs' speech had a splendid effect.

The Workingmen's Sick and Death Benefit Society, Branch 134, surprised the City Central Committee with an unsolicited donation of $20, which was put to good use.

THE CHICAGO ELECTION.

Complete returns of the Chicago city election show that the aldermanic vote cast for Socialist candidates on April 1 was 6,413 with one ward, the Third, unrepresented. The town ticket in this ward being in the neighborhood of 90, the total aldermanic vote may therefore be taken as about 6,500. The vote for town tickets probably aggregates 7,200.

Most of the wards show a substantial increase over the aldermanic returns of last spring, though several have lost slightly. The Tenth Ward, however, has declined in a most startling manner, the aldermanic vote of 1901 showing a total of 281; the official returns now give this ward but 82, or a loss of 199 votes from last year.

The vote of the Socialist Party amounts to three and a quarter per cent. of the total cast. Last year it was considerably less than 2 per cent., so that the relative increase measured upon this basis amounts to between 60 and 70 per cent.

IN IOWA CITIES.

At the city election in Des Moines, Ia., there were two full tickets—Republican and Socialist—in the field, besides a Citizen's ticket with candidates only for Mayor and Auditor.

John M. Work, our candidate for Mayor, received 200 votes, and Geo. F. Usry, for Auditor, had 353. Our other candidates ran ahead, the highest vote being 878. "The 200," writes Comrade Work, "are dyed-in-the-wool Socialists. The others are 'coming.' The gain on Mayor is 75 per cent."

The vote for Mayor in Mystic stood: Republican, 170; Socialist, 163; Democratic, 26. Other candidates ran in about the same proportion. Our gain was 63. We elected one of the three aldermen, Geo. Porter.

MINNESOTA VOTE GROWING.

Comrade Lucien of Crookston, Minn., writes to the "Social Democratic Herald" as follows:

"This spring we had no legal standing as a party in the city, not having put up a ticket in the last city election, so we had to secure signers. We came very near electing our man, however. The capitalist parties got well scared toward the last. John Kiewell, for Mayor, got 341, as against 483 for Hitchcock, Rep. O. C. Mortenson, for Alderman, polled 213 to 234 for his capitalistic opponent. We polled 112 for Debs in 1900."

WISCONSIN'S GOOD GAINS.

The total aldermanic vote in Sheboygan, Wis., was as follows: Socialist, 1,403; Democratic, 1,111; Republican, 1,002. The old parties had to unite in some wards to hold them. We gained an alderman. The Board now includes nine Republicans, four Socialists, and three Democrats.

In West Superior we had a ticket in the Ninth Ward and raised the vote from 42 to 96.

In the village of Kiel, Wis., the old parties fused. Out of 252 votes the Socialist Party had 123.

In Pacific Township we gained three votes. Six more would have elected our candidate for President and seven more would have given us the Assessor.

CLEVELAND STATIONARY.

The Socialist Party gained very slightly in Cleveland, Ohio, and the S. L. P. lost slightly. Tom Johnsonism is rampant there and has not had time to play itself out.

Our vote stands: For Treasurer, 643; for Justices of the Peace, 592 and 577; for Director of Schools, 616; for Members of School Council, 643 to 668; for City Council, in six out of the twelve districts, a total of 337. The S. L. P. had 432 for the head of the ticket and 458 to 546 for other places.

NEW HAVEN VOTE LIGHT.

The Socialist Party polled 309 votes in the city election at New Haven, Conn., Tuesday, and the S. L. P. had 136. A year ago our vote was 345 and that of the S. L. P. 186. The total vote was very light, only 8,885 out of 26,000. There was a strong Democratic "public ownership" movement, largely supported in the unions.

OUR VOTE IN NEBRASKA.

The "New Era" of Sargent, Neb., reports that the Socialist vote in the Omaha city election was 900, while in Lincoln, the capital of the state, our vote "rose from nearly nothing to over 500 on one candidate."

IN KANSAS CITY.

It is impossible to find out anything about the Socialist vote in the Kansas City municipal election. The press publishes no reports and the election officials refuse to give any information.

Comrades Clark, O'Hare, and Thompson—the first our candidate for Mayor—did good work in the campaign. The county campaign is already begun.

At many polling places only the old-party tickets given out and the Socialist ballots kept out of sight unless demanded. In some cases they were even refused when called for.

IN KANSAS.

Fort Scott, Kas., gives 101 votes for Comrade Bumstead, Socialist candidate for member of the School Board. This was our highest vote.

NEW MEXICO IN LINE.

A large Socialist vote is reported in the city election recently held at Albuquerque, New Mexico. Dispatches say the Socialist Party beat the Democrats in every ward but one. The local Socialist movement is very young, but said to be vigorous and enthusiastic. J. Stitt Wilson has been speaking there and was well received by the workingmen, especially in the Santa Fe railway shops and the foundries.

GAIN IN ARLINGTON.

Three Socialist Justices of the Peace were elected in Arlington, N. J. This is not a startling victory, however, as the old parties failed to nominate, the office not being sought for by the politicians. Our real cause for congratulation is the increase of our vote from 14 to 35 for School Commissioner, which office was contested.

McGRADY AND BIGELOW IN PHILADELPHIA

Father T. McGrady of Kentucky and Geo. E. Bigelow of Nebraska will be the speakers at a mass meeting held under the auspices of Local Philadelphia of the Socialist Party, in the Academy of Music, on Wednesday evening, April 23. Both are good speakers and the hall should be filled to its fullest capacity.

The United Workingmen's Singing Society has provided a chorus of sixty voices for the occasion. Miss Elizabeth Atkinson will sing a Socialist campaign song entitled "The Peaceful Army," composed by Comrade Wm. W. Atkinson, a well known composer of popular ballads. A pretty feature connected with the song will be a tableau of the nations, representing the international character of our movement.

——Five cents a day is $18.25 a year. Can you not afford to give that much during the next year—say in monthly instalments, paid promptly—to the Socialist Daily Fund?

SEND GREETING TO BELGIANS.

Socialists of New York to Comrades Beyond the Sea.

"We greet you and honor your dead. Keep up the good fight. We are with you to the end."

This was the message sent by cable from the General Committee of Local New York, Social Democratic Party, to our comrades in Belgium, in the midst of their struggle for universal suffrage.

The contest which is now going on in Belgium between the Socialist working class on the one hand and the forces of capitalism, monarchy, and armed force on the other, is attracting the attention of the whole world. Even the most conservative of Americans must either admit the Belgian contingent of the international Socialist Party is bravely battling for the cause of progress or else cast aside their patriotic traditions and avow their own distrust of democracy.

The Socialist Party seeks in Belgium, as everywhere, to win by peaceful methods. That blood has been shed is the fault of the propertied ruling class who, knowing that the majority of the people are tired of class rule, have resorted both to violence and fraud to hold their power.

As the news of Socialist victories at the polls in American cities will be read with joy in Belgium, so should the news of our Belgian comrades' struggle inspire the American workers to renewed vigor in the movement for Labor's emancipation. The class struggle knows no national boundaries. A victory for the workers in any country is a victory for all.

IGLESIAS ACQUITTED.

Vigorous Protest of Socialists and Trade Unionists Results in Reversing Infamous Decision.

The Supreme Court of Puerto Rico rendered a decision Tuesday in the appeal of Santiago Iglesias, President of the Federation of Workmen of Puerto Rico, who was sentenced last December to more than three years' imprisonment on the charge of conspiring to raise the price of labor in Puerto Rico, acquitting him of all the charges against him, reversing the decision of the lower court. A fine of $25 for contempt of court in not answering a summons was allowed to stand.

Federation of Workmen members paraded through San Juan in the afternoon. There was a similar parade at Ponce when the news of Comrade Iglesias' acquittal reached there.

The vigorous protest of the Socialist Party and of the trade unions in the United States and in Puerto Rico had much to do with securing this favorable decision.

"THEY DO THESE THINGS BETTER IN FRANCE."

A Paris dispatch says that the bishops are instructing the priests under their jurisdiction to refrain from any attempt to influence voters, directly or indirectly, for or against any party or candidate in the coming general elections.

"The Bishop of Tours declares that the French people being so jealous of their independence, the support of any candidate by the clergy might injure that candidate's cause, the intervention of the clergy being unpopular even among the best Catholics."

"They do these things better in France," as has been said in other affairs. The French clergy have learned a lesson which we still have to teach the Corrigans and Quigleys and Messmers and Hobans.

SOCIALISM IN ITALIAN ARMY.

A dispatch from Rome states that the army reserve who were called out during the railroad strike have mutinously demanded to be disbanded again and protest against the plan contemplated of sending them to Tripoli. The dispatch adds that this indicates a great strength of Socialist sentiment in the army.

MAY DAY IN BOSTON.

Preparations for the celebration of International Labor Day in Boston on Sunday, May 4, presage a very successful event. The appearance of Ben Hanford is going to attract a large crowd, as his reputation has preceded him. As Representatives Carey and MacCartney will also speak the same evening those who attend know what to expect. Speeches interspersed by musical selections. Comrades are urged to advertise the event as much as possible and have their friends, and especially trade unionists, attend. Admission will be free. As it is Sunday evening ample opportunity is given comrades in surrounding towns to be present. Remember the place and time—Paine Memorial Hall, 9 Appleton street, 7:30 p. m.

BE SURE TO GO.

All Socialists and sympathizers are invited to join the members of the Socialist Club in an evening together at Eureka Hall, 1 and 3 MacDougall street, Saturday evening, April 19, at 8:30. Music, refreshments and a varied entertainment will be provided and many well known Socialists will be called upon to respond to toasts. The enterprising comrades of the Brooklyn Socialist Club always provide pleasurable surprises for their guests and any reader who fails to attend on this occasion will miss a thoroughly enjoyable affair. And, don't forget to bring the ladies.

LATEST DECISION "HANDED DOWN."

Notice is hereby given to all Socialists who are members of labor organizations that they must take their withdrawal cards and go. There is no room for them in the labor movement. This decision is handed down by Judge Samuel Gompers of the Strike Squelchers' Federation. In fact, it was handed down some time ago, but, it appears, execution was stayed pending an appeal to Supreme Judge Dollar-Mark Hanna, President of the American Federation of Labor, who has just affirmed the finding of the lower court in a most enthusiastic opinion, likewise handed down. I do not know what the Socialists ever did to these amiable and estimable dignitaries that give warrant for this bull of excommunication, but I suspect that some jocund Socialists has hit them in the eye with a dead cat. In this case the plural number agrees with the singular. These two gentlemen are now so intimate, so bound up in each other, as it were, that you can't hit Hanna without blackening Sammy's eye. David and Jonathan were Kilkenny cats compared with these two lovers.

* * *

The decision above mentioned was hurled upon the offending Socialists under the following circumstances. It appears that we are blessed with a society called the American Academy of Social and Political Science. The functions of this organization are to oversee and revise the work of the Architect of the Universe and lay down the lines upon which the forces of evolution will be permitted to work. The annual pow-wow of the Academy was held in Philadelphia a week ago, and at its closing session the subject under consideration was "Industrial Conciliation; Its Possibilities and Limitations." Do I need to say that to Messrs. Hanna and Gompers, the two greatest geniuses out of captivity, the settlement of this matter was assigned? They spoke in proper order, Hanna first, Sammy second.

Dollar-Mark gave evidence of having listened to a Socialist on a soapbox since the last time he presented his views on the subject of Trusts. It will be remembered that in 1900 the spotted Senator vehemently declared that there were no trusts in America, and that the "law" of free competition would render them impossible forever. Amen! Now he says that "where combination is possible competition is impossible." Just listen to him now:

"The trusts have come to stay. Organized capital and organized labor are but a step in industrial progress. It is our duty as employers to make up our minds, for the question must be met.

"We hear much of a tendency to Socialism. Everything American is opposed to it, and it is the duty of every citizen to correct Socialistic ideas. There is no question that should demand deeper thought. The Socialistic idea is unnatural and un-American to us as a people."

* * *

Just what the above has to do with "Industrial Conciliation" does not appear to the ordinary mind, but connected with the following the whole subject becomes brilliant with light. Here you are:

"I received much encouragement from an address once made by Samuel Gompers, in which he said there was no room in the labor ranks for the Socialist or the Anarchist. Then I knew that the time had come to act.

If we can hold the American people away from selfish and political interests long enough to let them study this subject the rest will be easy."

I know what has made Mark baldheaded. It was the fearful mental struggle he has kept all his life holding himself away from selfish and political interests. As the personification of self-abnegation he should be given a monument a mile under ground.

* * *

Hasten slowly, gentle reader. Go back and read the last sentence of the above quotation over again. Spell it out word by word, and let the blessed sentiment soak in. "IF WE CAN HOLD THE AMERICAN PEOPLE AWAY from selfish and political interests LONG ENOUGH . . . THE REST WILL BE EASY."

This is the task to which these two patriots have addressed themselves, that of "holding" the American people—in order to give them an opportunity to "study." The following special dispatch to a capitalist newspaper, the "North American," will give some idea of the conditions under which the studying will be done if Hanna and Gompers' Strike Squelching Federation succeeds in "holding" organized labor:

"McKEESPORT, April 5.—Since the close of the big strike in this city which ended last autumn 300 men who played prominent parts in the strike have been blacklisted by the United States Steel Corporation operating the National Tube Works. When the strike ended the company issued an order calling all former employees to report to the heads of each department at a certain date. The men, seeing the fight was lost, flocked to the office of the company. The company officials picked their men, and every man that was suspected of being a leader among the strikers was told that when he was wanted the company would send for him.

"The marked men cannot secure employment in this section because every mill in the vicinity is under one head. Since the end of the strike and the refusal of the company to take back former employees there have been two deaths that the physicians declare were due to the men worrying about the loss of their positions. Last Wednesday Wm. Harkness, who had been a puddler in the National Tube Works for more than eighteen years, died suddenly, and the physician and his family declare nothing but grief over the fact that he had been blacklisted was the cause of his death.

"The end came to him under remarkable circumstances. It was while sitting in a chair in his kitchen reading to his wife the report of the United States Steel Corporation's net earnings of more than $111,000,000. He paused and remarked: 'All that money and none for us.' The paper dropped from his hand, and the wife supposed he had fallen asleep. When she went to wake him she found him dead. Dr. Andrew Hunter was called in. He said the man had died of heart failure, which was, in his opinion, due to grief for the loss of his position in the mills at the close of the strike.

"Harkness was 48 years old, and owned a small home in Scott street, which he had almost paid for when the strike began. About the city are many more iron workers who formerly earned from $4 to $10 a day in the mills, who are now glad to secure work at almost any price."

* * *

The Senator is right. The rest will be easy, if— But he's a dumb Socialist who can't talk like Cicero with that "if" as a text.

FRED LONG.

HANNA—"FRIEND OF LABOR."

The strikes of the ship carpenters and calkers and the boilermakers and their helpers—four unions—are still being waged against the Cleveland Shipbuilding Company, a branch of the trust, in which the Hanna family, father, son, brother, and probably other members are interested.

There seems to be a conspiracy among the local dailies to suppress every mention of the trouble while the brutal boss is sleshing around down East trying to make people believe that he is a great friend of labor.

Not an item appears, although hundreds of men are out to enforce broken agreements and gain better conditions.

The boilermaker's helpers have been paid such poor wages by this heartless corporation that they have been compelled to appeal for assistance. The local unions ought to come to their aid.

It's a shameful state of affairs, indeed, where an employer brazenly brags about his friendship for labor in one part of the country while strikes rage in his shop.—Cleveland Citizen.

WE SHALL.

"We shall pass from class paternalism, originally derived from fetich fiction in times of universal ignorance, to Human Brotherhood in accordance with the nature of things and our growing knowledge of it; from Political Government to Industrial Administration; from Competition in Individualism to Individuality in Co-operation; from War and Despotism in any form to Peace and Liberty."—Carlyle.

——If strikes are a sign of prosperity, as is often asserted, the news from all over the country would seem to indicate very prosperous conditions.—Chicago News.

A PROSPEROUS YEAR.

The "Daily Stockholder" gives a statement of the total dividends on stock and interest on bonds paid by joint stock companies in New York City during the first three months of 1902 as compared with the corresponding amounts for the first quarter of 1898. Here are the figures:

Dividends, 1898	$24,067,164
Interest, 1898	17,639,613
Total, 1898	$41,706,777
Dividends, 1902	$30,374,533
Interest, 1902	37,596,591
Total, 1902	$67,971,124

Thus the capitalists are drawing profits and interest from the working class now at a rate 60 per cent. higher than in 1898. Wages have not risen 60 per cent.—probably not even 6 per cent. Taking into account the rise of prices of food and clothing wages have not risen at all.

This is prosperity—the only sort of prosperity possible under capitalism.

NOTICE TO SYMPATHIZERS.

Local New York has arranged a picnic for Sunday, June 29, at Sulzer's Westchester Park. As the proceeds of this picnic are to go to the fund for the next campaign, we request friendly organizations not to arrange any festivals for that day.

IN NEW LONDON.

Two of the best Socialist speakers in New England—F. O. MacCartney and Eugene Twomey—will address a meeting of workingmen in New London, Conn., under the auspices of the Socialist Party local at the Opera House Friday evening, April 18. Admission is free and all are welcome. The unionists are especially invited to attend by the New London Central Labor Union. Jerry Sullivan, president, and Secretary Bolles, of the Central Labor Union of Norwich, will be present, and will speak on the subject of the Socialist movement in their respective cities.

The Worker.

AN ORGAN OF THE SOCIALIST PARTY

(Known in New York State as the Social Democratic Party.)

PUBLISHED WEEKLY

AT 184 WILLIAM STREET, NEW YORK,

By the Socialistic Co-operative Publishing Association.

P. O. BOX 1512.

Telephone Call: 302 John.

TERMS TO SUBSCRIBERS.

Invariably in advance.

One year	50c.
Six months	25c.
Single copies	2c.

Bundle rates:

Less than 100 copies, per copy	1c.
100 copies	75c.
200 copies	$1.20
300 copies or more, per hundred	50c.

Weekly Bundles:

5 per week, one year	$1.75
10 per week, one year	3.50
25 per week, one year	7.50
50 per week, one year	12.50

Address all business communications, and make money orders, checks and drafts payable to The Worker.

Receipts are never sent to individual subscribers. Acknowledgment is made by changing the number on the wrapper, the week following receipt of money.

Communications concerning the editorial department of the paper should be addressed to the Editor.

Entered as second-class matter at the New York, N. Y., Post Office on April 6, 1901.

UNION PRINTER

SOCIALIST VOTE IN THE UNITED STATES.

In 1888 (Presidential)	2,068
In 1890	13,331
In 1892 (Presidential)	21,157
In 1894	33,133
In 1896 (Presidential)	36,564
In 1898:
S. L. P.	82,204
S. D. P.	9,545
In 1900 (Presidential):
S. D. P.	96,918
S. L. P.	33,450

THE PARTY'S EMBLEM.

Senator Gallinger of New Hampshire says the Chinese Exclusion bill is "unnecessary, unjust, and un-American." So it is, from the standpoint of his class. Necessity, justice, and Americanism always have two sides—the exploiters' side and that of the exploited.

The late T. V. Powderly says: "The wish of William McKinley was law with me." And that's no lie. The wish of the working class counted for nothing with Powderly against that of the man who could give him a job.

Senator Hanna's disavowal of any desire for the presidency is doubtless intended as a gentle hint to his disinterested friends that they must "whoop it up" for him more vigorously.

The Clerical papers in Italy are praising Cecil Rhodes, "contrasting his utilitarianism with the imitation utilitarianism of the Socialists." We accept the contrast. The cold-blooded Butcher of Men was never our ideal, nor will we praise him because he is now a dead butcher.

One day last week a wealthy New York brewer found an envelope containing securities worth $30,000, lost by a banking firm's messenger. He returned the property to the owners, and all the newspapers published articles praising his generosity in not claiming a reward. It seems that the natural thing for a capitalist under the circumstances would be to steal the wad, so no doubt the praises are well deserved. There is still honor among thieves.

The Board of Education says it needs $5,133,000 to provide schools for the city's children—which is undoubtedly a modest estimate. Knowing that this is an economy administration, however, it was decided to ask for only $4,250,00. It's always safe to economize on schools.

It's a merry war, this of the butter forces and the oleo hosts at Washington. There seems to be money galore on both sides. And both sides love the workingmen so. The creamery-owners support the anti-oleo bill, not because they want to make bigger profits, but solely because they want the poor workingmen to have "pure" butter—or nothing. And the oleomargarine manufacturers have no interest in opposing the bill except to make sure that the poor workingmen who can't ca during the butter shall have dyed and flav- comparatively ment, howe soap-grease. How good it is to different emp much benevolent gentlemen to greater than this! Under Socialism, as there ved at any ds, the statist would be no paying of profits to the capitalists, we could all have butter and wouldn't want soap-grease. But that is irrelevant.

A CASE FOR DISCIPLINE.

In another column we print an election report from Webster, Mass., which indicates that some of our candidates there accepted endorsements from the old parties. While our information is not of such a nature as positively to prove the fact, we have good reason to believe that our Webster comrades—whether the local as a body or these three candidates as individuals—have violated a fundamental law of party policy.

The Worker has called upon the Massachusetts State Committee to investigate the matter and to take vigorous action for the enforcement of discipline. We have had other occasions to comment on a certain deplorable tendency to excessive laxity which has manifested itself at various points in our party within the last two years, and which, if not corrected, cannot but work the greatest injury to the cause.

We have no desire to return to what is rightly called "DeLeonism." But that word has been greatly misused in many quarters. The evil of DeLeonism was not in strictness of discipline, but in the use of the disciplinary powers of the party for private or factional ends, and in a reckless and wholesale application of extreme measures of discipline in unimportant cases, which resulted in bringing even proper discipline into contempt.

There is a "golden mean," doubtless in all things. Drastic measures should be reserved for grave evils. But this is a case where—if the facts be as they seem—only drastic measures will serve.

The comrades in Webster may think that this is a local matter. If so, they are mistaken. The good name and the good faith of the Socialist Party in Boston, in New York, and all over the country is involved. If Socialists in a New England town can accept old-party endorsements and hold their good standing in the party, then the party will have no right to claim the confidence of the voters anywhere—and if it does claim their support under such circumstances it will be met, as it will deserve, with distrust and contempt.

We call upon Local Webster and the Massachusetts State Committee to set this matter right and to do it without delay.

President Vreeland of the Metropolitan and President Greatsinger of the Brooklyn Rapid Transit spoke at a railway presidents' banquet last week. Vreeland announced that he had "worked for the public for the last nine years." He might have said to Greatsinger, "You're another." If the public were not very stupid it would give such devoted servants a promotion—say make one of them a motorman and the other a conductor, and give them a rest from clipping coupons, negotiating bribes, manipulating stocks, and issuing false reports. That is what Socialists advise.

A CLEAR PATH AHEAD.

The death-throes of the S. L. P. are becoming violent. Publication of its Jewish party organ, the "Abendblatt," has been discontinued. A local of the S. T. & L. A. was recently expelled and the party is continuously "purified" by the expulsion of members for "treason." The whole subject of the Scab Trade and Labor Alliance is up for discussion in the columns of the "Peep" and the Alliance is roundly denounced by many members of the S. L. P. One day last week DeLeon's daily leaflet, "The Peep," came out in an edition de luxe, one column short of its usual size, and presenting some two-weeks-old news items for the refreshment of its up-to-date readers. Now comes the announcement that De Leon is soon to take a three months' vacation from his editorial labors without pay—which probably means that the astute Danny knows that the "People" is soon to die and doesn't want to act as undertaker. DeLeonism is about to expire, suffocated by the stench of its own rottenness; and thus one more obstacle in the path of the Socialist movement is cleared away.

But—there is a big "but" to be considered. Unless the members of the Socialist Party—in New York the Social Democratic Party—do their full duty, nothing will have been gained. The Socialist movement has been seriously impeded, especially in this state, by the antics of the S. L. P. The removal of that obstacle will be cause for rejoicing if our comrades go on vigorously with aggressive, constructive work—not otherwise. Six months remain before election. We should have two votes for the Social Democratic Party wherever there was one in 1900.

Comrades, it is up to you. Don't be satisfied with the removal of an obstacle. Forward, on the road to victory.

The Senator from the New York Central says that the railroad presidents have done more to promote American prosperity than the United States Senate. That is pretty hard on the Senate, but it is probably true. We know, pretty accurately, how much the railroad companies steal—$500,000,000 a year—and how many people they kill and maim in the process—in round numbers, forty thousand a year. Those are the elements of capitalist prosperity—robbery and incidental murder. It is doubtful if the United States Senate or any governmental body in history can rival the record of the railroad companies. Depew—"Senator as an incident in his railroad career"—knows whereof he speaks.

Every action of a prominent member of the ruling class has generally two ascertainable motives—a class motive and a personal one. Thus it is with Senator Hanna in his new rôle of peacemaker between Capital and Labor. He wishes to serve the capitalist class to which he belongs. But he is not sacrificing himself personally to any great extent. The same course by which he serves his class may help to carry him to the presidential chair over the head of the strenuous Roosevelt. Thus he may kill two birds with one stone—Roosevelt, the Gamecock, and Labor, the Goose.

CURRENT COMMENT.

By Charles Dobbs.

Butcher Kitchener in South Africa mercifully refrains from shooting Boer Commandant Kruitzinger, who has been "acquitted" after a trial on cooked-up charges similar to those used as a pretext for taking Commandant Scheepers from a hospital and shooting him like a dog. The murder of Scheepers, in violation of all laws of war, together with the revelation of atrocities committed by the Australian officers, have evidently alarmed the War Office in London, and resulted in an order to the Butcher to let up a little in his "vigorous measures." When the indignation of the humanitarians simmers down and the aforesaid humanitarians have smugly congratulated themselves on having softened "the severity of war," Kitchener will resume his butchering at the same old stand.

The Census Bureau's shoe industry statistics, showing that while the number of wage-workers increased 7 per cent. in ten years and the value of their product increased 18 per cent., the total wages decreased 3 per cent., hardly bear out the soothing capitalist claim that the worker is getting "an ever-increasing portion of an ever-increasing product." But maybe the capitalist meaning is that the worker "gets it in the neck."

Another "friend of the laboring man" is seeing visions, and this time it is Rabbi Emil G. Hirsch of Chicago, whose prophetic eyes sees "the day when steam shall be dethroned through the development of electricity," with the following interesting results:

"The factory system of to-day will become unnecessary, and in every house power can be brought, which will drive each wheel for the artizan in his own little workshop. The masses, which are causing the students of sociology so much study, will disintegrate until they become not independent but interdependent artisans—artists in their work, who shall have the opportunity to develop the best within them."

Of course nobody denies that in the evolution from individual handicraft to collective labor much has been lost in the artistic character of the product, but Dr. Hirsch prattles away with apparently no conception of the fact that the development of power is only one detail of the industrial evolution. It is in the tool that the transformation has been most astonishing, and the good rabbi doesn't see that the return to the day of individual tools and "the artisan in his own little workshop" involves the impossible—the wiping out of the great machines. Art and industry need not be divorced, and undersans to be artists and have "the opportunity to develop the best within them," but Dr. Hirsch evidently prefers not to see it, preferring his own grotesque visions.

Railroad Magnate Seward Webb declines to accept the Governorship of Vermont, preferring, no doubt, to conduct the office by proxy.

Twice the American people have invited Mr. Bryan to sit down, and now he goes way back to the barn to do it. But maybe this apparently cheerful compliance with the popular behest is only a sly dodge to snuggle still closer to the heart of the farmer.

A St. Petersburg dispatch gives apparently authentic details of the recent mutiny of the Russian troops at Tula, when the soldiers refused to fire on the strikers. It appears that on the refusal of the soldiers to obey the murderous order the officer in command endeavored to kill the sergeant, whereupon the men bayonetted the officer. This fraternization of soldiers with the people is a possibility that is troubling not only Russia but other countries where military service is compulsory. For this reason regiments for anti-strike duty are being carefully selected in France, and the bloodthirsty German Emperor's speech enjoining a regiment of his soldiers that they should not hesitate to shoot down their own flesh and blood in defense of his own sacred self shows that a civil war would make the loyalty of the troops to the throne very problematical. Military discipline is calculated to make men mere murdering machines, but the ruling class of Russia, Germany, France, Italy and all Europe are noting abundant signs that the soldiers are being impregnated with the "seditious" teaching that their first duty is to their brethren, the people, and not to the government of their enemies.

—We shall all agree, I suppose, that whatever tends to divide men and to create strife and fratricide is wrong; and that, on the other hand, whatever tends to unite men in bonds of co-operation and mutual service is right, quite irrespective of religious dogma. By that agreement capitalism is condemned and Socialism establishes a claim upon your lives.—John Spargo, in "Where We Stand."

BERNSTEIN AND BERNSTEINISM.

By Ernest Untermann.

(Concluded.)

Bernstein's lecture "Wie ist wissenschaftlicher Sozialismus möglich?" ("How is scientific Socialism possible?") has rasied even more dust than his critical book. The capitalist press has wielded it so vigorously that according to them scientific Socialism must now be in its death agonies. If we investigate the drift of the lecture and add what Bernstein himself declares to be its correct interpretation, and if we consider that the lecture was given shortly after his return from exile, only a few months before the national convention at Lübeck, we cannot help quoting Bernstein against himself: "At the moment of an important action, even the materially most justifiable critique may be evil and therefore objectionable." 10.

Under ordinary circumstances nobody would have paid much attention to the lecture. As it was, nobody took it seriously but the capitalists and the Bernsteinians themselves. The latter—oh, irony of fate!—misinterpreted it entirely. So that between the sarcasms of Kautsky, Parvus, and others, and the zealous but wrong conclusions of his admirers and false friends, Bernstein was kept busy telling the world what he really meant to say and what others made him say.

Rappaport, in the "Revue Socialiste," August, 1901, came to the following conclusion: "To Bernstein's question: Is scientific Socialism possible? we reply: Yes. Socialism is possible as a science, but under the condition that it ceases to be exclusively Marxian. In other words, scientific Socialism is founded on the integral development of the individual. . . . The economic conception of Socialism takes only a part of human development into account. In order that this part may become a whole, it must be completed by a philosophical system the firmness of which has never been tested. The Socialist doctrine will not acquire a scientific character until it succeeds in representing Socialism as the consequence of the universal moral, intellectual, subjective, and objective development of humanity. . . . The application of the theory of evolution to the subjective and objective factors of historical development as a whole, intellectual, moral, economic, political, juristic, and artistic, etc., will furnish us the solid basis for a truly scientific Socialist theory."

Bernstein calls this "interpreting Marxism with excessive narrowness." I should prefer to call it an absolute rejection of the economic conception of history and a destruction of the foundation on which scientific Socialism is raised. For the Marxian conception of history shows that no higher political, juristic, ethical, etc., development can take place until the economic basis of society is changed and thus a more favorable environment than the capitalistic created. Bernstein himself says: "Some years ago I exposed the self-deception that is involved in the idea that Marxian Socialism is free from ethical and other ideological elements, and pointed to the ethical character of so-called proletarian ideals." 12 But such inferences as Rappaport's are the logical deductions from Bernstein's criticism, and therefore I am tempted to say, I told you so. Moreover, Rappaport shares with the elite of the other so-called Bernsteinians the fate of being charged with a wrong interpretation, not only of Marx, but of Bernstein as well. Bernstein disclaims all parentage of the offspring who claim him as the father of their revisionism. So that in reality the Bernsteinians have as much right to assume their name as once upon a time the Marxists had to theirs.

But there are other close friends of Bernstein, who had the misfortune to misunderstand him. Auer, who was present at the lecture, went home with the impression that Bernstein had said there was no scientific Socialism and could not be any. And those who understood Bernstein best and were familiar with his complex mode of expression sharpened their wits and pens and pricked his fantastic image of unscientific scientific Socialism until it burst.

As is the case with all of Bernstein's critical performances, the clue of the whole mystery is again hidden in his interpretation of the cornerstone of his critique, in this case of science. If we accept his definition, he makes his point. And if there were such a thing as "pure science" we might let the matter rest right here as being a purely academic question. But science has no value for us until it becomes "applied science." In doing so, it passes beyond the pale of simple academic discussion and touches us as a political party whose principles are involved. We must discuss it in the open.

Bernstein stated his position in these words: "The term 'scientific Socialism' retains its full justification in my eyes when science is conceived in a critical sense, as a postulate and a program—as a demand made by Socialism on itself to the end that its will shall be determined by a scientific method and perception." Of Marxian Socialism he says that "the territory left free to the human imagination guided by will is drawn closer and its direction defined more accurately, but imagination has not entirely disappeared." 13

However, he must have felt that he had not been definite enough in his statements, and we find him redefining his position "more clearly" in "Der Kernpunkt des Streits" 14 ("The Kernel of the Controversy"): "Marxism conceives of the fight for Socialism as a class struggle between the modern laboring class and the capitalist classes and their retinue. It explains the FACT of this class struggle scientifically, i.e., by scientific investigation of modern society and its cledefine scientifically the historic ments, by the historic conditions of these classes. It also attempts to COURSE of this struggle. But here, where the future enters into the representation, a germ of a hypothesis slips in. And although it must be admitted not a "survival of the dangerous elements of Blanquism," but a scientific masterpiece.

Socialism as a science may "have other duties than the Social Democracy as a party," but the highest duty of Socialist science is the forging of weapons for the emancipation of the working class. Bernstein's criticisms have often forged weapons for the capitalist class. It is true that we cannot grow unless we uphold the principle of free speech and free criticism within the party. But we have the right to expect that a Socialist will couch his public utterances in such language that it cannot be construed as a compromise with bourgeois ideas or as an attack on Socialism. We may justly demand that the results of critical investigation be set forth in a manner plainly showing the tendency to serve the party, and not giving our antagonists ready-made material for sowing discord in our own ranks. Bernstein's ambiguous and one-sided mode of criticizing has for many years prepared just the kind of stuff which the capitalist press and politicians were looking for. Whatever good his critique might otherwise have done was thus counteracted and paralyzed by the influence of the capitalist press, not alone in Germany, but in all countries where Socialists fight for the cause. In fact, German Socialism has suffered least in comparison, for it had grown to full manhood when this attack came. But in those countries where the movement is going through its storm and stress period, where the party press is eking out a precarious existence and the number of class-conscious members is still limited, the influence of that ammunition from the Bernstein armory was deeply felt. Especially in the United States, Bernsteinism arrived at a time when the advocates of Bellamy socialism, Christian idealism, and bourgeois opportunism were flocking in great numbers into the movement, and their position was greatly strengthened by the vague and misleading form in which the capitalist press spread Bernstein's already ambiguous thoughts. If it had not been for the despised "final aim," on which we all agreed, it would have been difficult to create a united American Socialist party.

Only one redeeming feature I can find in all of Bernstein's critical efforts: Like Schaeffle, Sombart, and others, he has unconsciously demonstrated how securely the Socialist movement of the world rests on the foundations built by Marx and Engels.

The Socialist programs of the different countries will be revised and kept in accord with the progress of evolution in industry and science. But as the evolution of capitalism proceeds differently in different countries, the tactics of the Socialists in different countries must also differ. Industrial evolution and Socialist tactics alike tend to bring us nearer to the society of the future. Therefore the revisions of the different Socialist programs will be ever farther away from opportunism and nearer to the revolutionary final aim—the Co-operative Commonwealth.

—as I expressly did on page 22 of my lecture—that this hypothesis is still a part of science, it is nevertheless clear that this fact of belonging to science does not make hypothesis equivalent to science. Hypothesis, a conclusion derived by the rules of logic from empirically ascertained facts, rather loses more and more of its scientific strength the more intermediate links are placed between it and the empirical facts. . . . Does modern Socialism stop at that hypothesis which may still be termed scientific? Whoever says it does should remember that there is such a thing as a final Socialist aim. Is this final aim scientific, or is it linked to additions that no longer belong to the field of science, but to that of the will? . . . According to my opinion the fact of human will-power excludes the possibility to determine in advance the historical development beyond certain general propositions. . . . In order to define my position quite sharply: The Socialist doctrine is just so far a science as its theses may also be accepted by any unprejudiced non-socialist who is not influenced by any opposing interests."

Here we have scientific Socialism in a nutshell. Whether it is now scientific enough for Bernstein I cannot tell. Perhaps he will succeed in redefining and re-refining it still finer. At any rate, this is his intest. The "territory of imagination" does not seem to be entirely eliminated from it yet, probably because the FACT of Bernstein's will power entered into it so largely. That this will power is a fact, why, that is a fact for Bernstein. To some men who have as good a claim to scientific distinction as Bernstein has, it is not a fact. No matter. The unprejudiced nonsocialist who is so competent to interpret Marx and Bernstein, may also be a fact. For my part, I have discovered that he is so rare a species that we should try to preserve a perfect specimen in alcohol for future generations. At the same time we might succeed in apprehending a specimen, however tattered, of the opposing interests by which this unprejudiced nonsocialist was not influenced.

Without entering into the question of free will, I confine myself to saying that our will is influenced by our environment. And just because this is the case we have a means of drawing conclusions as to how our future social and political environment, the result of the reaction of the human will on the present social and political environment, will influence our will in the future. This conclusion was drawn by Marx in general propositions. So general are these propositions that Marx might have gone a great deal farther without impairing the scientific character of his work. In the "Voraussetzungen des Sozialismus" Marx is blamed for being too apodictical, too narrow; in this lecture of Bernstein he is blamed for not being narrow enough. But the unprejudiced non-socialist who is considered so capable of judging Marx, after the critical defenders of Marx have declined to accept Bernstein's expositions, that is the acme of scientific conception!

In the problem of the universe, science adds ever new known quantities to one side of the equation and reduces the xs, ys and zs on the other side. The more members of the equation are transferred from the side of the unknown quantities to that of the known, the farther and more accurately does our perception reach into the future. Thus astronomy made it possible to conclude from irregularities of the Uranus orbit that another planet, Neptune, existed outside of the then known limits of our solar system. Spherical trigonometry and the law of gravitation furnished the means of computing the mass and the orbit of Neptune and the place in the heavens where he could be discovered, even before this event became a fact. Pathology enables us to draw conclusions on the course of diseases and predict the death or recovery of a patient. This application of science enables us to forestall and evade disasters, plagues, accidents, and helps us to become masters of our environment. A whack over the head with a police club brings a striker to the conclusion that in the future he must keep out of reach of the policeman and leads his will to a philosophy that wishes to eliminate the policeman from the human environment.

The value of empirical science, then, lies mainly in that it enables us to draw inferences from past facts to future events and to take measures accordingly. In this sense the facts furnished by Marx and Engels are eminently scientific. They enabled the Socialists to predict the formation of trusts long before this result of industrial evolution became a fact. And they laid the foundation for the education and organization of the working class for the final aim—the conquest of the political power for the purpose of inaugurating a system of collectivism in the production and distribution of food, clothing and shelter. Their proposition is simply this: Given a system of capitalist production based on private property and antagonistic classes, and given a human element which educates the oppressed class, the moment must arrive when concentration of industries and class consciousness of the oppressed reach their climax. The moment must also arrive when the majority of the oppressed class, which is at the same time the majority of the nation, will assume control and maintain their supremacy. That this final aim will be realized without violence, Bernstein has yet to prove.

Marx and Engels never fixed a definite limit for the completion of industrial and intellectual evolution. In the "Communist Manifesto" they spoke of a violent overthrow of all existing conditions—this overthrow was never yet attempted by a majority of any nation's proletariat. In "Capital" even this allusion to violence is restricted to the phrase of the expropriation of a few usurpers by the mass of the people. This is a logical and justified deduction fully within the limits of applied science. To call it a hypothesis is interpreting science "with excessive narrowness." In short, the combination of theoretical economics and practical revolutionism is not a weakness.

10 Voraussetzungen des Sozialismus, page 168.
11 Sozialistische Monatshefte, No. 10, October, page 778.
12 Ibidem, page 783.
13 Wie ist wissenschaftlicher Sozialismus möglich.
14 Sozialistische Monatshefte, October, 1901, page 780.

Current Literature

All books and pamphlets mentioned in this column may be obtained through the Socialist Literature Company, 184 William street, New York.

Those who received the recent circulars announcing that our Italian comrade, Prof. Enrico Ferri, was preparing to publish a new Socialist review have been eagerly waiting for its appearance. The first number, dated February 25, fulfils the highest expectations. At the first glance, its artistic cover delights the eye; turning its pages, the excellent print causes admiration for the work of the Roman "Tipografia Co-operativa Sociale." On the cover, which is in three harmonious shades of brown, below the title, "Il Socialismo, a Fortnightly Review edited by Enrico Ferri," is a symbolical illustration of a builder raising a block of stone with a lever bearing the inscription, "In reason is might." The review is of nearly the size of "The Comrade" and has sixteen pages. It is published on the tenth and twenty-fifth of every month. The editor's address is "L'On. Prof. Enrico Ferri, via Montebello 2 E, Rome, Italy." The subscription and business address is "Il Socialismo, Rivista, via S. Claudio 57, Rome, Italy." The subscription, in Italy, is 5 lire ($1) a year; in foreign countries, L. 6. 25 ($1.25) a year, or 65 cents for six months. A sample copy costs five cents.

Prof. Ferri's purpose in founding his new review is best stated in his own words, so the "Program" is translated entire:

"The objects of this review are:

"First. To discuss, besides questions of present interest, the problems and doctrines of Socialism with regard to their fundamental principles and their particular applications, keeping active and predominant the revolutionary spirit of the Socialist Party.

"So, having also this tocsin, the Italian Socialists—always preserving intact the fraternal unity of the party, within the limits of the general platform—will be enabled more easily to guide their course in class-consciousness and in their daily political and economic activity.

"Second. To elucidate, from the Socialist view, the most characteristic manifestations of contemporary social life in the sciences and arts.

"Third. To give a complete chronicle, which is now lacking in Italy, of the international proletarian movement and of the various events that occur in the Socialist field abroad.

"Therefore our review in every number, with articles by the most noted Italian and foreign writers on Socialism and the social sciences, will contain an extensive and accurate bibliography of the Socialist books and pamphlets published in every country, a copious and precise review of the Socialist reviews, also with the analysis and inspection of articles regarding social problems published in other scientific and political reviews, news of the organizations and political and economic struggles of the international proletariat and of social legislation in foreign countries.

"Last, an illustrated page will reproduce the best pictures and caricatures from the illustrated periodicals of our party outside of Italy."

The first article, under the division "Current Politics," is by Prof. Ferri, on "The King's Speech." Karl Kautsky, in an article on "The Two Tendencies," discusses the differences in opinions among Socialists regarding the tactics to be followed in their relations with the reform and republican parties (the Left) of the bourgeoisie, which are now causing so many polemics in Europe. Dr. Gina Lombroso (a daughter of Prof. Cesare Lombroso) under "Woman's Work and Protective Laws," gives a long and appreciative review of Mrs. Charlotte Perkins Gilman's "very important book, 'Woman and Economics,' of which an Italian translation has recently been published by Signor Barbera in Florence." August Bebel has an article on "The Present Socialist Conditions in Germany." H. Quelch writes on "The Labor Movement in England." There are letters from eminent Socialists of different countries accepting invitations to become contributors. Oda Lerda Olberg gives a review of the most important recent articles of the German Socialist press.

AGNES WAKEFIELD.

"The Social Utilization of Crime" is the rather startling title of the opening article in the April number of the "International Socialist Review." Under this title Enrico Ferri writes of crime from the point of view of the modern scientific school of penologists, who treat it "as a natural phenomenon, which may be socially useful and made more or less serviceable to society." May Wood Simons writes on "Art and Socialism." W. I. Brown contributes "An Open Letter from a Catholic to Pope Leo." An anonymous article on "The Professional Outlook" is a suggestive, though not exhaustive, study of the effects of modern capitalism especially upon the medical profession. "Marxist" writes on "Sociological Laws and Historical Fatalism." The article is well-meant, but not, as it seems to us, particularly illuminative of the subject. Other articles are by N. A. Richardson on "Labor, Capital, and China," and J. W. Summers on "Socialism and Science." The editorial on "Recent Developments in Opportunism" we shall probably take the liberty to reproduce entire.

We referred last week to the large number of articles on Socialism now appearing in various magazines—many of them hostile, many of them far from intelligent, but showing, nevertheless, a growth of general interest in the subject. A still more hopeful sign is the increasing amount of space being given to Socialism in the trade union papers, more especially in the local ones, controlled by central bodies in the smaller industrial cities. Hardly a copy of any of these papers comes to our desk that does not contain some article, original or quoted, explaining Socialist principles or heralding the growth of the Socialist movement. All the Socialist papers are liberally "clipped" and The Worker is probably more extensively quoted in the labor press than any other paper, large or small, in the country. What makes this indication still more encouraging is that a large part of the articles referred to are in explanation of the class struggle, which seems to us the most vital point in Socialist theory.

New Books.

Clodd, E. Biography of Thomas Henry Huxley. New York: Dodd, Mead & Co. Cloth, $1.

Hutchinson, H. N. The living races of mankind; a popular illustrated account of the customs, habits and pursuits of the races of mankind throughout the world. New York: Appleton & Co. 1902. $5.

Ritchie, D. Life and writings of Plato and his contemporaries. New York: Scribner. 1902. Cloth, $1.25.

The Adventures of John McCue. Socialist Library: 10 cents.

WAR THE FINAL STAGE OF ECONOMIC COMPETITION.

As soon as a rudimentary division of labor begins, men must exchange their superfluity against their needs, and accordingly the market town is coeval with civilization. Yet to use the market at the town there must be roads, and to render the roads available there must be police, and to enforce bargains made at the market there must be courts, and, in fine, an administrative machinery has always existed at these foci of exchanges which has created the capital city. The size of the region tributary to the capital depends, other things being equal, on the facility of travel. For example, a dozen little kingdoms once flourished together in the valley of the Euphrates. But as movement is accelerated such petty states sink into provinces, and the provinces consolidate into an empire. Finally, as the highways stretch out across continents, these empires link themselves in economic systems having common interests, since they draw their subsistence, in part, from the traffic on the international road. Furthermore, sooner or later, the time is apt to arrive when distant termini become connected by rival routes, and then competing economic systems are generated, one or the other of which must be undersold. But to be undersold means to be ruined, and hence it has happened that, from an epoch inconceivably remote, hostile systems have fought with and crushed one another, and for this reason it may be laid down as an axiom that the final stage of economic competition is war. —Brooks Adams, in Atlantic Monthly.

WILL STUDY SOCIALISM.

The Flint, Mich., University Extension League has chosen Socialism as the subject of the next course of lectures, which will be delivered by Prof. Ira W. Howarth, of Chicago University. In consideration of the selection of this subject, the Central Labor Union of Flint has agreed to purchase a hundred tickets for the course. In a parting talk from the local league, Prof. E. E. Sparks, who delivered this season's course in Flint, said in referring to the subject for next winter: "Time was when Socialists were associated in the popular mind with long hair, bombs, and other anarchistic tendencies; but it is beginning to be understood that the Socialist of to-day stands for the betterment of mankind."

—When a lamb has been through his first experience in Wall Street, he generally feels more sheepish.—Washington Times.

Our Esteemed Contemporaries (and OTHERS)

The Socialist, Seattle, Wash.

Another of the leading Socialist papers of the country has been compelled to speak out on the subject of Socialism according to "The Appeal."

Probably in no other state is "The Appeal" taken so generally as Washington, and in no other state is it more worshipped. It was therefore supposed to be the death of "The Socialist" when it dared to point out that "The Appeal" was not teaching Socialism.

Now all the Socialist weeklies of any prominence—except "The Social Democratic Herald" of Milwaukee—have one by one been obliged, for the good of the party, to take the same attitude toward "The Appeal" as we have done.

Some comrades seem to think we have acted from some innate wickedness or culpable self-interest in face of the fact that many of our friends warned us we were committing suicide by thus flying in the face of so many of our supporters.

But we owe our highest duty to the cause of Socialism, and should speak the truth as we see it, if every other paper in the land were silent. We observe with the greatest gratification, however, that the Socialist press is practically unanimous in condemning the advocacy of State Socialism first and Democratic Socialism afterward.

Puck.

It is reported on reliable authority that the Amalgamated Association of Bulgarian Brigands has petitioned the Sublime Porte for a subsidy. There is nothing new, of course, in the arguments advanced. The petition sets forth the number of men employed, the high rate of wages, and the consequent high standard of living, and the amount of business done, which shows a gratifying increase over the corresponding period of any preceding year. It is pointed out, however, that this phenomenal prosperity, now the wonder of the world, cannot continue without government aid. Without a subsidy, it is claimed, the Bulgarian brigand must quickly sink to the level of the pauper brigands of Greece and Sicily. The attention of the Sublime Porte is also called to the fact that the money earned in this industry remains in the country and is spent to develop the home market. In this respect it differs radically from the money, if any, used to pay creditors, which is at once sent abroad. It is even suggested that if the subsidy were made large enough the Bulgarian brigands might be able to live on it in comfort without robbing any foreign travelers at all, thereby increasing the popularity of Bulgaria among tourists and relieving the Sublime Porte from the possibility of grave international complications. The Sultan is said to have received the Bulgarian deputation graciously and expressed his regret that, in the present state of Turkish finances there would be nothing doing.

The Comrade.

Between the Peace Conference at the Hague and the recent Industrial Peace Conference in New York there exists a striking parallel. * * * The cry of Peace once again served its purpose. * * *

There had recently been a great battle between the Steel Trust and its employees, and, although victory had rested with the trust, it was still too costly a war for His August Majesty Pierpont Morgan and his advisers to regard lightly. The men, however, were sullen in their defeat, and vowed their intention to make yet another attempt whenever the opportunity to strike should present itself. Under any circumstances the Steel Trust could not well afford this, but there were special reasons why such a strike in the near future might prove a positive menace. To begin with, there was the movement in the British steel industry which has since resulted in the formation of a rival trust there, and a similar movement in Germany apparently imminent. It is fairly obvious that in the event of a battle between the rival trusts of Great Britain and America, neither party could afford to be hampered by internecine strife. It is fairly obvious also that in the event of such a battle between the rivals the sullen steel workers would see their coveted opportunity to avenge themselves.

Under such circumstances, what could be more natural than that His August Majesty of the Steel Trust, following the brilliant example of His August Majesty, the Czar, should desire a "Peace Conference?"

Mark Hanna, whose crocodile tears and professions of love for organized labor actually deceived some "Labor Leaders," is the Count Muravieff of the new commercial diplomacy. It is worthy of note that in England a "friendly conference" between masters and men was held at which the former sought the co-operation of the latter in their struggle against the American invasion. It is indeed a pretty study!

THE OX AND THE LABORER.

Overseer—Last night I heard the ox Nobile coughing—he acts sick.

Proprietor—Is that so? Put him in the sunniest stall and be careful the wind doesn't blow on him. Give him as much hay as he wants. Such a valuable ox! 'Twon't be well for you if you let him die. Run for the doctor!

Overseer—Gigi, the laborer, who works in the vineyard, had the fever all night, and has sent somebody to say he can't come to work this morning.

Proprietor—Well, how can I help it if he is sick! Find somebody else to take his place. The work can't wait till Gigi gets well!—From "Sempre Avanti" (Forward Forever) Turin, Italy.—Translated for "The Coming Nation."

—The individual proletarian can accomplish his own redemption only with the redemption of his whole class. The consummation cannot, however, be reached without the collective ownership by the people of their instruments of production—that is, by the Co-operative Commonwealth.—Karl Kautsky.

PARTY NOTES.

The financial secretaries of subdivisions of Local New York are requested to send in their quarterly financial and membership reports to the Organizer at once.

Readers of this paper in the 7th, 9th, and 25th A. D. are requested to attend the meeting of the organization of the Social Democratic Party on Saturday evening, April 19, at Comrade Wecklein's house, 508 W. Twenty-sixth street, top floor. Come all and perfect the organization in these districts.

At last Friday's meeting of the 6th and 10th A. D. in the Labor Lyceum it was voted to take 100 copies of "May Flowers" and pay for them from the treasury. Members are requested to be present on April 25 to receive copies as well as to account for tickets for the May Concert. Two dollars was appropriated for the May Day Conference and delegates instructed to vote for parade. A communication was received from the Carl Sahm Club defining their relations with Local 41. The Worker distribution committee reported 31 copies sold on stands. "Railroading in the United States" is also being sold on the stands and otherwise circulated. At the next meeting members should account for tickets for the Commune Festival, so that affairs may be settled up, as well as for the affair of Feb. 22. Comrade Anton Eberle, recently arrived from Hamburgh, showing a clear membership card, was received as a member, subject to action of General Committee. One other member was proposed.

The 31st A. D. will give an entertainment and hop at Majestic Hall, 125 East One Hundred and Twenty-fifth street, Sunday evening, April 27. Admission is 25 cents. Uptown comrades and friends are desired to help make the affair a success.

The 21st A. D. took one hundred tickets for the May Concert and had already sold fifty of them last week.

The course of Sunday evening lectures and debates conducted during the past winter at Colonial Hall by the 21st A. D. branch will be continued for a few weeks more, when they will give way to out-door agitation work. The attendance at many of these lectures was very gratifying to the comrades, while others were but indifferently attended. As a whole we regard the lectures as being a success from every standpoint. As a rule they were self-sustaining, several new party members were secured and a large quantity of books, pamphlets, etc., was sold and distributed. In August the branch proposes to give an entertainment and reception on the roof garden of Colonial Hall, and Comrades Dunn, Kanely and Cassidy have the matter in charge. This branch is fortunate in having among its members such tireless crusaders for Socialism as Comrades Mrs. Hall, Miss Daubman and Ed. Martin, and it is regrettable that some of their enthusiasm could not be transmitted to the invisible members of this branch. Wake up, comrades, attend the meetings, and lend a hand in the work laid out for the summer months and we will double our vote in this district next election day.

Important meeting of New York Socialist Literary Society on Monday evening, April 21, at 117 Forsyth street.

Comrade Wood spoke on the class struggle at Colonial Hall, One Hundred and First street and Columbus avenue last Sunday. His talk was listened to with interest and a good discussion followed. Henry Slobodin will speak next Sunday evening on "The Law of Struggle and Co-operation." All are invited.

At the Socialist Propaganda Club, 102 Court street, Brooklyn, on Sunday evening, April 20, the discussion will take the form of a symposium on "Socialism and the Home," with the following speakers: Miss Welsel, "The Children;" Mrs. Cooke, "The Home;" Miss Hayes, "The Clothing;" Mrs. Bethge, "The Food;" Mrs. Fraser, "What Women Can Do." Admission is free.

The 12th A. D. will have a public debate on Friday, April 5, at the Great Central Palace, 96 Clinton street, second floor. The subject is "Municipal Ownership and the Socialist Party." The debate will start at 8 o'clock sharp. Admission is free. After the debate a business meeting will take place. All comrades are urgently requested to attend the meeting, as there is important business to be transacted.

Frederick Krafft spoke on "Is Our Country a Republic?" at Labor Lyceum, Stapleton, last Sunday. Seven yearly subscriptions for The Worker were obtained and a goodly amount of literature sold. Comrade Krafft never speaks without making a strong appeal for subscriptions, and generally with excellent results. Other speakers please copy.

The New York class of the Mills School of Social Economy will hold its sessions on Thursday evenings at the Socialist Educational League's rooms, 215 E. Fifty-ninth street.

The last meeting of the Executive Committee of Massachusetts Socialist Clubs was held April 9, with Page, Goldstein, Porter, and Mailly present and Page in the chair. It was voted that Secretary instruct Comrade Sherman (absent) to turn over records of last state convention at or before next meeting. The report of temporary Financial Secretary-Treasurer Goldstein was read, audited, found correct, and ordered published. The report of Organizer Mailly was accepted and a bill of $17.77 presented by him ordered paid; also voted to pay bills of 90 cents incurred in distributing campaign leaflets; $21.45 to Goldstein in payment of loan made to Committee on Nov. 23; $25 to National Secretary on account of dues. The following resolution, from the Boston Central Committee was accepted and its recommendations endorsed: "Resolved, To request the State Propaganda Committee to compile a list of speakers available, with their terms and other matters of general interest, and forward the same to the secretaries of the trade unions of the state." A charter was granted to Walpole. The next meeting will be held Wednesday, April 23, at 7:30 p. m.

At the Boston Central Committee meeting held on April 8 the Financial Secretary submitted his quarterly report as follows: Income, $48.30; expenditures, $32; balance on April 1, $10.69. The Financial Secretary was instructed to notify all branches of their indebtedness. The May Day Committee reported having engaged the Paine Memorial Hall for May 4; Hanford, Carey, and MacCartney will speak; admission is free. The Organizer was ordered to purchase $5 worth of "Railroading in the United States," and also to look after the permit for Sunday meetings on the Common.

H. Gaylord Wilshire will speak in Fitchburg, Mass., on April 26, and Worcester, April 27. A meeting may also be arranged in Cambridge for April 28.

On Sunday, April 20, Representatives Carey and MacCartney will address a mass meeting of Boston railroad men to be held in Paine Memorial Hall. The meeting has been called to show appreciation of the two Socialist representatives' efforts on behalf of the railroad men's bills in the legislature. The City Committee has ordered several hundred copies of Hanford's "Railroading in the United States" for the occasion.

On Monday next, Representative MacCartney addresses a women's club in Allston on Socialism. The club is one of the most prominent within the radius of Boston.

The comrades of Bristol County, Mass., have arranged meetings in New Bedford on April 26 and Taunton on April 27. Carey and MacCartney will be the speakers.

Comrade Turi Delp, Box 212, Duquesne, Pa., is our agent in that place, and will take subscriptions for The Worker. Comrades, call on him and renew your subscriptions. Also help him hustle up others.

Across one side of the principal leaflet used in the recent city campaign in Toledo was printed, in bold type, this suggestive sentence: "At the ballot-box the workers have the power; at the bread-box the capitalists have the power."

John C. Chase addressed meetings of the trade unions at Colchester, Girard, Millwood, White, and Taylorville, Ill., this week.

Comrade John C. Chase will lecture before Scandinavian Local Union No. 194 of the Brotherhood of Painters and Paperhangers of America, in Chicago, April 22, on "The Class Struggle and the Future State."

Comrade John W. Saunders, state organizer in Illinois, will be in Towanda, April 20; Lincoln, April 21; Clinton, April 23; Decatur, April 24; Springfield, April 26; Taylorville, April 27; and Pana, April 28. At the desire of the Pana comrades, the organizer will work for a week and possibly longer at Pana and the neighboring towns, where there seems to be an unusually favorable opening for the Socialist Party.

Comrade John Collins is on a lecture tour in Indiana.

Kentucky Socialists are hard at work. The State Committee elected at the recent convention in Newport consists of the following comrades: A. L. Nagel of Newport; Chas. E. Dobbs of Louisville, A. A. Lewis of Covington, J. H. Pocock of Bellevue, and F. E. Seeds of Covington. The Secretary is A. A. Lewis, 331 Scott street, Covington. Every Socialist in the state who is not already enrolled in the party organization is requested to write to Comrade Lewis at once and try to form a local in his vicinity.

Utah held state convention April 7 at Salt Lake City, pursuant to call of National Committeeman Boomer.

Comrade Cowley of Seattle, Wash., has been arrested for speaking six times during the last month and acquitted every time.

The California comrades have elected two State Organizers—M. W. Wilkins, of Oakland, for the Northern portion of the State, and Edgar B. Helphingstine, of San Diego, for the Southern.—Spanish speaking workingmen in California are raising funds for the relief of the persecuted strikers in Spain. Local San Francisco of the Socialist Party has lent its assistance.—Local San Francisco holds propaganda meetings every Sunday evening in Academy of Sciences Hall. Comrade Mills is also giving a series of ten Sunday afternoon lectures in Metropolitan Temple.—Comrades Morris and Darrah are still on the road in Southern California and doing good work.—The party has to get 12,000 signatures to nomination petitions in order to get candidates on the State ballot. This is a big job, but the comrades are "hustling" to finish it up early and get down to campaign work. One man in Frisco, Comrade Holmes, had already got 250 signatures on April 3. Many others are working well.

The National Committee of the Socialist Party has just concluded a referendum of the whole committee on the following:

"Resolved, That a lecture bureau be established at national headquarters for the express purpose of directly furnishing trade unions (whether Socialist or non-Socialist) with Socialist speakers, who are well informed on trade union and general labor questions; that such bureau be known as the 'Labor Lecture Bureau' for the education of the working class on labor, social and economic questions;' that the National Secretary be instructed to have printed letter-heads and envelopes with the above heading; that the National Secretary be authorized to act as secretary of said lecture bureau and communicate with trade unions in said capacity." Proposition carried by a vote of 16 to 1. The state committees of Missouri, Nebraska, Maine, Minnesota, and Kentucky have indorsed the form of Financial Secretary's Report Book which has just been issued by the National Committee, and instructed the National Secretary to supply same direct to the locals in said states. The Missouri state committee has ordered a similar book for ward clubs in St. Louis and large cities with an additional sheet (making a four copy report), the extra sheet to be sent by Financial Secretary of ward club to Secretary of City Central Committee.

FOR THE NATIONAL PROPAGANDA FUND.

An Appeal by the National Committee to All Party Members and Sympathizers.

To the State and Local Organizations of the Socialist Party.

Comrades:—At the meeting of the National Committee in this city on January 24, 25, and 26, 1902, the work that has thus far been accomplished by the national organization and the means of continuing the same were taken under advisement, and after due consideration, we decided to issue this appeal to the state and local organizations and to all of the comrades of our party for such amounts as each may be able to contribute as donations to a National Propaganda Fund.

The purposes of this fund are to enable us to continue the great and far-reaching task already begun of giving the greatest possible degree of general publicity to the aims and methods of the Socialist Party; to extend the influence of our party as a vital political factor, especially in the various economic organizations of the working class; to be the means of communicating advice to and co-operating with comrades in their efforts to agitate, organize, and educate the proletariat; and to assist the local and state organizations and the Socialist press in general in extending the scope of their respective activities.

Official records show that 470,000 pieces of printed supplies, especially intended for party organization, have been used throughout the country since the Unity Convention designed by and supplied through the agency of the National Committee. The National Secretary's report, showing an increase of membership in good standing of 50 per cent. since the Unity Convention, is eloquent evidence of the splendid achievements of our comrades in the townships, cities, counties, states, and territories.

During the past six months the demands of all kinds upon your National Committee from every section of the country have been far beyond our resources, and we have been repeatedly handicapped by lack of funds. At this writing, while the business of the party is increasing heavily from day to day, our financial receipts are not sufficient to enable us to meet the most important requirements of the party work, and it is urgently necessary that the comrades render immediate financial aid to the national organization.

As a means to this end we again call the attention of the comrades to the National Propaganda Fund. Donations to this fund should be sent to the National Secretary, and will be acknowledged weekly in the Socialist press.

LEON GREENBAUM,
National Secretary.
427 Emilie Bldg., St. Louis.

By order National Committee, Socialist Party.

Donations to Propaganda Fund received as follows:

Amount reported to April 5	$277.08
Local San Bernardino, Cal	3.00
J. LaVigne, Beverly, Mass.	.25
13th A. D., New York	2.00
Branch 1, Manchester-Townsihp, N. J.	3.00
Branch 1, Passaic City, N. J.	2.00
W. C. Wagner, St. Louis	1.00
Total to April 12	$288.33

Don't write on both sides of paper.

CORRE-SPONDENCE

Don't send anonymous letters.

Try the Experiment.

Editor of The Worker.

New Jersey is the greatest railway state in the Union. Nowhere do the railway companies, in close alliance with the trolley companies, work their men harder, treat them worse, or exploit their labor more intensely; nowhere do they treat the rights of the public, individually or in communities, with more contempt; nowhere do they more completely control legislators, aldermen, and judges in their own interest. Moreover, there is no state in the Union so large a proportion of whose people ride daily to and from their work by railroad or trolley.

On account of these facts, New Jersey offers precisely the best conditions for the use of Ben Hanford's excellent pamphlet, "Railroading in the United States," for propaganda. Any comrade can afford to spend a dollar in this sort of work during the next three or four months—before the actual campaign begins. One dollar will buy forty copies of the pamphlet. These can be put into the hands of engineers, firemen, conductors, brakemen, switchmen, ticket agents, and trolley employees—given to them personally, with a friendly request that they read it, and pass it on. Some will not read it, doubtless. At least half of them will. Some who read it will not appreciate it nor even take the trouble to give it to others. A larger proportion will read and think and discuss the matter with others, and will be ready for other literature.

Counting all the chances of copies being thrown away, it is safe to say that 10,000 copies put out in this way would reach at least 10,000 readers, and would make at least one thousand new Socialist votes by next November. The mere fact of the pamphlet being given out in large quantities in a systematic way will call attention to it and arouse curiosity—which is the first step toward intelligent interest.

A JERSEYMAN.

As to May Day.

Editor of The Worker.

With amazement I have taken notice of the transactions of the May Day Conference as far as that body has transacted their duties.

With amazement I say, and will repeat the same, for the simple reason that I, being a Socialist for the past twelve years in Amsterdam, Holland, and being aware of the fact that the Socialist movement is international, and therefore identical throughout the so-called civilized countries of the world, that all ceremonies, as well as the May Day Parade, is going to take place by the American Socialists, NOT on the First of May.

Now some comrades of my acquaintance have given me imaginary reasons for the same. Among them was one that astonished me the most, and well, that our masters would never consent to let us take a day off in the middle of a week.

I wish to say right here, comrades! and it has been said all over Europe before I did, that, being that we are slaves EVERY DAY we should show them to have the courage to be free JUST ONE DAY. We have had to go through the same experience in every other country, and sure enough if they see that we are in earnest, they will have to take to it.

I therefore as a Socialist think it no more than proper, where our movement is international, that we should abide by the international actions of our world's comrades, and in the future all demonstrate our movement on the same day with them, the First of May, the worker's ONLY festal day.

R. ZWART.

OFFICIAL

NATIONAL EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE.—Secretary, Leon Greenbaum, Room 427, Emilie Bldg., St. Louis, Mo.

NEW YORK STATE COMMITTEE.—Secretary, Leonard D. Abbott, 64 E. 4th st., New York. Meets every Tuesday at 8 p. m., at above place.

CALIFORNIA STATE COMMITTEE.—Secretary, Thos. Bersford, 609 Stevenson street, San Francisco. Meets on first and third Fridays in the month.

COLORADO STATE COMMITTEE.—Secretary, Chas. La Kamp, P. O. Box 144, Goldfield.

CONNECTICUT STATE COMMITTEE.—A. B. Cornelius, Secretary, Room 8, 740 Chapel street, New Haven. Meets second and fourth Sunday of the month at above place.

ILLINOIS STATE COMMITTEE.—Secretary, Chas. H. Kerr, 56 Fifth avenue, Chicago. Meets first Tuesday of the month, at 1202 Ashland Block.

INDIANA STATE COMMITTEE.—Secretary, Jas. Oneal, 831 N. Third street, Terre Haute.

IOWA STATE COMMITTEE.—Secretary, W. A. Jacobs, 216 E. Sixth street, Davenport.

KANSAS STATE COMMITTEE.—Secretary-Treasurer, W. L. Nixon, Abilene.

KENTUCKY STATE COMMITTEE.—Secretary, A. A. Lewis, 331 Scott street, Covington.

MAINE STATE COMMITTEE.—Secretary, Fred E. Irish, 322 Riverside street, Woodfords.

MASSACHUSETTS STATE COMMITTEE.—Secretary, Squire E. Putney, 4, Belmont Court, Somerville.—State Committee of Massachusetts Socialist Clubs, Secretary, Winfield P. Porter, 614 Windrop Building, Boston; Organizer, Wm. Mailly, same address, to whom all matters concerning organization should be addressed.

MICHIGAN STATE COMMITTEE.—Secretary, John A. C. Menton, 1315 Saginaw street, Flint.

MINNESOTA STATE COMMITTEE.—Secretary, Geo. H. Lockwood, 125 Nicollet avenue.

MISSOURI STATE COMMITTEE.—Secretary-Treasurer, E. Val Putnam, Room 9, 22 N. Fourth street, St. Louis.

NEBRASKA STATE COMMITTEE.—Secretary, George E. Baird, 1804 N. Sixteenth street, Omaha.

NEW JERSEY STATE COMMITTEE.—Secretary, M. M. Goebel, 14 Bridge street, Newark. Meets second Sunday of the month, at 3 p. m., at 124 Market street, Newark, N. J.

NEW HAMPSHIRE STATE COMMITTEE.—Secretary, Louis Arustein, 18 Watson street, Dover.

NORTH DAKOTA STATE COMMITTEE.—Secretary, Arthur Bassett, Fargo.

OHIO STATE COMMITTEE.—Secretary, W. G. Critchlow, 26 Pruden Bldg., Dayton. Meets every Monday evening.

OREGON STATE COMMITTEE.—Secretary, W. S. Richards, Albany.

OKLAHOMA TERRITORIAL COMMITTEE.—Secretary-Treasurer, Dr. H. R. Dean, P. O. Box 1116, Oklahoma City.

PENNSYLVANIA STATE COMMITTEE.—Secretary, J. Mahlon Barnes, 1922 Arch street; Treasurer, Jos. K. Edelman, 806 W. Cambria street, Philadelphia.

PUERTO RICO TERRITORIAL COMMITTEE.—Secretary, Saturnino Sosa, San Juan.

TEXAS STATE COMMITTEE.—Secretary, S. J. Hampton, Bonham.

WASHINGTON STATE COMMITTEE.—Secretary, Geo. W. Scott, 86 Virginia street, Seattle. Meets first Sunday in the month, 3 p. m., at 220 Union street.

WISCONSIN STATE COMMITTEE.—Secretary, E. H. Thomas, 614 State street, Milwaukee.

NOTICE—For technical reasons, no Party announcements can go in that are not in this office by Tuesday, 3 p. m.

NATIONAL SECRETARY'S NOTICE.

ST. LOUIS, Mo., April 12, 1902.

To the State and Local Organizations of the Socialist Party—Comrades:

In accordance with instructions, we have submitted to a referendum of the state and local organizations, the following:

Question Number 1. Shall the national constitution be amended so that Article 6, Section 4, will conclude as follows:

Provided, That the National Committee shall have power to arrange inter-state lecture tours with such locals as may desire?

Question 2. Shall the official Party emblem be a red flag (in the shape of a flag), bearing the words "Socialist Party" in white letters?

Question 3. Shall the official party emblem be a globe with hands clasped across, surrounded with a circle of red, bearing the words in black letters, "Socialist Party," "Workers of the World, Unite!"

The result of this referendum is as follows:

Total vote on Question No. 1, 4,041.
Total yes on Question No. 1, 3,420; no, 621.
Majority in favor of Question No. 1, 2,799.
Total vote on Question No. 2, 2,845.
Total yes on Question No. 2, 617; no, 2,203.
Majority against Question No. 2, 1,586.
Total vote on Question No. 3, 3,282.
Total yes on Question No. 3, 2,722; no, 560.
Majority in favor of Question No. 3, 2,162.

According to these results you are hereby notified:

First.—That Article 6, Section 4, of the national constitution has been amended as provided in Question 1.

Second.—That the red flag has been defeated as the party emblem.

Third.—That the globe with hands clasped across has been adopted as the party emblem.

LEON GREENBAUM,
National Secretary.

VOTE BY STATES.

The vote by states on Question 1, as stated above is here given in tabular form. The vote on the other two questions is crowded out of this issue.

	Yes.	No.
Alabama	23	2
Arizona	9	1
Arkansas	23	..
California	227	3
Colorado	109	4
Connecticut	77	62
Delaware	7	..
Florida	15	1
Idaho	38	..
Illinois	238	63
Indiana	370	5
Iowa	83	..
Kansas	179	..
Kentucky	90	..
Maine	17	..
Maryland	20	..
Massachusetts	294	60
Minnesota	119	29
Missouri	252	3
Montana	16	5
Nebraska	25	1
New Hampshire	59	..
New Jersey	151	41
New Mexico	37	..
New York	264	35
North Dakota	31	..
Ohio	124	100
Oklahoma	55	5
Oregon	135	85
Pennsylvania	66	..
Rhode Island	28	..
South Dakota	9	..
Tennessee	14	..
Texas	23	..
Utah	83	..
Vermont	5	..
West Virginia	7	71
Wisconsin	46	179
Wyoming	14	..
Total	3,420	621

Letter Box

RENEWAL.—Receipts are never sent for individual subscriptions. To do so would involve an expense of several hundred dollars a year for postage and the labor of an additional clerk. Moreover it is unnecessary. The number on the wrapper of your paper shows how long your subscription has yet to run. This number is changed when money is received, and this serves as an acknowledgment.

J. H. S.—There is no occasion for us to reconsider our position. We did not say that "a man can make himself a Socialist by merely voting the Socialist ticket." We did say that men do not (with few exceptions) vote the Socialist ticket unless they are Socialists; that the political work of the Socialist Party is a work of education, teaching people the principles of Socialism and thus inducing them to vote our ticket; and, further, that practical experience in the labor movement is a most essential part of Socialist education. And to that we hold.

CATHOLIC.—It is our rule never to print anonymous letters, otherwise we should be delighted to print yours.

BEER DRIVERS NO. 23.

Beer Drivers' Union No. 23 held a regular meeting last Sunday in Kemper's Hall, 316 E. Sixteenth street, with John Miller and Matthew Carney presiding. A financial committee of two was appointed to examine the books of Treasurer Geo. Reitz, resigned. A communication from the N. E. B. received regarding the contract to be submitted to brewery firms was received; ordered that the committee of five recommend some additions to same, also that the sister local, No. 59, and U. B. W. of A. Local Executive Board be visited in regard to certain clauses in the contract. A request from the Brewery Workers of Buffalo that No. 23 lend its moral support to them, so that there will be no possibility of the brewery bosses disrupting the organization was read and action taken as requested. The finance committee reported that the books of the treasurer had been examined and found correct; accepted. President Mueller, on behalf of the body, extended a vote of thanks to Comrade Geo. Reitz for having so ably filled the position of treasurer of the local. Comrade Nick Richards was unanimously elected to succeed him. Secretary Friedman reported that the matter of the American Brewery had been settled most satisfactorily. The following resolutions were concurred in:

To have a delegate to present the contracts for the ensuing year to the brewery firms; Matthew Carney elected.

That a finance committee of two be appointed to examine the books every two months; Comrades O'Connel and Stimpf elected.

That the committee of five act also as a membership committee.

That 250 copies of the May Day Issue of The Worker be ordered, to be distributed to the English speaking members.

THE MARCH OF PROGRESS.

From Greenland's icy mountains
To India's coral strand
The preacher and the gunboat
Now travel hand in hand.

To speed the day when heathens,
With minds no more preplexed,
Will settle down converted
And, better still, annexed.
—William E. McKenna, in Puck.

—Present or prospective proletarianism is the lot of the masses of our people, if the capitalist system of production is to remain in force. Freedom cannot be conquered or reconquered without the national, collective, ownership of the means of production; without, in a word, the Co-operative Commonwealth.—Karl Kautsky.

NO TRUSTS! NO PRISONS! NO SWEAT SHOPS!

Shirts, Waists, Collars or Cuffs

BEARING THIS LABEL ARE O. K.

INTERN'L UNION SHIRT, WAIST & LAUNDRY WORKERS REGISTERED

This label is sewed on Shirts and Waists just below the tab or bosom and is stamped in miniature on Collars and Cuffs

No Chinese exclusion act needed when up-to-date Union Laundries use this Label to stamp Price List Slips on your laundry packages. Ask for it.

EGYPT...

Southern Illinois. A real Garden of Eden. No place in the United States produces a greater variety of finer fruits, vegetables and grains, or more of them. Splendid climate and water. Cheap lands. THE FARMERS' INSTITUTE, Carbondale, Ill., will tell you all about it. Four months for ten cents. Sample copy for two-cent stamp.

$1.00 OFFER FOR 60 CENTS.

Railroading in the United States by BEN. HANFORD	5 Cents
The Clerical Capitalist by Rev. Father McGRADY	10 Cents
Why Workingmen Should be Socialists by H. GAYLORD WILSHIRE	2 Cents
Labor Politics and Socialist Politics by ALGERNON LEE	3 Cents
The Proletariat by KARL KAUTSKY	5 Cents
The Class War in Idaho by Jos HARRIMAN. Third Edition	5 Cents
The Communist Manifesto by KARL MARX and FRED'K ENGELS	10 Cents
The Development of Socialism, from Utopia to Science. By F. ENGELS	5 Cents
A Debate on the Tactics of the S. T. and L. A. toward Trade Unions between Daniel DeLeon and Job Harriman	5 Cents
The Attitude of the Socialists toward the Trade Unions, by N. I. STONE	5 Cents
The Capitalist Class by KARL KAUTSKY	5 Cents
Now and Then. A Socialist Play by FRED'K KRAFFT	10 Cents
The Adventures of JOHN MCCUE—Socialist	10 Cents
The Religion of Capital by PAUL LAFARGUE / Social Effect of Machinery by FRANK W. COLTON	10 Cents
Where we stand by JOHN SPARGO	5 Cents
Socialism. A Reply to the Pope's Encyclical by ROBERT BLATCHFORD	5 Cents

On receipt of Only 60 Cents above 15 books will be mailed postpaid.

Socialist Literature Co., 184 WILLIAM ST., New York.

Largest Assortment of Literature on the Labor Question.

CATALOGUE FREE.

PARTY BUTTONS.

We now manufacture three different sizes in one-half, seven-eighths, and one and a half inch diameter. Either Socialist Party, Social Democratic Party or the one-half inch size simply with Arm and Torch Emblem:

CASH MUST ACCOMPANY ALL ORDERS.

1 Button . . 5 Cents.
12 Buttons . . 25 Cents.
25 Buttons . . 50 Cents.
100 Buttons . . $1.75

SOCIALIST LITERATURE COMPANY,
184 WILLIAM ST., NEW YORK.

R-I-P-A-N-S

I have been troubled with catarrh from my childhood, and have had many doctors and many different medicines. At night when I went to bed I could feel my nose clogging up, and then I had to breathe through my mouth, which made me very dry and often caused me sleepless nights. I could not find any relief until a friend called my attention to Ripans Tabules. I bought a box and took one after each meal, and gradually found relief in my breathing and sleeping. I also had numerous pimples on my face, which disappeared.

At druggists.

The Five-Cent Package is enough for an ordinary occasion. The family bottle, 60 cents, contains a supply for a year.

Have you seen a copy of the

THE COMING NATION?

Opinions from the comrades:

"It's a strong, attractive, and instructive number."

"The best propaganda paper in the field."

"Its cartoons and pictures are drawing cards. People will read pictures where they won't read rhetoric."

Send your name on a postal card and receive three sample copies free.

FRED D. WARREN, Editor.
E. N. RICHARDSON, Assistant Editor.
THE COMING NATION, Rich Hill, Mo.

Where to Lunch and Dine

Comrades, patronize those who advertise in your paper.

PATRONIZE . . . .
FRITZ'S COFFEE AND LUNCH ROOM. 373 Bowery, bet. 4th & 5th St. N. Y. OPEN DAY AND NIGHT.

LAWYERS.

MORRIS HILLQUIT,
Attorney-at-Law,
320 Broadway. Telephone 2576 Franklin

L. D. MAYES, LAWYER,
245 Broadway, New York City, Borough of Manhattan. Practice in all Courts. Consultation free

H. B. SALISBURY,
COUNSELLOR-AT-LAW
309 Broadway, Room 903. 50 Union Square.

Simon Sultan,
Counsellor at Law.
87 NASSAU, corner FULTON STREET,
(FULTON BUILDING.)
Residence 110 West 120th st., New York.

Have Your Printing Done at Union Printers.

F. W. HEISS, 69 GOLD ST. New York City.
Use this Label. Union Printer Lowest Prices. — Mail Orders Promptly Attended To.

BUY UNION LABEL GOODS.

ORDER BLANK FOR

THE WORKER'S

GREAT MAY DAY NUMBER.

THE WORKER,
184 William Street, New York.

Enclosed find $..... for which send me.....copies of your issue of May 1st.

Name .....

Address .....

"Railroading in the United States."

BY BEN HANFORD.

PRICE, FIVE CENTS.

40 Copies $1.00
1000 " 25.00

Sent on receipt of price.

SOCIALIST LITERATURE COMPANY,
184 William Street, New York.

PUBLICATIONS.

LATEST PUBLICATIONS.

"Adventures of John McCue".....10c.
"American Farmer." By Simons. Cloth, 50c.
"American Communities." By W. A. Hinds. Cloth $1.00
"The Passing of Capitalism." By Ladoff. 25c.
"Organized Self-Help." By H. N. Casson. 25c.
"Religion of Capital." By Lafargue ....10c.
"Social Effect of Machinery." By Colton. 10c.
"Useful Principles of Logic." By T. Bersford .....15c.
"Voice from England." By Father McGrady .....10c.
"Where We Stand." By J. Spargo .....5c.
"Woman." By Martha Moore Avery ..10c.

A large stock of Labor Literature in English and German always on hand. Catalogues free.

SOCIALIST LITERATURE CO.,
184 William Street, N. Y.

CO-OPERATE IN PUBLISHING SOCIALIST BOOKS

That is the way to get them at actual cost. $10 each or $1 a month. Five months makes you a joint owner in our business with the right to buy books at the prices in second column, postage included. Others have to pay prices in first column.

The American Farmer. Simons. Cloth	.40	.30
Collectivism. Vandervelde. Cloth	.40	.30
Collectivism. Vandervelde. Paper	.25	.13
Liebknecht's Life of Marx. Cloth	.40	.30
Land Reign of Russian Commonwealth. Cloth	.40	.30
Engels' Origin of the Family. Cloth	.50	.30
Love's Coming-of-Age. Edward Carpenter	1.00	.60
Socialism Utopian and Scientific. Engels. Cloth	.50	.30
Socialism Utopian and Scientific. Engels. Paper	.10	.05
Socialism. Wilhelm Liebknecht. Paper	.10	.05
Life of Engels. Kautsky. Paper	.10	.05
Pocket Library of Socialism. Per copy	.05	.02
Pocket Library of Socialism. Per 100, assorted	2.75	1.00
International Socialist Review. Per copy	.10	.05
International Socialist Review. Per year	1.00	.50

Our co-operative plan is fully explained in a booklet entitled "SOCIALIST LITERATURE IN PUBLISHING," mailed free on application. Locals Chicago, Philadelphia, Erie, Minneapolis, Davenport and many others are already with us.

CHARLES H. KERR & CO. (Co-operative)
56 Fifth Avenue, CHICAGO.

Just Received from England

A large importation of

"CAPITAL," by Karl Marx.

Only authorized edition, translated by Samuel Moore and Edward Aveling, and edited by Frederick Engels.

CONTENTS:

Prefaces by the author and editor.
Part I.—Commodities and Money.
II.—The Transformation of Money into Capital.
III.—The Production of Absolute Surplus Value.
IV.—Production of Relative Surplus Value.
V.—Production of Absolute and of Relative Surplus Value.
VI.—Wages.
VII.—The Accumulation of Capital.
VIII.—The So-called Primitive Accumulation.

Library Edition, cloth, $2.50, postpaid.

SOCIALIST LITERATURE CO.,
184 William Street, N. Y.

L'UNION DES TRAVAILLEURS,

730 Washington Ave., Charleroi, Pa.

A weekly advocate of Trade Unionism and Socialism. Should be read by every French speaking worker.

Send for sample copies.

Subscription, $1.00 per year.

SUBSCRIBE FOR THE REFERENDUM,
the only English Socialist paper in Minnesota. Published at Faribault, Rice County. Fearless, bright, spicy; 75 cents a year, in advance; 35 cents for 6 months. By E. B. FORD.

THE DECATUR LABOR WORLD

Decatur, Ill.

AN UP-TO-DATE LABOR PAPER.

Subscription $1 per year, in advance.

HAS A WEEKLY CIRCULATION OF 3,500 COPIES.

Advertising rates quoted on application. Address:

THE DECATUR LABOR WORLD,
231 N. Main St., Decatur, Ill.

WHO WILL DO YOUR LAUNDRY WORK?

I. X. L. LAUNDRY, GUSTAV LEIST, 241 East 42d St.

SPECIAL NOTICES.

Under this heading any matter of interest to the Social Democratic Party (Socialist Party) will be inserted at FIVE CENTS PER LINE EACH INSERTION. Six words about equal one line. Cash must accompany advertisement IN EVERY INSTANCE.

DON'T WEAR YOURSELF OUT TRYING TO SPREAD SOCIALISM, but take hold of things by the smoothest handle. New ideas and labor-saving devices in propaganda material. Samples for 2c. stamp. FRANK OHNEMUS, 196 Park Place, Long Island City, New York.

LABOR ORGANIZATIONS.

Standing advertisements of Trade Unions and other Societies will be inserted under this heading at the rate of $1 per line per annum.

CIGARMAKERS' PROGRESSIVE INTERNATIONAL UNION No. 90. Office and Employment Bureau: 64 East 4th Street.—District I. (Bohemian), 331 East 71st Street, every Saturday at 8 p. m.—District II. (German), at 50 E. First street, meets every Saturday at 8 p. m.—District III. meets at the Clubhouse, 206 East 80th Street, every Saturday at 7:30 p. m.—District IV. meets at 342 West 42d Street, every Saturday at 8 p. m.—District V. meets at 547 East 157th Street, every Saturday at 8 p. m.—District VII. meets every Saturday evening at 1432 Second Avenue.—The Board of Supervisors meets every Tuesday at Faulhaber's Hall, 1351 Second Avenue, at 8 p. m.

LOCAL 476, MACHINE WOOD WORKERS AND TURNERS. United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners of America. Meets every Tuesday at Bohemia Hall, 323 East Seventy-third street, New York. Financial Secretary, W. E. P. Schwartz, 27 Fulton avenue, Astoria, L. I.; Recording Secretary, Chas. Fiescler, 522 East Eighty-fifth street, New York.

Workmen' Children Death Benefit Fund of the United States of America.

The address of the Financial Secretary of the Executive Committee is:
HENRY HAUPT, Bible House, Room 41, Astor Place, N. Y. City, N. Y.

Arbeiter-Kranken- und Sterbe-Kassfuer die Ver. Staaten von Amerika.

WORKMEN'S
Sick and Death Benefit Fund of the United States of America.

The above society was founded in the year 1884 by workingmen imbued with the spirit of solidarity and Socialist thought. Its numerical strength (at present composed of 190 local branches with 23,000 males and 4,500 female members) is rapidly increasing among workingmen who believe in the principles of the modern labor movement. Workingmen between 18 and 45 years of age may be admitted to membership in any of the branches upon payment of an initiation fee of $4.00 for the first class and $2.00 for the second class. Members belonging to the first class are entitled to a sick benefit of $9.00 for 40 weeks and of $4.50 for another 40 weeks, whether continuous or with interruption. Members belonging to the second class receive under the same circumstances and length of time $6.00 and $3.00 respectively. A burial benefit of $250.00 is guaranteed for every member, and the wives and unmarried daughters of members between 18 and 45 years of age may be admitted to the third class upon payment of an initiation fee of $1.00. Monthly assessments are levied for the three different classes of members of $1, 75 cents and 22 cents respectively. Members at large are not accepted, but all candidates have to join existing branches, in cities and towns where no branch exists, a new branch can be formed by 15 workingmen in good health, and men adhering to the above principles are invited to do so.

Address all communications to HENRY STAHL, Financial Secretary, 1-3 Third avenue, Room 2, New York City.

WORKMEN'S
Furniture Fire Insurance

Organized 1872. Membership 14,000.

Principal Organization, New York and Vicinity.

OFFICE: 64 East Fourth street. Office hours, daily, except Sundays and holidays, from 1 to 5 o'clock p. m.

BRANCHES: Yonkers, Troy, Binghamton, Gloversville, Elmira, Albany, Oneida, N. Y.

Paterson, Newark, Elizabeth, South River, Passaic and Trenton, N. J.

Adams, Boston, Holyoke, Springfield, Mass.

New Haven, Waterbury, Meriden, Hartford, and Bridgeport, Conn.

SEE THE OTHER SIDE.

THE TRANSFORMATION OF THE STATE.

BY PETER E. BURROWES.

The Socialists of the world have but one object in view at present, and that is the logical transformation of the political state, so that it shall become the administration of the world's workshop rather than of its usurers, its profit-mongers, its rent-collectors, and its harems. We do not seek a transformation according to a pattern begotten in our own fancy, but we seek a change that shall accord with a revolution which has already befallen the world's workers, a revolution which the nations must express in their governmental life—or suffocate.

There was a lunkhead workman in the land, some time ago, who stood like a loud dog by the empty barrel of his master's state, and the stronger the chain that bound him to it the fiercer he barked; he faithfully wore the Republican and Democratic button by his collar, and he feared nothing more than a change. But—well, he has grown thin, and though the straws in his kennel be red and white and blue, these gaudy colors of liberty do not nourish him; he has grown thinner, and that is the condition that enables him to lean kindly towards a change—a transformation of the state.

The state has always been much better understood by those who were under its wheels than by those who had time to write about it, or who made its laws. What the state in all ages appeared (and truly was) to the vast majority of mankind, that the state is to-day. It was always the crystalization into bayonets, gunpowder, prisons, taxes, and other lawful extortions of the interests of an economically ascendant class. It was mentally grown in other soil apart from that of the daily life of the people—in the traditions of high-toned antiquity, in the decrees of imaginary gods, in the sayings of properly manufactured prophets, in the achievements of transcendental heroes, and in the examples of saints who cared nothing about this world but to gather it all together and leave it with their heirs.

The state stood always apart from the people. It made its own treaties and its own wars, imposed what duties and called for as much annual service of labor or blood as for its own interests it deemed fit. Whether it should fix its army at a hundred thousand or its total at a hundred million, the people would know when the state officials made proclamation. The state men were not only educated and inspired outside the daily life of the people, but they were otherwise alien and hostile to the people, and excluded the common life from them; so that the palace building with its high walls, iron gates, armed sentinels, and equerries in waiting is to-day, as it always was, the truest visible sign of the state.

Woe to that people the economic pressure upon whose life finds no expression in state modifications. Every good state, like the skull of a man, should fit his own brain and not another dead brain of some past generation. The economic life of the world having been transformed, as we all know, within the last century and a half into a vast industrial collectivity, Socialists require that every government shall reflect that change. We are no longer willing to endure passively the deadly struggle of the upper class, under the disguise of free democracy, utterly to blind and bind us. The class that makes us a class must meet us as a class struggling for the transformation of the state.

As for me, I have cast my sentimental milk-teeth and regret the years of comparative inefficiency they brought me. I have too long struggled to put Socialism into the wrapper of Christianity, blind to the fact that the parcel is too big for the paper. The truth which lies ahead of every live man in this movement I now know to be that whatever old forms we may use for a time being, whatever temporary meliorations of the people's lot we may adopt in our platforms, our goal is the transformation of the state; and that Socialism is only sentimental gush which has not behind it the push of the class conflict and the courage of logical revolution.

Certainly a transformation has taken place in the monarchic and feudal phrases since we became a dollar democracy. Capitalism does not throw walls around its home now because it is not a parasite of strictly domestic habits. Floating fortresses are the walls of the commercial king abroad and fine phrases at home.

The fine phrases of the present state first appear in constitutions, then in amendments, then in laws, then in appellate decisions. The constitution in the first instance stood for a certain solid block of money; the subsequennt amendments stood for a loosening and opening out of that block at certain points to let more in. The laws then made stood for seeing that only friendly money got in; and appellate decisions stood for sums of money thrown out like forts or flying companies against the encroachments of a popular demand. And what is the sum of money, you will ask, represented by any court decision against a labor union's boycott of capitalist encroachments? It is the sum of money which the labor union must find in order to differ[illegible] back that decision to a rehearing [illegible] greater [illegible] ved [illegible] ds, t[illegible] and procuring of a better law plus the cost of carrying that better law into effect if it favors the laborers.

This transformation of the state into relative sums of money, while much greater than any contemplated by Socialists, still leaves us the same old state—a state consisting of foreign interests and foreign men. The present money state is foreign to the true life of the people (the industrial life) in all its being.

It is foreign in its mode of preparing the education force of the country; in the men themselves; in the things taught; in the general principle underlying the things taught; in the process of teaching, and in the purpose for which the whole machinery is set in motion.

It is foreign in its method of preparing the educators. I have already named the false external sources of state culture. Add to these alien sources the false method of charging the pedagogical gun. He is separated from real life; he is buried in a professorial chair, or opposite to one, in an atmosphere described by Cecil Rhodes himself as one where innocence, ignorance, and impracticability concerning the actual life of the world prevails and where, I consider, something much worse prevails—that is, a deliberate intent to turn out either rogues or fools on humanity's great vital questions from those hallowed halls of learning. He is struck crooked with indirection of thought; he is saturated with artificial emotions and sentiments, and his understanding has been trained to root in the invisible and to trail along clouds.

In the men themselves it is also foreign. Had our state any real desire to teach the majority of the people how to rise they would have classes in every school and college on the science and art of organizing large numbers of persons for the purpose of single thought and concerted action and higher wages, and the teachers would be selected from the Socialist party, the trade unions, and the various secret and friendly societies of the country. But what doth the educating state? All that is diametrically opposite to this it does. It favors and throws its mantle of franchise, privilege, and injunction around the organization of dollars, and sits so heavily upon the organization or class education of laboring men that, as a matter of fact, laboring people are not to be raised to the college or by the college until they give evidences of having forsworn their class interests.

As a matter of fact, the requisites for state functioning men are now made to be such that the laboring class cannot function there, while merely money people and merely inheriting and unproductive people can. Our cabinet and senate and other public executive men come from the banks and colleges, not from the proletariat; although it must be plain to any thinker that the true state bureau should be the bureau of the nation's work and workers, and as the only proper reason for being a Socialist is that I am or was a workingman, so the true credential for a legislature in the transformed state of coming times will be that it represents a nation of organized workers.

In the things taught, mark how false are the teachers of to-day. Look at the newspapers, the magazines, the books that are made popular by order of the dollar! What phrase describes them? The rule of the irrelevant. And behind all the irrelevant stands the sinister purpose of wasting the leisure hours of the people on trivial passing personalities, upon the recent dead or upon persons out of the past. Look and see if this does not constitute the literature by which our population is led into the waste and barren places of the mind and away from the contemplation of the facts which environ and blast their own lives.

The general principle underlying the things taught is that the good of this world is made up of that which is an advantage to you only. By this atomic centering of the public weal in each one the public life is uncentered and a usable sort of semi-anarchy grinds on.

In the process of teaching, which should always be from here to there, they give us from there to here; and the life that is far off or is not at all rules the life that is. The child is set to work for its manhood, the man for his old age, and all for heaven; while the true education of making the best of what we know for what we know is artfully neglected.

And finally the purpose for which the whole machinery of state is set in set in motion is a false purpose. Instead of being for the nourishment, strengthening, embellishing, fortifying, and prolonging of human life everywhere, it is centered on the production of a few American Beauty roses for whose life, as Mr. Rockefeller pointed out in his recent Sunday-school oration, it is necessary to nip in the bud the commoner life of the people.

The purpose of Socialists is to transform the state that fosters such practices and thoughts and such roses in the Fifth avenue parterres, together with such sad limp weeds of humanity as we see everywhere in the workshops and slums of the city.

Are you ready to work and vote for this transformation of the state?

A LESSON FROM LIFE.

The Beauties of Competition for Profits Strikingly Illustrated — Socialism Would Be Unbusinesslike.

Here is a little true story, taken from the New York "Times" of April 10, which strikingly illustrates the beauties of competition and the sort of service which "business ability" renders to the community:

"Louis Levine and Herman Fast are rival shoe dealers, with stores in the same block and but five doors apart on Vernon avenue, Long Island City.

"The block is owned by J. H. Singleton and William Bridge of Mattituck, L. I. The rivalry of the shoe men has been so keen that the neighborhood took advantage of it, for sooner than lose a sale the shoe men would sell three-dollar shoes at $2, provided the buyer convinced the seller that his rival was selling the same shoes at $2.01. If one started to wash his windows and dress them anew the other hurried to follow suit, and when one substituted gas mantles for the old style burner his rival did the same. Levine contracted for electric lighting, and by hustling Fast had his place lighted with electricity one day before his rival.

"Things ran pretty evenly between the rivals in the matter of business until a few weeks ago, when Fast made up his mind that he would drive Levine out of business. Accordingly he offered Mr. Singleton $40 a month for Levine's store. This was $10 more than had been paid. Levine's lease would expire on April 1, and Mr. Singleton gave him the preference, but at the increased rental. Levine paid, and signed the new lease, and offered Mr. Bridge $10 more than Fast was paying. Mr. Bridge increased Fast's rent $10.

"Honors were thus even, but Mr. Bridge thought that if Fast's store was worth $40 a month the others in the block must be, and that the corner store must be worth $15 more, while the flats above were worth $5 a month more than the tenants were paying him. He raised the rents all round. Mr. Singleton followed suit, and now the other occupants of the buildings in the block are swearing vengeance on the shoe dealers."

There you have it in a nutshell—the reducio ad absurdum of the competitive system.

Levine and Fast had but one purpose in life—not to supply people with shoes, but to make profits by supplying people with shoes. Being good business men, they lived the strenuous life and pursued their purpose to the bitter end—bitter for their neighbors, bitter even for themselves (for, though good business men, they are, after all, only small capitalists), bitter for everybody concerned except the landlords—and one other, who had not come into the story yet.

There is no need of two shoe dealers in that block. One could easily do all the real useful work involved in supplying shoes to the whole neighborhood. Each of them spent most of his time, not in selling shoes, but in trying to prevent the other from selling shoes.

The shoe workers did not profit by this rivalry. The cutting of shoe prices is likely to necessitate the cutting of shoe workers' wages.

The shoe buyers did not gain by it. In the long run. The cutting of shoe prices means the using of bad leather, scraps, paper, anything, put together anyhow, just so it will look like a shoe.

Competition having been carried so far, the competitors stand in the same relative position as before—as regards each other. Otherwise, both are worse off: Both have to pay higher rent; and the neighbors, having also to pay higher rent, have less money for shoes.

Pretty soon one or the other will fail. The survivor will feel happy over his fellow man's misfortune and will proceed to take advantage of it and try to recoup all his past losses through this mad competition. He will raise prices to the old rate, but he will continue to sell as poor shoes as he can.

Then some big city shoe dealer, who has been gleefully watching the whole silly performance, will send his price-lists and mail-order blanks to the people—and the other little dealer will go to the wall.

Then both the little ex-dealers will go to the big man and humbly ask him for a job at twelve dollars a week—and maybe one of them will get it.

But rents will not be reduced.

These two shoe dealers are not fools—at least, not greater fools than most of their neighbors. They can't help themselves. In order to succeed, each must try to destroy the other. That is business. In doing it, both destroy themselves and injure the rest of the community—except the landlords and the big city dealer. That is also business.

Socialism would be very unbusinesslike.

It would put one of these men at some useful work and let the other distribute shoes for the community—thus assuring both a chance to live by honest labor.

It would thus put an end to the hatred that profit-seeking now breeds between them.

It would make of that big city dealer a superintendent in the shoe-distributing service (if he was competent) and thus transform him from a big industrial cannibal into a useful public servant.

It would remove the temptation to pass off bad shoes for good ones.

It would supply shoes to the people at actual cost of manufacture, transportation, and handling.

It would put an end to rent-paying altogether, and would give the ex-landlords a fair chance to earn their living by doing some service to the community.

It would give to everyone concerned more of the good things of life for less labor and with a greater degree of security—except the landlords and the shoe-trust magnate; and it would enable them to live an honest and useful human life—which they cannot do to-day.

It would be very unbusinesslike, would it not?

THE GIANT OF LABOR.

There is a poor blind Samson in this land,
Shorn of his strength, and bound in bonds of steel;
Who may, in some grim revel, raise his hand
And smite the pillars of our commonweal;
Till the vast temple of our liberties,
A shapeless mass of wreck and ruin lies.
—Longfellow.

AN OPEN LETTER TO THE FILIPINOS.

Which Caused Its Author's Arrest—Because It Pictured Existing Conditions Too Truly.

Comrade P. J. Cowley of Seattle, Wash., has been arrested and released six times during the last month for street speaking. The following letter to the Filipinos from a pamphlet of Comrade Cowley's which he distributed at street meetings, caused his arrest on the absurd charge of distributing obscene literature, of which he was acquitted:

"Seattle, Wash., U. S. A.

"To Hon. The Filipino Junta, Hongkong, China.

"Gentlemen: I am sorry to find that you entertain such a poor opinion of the free born American citizen and government, and so strenuously object to our particular brand of benevolent assimilation. I am, however, constrained to believe your aversion arises from a grave misapprehension and an erroneous conception of our nobility of character, and the overpowering grandeur, and imposingly sublime nature of our American Christian institutions, the leading feature of which is the saloon, of which, so far, we have only four hundred and seventy-five thousand—but we are growing. We have ten thousand houses of prayer and a million of prostitution. We have Bible houses, bawdy houses, barrel houses and breweries, pimps galore and paupers by the million; hordes of commercial and industrial pirates, whom we call business men and captains of industry; professors who draw their convictions and their salaries from the same source; we have thieves and theologians, Christians and confidence men, libertines and liars, politicians and poverty, priests and prisons, convents and convicts, scallawags and scabs, trusts and tramps, traces of virtue and tons of vice. Where a workingman will give two dollars of a job and an idler twenty for a dinner; where the worker makes so many shoes, he goes barefooted; builds so many fine houses, he has to live in a hovel; mines so much coal, he must freeze; builds and maintains high schools and universities for the children of his masters; where he produces all and consumes barely enough to keep him breathing; where we are divided into three classes—workingmen, beggars and thieves; when the beggars and thieves have feasted, the workers fight for the bones; where man is damned for the dollar, and the dollar is deemed the man; where we so love our wives that we occasionally make sausage of them; we make canned beef of sick cows, horses and mules, and corpses of those who eat it; where between pharmacy and funerals our physicians make a living; where the words 'liar' and 'lawyer' describe the same animal; where men are sent to jail for not having means of support, and on the chain gang for not being able to buy a job; where some of the women buy poodles and study how not to become mothers, while other women in the day time work in stores and factories for glory, and at night on the streets for a living; where men patronize prostitutes because they can't afford to marry; where we have a congress of four hundred men to make laws, and nine men to knock them out the first round.

"Now, gentlemen, it seems to me you are very unreasonable; just think what you are missing. And I have only mentioned a few of the advantages which we offer you. Send one of your number over to investigate, and he will find we have the grandest aggregation of hard things, soft things of all varieties, shapes and colors ever seen under one canvas, and one admission entitles you to the whole show. Come in; we've got a good thing; help us push it along. Old Spain wasn't in it—we are the people.

"SENATOR E. PLURIBUS UNUM HORR.

"P. J. COWLEY, Secretary."

ORGANIZATION WORK IN NEW YORK STATE.

F. J. Spring of Los Angeles, the new State Organizer of New York, has been spending the past two weeks in Greater New York, speaking in various parts of the city and getting acquainted with the local comrades. This week he is visiting locals in the immediate vicinity of New York, taking in Queens County, Yonkers, Mt. Vernon, Dobbs Ferry, and Staten Island.

Next week he starts on an extended tour of the state. His itinerary until the end of the month will probably be as follows:

April 23—Peekskill.
April 24—Cold Spring.
April 25—Newburgh.
April 26—Catskill.
April 27—Troy.
April 28—Schuylerville.
April 29—Schenectady.
April 30—Fort Edward.

GENERAL COMMITTEE.

Comrade Mayes occupied the chair at the last meeting of the General Committee, and Comrade Wood was vice-chairman. Twenty-five new members were admitted. The Credentials Committee seated Comrade May S. Wecklin as a delegate from the newly organized 7th, 9th and 25th A. D.

A motion was passed asking that the party advertisement be printed in the "Volkszeitung" gratis or else be withdrawn altogether.

The City Executive Committee's recommendation that a call for funds be sent to all assembly districts at once was concurred in.

The 7th, 9th and 25th A. D. have been reorganized into one branch, and the 34th and 35th will have an organization in each district, the 34th having been organized.

It was decided to hold a May Day parade and a call is to be drawn up asking all party members to take part in order that as good a showing as possible shall be made.

The report of the Grievance Committee that Peter Klippel, who was charged with scabbing in Everall's tailor shop, be suspended until such time as he becomes in good standing in his union was concurred in.

The Entertainment Committee for the May Concert has issued a journal, called "May Flowers," which will be sold at 3 cents a copy in lots of 50 or more, and 5 cents a piece for less than 50. It is hoped all comrades and assembly districts will sell as many as possible, as the receipts from the journal will go to the party.

Comrade Hannemann, Halpern, and Reich were elected to represent Local New York at the laying of the cornerstone of the Brooklyn Labor Lyceum on May 30. Comrades Assel, Bartholomew, Halpern and Panzer were also elected as additional members of the Entertainment Committee for the May Concert.

The meeting was quite well attended, there being absent the 18th and 20th, two from the 21st, two from the 23d, the 32d, and 33d and the Annexed District. Moved, that assembly districts report to organizer all public meetings, he to furnish them with speakers.

Comrades Edlin, Jablinowski, Loewenthal, Spargo, and Wood were elected as a committee to draw up a cablegram to be sent to the comrades in Belgium, who are fighting for universal suffrage, expressing our sympathy and declaring our moral and financial support.

KINGS COUNTY.

At the last meeting of the Kings County Committee Comrade Well occupied the chair. The outing committee reported having closed contract for outing, to take place Aug. 10, instead of Aug. 3, as previously reported, in Liberty Park. Organizations are requested not to arrange any festivals on that date.

Seven candidates were admitted to membership in the party. The 16th, 17th, and 18th A. D. reports having arranged a social evening at Eureka Hall and invited all registered Social Democratic voters. Owing to the present disturbances in Belgium it was decided to adopt and transmit resolutions expressing our sympathy with our Belgium comrades in their struggle for universal suffrage.

The committee on the Kings County Drum and Fife Corps was urged to attend the meetings of that organization more regularly.

Subdivisions should see that their delegates attend the meetings of the County Committee and submit reports; also that the tickets for the Damrosch Concert are properly distributed. Next meeting will be held April 26.

MAY DAY CONFERENCE.

A regular meeting of the May Day Parade Conference was held last Saturday at the Labor Lyceum, with Delegate Ramm in the chair.

Credentials were received and delegates seated from the following organizations:

Social Democratic Party, 15th and 17th, 28th, and 30th A. D.

International Bakers No. 25, Brooklyn; Cloth Examiners; Piano and Organ Workers No. 26, Long Island City; Wood Carvers and Modelers;

Workingmen's Sick and Death Benefit Society, Branch 23.

Cigar Makers No. 90 sent a new delegate in place of Aug. Lange, who is sick. Cigar Packers No. 213 sent an additional delegate.

Delegates from the following organizations were present without credentials: International Bakers No. 50; Jewelers' Union; Butchers No. 3, Brooklyn; Yorkville Arbeiter Gesang Verein.

The question whether we shall have a parade, which was made a special order of business, was then taken up, and after a lengthy discussion it was decided to hold parade on Saturday, May 3. All necessary arrangements were referred to the Executive Committee.

The Executive Committe then reported, and from the work done so far it can be seen that the parade will be a success. It was reported that the United Hebrew Trades have organized a May Conference of all the Hebrew organizations, and that this division will be strongly represented in the parade.

The Executive Committee recommended that a mass meeting be held after the parade on Madison Square East; concurred in. Secretary Gerber was instructed to secure the necessary speakers and report to the Conference. Much other routine work was done.

Delegates were instructed to report at the next meeting of the Conference whether they will have a band, and what arrangements their organizations have made for the parade.

The Conference will meet again on Saturday, April 19, at the Labor Lyceum, 64 E. Fourth street.

Comrades, so far the work is done. We have decided to have a parade. Now it depends on you whether this parade shall be a failure or a success. It is to be hoped that everyone will do his best to make it successful. Go ahead in your organizations and get as many of your members to come out and parade on the International Labor Day as possible; and all of you who are not members or whose organizations do not officially take part in the parade, come and join us. Join the party division. Let us demonstrate for the international solidarity of the working class, for International Socialism. All over the world the working class is earnestly carrying on the war against capitalism. But here in our country we see the workers busy fighting each other over petty differences, while the capitalists look on and laugh. It is therefore the duty of every man or woman who recognizes this fact and who knows the significance of the International May Day to come and join the parade. Let us show the capitalist class that the progressive element in the organizations and the Socialists will stand together regardless of all internal troubles and fight against their common enemy—the capitalist class. Join the lines. Close the ranks. Comrades, do your duty.

HAVERHILL NOTES.

The Board of Aldermen have exonerated Fire Chief J. B. Gordon from the charges of favoritism which were preferred against him. This in spite of the fact that it was proved at the hearings that several of the permanent firemen have been discharged for talking Socialism. It was also proved that one fireman was allowed to act as permanent captain of a Republican political organization during a campaign with the approval of the Chief. Some firemen were given full pay for time when they were off duty, while others were not. Voters of Haverhill, this is the way your Republican aldermen wish affairs conducted. How do you like it?

When the bill for a maximum rate of two cents a mile on the steam railroads came up in the Legislature it was voted for, of course, by Representative Carey. All of Haverhill's other representatives—Hall, Batchelder, and Palmer—voted against it. Workingmen, if you wish to continue paying seventy-five cents fare to Boston instead of sixty-five cents you know whom to vote for.

Each year the Board of Registrars draws a list of several hundred "true and lawful" men for jury duty. On this year's list there are only three Socialists. Are we to infer that in the judgment of the Republican politicians Socialists are not "true and lawful" men? Or is it rather that they want to avoid the chance of having jurymen who would be inclined to protect workingmen's interests in cases where the "sacred rights of property" are involved?

Comrades Mailly and Butscher recently paid us a short but pleasant visit.

The anti-Socialist members of the Common Council have this year pursued the policy of treating the measures and arguments of the two Socialist members with silence. They follow this course partly as a matter of tactics and partly because they are unable to meet Socialists in debate. The "Gazette," which until recently was the only daily paper in the city (we now have another Republican daily) has adopted the same policy.

A lively scramble is on among would-be Republican candidates for the position of Congressman to be vacated by Mr. Moody, future Secretary of the Navy. The three most prominent aspirants for the nomination are all reputed to be millionaires. At least one of them is making pilgrimages among the poor sailmakers and fishermen of Gloucester and vicinity. It is sad to contemplate that the workers are easily fooled by such men who, when they want an office, suddenly profess great friendship for the "horny-handed sons of toil;" and as suddenly forget it after election. Our Republican District Attorney, when asked if he was a probable candidate, said that if he had $50,000 to spend he would be, but as he hadn't it he was out of the race. It is expected that money will be spent freely.

AL TRUIST.

WEBSTER TOWN ELECTION.

In last week's town election at Webster, Mass., out of a total vote of 1,202 for Selectman, the head of the ticket, Wm. H. Klebart, Socialist candidate, received 202. Our other candidates received votes ranging from 98 to 273—most of them being between 150 and 200.

This refers only to straight Socialist candidates. In the report which we have received, two candidates are marked "Democrat and Socialist" and one as "Republican and Socialist." These received, respectively, 346, 433, and 396 votes. It would appear from this report that some of our candidates accepted endorsements, which is strictly forbidden by the established policy of the party.

We are aware that in town elections party lines are not always strictly drawn, but no such fusion can be allowed in the Socialist Party, even in unimportant elections. The two old parties may unite as they did on several candidates in Webster, but the Socialist Party has nothing to gain and everything to lose by such action.

Even on the most purely "practical" view the Webster election shows the folly of such tactics for us. Our average vote was 179. In all of the four cases where the old parties combined our vote ran above the head of our ticket. On the other hand, there were three cases where a Socialist appeared on an old-party ticket. In none of these cases was the fusion candidate elected, and in none of them did he poll the full vote of the two parties supporting him.

If the endorsements were made with the knowledge of the Socialist Party local in Webster, it behooves our Massachusetts state organization to attend to the more thorough Socialist education of the Webster comrades; if not, then it is the duty of Local Webster to enforce stricter discipline.

NEW JERSEY MOVEMENT.

Last week's meeting of Local Hudson County, held at headquarters, 324 Central avenue, Jersey City, with Comrade Headly of Kearney in the chair, was well attended. With one or two exceptions the reports of branches were very encouraging.

Comrade Pankopf's report of work in his ward was most interesting, telling of the wiping out of a considerable deficit and the creation of a respectable surplus within a few weeks.

The Literature Agent submitted a plan for the purchase by the branches of a specified number monthly of the "Comrade," "Socialist Spirit," "International Socialist Review," and "Humanity," which will probably be adopted.

A plan for raising money for the Socialist Daily Fund was presented and discussed and the Secretary instructed to communicate with the Socialist Daily Committee in regard to it.

Comrade Gillilar, being too ill to perform the duty of State Treasurer, to which office he has been re-elected, the County Committee sent a substitute to the State Committee meeting, with the request that his successor be not elected, but that the State Committee request a comrade to perform the work for the unexpired term.

The constitution under which the county organization will work will in a few days be submitted to the branches for approval.

Local Essex County, N. J., will hold county convention Saturday, March 17. A full county ticket will be put up—congressional, county, city, and legislative.

The County Committee has decided to hold a parade on Memorial Day, May 30, from Newark through Arlington to the grave of Comrade Scrimshaw. The West Hoboken comrades will participate. All Socialists and union men in Essex and West Hudson are called upon to take part in this demonstration.

The County Committee is in good working order, meetings well attended, subcommittees doing their work, and general conditions are very satisfactory.

At the Brewers' Union ball and flag dedication last week Comrade Pattberg spoke in German and Comrade McIntosh in English. The affair was, in fact, a Socialist demonstration. The brewers are Socialists, almost to a man, and they know how to work and fight.

On Monday evening, April 21, Branch 4 of the Socialist Party holds an entertainment and social at the headquarters, 124 Market street. Admission is 10 cents. Proceeds are to go to the campaign fund.

Local Camden County is getting into the way of good and effective work. The local has decided to have a lecture followed by open discussion at each meeting, to arouse interest and educate the workers. At the last meeting Comrade Norton took up the subject of "Government Ownership of Railways under the Present System" and the discussion was so interesting that it was decided to continue on the same subject at the next meeting. Arrangements are being made for a mass meeting on May 3, with Charles H. Vail as speaker. Regular meetings are held on the second and fourth Sundays of each month.

PARTY WORK IN PENNSYLVANIA.

At the regular meeting of the State Committee on April 7, with A. L. Shaw in the chair, encouraging reports were received from various parts of the state. Following is a summary of correspondence received and action taken:

A report from Comrade Bigelow on his work in the state shows enthusiasm all along the line, meetings larger than expected.

Letters from Bethlehem and Pittsburg had been answered. A review of work in Carbon County by Comrade E. Snoyer promises a local in Mauch Chunk, where Bigelow spoke in the Court House.

Spring Forge wants Comrade Vail to speak; Black Lick also wants Vail; Blairville and Cokeville report progress.

Lancaster reports adding rapidly to membership; fourth local now in the state, in strength of numbers second to none in activity.

Erie reports forming ward branches, hope for precinct organizations in the near future, and they have enough votes to do it. "Erie People" office moved to No. 26 East Fifth street.

Williamsport held Court House meeting; want Vail; desire to be placed on monthly lecture circuit; have started fund for that purpose. Letter from National Secretary Greenbaum, showing State Committee debt to be $17.75; the Treasurer ordered to forward $12.50 on account.

Connelsville desires another speaker for open-air or hall meeting; painters and plumbers on strike there, and carpenters may also strike; there will be some striking against capitalism in that town on election day unless all signs fail.

Wilkes Barre held two meetings Sunday, March 30, with good results; they want McGrady; will take Vail first.

Carbondale desires another meeting; want McGrady. Letter from New Castle; organization progressing.

Report from Comrade A. Klenke, organizer, of progress in Allegheny and Fayette Counties; opportunities for organization very good.

Large meetings in Maytown; there will be a local there ere long.

Harry C. Gould, printer, of Erie, accepted nomination as candidate for Secretary of Internal Affairs. Gould is well and favorably known, having been a delegate to the convention of the I. T. U.

Comrade Louis Goazien of Charleroi is speaking for the miners; thinks there is a good field for Socialist agitation; is printing weekly state reports in his Socialist trade-union paper (French language), "L'Union des Travailleurs."

Pittsburg is holding regular meetings on first and third Saturdays of each month, with interesting discussions; planning for active campaign work.

Secretary read letter sent to all locals as to number of subscribers to The Worker and desiring names and addresses of members. Replies received from nearly all.

All correspondence to date attended to; prompt replies requested from all locals.

It was decided to try to arrange twenty dates in the state for Chas. H. Vail, late Socialist candidate for Governor of New Jersey, tour to begin about May 3; $40 appropriated, if needed, to cover dates that might be missed.

Philadelphia reports well-attended weekly lectures; will fill the Academy of Music April 23 for McGrady and Bigelow; many comrades within a radius of one hundred miles are coming to that meeting.

Comrade Bigelow also lectures at Headquarters, 1022 Arch street, Thursday, April 10.

Comrades adjourned to meet Thursday after lecture to hear report of Comrade Bigelow on state tour.

FORTH THE BANNERS GO.

Ah, come! Let us cast off fooling,
For this at least we know—
The Dawn and the Day are coming
And forth the Banners go!
—William Morris.

National Platform of the Socialist Party.

The Socialist Party of America in national convention assembled, reaffirms its adherence to the principles of International Socialism, and declares its aim to be the organization of the working class, and those in sympathy with it, into a political party, with the object of conquering the powers of government and using them for the purpose of transforming the present system of private ownership of the means of production and distribution into collective ownership by the entire people.

Formerly the tools of production were simple and owned by the individual worker. To-day the machine, which is but an improved and more developed tool of production, is owned by the capitalists and not by the workers. This ownership enables the capitalists to control the product and keep the workers dependent upon them.

Private ownership of the means of production and distribution is responsible for the ever increasing uncertainty of livelihood and the poverty and misery of the working class, and it divides society into two hostile classes—the capitalists and wage-workers. The once powerful middle class is rapidly disappearing in the mill of competition. The struggle is now between the capitalist class and the working class. The possession of the means of livelihood gives to the capitalists the control of the government, the press, the pulpit, and the schools, and enables them to reduce the workingmen to a state of intellectual, physical and social inferiority, political subservience and virtual slavery.

The economic interests of the capitalist class dominate our entire social system; the lives of the working class are recklessly sacrificed for profit, wars are fomented between nations, indiscriminate slaughter is encouraged and the destruction of whole races is sanctioned in order that the capitalists may extend their commercial dominion abroad and enhance their supremacy at home.

But the same economic causes which developed capitalism are leading to Socialism, which will abolish both the capitalist class and the class of wage workers. And the active force in bringing about this new and higher order of society is the working class. All other classes, despite their apparent or actual conflicts, are alike interested in the upholding of the system of private ownership of the instruments of wealth production. The Democratic, Republican, the bourgeois public ownership parties, and all other parties which do not stand for the complete overthrow of the capitalist system of production, are alike political representatives of the capitalist class.

The workers can most effectively act as a class in their struggle against the collective powers of capitalism, by constituting themselves into a political party, distinct from and opposed to all parties formed by the propertied classes.

While we declare that the development of economic conditions tends to the overthrow of the capitalist system, we recognize that the time and manner of the transition to Socialism also depend upon the stage of development reached by the proletariat. We, therefore, consider it of the utmost importance for the Socialist Party to support all active efforts of the working class to better its condition and to elect Socialists to political offices, in order to facilitate the attainment of this end.

As such means we advocate:

1. The public ownership of all means of transportation and communication and all other public utilities, as well as of all industries controlled by monopolies, trusts, and combines. No part of the revenue of such industries to be applied to the reduction of taxes on property of the capitalist class, but to be applied wholly to the increase of wages and shortening of the hours of labor of the employees, to the improvement of the service and diminishing the rates to the consumers.

2. The progressive reduction of the hours of labor and the increase of wages in order to decrease the share of the capitalist and increase the share of the worker in the product of labor.

3. State or national insurance of working people in case of accidents, lack of employment, sickness and want in old age; the funds for this purpose to be collected from the revenue of the capitalist class, and to be administered under the control of the working class.

4. The inauguration of a system of public industries, public credit to be used for that purpose in order that the workers be secured the full product of their labor.

5. The education of all children up to the age of eighteen years, and state and municipal aid for books, clothing, and food.

6. Equal civil and political rights for men and women.

7. The initiative and referendum, proportional representation and the right of recall of representatives by their constituents.

But in advocating these measures as steps in the overthrow of capitalism and the establishment of the Co-operative Commonwealth, we warn the working class against the so-called public ownership movements as an attempt of the capitalist class to secure governmental control of public utilities for the purpose of obtaining greater security in the exploitation of other industries and not for the amelioration of the conditions of the working class.

Grand Symphony Concert

By the full Damrosch Orchestra of sixty pieces, under the direction of FRANK DAMROSCH, assisted by a Chorus of Six Hundred Voices from the People's Choral Union.

SUNDAY AFTERNOON, MAY 4,
—IN—
Grand Central Palace.

Three beautiful Living Pictures: "THE FIRST OF MAY," "STRUGGLE," "VICTORY."

FOR THE SOCIALIST DAILY FUND.

TICKETS, 25 CENTS. ADMISSION AT THE DOOR, 35 CENTS.

For tickets and information apply to H. C. Bowerman, Financial Secretary, at the Club House, 206 E. Eighty-sixth street.

THE WORKER'S
GREAT MAY DAY NUMBER.
Eight Pages. Highly Valuable Articles. Ready May 1st.
Less than 100 copies, per copy 1 cent; 200 copies, $1.20.
100 copies, 75 cents; 300 copies or more, per 100, 50 cents.
ORDER AT ONCE.
USE ORDER BLANK YOU FIND IN THIS NUMBER.

The Worker.

A WONDERFUL BOOK.
"Railroading in the United States."
BY BEN HANFORD.
Price, 5 Cents. One Hundred Copies, $2.50, Postpaid.
ORDER AT ONCE.
SOCIALIST LITERATURE COMPANY, 184 William St., New York.

VOL. XII.—NO. 4. NEW YORK, APRIL 27, 1902. PRICE 2 CENTS.

TO ASSURE JURY TRIAL

For Strikers Arrested Under Injunction.

Socialists Make Their Fourth Fight for the Bill in Massachusetts Legislature — Defeated, of Course—Carey and MacCartney Put Politicians on Record.

For the first time in three weeks the Massachusetts House yesterday considered a bill directly affecting the interests of Labor. For three weeks such highly important matters as the licensing of cats, stock-watering schemes, a proposed statue in honor of Ben Butler, restriction of Chinese laundries, and other bills of like character have absorbed the attention of the people's representatives.

The entire time of four days was taken up in discussing the Butler statue; and a bill requiring a maximum railroad fare of two cents a mile inside the state (which was passed, although no one expects it to live through the Senate), must have consumed altogether about three days. But it only required one hour and forty minutes for the same gentlemen to consider and kill Carey's bill providing for right of trial by jury in cases of contempt of court.

The Judiciary Committee had reported adversely on the bill, and when the matter came up yesterday morning Carey moved to substitute his bill for the committee's report. Although the bill was on the calendar for the day, and therefore sure of consideration, not half the members were present.

Carey Speaks for His Bill.

Carey opened his argument by complimenting the Judiciary Committee upon the pleasant manner in which they could assassinate such a bill as this one. There seemed to be little scruple in their performance of work of this character, and they could lead such proposed legislation to the guillotine right gracefully. But this measure deserved better treatment than that; it was one that affected the interests of workingmen very seriously. Its purpose was to protect workingmen on strike or locked out by their employers from being thrown into jail at the order of one man acting at the request of the capitalists.

Carey proceeded to trace the origin of the courts of equity from the time when the office of Lord Chancellor was established in England in order to interpret the spirit of the law rather than the letter and thus become known as "the conscience of the king." The courts of equity performed a useful function in the early days of the Republic, when private property was more general than now and when individual rights had to be conserved.

But a great change has taken place in the industrial life of the nation. Through the industrial development we were confronted by a concentration of ownership in the tools of industry until society was divided into two distinct classes—a possessing class and a dispossessed class. The great difference between the present system and preceding ones was that formerly the necessities of life were produced for use, while now they were produced for exchange, and thus assumed the form of commodities. The labor of the dispossessed class, the working class, was also a commodity subject to the same conditions as governed other commodities.

Bases His Argument on Class Struggle.

The working people were compelled to sell their labor-power to the capitalist class in order to obtain a livelihood, and it was to the interest of the capitalists to buy labor-power cheap, while it was to the interest of the workers to sell their labor-power for as high a price as possible. This produced a conflict between these two classes, a conflict which is the most potent fact in modern industry. The workers formed organizations to raise wages, reduce hours, and secure better conditions, and thus ran counter to the interests of the capitalist class. The intermittent conflicts witnessed all over the country in the shape of strikes and lockouts were only the symptoms of the one vital conflict inherent in the existing system and which had come to be known as the class struggle. During these strikes the workers would generally succeed, did not the capitalists have recourse to the courts, where in the name of law and order they appeal for injunctions and seek to prevent the strikers from trying to persuade their fellows not to go to work. It has been shown that capitalists were losing business during strikes when they appealed to the courts and got relief because the judges granted their requests and issued unjust injunctions. It was the case in the recent teamsters' strike, which the teamsters would have won in the first place had the courts not interfered.

Judges Are Prejudiced.

The judges were invariably in sympathy with the capitalists and the judge and the courts could not be separated. The courts of equity had thus become the weapon of the economically dominant class to defeat the aspirations of the working class. The courts became legislative in character, and the judge assumed all the powers of government; he became judge and jury, and the personification of the powers usually given to a score of men.

This state of things had caused workingmen, and justly, too, to come to look upon the court not as a place to secure justice, but as a place used solely in the interests of the capitalists. This was known to every one, including the Judiciary Committee, the members of which said they were anxious to do something, but failed to suggest anything outside of the proposed bill on which they had reported adversely.

It was against the theory upon which this government was founded to permit the erection of a legal monarchy such as the injunction system fostered. It was to the best interests of society to pass this bill, because anything that tended to protect the working class made for general advancement. The working class was the repository of human progress, while the only aim or desire of the capitalist class was to pile up profits. It was for this purpose they used all the machinery of government; the courts would not interfere with the trusts and combinations, as witness the case of the Northern Securities Company and numerous others. The state of Massachusetts should begin to take its stand with the working class as against the greed of the capitalist class. This bill proposed simple justice and nothing more: That workingmen should be allowed the right of trial by a jury of their peers. This was a right which should not be denied, for its denial was equivalent to a blow at human progress, and when the working class was injured those who did it struck a blow at the very soul of humanity.

Carey spoke over twenty minutes and had gradually commanded the attention of the house. At the close of his speech he was warmly applauded.

A Weak Reply.

Newton of Everett, a corporation lawyer, in charge of the bill for the Committee, answered Carey—or attempted to.

The substance of his reply was that there must be some central authority to enforce decrees from which there could be no appeal, comparing the power given to military authorities with that of the courts. It was absurd for anyone to say that a court of equity should not have the power to enforce its decrees. It was the height of foolishness, he might say insanity, to attempt to take away that power. Such a law as this would mean the beginning of anarchy. The salvation of the working people lay in the courts which stood between Capital and Labor. Such legislation as this would take away from Labor its only protection. The remarks of the gentleman who introduced the bill showed that he did not understand this country or its institutions; there were no classes in this country and that was a foreign idea. The House would not tolerate such legislation. The members had defeated the bill last year and the year before and the year before that, and they would vote it down again this year, and, he hoped, every succeeding year if it was introduced.

MacCartney Condemns One-Man Authority.

MacCartney was next recognized and made one of the ablest speeches I have heard him deliver in the House. He replied to Newton and pilloried him in a gratifying manner—gratifying, that is, to the Socialists who were present. Mr. Newton didn't appear to enjoy it.

MacCartney first called attention to the fact that the proposed bill did not seek to prevent the issuance of decrees by any court, but instead sought to take away the arbitrary power exercised by judges in sentencing men to imprisonment without a trial. It is for twelve men to say whether any man is sufficiently guilty of any crime to warrant taking away his liberty. He cited instances where men had been prohibited from even walking the public streets, or from conversing with their fellow citizens. And the same judge that issued these orders had tried and sentenced the victims.

The legal profession was looked upon with distrust by the people. Why? Because it was generally understood that to be successful materially the lawyer had to espouse causes with which he was not in sympathy. The result is that no matter how honest and well-meaning the young lawyer may be, he soon discovers that to be in the swim he must lay his feeling or sympathies aside, and he gradually drifts into a defender of corporate interests.

How Judges Are Made.

MacCartney then traced the process by which the most capable corporation lawyers received their appointment to the bench. There were some people would have us believe that when a man became a judge he underwent a change, that he became a sacred thing because he wore a robe. But he did nothing of the kind. He still remained the same man, with the same passions, the same sympathies, the same prejudices, the same material interests.

So it comes about that the corporation lawyer serves the same interests after becoming a judge that he did before. He has secured his position by serving the capitalists and he continues to serve them. And here we are again confronted by the evidence of the existence of this class struggle. The capitalist class uses its creature, the judge, to further its class interests, and this judge usurps his power to serve his master.

The theory of the gentleman from Everett was the same theory that obtained in Russia—the theory of absolutism. It was the same theory that put it in one man's power to control the destinies of millions of people. He challenged any one to point out the difference between the argument made against this bill and those made by the supporters of the monarchies of Europe. It was the same idea of having a central authority from which there could be no appeal. It was the same idea of having one man set up as infallible; and the capitalists knew that if this idea could be inoculated into the people's mind and preserved the existence of capitalism could be prolonged.

At this point Mr. Newton, evidently with the purpose of deadening the sting of MacCartney's words, arose and asked leave to put a question. He asked if he was correct in believing that MacCartney was trying to show that he (Newton) was opposed to the theories propounded by MacCartney, for he wanted it to be understood that he was.

MacCartney retorted by saying he had been trying to show the difference between the theory advocated by Newton and that advocated by himself, and he was glad that the gentleman had by his question emphasized the difference. "He believes in absolutism, in one-man rule; I believe in democracy, in the rule of the people. I do not believe that one man should have the power to charge, try, and condemn a fellow man or any number of men. I declare the theory advanced by the previous speaker to be subversive of human liberty and antagonistic to the best interest of mankind."

There was a Biblical injunction: "Judge not, lest ye be judged." He asked the members not to give one man the power to judge another, lest some day they themselves might suffer for it. To continue that power was to invite destruction of every vestige of liberty remaining to us. To vote down this bill was to endorse the perpetuation of a doctrine which sprang from the heart of tyranny and the brain of injustice, and which up to this time in the world's history had been regnant.

Half-Hearted Supporters.

MacCartney's remarks were also applauded. He was followed by Bamford of Brockton, who supported the bill, because he believed in justice for every man; but he did not believe in this talk about classes, as there were none in this country. Jackson of Fall River spoke in the same strain, warning the members that the working people wanted the law. If it was not passed the people would demand the right to elect their own judges. He believed in time that the members would thank the man who had introduced the bill. Jackson is a trade unionist. Davis of Amesbury said he favored the bill, but from his speech one could not discover any reason why it should pass. He decried the "inflammatory" speeches that had been made in the House recently, and said also that he believed that the police acted properly during the recent teamsters' strike.

These three speeches were remarkably weak, coming as they did after the two Socialists had spoken. They heightened the contrast presented by men holding different views advocating the same measure.

Johnson of Boston, who was never been known to do anything else, moved the previous question. Newton, in closing, expressed surprise that statements criticizing the judiciary of the country should be applauded. Nothing more outrageous than this bill had been proposed in this session. He asked the members to rebuke the remarks by voting down the bill.

Carey replied that the bill sought to adapt the courts to the changed conditions. He asked that the measure be enacted so that the working class be relieved from the arbitrary acts of prejudiced officials.

Bill Defeated, of Course.

On a rising vote 37 voted to substitute the bill and 45 against. Carey waived the point of no quorum and asked for a roll call, which was granted, resulting in 74 for the bill and 79 against, there being 19 pairs. Last year the vote was 62 to 99, which shows a gain for the bill.

I have seldom heard the two Socialists speak so ably as upon this occasion, but all their eloquence availed nothing against the fealty to capitalist interests exhibited by those who today are leading in the celebration of that famous day at Lexington one hundred and twentysix years ago when the first shot for American independence was fired against the representatives of one-man power.

WILLIAM MAILLY.

Boston, Mass., April 19.

BLOOD MONEY.

The following resolution was adopted at the last meeting of the Cripple Creek, Colo., Trades Assembly:

"Whereas, We find in the daily press that the Women's Club of Victor has tried to influence the City Council not to assist the union library until Carnegie is heard from; therefore be it

"Resolved, By the Cripple Creek District Trades and Labor Assembly, that we consider Andrew Carnegie's money as 'blood money,' coined from the sweat and blood of our fellow workmen, and therefore consider such a proposition an insult to organized labor and refuse to patronize any library or reading room established or maintained in whole or in part with Carnegie's money."

ONE TRADE NOT DECEIVED.

The San Francisco patternmakers refused to be betrayed by the Hanna Civic Federation. When the proposition came that they give up their fight for the nine-hour day and return to work and allow Hanna's crowd to arbitrate they took a secret ballot and almost unanimously voted to remain out indefinitely, only one man voting in the affirmative. The machinists and other craftsmen who listened to the voice of the tempter have been thrown down hard, the employers declaring that they have nothing to arbitrate.—Cleveland Citizen.

FOR THE DAILY.

One Week Left Before the Grand Concert.

Systematic Work for the Daily Begun — Permanent Organization Formed and Comrade Butscher Entrusted with Carrying Out Plans—General Co-operation Called For.

One week remains before the great Damrosch Concert in Grand Central Palace for the benefit of the Socialist Daily Fund. Every comrade or sympathizer who still has more tickets on hand than he needs for personal use should hasten to dispose of them and turn in the money, if possible, before the end of the week, to the Committee.

Don't forget—and don't let anyone else forget—the place, Grand Central Palace, or the time, Sunday afternoon, May 4. The doors will open at three o'clock and the concert will commence promptly at four o'clock.

This concert will be by far the best ever given in this city for so low a price—25 cents for tickets or 35 cents at the door; the object is one which should appeal especially to every workingman's heart; in buying a ticket you help a good cause and in using the ticket you will give yourself a rare treat.

"May Flowers."

Every assembly district or Socialist club that has not already ordered at least fifty copies of the souvenir journal should do so at once. It is announced that they will be ready on Saturday, April 26. They can be obtained of Comrade Ed. Meyer at the Club House, 206 E. Eighty-sixth street. Orders, whether sent by mail or attended to in person, should in all cases be accompanied by cash. There is too much work involved to allow the keeping of credit accounts. The price for single copies is 5 cents and in quantities of fifty or more 3 cents each.

Association Meeting.

The Workingmen's Co-operative Publishing Association has issued the following call, which should be read and responded to:

"Comrades:—The movement for the establishment of a Socialist daily newspaper in the English language has at last assumed definite shape.

"The organization which will be charged with the publication of the paper is complete, and will hold its next general meeting at the Labor Lyceum, 64 East Fourth street, on Thursday evening, May 1.

"And now, comrades, to work! The great task before us calls for the hearty co-operation of all earnest and devoted Socialists. We cannot succeed unless the work of collecting funds and preparing the field for the Daily is taken up with energy and enthusiasm and we must succeed in this great enterprise if we are anxious for the progress of Socialism in this country.

"Remember, comrades, that within the territory likely to be reached by the prospective Daily there are tens of thousands of avowed Socialists, many more passive sympathizers, and hundreds of labor organizations whose interests will be championed by the paper. All of these individuals and organizations must be approached and drawn into the movement, if possible, and every one of us can and must do his share of that work.

"We, therefore, call upon all members of the Association residing in and around the city of New York to attend the meeting of May 1.

"Comrades who are not yet members of the Association may apply for admission at this meeting.

"Let no one who has the interest of our cause at heart stay away."

The conditions of membership in the W. C. P. A. are: First, the applicant must be a member in good standing of the Socialist Party—called in New York the Social Democratic Party; second, he (or she) must buy one share of stock for $5—$1 to be paid on the proposition of his name, $1 on his admission, and the rest within one year.

Butscher at Work.

Comrade William Butscher has taken up with his accustomed enthusiasm the work for which he has been chosen by the Association, of carrying out in detail the plans for the raising of funds and other preparations for the Socialist Daily. Elaborate plans have been formed which will require the assistance of every party member in the city. In Manhattan and Bronx alone there are about two thousand voters enrolled as Social Democrats, all of whom must be visited personally. A few men cannot do this work, without great waste of time; but with the help of the active members in each district it can be done quickly and thoroughly. Comrade Butscher will visit the various districts to explain the plans as laid out, and will undoubtedly receive the aid of all earnest comrades. Those who will volunteer to take charge of the work in their respective districts are requested to send him their names without waiting for him to visit their organization. This statement applies, not only to Manhattan and Bronx, but to the other boroughs as well. Let all take notice.

Comrade Butscher may be addressed at the Labor Lyceum, 64 E. Fourth street, or seen there in person on any weekday between 5 and 7:30 p. m.

The Socialist Daily Finance Committee makes the following report for the week:

Amounts Pledged.

Following is a statement of amounts pledged for the Socialist Daily Fund up to April 21:

Previously acknowledged	$3,676.50
Emile Baehme	10.00
Timothy Ivers, Granitville, Vt.	5.00
Dr. Victor Parsonnet, Newark, N. J.	50.00
J. Egdall, Lawrence, Mass.	10.00
Hebrew Educational League, Lawrence, Mass.	10.00
Theo. E. F. Schorr, Buffalo, N.Y.	10.00
Herman Klapproth, Hamden, Conn.	10.00
Franz Gerau Maennerchor	25.00
George Holderman	5.00
C. Hitzl	12.00
Mr. and Mrs. Geo. D. Herron	1,200.00
Total	$5,023.50
Cash donations	438.47
Total	$5,461.97

Paid on Pledges.

Payments on pledges up to April 21 are:

Previously acknowledged	$333.50
H. R. Kearnes, Jersey City, N.J.	1.00
Albert Halpern	2.00
Ernest Spranger	2.00
Mathew Kirsch, Niagara Falls.	3.00
Chas. Classen	2.00
George Brown	2.00
S. Egall, Lawrence, Mass.	1.00
Hebrew Educational League, Lawrence, Mass.	5.00
Theo. E. F. Schorr, Buffalo	1.00
Herman Klapproth, Hamden, Conn.	1.00
George Holderman	2.00
C. Hitzl	1.00
G. Welz	1.00
Total	$357.50

Cash Donations.

The following amounts have been received as direct cash contributions, irrespective of pledges:

Previously acknowledged	$260.25
21st A. D., Br. 1, Brooklyn, col.	2.17
Four pinochle players S. T. B. K.	1.10
J. A. Waldron, Junction City, Cal.	4.10
J. M.	4.00
Miss Innes Forbes, Philadelphia	25.00
Miss Mathilde Weil, Philadelphia	75.00
W. Merz	1.00
Jos. Edelman, Philadelphia	2.00
E. H. Randall, Springfield, O.	1.00
Karl Anders	5.00
Karl Kronanberg	5.00
Sick and Death Benefit Fund, Br. 19, W. Hoboken	5.00
C. De Armas	1.00
J. Corales	1.00
M. Guenther	1.00
Friend of H. K., Hamden, Conn.	1.00
Bohemian Branch, 26th A. D.	2.00
Oscar Keller, Greenfield, Mass.	2.00
John Harter	2.00
Misses R. and A. Jaffe	5.00
C. Leist	10.00
Jos. De Laney	.35
H. L. Kunsme	.50
W. G. Morgan, Philadelphia	1.00
Socialist Party, Br. 1, Newark.	20.00
Emerson B. Rich	1.00
Total	$438.47

Notice to Contributors.

Pledges should be sent and checks and money orders made payable to the Socialist Daily Finance Committee, 184 William street, New York. Communications may be addressed to Henry L. Slobodin, 60 Second avenue, New York.

The Worker will contain, each week, a list of contributions received up to Monday preceding the date of issue.

If any contribution sent is not promptly acknowledged the sender should at once inform the Committee, that the matter may be investigated and set right.

Those who have made pledges should remember to send in the monthly instalments promptly, saving the trouble and expense of notifying them. Let each one feel his personal responsibility for the work we have undertaken and his power to hasten the coming of the Socialist Daily.

KINGS COUNTY.

A regular meeting of the County Committee of the Social Democratic Party of Kings County will be held at the rooms of the Socialist Club, Fulton street near Ralph avenue, Brooklyn, Saturday evening, April 26.

PLEDGE.

To Job Harriman, Dr. Julius Halpern and Leonard D. Abbott,
Socialist Daily Finance Committee:

I hereby pledge myself to contribute for the publication of an English Socialist Daily the sum of $..... to be paid in monthly installments of $.....

Name .....

Address .....

COUNTING OUT IN KANSAS CITY.

Flagrant Violation of Law by Election Officials.

Many Ballots Refused and Many Thrown Out After Being Cast—Not One-Third of Socialist Vote Is Counted—Aggressive Work Necessary.

A comrade in Kansas City, Mo., writes: "Not since the days when 'Pinky' Blitz and his pals, acting in the interests of certain 'eminently respectable' citizens of this community revised the ballots in the dead of night, has there been any such rascality as was shown in the counting of the Socialist vote this election. The 'official returns' give a maximum of 500, or about one-third of the vote. The Socialists had no wild notions about their strength; they did not expect to elect even a member of the Lower House; their 'influence' certainly would not be enough to secure an appointment as dog-catcher; but they did expect that the most honorable Board of Election Commissioners and its accomplices, the judges and clerks, would deal fairly enough to show the full vote, which means that the party has official standing. The membership here is about 150 in good standing, or about three-fifths of all who have been accepted since the Socialist Party was organized, and an estimate of twelve hundred votes or even fifteen hundred is not very wild. The trouble was that the Socialist ballots were not given out, and in some cases were actually refused, and finally in the counting only about forty men could be mustered to give the required time as watchers and challengers, so the old-party rascals had it all their own way. In fully two-thirds of the precincts the Socialist ballots were not given out at all, the impression thus being given that there was no ticket, while the Central Committee has already secured several affidavits of voters to prove that some of the judges positively denied having any such ballots. One member who insisted that there was, finally induced the judge to bring them out from under the table. Again in the counting, it was found in different precincts where we had watchers, and there is no telling in how many where we did not, that a lot of Socialist ballots were in the school ticket box, which was different from the city ticket box, and were thus invalidated. Of course as the judge and not the voter put them in that box the 'mistake' was just what was wanted.

"Mr. Lipscomb, the Secretary of the Board of Election Commissioners, informed several members of the Committee a few days after election that he thought there were about 1,400 Socialist votes.

"The information gathered about irregularities has been filed with the Prosecuting Attorney, but it is not likely that anything will be done by that official. It is up to the Socialists now to put more backbone into their symaythizers so, that they will demand all the ballots and see that they go into the right box, and further to secure more watchers and challengers for the fall election. Another session of the Legislature may make it impossible for the ticket to be filed without recourse to the courts. This has been a good lesson for the sentimental Socialists who think the old-party politicians are simply misguided—and, by the way, the Board of Election Commissioners, which failed to instruct or to see that judges and clerks obeyed the law to give out all the ballots and who arbitrarily threw out properly voted ballots, is Democratic—of the party that 'is coming our way.'"

CAPITALIST TRICKS.

Methods by Which the Socialist Party Was Prevented from Making Still Greater Gains in Sheboygan.

The "Social Democratic Herald" gives the following account of methods used to defeat the Socialist Party in the Sheboygan city election:

"In the Eighth Ward fifty Social Democrats were practically disfranchised by the tactics of the factory lords by whom they were employed. It had been given out that the factories would close down at 4:30 in the afternoon to allow the men to vote, but this was not done, and when these men got across town to their precincts they found a long line ahead of them. At 7 o'clock the polls were closed, in front of their faces. They marched in a body to Born's Hall and were much cast down, one man actually crying. The Social Democrats lacked but 11 votes of carrying the ward, as it was. In the First, a silk stocking ward, the Social Democratic strength became so apparent that at the last moment the Democratic candidate withdrew in favor of his Republican 'opponent.' The Social Democratic vote increased there by 114. The capitalist parties resorted to colonization also, and a contest may be made by the Socialists on that account."

LOCAL NEW YORK.

The General Committe of Local New York will hold a regular meeting on Saturday evening, April 26, at the Labor Lyceum, 64 E. Fourth street.

—The fact that the capitalists have their troubles does not make the present industrial system a good one. In fact it is an added reason why it should be changed.—Social Democratic Herald.

WHAT DO YOU THINK OF THE BEEF TRUST

What do you think of the Beef Trust? That is what everybody is asking to-day, and the general answer is only a futile denunciation.

It is foolish to curse the Beef Trust Magnates. They are not extraordinary scoundrels. They are only unusually good "business men." If they are robbers, then "business" itself is robbery. And so, indeed, it is. But if we, who have the political power in our hands, allow "business methods" to prevail, then we ought not to complain when we are the victims.

This consideration does not make it any easier for us to bear the sufferings inflicted on us by the Beef Trust. For the great majority of the working-class families of the land, with an income of less than $9 a week, a difference of a very few cents in the price of meat means the difference between bare comfort and positive privation.

What is the Beef Trust? It is a combination of half-a-dozen great capitalists owning the packing houses in Chicago, Kansas City, and other centers, in close alliance with the railroad companies, with a capital aggregating certainly one hundred millions and probably much more, which has been slowly growing in power for the last fifteen years, and now holds by the throat both the cattle-raisers and the meat-sellers and, through them, the whole people. The wage-slaves in the packing houses drag out a miserable life of overwork, poverty, danger, disease, and abuse. Their wages are not raised when beef prices go up. Every additional cent that you pay goes to the coffers of that little group that now—in spite of all anti-trust laws—monopolizes the trade.

And it will not stop here. It is not only a Beef Trust; it is a Meat Trust; and if the most reliable capitalist papers are to be believed, it will soon be the Food Trust, absolutely controlling the distribution of meat, poultry, eggs, butter, vegetables, and fruit. (See New York "Times," April 18.)

What will you do about it? Some eminent "friends of labor" (who can afford good food at any price) advise you to fight the Meat Trust by ceasing to eat meat—and some thoughtless "labor leaders" echo their advice. How wise! To avoid being starved by the Trust you are advised to starve yourselves!

The capitalist politicians propose "investigation," a new anti-trust law or a prosecution in the courts. We have had all these before, and trusts—this one among them—have laughed at all such devices.

Are you, then, helpless? Shall the Trust continue to dictate to you what you shall eat and have the power in their will to reduce you to starvation?

In the days before the French Revolution a Wheat Corner was formed; they called it the "Pacte de Famine," the "Starvation League." The Kitty was in it—just as our kings, Morgan and Rockefeller, stand back of our Food Trust. One of its members, Foulon by name, being asked how the people were to live, replied: "Let the people eat grass."

Not long afterward old Foulon's head, the mouth stuffed with grass, was carried on a pike through the streets of Paris.

That was the only way the people of France a century ago could deal with such a problem—by deeds of blood, striking terror into the hearts of their oppressors. We have the ballot in our hands. We need not think of vengeance, for we have the power of redress our wrongs.

But how? How can we put an end to this mastery of a few over all?

What is it that gives these men the power? It is their private ownership of the means of production and distribution—the stockyards, the packing-houses and their machinery, the storehouses, the railroads and steamships.

These things were not made by Morgan and Rockefeller, nor by Armour, Cudahy, Hammond, and Swift. They were made by the working class, they are operated by the working class, they are necessary to our existence.

"You take my life when you do take the means by which I live," says Shakspere. If the lives of the people are not to be held at the mercy of the capitalist class, then the people must own the means by which they live.

This is the Socialist answer to the question, What will you do about the Food Trust? We will use our ballots to establish collective ownership of the means of production, to be democratically administered for the benefit of all.

ELECTION NOTES.

The official vote cast in Milwaukee gives the following result for the Socialist Party:

For Mayor, Howard Tuttle, 8,457.

For Treasurer, John Doerfler, 8,652.

For Controller, Eugene Rooney, 8,478.

For Attorney, Theo. Barmeister, 7,911.

The Socialist candidates for Alderman in Rock Island, Ill., received an aggregate vote of 173. Our candidate for Supervisor, H. J. Brandt, had 110.

Socialists polled one-quarter of the vote in Girard, Kas., where the "Appeal to Reason" is published.

Result of election in Ann Arbor, Mich., show that the Socialist vote increased over a hundred per cent. Last year it was 58, this year 129. Most promising of all, the votes were almost all straight. Comrade Dan Jeannerett was the candidate for Mayor, and as he has been an untiring Socialist worker for years, he can contemplate with satisfaction the splendid results of the campaign.

Leominster, Mass., increases the vote from 56 to 104.

Warren, O., gives us 148 votes—one-fifth of the total vote in the city.

Springfield, O., casts a Socialist vote ranging from 207 to 325.

Mansfield, O., gives 308 votes in the local election; last year we had but 27.

Conneaut, O., has 40 votes for Socialism, as against 23 last year.

In Pine River, Mich., the old parties united and beat the Socialist Party by a vote of 166 to 162.

At Fergus Falls, Minn., we have 301 out of the 815 votes in the city.

Noble, Ill., has 72 votes; last year, 12.

Dubuque, Ia., polls a Socialist vote of 567. Last year we had 311.

Boone, Ia., has 214, as against 129 last fall and 10 last spring.

Sioux City, Ia., gives us 239 for Mayor. The movement is young there. We had 156 in 1901.

Aurora, Mo., increases the Socialist vote from 25 to 41, in spite of a falling off of a total vote.

Henrietta, Tex., has 33 Socialist votes—and these are the first ever cast in the place.

Houston, Tex., sends a good report: Socialist Party, 500; S. L. P., 37. In 1900 we had 96.

Fargo, N. D., gives the Socialist Party 192 votes. In 1900 we had about 50.

The vote in Livingston, Mont., is reported as showing a gain of 100 per cent. since 1900.

Riverside, Cal., records a good increase. In 1900 the highest vote was 66. This year the lowest is 93 and the highest 225.

THEY KNOW HANNA, TOO.

Pressmen's Unions in Essex County, N. J., Put Themselves on Record Against "Peace Committee."

At the regular meeting of the Essex Trades Council held on Friday evening, April 18, Delegate Fred McIntosh of Printing Pressmen's Union No. 31 was chosen to preside.

Under reports of unions, the delegate from Theatrical State Employees' reported that the boycott issued against Proctor's new theatre had at last proved effective, as the Newark manager had signed the agreement and Proctor's was now a union house. The announcement was received with cheers. Organized labor in Essex County deserve credit for the way in which this boycott was handled. At the opening of the theatre three months ago, Mr. Proctor indignantly spurned the idea that he should employ union stage hands. The matter was brought before the central body, and through the efforts of the various delegates, the affiliated unions placed fines upon all members patronizing the theatre. Boycott stickers were posted everywhere from the Orange Mountains to Hoboken. The White Rats also gave good support. Mr. Proctor has found out to his sorrow that Newark is an industrial city where the workers are rapidly becoming imbued with class-feeling.

Delegates from Printing Pressmen No. 31 and Feeders and Assistant Pressmen No. 19 reported that they were instructed by their union to protest against an article printed in the "Union Label Bulletin," the official organ of the Council, commending Mark Hanna's recent attitude towards organized Labor, and they further demanded the protests recorded and printed in next issue of the "Bulletin." The delegates further stated that their organizations were in possession of Mark Hanna's official record as a union smasher, and that it was a record of crime and infamy. Delegate Crane of the Stationery Engineers moved that the protests be recorded as requested, and the motion prevailed without a dissenting voice.

The Hanna-Gompers combine will not be able to bamboozle the trade unionists of Essex County, now that they have taken the measure of their duplicity in the recent Boston strike.

Delegate Dunn of Beer Drivers Alley, 148 reported that their first annual ball and flag dedication, which was held on Saturday, April 12, was the grandest demonstration ever held by a local union in the state of New Jersey, over two thousand being present, including a special delegation of fifty from a Philadelphia local.

The Worker.

ORGAN OF THE SOCIALIST PARTY town in New York State as the Social Democratic Party.)

PUBLISHED WEEKLY
184 WILLIAM STREET, NEW YORK,
y the Socialistic Co-operative Publishing Association.
P. O. BOX 1512.
Telephone Call: 302 John.

TERMS TO SUBSCRIBERS.
Invariably in advance.

year	50c.
months	25c.
gle copies	2c.

Bundle rates:

s than 100 copies, per copy	1c.
copies	75c.
copies	$1.20
copies or more, per hundred	50c.

Weekly Bundles:

er week, one year	$1.75
er week, one year	3.5
er week, one year	7.50
er week, one year	12.50

Address all business communications, and e money orders, checks and drafts pay- to The Worker.
eceipts are never sent to individual sub- ers. Acknowledgment is made by nging the number on the wrapper, the k following receipt of money—mmunications concerning the editorial partment of the paper should be ad- essed to the Editor.
All communications should be written one side of the paper; is th ink and on rds should not be abbreviated; every let- polic should bear the writer's name and ad- the ess; and matter should be put in as few rds as possible, consistently with clear- shess. Communications which do not com- pro with these requirements are likely to its disregarded.

Entered as second-class matter at the for ew York, N. Y., Post Office on April 6, go 01.

UNION PRINTER

a c lut wo
the erm
T
the lik his cha
he pub coll
a f thi ke
the no
th
to tra be m h n v
c p f i t
i t
i
t

PARTY NOTES.

The Financial Secretaries of several subdivisons of Local New York have thus far failed to send in their reports to the Organizer. Comrades, at the next meeting of your district, see if your Financial Secretary has done his duty and, if not, see that he does.

At the Socialist Club, Ralph avenue and Fulton street, Brooklyn, on Sunday evening, April 27, Comrade G. Edwin Hines, Jr., will deliver a lecture entitled "Lessons from History."

A regular meeting of the Socialist Club will be held at Fulton street and Ralph avenue, Brooklyn, Friday evening, April 25. All members should be present to complete arrangements for the picnic to be held on Decoration Day at Kissinger's High Bridge Park, Glendale.

The reception and entertainment given by the Socialist Club, of Brooklyn, last Saturday evening, was a most enjoyable affair. Prof. Harry R. Austin furnished delightful music on the piano, and the assemblage was well entertained by the little Miss Claire Grant and the clever Turton twins in songs and dances. Socialist songs by Mrs. Chas. S. Cooke brought forth great applause, as did Charles Frederic Adams' fine rendering of Rienzi's address to the Romans. Short addresses were delivered by Mrs. Alex. Fraser, Miss Francis Nacke, Peter E. Burrowes, L. D. Mayes, Dr. C. L. Furman, and Job Harriman. After delightful refreshments had been served, the long and enjoyable evening was brought to a close with dancing. The members of the Socialist Club are to be congratulated on arranging such a successful social gathering to popularize Socialism, and their example should be followed by other organizations.

Comrade Burrowes will speak at the Socialist Propaganda Club, 102 Court street, Brooklyn, on Sunday evening, April 27. His subject will be, "The Revolutionary Message." This will be the last meeting of the Club for the present season. All are cordially invited. Admission is free.

The 12th A. D. will hold a public debate on Friday evening, April 25, 8 p. m. sharp, at 96 Clinton street, second floor, room 5. The subject for discussion is "Yellow Socialism and the Socialist Party." After the debate a regular meeting will be held, which members should not fail to attend. This Assembly District will also hold two open-air meetings, on Saturday evening, April 26, at the corner of Pitt and Rivington streets, and on Monday evening, April 28, at the corner of Norfolk and Broome streets.

The 31st A. D. will hold an entertainment and ball at Majestic Hall, 125 E. One Hundred and Twenty-fifth street, Sunday evening, April 27. Admission is 25 cents—proceeds to be used for the district campaign. Comrades, especially those living up town, should turn out.

Comrade Krafft spoke on "Is Our Country a Republic?" at the Socialist Educational Club in Bayonne, N. J., last Sunday night. The pleasant weather prevented a large audience; but the net results, three subscribers for The Worker and a good sale of party literature, proved satisfactory.

The challenge of the anti-Socialist priest, Rev. Mr. Helter of Buffalo, to debate the question of Socialism, has been accepted by Comrade H. Gaylord Wilshire. The International Hall has been engaged for this purpose and the debate takes place on April 23.

Local Chelsea, Mass., has left its old headquarters in Hawthorne street for new and more convenient ones in the Central Labor Union Hall, 108 Park street. The meeting night is changed to Tuesday. Communications should be addressed to the Secretary, Alfred B. Outram, 150 Poplar street, Chelsea.

Comrade Herron writes, in a personal letter from which we are permitted to quote: "I can at last say that I feel that I am really getting well, and before the summer is over I shall be better than for years. We shall be home at the end of the summer at the latest." This news will no doubt be gladly received by the comrades in the United States."

Readers in Newport News, Va., are notified that any Socialist publication, book or paper, may be ordered through H. Bent Bryan, of 231 Twenty-eighth street.

Comrade C. J. Lamb of Dryden, Mich., has arranged a Michigan tour for Comrade H. Gaylord Wilshire, as follows: Thursday, May 22, St. Clair; May 23, Clifford; 24, 1:30 p. m., Almont and 7:30 p. m., Dryden; 25, Flint; 26, Lapeer; 27, Kalamazoo; 28, Battle Creek; 29, Jonesville; 30, Ann Arbor; 31, Pontiac; June 1, Detroit.

W. H. Tuttle, the attorney for the United States Publishers' Association, has been instructed to bring suit against the United States Post Office, seeking to restore the privileges of second class entry to "Wilshire's Magazine."

Our Polish Socialist weekly in Chicago, "Robotnik," published several months ago a translation of Father McGrady's 'Socialism and the Labor Question," of which 4,000 copies have been sold. The Milwaukee comrades got 300 copies for distribution during their last campaign and, as the returns in the Polish wards show, it had a good result. Locals of the Socialist Party where there are strong Polish settlements, especially in the West, will do well to use this pamphlet. One hundred copies cost $3.50. Address, "Robotnik," 692-694 Milwaukee avenue, Chicago. Socialist papers will kindly copy this notice.—"Robotnik" will issue a May Day Number of at least 10,000 copies. This also should be used in Polish neighborhoods. One hundred copies are sold for $1.50. Orders should be sent in at once.

Local charters have been issued to Garfield, Idaho; Rock Springs, Wyoming, and Jellico, Tenn.

John C. Chase has spoken this week before the trade unionists in Decatur, Carlinville, Hilliary, Peru, and Carbon Hill, Ill.

The state committees of Missouri, Nebraska, Maine, Minnesota, Kentucky, and Oregon have approved the triplicate monthly financial secretary's report book recently submitted to them.

Socialists of Sioux Falls, S. D., have nominated a ticket for the local municipal election and have constructed a platform containing a formidable array of palliatives, says the "Chicago Socialist." After stating their accordance with the platform adopted at Indianapolis, the second clause runs as follows:

"We resist the claim made by some ignorant and superstitious persons in this community that Socialism is anarchy. We refute the claim with the testimony of the greatest known authority on the ethics of all doctrines, the Encyclopedia Britannica, which says: 'The ethics of Socialism are identical with the ethics of Christianity.' Karl Marx, the originator of the theory of Socialism, got his inspiration from the life and teachings of Christ (sic!). If we are anarchists then the Nazarene was an anarchist, whose teachings are the foundation principle of Socialism. Socialism is simply applied Christianity; the golden rule applied to every-day life. Before this ideal can be realized our economic and industrial system must be revolutionized. To work out this revolution is the object of Socialism."

The Vancouver (Canada) branch of the Socialist Party are sending copies of their platform to the trade unions of that city, asking them to read and discuss the platform in their meetings.

Los Angeles Socialists hold their International Labor Day demonstration on the evening of May 1 in Blanchard Hall, with Comrade T. W. Williams as the principal speaker.

FOR THE NATIONAL PROPAGANDA FUND.

An Appeal by the National Committee to All Party Members and Sympathizers.

To the State and Local Organizations of the Socialist Party.

Comrades:—At the meeting of the National Committee in this city on January 24, 25, and 26, 1902, the work that has thus far been accomplished by the national organization and the means of continuing the same were taken under advisement, and after due consideration, we decided to issue this appeal to the state and local organizations and to all of the comrades of our party for such amounts as each may be able to contribute as donations to a National Propaganda Fund.

The purposes of this fund are to enable us to continue the great and far-reaching task already begun of giving the greatest possible degree of general publicity to the aims and methods of the Socialist Party; to extend the influence of our party as a vital political factor, especially in the various economic organizations of the working class; to be the means of communicating advice to and co-operating with comrades in their efforts to agitate, organize, and educate the proletariat; and to assist the local and state organizations and the Socialist press in general in extending the scope of their respective activities.

Official records show that 470,000 pieces of printed supplies, especially intended for party organization, have been used throughout the country since the Unity Convention designed by and supplied through the agency of the National Committee. The National Secretary's report, showing an increase of membership in good standing of 50 per cent. since the Unity Convention, is eloquent evidence of the splendid achievements of our comrades in the townships, cities, counties, states, and territories.

During the past six months the demands of all kinds upon your National Committee from every section of the country have been far beyond our resources, and we have been repeatedly handicapped by lack of funds. At this writing, while the business of the party is increasing heavily from day to day, our financial receipts are not sufficient to enable us to meet the most important requirements of the party work, and it is urgently necessary that the comrades render immediate financial aid to the national organization.

As a means to this end we again call the attention of the comrades to the National Propaganda Fund. Donations to this fund should be sent to the National Secretary, and will be acknowledged weekly in the Socialist press.

LEON GREENBAUM,
National Secretary.
427 Emilie Bldg., St. Louis.

By order National Committee, Socialist Party.

Receipts for the National Propaganda Fund are as follows:

Amount reported to April 12	$288.33
J. Edelman, Philadelphia, Pa.	1.25
T. Hosmer, Bloomfield, Mo.	1.00
Local Cincinnati, O.	5.00
6th and 10th A. D., New York	2.00
Branch 2, Local Hudson Co., New Jersey	5.75
Branch 2, Jersey City, N. J.	5.00
Total to April 19	$308.33

A COMPLETE MONOPOLY.

No more the childish jingle wins
Our souls from musings sad;
The Meat Trust owns the little lamb
That gentle Mary had.
—Washington Star.

—An effective play for Socialist amateurs, "Now and Then," a play in two acts by Frederick Krafft. Price, 10 cents; 10 copies, 75 cents; 50 copies, $3.00. Sent postpaid by Socialist Literature Company, 184 William street, New York.

MAY DAY PARADE.

Saturday Evening, May 3, is the Time When Every Class-Conscious Workingman in New York Should Turn Out.

The May Day parade on Saturday evening, May 3, will form at Fourth street, between the Bowery and Second avenue, and start at 8 o'clock on the following line of march: East to Avenue A; up to Sixth street; east to Avenue C; up to Twelfth street; west to Greenwich avenue, and thence to Eighth avenue; up to Twenty-seventh street; east to Madison avenue; down to Twenty-third street, where a mass meeting will be held on Madison Square East.

This route was decided on at last Saturday's meeting of the May Day Conference. J. N. Wood presided.

New delegates were there seated from the following organizations: 24th A. D. and 34th-35th A. D., Br. 2, S. D. P.; Central Committee of the Women's Social Democratic Society; United Hebrew Trades; International Jewelry Workers No. 1; United Carriage and Wagon Makers; Iron Foundry Workers.

It was voted that only members of organizations represented in the Conference be invited as speakers, and the following were chosen: Morris Hillquit, Ben Hanford, Job Harriman, Charles Dold, and Rudolph Modest. The Executive Committee was empowered to procure other speakers, if necessary.

The Cloth Sponsers' delegate reported that his union has hired a band and will turn out six hundred strong. The delegate of the Pipe Calkers stated that his organization would probably have a band. He submitted a resolution to be presented at the mass meeting, which was referred to the Committee on Resolutions. Reports of various delegates indicate that the members of the unions take an active interest in the demonstration and that it will be a success.

The Conference meets again on Saturday evening, April 26, at the Labor Lyceum. Every delegate must be present.

Don't write on both sides of paper.

CORRE- SPONDENCE

Don't send anonymous letters.

He Likes the "Appeal" Better.

Editor of The Worker.

Noticing the extract from the Seattle "Socialist" regarding the "Appeal to Reason" in your issue of April 20, I am constrained to write you a few ideas on the subject. Am not very sanguine as to the weight they possess in your estimation, but it will be a little relief to my feelings anyway.

It is cause for regret on the part of one who has the success of the cause at heart that the comrades should waste time and space in attacking each other. The enemy is big enough to require all our attention and no good can come from such a policy of throwing bricks.

The one thing that persons as high up in Socialism as Seattle "Socialist," The Worker, etc., fail to understand concerning the "Appeal" is that it is designed for elementary or primary work. Wayland knows Socialism as well as anybody, and he is a great deal more diplomatic than the majority of editors in the methods he adopts to advance the cause. I venture to say that if out of a hundred persons who knew nothing of Socialism, all equally intelligent or ignorant, would be a better way to put it, as the major portion of our citizens are more characterized by ignorance than intelligence, fifty would receive The Worker or any other Socialist publication with which I am acquainted and fifty were to receive "Appeal" for a year there would be twice or three times as many individuals voting the Socialist ticket from the "Appeal" crowd as there would be from the other half. The "Appeal" has a number of good points. It is low in price. It is clear and simple in presentation of conditions and showing the desirability of change of government, and outside of the Beef Trust, is the greatest factor in spreading the cause of Socialism in the United States. I was converted to Socialism by the "Appeal" and know twelve men of my acquaintance who are as devoted Socialists as you can find anywhere, vote the ticket straight, always ready to talk it and contribute to help push it. All from reading the "Appeal." I do not know one who was brought from darkness into the light by any other paper and we read quite a few, considering that we are not "literary chaps" as some persons are.

Now for goodness sake give us a rest on such tactics and don't waste any more space on discussions on whether a Christian can be a Socialist or vice versa. It is not business. See?

ROBERT B. RINGLER.
Reading, Pa., April 18.

So Does This Man.

Editor of The Worker.

I am taking so many Socialist Papers Now (More than a Dozen) that I hardly have time to Read them, but I give them to others, and send them through the Mails. hate to stop one after I have taken and Read it a while as I want to hear all about the Progress of the Kingdom (Rule) of God on Earth, in Place of the Devils Damned Kingdom (Rule) of Competition of Every Fellow for Himself and the Devil get the Hindmost and the Damndest Rascal gets it all, where its do your Neighbor not as you would have Him do you but as He Does you, and Do Him awful damned Quick or He will do you first. I seen in a Socialist Paper (The Worker) a few weeks ago a list of seven of the Leading Socialist Papers and the Appeal to Reason was not among them (and ill be Damned for a Damned Liar Damned Idiot and Damned Hypocrit Like the Damned Preachers are) if the Appeal is not Doing More than all of them to open the Eyes of the Damned Idiotic Hay Eating Voting Brutes and Working Beasts of this damned Nation while the other Socialist Papers are Squabbling about Nothing the Appeal goes Right on sawing wood and Dont advertise Rum and Tobacco and have their Damned Balls and Fairs, it attends Strictly to Business.

A. STOCKHAM.
Walt, O., April 8.

Letter Box

WM. GLANZ, Paterson, N. J.—We take up your questions seriatim:

1. Do the trade and labor organizations furnish us the skeleton of the future Socialist Commonwealth? If so, in what respect?

This, like every question of the detailed organization of the future society, is a question to which it would be impossible to give a positive answer. There are some who think that the present trade unions will serve as the skeleton of the Socialist Commonwealth—that, as the class struggle is successfully fought out by the proletariat and collective ownership established, the trade unions will be transformed from fighting organizations into administrative bodies, on a plan somewhat similar to the guild system of the Middle Ages, the workmen of each trade forming a more or less completely autonomous body, owning the means of production of that trade, and directing its operations. We do not incline to this view. The interdependence of all industries is becoming so close, the boundary-lines between trades are so rapidly being wiped out, since a scientific work society is becoming so completely integrated—that it seems to us very doubtful whether such a system of federated associations would work. We believe rather that the present machinery of government, national, state, and local, captured by the working class and modified in such ways as may be found necessary, will furnish the framework of the organization of the Socialist Commonwealth—to use Engels' phrase, "the government of persons will be transformed into the administration of things."

2. Is trade unionism blocking the way to progress?

Doubtless the trade unions make many mistakes which block the way to progress, but the movement as a whole is an essential factor in our progress toward Socialism. It serves a double purpose: First, it prevents the degradation of the workers to the level of abject misery and servile content; Second, it educates them, both in class consciousness and in the art of organized thought and action. Surely these are valuable services.

3. Is the trade-union movement a phase of the class struggle?

Certainly yes. The very foundation of the trade union is the recognition of the fact that the workers have common interests which are opposed to the interests of the capitalists. Trade unionism is not the whole of the class struggle, but it is an essential part.

4. Can a person who opposes the labor organizations (the pure and simple trade unions) consistently be called a Socialist?

This would depend on the way in which he shows his opposition. The Socialist Party cannot, of course, attempt to dictate absolute unanimity in opinion or in the expression of opinion to its members. It can lay down rules for their action, and does so on important matters. We should not refuse to recognize a man as a Socialist simply because he disagrees with our opinion and the formulated opinion of the party as to the usefulness of trade unions. At the other extreme, if he shows his disapproval of the unions by scabbing or even by malicious slanders, we should say he was not a good Socialist.

5. Can a man who neglects to join the union of his trade consistently be called a Socialist?

The party recommends (it does not require) that its members join the unions of their trades and we believe it to be their duty and their interest to do so. Yet there may be circumstances that would justify a good Socialist in refusing to join. We would even admit that there may be circumstances that would justify a good Socialist in not joining the party organization—though they are rare.

6. Is Father McGrady a member of the Socialist Party?

We understand that he is.

7. Can a clergyman be a class-conscious Socialist?

As well as a lawyer or a doctor. We do not refuse to accept members who are not actually wage-workers and it would be foolish to do so. What we do require of non-proletarians joining the party is that they should recognize its proletarian character and come into it as comrades, not as dictators or messiahs.

8. Can a clergyman in Germany, France, or Italy become a member of the Socialist Party?

We know of no rule against it. If the clergyman comes honestly the Socialist Party will not exclude him—though the church will very likely so expel him.

TO ALL OUR FRIENDS.—Cut this out and preserve it; read it once a week and comply with it: 1. DON'T send business communications to the Editor; 2. DON'T write with pencil or on both sides of the paper and DON'T abbreviate words that should be spelled out; 3. DON'T forget to put name and address in every letter; 4. DO be brief.

C. H. CASPAR, Fort Edward, N. Y.—In the summer of 1894 President Cleveland sent Federal troops to Chicago, against the protest of Governor Altgeld (now lately deceased) to help break the strike of the American Railway Union (of which Eugene V. Debs was President). The A. R. U. strike began in sympathy with the strike of the employees of the Pullman Palace Car Company at Pullman, a suburb of Chicago, a town completely owned by the Pullman Company. Through the use of the troops and the arrest of the officers of the A. R. U. under injunction and their imprisonment in Woodstock Jail, the strike was broken. When the matter was afterwards discussed in the United States Senate, Republican and Democratic Senators united in praising Cleveland for his "firm defense of law and order"—among them Senator Daniel, Democrat, of West Virginia, who presided in the Chicago Convention that nominated Bryan in 1896.

In 1899-1900 President McKinley sent Federal troops into the Coeur d'Alene district of Idaho, under General Merriam, to break the strike of the miners. Martial law was declared, hundreds of workingmen arrested on suspicion and held for weeks or months without trial, and a state blacklist was established by a proclamation issued by Democratic Governor Steunenberg and endorsed by General Merriam, forbidding the employment of any members of the Western Federation of Miners. The history of the Coeur d'Alene affair you may read in Herriman's pamphlet, "The Class War in Idaho," which you can get at this office for 5 cents.

HOW TO ORGANIZE.

Instructions for Forming Locals of the Socialist Party.

1. Five or more persons may organize a local branch, provided they subscribe to the platform and constitution of the Socialist Party, and sever their relations with other political parties:

2. The officers to be elected are:
   a. A Chairman at each meeting.
   b. Recording Secretary.
   c. Financial Secretary.
   d. Organizer.
   e. Literature Agent.

3. Order of business—
   a. Reading of the minutes.
   b. Admission of new members.
   c. Communications and bills.
   d. Report of Organizer.
   e. Reports of Committees.
   f. Unfinished business.
   g. New business.

4. A monthly payment, computed on a basis of five cents for each member, for the maintenance of the National organization, shall be paid to the National Secretary. Local branches may levy dues if they so choose, or may raise funds altogether through voluntary contributions and pay National dues out of their general funds.

5. A full report of the meeting in which organization was decided on, the names of persons participating, together with five cents for each member, should be sent with application for charter; after receipt of which, upon approval of National Committee, charter will be granted.

6. Each local branch should hold a meeting at least once a week, for the transaction of business or the discussion of political and economic questions.

7. Semi-annual reports of the membership and the financial condition of each local branch, as well as upon the progress made by the Party and its prospects in the locality, shall be sent regularly to the National Secretary.

8. Any person living in a city or locality, where no local branch exists, may apply directly to the National Secretary for admission to the Party, inclosing one month's dues, and will be enrolled as a member-at-large.

9. For further information not contained herein, address Leon Greenbaum, National Secretary, Room 427, Emilie Building, St. Louis, Mo.

IN YORKVILLE.

A general meeting of all members of the Yorkville districts—26th, 28th, 30th, and 32-33d A. D.—has been called by the C. E. C. for Sunday, April 27, at 3 p. m., in the Club House, 206 E. Eighty-sixth street. Important business will be taken up concerning the coming campaign and the Socialist Daily.

FOR TEN-HOUR DAY.

Bakers' Union No. 164 of the Bronx has decided to demand a ten-hour workday beginning May 1. If the demand is not granted by May 7 a strike will be called. The bakers ask the support of Socialists and organized workingmen of the Borough in this fight, and they should have it.

A CORRECTION.

In our report of the Toledo campaign given last week we unintentionally omitted Spargo's "Where We Stand" from the list of literature used. This is a good pamphlet and the circulation of a few hundred copies of it in Toledo will help to make another good gain in our vote there next time.

NO TRUSTS! NO PRISONS! NO SWEAT SHOPS!

Shirts, Waists, Collars or Cuffs

BEARING THIS LABEL ARE O. K.

INTER'L SHIRT, WAIST & LAUNDRY WORKERS UNION REGISTERED

This label is sewed on Shirts and Waists just below the tab or bosom and is stamped in miniature on Collars and Cuffs

No Chinese exclusion act needed when up-to-date Union Laundries use this Label to stamp Price List Slips on your laundry packages. Ask for it.

EGYPT...

Southern Illinois. A real Garden of Eden. No place in the United States produces a greater variety of finer fruits, vegetables and grains, or more of them. Splendid climate and water. Cheap lands. THE FARMERS' INSTITUTE, Carbondale, Ill., will tell you all about it. Four months for ten cents. Sample copy for two-cent stamp.

OFFICIAL

NATIONAL EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE.—Secretary, Leon Greenbaum, Room 427, Emilie Bldg., St. Louis, Mo.

NEW YORK STATE COMMITTEE.—Secretary, Leonard D. Abbott, 64 E. 4th st., New York. Meets every Tuesday at 8 p. m., at above place.

CALIFORNIA STATE COMMITTEE.—Secretary, Thos. Bersford, 609 Stevenson street, San Francisco. Meets on first and third Fridays in the month.

COLORADO STATE COMMITTEE.—Secretary, Chas. La Kamp, P. O. Box 144, Goldfield.

CONNECTICUT STATE COMMITTEE.—A. B. Cornelius, Secretary, Room 8, 746 Chapel street, New Haven. Meets second and fourth Sunday of the month at above place.

ILLINOIS STATE COMMITTEE.—Secretary, Chas. H. Kerr, 56 Fifth avenue, Chicago. Meets first Tuesday of the month, at 1202 Ashland Block.

INDIANA STATE COMMITTEE.—Secretary, Jas. Oneal, 831 N. Third street, Terre Haute.

IOWA STATE COMMITTEE.—Secretary, W. A. Jacobs, 216 E. Sixth street, Davenport.

KANSAS STATE COMMITTEE.—Secretary-Treasurer, W. L. Nixon, Abilene.

KENTUCKY STATE COMMITTEE.—Secretary, A. A. Lewis, 361 Scott street, Covington.

MAINE STATE COMMITTEE.—Secretary, Fred E. Irish, 322 Riverside street, Woodfords.

MASSACHUSETTS STATE COMMITTEE.—Secretary, Squire T. Putney, 4 Belmont Court, Somerville.—State Committee of Massachusetts Socialist Clubs, Secretary, Winfield P. Porter, 614 Winthrop Building, Boston; Organizer, Wm. Mailly, same address, to whom all matters concerning organization should be addressed.

MICHIGAN STATE COMMITTEE.—Secretary, John A. C. Menton, 1315 Saginaw street, Flint.

MINNESOTA STATE COMMITTEE.—Secretary, Geo. H. Lockwood, 125 Nicollet avenue.

MISSOURI STATE COMMITTEE.—Secretary-Treasurer, E. Val Putnam, Room 9, 22 N. Fourth street, St. Louis.

NEBRASKA STATE COMMITTEE.—Secretary, George E. Baird, 1804 N. Sixteenth street, Omaha.

NEW JERSEY STATE COMMITTEE.—Secretary, M. M. Goebel, 14 Bridge street, Newark. State Committee second Sunday of the month, at 3 p. m., at 124 Market street, Newark, N. J.

NEW HAMPSHIRE STATE COMMITTEE.—Secretary, Louis Arastein, 18 Watson street, Dover.

NORTH DAKOTA STATE COMMITTEE.—Secretary, Arthur Bissett, Fargo.

OHIO STATE COMMITTEE.—Secretary, W. G. Critchlow, 26 Pruden Bldg., Dayton. Meets every Monday evening.

OREGON STATE COMMITTEE.—Secretary, W. S. Richards, Albany.

OKLAHOMA TERRITORIAL COMMITTEE.—Secretary-Treasurer, Dr. H. B. Dean, P. O. Box 1116, Oklahoma City.

PENNSYLVANIA STATE COMMITTEE.—Secretary, J. Mahlon Barnes, 1227 Arch street; Treasurer, Jos. K. Edelman, 806 W. Cambria street, Philadelphia.

PUERTO RICO TERRITORIAL COMMITTEE.—Secretary, Saturnino Sone, San Juan.

TEXAS STATE COMMITTEE.—Secretary, S. J. Hampton, Bonham.

WASHINGTON STATE COMMITTEE.—Secretary, Geo. W. Scott, 86 Virginia street, Seattle. Meets first Sunday in the month, 3 p. m., at 220 Union street.

WISCONSIN STATE COMMITTEE.—Secretary, E. H. Thomas, 614 State street, Milwaukee.

NOTICE—For technical reasons, no Party announcements can go in that are not in this office by Tuesday, 3 p. m.

LOCAL NEW YORK.

Below is a list of the subdivisions of Local New York, Socialist Party, with time and place of meeting. If you are not already a party member, but believe in the principles of Socialism, do not fail to attend the next meeting of your assembly district, join the party, and go to work.

The headquarters of Local New York are at the Labor Lyceum, 64 E. Fourth street. Julius Gerber is the organizer, and to him all communications should be addressed. The General Committee, consisting of delegates from the subdivisions, meets in the Labor Lyceum on the second and fourth Saturday of each month.

1st, 3d, and 5th A. D.—Every Monday at 249 W. Eleventh street, home of L. D. Mayes.

2d and 8th A. D.—Second and fourth Thursday of the month, at 73 Ludlow street.

4th A. D.—Every Friday at Pacific Hall, E. Broadway, near Clinton street.

9th and 10th A. D.—Second and fourth Friday, at the Labor Lyceum, 64 E. Fourth street.

7th A. D.—First and third Wednesday, at Colonial Hotel, 243 W. Seventeenth street.

9th and 11th A. D.—First and third Friday, at 426 W. Thirty-eighth street.

12th A. D.—Every Friday at Grand Central Palace Hall, 90-96 Clinton street, Room 5.

13th A. D.—First and third Saturday, at 242 W. Forty-second street.

14th A. D.—Second and fourth Thursday, at 228 E. Tenth street.

15th and 17th A. D.—Second and fourth Tuesday, at 437 W. Fifty-third street.

16th A. D.—Every Friday at 616 E. Fifth street.

18th and 20th A. D.—First and third Thursday, at 421 First avenue.

19th A. D.—Second and fourth Wednesday, at 125 Amsterdam avenue.

21st A. D.—First and third Friday, at Colonial Hall, One Hundred and First street and Columbus avenue.

22d A. D.—Every Thursday at 215 East Fifty-ninth street.

23d A. D.—First and third Friday, at 19 Manhattan street.

24th A. D.—(Branch 1.) Second and fourth Monday, at 1059 Second avenue.

24th A. D.—(Branch 2.) Every Thursday at 225 E. 86th street.

26th A. D.—First and third Thursday, at 1432 Second avenue.

26th A. D. (BOHEMIAN BRANCH.)—Second and fourth Thursday, at 326 E. Seventy-third street.

28th A. D.—First and third Thursday, at 1497 Avenue A.

30th A. D.—Second and fourth Wednesday, at 206 E. Eighty-sixth street.

32d and 33d A. D.—First and third Thursday, at 1007 Third avenue.

34th and 35th A. D. (BRANCH 1, GERMAN)—Second and fourth Friday, at 3390 Third avenue.

34th and 35th A. D. (BRANCH 2, ENGLISH.)—Second and fourth Thursday, at 3390 Third avenue.

ANNEXED DISTRICT.—First and third Saturday, at Weide's Hotel, Tenth street and White Plains avenue, Williamsbridge.

LOCAL KINGS COUNTY.

The headquarters of Local Kings County, at the Socialist Club, Fulton street and Ralph avenue, Brooklyn, are open daily, from 10 a. m. to 11 p. m., to furnish any information regarding the Local as well as all kinds of literature, including subscription cards for the party press.

The County Committee meets on the second and fourth Saturdays of the month at 8 p. m. The Local Organizer is Warren Atkinson, 25 S. Oxford street.

The following is a list of the Branches of the Local, with time and place of meeting:

1st, 2d, and 3d A. D. (American Branch.)—First and third Friday, at 121 Schermerhorn street.

5th A. D.—First and third Monday, at Emrich's, 5-7 Boerum street.

6th A. D.—Every Wednesday, at 222 Stockton street.

7th A. D.—First and third Thursday, at Hinkenfeld's, 1252 Forty-fifth street.

12th A. D.—First and third Saturday, at Turn Hall, Sixteenth street, near Fifth avenue.

13th and 14th A. D.—First and third Saturday, at Eckford's Hall, corner Eckford and Calyer streets.

15th A. D.—Second and fourth Saturday, at 187 Montrose avenue.

16th A. D.—First and third Friday, at 9 McDougal street.

17th A. D.—First and third Sunday afternoon, at 9 McDougal street.

18th A. D.—First and third Thursday, at 9 McDougal street.

19th A. D.—First and third Monday, at Labor Lyceum, 355 Willoughby avenue.

20th A. D., BRANCH 1, GERMAN—First and third Wednesday, at 257 Hamburg avenue.

20th A. D., BRANCH 2, ENGLISH—Second and fourth Tuesday, at 700 Evergreen avenue.

21st A. D., BRANCH 1, GERMAN—First and third Friday, at 675 Gleinmore avenue.

21st A. D., Branch 2—Friday, at New Central Hall, 410 Stone avenue.

21st A. D., BRANCH 3, ENGLISH—Second and fourth Wednesday, at Keystone Hall, Pennsylvania and Glenmore avenues.

What is Home Without The Worker.

"My wife says my subscription has expired and notifies me that she wouldn't attempt to keep house without The Worker. So here you are." So writes Fred Long.

R·I·P·A·N·S

I suffered untold misery for a period of over five years with a case of chronic dyspepsia. I would rise in the morning feeling draggy, miserable and unfit for work. For weeks I would be unable to eat one good meal. After eating I would swell and the oppression would almost drive me crazy. At times I would be troubled with spells of dizziness. Constant worriment reduced my weight until I was a shadow of my former self. I have been taking Ripans now for two months and am almost cured. My old symptoms have disappeared. I have gained in weight over twelve pounds.

At druggists.

The Five-Cent Package is enough for an ordinary occasion. The family bottle, 60 cents, contains a supply for a year.

Have you been a copy of the

THE COMING NATION?

Opinions from the comrades:

"It's a strong, attractive, and instructive number."

"The best propaganda paper in the field."

"Its cartoons and pictures are drawing cards. People will read pictures where they won't read rhetoric."

Send your name on a postal card and receive three sample copies free.

FRED'K KRAFFT, Editor.
E. N. RICHARDSON, Assistant Editor.
THE COMING NATION, Rich Hill, Mo.

LAWYERS.

MORRIS HILLQUIT,
Attorney-at-Law,
320 Broadway. Telephone 2576 Franklin

L. D. MAYES, LAWYER,
245 Broadway, New York City, Borough of Manhattan. Practice in all Courts. Consultation free

H. B. SALISBURY,
COUNSELLOR-AT-LAW
309 Broadway, Room 903. 50 Union Square.

Simon Sultan,
Counsellor at Law.
87 NASSAU, corner FULTON STREET,
(FULTON BUILDING.)
Residence 210 West 120th st., New York.

Have Your Printing Done at Union Printers.

F. W. HEISS, 69 GOLD ST. New York City.
Union Printer
Union Label. Lowest Prices. — Mail Orders Promptly Attended To.

WHO WILL DO YOUR LAUNDRY WORK?

I. X. L. LAUNDRY, GUSTAV LEIST, 241 East 42d St.

SPECIAL NOTICES.

Under this heading any matter of interest to the Social Democratic Party (Socialist Party) will be inserted at FIVE CENTS PER LINE EACH INSERTION. Six words about equal one line. Cash must accompany advertisement IN EVERY INSTANCE.

Entertainment and Hop arranged by the 31st A. D., at Majestic Hall, 125 East One Hundred and Twenty-fifth street, Sunday evening, April 27. Admission, 25 cents.

DON'T WEAR YOURSELF OUT TRYING TO SPREAD SOCIALISM, but take hold of things by the smoothest handle. New ideas and labor-saving devices in propaganda material. Samples for 2c. stamp. FRANK OHNEMUS, 196 Park Place, Long Island City, New York.

ORDER BLANK FOR

THE WORKER'S

GREAT MAY DAY NUMBER.

THE WORKER,
184 William Street, New York.

Enclosed find $..... for which send me.....copies of your issue of May 1st.

Name .....

Address .....

$1.00 OFFER FOR 60 CENTS.

Railroading in the United States by BEN. HANFORD	5 Cents
The Clerical Capitalist by REV. Father McGRADY	10 Cents
Why Workingmen Should be Socialists by H. GAYLORD WILSHIRE	2 Cents
Labor Politics and Socialist Politics by ALGERNON LEE	3 Cents
The Proletariat by KARL KAUTSKY	5 Cents
The Class War in Idaho by JOB HARRIMAN. Third Edition	5 Cents
The Communist Manifesto by KARL MARX and FRED'K ENGELS	10 Cents
The Development of Socialism, from Utopia to Science. By F. ENGELS	5 Cents
A Debate on the Tactics of the S. T. and L. A. toward Trade Unions between Daniel DeLeon and Job Harriman	5 Cents
The Attitude of the Socialists toward the Trade Unions, by N. I. STONE	5 Cents
The Capitalist Class by KARL KAUTSKY	5 Cents
Now and Then. A Socialist Play by FRED'K KRAFFT	10 Cents
The Adventures of JOHN McCUE—Socialist	10 Cents
The Religion of Capital by PAUL LAFARGUE	10 Cents
Social Effect of Machinery by FRANK W. COLTON	5 Cents
Where we stand by JOHN SPARGO	5 Cents
Socialism. A Reply to the Pope's Encyclical by ROBERT BLATCHFORD	5 Cents

On receipt of Only 60 Cents above 15 books will be mailed postpaid.

Socialist Literature Co., 184 WILLIAM ST., New York.

Largest Assortment of Literature on the Labor Question.
CATALOGUE FREE.

PUBLICATIONS.

LATEST PUBLICATIONS.

"Adventures of John McCue".....10c.
"American Farmer." By Simons. Cloth, 50c.
"American Communities." By W. A. Hinds. Cloth.....$1.00
"The Man with the Hoe," and other poems. By Edwin Markham. Cloth, $1; paper, 50c.
"History of Trade Unionism." By S. & B. Webb. Cloth.....$2.60.
"Industrial Denouncing." By Sidney and Beatrice Webb.....$4.00.
"The Passing of Capitalism." By Ladoff. 25c.
"Organized Self-Help." By H. N. Casson. 25c.
"Religion of Capital." By Lafargue....10c.
"Social Effect of Machinery." By Cotton.10c.
"Useful Principles of Logic." By T. Bersford.....15c.
"Voice from England." By Father McGrady.....10c.
"Where We Stand." By J. Spargo.....5c.
"Woman." By Martha Moore Avery..10c.

A large stock of Labor Literature in English and German always on hand. Catalogues free.

SOCIALIST LITERATURE CO.,
184 William Street, N. Y.

CO-OPERATE IN PUBLISHING SOCIALIST BOOKS

That is the way to get them at actual cost. $10 each or $1 a month. Five months makes you joint owner in our business with the right to buy books at the prices in second column, postage included. Others have to pay prices in first column.

The American Farmer. Simons. Cloth	.40	.30
Collectivism. Vandervelde. Cloth	.40	.30
Collectivism. Vandervelde. Paper	.10	.05
Liebknecht's Life of Marx. Cloth	.50	.40
Last Days of Paris Commune. Cloth	.40	.30
Engels' Origin of the Family. Cloth	.50	.40
Love's Coming-of-Age. Edward Carpenter	1.00	.80
Socialism Utopian and Scientific. Engels. Cloth	.50	.40
Socialism Utopian and Scientific. Engels. Paper	.10	.05
Socialism. Wilhelm Liebknecht. Paper	.10	.05
Life of Engels. Kautsky. Paper	.10	.05
Pocket Library of Socialism. Paper	.10	.05
Pocket Library of Socialism. Per 100, assorted	$ 2.25	$ 1.00
International Socialist Review. Per copy	.10	.05
International Socialist Review. Per year	1.00	.50

Our co-operative plan is fully explained in a booklet entitled "How Socialist Literature is Published," mailed free on application. Locals Chicago, Philadelphia, Erie, Minneapolis, Davenport and many others are already with us.

CHARLES H. KERR & CO. (Co-operative)
56 Fifth Avenue, CHICAGO.

Just Received from England

A large importation of

"CAPITAL," by Karl Marx.

Only authorized edition, translated by Samuel Moore and Edward Aveling, and edited by Frederick Engels.

CONTENTS:

Prefaces by the author and editor.
Part I.—Commodities and Money.
II.—The

SEE THE OTHER SIDE.

FROM FAR HAWAII.

A Pitiful Cry from Puerto Ricans on Sugar Plantations.

Two Chapters in a History of Capitalist Crime—Lured from Their Homes by False Pretenses, Some of Them Kidnapped en Masse, They Are Now Left to Starve.

A little over a year ago The Worker published correspondence from Puerto Rico telling of the terrible sufferings of the working people in that island following upon the introduction of "American institutions" there. There was a general interruption of industry while the American capitalists were busy getting the means of production into their own hands. Thousands of people were out of work and suffered the direst poverty, some dying of actual starvation. The American military authorities outdid the worst records of the Spanish governors in the severity with which they crushed strikes and labor demonstrations. The change of the coinage aggravated the evil, the money price of food and other commodities being increased, while a corresponding increase of money wages was refused; and the United States authorities assisted the employers in carrying out this infamous policy.

But while the American capitalists, not having yet got the means of production in Puerto Rict fully into their possession, were unwilling to "give employment" to the people in that island, the same capitalists, having secured the ownership of the sugar plantations and mills of Hawaii, were anxious to have a surplus population of workers there, so that wages might be kept down.

Although the condition of the workers in Hawaii was already most miserable, the sugar companies circulated in Puerto Rico glowing accounts of the prospects awaiting those who would go to Hawaii to work. Many fell into the trap, and willingly signed contracts to go to Hawaii and work on the plantations.

Others, however, being acquainted with the methods commonly used by capitalists to effect their purpose of reducing the workers' share of their product, thought it "better to bear those ills they had than fly to others that they knew not of," and advised their fellows to stay in Puerto Rico and agitate for an improvement of their conditions instead of putting themselves completely into their exploiters' power by going as contract laborers to far-away Hawaii.

The result was that the sugar lords were not able to get as many slaves as they wanted in their Pacific colony, while they had more than they wanted in their West India possessions. Finding that persuasion did not suffice, they did not scruple to resort to a combination of force and fraud.

The agents of the sugar companies engaged large numbers of Puerto Rican workers on the understanding that they were to be given employment in the United States. These workers were then shipped to New Orleans and put aboard trains, which, they supposed, were to carry them to plantations in the neighborhood. Instead, the trains were run through to San Francisco (stopping for water only at certain points in the prairies or the great plains where there could be no chance for the "emigrants" to escape) and their human cargo there loaded, like so many cattle, on steamships bound for Hawaii. A few managed to escape at New Orleans or at San Francisco, but at both points the police were used to prevent desertion.

This story of fraud and wholesale kidnapping was partly told in the capitalist press at the time—in the fall of 1900 and the following winter—and was more fully related in The Worker.

Now comes the second chapter in this drama of capitalist crime, in the form of a letter from some fifty Puerto Rican workingmen and women in Hawaii, published in the newspapers of their native islands. We quote it, in part, from the San Juan "News." Under date Hawaii Kiloa, Feb. 17, these "prisoners of poverty" write:

"To the Editor of the 'News.'

"Sir:—With the utmost respect we address this to you in order to acquaint the Puerto Rican people with what we are undergoing in this territory of Hawaii, to which end we request to publish these lines to your valuable paper. We are Puerto Ricans, native born, who were forced to leave Puerto Rico by the hard times, and were transported to Hawaii where we live void of all liberties, bearing the yoke of the despotic planter after filling his safes with our sweat for the miserable wage of fifty cents daily. * * *

"Why does the government which allowed the emigration to Hawaii remain in silence, when it is known that not the people here nor the territorial officials care for us? It seems incredible that the government which allowed the emigration should permit that the real patriots who welcomed it with wreaths of flowers, flags, and other things, should permit that those who venerate and hold dear in their hearts the memorable name of the honorable liberator of the West Indies. We to-day, ask for protection from the governor, Mr. Hunt, from our countrymen, from the press, and from the new honorable President, Mr. Roosevelt. We are Puerto Ricans born, Americans at heart, and relying on this, men and women and children abandoned the towns of our Borinquen, crossed the Carribbean first and later the Pacific, where many of our comrades lie buried forever. Arriving at Honolulu we are submitted to inhuman domain, being outraged, beaten and ill treated in all manner of ways.

"Not to wait until the extermination comes, we forward this ardent request for protection, hoping it will receive attention and not be disregarded as was a letter signed by thirty-four Puerto Ricans sent November 25 from the Oahu plantation.

"We wish it known that never before has any Puerto Rican people been compelled to seek protection from any country, for our native land always granted us this even under the Spanish regime. It is a shame to all the world that to-day when we are under the domain of the United States, we are compelled to emigrate to a place void of enlightenment and ideals, to live oppressed and without hope.

"We do not want to be slaves any longer in Hawaiian territory, and men and women and children beg to be returned to our native country.

"We notify the press that on Feb. 12 there were dismissed from the plantation Koai, Kawii, about forty Puerto Ricans who were without work, moneyless, homeless, with none to help them. There are over 300 Puerto Ricans in the jails of these islands, most of them for no other crime than for not being willing to work for small wages."

The uncouth English of this letter only adds to the conviction of its truth and to the pathos of it. Exiles in a strange land, poor and friendless and helpless, they could find no champion to put their pitiful cry for protection into good literary form. They wrote as best they knew, to tell the story of their oppression.

This is what it means—"our manifest destiny," "our" commercial supremacy, "our" prosperity, "our" American institutions.

After all, it is only a little worse than the story that could be told by thousands of emigrants and of native-born Americans, too, in the coal mines, in the railroad construction gangs, in the lumbering camps, or on the poverty-stricken farms all along the great railway lines of the Far West—lured by the lying representatives of mine owners, railway companies, and land companies, to leave what was already a life of poverty in the hope of bettering their condition, only to find themselves in more hopeless poverty at the end and completely in the grasp of their exploiters.

Fellow workingmen of the United States, is this a sample of the workings of "our," of "your," institutions? Is it yours, the prosperity and the commercial supremacy which are secured by such crimes? No, these are not yours. But nevertheless, the responsibility is yours, for you are the voters who have the power to say whether such things shall go on. There is but one way in which you can fulfil that responsibility as men and citizens and workingmen—by voting into power the Socialist Party, which stands for the overthrow of the profit-grinding system that fosters such criminal methods, and the substitution of the Co-operative Commonwealth.

THE SOCIALIST PARTY.

The party which this paper represents is known nationally as the Socialist Party, and such is its designation in most of the states. In New York, however, it keeps the former name of Social Democratic Party, for reasons concerning the election laws. It has no connection with the Socialist Labor Party and does not approve of the "union smashing" tactics or the abusive methods used by that party. The Socialist—or Social Democratic—Party works in harmony with the trade unions, though without any organic connection. It holds itself free to criticize their policy when necessary, but it approves of the principle of trade unionism. It does not attempt to dictate to the unions nor is it dictated to by them. It calls upon all workingmen to join the unions of their respective trades as a means of fighting the daily battle against the capitalist class and to join and work and vote for the Socialist Party as a means of putting an end to capitalism.

—Mark Hanna, capitalist and money baron, says he's in love with trade unions, but doesn't like Socialism. As he is already married to capitalism, the Socialists will see to it that he doesn't make a mistress of trade unionism.—Social Democratic Herald.

BUY UNION LABEL GOODS.

AFRAID OF CRITICISM.

Queer Action of General Officers of Longshoremen's Union.

Demand That Hoboken Local "Apologize" for Having Passed Resolutions Criticizing President Keefe—Local Will Stand by Its Position—"Peace Conference" at Bottom of Trouble.

At its January business meeting Local 271, Hoboken, N. J., of the International Longshoremen's Association adopted resolutions censuring International President Daniel J. Keefe for taking part in the so-called Industrial Peace Conference and accepting a place on the Committee of Thirty-six, as well as for neglecting instructions in regard to the organization of the port of New York and affiliation with the International Federation of Transport Workers.

An Amazing Rebuke.

The Local has just received an astonishing communication from Secretary Barter of the I. L. A. at Detroit, stating that the General Council of the Association at its recent meeting in Cleveland had adopted a resolution endorsing the position of President Keefe and calling on Local 271 "to apologize to the President for unjustifiable attack it had made upon him."

Local 271 considers this a very queer procedure. The General Council gave the Local no opportunity to defend or justify its previous action, to state the facts in the case or express their views, but seems to demand not only unquestioning obedience but servile deference to the general officers. The Hoboken local refuses to submit to such treatment and has informed Secretary Barter that Local 271 cannot accept the decision of the General Council as final and does not consider the incident closed but will appeal to the Convention to be held at Chicago in July; that the Local will stand by its resolutions at all costs, considering them entirely justified, and will never think of apologizing to President Keefe for exercising its right of criticism upon elected officers.

The Resolutions.

The original resolutions, which were printed in The Worker of Jan. 19, are as follows:

"Whereas, It has become known to the members of Local 271 of the International Longshoremen's Association that President Daniel J. Keefe of the I. L. A., during his recent stay in the city of New York, on the seventeenth and eighteenth of December, 1901, instead of using that time in organizing and affiliating the longshoremen of New York—which is of the utmost importance, not only to the members of this local, but also to the Association at large, because New York is the first and foremost port on the American continent—wasted his time, together with other so-called labor leaders, in useless consultation with notorious enemies of Labor and in forming a 'Capital and Labor Peace Committee;' and

"Considering that we, as class-conscious workingmen, have come to the conclusion that said 'peace committee' is detrimental to the interests of the workingmen in general and to the members of this Association in particular, and threatens to become the greatest danger to organized Labor this country has seen for years; and

"Whereas, Further, our President, Daniel J. Keefe, has violated the pledge of this association in dealing with such notorious enemies of Labor as Mark Hanna, Schwab, and others; be it

Keefe Censured.

"Resolved, That we emphatically condemn the actions of our President, Daniel J. Keefe, and demand of him that he immediately sever his connections with said 'Peace Committee,' otherwise further steps should be taken in the matter; and

"Whereas, Furthermore, President Daniel J. Keefe has, so far as we know, acted solely on his individual responsibility and without any authorization whatsoever from our Association, and is now a member of the said 'Peace Committee,' of which a notorious enemy of Labor, Mark Hanna, is the chairman; therefore be it further

"Resolved, That we, the members of Local 271 of the I. L. A., do not feel ourselves bound, individually or collectively, by any findings, resolutions, or recommendations of said 'Peace Committee,' and that we do not recognize said committee as having any authority whatsoever in anything concerning Labor; and International Affiliation.

"Whereas, Lastly, to our knowledge, no definite steps have been taken towards affiliation with the International Federation of Transport Workers, as was ordered by the last convention of the I. L. A. of Toledo, O., and as we know, through a letter from Secreary Chalmers of the I. F. of T. W., that they are ready and willing and glad to have us affiliate with them, therefore be it further

"Resolved, That we find President Daniel J. Keefe guilty of neglecting his duties as President of the I. L. A. and we call upon the Executive Board to take the necessary steps for affiliation with the International Federation of Transport Workers as soon as possible."

Regardless of any differences of opinion as to the correctness of the original resolutions, Local 271 certainly deserves the support of all right-minded workingmen in its resistance to the demands of the General Council. Even in the worst days of French despotism, when the King could say, "I am the state," subordinate authorities bravely maintained the right of criticizing his actions when they considered them unwise. The General Council of the I. L. A. has quite equalled the worst record of the N. E. C. in the old days of the S. L. P. when local bodies were threatened with discipline for passing resolutions in condemnation of De Leon. Mr. Keefe knows what was the result of DeLeon's policy in the S. L. P.—dissension, injurious for the time to the whole organization, but ending in the overthrow of the boss. That is the inevitable result of such arbitrary methods.

STATE CONVENTION IN NEW HAMPSHIRE.

Michael O'Neil Nominated for Governor, Claflin and Murray for Congress—A Good Vote Expected.

The Socialist Party of New Hampshire met in State Convention at Dover on Friday, April 17, and nominated the following ticket:

For Governor — MICHAEL H. O'NEIL of Nashua.

For Congress, First District—SUMNER F. CLAFLIN of Manchester.

For Congress, Second District—JAS. S. MURRAY of Concord.

The convention, held at Socialist headquarters on Central avenue, was called to order a little after 10:30 a. m. by the State Secretary, Louis Arnstein. The Socialists of Exeter, Nashua, Manchester, Concord, Rochester, Franklin, Portsmouth and Dover were represented and delegations from Newfields, Somersworth and other places were present.

On motion, Sumner F. Claflin of Manchester was elected Chairman, and Louis Arnstein of Dover, Secretary of the Convention. A committee of three, consisting of J. S. Murray of Concord, A. K. Chase of Nashua and D. E. C. Duffie of Dover, was then elected to report on a platform at the afternoon session. Michael H. O'Neil of Nashua then handed the following resolution to the Secretary:

"Resolved, That the Socialist Party of New Hampshire in biennial convention assembled, disclaims all responsibility for, or connection with, George Howie of Manchester, N. H., or any of his schemes for destroying the party, from this date, and hereby notify all Socialists and the public generally to that effect. A copy of this to be forwarded to Mr. Howie and the party press."

This was adopted unanimously, as was an additional resolution declaring Mr. Howie's alleged position on the state committee vacant.

A motion was then made and carried that the Secretary, Louis Arnstein, and the Treasurer, Benjamin T. Whitehouse, be elected to membership on the Executive Committee. These comrades, with George A. Little of Manchester and M. H. O'Neil of Nashua, who were elected last Thanksgiving at the Exeter Convention, received the endorsement of the convention as the existing Executive Committee, and four votes were then taken to fill the remaining vacancy, the candidates being Murray, Duffie, Marden, and Chase. After the first ballot, Chase withdrew and on the fourth ballot George A. Marden of Exeter was elected.

In the afternoon session, after the transaction of some routine business, the report of the Platform Committee was called for. The majority report was read by A. K. Chase of Nashua, but the minority report, which follows, read by D. E. C. Duffie of Dover, was finally accepted by the Convention:

State Platform.

"The Socialist Party of New Hampshire, in convention assembled, affirms its allegiance to the Socialist Party of the United States of America. Socialism holds that the industrial system of the world is based on the legal piracy of the working class by the capitalist class. The toll gatherers of this system are profit, interest, and rent. The inevitable result of the system is misery, poverty, and crime. Just as long as the one class, the capitalist, owns the tools of production and distribution and the other class, our class, the working class, are compelled through force of circumstances, to accept of such wages as the employer may offer, just so long will poverty, with its countless evils, be our lot in life.

"The question whether we, the wage-slaves of the twentieth century, are better or worse off than our predecessors in the labor market has, with other things temporal, passed away. The one question that confronts the working class is this: Shall we abolish this false economic system that is crushing into dumb despair one-half the human race?

"We hold, with the founders of the American republic, 'that whenever any form of government becomes destructive of the inalienable rights of life, liberty and pursuit of happiness, it is the right of the people to alter or abolish it and to institute new government, laying its foundations in such principles, and organizing its powers in such form, as to them shall seem most likely to effect their safety and happiness.'

"Inasmuch as the constitution of the United States of America gives two-thirds of the states the power to change said constitution, and believing that such a change will be beneficial to the working class, we ask you as a class to make the constitutional change.

"With the advent of the spinning jenny and the steam engine as a motor, what is now known as the 'factory system' was called into being and capitalism commenced its hideous career. Countless evils for the working class have followed its introduction. As intelligent beings, it stands us in hand to search out the cause and apply the remedy. The machine is a social product. It is the collective work of mankind, and should be owned and operated by the people. The Co-operative Commonwealth must be established.

"When this change from private to public ownership shall be brought about remains for the people to decide. The road lies through the ballot-box.

"Socialism maintains that labor—applied human energy—is the one and only source of wealth. It yet remains to be proven without quibbling and sophistry that such a conclusion is unsound.

"Property is a creation of law, and when obtained without work has got to be stolen by or given to its possessor. The capitalist steals by law. Mr. Carnegie is now spending wealth that was created by and stolen from his operatives.

"The Socialist perceives that it is better to remove grievances than to resist them. While we submit to the particular hardship, we assail the system from which the hardship flows. For this reason we advocate the substitution of the Co-operative Commonwealth in place of the system now in vogue. Industrial revolution is our battle cry.

Greetings to Belgian Comrades.

"We send our fraternal greetings to our comrades in Belgium and wish them success in their revolution. The working class of the world have our heartfelt sympathy in their battles with the kindoms of our time. Wars and crime of every description are bred by commercialism. To prevent a world-wide cataclysm we must establish the Co-operative Commonwealth.

"The trade unions are the economic expression of the labor movement and the Socialist Party is the political expression of the labor movement: be it resolved, that the Socialist Party hereby calls upon said labor unions to use the ballot for the abolition of the wage system and the substitution of the Co-operative Commonwealth."

Nominations were then made as stated above.

Comrade O'Neil was candidate for Mayor of Nashua at the last city election and polled a large vote. He is young and energetic and will work well for the cause.

Comrade Claflin is one of the "old guard" in New Hampshire, having twice run for Governor, with an increasing vote.

Comrade Murray is a stone cutter of Concord and it is believed that he will make a good showing in the Second District, where Socialism is rapidly gaining ground.

PARTY WORK IN MASSACHUSETTS.

Notes of Socialist Organization and Propaganda in the Bay State.

In Boston the celebration of May Day to be held in Paine Memorial Hall, 9 Appleton street, on Sunday, May 4, is being looked forward to with much expectation. The visit of Ben Hanford has aroused much interest, and there is every likelihood of a big crowd being present to greet him and the other two speakers, Comrades Carey and MacCartney. The meeting will open promptly at 7:30 p. m., and those attending are requested to come early. As the admission is free nothing should prevent a most successful affair and the Boston comrades should work to that end. Clubs in the vicinity that hold Sunday night meetings are expected to suspend for this evening and attend the celebration instead. Somerville has voted to do so. Advertising cards can be secured from the undersigned.

H. Gaylord Wilshire will speak in Fitchburg on April 26, Worcester the 27th, and Brockton on the 28th. The Cambridge meeting is deferred until a later date, when efforts will be made to get the students out. Wilshire should have good meetings.

The Somerville and Cambridge Socialist clubs will celebrate May Day with a social to be held in Essex Hall, Central Square, Cambridge on Thursday evening, May 1. Dancing 8 to 12. Gent's tickets, 25 cents; ladies' ticket, 15 cents. Boston comrades are invited to attend and enjoy themselves.

Comrade N. P. Geiger will be the speaker at Amesbury on May 1, when an open-air meeting will be held in the evening. Amesbury comrades have ordered 500 May Day Workers for distribution.

At Springfield, the annual celebration promises to be a big affair. It will be held in Graves' Hall, on Thursday evening, May 1, and Carey and MacCartney will be the speakers. The Springfield comrades have gotten out a very tasty and creditable card advertising the celebration. It is a small card, but contains the portraits of the Socialist representatives, with appropriate reading matter on one side, and on the other a reduced facsimile of Walter Crane's May Day Greeting to the Workers. I should like to see more Socialist advertising as well gotten up as this card.

At a recent agitation meeting held in Charleston last week, at which Carey was the speaker, eight new members joined the club, some of them old workers who are going to get into harness again.

The meetings addressed by the Socialists are very well attended. Of course, Carey and MacCartney draw th elargest crowds. The Cambridge meeting, where the latter spoke, was very successful, and the Dorchester and Waltham meetings of Carey were largely attended by workingmen who were attentive and enthusiastic listeners.

The railroad men's meeting held by Division 122, Order of Railroad Conductors, in Paine Memorial Hall, this city, was largely attended and the speeches of the two Socialist representatives seemed to have a good effect, judging from the remarks made by those in attendance. Hanford's pamphlet was eagerly taken and will help drive the speeches home.

The Brockton fair held week before last was the usual success, and a goodly sum was cleared for the local club. A party of Boston Socialists attended on the last night and report a pleasant time.

The regular summer meetings of the Socialist Party on Boston Common will begin on Sunday next with the veteran and beloved Squire E. Putney in charge. The meeting place is located at the fifth tree on the Charles street mall, and the time of meeting is from 3 to 5 p. m.

The Karl Marx Class, Mrs. Martha Moore Avery, director, has closed the season, which has been the most successful in the class' history.

I visited Newburyport, Amesbury, and Haverhill last week and met nearly all the comrades in each place. I was gratified at the outlook and the comrades evidently mean to put in some hard licks between now and election day—and then afterwards.

The following rather astonishing editorial appeared in the Waltham "Evening News" of April 16, the day after a meeting addressed by Carey:

"'Socialism' was the topic of Representative Carey of Haverhill in a discourse under the auspices of the Social Economic Club of Waltham last evening, when the subject was quite fully illustrated and defined. There is an inexcusable general mental density touching Socialism, with the result that a rational school of thought is condemned by the mass of men who do not understand or comprehend the first letter in the alphabet of the subject. In a few words, Socialism teaches that the production and the distribution of commodities and the use and enjoyment of all public utilities and rights, should be owned by the government and not by private parties as now. Without going into the matter at this time the 'News' is free to say that there is no other way for the conservation of essential human rights but the inauguration of Socialism, or some cognate plan. If government be truly for the people, by the people, Socialism is the Utopia, whereas if government, that is, law and the fruits of the earth, and the products of man's toil and ingenuity, are to be governed and owned by the few, then existing social and economic conditions are to be continued. Whoever doubts this postulate now will know more later on."

The editor was present at the meeting.

The quarterly reports from the various clubs are encouraging, but secretaries are lax in making reports. At the next meeting every member who reads this should enquire if the secretary has sent in a report. This should be attended to.

WILLIAM MAILLY,
Boston, April 21.

NEWS FROM LYNN.

Matters Socialistic have not been remarkably active during the past winter, although agitation work by a few individuals has been carried on. The system of dual organization adopted at the last state propaganda convention has been in some measure responsible for this state of affairs; then, again, a number of our formerly active members have been elected to positions of trust in the various local trade organizations and this, too, has been detrimental in a way to the immediate and important work of the local movement. However, this is partially offset by the fact that some of these comrades are doing good work in arousing Socialistic thought among these in the trade union movement who hertofore have blindly voted the old party tickets and faithfully supported "good labor men" for office every election day.

With the great wave of trade unionism which has recently struck Lynn has also come an increased interest in Socialism, not evidenced, however, by any great growth in membership or interest in our club meetings but by the fact of our members being placed in official positions in the union movement, and a call for Socialist speakers to address union organizations. Comrades Carey, MacCartney, Mailly, and Geiger have addressed by request several such gatherings, including the C. L. U. and the Machinists; and wonder of wonders! the former organization of 160 members (only ten avowed Socialists among them) elected a committee of three, a few days ago, to draw up an eight-hour bill to put before the Massachusetts Legislature, and placed it in the hands of whom? The representatives elected from Lynn by their votes on old party tickets? Oh, no; but in the hands of our two standard bearers, Carey and MacCartney. The organized workers of Lynn are at last learning the lesson which it has cost "old Branch 5" of the old Social Democratic Party much time and money to teach them—that there are but two classes, the robbers and the robbed, and that when they support either of the old party tickets they help to perpetuate the robber class and system.

Among the members of the Socialist movement in Lynn who hold prominent positions in the trade unions are Comrade Ruggles, President of the Retail Grocery Clerks' Union, a strong organization which has recently compelled the grocers and butchers to unionize their stores and accept a schedule of hours as laid down by the union; Comrade William Jackson, member of the National Board of the Boot and Shoe Workers' Union and its local Agent; Comrade Elmer F. Robinson, Treasurer of the L. P. U. Association and member of the local Shoe Council; and Comrade Wadleigh, Salem, Agent of the Boot and Shoe Workers.

Comrade Fred E. Weed, Chairman of the Socialist City Committee, who has always been and is to-day an active worker in the local movement (a street railway conductor in this city for thirteen years), was recently appointed State Organizer for the Amalgamated Association of Street Railway Employees. He has accomplished a work which has won for him the respect of all believers in the trade union movement in this section; taking a body of some 300 men, cowed and whipped into submission by the lash of the Boston and Northern Street Railway Corporation, he has organized over 90 per cent. into a branch of the Amalgamated and at midnight last Monday, in the headquarters of the Central Socialist Club, 230 of these men signed the charter list—and this without the knowledge of the railway management or their "spiders," some of whom have since lost their soft jobs and been put to work again on the cars for not keeping their eyes open as to what was going on.

Salem, Marblehead, and Dovers have also been organized by Comrade Weed within the past few days. I predict a great increase in our vote this fall in this city unless all signs fail, as a result of this work.

The one discouraging thing about the movement in Lynn is the fact that the West Lynn organization does not seem willing to sign the charter list of the Central Socialist Club and thereby do its share towards the support of the state and national organizations. There seems to be a misunderstanding regarding the rights of this organization under the new club system which the Executive Committee has done its best to clear up, but thus far without success. For my part, I cannot see how a man calling himself an active Socialist, claiming to be identified wit hthe educational and political ends of the movement, can conscientiously refuse to pay his ten cents monthly toward the support of the stae and national movement; and this applies to some other localities in this state as well as Lynn.

NEMO.

WORK IN CONNECTICUT.

Branches of the Socialist Party in Connecticut should at their next meetings elect delegates to the State Convention, which will meet at New Haven on Memorial Day, May 30. The basis of representation is one delegate for each branch having twenty-five members or less; two delegates for branches having between twenty-five and fifty.

The convention will nominate candidates for Governor, Lieutenant-Governor, Secretary, Controller, Treasurer, and Attorney General. Branches should select candidates and instruct their delegates accordingly. Officers of the State Committee of the party will also be elected and plans for the work of the state campaign perfected.

Branches wishing to have a full ticket in their locality must make nominations for County Sheriff, for State Senator, and for two Representatives. Further information regarding these nominations can be had of the State Secretary. Branches whose regular meetings come late in May should hold special meetings early in the month to attend to these matters.

This has been a busy week in Connecticut. The election in New Haven Tuesday showed that the Socialist Part yhad held its own in spite of the agitation of the public ownership question by "reformers" who afterward accepted nominations from the Democratic party and who also received the endorsement and active support of the Trades Council. This support proved to be of little benefit. After endorsing six out of eight of the Aldermen-at-Large nominated by the political agents of the capitalist class and working hard to elect them, two who were trade unionists were defeated and the only other radical was barely elected. Although the total vote was little more than half of last year's, the Socialist vote remained about the same as last year.

Comrade J. W. Brown, who is now in Bridgeport, addressed a meeting at Central Labor Hall, Derby, Thursday, April 17. Comrade Brown will speak at an open-air meeting in Derby as soon as the weather is favorable. The Derby branch will be a powerful factor in the state campang his year.

On Friday, April 18, the State Organizer visited Stafford Springs, where the organization of a branch will soon be completed. There is a strong Socialist sentiment in this town which would have resulted in organization long ago but for the efforts of Rockville DeLeonites to prevent it. The followers of the Prophet were at the meeting, armed with the usual code of questions and a new lying circular he has recently issued. Their efforts were in vain and only reacted against them. A branch of the Socialist Party was formed, with active workers and thorough Socialists.

Comrades Toomey and MacCartney addressed an audience of about two hundred at the New London Opera House on Thursday. The disciples of Daniel were there also. Several of them came down from New Haven to hear a real Socialist speaker. Toomey spoke as a common workingman to workingmen, showing the deceptions practised by old-party politicians and the capitalist interests which controlled them. MacCartney made a ringing speech, which was loudly applauded. The meeting was a successful one for New London at this time.

Comrade Toomey was called to Bridgeport last Sunday, April 20. A meeting of trade union delegates had been assembled for the purpose of organizing the "Industrial and Economic League," a side show recently started by Democratic politicians for the purpose of corralling the labor vote. The "League" is attaining considerable strength in this state and has prominent "labor leaders" at the head of it—"Labor" Mayor Sullivan of Hartford, Vice-President of the State Federation; J. J. O'Neil, the State Organizer of the A. F. of L., and others. O'Neil was chairman of the Bridgeport meeting and was roundly denounced by some of the delegates who asserted that "if he is in it the Industrial League is a fraud and is as good as dead already." Comrades Toomey and Shanahan spoke, showing the futility of a labor party that is not conducted on working-class lines.

H. Gaylord Wilshire will speak at Warner Hall, New Haven, Tuesday evening, April 29, and also in Danbury on April 30, and in Rockville, May 1. All readers of this paper should attend and bring their friends.

The State Organizer will go to Meriden on Friday, April 25, to address the Stationery Engineers' Association.

The time for open-air meetings is at hand and branches should make arrangements to utilize the speakers of the State Committee, who are available on Saturdays and Sundays, and on other days for places near New Haven.

Grand Symphony Concert

By the full Damrosch Orchestra of sixty pieces, under the direction of FRANK DAMROSCH, assisted by a Chorus of Six Hundred Voices from the People's Choral Union.

SUNDAY AFTERNOON, MAY 4,
—IN—

Grand Central Palace.

Three beautiful Living Pictures: "THE FIRST OF MAY," "STRUGGLE," "VICTORY."

FOR THE SOCIALIST DAILY FUND.

TICKETS, 25 CENTS. ADMISSION AT THE DOOR, 35 CENTS.

For tickets and information apply to H. C. Bowerman, Financial Secretary, at the Club House, 206 E. Eighty-sixth street.

ORGANIZER SPRING AT WORK IN NEW YORK.

State Organizer F. J. Spring reports as follows on his work in the past week and his plans for the future:

"During the past week I have held meetings in the following places: Woodhaven, Mount Vernon, Yonkers, Long Island, Dobbs Ferry, and Stapleton. I found the comrades in these places all anxious and ready to carry on a vigorous campaign during the summer.

"At Woodhaven I spoke to the Carpenters' Union, and in a talk of one hour I set forth the straight Socialist program. The attention and enthusiasm which my remarks elicited, the kindly invitation to come again, and the desire of the brothers to arrange a meeting for me before the union at Jamaica, give further evidence of the idiocy of the position of some Socialists who contend that no good definite work can be done by our propagandists in the trade unions.

"The State Committee has arranged a tour of the state, and I go on the war-path Wednesday, April 23, opening at Peekskill. After the close of the present itinerary, I will then proceed to systematic organization, taking up the counties in which my services are most needed, and continuing in such counties until they are thoroughly organized.

"I feel confident of the co-operation of all the comrades in the state, and with such assistance I am hopeful of splendid results. Comrades, let us not forget that this fall we have an election, and we must roll up a large vote. The only way we can do this is to get in and work. Let us increase the circulation of our party papers, distribute literature, keep good speakers in the field, and when the count is made on Election Day we will have concrete evidence in the form of an increased vote that our labors have not been in vain."

The State Committee needs funds to keep Organizer Spring in the field, to get out needed literature, and to send out speakers later in the season. Now is the time to give. Send contributions to the Treasurer, Emil Neppel, 288 W. One Hundred and Forty-second street, New York City. The following contributions have been received for this purpose:

List 372, "Cash," Yonkers	$1.00
List 27, Emil Neppel	1.00
List 288, R. R. Hunt	1.00
24th A. D., Branch 2	3.00
List 321, P. Schneider, Philipstown	.25
List 1,033, "Cash," Syracuse	1.00
List 107, R. Berggren, Syracuse, 25c.; C. Tank 25c	.50
List 91, L. Behein, Brooklyn	1.00
List 1,497, C. Lumgruber, Brooklyn	.25
List 1,533, A. Block, 50c.; P. Hummer, 50c.; B. Mosesson, 50	1.50
List 1,392, Geo. L. Hoag	5.00
List 1,532, Julius Mueller	1.00
Total	$16.50

PENNSYLVANIA'S WORK.

At the last meeting of the Pennsylvania State Committee charters were forwarded to Locals Wilkes Barre, West Newton, and Greater Pittsburg. East Pittsburg is also preparing to take a charter.

New Castle, in sending a list of members and money on old account, reported preparations for an active campaign.

Wilkes Barre wants Vail to speak. Williamsport reported meetings for Bigelow on April 24 and for Vail on May 18. Both locals are working well.

Duquesne wants to be put on monthly lecture circuit and asks for Vail; is a good field.

Local Reading has opened headquarters in the Luden Building, 109 North Sixth street, and is holding regular and well attended meetings.

Connelsville comrades having asked for a speaker for a trade-union meeting on April 18, Louis Goazlen of Charleroi was sent. This place will go on the circuit and wants Vail.

Roscoe wants more speakers and desires an organizer in the vicinity for some time. Sellersville wishes an organizer for a couple of days in June.

York wants Vail and is raising funds to provide for speakers monthly or oftener. Meets every Sunday; headquarters at Amalgamated Trades Hall. Will hold county convention about May 30. Sent money for due-stamps.

Pottstown is arranging a meeting for Vail in the Opera House. Lancaster takes him for Sunday, May 11, possibly for two meetings. Headquarters are at Duke and Chestnut streets.

Ephrate is preparing for the campaign; wants Vail; sent in dues.

The State Committee recommends that locals where strikes are on should distribute A. M. Simons' "What Is a Scab?" published by Kerr & Co.

TO SUBSCRIBERS.
The date on which your subscription expires will be found on the wrapper.
The paper will be stopped on that day unless previously renewed.
No bills or receipts sent to individual subscribers.

The Worker.

AGENTS, ATTENTION!
Agents sending in subscriptions without remittance must state distinctly how long they are to run.
Agents are personally charged and held responsible for unpaid subscriptions sent in by them.
Only duly elected and approved agents acknowledged.

VOL. XII.—NO. 5. NEW YORK, MAY 1, 1902. PRICE 2 CENTS.

THE STRIKE IN BOSTON BREWERIES.

Evidently a "Fight to a Finish" against Bosses' Demands—Peace Committee Cannot Fool This Union—Brewery Workmen Vote As They Strike.

The strike of Brewery Workers in Boston, which commenced on April 3, and the effects of which are being felt throughout New England, deserves more than ordinary attention for several reasons—especially because the struggle is against an association of employers organized for the expressed purpose of breaking up the Brewery Workers and associate unions in Boston in the hope of ultimately securing absolute control of the conditions of employment governing the brewery industry in the New England states. If for no other reason than this, the present strike deserves some space in The Worker, especially since the paper has a large circulation in the affected district, and also because the capitalist papers are gradually dropping all mention of the strike. The brewers organization is close to the hearts of all Socialists because it has long been one of the most progressive in the country. Its declaration of principles and platform endorses Socialism, and its delegates to the American Federation of Labor conventions are instructed to vote for Socialism.

Bosses Organize Against Unions.

For several years the Brewers' Unions have been gaining strength and influence in the Boston breweries and the local labor movement. Slowly but surely the unions have succeeded in modifying conditions in the breweries, until these changes, directly affecting the profits of the employers, forced them to consider some method by which the unions could be suppressed and the growing demands of the workmen for still better conditions defeated. It was with this object in view that the master brewers got together several months ago and formed an organization known as the New England Brewers' Association. While the object of the association is innocently announced as "the mutual protection and benefit of its members," yet it was publicly declared that it was "to deal with matters pertaining to the labor question." This step was taken because April 1, the time for signing the schedules with the workmen, was close at hand.

The schedules presented this year by the brewery workmen, firemen, and engineers specify what the unions have been preparing to demand for some time: The eight-hour day and pay for overtime. Heretofore the brewery workmen have been working ten hours a day and the firemen seven eight-hour days a week, without pay for Sundays and holidays. The firemen demand 50 cents an hour overtime. It will be seen that while conceding these demands meant something to the employers, it also meant something to the workmen, and the workmen need that something most.

The reply to these demands was a compromise offer of nine hours and 35 cents an hour overtime. There was a disposition on the part of the workmen to accept the compromise, hoping to secure more concessions later and thus avoid a strike now, and an agreement would have been reached had it not been for one important consideration. And here is where the cunning of the capitalists showed itself. They knew that with the existing sentiment for better labor conditions prevailing in Massachusetts, it would be foolish to come out directly against the unions. That would not be tolerated; hence the compromise. But they could fall back upon the old excuse of reserving the unrestricted right of employment—to say who should work for them or who should not. That would help to obscure the real issue, and confuse other workmen whose knowledge of the situation could only be gained through the garbled capitalist press reports.

So the master brewers, at the very moment when an agreement seemed to be assured, demanded the absolute right to employ and discharge workmen at will. For five years the agreement has been that any workman discharged except for obvious cause should be given a hearing, and if it was shown that he was the victim of any petty spite, or that his discharge was because of his union activity, he should be reinstated. But the master brewers desired that rule no longer. Instead they demanded the following:

"The employer reserves the right to discharge any employee at his discretion and for such cause as he may deem sufficient."

A Blacklisting Trick.

Now anyone who knows anything at all about trade unions knows that the enforcement of such a rule would mean the destruction of the Brewers', Firemen's, Engineers', and other unions. When a union cannot protect its own members from tyranny or unjust discrimination, it fails of its function and might as well go out of business. Every union man knows what would happen to him if he did not have his union behind him to protect him when he complains of bad treatment or demands better conditions. He would either "walk the plank" or quit complaining.

It is because the workmen refused to accept that rule and the masters insisted upon it that to-day there are 1,500 workers connected with the Boston brewery industry on strike. The workmen refuse to accept any worse slavery than they have now. They claim that the capitalists are using this roundabout way to establish a blacklist, thereby smashing the union and returning to the old conditions when the men worked twelve or fourteen hours a day. This claim is substantiated by the by-laws adopted by the New England Brewers' Association, two articles of which seek to regulate the handling of beer during strikes and the employment of men. These two articles clearly reveal why the master brewers organized.

Article 10 provides that no member of the Association shall furnish beer to customers purchasing from any other member, during strikes or lockouts, unless under certain terms agreeable to the members concerned.

Article 12 is as follows: "In the event of the discharge of any employee, for cause, the employer shall immediately notify the Secretary of this Association, who shall thereupon send to each member a notification of the discharge and the cause therefor."

Consider that article and then consider the demand of unrestricted right to discharge, made by the employers, and who can deny that these employers are combined in an effort to destroy the unions and render the workmen completely subject to their exactions. The first article in the constitution of the United Brewers' Association declares its object to be the destruction of the unions, and the local strikers have in their possession documents showing that men have been blacklisted.

A Fight to a Finish.

Rather than yield to that, the workmen struck, and it is a pleasing thing to be able to report that all those working around the breweries are striking together. There is no division among them, although the employers tried to divide them—brewers, bottlers, firemen, engineers, coopers, drivers, all kinds of workmen are involved. And, though the strike has now been on over four weeks, barely 50 out of the 1,500 have so far forgotten their class duty and violated their obligations to the unions as to go to work. The solidarity of the strikers has puzzled the employers, and gives high hope for success.

"Union breweries or no breweries at all," is the slogan of the strikers, and organized labor in Boston and Massachusetts is taking it up. The Central Labor Union and all the local unions have declared a boycott and throughout the surrounding towns the same thing is being done. A vigorous campaign is on to shut out the products coming from the non-union breweries. Every town and city in New England where Boston beer is handled will be invaded. Every day beer is being returned to Boston from other cities where the retailers have been compelled to stop handling non-union beer. It is a fight in which the strength of organized labor will be well tried, and every one who believes in working class organization must do everything possible to make the brewery workers victorious.

What makes the situation more strenuous is that the workmen refuse any compromise on wages and hours and now insist upon the original eight hours and overtime pay. On the other hand the master brewers have withdrawn their compromise and now insist on the former conditions of employment. Clearly, it is a fight to a finish, and the result will mean much to the trade unions of Massachusetts.

Of course, the retailers have tried to bring about an agreement, but failed. The advances of the Liquor Dealers' Association were spurned by the master brewers, and the retailers have had to take their stand for or against the workers. Many have been compelled to recognize the power of working class organization by rejecting the non-union beer and those who have not done so are suffering for it. But many of the retailers could not do otherwise but support the employers, being as much slaves as are the workmen, the capitalists owning everything in some of the saloons.

It might not be amiss to impress upon the strikers themselves the importance of this struggle. They have a splendid organization, one of the best in the country, an organization which has accomplished much for the brewery workers. If the men, through lack of vigilance or any other cause, allow their organization to be crushed by their masters, they will not only lose their union—they will lose all that they have gained through it and will be made subject to the tyranny and exploitation of the boss without opportunity for redress. For this reason, and also because they owe it to the whole working class movement, they should determine never to yield until the employers have been beaten. With the united support of the organized workers of New England and the support of their friends throughout the country the word "fail" should be unknown to them.

Not to be Humbugged by Hanna's Civic Federation.

One of the most hopeful signs of the strike is the hearty applause given the Socialists who address the strikers' meetings, especially when urging the men not to allow Mark Hanna's Civic Federation to interfere. There is little likehood that the "Brutal Boss" will recive recognition from these strikers. They are not of that kind, and Mark would probably be reminded of the strike now going on in his own shipyards in Cleveland, and requested to settle that before posing as a "friend of labor" in other places.

Some day strikes like these will be unknown. That will be when the workers vote to own the breweries and all the other industries—when they vote their own class ticket on Election Day and boycott the employers' political parties—when the Socialist Party, the working class party, will be voted into power. When that time comes the capitalists will unite into one party, just as the master brewers have united into an association to destroy the unions, and try and defeat the workers' party. But that will be impossible. It is written that the workers must rule and the 1,500 workmen now involved in this strike should strike the capitalist class in its weakest spot by voting against capitalist class rule and robbery at the election in November.

But whether they are going to do that or not, whether or not they allow themselves to be deceived again next Election Day, let the Socialists of New England, let every honest sympathizer with labor, let every self-respecting workingman and working woman, help to win this strike. It may be long or it may be short. If it is a question of endurance, then help the workmen to endure. When the call for aid comes Socialists everywhere should give what they can. The brewery workers have stood by us often in the past, they have contributed to our campaign funds, they have helped our speakers and organizers, and when other trade unions scorned us the brewery workers gave us a helping hand and supplied us with material and moral assistance. We should help them as they have helped us.

Above all, we should show the workers that, whether they are Socialists, Republicans, or Democrats, when they are in conflict with the capitalist class, we are with them. In New England there are probably more Socialists in the trade unions than in any other state, and in that case we can make ourselves felt the more in behalf of a progressive organization fighting to preserve its existence, which is bound up with the right of workmen to organize. We can help defeat this shameful conspiracy of the capitalists and show them that the Solidarity of Labor is not a myth but a power to be reckoned with, a power that will finally bring about the complete emancipation of Labor from wage slavery.

WILLIAM MAILLY.

LABOR-SKINNING SENATOR PROCTOR.

Like His Colleagues, Depew, Platt' Hanna, Clark, et. al., in Treatment of Workers — His Employees Now on Strike.

The marble polishers and rubbers of the Vermont Marble Company at Rutland, Vt., have been on strike for over two weeks. The cause of the strike is an indirect attempt to reduce wages. The matter in dispute affected only a part of the men, but the others manfully supported them and went out with them.

It is to be remembered that the marble works in question belong to the Honorable Redfield S. Proctor, United States Senator from Vermont. Senator Proctor is a worthy colleague of Platt and Depew, Clark and Hanna. They are all labor-skinners who believe in "conciliation" when it suits their purposes.

It is to be hoped that the marble workers and other workingmen of Vermont will strike at the ballot-box against Proctor and his class and the system which allows them to live in luxury without doing any useful work. Socialism would mean the ownership of the quarries and mills by the people who do the work and would give the product of labor to the laborers. A good increase in the Socialist vote at Rutland and throughout the state will do more than any other demonstration to inspire this profit-grinding Senator and his friends with respect for the working class.

AN AGE OF DECADENCE.

We are living in an age of decadence, and we pretend not to know it. There's not a feature wanting, though we can't mention the worst of them. We are Romans of the worst period, given up to luxury and effeminacy, and caring for nothing but money. Courage is so out of fashion that we boast of cowardice. We care no more for beauty in art, but only for the brutal realism. Sport has lost its manliness, and is a matter of pigeons from a trap or a mountain of crushed pheasants to sell to your own tradesman.

Religion is coming down to jugglers and table-turnings, and coquetting with religions brought, like the rites of Isis, from the East; and as for patriotism, it is turned on like beer at election times, or worked like a mechanical doll by wire-pullers.

There is not an ounce of manliness in the country; and as for the women, nothing draws your gentle sex like a child hanging by its toe-nails to the high trapeze or the chance of a wounded pigeon in their laps. If there were a gladiatorial fight in the Albert Hall next season and the beaten man went down, the women would be ready with their little thumbs; they would want his blood. We have the honor of belonging to one of the most corrupt generations of the human race. To find its equal one must go back to the worst times of the Roman empire, and look devilish close then. But, for all that, it's uncommonly amusing to live in an age of decadence.—The Guardian, Manchester, England.

—"TO THE NOT YET DEAD."—If you're a LIVE man, get other live men to read "Railroading in the United States."

SOCIALISM AND PUBLIC OWNERSHIP.

Public Ownership Will Be Advantageous to the Working Class Only if Established by the Class-Conscious Efforts of the Workers.

In view of the public ownership tendencies that are now showing so much strength even in the old political parties, it is important that a clear distinction should be drawn between Socialism and mere public ownership. It rests upon us to draw the distinction, for the old-party politicians are very willing to take advantage of the confusion, to gain the credit of being "practical Socialists," while the Socialist Party and the working class for the advancement of whose interests it exists has everything to lose by such a misunderstanding.

Aim and Method.

The aim of the Socialist Party, briefly stated is to establish the public or collective ownership of the means of production and distribution—land, mines, factories, railroads, steamships, etc.—and their operation by the public for the satisfaction of the people's needs, in place of the present system of private ownership and control for profit.

The method by which the Socialist Party seeks to accomplish this end is that of uncompromising independent political action of the working class upon the basis of the class struggle—the irreconcilable antagonism between the interests of the capitalists and the wage-workers.

No definition of Socialism is complete which does not include both of these elements. No movement is truly Socialistic—or, to put it in other words, is in line with that of the Socialist Party—which does not hold to public ownership of the means of production as its object and the class struggle in politics as its method.

At the present time, in America the same as in Europe, in republics the same as in monarchies, the political power is actually wielded by the capitalist class, the class which, by its ownership of the means of production, controls the lives of the people and dominates the press, the pulpit, and the institutions of learning and so "moulds public opinion."

Capitalist Government.

The government, ostensibly representing the will and devoted to the welfare of all the people, is really little more than an agency of this ruling capitalist class. Its chief function is to protect the "sacred rights of property" and to "promote business interests," and to these ends all considerations of the producers' welfare are subordinated.

Heretofore it has best suited the interests of the capitalist class to hold the means of production as private property—first as individual property, then in aggregations owned by stock companies and by "trusts." But circumstances may arise—in some places and some branches of industry they have already arisen—under which the interests of the capitalist class as a whole will be better conserved by government ownership. So it is already with the postal service in all civilized countries, and with the railroads and telegraphs in many parts of Europe.

But so long as the government remains under the control of the capitalist class, the nationalization of certain industries does not at all change their capitalistic character. They continue to be run for profit—only it may be for the profit of the capitalists collectively instead of individually. The employees are still wage workers, they are still exploited—overworked and underpaid—and it is just as bad to be exploited by a government as by a corporation.

The railroad capitalists of the United States may be very willing, within a few years, to have the railroads become government property. But on what terms? Why, of course, that they shall receive in exchange United States bonds bearing interest equal to the $500,000,000 of unearned revenue they are now drawing from the railroads every year—or whatever larger figure it may have reached by that time.

State Capitalism.

Now it is in the very fact of having to do every year $500,000,000 worth of work for the benefit of the capitalists, in addition to the amount necessary to produce their own wages, that the grievance of the railroad workers consists to-day. Their condition would not be improved if they had to produce that $500,000,000 of profit for "Uncle Sam" and "Uncle Sam" to turn it over to the bondholders.

That is a sort of public ownership which has nothing Socialistic about it. It is what we describe as State Capitalism.

Again, there is a considerable tendency in the capitalist parties to-day—especially among the smaller capitalists—to favor municipal ownership of so-called "public utilities."

But what is the capitalist reformers' ideal of municipal ownership. Do they propose to double the wages of the employees or reduce their hours by half? Not at all. They propose to "apply business principles"—that is, to run the street railways, lighting plants, etc., for profit and to apply this profit first to the payment of interest on bonds to the present owners and then to the reduction of taxes. But in order to do this, "business principles" must be applied in the hiring of men—that is, the city as an employer must try, like private employers, to get the most labor out of the men for the least return of wages.

The reduction of taxes is an issue in which the working class has no interest. Taxes are levied upon property and the property belongs to the capitalist class.

Such public ownership propositions as these offer not the slightest advantages to the working class, while they would materially strengthen the position of the capitalist class. The Socialist Party lends no support to such plans. Its conception of public ownership is a very different one.

What Socialists Would Do.

The Socialist Party advocates public ownership of the means of production in the interest and solely in the interest of the working class.

The Socialist Party, when put in power in city, state, or nation, completely or in part, will use its influence toward the establishment of a system of public ownership under which industry will be carried on, not for profit, but to serve the public, and under which no portion of the product will go to pay interest to bondholders nor to reduce the taxes of capitalist property holders. Its first concern will be to reduce the hours of labor, to increase the remuneration of the workers, and to safeguard life and limb and health; its next, to improve and extend the service given to the public.

But, someone says, this means confiscation! Socialists are not afraid of the word, though restoration would be a truer one, considering that the labor of the working class has created and operated and maintained the means of production that the capitalists now hold.

If a man has stolen your coat and you find it in his possession, you do not offer to give him your note bearing interest forever and ever on the return of it. You invoke the authority of the law to "confiscate" it from him—even to put him in jail in the bargain.

We will not put the capitalists in jail. We will do better—give them a chance to work.

The difference between State Capitalism and Social Democracy, between public ownership as advocated by capitalist politicians and public ownership as advocated by the Socialists, should be fairly clear. It is the difference between changing your yoke and throwing off your yoke.

And whether public ownership shall be Social Democracy or State Capitalism will depend on whether it is established by the Socialist Party or by the old parties.

There are some who, recognizing the distinction and admitting that Social Democracy is the more desirable, argue that State Capitalism is bound to come anyhow, because the dominant capitalist interests will demand it, that it will be an intermediate stage in the progress to Socialism, and that we ought therefore to support old-party public-ownership movements.

Nothing could be more fallacious.

In the first place, it is very doubtful whether the establishment of State Capitalism would not make it more difficult, instead of easier, for the workers to throw off the yoke of profit—whether it would not perpetuate exploitation and class rule, instead of being a half-way step to Socialism.

Direct Methods Are Best.

But even granting this point, the fact remains that State Capitalism is not what we want, and that we will not get what we want any the easier by working for something that we do not want.

Indirect methods often serve the purposes of capitalist politics, because capitalist politics is essentially corrupt, dishonest, devoid of principle, and governed wholly by expediency. But for a movement that aims at the reconstruction of society on a new basis, honesty and directness is the only wise policy.

The Socialist Party has a clear duty before it: To support the working class at every point in its battle with the capitalist class; to inspire the working class with the hope of the Co-operative Commonwealth; to organize the working class on the basis of its class interests to struggle for that ideal. If any considerations of expediency, any desire for a "short cut," should cause it to forget that duty, to conceal or compromise its principles or the propaganda of those principles for the sake of political advantage, then the Socialist Party would deserve to die as did the Populist movement—and it would so die and give way to a clearer and braver organization.

But the Socialist Party is in no danger of making such a mistake. The only danger is that its progress may be impeded by the pardonable confusion of the newer recruits; and it is for their benefit that a constant insistence on the class struggle is needed.

MAY DAY IN BOSTON.

The Socialists of Boston will celebrate International Labor Day with a demonstration to be held in Paine Memorial Hall, 9 Appleton street, on Sunday, May 4, 7:30 p. m. The speakers will be Ben Hanford of New York and Representatives James F. Carey and Frederick O. MacCartney. Musical numbers will be given by several friends. Admission is free and all are invited. Come and bring your friends and help make the Boston demonstration a glorious success.

BUY UNION LABEL GOODS.

MAY DAY PARADE.

Saturday Evening, May 3, Is the Time for New York's Labor Demonstration.

Saturday evening, May 3, is the time set for the May Day parade and demonstration of the Social Democratic Party and progressive unions and labor organizations of New York City.

The parade will form on Fourth street, between the Bowery and Second avenue, and start at 8 o'clock on the following line of march: East to Avenue A; up to Sixth street; east to Avenue C; up to Twelfth street; west to Greenwich avenue, and thence to Eighth avenue; up to Twenty-seventh street; east to Madison avenue; down to Twenty-third street, where a mass meeting will be held on Madison Square East.

Morris Hillquit, Ben Hanford, Job Harriman, Charles Dold, Rudolph Modest, and others will speak.

This parade should be an impressive demonstration of the solidarity and aggressive spirit of the working class of this city. Let every workingman turn out.

Especially is it to be desired that the members of those organizations which have internal disputes on hand should join in this demonstration. It is necessary that questions of trade jurisdiction should be settled, and sometimes conflicts over such matters are unavoidable. But on May Day we should remember only that we are all workingmen and show the capitalists that we know how to lay aside our minor differences in the face of the common enemy.

Bicycle riders who are in sympathy with the spirit of the May Day Demonstration are invited to come with their wheels to the Labor Lyceum and form a bicycle division. Comrades should be on the spot at 7:30.

LOVE AND JUSTICE.

A May Day Song.

Tune: "Marching Through Georgia.")

Shout with joyous voices, comrades,
Make the earth resound,
Till our May Day songs have echoed all the world around,
Giving cheer and comfort wheresoever woe is found,
Till Love and Justice have conquered.

Chorus—
Away the day that lets oppression be.
The year is near of Labor's jubilee.
So let our gladdest chorus sound all the world around,
Till Love and Justice have conquered.

Everywhere "man's inhumanity to man" has bowed,
Brothers crushed and bleeding underneath a needless load
Daily fall and perish as they struggle on the road
With love and justice denied them.

Chorus—
Away the day that lets oppression be.
The year is near of Labor's jubilee.
So let our gladdest chorus sound all the world around,
Till Love and Justice have conquered.

Socialism shall surely come, and over all the world
Banners red of brotherhood shall some day be unfurled;
Wrongs that stay its progress from the pathway shall be hurled,
While Love and Justice march onward.

Chorus—
Away the day that lets oppression be.
The year is near of Labor's jubilee.
So let our gladdest chorus sound all the world around,
Till Love and Justice have conquered.

When, the conflict ended, we have righted many wrongs,
Seen the radiant joy of glad emancipated throngs,
We will join this chorus of the grand, triumphant songs,
When Love and Justice have conquered.

Chorus for last stanza—
The day's away that let oppression be.
The year is here of Labor's jubilee.
Our gladdest choruses resound wherever man is found,
For Love and Justice have conquered.

NELSON J. WEST.

Springfield, Mass.

TWO MEN.

A "Little Story," by Dr. S. Weir Mitchell, in the April "Century," contains the following suggestive dialogue:

A pale young man sat down on a bench in the park behind the reservoir on Forty-second street. He put down a torn bag of tools under the bench.

A small, red-faced man came behind him. He stooped to steal the bag.

The pale man turned, and said in a slow, tired way: "Drop that. It ain't worth stealing."

The ruddy man said: "Not if you're lookin'."

The pale man set the bag at his feet, and said:

"It's poor business you're in."

"You don't look as if yours was any better." He sat down. "What's your callin'?"

"I'm an iron worker; bridge work."

"Don't look strong enough."

"That's so. I'm just out of Bellevue Hospital; got hurt three months ago."

"I'm just out of hospital, too," he grinned.

"What hospital?"

"Sing Sing."

"What? Jail?"

"Yes; not bad in winter, either. There's a society helps a fellow after you quit that hospital. Gives you good clothes, too."

"Clothes? Is that so?"

"Gets you work—"

"Work—good God! I wish they'd get me some."

"You ain't bad enough. Go and grab somethin'. Get a short sentence; first crime. Come out, and get looked after by nice ladies."

"My God!"

"Didn't they do nothin' for you when you got out of that hospital?"

"No! Why the devil should they? I'm only an honest mechanic. Are you goin'?"

He felt his loneliness.

"Yes; I've got to go after that job. It'll give me time to look about me. Gosh! but you look bad! Good-bye."

The ruddy man rose, looked back, jingled the few coins in his pocket, hesitated and walked away whistling.

The pale man sat down on the bench, staring down at the ragged bag of tools at his feet.

THE MAY CONCERT FOR THE SOCIALIST DAILY

To Be Held on Sunday Afternoon, May 4, in Grand Central Palace.

A Splendid Program to Be Presented by Consummate Artists—Price Within Reach of All—Hear Good Music and Help Start the Socialist Daily.

The great May Concert to be given in the Grand Central Palace (Forty-third street and Lexington avenue) on Sunday afternoon, May 4, will undoubtedly be the best musical entertainment ever given on so large a scale and for so low a price in this city. To mention the Damrosch Symphony Orchestra and the People's Choral Union is to assure its artistic success. A chorus of six hundred voices from the Choral Union will render the vocal numbers in the excellent program which has been arranged.

The whole net proceeds will go to the fund for establishing a Socialist Daily in the English language in this city, and this consideration should ensure a large attendance.

The Program.

The program is as follows:

PART I.

1. Prelude to "Die Meistersinger von Nürnberg," by Richard Wagner.
2. "Hymn of Thanks," Old Netherlands Folk-song, arranged by Kremser, rendered by the Orchestra and Chorus.
3. "Scenes Napolitaines," by Massenet:
   a) The Dance.
   b) The Procession and the Improvisator.
   c) The Festival.
4. Violin Solo.
5. Theme and Variations from Tschaikowsky, Suite No. III.
6. Living Pictures, "Struggle."
7. Living Pictures, "Victory."

PART II.

1. Prelude to "Hansel and Gretel," by Humperdinck.
2. Two Old German Christmas Songs:
   a) "Lo, How a Rose E'er Blooming."
   b) "Stille Nacht, Heilige Nacht."
3. Ballet Music from "Henry the Eighth," by Saint-Saens:
   Entrance of the Clans.
   Scotch Idyl.
   Gipsy Baree.
   Finale.
4. Violin Solo.
5. Norwegian Melody, by Grieg.
6. Living Pictures, "The First of May."
7. Overture to "Tannhäuser," by Wagner.
8. Hymn, "America," by the Chorus.

Time and Prices.

The doors will be open at three p. m. and the concert will begin promptly at four o'clock. The committee has thought it fairest and most satisfactory to all to sell all tickets at the same low price and therefore no seats are reserved. It is greatly to be desired that none should come late, as by so doing they not only miss a part of an excellent program, but cause a disturbance which mars the pleasure of others.

Admission tickets cost 25 cents and can be had at the office of The Worker, 184 William street; at the W. E. A. Club House, 206 E. Eighty-sixth street and other labor headquarters; from the officers of the numerous trade unions which are interested in the establishment of the Socialist Daily; or from members of the Social Democratic Party.

The charge for admission at the door will be 35 cents.

Comrades who have taken tickets for the concert and have not yet sold all should bestir themselves. Only a few days remain to work for the success of this great undertaking. You are not expected to return any tickets; you are supposed to sell them, use them, give them away, do what you please with them—but to turn in the money for them promptly to cover the expenses and roll up a big surplus for the Socialist Daily Fund.

So far as possible, organizations and individuals holding tickets for sale should turn in the money collected to the Committee in charge this week, in order to cover cash expenses. The Financial Secretary, H. C. Bowerman, is to be addressed at the W. E. A. Club House, 206 E. Eighty-sixth street.

"May Flowers."

The souvenir journal of the concert, "May Flowers," is now ready and can be had at all party headquarters. It is a handsome sixteen-page journal, containing, besides the program, numerous articles, poems, and illustrations. It is well printed and is, on the whole, a very pleasing souvenir. The price for single copies is 5 cents. Organizations—whether in New York or elsewhere—which have not yet got a supply should order at once from Financial Secretary Bowerman, the price for twenty-five or more being 3 cents a copy.

PLEDGE.

To Job Harriman, Dr. Julius Halpern and Leonard D. Abbott,
Socialist Daily Finance Commitee:

I hereby pledge myself to contribute for the publication of an English Socialist Daily the sum of $.....to be paid in monthly installments of $.....

Name .....

Address .....

THE POWER OF THE PRESS.

Now a Weapon in the Hands of the Capitalist Class—The Workers Must Arm Themselves with a Similar Weapon—On, for the Socialist Daily!

Fellow Workingmen and Comrades:

The thought that our May Day celebration this year is to aid us in establishing a Socialist daily newspaper should add to the joyousness of our festival, and swell the hope that rises in the breasts of the toilers of all lands on this our day of international rejoicing.

There is no power so great, for good or for evil, as that of the press. Napoleon has well said that one newspaper is worth ten thousand bayonets. The daily press of the land is now one of the most powerful weapons in the hands of the capitalist class and is systematically used to keep the world's workers in subjection, to bind tighter around them the chains of wage-slavery, to keep the masses in ignorance of the causes of their misery, to distract their attention from their wrongs, to misrepresent and vilify the labor movement, to conceal the hideous nature of our present industrial system, to mislead and misdirect every effort of the workers to better their condition, to blind and deceive the people, to stab Labor in the back at every opportunity, and to hoodwink the working class into supporting on election day the government and the industrial system which robs and crushes them on every other day in the year.

The newspapers which serve these vile purposes are owned and supported by the great capitalists, the chief sources of their revenue are the contracts for advertising, which are given to them by the capitalists, and their editorial policy is directly dictated by the idle trust owners and "captains of industry" who accumulate fortunes out of the toil and sweat of the working masses. The editors of the capitalistic newspapers are men who have hired out their brains to the owners of the earth and prostituted their intellects to the service of slave drivers. They mould "public opinion" to suit the interests of their rich masters and lead the masses to think that it is necessary and right that one class of men should live in luxury and idleness, and another in poverty and misery, and that an attempt to change those conditions is "unpatriotic," "irreligious," "un-American," and "dangerous." The newspapers give columns of space to accounts of the festivities of Fifth avenue and the revels of the rich, but they have no room to give notices of the strikes and boycotts by which the trade unions struggle to get a little larger share of the product of their labor. Instead, they publish false reports that strikes have been settled; they accept advertisements from slave-drivers who are boycotted by organized labor; and they applaud when the militia is called out to shoot down strikers. The newspapers lead the working class into the traps of such institutions as the Civic Federation, which break their strikes under the cover of "arbitration;" they cause the workers to be buncoed by this or that "friend of Labor;" and they teach them to beg for favors instead of rising in their might and taking the rights that belong to them as the producers of all wealth. And, far more disastrous to the cause of labor than all this, the capitalist press ceaselessly spreads the ridiculous doctrine that "the interests of Capital and Labor are identical," that there can be harmony and peace between the robbers and the robbed, and that the same political party can serve the interests of both master and slave. As he reads the daily newspaper provided for him by the capitalists, the workingman gets the idea that his welfare is bound up in the question of tariff reform or the war in the Philippines or that the momentous question before him is whether Sampson or Schley won the

Continued on page 5.

THE SOCIALISTS IN THE MASSACHUSETTS LEGISLATURE.

Record of Representatives James F. Carey and Frederick O. MacCartney—Recognized Spokesmen of the Working Class—Their Work Is Practical Because It Is Guided by Revolutionary Principles.

By William Mailly.

When, in January, 1899, James F. Carey and Louis M. Scates took their places as representatives from two Haverhill districts, they were regarded as picturesque figures in the Massachusetts General Court. Few outside of their own party membership viewed them seriously. After the first shock following upon the unexpected news of their election, the politicians, the press, and the purblind public at large, sought comfort in the reflection that, after all, these Socialists must be harmless, else they would never be in politics; for Socialists were much confused with the extremists whose first move toward revolutionizing the social system consists in putting themselves beyond the pale or sympathy of society. These Socialists therefore must be nothing more than reformers masquerading under another name—a bold name, it is true, but nevertheless a name which meant nothing so long as its bearers did nothing more dangerous than talk and theorise.

And so, while the aforesaid politicians, press and public watched eagerly (and uneasily in some quarters) for the primary acts of these Socialist legislators, the wish was father to the thought that they would soon be swallowed up and forgotten in the grind and swirl of intrigue, swapping and bargain and sale that chokes the legislative hopper of the day, just as countless reformers had been emasculated and digested for decades before them.

It was probably with some idea like this in mind that the leading members of the house that year decided to initiate Carey and Scates into the legislative routine by administering the customary chastisement visited upon new members who had dared break into the legislature with strange and extravagant notions regarding the duties and responsibilities of legislators elected by the sovereign people. A consultation of those wise ones, calloused by years of subserviency to mercenary ideals and surreptitious "log rolling" was held and a plan of action mapped out, the consummation of which would mean a Socialist eclipse. An opportunity to carry the plan into effect came sooner than was expected.

Carey's First Shot.

The legislature had hardly organized for business when Carey introduced a resolution providing for the appointment of a special committee to investigate the Marlboro shoe workers' strike, which was attracting considerable attention at that time, and in which several thousand workers were involved. The opportunity of the house leaders arrived when the resolution came up for action. Carey's first speech in the house consisted of a brief statement of the necessity for its adoption. He spoke so calmly and dispassionately that the wise members set him down as an "easy thing." The gentleman selected to administer the chastisement arranged for accordingly went at his task with a right good will. He was endowed with a capacious mouth and lusty lungs, and he had enacted the same rôle often before with flattering success.

He hammered Carey so vigorously and mercilessly that his fellows writhed and chuckled with delight. He denounced the resolution as an attempted interference of the state with private business, and warned the Socialists that their "harum scarum ideas" would not be tolerated by the house. The dignity of the legislature had to be observed, the rights of private property protected, the traditions of Massachusetts preserved, and so on, ad infinitum. All this loudly and impressively, with the purpose of reminding the Socialists of their inconsequence in the political scheme. The speech was rapturously applauded, and openly approved. But neither the speaker nor his friends knew their man.

Carey replied in a manner that is not forgotten to this day. He threw off his reserve and poured out upon his antagonist a torrent of logic, sarcasm and invective that left that gentleman humiliated and his supporters dazed. Surprised and defeated, they did not attempt to answer, but found revenge in voting down the resolution by a large majority. They had learned something, however.

From that day forward the capitalist members began to realize that the Socialists were not simply reformers such as had been periodically dumped upon the legislative beaches by spasmodic reform waves from time immemorial, but revolutionists, men whose aim reached beyond a dubious glossing over of prevailing evils, and culminated in the destruction of the existing system, with the construction of a better one. And from that day these members have never been given opportunity to forget that fact. For four years they have heard unwillingly the gospel of the workers' emancipation proclaimed earnestly and eloquently—earnestly because the speakers were logical, eloquently because the words they spoke rang with truth.

Result of Four Years' Work.

That this four years of strenuous, unceasing agitation has had results can be estimated by the present situation in Massachusetts. To-day Representatives Carey and MacCartney are more in demand as speakers before trade unions, by invitation of the unions themselves, than any other men in the state. Hardly a day swings full circle but they deliver one or more speeches before a body of workingmen, whether organized into a trade union or assembled through the activity of a Socialist club. Besides this, come invitations from fraternal and theological societies, women's clubs and other organizations. The amount of speaking they do, in addition to their legislative bombarding, is something remarkable, when one knows the full extent of it. They cannot begin to satisfy the demands upon them. How long they will be able to keep it up is a matter of some conjecture, but as MacCartney preserves a healthy serenity and Carey is acquiring a robust statesmanlike appearance, there need be little fear of a break down. Their labors apparently agree with them as much as with their hearers.

This wholesale demand for the Socialist legislators has come about through the gradual recognition by the organized workingmen of the state that these are the only two men in the legislature who really represent working class interests; that whatever the Republican and Democratic representatives, with their brittle promises and false pretenses, may be, or try to be, there is no doubt what the Socialist members are. There is no bluff, no vain heroics, no delusive demagogery about them; they say what they mean and mean what they say. They are actual representatives of the working class; and not a word or act of theirs can be cited to disprove that fact—a fact that has come to be accepted not only by the workers but by the capitalist politicians and press of the old Bay State. It has taken four years of work to accomplish this, but that it has been accomplished should make Socialists feel the work has been well worth while.

Practical Because It Is Revolutionary.

This recognition of the Socialists' position obtains not alone because they have been consistent representatives of labor, but also because they have shown themselves to be the only PRACTICAL representatives of labor. We hear much from the opponents of Socialist political action, in and out of the labor movement, about the impracticability of Socialists, and we are asked repeatedly to point out what Socialists have ever done that should warrant them the support of workingmen. Well, whenever those things are hurled at you in future, just refer the assertors and questioners to the record of the Socialists in the Massachusetts legislature. Beside it, the record of the best labor representative ever elected on an old party ticket is tame into senility in comparison.

The Socialists have demonstrated that while their final aim stops no nearer than the Co-operative Commonwealth, and while they believe in and advocate revolutionary class-conscious action to reach that goal, yet they are the only ones that have proposed, or can propose, practical measures seeking to ameliorate working class conditions now. Every bill, every resolve presented by them bears the earmarks of proletarian advancement, making for wider liberty, more leisure, increased remuneration, greater educational advantages—all or them drawn up with the same purpose, directed at the same object: The undermining of capitalism and the hastening of Socialism. It is no argument to say that because none of the bills have been enacted into laws that "Socialists should not waste time upon them." On the contrary, nothing could more clearly reveal to the workers the impossibility of securing ameliorative legislation while the capitalist parties are in power. And mark this, if any progressive measures are passed at this session it will be as a result of the aggressive Socialist policy and the growing radicalism displaying itself in the trade unions of this state.

This Session's Bills.

It is impossible to give here a detailed statement covering the work of four years, but the bills introduced by the Socialists at this session are similar in character to those of previous sessions. Many of the bills have been presented each year from the beginning. When properly classified they form a complete system, which may be grouped under three heads, as follows:

First. The protection of the trade union movement as the only positive economic factor opposing the capitalist class and making for the furtherance and safeguarding of working class interests, represented by bills:

Providing for trial by jury in injunction cases;

Legalizing picketing and advertising during strikes;

Requiring that employers advertising for employees during strikes shall mention that a strike is in progress.

Second. Direct protection to the workers by the state, and the extension of opportunity for education and recreation; represented by bills:

Providing for the adoption by the national government and the several states of a uniform eight-hour law and providing for the appointment of a committee to urge such legislation upon the legislatures of other states;

To limit the age of employment of children in factories, etc., to 16 years, and to extend the limit of age of children attending school from 14 to 16 years (known as the Child Labor bills).

Employers liability bills (3).

Increasing the number of brakemen on railroad trains;

Providing for eight hours a day for all state and county employees;

Providing that eight hours constitute a day's work on election day;

Providing for the establishment of a state highway emergency fund for the relief of the unemployed;

Repeal of the Sunday fishing laws.

Third. For extending popular rule and accelerating the process of transition from capitalism to Socialism; represented by bills:

For the adoption of constitutional amendments providing for the initiative and referendum on constitutional amendments, and for the referendum on statutory legislation;

For the adoption of the initiative and referendum in municipal affairs upon request of 15 per cent. of the voters in any city;

Giving cities and towns the power to purchase and construct gas and electric light plants and to operate the same;

Requiring that the valuation of gas and electric lighting plants to be purchased by cities and towns shall not include anything for good will, exclusive privileges or future earning capacity;

Providing for state ownership of street railways.

These measures were not burdened with useless phrases. Whatever faults their opponents may have found in them, ambiguity was not one of them. Shorn of prolixity, they struck straight at the mark at which they were aimed. There was no eluding their purpose, no evading their intention. When published, it did not require the dexterous mind of a lawyer or a finished university training to ferret out their meaning. The average workingmen could understand them at once, and understanding see more clearly what Socialists are striving for. It can be said without exaggeration, that the Socialist agitation under the gilded dome has done more to educate the workingmen of Massachusetts to their real rights and proper political duties than any other factor in recent years.

Old Parties Exposed.

For this agitation has served another purpose. It has not alone demonstrated our position, but it has exposed the hypocrisy and corruption permeating the old parties. Time and time again have the Socialist members compelled roll calls on their bills when their opponents would have willed it otherwise. Time and time again have the "friends of labor" on the other side had to absent themselves when consideration of important bills came up, or roll calls were demanded. And when roll calls were granted by the necessary thirty members it was only because it was known that working class constituencies were growing more watchful, and that explanations are not conducive to a successful political career. How often these time servers have been thrust between the devil of capitalist influence and the deep sea of working class condemnation by the prodding of the Socialist representatives it would take more space than I have at my disposal to tell.

More important still has been the exposure resulting from the capitalist party members being forced to go on record against legislation which the working people needed and demanded. It has been shown how little regard these pretenders have for those who elect them. Over and over again Carey's and MacCartney's bills have been defeated by large majorities, frequently without securing sufficient support to have a roll call. Many times the bills have received no more consideration than that given them by the two Socialists, not even an explanation being given by the committees submitting the adverse reports. It is remarkable how little interest is taken in labor bills by the members of the house, remarkable when it is considered that the workers elected these members. Anything else but matters affecting the working class will arouse discussion, and oftentimes enthusiasm.

For instance, during the present session one of the all absorbing questions before the legislature has been the licensing of cats, a question quite on a par with the intellectual calibre of the average member. For three days past, the entire time of the house has been consumed by a discussion to erect a statue to Ben Butler, "who is dead and cares naught." But bills like those quoted above, of vital importance to the workers of the state, are greeted with a passive indifference, which is only dispelled when the Socialists goad their listeners into feeble protests or immediate and adverse action. For while the justice and necessity of the Socialist bills cannot be questioned or gainsaid, yet they are voted down as if they concerned the government of Mars or Jupiter rather than living men, women, and children on our own planet. If I were not in danger of being accused of exaggeration I would say that to vote against labor measures seemed to provide keen enjoyment to the majority of the members, for in saying it I would only be relating what I have witnessed with my own eyes.

The Negative Side.

The energies of the Socialist legislators, however, have not been directed wholly to advancing their own bills. They have also opposed schemes attempting to injure or further degrade labor, and they have on many occasions proved a strong negative force against reactionary legislation. Whenever an opening offered they jumped in and made it uncomfortable for both sides of the house. They were conspicuous in pushing the Metropolitan water commission investigation, in fighting the Boston rapid transit grab, the Westminster chambers bill and numerous others. Two years ago Carey's order compelling lobbyists to wear badges was the sensation of the session, and his order to investigate the books of the street railway companies to see what members, if any, had solicited jobs for their constituents had the same effect early in the present session. Both were defeated. A pending bill providing that children under fourteen years of age may be employed in factories or shops during school vacations (an attempt to nullify the existing child labor laws) will receive the Socialists' attention, as will also a measure seeking to establish an "industrial court," a thinly veiled proposition for compulsory arbitration.

The Massachusetts general court possesses an advantage over many other state legislatures in the existence of a rule permitting debate on all bills until the previous question is ordered. In New York, for instance, only those bills are discussed which are reported by the committees, so that the corporations and political bosses can almost completely dominate legislation by having dangerous bills killed in committee. In this state, the case is different. All bills must be reported upon, one way or the other, and only when gag law is brought into play, can discussion be shut off. This has often been done in matters the Socialists were interested in, but nevertheless they have managed to hold their own and the floor to the chagrin and discomfort of their opponents. As a result, the press reports have been more profuse than they otherwise might have been, until the Socialists are the most widely advertised and best known members of the legislature.

This in turn has made the Socialist Party a positive political factor in this state, and as such it has to be reckoned with by the politicians of both capitalist parties. The Socialists of Massachusetts are in practical, every day politics and out of their experience they are acquiring wisdom and strength for the future. The Socialist Party is the one political organization with representatives in the state house which has absolutely no apologies to offer, no defenses to make. The worst the enemy can charge against us is that our representatives are true to their principles, which is also the best thing they can say about us.

It will not be out of place, I hope, for me to remark right here that the Socialist cause has been fortunate in having as representatives at this time two such men as Carey and MacCartney. Probably only the Socialist movement could produce two men of such distinct types, the products of environment and training entirely different, and yet able to complement each other and work together so effectively for the one cause. By long odds they are the intellectual and oratorical superiors of any other members of the house. This year they have attracted more attention than during any previous session, and instead of losing ground, they have gained it.

And so it is that the work of the Socialists in the Massachusetts house has filled a manifold purpose. It has differentiated the Socialist from the ordinary reformer who usually starts out with a lower railroad fare proposition and ends up a failure or a pessimist, or maybe gravitates into a member of the railroad manufactures, or labor committee where he becomes harmless as a reformer and useful as a tool of the corporations. It has demonstrated that the Socialists are not merely "labor representatives" selected by the political boss to capture the confiding working class vote, and therefore, ignorant of the real basis of working class interests, oblivious to the industrial situation and the motive power guiding modern politics. It has proven that the Socialists are the only practical legislators for the working class, and that only Socialists can pierce the industrial darkness and show the blessed light beyond. It has revealed the rottenness of the capitalist parties, torn the mask of the professed friendship for labor from the faces of labor's enemies and laid them bare as subservient, pliable, ignoble tools of the capitalist class.

Hope for the Future.

The workers would possess less intelligence than we give them credit for if this four years of constant hammering at the gates of capitalism had not had its effect. It would be a poor outlook for the Socialist movement indeed if this fidelity to the workers' cause were to go for naught. But it has had its effect, although only now is it beginning to manifest itself. The crowds that gathered at the state house a few weeks ago to attend the hearings upon the direct legislation and strike picketing bills were symptoms of the agitation stirring the workingmen of Massachusetts. Unions that two years ago would have scorned the suggestion of such a thing are now calling for speeches from the Socialist legislators—and the demand extends to all well known Socialist agitators. During the recent teamsters' strike committees called daily upon Carey and MacCartney to address the strikers, and at the meeting held by the locked out freight handlers recently they were the only two invited to speak. Both have already addressed several meetings of the striking brewery workers, with prospects of more to come. No other representatives are asked for; they have nothing to say at such a time and the workers know it.

During the teamsters' strike I attended a meeting at which Carey and MacCartney spoke. When they had finished a member of the union ascended the platform and thanked the speakers on behalf of those present. Among other things he said was that they (the strikers) knew that as long as Carey and MacCartney were in the state house labor had two champions there. At this point a voice in the big audience broke in: "They're the only two up there."

When the applause had subsided the speaker warned them against being too hasty. "It's early in the session yet," he said. "There might be a few more up there."

"Well, we haven't heard of them yet," retorted another voice, to thunderous applause.

Nor are they likely to until more Socialists are sent to fill the places of those who now misrepresent the workers. That this will be done, sooner or later, is a foregone conclusion. It may not be this year, nor the next, but it will surely come—just how soon depends upon the Socialists themselves. Events are forcing the workers to break away from their old political prejudices and ideals; they are beginning to seek a new way out of their forest of troubles. It is for us, the Socialists, to act with promptness, energy and prudence and show them that only by following the Socialist path can they eventually find opportunity, prosperity and peace.

Boston, Mass., April 14, 1902.

THE BASIS OF MORALS.

It is not enough to formulate theories of destructive criticism: this is the age of the "affirmative intellect" and men are seeking for a positive ethical standard. We say that Unity must replace Strife before we can be even approximately civilized, and that can only be brought about by changing the very fundamental basis of our social relationships. We believe that the vitalizing force of an ethical impulse was never so much needed as now, and we have no sympathy with those who declare that ethical standards are good for old ladies and children alone. The very word Socialism indicates that we found our theories upon a profund belief in, and recognition of, social interests and obligations centered in those interests. Whatever advances the interests of society is right; whatever militates against those interests is wrong. We bring ethics back from the clouds of mythology to the world of men. Morals being purely secular in origin and purpose should be kept free from all contact with religon. A thing is right or wrong not by reason of the declaration of one God or many Gods, or the prophets of Gods, but by reason of its social effect. As Socialists, therefore, we do not ask ourselves what Moses or Christ, Buddha or Confucius, Madame Blavatsky or Mrs. Eddy, John Wesley, or the Pope would say, but simply this: "How will it affect the working class to which we belong?" Just as the injustice that is done to labor is the measure of the wrong of our present conditions, justice to labor must be the standard by which alone it can be righted. In the fight of the right of labor to the whole of its product, the world must be recreated. But, it may be argued, "class interests" and "social interests" are not identical; how, then, can the interest of society as a whole be gauged by the interest of the working class? That is a perfectly fair question which we by no means wish to evade. Taking the position—the only logical position, it seems to me—that the interests of labor are fundamentally opposed to those of the exploiting class, and that between them, in the very nature of things there can be no reconciliation, we do not attempt the impossible. Instead of that we say that all interests which conflict with ours, must, somehow or other, be eliminated. No matter how painful an operation that may be, it must be performed as a measure of self-preservation and protection. If a man suffers from cancer and calls in a surgeon, the surgeon does not talk about the identity of interest of the cancer with that of the man's body. He doesn't try to find something that will help both at once. He well knows that such a thing would be ridiculous, and that if the cancer is not overcome, it will overcome the body. Therefore he tries to eliminate the cancer. Capitalism is the cancerous growth in the social organism that must be eliminated in the interests of the organism as a whole. Thus the interest of the producing class becomes the standard of ethical judgment. Nor is this a principle foreign to the science of ethics. In all ages it has been theoretically admitted at any rate. And, after all, is it not everywhere clearly apparent that the interest of its useful and necessary members is the true interest of any body? In the hive it is always the bees' interests that are considered and not those of the drones. With the sum total of its experience for its bible, and its own well-understood interests for its moral standard the awakened proletariat will build a new earth in which vice and misery shall find no place, and in which the moral Sahara of to-day shall be a moral Eden where the sweet spirit of Comradeship shall blossom forth like the fabled rose of unfading beauty.—John Spargo in "Where We Stand."

THE DYING CAPTAIN OF INDUSTRY.

A millionaire lay dying,
He'd been hogging things for years;
There were cold drops on his forehead
And his eyes were ful lof tears.
A nurse bent low to listen
To what he had to say
And heard him faintly matter
Ere his spirit passed away;
"I see the sable boatman
And there's his somber prow;
He calls to me to hurry,
His decks are crowded now;
He tells me that they make him
Keep running day and night;
He says his biz is booming,
With no let up in sight!
Oh, if I only had my old
Cunning I would just Get papers in New Jersey
And make this thing a trust;
I'd take the line from Charon
And fix a rate of fare
To charge the crowds of people
Who have to journey there;
Ah, what a chance is wasted,
Alas.—" He gave a groan
And then a little gurgle
And left for parts unknown.
—Chicago Record-Herald.

Vogel Brothers
42nd Str. Cor. 8th Ave

CLOTHIERS FOR MEN, WOMEN AND CHILDREN.

For many years the name of VOGEL BROTHERS on a garment is recognized as a guarantee of Good Clothing—Stylish—well-made and perfect fitting.

Persons who began dealing with us thirty years ago are still our customers and have taught their children that there is no better place to buy clothing than at our store, which has steadily grown from the day of its establishment to its present great proportions.

This extraordinary growth is the result of our policy of offering Clothing at the lowest possible prices, using exclusively the best materials, and employing the most competent Union Cutters, Union Trimmers, Union Tailors and Union Salesmen.

Our newly inaugurated LADIES' DEPARTMENT, which presents a rich and elegant assortment of tailor-made

Suits, Jackets, Gowns, and Silk, Flannel and Washable Shirt-Waists, has, from the first day, been a great success and has received the approval of well-dressed women in and around Greater New York.

Although our clothing is Made by Union Labor from the first cut of the shears, our prices are lower than those which are charged elsewhere for "cheap-made clothing."

Vogel Brothers
42nd Str. Cor. 8th Ave.

☞ For the accommodation of those who cannot make their purchases during the day, our Store is open Saturday Evenings until 10:30. ☜

SPEER'S
GRAPE WINES.
ALSO
UNFERMENTED GRAPE JUICE.
And ★★★ Climax Brandy.

Excellent for aged and weakly persons.

SPEER'S PORT GRAPE WINE
NINE YEARS OLD.

THIS CELEBRATED WINE is the pure juice of the Oporto Grape, raised in Speer's vineyards, and left hanging until they shrink and partly raisin before gathering. It is invaluable.

Tonic and Strengthening Properties are unsurpassed by any other wines in the world, being produced under Mr. Speer's personal supervision, at his own vineyards, the past forty years. Its purity and genuineness are guaranteed by the principal Hospitals and Boards of Health who have examined it. It is particularly beneficial to the aged, debilitated and the weaker sex. In every respect it is A WINE TO BE RELIED ON.

Also that the signature of ALFRED SPEER, Passaic, N. J., is over the cork of each bottle.)

Speer's (Socialite) Claret is held in high estimation for its richness as a Dry Table Wine, specially suited for dinner use.

Speer's P. J. Sherry
Is a wine of Superior Character and partakes of the rich qualities of the grape from which it is made.

Speer's ★★★ Climax Brandy
IS A PURE distillation of the grape and stands unrivaled in this country for medicinal purposes, and equal in every respect to the high price Old Cognac Brandies of France, from which it cannot be distinguished.

SOLD BY DRUGGISTS AND GROCERS
WHO KEEP FIRST CLASS WINES.

JACOB HERRLICH & BRO.,
Undertakers
AND Embalmers,
506 Sixth Street, Bet. Avenues A and B, Telephone Call, 1173 Spring.
332 E. 86th Stre, Bet. 1st and 2nd Aves. (next to Mozart Hall.) Telephone Call, 21-79th S
NEW YORK.

I CURE RUPTURE
In 30 to 60 Days.

To completely master Rupture, Rectal Diseases and Diseases of Men and fit myself for a true SPECIALIST has been the one object of my professional career.

I cure rupture in from 30 to 60 days without pain, cutting or detention from business. I have never failed to effect a permanent cure in every case accepted for treatment. No matter of how long standing, or how bad, if the rupture is reducible or can be put back, I can cure you. I give a written guarantee to effect a permanent cure in every case which I treat. Don't waste your time and money on trusses, nor experiment with unskilled doctors. Write for illustrated booklet and booklet of testimonials on Rupture.

Throw Your Truss Away

A Prominent Brooklyn Citizen Cured.

To Dr. Alexander O'Malley.

Dear Sir: It is now five months since you discharged me as being cured of a bad rupture of twenty-two years' standing. I am happy to inform you that I am as sound and well as ever I was in my life, thanks to your skill and Chemic-Electro Treatment. "I am glad to add my testimony as one of the many you have cured, and you can use my name in any way you see fit. I can be seen at my home any evening after 6 o'clock.

I am, sir, respectfully,
JOHN D. SMALLFIELD, 107 Oak st., Greenpoint, Brooklyn.

PILES AND FISTULA.

My system of treating Fistula and Piles assures a permanent cure in every case which I treat. I do not resort to the knife or cautery or use any other of the barbarous methods of treating Rectal Diseases.

Diseases of Men

I want every man that is suffering from Varicocele, Hydrocele, Stricture, Specific Blood Poison, Lost Manhood, Atrophied Organs, or any Diseases of the Bladder and Kidneys or any Nocturnal Losses, or any Unnatural Discharges, to call and have a confidential talk with me. I will explain to you a system of treatment which has been tried and proven superior to all others. I will examine you Free of Charge, and if incurable I will tell you so. If you are curable I will insure you of a permanent cure.

WRITE if you cannot call. All correspondence strictly confidential and all replies sent in plain envelopes. Write for illustrated booklet on Rupture, Hydrocele, Varicocele, and Piles and Fistula.

OUR MOTTO: Every Patient Receives Honest and Honorable Treatment.

CONSULTATION AND EXAMINATION FREE Charges and terms reasonable. Satisfactory arrangements made for credit. Hours: 9 to 4 and 6 to 8 daily. Sundays, 10 a. m. to 3 p. m.

Chemic-Electro Institute. Dr. Alex O'Malley, 117 EAST 23d STREET. (near 4th Ave.) New York.

THE BARS TO BE BROKEN.

A MAY DAY MUSING.

After the fundamental duty of self-preservation, man's universal motive seems to be to please; and our future way of life, to grow together. This growing together has hitherto, as history reveals, been along the line of our bread-making (or bread-stealing) industries in economic and political classes. And now in the course of ages it has at last happened that one class, and it the pivotal and most necessary class of all, has been by its misfortunes and captivity forced together to work in order to live. This, therefore, is the opportune class along whose experience and necessity the world of men may learn, with it, to grow together out of and with the world's work.

The sentence, "Thus far canst thou go and no farther," has evidently gone further concerning that other crippled class upon whose faltering steps and yielding shoulders the industry of the people has hitherto been leaning. We have followed our pretentious guide who has been lending us his genius and his money to live by, until we find ourselves with him up against the cemetery gates; and whatsoever wills to remain among the living must now part company with him here. We therefore turn to his successor, whom he has moulded for the world's need; and looking upon him we find that for a time he is a possible two—the voter and the thinker. We want these two reduced to one, and have some bars to break.

It would be very convenient, but not quite so well adapted to the way humanity has of growing, if law would builds walls and gates and speak out plainly, standing before us in the world's crises like this. But concerning human progress law has never been an outsider; it speaks from no Olympus; it is itself growing; an energy lying in everything, unfolding, waiting for bars to be broken down in order to see and to say.

There are to be, for yet awhile, as I have said, these two sorts of Socialists—the Socialist of the ballot and of the study. The Socialists of the ballot-box should, in order to a clear-cut revolutionary movement, be in the majority, and have only one overwhelming reason for their Socialism, and that reason should be their bonds. When the first Socialist majority is declared, let us hope that no better reason will be sought or given than this.

The work we are now doing is not a making of proletarians. Capitalism is doing that. But we are breaking the bars which shut out the light and prevent the proletarian's growth.

First: There is the bar sinister across his mind. An unfortunate past has made this man an illegitimate reasoner. He has been faith-reasoning since infinitely-up downwards, instead of fact-reasoning from the now-outwards. His intellect aforetime made to take root in the passing ; but now it is finding its in the solid earth. And no er good has ever been done the world than that done by men who turn him from the unted heavenlies and teach him ywhere to build his whole intellec-, moral, and spiritual life upon WE BEST WITHIN REACH. Such faith alone is built upon the rock of ; nor has the world ever seen a real life so beautiful as that shall be Those law, like the law of the spring ivers, is an energy in society itself. next: There is that big black bar alself-sin by which the masterhood the world has kept each poor slave-art denouncing itself and every oth-heart. This vanity of the private n who thinks his sin big enough get to hell with, will be broken down , a proper sense of perspective and portion being restored, the work-n will begin to think wisely and on the basis of what he wants what he sees his way to getting—ure, organization, and tranquility. in-consciousness having been taken lay with such a great wrench, the t bar, self-consciousness, almost Tis away with it, and a better enters a man, a work, a class, a race-con-cousness takes its place.

Selfishness, which was once an un-ame and profane thing, because the it was an unclean and profane crea-re in its own estimation, and be-se the world was so ordered that self-help meant the hurt of others, is now no longer a thing of reproach. Robber parasite selfishness having no support in the structure of society falls away and lets in more light. Socialism gives back selfishness to man, a clean thing and without reproach, because it gives a society wherein no man's preservation requires another's decay.

Ignorance, that great stubborn bar, will also disappear—that is, ignorance concerning the things which strengthen, embellish, and prolong the social life.

The bar of liberty, also, which has kept so many people from being free, that shall be broken—the breadless, dependent, liberty-bar of the American workman, which holds him pent in behind a national conceit that he is the freest of man, and which prevents him, therefore, from stepping out to liberty, lest the world should thereby discover that at last he had found his lack of it. Yes, the bar of technical liberty will fall out when its fastenings of self-conceit have been loosened by a few years more of reactionary crime-making such as the lawmakers are now busily preparing for his prisonhood.

The private property bar, than which no colder iron ever entered the soul of the race, when it was in control of the world laborer, shall be taken down by the willing hands of those that set it up; for they shall find how much more property the world has for free men than for slaves, and how little difference there is, liberally considered, between the privations of the slave and of his keeper. The little lock of strenuous individualism also, which, whether it were of gold or iron, th always bound facile man under the proud feet of aristocracies, shall never more snap to darken the hopes and break the hearts of the prisoners.

The bar of obsession, the fell power of one man over another, that shall pass away; and the giant shadows of the heroes, which, notwithstanding the hirelings' cant, were never light or leading to any men, but rather an obsession and a confusion to the world's plain people, it shall away.

And the shadow of a sovereign, irresponsible, lawless God, the greatest mental barrier, perhaps, of the race, that shall vanish and give place to The Good, recalled from ages of banishment in a distant heaven, to take its place in the heart of human society, to build up cities and to organize men into the ways of universal industry and peace.

The bar of the parasite shall no longer be the strongest piece of steel in the state. Clothed no more with the authority of legislators, courts, turnkeys, guns, gold, and an international alliance for the conquest of the working people, the parasite shall drop off.

Profit, that blood-red bar, the wage bar, almost eaten through of rust from the tear and salty sweat of the world toilers, is bent and ready to break, waiting for the hand of the voting proletarian, for he alone must loosen all of them. He shall do it and not another.

And now there are coming to advise and aid him in this deliverance many who are not wage-slaves, many whose interest it is to keep securely in the world, with any bars, a class of slave and non-consuming producers, a class of men who are themselves sharers with the capitalists in the plunder of Labor's product. They come to our aid, not because they like our company or want to see us, or really believe in the possibility of our being set free; they come because they must. The evolution of the social mind includes them in collective thinking, and howsoever they vote, they must think with us. The economic collectivism of the world is forcing all minds as it has forced all hands together. The middle class men, so long the turnkeys of the great labor prison, have become themselves the victims of a social mind and a community conscience. They have leisure, they must think, and they can think no other way but according to the pattern of things around them. Socially, they think and also tremble. Between the upper and the lowest activities, they shall be ground to powder. But as many of them as know this will help us to point out the bars to be broken.

PETER E. BURROWES.

THE QUESTION OF COMPENSATION.

Question That the Exploiters of Labor and Despoilers of Humanity Would Do Well Not to Raise.

ransom to the owner? Aye,
fill the bag to the brim!
who is the owner? The slave is owner ever was. Pay him!
—Emerson.

The following treatment of the tion of "compensation," which ad-ates of capitalism often raise inst the arguments of Socialists, is en from Edward Bellamy's "Equal-ha" Chapter 37. For the benefit of se who have not read "Looking kward" and "Equality," it may be l that these books are supposed to rd the experiences of Julian West, oung capitalist of the nineteenth ury who, falling into a hypnotic p in the year 1887, awakes at the of the twentieth century, to find self in the midst of a Socialist monwealth. In the passage here ted he relates a part of his conver-on with Dr. Leete, his twentieth ury host.)

A Twentieth-Century Answer.

There is one point," I said, "on which I should like to be a little more nearly informed. When the nation finally took possession absolutely in ctuity of all the lands, machinery, capital after the final collapse of ate capitalism, there must have doubtless some sort of final set-and balancing of accounts be-en the people and the capitalists former properties had been na-lized. How was that managed? t was the basis of final settle-?"

he people waived a settlement," ed the doctor. "The guillotine, the ws, and the firing platoon played art in the consummation of the great Revolution. During the previous phases of the revolutionary agitation there had indeed been much bitter talk of the reckoning which the people in the hour of their triumph would demand of the capitalists for the cruel past; but when the hour of triumph came, the enthusiasm of humanity which glorified it extinguished the fires of hate and took away all desire of barren vengeance. No, there was no settlement demanded; the people forgave the past."

"Doctor," I said, "you have sufficiently—in fact, overwhelmingly—answered my question, and all the more so because you did not catch my meaning. Remember that I represent the mental and moral condition of the average American capitalist in 1887. What I meant was to inquire what compensation the people made to the capitalists for nationalizing what had been their property. Evidently, however, from the twentieth-century point of view, if there were to be any final settlement between the people and the capitalists it was the former who had the bill to present."

"I rather pride myself," replied the doctor, "in keeping track of your point of view and distinguishing it from ours, but I confess that time I fairly missed the cue. You see, as we look back upon the Revolution, one of its most impressive features seems to be the vast magnanimity of the people at the moment of their complete triumph in according a free quittance to their former oppressors.

Do Not Pay for Broken Fetters.

"Do you not see that if private capitalism was wrong; but, on the other hand, if the Revolution was right, then private capitalism was wrong, and the greatest wrong that ever existed; and in that case it was the capitalists who owed reparation to the people they had wronged, rather than the people who owed compensation to the capitalists for taking from them the means of that wrong? For the people to have consented on any terms to buy their freedom from their former masters would have been to admit the justice of their former bondage. When insurgent slaves triumph, they are not in the habit of paying their former masters the price of the shackles and fetters they have broken; the masters usually consider themselves fortunate if they do not have their heads broken with them. Had the question of compensating the capitalists been raised at the time we are speaking of, it would have been an unfortunate issue for them. To their question, Who was to pay for them for what the people had taken from them? the response would have been, Who was to pay the people for what the capitalist system had taken from them and their ancestors, the light of life and liberty and happiness which it had shut off from the unnumbered generations? That was an accounting which would have gone so deep and reached back so far that the debtors might well be glad to waive it. In taking possession of the earth and all the works of man that stood upon it, the people were but reclaiming their own heritage and the work of their own hands, kept back from them by fraud. When the rightful heirs come to their own, the unjust stewards who kept them out of their inheritance may deem themselves mercifully dealt with if the new masters are willing to let bygones be bygones.

Compensation Impossible.

"But while the idea of compensating the capitalists for putting an end to their oppression would have been ethically absurd, you will scarcely get a full conception of the situation without considering that any such compensation was in the nature of the case impossible. To have compensated the capitalists in any practical way—that is, any way which would have preserved to them under the new order any economic equivalent for their former holdings—would have necessarily been to set up private capitalism over again in the very act of destroying it, thus defeating and stultifying the Revolution in the moment of its triumph.

"You see that this last and greatest of revolutions in the nature of the case absolutely differed from all former ones in the finality and completeness of its work. In all previous instances in which governments had abolished or converted to public use forms of property in the hands of citizens it had been possible to compensate them in some other kind of property through which their former economic advantage should be perpetuated under a different form. For example, in condemning lands it was possible to pay for them in money, and in abolishing property in men it was possible to pay for the slaves, so that the previous superiority or privilege held by the property owner was not destroyed outright, but merely translated, so to speak, into other forms. But the great Revolution, aiming as it did at the final destruction of all forms of advantage, dominion, or privilege among men, left no guise or mode possible under which the capitalist could continue to exercise his former superiority. All the modes under which in past time men had exercised dominion over their fellows had been by one revolution after another reduced to the single form of economic superiority, and now that this last incarnation of the spirit of selfish dominion was to perish there was no further refuge for it. The ultimate mask torn off, it was left to wither in the face of the sun."

THE TASK OF THE TWENTIETH CENTURY.

Perhaps the chief practical task of the twentieth century will be the taming of these strange elemental forces, so that they shall work for man instead of man working for them. We all know that the idea in the minds of the Dreamers of Machinery (and under that term I shall include all modern applied science) was the lightening of human labor—just as a man buys a motor car to save him walking. That expectation, however we all know too well has not been fulfilled. A few favored ones are carried in the motor car, but for the most part the motor car is carried on the shoulders of a straining, sweating humanity. Machinery, instead of proving a liberator, has proved the most terrible engine of enslavement the world has seen. Of course we all know that—and we know the reason of it. The reason of course, is that a few rich men have bought up all the machines. Perhaps if mankind could abolish the capitalist he might be able to control the machine.

Here, then, to start with, are two tasks for the twentieth century:

The abolition of the capitalists.

The use, instead of the abuse of machinery.

It may be that a terrible and bloody revolution will be needed to accomplish the changes, or they may come about peacefully by the broadening of the general intelligence, the humanization of public opinion, and the growth of moral conscience in the multitude, which shall realize the cruelty of wealth and the criminal nature of monopoly. Not only the cruelty, but the vulgarity of wealth! I hope that early in the twentieth century the world will begin to realize that it is bad taste to be rich.

From this realization will necessarily follow the Abolition of Organized Poverty. I say "organized" advisedly, because, while poverty occasionally follows from personal inadequacy or unworthiness, a man, as a rule, socially speaking, has no more right to be poor than he has to be rich. As one man is rich because he cannot help it, so another is poor because he cannot help it. Both need help from the twentieth century. Abolish Organized Wealth and we shall have no more Organized Poverty. There will be even enough left over in the world for the failures and the ne'er-do-wells.—Richard Le Gallienne.

—The wages that are paid to the laborers come from the product of labor and not from the capitalists, as some are simple enough to suppose. Many persons there are who think we must have rich men so that the laborers may be employed. Banish such nonsense.—Colorado Chronicle.

THE COMING REVOLUTION.

The Growth of Socialistic Sentiment and the Duty It Imposes Upon Us—The Choice of the Future Is Not Only Between Private and Public Ownership, but Between State Capitalism and Democratic Socialism.

The growth of Socialist thought and feeling in this country during the last few years has been so general and has followed so naturally from the industrial and economic changes that are going on about and among us that its extent and its significance are hardly realized, even by avowed and active Socialists. The increase of the Socialist vote, although this has been steady, gives no adequate measure of the advance of Socialist tendencies in public opinion.

The word Socialism, as we use it in its stricter sense, indicates a complex and many-sided idea. It means more than public or collective ownership of the instruments of production, though this is one of its principal factors.

It includes also the idea of true democracy—of the direction of affairs by the common will and the common conscience, not by the will (whether conscientious or interested) of a dominant class. In other words, it means the disappearance of economic class distinctions, the establishment of industrial freedom and equality of opportunity, the realization of human brotherhood through the elimination of hostile class interests.

And as a means to such collective ownership of society's means of life and their democratic administration for the common good, it involves the necessity of class struggle in society as now organized, of battle upon every field between the propertiless and the possessing classes, the exploited and the exploiters, the working class and the capitalist class. On a superficial view it may seem paradoxical to insist on waging class war for the sake of social peace. But history actually moves in just such paradoxes all through its course. Every advance the world has made toward peace and fraternity it has made through the successful revolts of the oppressed against their oppressors.

Semi-Socialistic Tendencies.

These various elements of the Socialist idea are not all consciously held by all who share in the Socialist tendency of the day.

There are many who believe that public ownership of the most important or even of the whole of the means of production must come, who desire its coming, but who do not believe in the possibility of democratic administration of socialized industry; overestimating the importance of individual qualities and underestimating the influence of the social environment upon the individual, they believe that there must always be a ruling and directing class, set apart from and above the masses of the people; only they say this ruling class must use its power humanely, must govern for the good of all, instead of considering its own class interest.

Others there are who more keenly feel the necessity of extending the ideal of democracy from politics into industry, who realize the hollowness of our present pretenses of liberty and equality, but who do not clearly recognize the imperative need of social control of the things necessary to society's life, who hope that democracy can be made real by the removal of a few petty legal restrictions and by the "moralization" of the individuals in society.

Each of these sets of men—and many of them in each category would vigorously repel the name of Socialist—each holds a certain portion of the Socialist ideal. But in both cases the idea is incomplete and unsatisfactory, even to themselves; and in both cases it is generally a mere matter of theory, having as yet but little influence upon their social or political actions. These theories, in their various modifications, are held by very many in the "upper classes," by people who do not suffer greatly under existing conditions, and who therefore have no strong feelings in the matter, no powerful motive to action.

Growth of Class Consciousness.

There is another partially Socialistic tendency, which is more one of feeling than of theory, but which is undoubtedly more pregnant with possibilities for the future than either of these. This is the vague feeling of class-consciousness among the working people, the feeling that the working class is one—one in its rights and in its wrongs, one in its interests and in its duties, one in its fears and in its hopes—regardless of divisions of trade, of sex, of race and nativity, of creed, or of old tradition of any sort; and along with this, necessarily bound up with it, the feeling of resentment and of hostility toward the capitalist class, the class that rules and enjoys by virtue of the submission and the sufferings of the world's toilers. This proletarian class consciousness is vague and weak as yet; but it is growing in strength and clearness from day to day. It is still blind and dumb, generally speaking; but it is learning to see and to speak—and when it has learned these things it will have gained the strength to act.

All these tendencies, growing directly out of our industrial system—out of private competition, out of the demoralizing results of money-greed, out of class distinction and the contrast of riches and poverty, out of the concentration of wealth, the organization of industry, and all the internal antagonisms and contradictions of a highly developed capitalist society—all these tendencies point toward a great change in the very basis of our economic system and, with that, in all our institutions—a change so radical and far-reaching that we must designate it as the Coming Social Revolution.

Change Is Inevitable.

Some such change, we have a right to say, is inevitable. Whether it shall come a little sooner or a little later, whether it shall come by peaceful and orderly methods or with violence and destruction and suffering, will depend partly upon the intelligence and resolution of the workers, partly upon the wisdom or folly of the capitalist class. We do not make the Revolution, nor can we avoid it if we would; all that we can do is to hasten and partly to guide it; and the possibility of doing even so much, imposes upon all who realize that the change must come a heavy responsibility for the way in which it shall come.

The voiceless wrath of the wretched and their unlearned discontent, We must give it voice and wisdom, till the waiting tide be spent.

Nor is this all. It is not only a question whether the Revolution shall be violent or peaceful; a far more important question is whether this Revolution shall be guided to the right end, whether it shall be saved from compromise and carried through to the best consummation of which it is capable; whether it shall put an end to exploitation and class rule, or whether it shall be diverted from that course and shall serve only to establish exploitation on a new basis, under new forms, give class rule a new lease of life, and leave what is to us the really great and vital question for another century to settle.

State Capitalism or Democratic Socialism?

The study of history and economics and the observation of existing conditions justifies us in saying, not only that there must soon be a radical change in the economic system, but also that the change must be to a system of public ownership. So much we may say is inevitable. But the question still remains, whether that system of public ownership shall be democratic or aristocratic, whether it shall be administered by and for the people as a whole, as Socialists desire; or whether it shall be administered, as competitive industry is to-day, by and for an exploiting class (bondholders or subsidized industrial princes, freed from all personal responsibility) through the machinery of government. In a word, the question still remains, whether we shall have Social Democracy or that other thing, miscalled State Socialism, but rightly named State Capitalism.

The answer to that question will depend chiefly upon the activity and intelligence of the wage-working class, because, while the small capitalists and even, under certain conditions, the great ones may see their interest in State Capitalism and may seek to divert the working class movement to that end, it is the working class alone whose vital economic interest will be served by the establishment of democratic Socialism.

It is for this reason that Socialists place so much weight upon the class struggle, that we lose no opportunity to emphasize the fundamental antagonism between the interests of the worker for wages and those of the taker of profits, that we point out the common interest of the working class and use all means to strengthen its class consciousness, that we call upon the workers of the world to organize themselves on the basis of their class interest in order to carry on both the daily defensive battle of trade unionism and the great political struggle for complete emancipation. It is for this reason that we hail with joy every independent movement of the working class, even though it be weak and vague and often mistaken in its immediate object, because it indicates the growth of class feeling and class thought. It is for this reason that to all parties which declare for public ownership but are not based in the labor movement, we offer as strenuous opposition as to those parties which frankly support the present capitalist regime; for we know that such mere public-ownership parties, lacking the directing force of proletarian class consciousness, are liable to be perverted even from the honest intentions of their promoters and toward a system of State Capitalism, which would mean for us only the perpetuation of class rule and the necessity of another revolution.

The Duty of Socialists.

Finally, it is for this reason that every sincere Socialist owes it to himself, to the working class, and to the greatest interests of humanity, to think deeply and carefully, to work tirelessly for the cause, to pay no heed to the taunts of intolerance and "narrowness" which are always hurled at men who adhere rigidly to that which they see to be the truth, and to be content with a slow advance in the right direction rather than seek rapid gains through compromise or methods of expediency.

To sum up: The evolution of private capitalism itself is bringing us to collective ownership of the means of production; it is not for this that we need to agitate; but it rests with us whether we shall have collective ownership for the benefit of the few or for the benefit of all; and the increasing speed with which our industrial and political development is now going on imposes upon us a duty graver even than that which our predecessors in the movement have so nobly performed.

To-day, as in 1776, "Eternal vigilance is the price of liberty."

—Every Socialist in New York and vicinity is expected to take at least ten tickets to the May Concert. No one is expected to return tickets. If you can't sell all you take, give the rest to your friends.

OLD HOMESTEAD GARDEN,

3rd AVE., betw. 90 and 91st St.

A superb Park located in the Centre of the City for Pic-nics, Outings, Concerts, etc.. Liberal conditions to Societies. Large new Platform. During the summer season every Evening

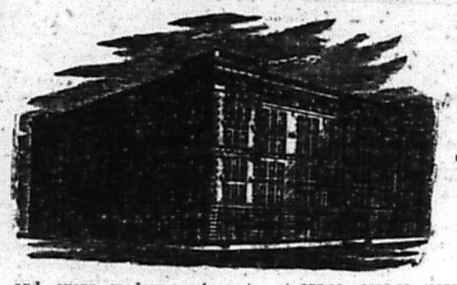
Grand Concerts and Vaudeville Show.

Admission free.

CHAS. KRIEGER,
Proprietor.

GRAND CENTRAL PALACE

. . BALLS . . .



Call, write, or telephone us (Telephone Calls, 165 - 38th or 2590 38th) for open dates season 1902 - 1903. Ball rooms, beautifully finished and illuminated, with stages and every modern equipment, at $75.00, $150.00, $250.00 and $350.00, according to size, dates selected and terms. Committees are invited to call and inspect. Office hours 8 A. M. to 6 P. M. Evenings only by appointment.

MONTGOMERY MAZE,
GRAND CENTRAL PALACE,
Lexington Avenue, 43d and 44th Streets, New York.

THE PROBLEM OF

GOOD CLOTHING

will be satisfactorily solved by an inspection of the fine line of

Men's and Boys' Suits,

in the latest Spring Styles, which we are offering at popular prices.

Union Goods the Best Goods.

The guarantee of good work will be found in this label.

Attached to each Garment.

Suits and Trousers made to Measure on the shortest notice.

Remember the address:

Ign. Koeser & Co.,
Southwest Corner 81st St. and Third Ave.

5-CENT PAMPHLETS.

Benham, G. B.—"The Crimes of Capitalism." .....5c.
Benham, G. B.—"The Story of the Red Flag." .....5c.
Benham, G. B.—"Patriotism and Socialism." .....5c.
Blatchford, Robt.—"Imprudent Marriages." .....5c.
Blatchford, Robt.—"Real Socialism—What Socialism Is and What Socialism Is Not" .....5c.
Blatchford, Robt.—"Socialism; A Reply to the Pope's Encyclical" ....5c.
Blatchford, Robt. — "The Living Wage" .....5c.
Brown, Wm. Thurston—"The Real Religion of To-day" .....5c.
Corey, W. A.—"How I Acquired My Millions" .....5c.
"Catechism of Socialism" .....5c.
Derfel, T.—"How to Teach Socialism" .....5c.
Hyndman, H. M.—"Marx' Theory of Value" .....5c.
Spargo, John—"Where We Stand". .5c.
Harriman-Maguire Debate on Single Tax .....5c.
Kropotkin, Peter—"An Appeal to the Young" .....5c.
Lafargue, Paul—"Socialism and the Intellectuals" .....5c.
Lassalle, Ferdinand—"What Is Capital" .....5c.
Mann, Tom—"A Socialist View of Religion and the Churches" .....5c.
Morris, Wm.—"How I Became a Socialist" 5c
Webb, Sidney — "What Socialism Means" .....5c.

The entire lot of 20 Pamphlets, 75 Cents, Postpaid.

10-CENT PAMPHLETS.

Deville, Gabriel—"Socialism, Revolution and Internationalism" .....10c.
Eastman, Geo. A.—"A Paradox Explained" .....10c.
Lafargue, Paul—"The Right to Be Lazy" .....10c.
Lassalle's Open Letter to the National Labor Association of Germany.10c
Lassalle, Ferdinand—"The Workingman's Program" .....10c.
Liebknecht, Wilhelm—"Socialism, What It Is and What It Seeks to Accomplish" .....10c.
McGrady, Father T.—"Socialism and the Labor Problem" .....10c.
McGrady, Father T.—"A Voice from England" .....10c.
"The State and Socialism" .....10c.
Avery, Martha Moore—"Woman; Her Quality, Her Environment, Her Possibility" .....10c.

The entire lot of 10 Pamphlets, 80 Cents, Postpaid.

25-CENT BOOKS.

Lassalle, Ferdinand—"Science and the Workingman" .....25c.
Marx, Karl—"The Eighteenth Brumaire of Louis Bonaparte" ....25c.
Bebel, Aug.—"Woman in the Past, Present, and Future".....25c.

The above 3 Books, TOGETHER, 60 CENTS, POSTPAID, or we will send the full list of 33 Publications for $1.95, Postpaid.

SOCIALIST LITERATURE CO.,
184 William Street, N. Y.

—Never take your politics from the man who feeds you for your labor; vote to have a meal of your own.—Ex.

Westchester Park.

Grand Opening
Sunday, May 4, 1902.
Dancing Commences at 2 p. m.

ADMISSION FREE!

Committees are invited to call, as good days are open for

PICNICS, OUTINGS, Etc.

Union Beer for Outings at $4 a Keg

It is easy to reach the Park. Take Third "L" to 177th street, then with trolley direct to Park, or by West Farm, Mount Vernon and South Boulevard trolley from 129th street and Third avenue or 135th street and 8th avenue to Third avenue. Combination fare, "L" and trolley, 8 cents.

ERNST SULZER,
Proprietor.

JOS. FISCHL,

Artist and Photographer

1442 Third Ave.,

NEW YORK.

Photos of Children and Clubs a Specialty.

COMMERCIALISM AND THE LANGUAGE.

Competition between the different publishers of dictionaries has caused a scramble to see who can find the most words, and the language is thus corrupted and confused by the inclusion of all manner of vulgarisms and weird words of questionable nature. The dictionary of one publishing firm is now widely advertised to contain so many thousand more words than are to be found in any other like work.

This circumstance calls forth the following protest from W. L. Alden, London literary correspondent of the New York "Times' Saturday Review":

"Time was when a dictionary was a sort of peerage of words, and to be admitted into its pages was sufficient proof of the legitimacy of any word. Now all that is changed. We constantly hear of dictionaries which are recommended on the ground that they contain a few thousand more words than any other dictionaries. The dictionary makers ransack journalism and comic weeklies for new words, and no matter how rascally a word may be, it goes into the new dictionary. These dictionaries have democratized and vulgarized the language. There is no longer any standard by which one can pronounce authoritatively on the legitimacy of a word. All words are in the dictionary, and one is treated with as much respect as another; The dictionary makers believe that all words are born free and equal, and are entitled to a place in every sort of literature."

Mr. Alden's incidental sneer at the "democratization" of the language calls to mind some recent statements of Max O'Rell's, to the effect that the bourgeois, in the attempt to appear cultured, corrupted the language by the use of foreign words which, through their constant mispronunciation, finally became incorporated in the language in a bastard form; and that had the language been left to the common people, it would have grown slowly and naturally, as it should.

—William C. Whitney predicts that "prosperity will not last forever." It is quite probable that Mr. Whitney is not mistaken. It is not altogether unlikely that the kind of "prosperity" that enables the few to amass untold wealth and condemns the many to a hand-to-mouth existence lacks the elements calculated to insure perpetuity. —Milwaukee News.

—All things worth doing are hard to do. It is not an easy thing to start the Socialist Daily. All the more evidence that it is worth doing and that YOU ought to help do it.

Workingmen . . . Educate Yourselves.

Here is a List of Well-Recommended Works to Choose From.

Allen, Grant—"Force and Energy." Paper .....15c.
Aveling, Edward—"The Students' Marx." Bound $1.00
Bax, Ernest Belfort—"The Religion of Socialism." Bound $1.00
—— "Outlooks from the New Standpoint." Bound.....$1.00
—— "Story of the French Revolution." Bound $1.00
Bebel, Aug.—"Woman in the Past, Present and Future." Paper, 25c.; bound, 50c.
Bellamy, Edward—"Looking Backward." Paper, 50c.; bound, $1.00.
—— "Equality." Paper, 50c.; bound, $1.25.
Benham, G. B.—"History of the Paris Commune." Bound .....75c.
—— "The Proletarian Revolt." Paper, ...25c.
Bernstein, Ed.—"F. Lassalle as a Social Reformer." Bound $1.00
Blatchford, Robert—"Merrie England," Paper, 10c.; cloth, 50c.
Bersford's "Derringer's Pocketbook on Socialstics." Paper, ...15c.
Bersford, Thos.—"Useful Principles of Logic." Paper .....15c.
Buchner, Ludwig—"Force and Matter." Bound $1.00
Carlyle, Thomas—"Socialism and Unsocialism." Paper .....25c.
Casson, Herbert—"The Crime of Credulity." Paper, 25c.; cloth, 75c.
Darwin, Chas.—"The Descent of Man." Bound $1.50
—— "The Origin of Species." Bound $1.25
Dawson, W. H.—"Bismarck and State Socialism." Bound $1.00
Deville, Gabriel—"The People's Marx." Paper, 75c.; bound, $1.50.
Morehouse, Geo. W.—"The Wilderness of Worlds." $1.00
"How I Became a Socialist." Paper, 5c.; bound, 40c.
Ely, Richard T.—"French and German Socialism in Modern Times." Cloth, 75c.
Ferri, Enrico—"Socialism and Modern Science." $1.00
Gibbon, Edw.—"History of Christianity." $2.00
Geissler, Ludwig—"Looking Beyond." Paper .....50c.
Göhre, Paul—"Three Months in a Workshop." $1.00
Gribayedoff, Val.—"French Invasion of Ireland in '98." $1.50
Gronlund, Laurence—"Ca Ira." Paper, 50c.; cloth, $1.00.
—— "Co-operative Commonwealth." Paper, 50c.; cloth, $1.00.
—— "Our Destiny." Paper, 50c.; cloth, $1.00.
Guyot, Yves—"The Tyranny of Socialism." Cloth $1.00
Haeckel, Ernst—"The Riddle of the Universe." $1.50
Herron, Geo. D.—"A Plea for the Gospel." Cloth.....75c.
—— "Between Cæsar and Jesus." Cloth .....75c.
—— "The New Redemption." Cloth, 75c.
—— "The Christian State." Cloth, 75c.
—— "The Call of the Cross." Paper, 25c.
—— "Social Meanings of Religious Experiences." Cloth .....75c.
Hobson, John A.—"Evolution of Modern Capitalism." Cloth $1.50
—— "Problems of Poverty." Cloth, $1.00.
Holland, F. M.—"The Reign of the Stoics." Cloth $1.25
Hyndman, H. M.—"Commercial Crisis of the 19th Century." $1.00
Kenworthy, John C.—"The Anatomy of Misery." $1.00
——"From Bondage to Brotherhood." Paper, 30c.; bound, 75c.
Lanin, E. B.—"Russian Traits and Terrors." Bound .....75c.
Letourneau, Ch.—"Property, Its Origin and Development." Bound $1.00
Lissagaray—"History of the Commune of 1871." Cloth, 70c.; library edition, $3.00.
Lloyd, Henry Demarest—"Newest England." Cloth $2.50
Marx, Karl—"The Eastern Question." Cloth $2.00
Meslier's "Superstition in All Ages." Cloth $1.00
Morris, William—"News from Nowhere." Paper .....25c.
Morris, Wm. and Belfort Bax—"Socialism, Its Growth and Outcome." $1.00.
Marx, Karl—"Capital," edited by Fred. Engels. Only authorized English edition. Cloth $2.50
Paine's Complete Political Works, 2 vols. $2.00
Raymond, Walter Marion—"Two Men and Some Women." Cloth $1.00
Renan, Enest—"Life of Jesus." Cloth, 75c.
Rogers, Jas. E. Thorold—"Six Centuries of Work and Wages." Paper, 25c.
Schopenhauer—"Studies in Pessimism." Cloth .....90c.
Sheppard—"Before an Audience, or Use of the Will in Public Speaking." Cloth .....75c.
Sotheran, Chas.—"Horace Greeley and Other Pioneers of American Socialism." Paper .....25c.
Sprague, F. M.—"The Laws of Social Evolution." Cloth $1.00
Sprague, F. M.—"Socialism from Genesis to Revelation." Cloth $1.00
Sue, Eugene—"The Silver Cross, or the Carpenter of Nazareth." Paper, 25c.; cloth, 50c.
Vail, Chas. H.—"Principles of Scientific Socialism." Paper, 35c.; cloth, $
Vail, Chas. H.—"Modern Socialism." Paper, 25c.; cloth, 75c.
Vandervelde, Emile—"Collectivism and Industrial Evolution." Paper, 25c.; cloth, 50c.
Voltaire, M. De—"Essays and Criticisms." Cloth $1.50
Zola, Emile—"Labor." Bound ..$1.50
Ladoff, Isador—"The Passing of Capitalism." Paper, 25c.; bound, 50c.

Largest assortment of publications on the Labor Question.

Catalogue free.

SOCIALIST LITERATURE CO.,
184 William Street, N. Y.

—"Resistance to tyrants is obedience to God," it has been said. Opposition to class rule is loyalty to mankind.

—Trusts are green apples—Socialism ripe apples.—Ex.

The Worker.

AN ORGAN OF THE SOCIALIST PARTY

(Known in New York State as the Social Democratic Party.)

PUBLISHED WEEKLY

AT 184 WILLIAM STREET, NEW YORK,

By the Socialistic Co-operative Publishing Association.

P. O. BOX 1512.

Telephone Call: 302 John.

TERMS TO SUBSCRIBERS.

Invariably in advance.

One year	50c.
Six months	25c.
Single copies	2c.

Bundle rates:

Less than 100 copies, per copy	1c.
100 copies	75c.
200 copies	$1.20
300 copies or more, per hundred	50c.

Weekly Bundles:

5 per week, one year	$1.75
10 per week, one year	3.—
25 per week, one year	7.50
50 per week, one year	12.50

Address all business communications, and make money orders, checks and drafts payable to The Worker.

Receipts are never sent to individual subscribers. Acknowledgment is made by changing the number on the wrapper, the week following receipt of money.

Communications concerning the editorial department of the paper should be addressed to the Editor.

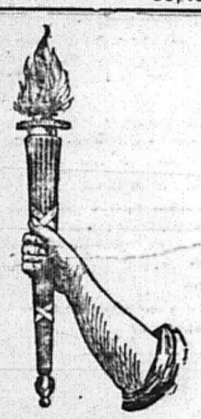
All communications should be written with ink and on one side of the paper; words should not be abbreviated; every letter should bear the writer's name and address; and matter should be put in as few words as possible, consistently with clearness. Communications which do not comply with these requirements are likely to be disregarded.

Entered as second-class matter at the New York, N. Y., Post Office on April 6, 1891.

UNION PRINTER

SOCIALIST VOTE IN THE UNITED STATES.

In 1888 (Presidential)	2,068
In 1890	13,331
In 1892 (Presidential)	21,157
In 1894	33,133
In 1896 (Presidential)	36,564
In 1898:
S. L. P.	82,204
S. D. P.	9,545
In 1900 (Presidential):
S. D. P.	86,918
S. L. P.	33,450



THE PARTY'S EMBLEM.

A WORD TO OUR READERS.

This May Day Number of The Worker is far, very far, from being all that we could desire or all that we had planned. For its positive faults we can only ask forbearance and for the sins of omission we plead that next time we shall do better.

And yet, in all modesty, we believe that the paper will be found to deserve the unexpectedly large circulation that it is to have. Orders, large and small, have come in from all over the country, from locals and individuals in cities and towns and hamlets all the way from Maine to California, and the tone of the letters that accompany these orders indicate that The Worker is growing in favor, that it commands the confidence of the Socialists of America.

As we look back over the file for the last year we realize that, whether The Worker fully deserves the favor it is winning, it at least comes much nearer to doing so than it did a year ago. Every month, almost every week, has been marked by improvement.

For this improvement, quite as much as for the recognition of it, we extend our thanks to the comrades throughout the land. No man lives or works for or by himself alone in this day of the world.

It has been said that every great speech is made as much by the audience as by the orator. Certainly a good paper—especially of such a character as a Socialist party paper—is made as much by its readers as by its editors. The energy of the comrades in extending its circulation and so strengthening its resources, their alertness in supplying it with needed information, their party activity which makes the utmost use of its services, as well as the interest they show in letters of advice, of commendation, or of criticism, all go to help in the common task of making a good party paper.

Therefore, readers, we do not only promise you our best efforts for the continued improvement of The Worker. We acknowledge your aid in the past, far more important, perhaps, than you have realized, and confidently hope that you will continue to co-operate with us in our not too easy some [illegible]

NO COMPROMISE!

The advice given to the Trojans, "Beware of the Greeks bearing gifts," has come to be recognised as a sound rule of policy in all human affairs, and it is applicable here.

If you know your enemy, his conduct furnishes you with a safe guide for his own. The advice that he offers you, may well be taken as the exact opposite of the counsel you ought to follow. But gradually, as your enemy perceives your growing strength, he begins to practise guile and to disguise his tactics in such a way that you must proceed with the utmost care to avoid being entrapped.

The working class has had bitter experience enough to teach it that the interests of Capital and Labor are opposed. Strikes and boycotts, lockouts and blacklists, and conspiracy trials, the use of the police and military and the occasional establishment of martial law, as well as the ridicule and abuse heaped upon workingmen's organizations by the capitalist press and the employment of secret agents to undermine or disrupt the trade unions—such experiences as these, which make up the history of the labor movement, leave no reasonable room for doubt as to the truth of the Socialist doctrine of the class struggle.

But a thousand prejudices and traditions stand in the way of the practical application of that doctrine in politics. Moreover, the working people, accustomed for generations, to look up to "betters" for counsel and authority, are too prone to believe in the good faith of any capitalist or capitalist politician who gives them a few words of flattery and seeming friendship and offers them what appears to be some concession, small though it may be.

The working class has not yet fully learned to respect itself and rely on its own efforts. That is the lesson it must master before it will be free.

All through history the rulers and plunderers of the world have known well how to concede non-essentials when it was prudent to do so. When the oppressed and plundered classes have threatened their unrighteous power, they have yielded up the form of power and kept the substance—or, at least, most of it, for some real gain has been made in every such step. And the lesson of this history for the workers of to-day is this: Demand all. Threaten, and do not threaten vainly, the citadels of your enemy's power. Accept every concession he makes, but yield nothing in return. Abate nothing of your demands, for they are just and wise. Never slacken your attacks, for your victory is assured.

The present attitude of the capitalist class is like that of ruling classes at other critical epochs in history. It sees its power threatened by the growing class consciousness of the workers and it seeks to appease them and divert their attacks by making pretended concessions which actually are of little or no value to the workers and cost little or nothing to the exploiters.

Such a ruse is the Industrial Peace Conference and Civic Federation of which we hear so much. A few years ago the answer of the capitalists to all appeals was, We have nothing to arbitrate. Now they have adopted apparently very different tactics. They have suddenly discovered that the workers have a right to organize and that arbitration of industrial disputes is an excellent thing. And they do not merely admit this, they proclaim it as if it were an inspired discovery of their own. Their leading representatives in politics are put forward to preach the new gospel and the capitalist press gives abundant space to advertising it.

It is encouraging to note, however, that the working class views this manœuvre with suspicion. The Socialist press raised a warning voice when the Conference was held in December and pointed out the danger it involved—how labor leaders were to be cajoled and flattered by the capitalist leaders, how the trade unions, without their own consent, were to be committed to a policy of arbitration and conciliation through the Committee of Thirty-six, and that this committee was a "packed jury" with a sure majority on the capitalist side. Our warning was heard. Trade union papers all over the land repeated and endorsed it. Unions and central labor bodies discussed the matter and denounced the "peace scheme." It is safe to say that the power for harm of this particular stratagem is pretty thoroughly destroyed.

Fortunately, the capitalists themselves, with the usual folly of tyrants, have helped us in exposing their stratagem. They could not resist the temptation to use their new scheme on the first opportunity in the most outrageous way; and the betrayal of the metal workers in San Francisco and of the transportation workers in Boston was all that was needed to enforce the Socialists' warning.

This incident is typical of capitalist policy. We shall have to meet such tricks again and again, and on the political as well as the industrial field. The advocacy of public ownership in the capitalist parties is another case in point—an attempt to divert the working class from the Socialist path by offering them a part of the Socialist program under capitalist political leadership.

It is for those who see clearly to take heed that this move shall be checkmated as effectually as the other. We must make it clear to the workers that public ownership, when separated from the rest of the Socialist principles—the abolition of profit and the class-struggle theory and tactics—altogether ceases to be Socialistic. This is the essential point in Socialist work at the present time, to emphasize the class-conscious character of our movement and draw the lines clear between Socialism and State Capitalism.

OUR "NARROW" TACTICS.

The Socialist Party is frequently accused of "narrowness" on account of the uncompromising attitude it takes, refusing to fuse, to compromise, to trade endorsements with "reform" or "labor" parties. The Worker has come in for its share of such criticism—and has taken it as a tribute to be proud of.

So far as The Worker is concerned and any influence it may have, we frankly avow that we are strictly, and, if you like, narrowly, partizan. We believe in the principles of the Socialist Party. We know that a party is necessary to propagate those principles and carry them into effect. The history of American politics has taught us that a party which exists for the sake of principle and not for the sake of boodle cannot afford to compromise those principles to the slightest degree, cannot afford to enter into friendly relations with any other party, even though its objects may seem to be similar, that in any such fusion the more nearly honest party is doomed to be absorbed by the more corrupt.

The Socialist Party has a definite program of action founded on a consistent political and economic theory. Its program applies to local, state, and national politics. It is not merely a program of measures, it is a program of principle. If our object is not merely to get men into office, neither is it merely to carry out certain ameliorative measures. The reason for existence of the Socialist Party is the necessity of effecting a complete resolution in society, a change from private ownership of the means of production and their operation for profit to public ownership and operation for use. All our actions must be determined with reference to that ultimate end.

The "reform" parties obviously have nothing in common with the Socialist Party, so far as this final end is concerned, although, from time to time, they may more or less sincerely advocate certain palliative measures—factory laws, tenement-house laws, etc.—which Socialists also would support. But if we enter into alliance with such a party we immediately lose our identity, the immediate measures on which we agree with them usurp the principal place in the public attention, and the final aim of Socialism is forgotten.

The same is true of the so-called "independent labor parties," such as have sprung up in Connecticut, California, and other parts of the country in the past year—although with these we can have far more sympathy than with mere "reform" movements, because their motive power is, at least, in a vague feeling of class consciousness among the workers.

But these parties have no ultimate goal. They are started with the idea of "doing something now," of "doing something practical." We might cite scores of cases where such eminently "practical" parties have sprung up, achieved temporary success, and died without permanent result—and this in spite of the fact that their rank and file and even, in some cases, their leaders, may have been unimpeachably honest. But it is not necessary to cite cases. It is sufficient to point out the reason for their failure.

The "practical" man forswears principle. He has no use for theories or general ideas or large final aims. Sufficient unto the day are his petty grievances and the task of redressing them. He argues that, while the Co-operative Commonwealth may be all very well some time in the future, "we must go a step at a time."

It is very true that in all progress—seeing we are human and finite beings—we have to advance a step at a time. But whether each step is a step in the right direction is a very important question; and this will depend altogether on whether we keep in view our final goal, the destination to which our steps are intended to lead.

This is the secret of the failure of the "independent labor parties." As a result of their lack of fundamental principles, they are seldom independent, the word labor soon comes to be a misnomer, and they hardly deserve to be called parties. Although their victories are the fruit of an outburst of working-class spirit, they fail to recognize clearly that the only allegiance they owe is to the working class and that the enemy they have to fight is the capitalist class.

The "labor mayor" of San Francisco, soon after election, announced that he intended to administer the city's affairs for the benefit of all classes, treating all citizens alike. This would be a very proper profession for a capitalist mayor, who does not intend to live up to his professions. But a labor mayor is supposed to mean what he says, and it is to be feared that Schmitz did mean exactly what he said. And to mean that is to mean that he deserts the cause of the working class which elected him, for the interests of the two classes are so diametrically opposed that it is impossible to serve one without injuring the other.

One of the Connecticut "labor mayors" is credited with saying—and we believe he did say—that he had no experience in public affairs and should depend upon the advice of experts—that for advice in legal matters he should go to a lawyer, for advice in financial matters to a banker, and so forth. No more pitiable confession of foredoomed failure could be imagined. The working class has nothing to fear, once it has confidence in itself; but so long as it accepts the false theory of its own inferiority, so long it can accomplish nothing.

We are satisfied to bear all the gibes that may be thrown at us for the narrowness of our tactics and for the slowness of our growth. We know that our growth, if slow, is steady and sound, and taht our influence is reaching far beyond the circle of the Socialist vote. We know what the Socialist Party has contributed to the strength of the independent labor parties; and we know that as they fall that power will return to us doubled and trebled.

The Socialist Party commends respect wherever its uncompromising tactics are known. With that we are satisfied and the accelerating growth of our vote redoubles our assurance that those uncompromising tactics are right.

WORKERS, UNITE.

There are many men of many minds,
Professing isms of various kinds—
The workers, the worked, the poor, the proud—
But the meanest I know in all the crowd
Is the man who hoards his gains with glee
And says "the world was made for me."

This great round world was made for all—
The boundless sea, the mountains tall,
The spreading forest, the fertile plain,
Were made for use and not for gain.
Where is the law of God ordained
Give right to few on shore and main?

Why portion out with mete and bound,
With wall and fence, as private ground,
That favored few may live at ease
While the mass exist on stingy fees;
Meekly to bow 'neath galling yoke—
Only to speak when they beg for work?

Nature's gifts should be wealth of all,
Not held by grant, controlled by "gall."
All should have use of sea and land—
The bounteous wealth on every hand—
Not held in fee by right of might—
Reward of crime or feudal fight.

The morning stars together ne'er will sing
With nation's weal controlled by rute of ring;
While wars of conquest, waged on ev'ry hand
Would force dominion o'er a foreign land;
While specious pleas and patriotic lies
Uphold deceit, vaunt stealing to the skies.

While selfish capital—no restrain of law—
Absorbs vast wealth in its voracious maw;
While labor, pittance doled from day to day,
Halts, suffers, dies on life's grim toilsome way,
What nonsense—preaching brotherhood of man
With trusts and combines grabbing all they can.

Workers, unite! And in your might demand
That vested right no more afflict the land.
That labor's rights you may with vote uphold
Throughout this land—throughout the world.
Workers, unite! You have the world to gain,
Losing the fetters that your lives enchain!

BEAUTIES OF THE PROFIT SYSTEM.

Meditation of a Doctor.—"What a cursed season! Nobody sick! Not even a dog has a cold!"

A Druggist.—"Everybody's in good health in this beastly town!"

A Grave Digger.—"If we could only have a little cholera, I could give my daughter a dowry."

A Military Man.—"Twenty years of peace! It's the ruin of my career!"

A Judge.—"If it weren't for the criminals, what should we do!"

A Merchant.—"If I succeed in driving my neighbor into bankruptcy, I'll get all his trade!"

A Farmer.—"Such a calamity! The country has produced so much that the market is glutted. Blessed be the years of small crops."

A Lawyer.—"Oh such a stupid town! Nobody wants to prosecute anybody else."

A Priest.—"Ah! If the people would only remain in ignorance, we could always be sure of the simpletons!"

A Policeman.—"If it weren't for the robbers, I should have to steal for a living!"—From La Squilla (The Clarion), the Socialist journal of Bologna, Italy.

THE PEOPLE HAVE SPOKEN.

By John Jerome Rooney.

(Air: From Beethoven, Op. 1, No. 3.)

I.

The people have spoken, the people have spoken—
The people—the people have come to their own;
The rule of the tyrant forever is broken—
The will of the people is monarch and throne!
The land—it is ours! who dares to invade it?
Ours is the sky—the rivers and lakes;
The Law—it is ours! who'll scorn it or trade it?
None! none! when the will of the people awakes!

II.

Our star will be Justice, unbought and secure—
For what are our riches if Justice should fail?
By Justice alone can a Nation endure—
Might boasts for a day, but it cannot prevail!
Long ages, in thraldom, long ages unfriended,
The toiler, unpaid, was bathed in his sweat,
The chain that has bound him some day must be rended—
The will of the people shall shatter it yet!

III.

Then, God for the Man, and God for the Nation!
As brothers we'll stand, as brothers we'll fall,
Each true to himself, each true to his station,
Each ready to answer when duty shall call.
We are brothers in heart—let us be so in sharing,
Nor greed nor our pride be a bar and a stay;
We travel as friends the road we are faring,
The North-star of Freedom to brighten the way!

IV.

The fruits of the earth are man's for his toiling;
The land and the wave are his native abode;
Who dares then to join in his brother's despoiling
Or add but a straw to Humanity's load?
He's coward or slave, unto tyranny broken,
He's tyrant himself or he's tyranny's tool—
The people have spoken—the people have spoken,
The people have spoken! the people shall rule!

Current Literature

All books and pamphlets mentioned in this column may be obtained through the Socialist Literature Company, 184 William street, New York.

THE AMERICAN FARMER. By A. M. Simons. Charles H. Kerr & Co. 1902. Cloth, 208 pages. Price, 50 cents.

"The American Farmer" is without question, the most valuable original and extended work yet written by any American Socialist. It is a study of an important phase of the social problem—a phase especially important and difficult in this country—and it has been carried out with an industry and an insight which, well as we have recognized Comrade Simons' ability in the past, has come to us as a pleasant surprise.

Doubtless there will be many who will disagree in part with his conclusions, which are largely at variance with the position somewhat thoughtlessly assumed by most Socialists on this subject—thoughtlessly, we say, for almost nothing worthy of consideration has hertofore been written on the relation of Socialism to agricultural conditions in this country. But, however one may disagree with the author of this little book, no one can read it without profit.

The work bears the marks of haste in its composition and publication, the style being often somewhat clumsy and typographical errors too frequent. These defects will of course be corrected in a second edition—which, we hope, will soon be demanded.

We regret our inability to give an extended review of "The American Farmer" in this number of The Worker, but pressure of other duties prevents us from doing it justice before next week. For the present, we heartily command the work to the attention of all our readers.

A VOICE FROM ENGLAND. By Rev. T. McGrady, Terre Haute. Standard Publishing Co. 1902. Pamphlet, 44 pages. Price, 10 cents.

THE CLERICAL CAPITALIST. By Rev. T. McGrady. New York. Socialist Co-operative Publishing Association. 1902. Pamphlet, 29 pages. Price, 10 cents.

The Catholic church—that is, the upper hierarchy of that church—has undoubtedly set itself the task of crushing the Socialist movement. In the Old World the experiment has gone further than here and its futility is already apparent. In France the clergy, after fighting all progressive tendencies in the government, have suddenly decided that their best policy is to abstain altogether from meddling in politics, lest a worse thing befall them. In Italy the Church organized rival unions to scab on the established unions which were permeated with Socialism; but these new unions had hardly got in running order before they too began to develop Socialist tendencies and the Church had to call a halt; and now the Church can think of nothing more effective than to advise the faithful to stay away from the polls—the same advice that the Anarchists give.

In America things have not gone so far. Archbishop Corrigan has preached a series of sermons against Socialism, distinguished chiefly by the evidence they bore that the Archbishop had never taken the trouble to study the subject before writing his sermons. A few other bishops—notably Quigley of Buffalo—have fulminated denunciations against the Socialist movement, whose most evident result is an increased enthusiasm for and interest in the work of the Socialist Party. The Catholic Truth Society, so-called, has taken a hand in the work by the free distribution of a pamphlet by the English Jesuit, Father Rickaby, against Socialism. This, however, is something of a boomerang; for Father Rickaby's little book is such a foolish one that our comrades in several cities have found it good policy to help the C. T. S. in distributing it as a means of making Socialist votes.

The Catholic church is probably the most powerful organization now in existence. Its hierarchical form of government—with a possibility of information and advice going from the lower ranks upward, but with all authority exercised from the top downward—this, together with its international character, its wealth, and the religious feeling and historic tradition that sanctions its commands, makes it a most formidable enemy. No other organization is able to form such gigantic plans and concentrate such tremendous forces on their execution. History shows that any power which tries to fight the Roman church with its own weapons is doomed to failure. Yet the Church has been defeated, again and again, by economic and intellectual forces that it could not control and has had to reverse its position and modify its teachings—an art in which it has become proficient.

For us, we fear the enmity of the Church less than its friendship—and this we would say equally of any other church or of any other organization accepting the capitalist ideal. The great movements of 1640, of 1780, and of 1848, as well as the whole scientific movements of modern times, might have been sadly perverted had not the Church, with all its wisdom, fallen short of that foresight which would have prompted it to patronize these movements and influence them from within.

While the organized church has for centuries opposed all forward movements until their victory was achieved—and the Roman church more notably than others only because it is stronger and more effective than others—it has often happened that individuals among the lower clergy have arrayed themselves on the side of progress. So it was in England at the time of the Peasant's Revolt and in France through the eighteenth century (see Rocquain's "Revolutionary Spirit Preceding the French Revolution"), and in many other instances.

Comrade McGrady stands in this position, of a simple priest openly opposing the position taken by the highest authorities of his Church on the question of Socialism, while remaining in the Church and accepting its theology. The position is a curious one and understandable only by a careful study of the Catholic church—perhaps not fully understandable to a layman even so. It is not an easy position, for the hierarchy knows how to bring all the influences of persuasion and of threats to bear upon a recalcitrant subordinate. What troubles Father McGrady may have had yet we do not know. Doubtless he will have more, in the future, and we can only wish him success in his battle.

The two pamphlets here noticed are both controversial. "A Voice from England" is a reply to Father Rickaby's attack on Socialism, and "The Clerical Capitalist" is in response to a circular attack by an American priest, Father Mackey. Both are written in a lively and popular style and are well fitted for circulation among Catholic workingmen who have been prejudiced against Socialism through the attacks of the bishops.

THE RIGHTS OF MAN: A Study in Twentieth Century Problems. By Lyman Abbott. Houghton, Mifflin & Co. 1902. Cloth, 370 pages. Price, $1.30 net, postage extra.

We have found "The Rights of Man" a disappointing book. We should have expected from Dr. Abbott a nearer approach to the scientific method of treating such a subject than from any other of that group of liberal clergymen to which he belongs. Perhaps we had no right to expect this; certainly we did not find it; with the exception of certain passages, which only accentuate the general tone by their contrast, the book is thoroughly theological-metaphysical in method.

What we complain of is not that Dr. Abbott utterly rejects Socialist principles nor that he completely misunderstands the Socialist movement. We can respect one who opposes our theories and can forgive one who is ignorant of them—even culpably ignorant, as is Dr. Abbott. But in the twentieth century it is hard to give a patient reading (as we have) to a big book by a highly educated man who has learned nothing from Darwin and Spencer; who follows the method of Hegel so far as its ideological form is concerned, and never grasps its fundamental character; who correctly criticizes Rousseau and yet is thoroughly Rousseilian in spirit. We could wish that Dr. Abbott had read and digested (and also mentioned in his rather scrappy bibliography) David G. Ritchie's "Natural Rights"—probably the most illuminative book yet written on this much discussed subject.

In his third chapter he declares that: "Every man has certain natural rights. * * * Speaking broadly, every man has a right to his person, to his property, to his reputation, to his family, and to his liberty—this last being the right to use his person and his property in any way he chooses, provided he does not infringe the rights or impair the welfare of others by such use." However: "He may forfeit them by his crimes; he may prove himself unable to use them with safety to himself or to others, by reason of his incompetency"—and in these cases other men have the natural right to take away his natural rights. "There may be other limitations," says Dr. Abbott; surely no others are necessary; the two limitations admitted overthrow the whole natural rights theory, as has been conceded (everywhere except in the political arena, where such phrases are convenient) long before this book was thought of.

At this stage in the world's progress and in the world's thought there is but one sound foundation for any theory of right—namely, the adaptation of the social individuals and of the social organisms of which they are members to survive and develop, the interests of larger and more highly organized groups always taking precedence; for they will take precedence, whatever our theories, and to deny their right to do so is to deny the right of the universe and all its parts to exist; this latter position, that of thorough-going pessimism, is logical, but it is eternally wrong.

With all his careful exposition of natural rights, Dr. Abbott constantly lapses—or, rather, he constantly rises—into inconsistency. His "limitations" become the rule, his natural rights the exception.

This is illustrated in his advocacy of the Single Tax, in the fourth chapter: All Single Taxers fall into two categories—Anarchists who are afraid of their conclusions and Socialists who are afraid of their conclusions. Dr. Abbott belongs, for the moment, to the latter group. He proves that the right of individual ownership in land is not a natural right by two arguments: First, man did not make the land; second, common ownership of land historically precedes individual ownership. A closer study of the history of civilization would have shown him that his second argument applies to all property. As for the first, in order to make it pertinent, we must change one vowel. The thesis is: Men (individuals) did not make the land, therefore Men (individuals) have no natural right of ownership in it; and in this, its only valid form, the argument applies equally to all forms of capital, if not to all forms of wealth, in the present age. As Horace Traubel has well put it: "I do not earn a cent that hundreds of hands do not reach out of the past and help me earn. I do not get a cent which all living men have not helped me to get. I have not done a stroke of work from which you have not derived returns." Dr. Abbott truly says that the right of private property in land (using that word in its broadest sense) is a right conferred by society, to be enjoyed under limitations imposed by society, and revocable by society if the social welfare demands it. Benjamin Franklin said the same thing of the right of private property of any sort, a hundred years ago.

Space forbids many other comments which suggest themselves. The same fault runs through the whole book. The author sneers at "German metaphysicians." A better study of some of them might have saved him from falling into the most perplexing of metaphysical "vicious circles."

"The Rights of Man" has, we believe, a large circulation. This is not to be regretted, shallow as the work may be. There is an immense half educated public in America, eager to learn and just practising the difficult art of thinking, which welcomes such books as this and which can digest no stronger food. This public might get much worse material to practise on than Dr. Abbott's book.

Considering that this public which he will reach includes many who will take at least his statements of fact as authoritative and who, at the same time, are sincerely if not very intelligently interested in the labor question, it is to be regretted that Dr. Abbott shows what we have already characterized as culpable ignorance of the labor movement.

He gives about four pages (297-301) out of his 370 to this subject. His picture of the typical trade union is that of an organization of uneducated or even "densely ignorant" men, most of them foreigners with "an inherited hatred of both state and church," untrained in the art of self-government but quite familiar with the use of dynamite, and "ruled over generally by a directory scarcely less absolute than that which governed the Revolutionists in the day of Mirabeau (sic), which meets in secret, demands implicit obedience to its orders, and forces obedience to them by industrial excommunication and sometimes by open violence or secret assault.

Even before Ritchie's book, we advise Dr. Abbott to take up his Bible and read again the twentieth verse in the fifth chapter of Deuteronomy, and William Clifford's commentary thereon in "The Ethics of Belief." Doubtless he believes that he has given a true picture of the labor movement. Doubtless nine-tenths of the character-assassins and bearers of false witness in private and public life think the scandals they utter are true. That does not excuse them. It was Dr. Abbott's duty to verify his belief before publishing it as fact. Unfortunately such wholesale criminal libel as this is actionable only in the court of history.

L.

In the "Comrade" for May, Job Harriman contributes the second number to the series, "How I Became a Socialist." Among the other contributions are: "A Little Requiem," by George D. Herron; "The Trampling Gods," by Val Ormond; "The Socialist Movement in Italy," by Alessandro Schiavi; "The Mouth and the Symbol," by John Spargo; "An Incident," by Frank Stuhlman; "The Man with the Hoe: A Literary Confab," by F. Refle; "In Memoriam," by F. Krafft.

——Father McGrady's pamphlets—"Socialism and the Labor Question," "A Voice from England," and "The Clerical Capitalist"—are good things to pass around among Catholic workingmen. Socialist Literature Co., 184 William street, New York. Price, 10 cents.

FOR THE NATIONAL PROPAGANDA FUND.

An Appeal by the National Committee to All Party Members and Sympathizers.

To the State and Local Organizations of the Socialist Party.

Comrades:—At the meeting of the National Committee in this city on January 24, 25, and 26, 1902, the work that has thus far been accomplished by the national organization and the means of continuing the same were taken under advisement, and after due consideration, we decided to issue this appeal to the state and local organizations and to all of the comrades of our party for such amounts as each may be able to contribute as donations to a National Propaganda Fund.

The purposes of this fund are to enable us to continue the great and far-reaching task already begun of giving the greatest possible degree of general publicity to the aims and methods of the Socialist Party; to extend the influence of our party as a vital political factor, especially in the various economic organizations of the working class; to be the means of communicating advice to and co-operating with comrades in their efforts to agitate, organize, and educate the proletariat; and to assist the local and state organizations and the Socialist press in general in extending the scope of their respective activities.

Official records show that 470,000 pieces of printed supplies, especially intended for party organization, have been used throughout the country since the Unity Convention designed by and supplied through the agency of the National Committee. The National Secretary's report, showing an increase of membership in good standing of 50 per cent. since the Unity Convention, is eloquent evidence of the splendid achievements of our comrades in the townships, cities, counties, states, and territories.

During the past six months the demands of all kinds upon your National Committee from every section of the country have been far beyond our resources, and we have been repeatedly handicapped by lack of funds. At this writing, while the business of the party is increasing heavily from day to day, our financial receipts are not sufficient to enable us to [illegible] the most important requirements of the party work, and it is urgently necessary that the comrades render immediate financial aid to the national organization.

As a means to this end we again call the attention of the comrades to the National Propaganda Fund. Donations to this fund should be sent to the National Secretary, and will be acknowledged weekly in the Socialist press.

LEON GREENBAUM,
National Secretary.
427 Emilie Bldg., St. Louis.
By order National Committee Socialist Party.

Donations to Propaganda Fund received as follows:

Amount reported to April 19	$238.33
11th A. D., New York	1.00
6th and 10th A. D., New York	2.00
Albert Mulac, Vanderbilt, Pa.	1.65
Peter Cruse, Aquilar, Colo.	1.00
Local Bozeman, Mont.	1.00
20th A. D., Brooklyn, N. Y.	2.00
Total, April 26	$3

THEIR INTERESTS OPPOSED

No argument is needed now to vince workingmen that they mus united as a class if they wish t higher wages or a shorter wor They have learned by experience men in a trade cannot get h wages if one-half of the men in shops take sides with the empl and help to resist the demand f creased pay. When demands are for higher wages, or a shorter day, workingmen know that the ests of themselves and their empl are not identical. They know wi having to reason about it, tha would be absurd to take the empl into the unions, and place the ma ment of the movement for a sh workday in their hands. Any leader who would make such a su tion would immediately be ren and branded as a traitor. In matters workingmen realize that employee and the employer have ferent interests; that the employee the employer belong to different es in society.

In the movements to obtain a recognition of the rights of the ing class, trade unionists find their efforts to get labor laws ar posed by both the Republican Democratic party. The men who resent these parties in the city cils, the state legislatures and in gress are all members of the wea class. Neither the Republican or ocratic party is the party of the ing class. But as neither party win without the votes of the wor class, they both pose as the wor man's friend, and on this claim ensnare the working class to vot them. Neither of these parties ever made an employers' liability an eight-hour measure, or a child law one of the important issues campaign. Both of these partie managed and controlled by wealthy class.

It is as absurd for labor to elec employing class to make labor la It would be for coal miners to Mark Hanna to manage a strik one of his mines for an eight workday. The political interests working class and the wealthy cla as dissimilar as are the interests strikers and the employers the trying to force to make concess Workingmen do not join employe sociations to get an opportuni vote on the associations acceptin wage scale of trade unions workingman would laugh if su proposition was made to him. I workingmen who would laugh idea of joining a masters' asso to vote to accept their unions' scales, think it is wise to vote their masters' political parties legal recognition of labor's right the employees were forced to or to get concessions from the emp so the working class is forced ganize in a political party to fi the overthrow of the privileges wealthy class, and union men vote for the parties of the wealt unconsciously betraying the ca labor.—The New Era.

THE ONLY SALESROOMS IN GREATER NEW YORK FOR THE CELEBRATED

PIANOS SOHMER PIANOS

ARE NOW LOCATED IN THE NEW SOHMER BUILDING
FIFTH AVENUE CORNER 22d STREET
THE "SOHMER" HEADS THE LIST OF THE HIGHEST GRADE PIANOS

HOW TO WORK FOR THE PARTY.

A Few Suggestions for Those Who Wish to Advance the Cause of Socialism.

First, join the party organization.

If there is a local in your town or city, apply for membership at the next meetings. And stick to it. Pay your dues. Attend the meetings. Don't shirk committee service. Don't be afraid to act as chairman at a public meeting. Don't be too lazy to take the job of Literature Agent, nor too proud to stand at a street corner giving out handbills.

If there is no local, write to your State Committee—or, if you are in an unorganized state, to the National Secretary—and become a member-at-large. But don't remain a member-at-large. Circulate party literature and talk Socialism until you get together half-a-dozen others and can organize a local.

Take some party paper. There are plenty to choose from. Renew promptly when your subscription expires. Read your papers carefully every week—just as carefully as you used to study your arithmetic lessons (or ought to have done so) when you were a boy. Begin at the top of the first column on the first page and go on to the bottom of the last column on the last page. You will be surprised to find how much information, training in thought, and inspiration you will get from it.

If you take two party papers it will do you no harm. Sometimes they disagree. It will be good for you to think over their arguments and form your own opinion.

Read a Socialist book now and then, there are scores of good ones to be had for from 25 cents to a dollar each. Won't find it dry. Get the other comrades to read it and then discuss it together. That will clear up your ideas and equip you the better for outside propaganda.

Read some capitalist newspaper, too the more outspokenly capitalistic and opposed to Socialism and the labor movement, the better. But read it with your brain as well as your eyes. You will find it a storehouse of ammunition to use against capitalism.

In the organization don't be a kicker or a grumbler. If others don't do their full share of work you have to do more than your share, that's all. The work has to be done. The good example of your devotion and persistence will do more to make the others work than any amount of fault-finding.

Never be blue. A Socialist never has reason to be discouraged. It's foolish. The stars in their courses fight for Socialism, to paraphrase Scripture. You will hear comrades saying that some alleged mistake in party policy "will put the movement back ten years." That's nonsense. Even the people who talk like that can't put the movement back to any great extent—though they come nearer to doing it than any others.

And now a few suggestions about the work of the organization as such:

If possible, public meetings, to be addressed by good Socialist speakers, should be held once a month or as much oftener as can be arranged. There are but few places where this cannot be done, if the various locals co-operate through their State Committee, arranging the speakers' tours in such a way as to use his time to the fullest extent with the minimum of railway fares.

Meetings should always be well advertised—both by cards or handbills (best if they are distributed from house to house, along with leaflets), and also by notices in the local press. It is better worth while to spend a few dollars and a few hours in getting out a good crowd than to save the money and trouble and have a small meeting.

Speaking of the local press, it can be made use of in another way. Especially in the smaller cities and towns, where there is still some degree of independence and fairness in the editorial conduct of the newspapers, they are generally willing or even glad to print brief and well written communications from their readers. There is hardly a local of the Socialist Party in the country that has not one or more members who are competent to write such letters from time to time, treating topics of the day from the Socialist standpoint. Both to assure publication and to command the attention of the readers, such letters must be short and to the point. We have in mind several cases where this line of work has had very good results.

Members of trade unions may do much in the same line through the correspondence columns of the craft journals and local labor papers, most of which now admit articles on all economic and political questions connected with the labor movement.

One feature of the public meetings which is too often neglected is the Literature Agent's table—which should always be in evidence, well stocked with Socialist books, pamphlets, and periodicals for sale, and to which the chairman should never fail to call the attention of the audience. A live man as Literature Agent is probably more serviceable to the movement than in any other capacity. A very few words will provide his first stock, as the Socialist publishing concerns sell literature at exceedingly low wholesale rates. If the work is properly conducted a few books or pamphlets can be sold at every meeting and a few subscriptions taken for party papers, the profits and commissions on which will provide for replenishing and increasing the stock and leave a surplus for other purposes.

Especially is this important where meetings cannot be held very often. The visitor, even though favorably impressed by the lecture, is likely to forget it soon, unless he has something to keep up his interest as well as to explain the subject more fully. He buys a pamphlet, reads it, sees that there is a large body of Socialist literature, and watches for the announcement of another meeting, that he may get further information. Still better is it if he subscribes for a party paper, for that comes to him every week, telling him of Socialist activity all over the world and commenting upon current news in a way that compels him to think for himself.

But, while our campaign is one of education, it must not remain in the realm of theory. We must show that we are intent on carrying our ideas into effect through political methods, that we are not talking of a distant millenium, but of a program of action that is practicable and desirable at the present time. In order to do that we should have our ticket in the field at every election, local as well as general, take a definite stand in accordance with Socialist principles on every important public question, and work vigorously for success at the polls. Our object is not merely to get votes; nor, on the other hand, is it merely to make theoretical Socialists; it is to make Socialist voters, to conquer the political power, and so to establish the Co-operative Commonwealth. That cannot be done completely on less than a national scale, of course; but Socialist principles can be applied even in village affairs, and every village campaign counts toward the great end.

In campaign time especially—better if it is done every month in the year—there should be systematic house-to-house work. Divide the territory to be covered into districts, assign each man his field, and let each make a personal call upon every voter within his district, stating the purposes of the party, inviting him to the meetings, leaving some Socialist leaflets, and, if there is a chance, getting his subscription for a party paper. This means hard work and involves some unpleasant experiences, but it brings better returns than mere random agitation. It is by this sort of work, carried on steadily for month after month and year after year, that the foundations of the Socialist Party can be laid deep and broad and sure, in preparation for the growth of future years.

These are only a few very general suggestions, covering the more important lines of party activity. The details must be developed in actual experience. But two most important points remain to be emphasized:

First, Never conceal your position. Never be afraid to use the name of Socialist Party. Show that you are proud of that name.

Second, Never think that you can gain by compromising. Live up to the letter of the law of the Socialist Party. Nominate full tickets, composed of trusty party members. Publicly reject all propositions of fusion or endorsement, which are sure to be made as soon as you show some strength. If one of your candidates violates the party principles by accepting an endorsement, do not be afraid to expel and disavow him. You will lose more than you can gain by excusing such an offense.

We desire a rapid growth, but not a mushroom growth. We do not want votes obtained under false pretenses. Quality is more important than quantity. Large or small, let our vote be a Socialist vote in the strictest sense, and all will be well.

THE PRESS.

(Continued from page 1.)

battle of Santiago, and thus he is led to forget that the only vital question for him is the question of his job and his wages and that the government by and for the capitalist class, which he supports with his vote, is used to keep down his wages and increase the profits of the ruling class by breaking strikes with its militia and injunctions and maintaining at every point the system of capitalism which deprives the workers of the fruits of their toil.

The movement is now well under way for a Socialist daily newspaper in New York City to combat these forces of ignorance and enslavement, to expose and harrass the capitalists, to publish the news of the Labor movement, to arouse the spirit of solidarity and class-consciousness in the working class, to spread the "tidings of great joy" proclaimed by the international Socialist movement, and to marshal the forces of labor into a revolutionary party of the working class for the purpose of capturing the powers of government and using them to achieve the emancipation of our class from wage-slavery.

We have had enough of papers which print a column or so of labor news and devote pages to the reception of a Prince. We have had enough of papers which rant against the trusts and talk sentimental Socialism part of the time in order to get the patronage and confidence of the working class and then support one of the old capitalistic politics parties at election time and lead the workers to the slaughter. We do not want a paper which will be a "friend of labor." We want a labor newspaper, a paper owned and published by workingmen for the benefit of the working class. Such a paper the coming Socialist Daily will be, and it will be the greatest force which could possibly be called to the aid of the working class. By publishing the fullest accounts of all working class activity it would stimulate the greatest interest in the labor movement and serve as the organ of the trade unions; by carrying on a vigorous fight against boycotted and non-union firms it would be of the greatest value in every strike; by publishing the truth about conditions as they exist to-day it would open the eyes of the workers; and by exposing the workings of capitalism and capitalist politics, and pointing out the true interests of the working class it would show them the way to victory.

In order to launch our Socialist Daily in such a way as to assure its success it is deemed necessary to raise a fund of $50,000, and the collection of this fund is now well under way. Fifty thousand dollars seems like a large sum for workingmen to raise; but if every man to whom this number of The Worker comes would send in a single dollar we should be in a position to start our Daily at once, fully equipped and with a good reserve.

Not every reader, though, will give even one little dollar. That means that those who do realize the need of a Socialist Daily shall give more.

We call upon every comrade and every sympathizer to pledge a contribution of at least $10—as much more as you like—to be paid in monthly instalments of $1 or more, and to do what he can to get others to contribute.

Cut out or copy the form of pledge accompanying this article. Fill in the blanks with as liberal a contribution as you can afford. Send it at once, enclosing the first instalment, to the Socialist Daily Finance Committee, 184 William street, New York City. And then remember to pay the other instalments promptly, without being reminded of them.

Acknowledgments of pledges and donations are made weekly in The Worker, but are omitted in this special number for lack of space. The total pledges received up to April 21, acknowledged last week, was $5,461.97, and the total of cash paid in was $895.97. The work is started. Now let it be pushed along.

Fellow workingmen and comrades, no sacrifice is too great for such a purpose. Apply yourself unceasingly to the task of making this paper possible and then of making it a success. Give all you can and then get others to give, work for it in your union at every opportunity, leave not undone what it is in human power to do. Help in establishing a daily that will bring hope and aspiration and strength for the struggle of the working class, and you will have done your duty to your class and laid up an inheritance of justice and joy for your children and your children's children.

VAIL IN PENNSYLVANIA.

Charles H. Vail will give the month of May to a tour of the state of Pennsylvania under the direction of the State Committee of the Socialist Party. His dates for the next few days are as follows:

May 1—1022 Arch street, Philadelphia.
May 2—Cigarmakers' meeting, 931 Callowhill street, Philadelphia.
May 3—Camden, N. J.
May 4—Philadelphia, Fortieth Ward.
May 5—Germantown.
May 6—Philadelphia, Southwark Labor Lyceum.
May 7—Media.
May 8—Pottstown.
May 9—Reading.
May 10—Ephrata.

Information in regard to Vail's tour or other party matters will be given on request by J. Mahlon Barnes, State Secretary, 1022 Arch street, Philadelphia.

ST. LOUIS TO HOLD CITY CONVENTION.

The trade unions of St. Louis have been invited to participate in the city convention of the Socialist Party to be held in St. Louis on May 4. The call to the unions states:

"It is with no design to have your organization dictate the politics of its members that this invitation to participate in our councils is extended. Our purpose is to afford the largest possible opportunity to the wageworkers of this city to take part in naming the only ticket that will represent their interests.

"You, the organized wage-workers, who have fought so many battles on the industrial field, have had many occasions to observe the advantages given to the capitalist class against whom you are arrayed, by the possession of the power to make, construe and enforce laws to suit their economic interests. * * *

"We must use every weapon at our command. To the strike and the boycott must be added the ballot. We trust that you will demonstrate your sympathy with this political movement of the working class by sending delegates to the convention and deliberating with us.

"In the matter of delegates we require that they shall be 'class-conscious,' that is—conscious of their position as a class, despoiled of the greater part of the wealth they create; that they subscribe to the declaration that they have forever severed their affiliations with the political parties of capitalism and will support the party of the working class.

"Each union is entitled to two delegates for the first one hundred members or fraction thereof, and one more for each additional hundred or major fraction thereof.

"The convention will be governed by the constitution of the Socialist Party which provides that 'No one shall be nominated for political office who has not been a member of the party in good standing for at least six months.'"

See a woman in another column picking grapes for Speer's wines. Read all about it. Excellent for weekly persons and the aged, particularly for females.

Wholesale. The Greatest Furniture and Carpet House in the World. Retail.

LUDWIG BAUMANN & COMP'Y

BLOCK:

Eighth Avenue, from 35th to 36th Streets,
NEW YORK.

ENTRANCE to Furniture Dep't: NEW ANNEX, 260—268 West 36th Street.

It gives us pleasure to state that the great army of our employees are members of labor organizations which have for their object the improvement of the conditions of the working people.

We are prepared to fit out your home with all that goes to make a comfortable household, as:

Furniture, Carpets, Household Goods of All Kinds, Porcelain and Brass Ware, etc., in the most elegant manner, at the lowest prices, and on the most liberal conditions, as is well-known to the workingmen who for so many years have supplied their needs at our store.

Goods delivered free at the purchaser's home anywhere within a radius of one hundred miles.

WHY WORK HARD?

"You have produced too much; you must starve," was the dictum of the English capitalist to the English worker not long ago. "In return for the wages which I so charitably pay you, you have, you ungrateful wretch, made me practically insolvent by making more goods than I can sell, and bringing down prices in the market."

"I will be more careful for the future," humbly replied the workman, and going away he made a compact with his fellows that if they ever got a job again before death from hunger could overtake them, they would work easily and avoid the ruinous crime of over-production.

"Wretches! you are conspiring to loaf!" yelled the English capitalist a little later, to the accompaniment of an echo proceeding from the Southern Hemisphere in the tones of the Melbourne "Age." "The American capitalist, whose workers are all racing for big output, is entirely capturing my markets. You are cruel, and wrong, and wicked, not to exert yourself to produce as much as you possibly can! Do you not see that wealth consists of goods, and that the more you produce, the more there will be available to distribute in wages?"

The English workman sadly inquired, "What about glutting the market? If my American relative is racing the output, and I do the same, will not a glut be hurried up in next to no time? I have had the sack once for over-production, and I don't want to have it again?"

"If you overproduce, you certainly will get sacked again," cries the capitalist, "but you must do it and stand the sacking. If you don't this American fellow will certainly cause you to lose your job. Getting the sack is the price you have to pay for keeping the market."

"You perplex me," said the English workman, scratching his head.

"Then I'll make it plain to you: The American fellow has worked himself out of a job, and he's looking after yours to live on whilst my brother, the American capitalist, is eating up the overproduction. Now, he'll get your job for a certainty unless you work yourself out of it, so you had better sail in lively and spoil it for him."

"And for myself, too?"

"Undoubtedly, but he will spoil it for you if you don't. You are bound to get the sack in either case, but just think of the great glory of conquering in the market."

Just then the English workman bethought himself to ask:

"But what about this that I was told just now, that the more I produce, the more there is available for me to have? It looks all right, but it doesn't happen that way, and you can't give any promise that it ever will. If it is so, why isn't it so? And if it isn't so, why do you tell it to me?"

"That is easy. The more you produce, the more there is, and consequently the more you might have; but you can't because it belongs to me. That is where the Sacred Right of Property comes in."—The Tocsin, Australia.

SUCCESS.

There was a land called Merry in which exactly fifteen million boys lived, and these boys were every one, very, very industrious, and they ALL applied themselves very closely to the work in which they were engaged, and ALL of them pleased their employers and EACH ONE was promoted and soon reached the head of the factory in which he had worked so faithfully and then he got elected manager of a big company, and then when a trust was formed he was elected president at a salary of one million dollars a year. "Who did the dirty work when all the boys were presidents?"

Ah, go on, you can't appreciate an intelligent argument on political economy.—Ex.

KNOWS A GOOD THING.

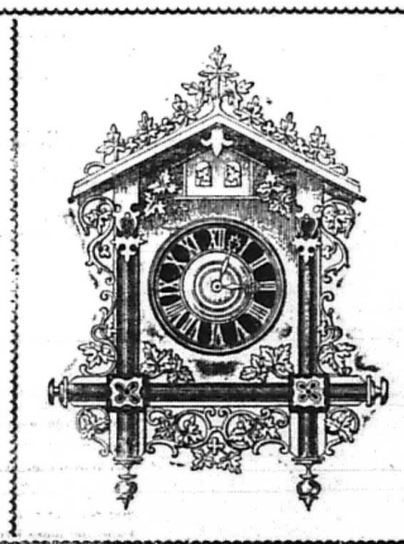
H. R. Kepler of Local Richmond, Ind., in ordering five copies of The Worker weekly for a year, says: "As a paper advocating class-conscious scientific Socialism your paper stands in the foremost ranks of Socialist journalism. I wish you the success you so richly deserve."

Even Socialist editors like appreciation, and such little notes as this from the faithful soldiers of the Revolution more than make up for all the sneers of the unthinking. The Worker is getting more than a fair share of the success it tries to deserve. In the future it will both deserve and get more.

—The capitalists will submit to publicity so long as the public submits to the capitalists.—William Mailly.

WHAT IS HOME WITHOUT A CHILD AND A CUCKOO CLOCK?

The CUCKOO and Miniature SWISS CLOCKS received the Gold Medal (the highest Award at the Paris Exposition.)



The largest variety in Cuckoo, Quail, Trumpeter and Swiss Miniature Clocks in the United States. To introduce the Clocks direct to the Public we retail them at wholesale prices. We are the only house in America which deal exclusively in Swiss and Black Forest Clocks.

They are made by skilful woodcarvers, the best Brass Movements and fully guaranteed.

We ship goods to all parts of the United States.

We charge nothing for packing. Write for catalogue.

SWISS CLOCK CO.,
65 BARCLAY STREET, NEW YORK.

OPPORTUNITIES FOR YOUNG MEN.

It is sometimes feared that the rapid displacement of the small business concern by the trust will deprive young men of the openings for private enterprise they once enjoyed.

Nothing could be more incorrect. Now, as ever, success awaits shrewdness and industry. Think of the illimitable quantity of air, completely wasted, merely because it has not yet been fenced in.

Let a proper incentive to inventive ingenuity be offered and a way will soon be devised whereby this source of wealth may be utilized.

Then, too, contemplate the gold mine that lies within reach of the happy man who shall contrive to get possession of all the water that is now obtained for nothing by the idle and shiftless. Think of the rivers, springs and wells thus wasted. The thought is almost maddening.

These are only illustrative of innumerable opportunities for individual enterprise and industry.

Look at the vast quantity of dead cats and dogs thrown away which could be made into sausage for workingmen.

Observe, too, the quantity of garbage wasted, much of which would make good hash for the poor at a large profit to the promoter of the new industry.

To the man of genuine business talent the door of opportunity is never closed; he has but to open his eyes and lo! wealth is beneath his very nose.

Decayed fruit and vegetables may, by the magic power of financial genius, be transformed into the good money paid for first-class canned goods sold at reduced rates in special sales; dead mules, horses and cattle make good beef, profitable alike to the man of enterprise and to those who inspect it.

Let us hear no more of the anarchistic clamor about lack of opportunity.

So long as men are paid money for work, so long will there be opportunities for financiers to make a good living by getting possession of such money. While there is money there is hope, and to him that "makes" money all things work together for good.—F. R. Hays, in Miners' Magazine.

BUY UNION LABEL GOODS.

A COMMON SUPERSTITION.

You ladies and gentlemen of the leisure classes, I have noticed a superstition among you which is rather widely prevalent. I have heard many of you express unbounded astonishment that romance, sentiment, pure nobleness, and the simple heroism of self-surrender should be found among the masses in the squalor of the alleys or of the cottage in the lane. I am inclined myself to fall into exactly the opposite superstition, and to doubt whether the before-mentioned articles are to be found anywhere except in the before-mentioned spots.—"Doris," Augustus Jessopp.

THE LAST CLASS WAR.

At every previous social revolution, or be it evolution, class superseded class. Thus the theocratic class superseded the patriarchic; the feudal superseded the theocratic; and, in our own days, the capitalist superseded the feudal. In each instance a class below upset the class above, emancipated itself by subjugating others, and introduced a new form of human exploitation.

To rear, on the contrary, the Co-operativ Commonwealth; to abolish all class antagonisms by abolishing the last of the systems of human exploitation; to redeem itself, and, alone of all classes in the social evolution of the human species, to accomplish its own redemption together with that of the whole, not at the expense of any portion, of mankind—that is the historic mission of the proletariat; that is the noble aim that swells with pride the breast, sweetens the present bitterness of the lot, of every proletarian, who is conscious of his class distinction, and the obligation it imposes upon him.—Karl Kautsky, in "The Proletariat."

INDUSTRIAL FREEDOM,
a Socialist Monthly, 25 cents per year; six months, 15 cents. Edited by E. B. Ault, published by EQUALITY COLONY, a corporation village.
Address.
INDUSTRIAL FREEDOM, EQUALITY, WASH.

THE BIG STORE — A CITY IN ITSELF

SIEGEL COOPER Co.

SIXTH AVE. — NEXT NEAT THE FOUNTAIN — 18TH & 19TH STS.

"THE MOST IMPORTANT PART OF EVERY BUSINESS IS TO KNOW WHAT OUGHT TO BE DONE."

Thus wrote Columella, a Roman of the First Century. And we might add: not only to know what ought to be done, but to do it well—better than some one else's best.

Millions of people annually visit the Siegel-Cooper Store. Think you that this store does not incessantly exert itself to more closely knit the bonds that tie it to its friends?

Let a trip through The Big Store serve as proof. It will be more than a mere stroll from one floor to another. It will prove an education, a charm to the eye, a stimulus to the mind, for practically every country of the globe is represented here in the matter of merchandise.

In a sense, the store is as much yours as ours. The postal, cable and telegraph stations, waiting rooms, parcel rooms and other conveniences are public accommodations, and yet all part of the store that is "a city in itself."

Since the present management assumed control the store has broadened and bettered in a multitude of ways. Previous limitations were swept aside. A much more liberal policy has been adopted. Every method and advanced idea that will make you like the store more and patronize it upon every possible occasion is vigorously in force.

But here we are in the Basement. It's but a step down from the Main Aisle, if you prefer that descent. The China and Glassware sections are spectacular in their sparkling attractions. Cut Glassware refracts the rays of the electric lights with dazzling beauty.

Eastward, and beyond the confines of the Bric-a-Brac, China and Glassware, the Housefurnishings hold sway. Activity is the slogan. Special sales go on briskly. Everything to help make home work easier. More than 20,000 articles. Think of that!

Back again to the Main Floor, but this time by way of the main stairway that brings you up opposite the famous $15,000 golden Fountain. The water plashes musically, and through it dance gleefully the rainbow-like hues of the electric lights that fringe the great basin.

The Jewelry Store is as delightful as ever. The Ribbon Sections are radiant with spring-time fancies. The Neckwear, Lace, Parasol, Dress Goods, Silks, Wash Fabrics, Gloves, Leather Goods, Household Linens and other sections bordering the Main Aisle are richly stocked with everything newest and best. Good humor is as pervasive as fine perfume. Throngs of shoppers enter, stop, chatter, buy and press on to be succeeded by other throngs.

Over on the 19th street side the Untrimmed Millinery is engaging much attention. It's the largest place of its kind in the world and therefore does an extraordinary amount of business.

"Human nature is fond of novelty," quoth a philosopher, and the store of to-day that is in the forefront rank to stay caters keenly to this exaction with appreciable enthusiasm. Novelty is everywhere throughout the store. Commonplace sameness is avoided.

We walk through the Drug and Toilet Article Sections, and then pass into the Men's Neckwear and Furnishings Departments. The brightness and newness of the stocks tell more graphically than words the cleverness of the styles.

You are thirsty? The world's largest Fountain is but a few paces away. Refreshed with whatever your fancy may have dictated, you pass into the Shoe Store. It's a busy day; the aisles are peopled thickly; the seats are crowded. Looks as if everybody needed new Shoes.

Beyond lies the Men's and Boys' Clothing Store. If it's new, stylish and correctly made it's here. The Women's Ribbed Underwear and Hosiery Sections are just off toward 18th street, and nudge the Notions.

On the Escalator! What an odd sensation to be taken upward on a stairway that glides mechanically. A century ago 'twould have seemed like witchcraft.

Here we are in the heart of the Book Store. Up almost before we knew it. Walls of books of every kind by every author. Off to the right is the Stationery and Office Supplies Department. Further over are the Manicure Parlors. The Sporting Goods Store likewise enchains your attention. All kinds of supplies for all kinds of sports.

The Camera Department is immensely popular. Amateurs come here by thousands yearly. Turn your head. Baby carriages, Go-Carts, Trunks, Dolls, and all kinds of Toys and Games greet your gaze. Eastward, the Horse Goods Store bids you welcome.

Over on the 19th street side the Music Store attracts crowds.

Returning you walk into the departments displaying Silk and Sateen Underskirts; also Women's Housewear of every description. Busy here as elsewhere.

Northward of the Grand Stairway is the Corset Store. Always popular and excellent stocked. A favorite place.

The Muslin Underwear and Children's Sections are in the centre and just a bit off to the northwest. Everything for mother and youngsters.

Beyond, and in the direction of 18th Street, is the Waist Store. The wonder and admiration of thousands of discriminating women. As many as 60,000 Waists are on sale at one time. We sell more Waists than any other store in the world. We show more styles, more fabrics, more exclusiveness. Myriads of Waists of the most winsome description.

The sections devoted to the sale and display of Women's Costumes, Tailored Suits, Cloaks, and Skirts are justly popular and famous. Quality, tone, dignity, and individuality are the cardinal characteristics of these sections. The extensiveness of the displays, the richness and variety of styles and reasonableness of the prices makes this an eminently satisfactory branch of The Big Store. The Girls' and Misses' Departments are in the same category.

The Millinery Parlors are in the very flower and brilliance of Springtime attractivenss. Paris has waved her magic wand over the entire ensemble. American originality adds a bright lustre. Here in bewildering abundance are sonnets of lace, flowers, jewels, straw and whatever enters into exquisite millinery composition. There is an air of aristocratic refinement about these parlors that bespeaks the drawing-rooms of the most exclusive.

A flower garden of radiant styles for Spring and Summer.

You enter one of the Sixth Avenue Elevators and ascend to the Third Floor. Here Carpets, Rugs, all sorts of floor coverings, Lace Curtains, Portieres, Upholsteries, Wall Papers, Pictures and Furniture spread out before your admiring gaze.

The Furniture Store alone covers more than 60,000 square feet. Furniture from the foremost American artificers. Richest and rarest of styles, as well as a broad variety of the most popular kinds.

Again upward. And now we are in the far-famed World's Greatest Grocery. A marvellous place, verily. Interest never flags. Business flows in from everywhere. Competition merely stimulates it—increases the volume of business. Busy, all the time. Mail orders come in by the thousand. To visit this fine Grocery is like attending an international pure-food exposition.

Nothing in retail commercial history parallels the growth of this Grocery. It holds a position unique and unapproachable.

—"Railroading in the United States," by Ben Hanford. Five cents a copy or 10 for a quarter. Socialist Literature Co., 184 William street, New York. Read it. Distribute it.

—It is logical that those who base their defense of competition upon the theory of the survival of the fittest are often the least fit to survive.—William Mailly.

WHY JOIN THE SOCIALIST PARTY?

"In Union Is Strength"—Reesons Why It Is Both the Interes and the Duty of Every Socialist to Belong to the Party Organization.

"In union is strength." That is a very old saying, but it is none the less a good one. It is the popular statement of a great truth, which the human race has been slowly learning all through its history. The progress of mankind consists chiefly in the increasing recognition and application of this truth, that systematic co-operation multiplies the powers of those who thus join their forces.

This is true in manual labor and industry, from the simplest to the most complex. It is equally true in every other sort of activity. A number of men, intelligently working together upon a common plan, accomplish far more than the same number of men working for a common end, but working separately and with varying and often conflicting methods.

Our purpose in calling attention to this principle is to emphasize the importance of applying it to the work of Socialist propaganda. Among the people to whom this issue of The Worker goes, there will probably be several thousand who are in sympathy with Socialist ideas, who are eager to see the Socialist movement grow, who are willing to do something to help it along, some of whom are already trying to serve the cause as best they may, but who do not belong to the party organization and are not even regular subscribers to the party press. To these we wish to speak.

Elsewhere we have some remarks on the growth of Socialism—not alone as measured by the increase of the Socialist vote, but particularly with reference to the wide dissemination of more or less clear Socialist thought and sentiment.

In every little town in the land we might find several, perhaps many, men who are good Socialists so far as they understand the subject and who would be thorough Socialists if their knowledge of it was complete. Yet these men vote every year for one or the other of the capitalist parties; many of them do not even know that there is a party which represents their ideas, and by voting for which they could bring those ideas nearer to realization. They read and support papers which do not give them the information they want, which give them instead a great deal of information or misinformation that they do not want, and which editorially ignore or oppose or ridicule the ideas that they hold; most of them do not even know that there are papers in the field whose sole reason for existence is to propagate Socialist principles and tell the truths that the capitalist papers suppress.

These men do little or nothing to spread their ideas among others. They are afraid of being considered "queer" and called "cranks." If they knew how many other such "cranks" there were, if they were in close connection with the avowed Socialists of the land, they would not be afraid or ashamed, they would be proud of their advanced position, and they would know how to go about it to bring still others to the same way of thinking.

The Isolated Socialist.

Even the avowed but unaffiliated Socialists, those who are trying to work for Socialism by their own individual methods, are compelled to waste a great deal of their time and energy. The man who does not read the Socialist press does not get the facts that he could use in support of his arguments. Moreover, not being in touch with other Socialists, he is often unable to formulate his ideas correctly, even though he is right in the main—for even thinking is a social process and is done better by many men than by any one of them.

Again, he does not have the benefit of the practical experience of the movement and has to try to work out for himself, with many failures and disappointments, the best methods of propaganda. When some special opportunity presents itself in his locality he has not the means to take full advantage of it by the distribution of literature or the holding of meetings; yet in the same community there are very probably several others who are in exactly the same position and who, by their joint effort at the right moment, would be able to bring Socialist ideas in the most effective way to the attention of all the people.

Finally, and this is not the least of the disadvantages under which he labors, the isolated Socialist feels his isolation, he does not see the results of his work as the member of an organization does, he lacks the inspiration of comradeship in a great movement and so he is likely to grow discouraged and "weary in well doing" just when there is the greatest need of his services.

Duty as Well as Interest.

These are some of the reasons why the unaffiliated Socialist needs the party organization, why it is to his interest to join. On the other hand, the party organization needs him and it is his duty to join.

We advocate the use of the political power, the ballot, to effect a peaceful revolution in the economic and social system. But in order to carry on political action we must have an organization, a party, to formulate platforms, to nominate candidates and give them instructions, and to carry on the campaign for their election and for the inculcation of the principles they represent.

If this party is to be trustworthy, if it is not to fall into the hands of interested persons and be diverted from its right purpose, it must depend upon the rank and file for moral and financial support, the directing power must be in the hands of the rank and file, and the rank and file must actively participate in its work. The Socialist who stays outside the Socialist Party organization has no right to complain when he thinks the party makes mistakes; he has the opportunity to join it and take an equal part with every other comrade in deciding its course and if he fails to do so he fails in his duty to the cause.

Moreover, the efforts of the unaffiliated Socialist, however earnest he may be, can have no political result except through the existence of a Socialist Party. The existence of the party is necessary to carry into effect the work of individuals.

"Sinews of War."

In order to maintain its existence and do its work, to put its candidates before the public, to carry on its campaigns, to put speakers in the field, to publish papers, and to print and distribute leaflets and other Socialist literature, the party needs money.

Now the Socialist Party cannot raise its funds as the old parties do. They receive large contributions every year from the great capitalists, corporations, and trusts. This is the chief source of their campaign funds. The capitalists willingly contribute to the Republican and Democratic parties—often the same capitalist contributes equally to both old parties—because both these parties serve their interests and protect them in the making of profits. Since the object of the Socialist Party is to put an end to the pront system, since it is diametrically opposed to the interests of the capitalist class, it cannot expect and does not desire to draw funds from such a source. It has but few even moderately wealthy men. It cannot depend on them for financial support, and it ought not to do so, because it would then be bound to carry out their will instead of the will of the working class.

The Socialist Party depends for its funds—upon the small contributions of its rank and file, of the poor workingmen for the advancement of whose interests it exists. Like the trade unions, the Socialist Party has a dues-paying system to provide for its ordinary expenses. The dues are so low that any man who is getting wages can afford to pay them—20 or 25 cents a month—and members who are out of work are excused from payment. When the dues are not sufficient, the party depends upon the voluntary contributions—the freely given dimes and quarters—of its membership. And by thus depending upon the working class for support, the party organization is kept true to its purpose of serving the working class.

But since the dues and contributions paid by each of the workingmen who make up the party must necessarily be small it is evident that the membership must be large in order to provide "sinews of war" for vigorous campaign and propaganda work. None of the party's income is spent in exorbitant salaries; thep arty officers work for mechanics' wages, as they ought. None of it is spent for "boodle or booze" as in the old parties; the Socialist Party has nothing to gain and everything to lose by such methods. Our campaign, which goes on the year 'round, is entirely a campaign of education, and to help in providing funds for making it as vigorous as possible is the duty of every man who calls himself a Socialist.

The Volunteer Army.

But there is something still more important than the need of party funds, and that is the need of men to do the party work. The Socialist Party, even at the best, can afford to keep out a few men as paid party servants—organizers, secretaries, speakers, and editors—to devote their whole time to the movement. Far the gerater part of its work must be done by the volunteers, by the masses of men who are willing to give a few hours out of their leisure each week to such work as distributing leaflets, arranging and advertising meetings, getting subscriptions for the party press, and all the multitudinous things that need to be done in order to bring our ideas to the people's minds. A man who has to work hard for a living eight or ten or eleven hours a day cannot give very much time to work for the movement. It is only by enlisting a great army of such workers that our campaign can be made successful. And in order that the energies of the workers shall not be wasted, that they shall not conflict with each other, that they shall cover the field mos completely, it is necessary that they should be organized and should follow a systematic plan, as can be done only when they belong to the party and take part in its deliberations.

These, then, are the reasons why every man who believes in the principles of Socialism should become an active member of the Socialist Party—why it is both his interest and his duty to do so.

Ten Times One Is Ten.

The experience of the past shows that there are, in general, from ten to twelve Socialist votes to every member of the organization. This is not an accidental ratio, for it is fairly constant in successive elections.

And what does it mean?

It means that every Socialist voter has it in his power to multiply his influence by ten or twelve, to make ten or twelve new Socialist voters, by enrolling as a member of the party and doing his share in its organized work.

YOU can do this if you will.

Elsewhere in this paper you will find the addresses of the National Secretary and of the various State Secretary's of the Socialist Party. If you do not know of a party organization in your town or city, write at once to your State Secretary or to National Headquarters for information. You will be given directions by which you can find your nearest local organization if there is one near you or, if not, by which you can, in the shortest time and with the least trouble, build up such a local.

Do it. Do it without delay. You will be surprised to find how much a few men can accomplish when they unite their efforts for a common end.

OFFICIAL

NATIONAL EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE.—Secretary, Leon Greenbaum, Room 427, Emilie Bldg., St. Louis, Mo.

NEW YORK STATE COMMITTEE.—Secretary, Leonard D. Abbott, 64 E. 4th st., New York. Meets every Tuesday at 8 p. m., at above place.

CALIFORNIA STATE COMMITTEE.—Secretary, Thos. Bersford, 609 Stevenson street, San Francisco. Meets on first and third Fridays in the month.

COLORADO STATE COMMITTEE.—Secretary, Chas. La Kamp, P. O. Box 144, Goldfield.

CONNECTICUT STATE COMMITTEE.—A. B. Cornelius, Secretary, Room 8, 746 Chapel street, New Haven. Meets second and fourth Sunday of the month at above place.

ILLINOIS STATE COMMITTEE.—Secretary, Chas. H. Kerr, 56 Fifth avenue, Chicago. Meets first Tuesday of the month, at 1202 Ashland Block.

INDIANA STATE COMMITTEE.—Secretary, Jas. Oneal, 831 N. Third street, Terre Haute.

IOWA STATE COMMITTEE.—Secretary, W. A. Jacobs, 216 E. Sixth street, Davenport.

KANSAS STATE COMMITTEE.—Secretary-Treasurer, W. L. Nixon, Abilene.

KENTUCKY STATE COMMITTEE—Secretary, A. A. Lewis, 331 Scott street, Covington.

MAINE STATE COMMITTEE.—Secretary, Fred E. Irish, 322 Riverside street, Woodfords.

MASSACHUSETTS STATE COMMITTEE—Secretary, Squire E. Putney, 4 Belmont Court, Somerville.—State Committee of Massachusetts Socialist Clubs, Secretary, Winfield P. Porter, 614 Winthrop Building, Boston; Organizer, Wm. Mailly, same address, to whom all matters concerning organization should be addressed.

MICHIGAN STATE COMMITTEE.—Secretary, John A. C. Menton, 1315 Saginaw street, Flint.

MINNESOTA STATE COMMITTEE.—Secretary, Geo. H. Lockwood, 125 Nicollet avenue.

MISSOURI STATE COMMITTEE—Secretary-Treasurer, E. Val Putnam, Room 9, 22 N. Fourth street, St. Louis.

NEBRASKA STATE COMMITTEE.—Secretary, George E. Baird, 1804 N. Sixteenth street, Omaha.

NEW JERSEY STATE COMMITTEE.—Secretary, B. R. Kearns, Arlington. Meets second Sunday of the month at 3 p. m., at 14 Market str., Newark, N. J.

NEW HAMPSHIRE STATE COMMITTEE.—Secretary, Louis Arnstein, 18 Watson street, Dover.

NORTH DAKOTA STATE COMMITTEE.—Secretary, Arthur Bassett, Fargo.

OHIO STATE COMMITTEE—Secretary, W. G. Critchlow, 26 Pruden Bldg., Dayton. Meets every Monday evening.

OREGON STATE COMMITTEE.—Secretary, W. S. Richards, Albany.

OKLAHOMA TERRITORIAL COMMITTEE.—Secretary-Treasurer, Dr. H. R. Dean, P. O. Box 1116, Oklahoma City.

PENNSYLVANIA STATE COMMITTEE—Secretary, J. Malion Barnes, 1722 Arch street; Treasurer, Jos. K. Edelman, 806 W. Cambria street, Philadelphia.

PUERTO RICO TERRITORIAL COMMITTEE.—Secretary, Saturnino Sone, San Juan.

TEXAS STATE COMMITTEE.—Secretary, S. J. Hampton, Bonham.

WASHINGTON STATE COMMITTEE.—Secretary, Geo. W. Scott, 86 Virginia street, Seattle. Meets first Sunday in the month, 3 p. m., at 220 Union street.

WISCONSIN STATE COMMITTEE.—Secretary, E. H. Thomas, 614 State street, Milwaukee.

NOTICE—For technical reasons, no Party announcements can go in that are not in this office by Tuesday, 3 p. m.

LOCAL NEW YORK.

Below is a list of the subdivisions of Local New York Socialist Party, with time and place of meeting. If you are not already a party member, but believe in the principles of Socialism, do not fail to attend the next meeting of your assembly district, join the party, and go to work.

The headquarters of Local New York are at the Labor Lyceum, 64 E. Fourth street. Julius Gerber is the organizer, and to him all communications should be addressed. The General Committee, consisting of delegates from the subdivisions, meets in the Labor Lyceum on the second and fourth Saturday of each month.

1st, 3d, and 5th A. D.—Every Monday at 249 W. Eleventh street, home of L. D. Mayes.

2d and 8th A. D.—Second and fourth Thursday of the month, at 73 Ludlow street.

4th A. D.—Every Friday at Pacific Hall, E. Broadway, near Clinton street.

6th and 10th A. D.—Second and fourth Friday, at the Labor Lyceum, 64 E. Fourth street.

7th A. D.—First and third Wednesday, at Colonial Hotel, 243 W. Seventeenth street.

9th and 11th A. D.—First and third Friday, at 436 W. Thirty-eighth street.

12th A. D.—Every Friday at Grand Central Palace Hall, 99-99 Clinton street, Room 5.

13th A. D.—First and third Saturday, at 342 W. Forty-second street.

14th A. D.—Second and fourth Thursday, at 238 E. Tenth street.

15th and 17th A. D.—Second and fourth Tuesday, at 457 W. Fifty-third street.

16th A. D.—Every Friday at 616 E. Fifth street.

18th and 20th A. D.—First and third Thursday, at 421 First avenue.

19th A. D.—Second and fourth Wednesday, at 125 Amsterdam avenue.

21st A. D.—First and third Friday, at Colonial Hall, One Hundred and First street and Columbus avenue.

22d A. D.—Every Thursday at 215 East fifty-ninth street.

23d A. D.—First and third Friday, at 19 Manhattan street.

24th A. D.—(Branch 1.) Second and fourth Monday, at 1659 Second avenue.

24th A. D.—(Branch 2.) Every Thursday at 215 E. 58th street.

26th A. D.—First and third Thursday, at 1432 Second avenue.

26th A. D. (BOHEMIAN BRANCH.)—Second and fourth Thursday, at 326 E. Seventy-third street.

28th A. D.—First and third Thursday, at 1407 Avenue A.

30th A. D.—Second and fourth Wednesday, at 206 E. Eighty-sixth street.

32d and 33d A. D.—First and third Thursday, at 1997 Third avenue.

34th and 35th A. D. (BRANCH 1, GERMAN)—Second and fourth Friday, at 3309 Third avenue.

34th and 35th A. D. (BRANCH 2, ENGLISH.)—Second and fourth Thursday, at 3309 Third avenue.

ANNEXED DISTRICT.—First and third Saturday, at Welde's Hotel, Tenth street and White Plains avenue, Williamsbridge.

LOCAL KINGS COUNTY.

The headquarters of Local Kings County, at the Socialist Club, Fulton street and Ralph avenue, Brooklyn, are open daily, from 10 a. m. to 11 p. m., to furnish any information regarding the Local as well as all kinds of literature, including subscription cards for the party press.

The County Committee meets on the second and fourth Saturdays of the month at 8 p. m. The Local Organizer is Warren Atkinson, 25-8. Oxford street.

The following is a list of the Branches of the Local, with time and place of meeting:

1st, 2d, and 3d A. D. (American Branch.)—First and third Friday, at 123 Schermerhorn street.

5th A. D.—First and third Monday, at Emrich's, 5-7 Boerum street.

6th A. D.—Every Wednesday, at 222 Stockton street.

7th A. D.—First and third Thursday, at Binkenfeld's, 1232 Forty-fifth street.

12th A. D.—First and third Saturday, at Turn Hall, Sixteenth street, near Fifth avenue.

13th and 14th A. D.—First and third Saturday, at Eckford's Hall, corner Eckford and Coliyer streets.

15th A. D.—First and fourth Saturday, at 187 Montrose avenue.

16th A. D.—First and third Friday, at 9 Melbougal street.

17th A. D.—First and third Sunday afternoon, at 9 Melbougal street.

18th A. D.—First and third Thursday, at 9 Melbougal street.

19th A. D.—First and third Monday, at Labor Lyceum, 955 Willoughby avenue.

20th A. D., BRANCH 1, GERMAN—First and third Wednesday, at 257 Hamburg avenue.

20th A. D., BRANCH 2, ENGLISH—Second and fourth Tuesday, at 700 Evergreen avenue.

21st A. D., BRANCH 1, GERMAN—First and third Friday, at 675 Glenmore avenue.

21st A. D., Branch 2—Friday, at New Central Hall, 410 Stone avenue.

21st A. D., BRANCH 3, ENGLISH—Second and fourth Wednesday, at Keystone Hall, Pennsylvania and Glenmore avenues.

THE BROOKLYN LABOR LYCEUM ASSOCIATION.

Fellow-Workers:

The laying of the cornerstone of the Brooklyn Labor Lyceum will take place on Decoration Day, Friday, May 30. The arrangements for this affair have been placed in the hands of a special committee by the Board of Directors and the Building Committee. It is intended to make this occasion a grand demonstration and parade of organized labor of Greater New York. The committee has therefore decided to request all trade unions and societies who wish to participate to elect two delegates to attend the meetings of this committee and aid in the arrangements. The meetings of the delegates of New York City, New Jersey, and Richmond County will take place every Friday evening at 8 o'clock at the New York Labor Lyceum, 64 East Fourth street. The meetings of the Brooklyn delegates will take place every Tuesday evening at 8 o'clock at the Brooklyn Labor Lyceum, 949-957 Willoughby avnue.

Each labor organization is therefore urgently requested to elect two delegates, and, if a meeting of the organization should not take place within the next few weeks, to have such delegates appointed by the Executive Board. Fraternally yours,

THE COMMITTEE.

Brooklyn, April 21, 1902.

STATE CAPITALISM IN RUSSIA.

In Russia no man may enter a government establishment without removing his hat, a rule which has caused some trouble, it appears, since the establishment of the government spirit shops. There have been disputes between the officials behind the bars and the customers as to the removal of the headgear, with the result that the question was ubmitted to the Minister of Finance. That official has caused notices to be issued warning the public against any disrespectful demeanor while in the state public houses, frequenters of which must in the future remove their hats.—London Globe.

We wonder if the middle-class reformers will hail this as another victory for "public ownership?"

—Simons' book on "The American Farmer" is a good one for thoughtful men. Price, 50 cents. Socialist Literature Co., 184 William street, New York.

R·I·P·A·N·S

For years I had been a sufferer with chronic stomach trouble, pressf gas and distress of my bowels. I contracted what the doctor pronounced a low type of malaria. I could not take solid food at all, and only a very little of the lightest diet would create fever and vomiting. The druggist sent me a box of Ripans Tabules, saying he sold more Ripans than anything else for stomach trouble. I not only found relief, but believe I have been permanently cured.

At druggists.

The Five-Cent Package is enough for an ordinary occasion. The family bottle, 60 cents, contains a supply for a year.

QUESTION: What was the First Firm to Employ Union Labor Exclusively in the Manufacture of Overalls?

ANSWER: SWEET, ORR & CO.

QUESTION: What was the First Firm to Put the Label of the United Garment Workers of America on Overalls?

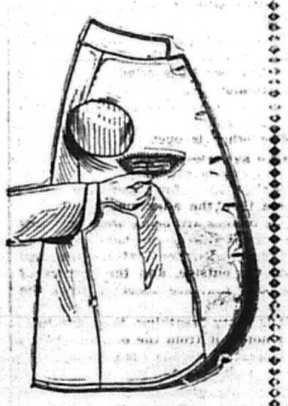
ANSWER: SWEET, ORR & CO.

We manufacture Overalls of every variety. If you want to be sure of getting the best UNION-MADE Overalls in the world, buy Sweet, Orr & Co.'s product and you will be satisfied.

For your Boy: Keep him in a pair of Sweet, Orr & Co.'s Corduroy Knee Pants. Guaranteed in every respect.

Have you heard of the famous Lot No. 25, "Unshrinkable" Overalls? If not, ask for them?

DISCRIMINATE AGAINST INFERIOR UNCLEAN SWEATSHOP CLOTHING BY INSISTING UPON THIS LABEL.



7041144 ISSUED BY AUTHORITY OF UNITED GARMENT WORKERS OF AMERICA REGISTERED GENERAL EXECUTIVE BOARD ORG APRIL 12TH 1891 Henry White GEN. SEC. UNION-MADE

Union-made Clothing bears this Label, which by machine stitching is found on the inside pocket of Coats, Pants and Vests.

THE FOLLOWING FIRMS SELL UNION LABEL CLOTHING:

NEW YORK.

S. N. WOOD & CO., 740 Broadway.
MARCUS BROS., 121-123 Canal, corner Chrystie Street.
SURPRISE STORE, 132-146 Broadway.
S. TOBIAS & SON, 2336 Third Ave.
GUARANTEE CLOTHING CO., 127th Street and Third Avenue.

BROOKLYN.

CO-OPERATIVE CLOTHING CO., 1000 Broadway.
R. A. CLARK & CO., 450 Dean Street.
S. TOBIAS, 243 Fulton Street.
H. COHEN & CO., 445 Grand Street.
K. C. CLOTHING CO., 1665 Broadway.

—An effective play for Socialist amateurs, "Now and Then," a play in two acts by Frederick Krafft. Price, 10 cents; 10 copies, 75 cents; 50 copies, $3.00. Sent postpaid by Socialist Literature Company, 184 William street, New York.

—Men who deceive themselves as to the truth of any proposition are very apt to deceive others. It's a great crime to deceive yourself and a greater to deceive others.—Colorado Chronicle.

—Lee's "Labor Politics and Socialist Politics" is a good pamphlet to pass around among union men. Three cents a copy or 10 for 20 cents. Socialist Literature Co., 184 William street, New York.

ANOTHER APPRECIATION.

New York has a splendid Socialist weekly, The Worker, and will soon have a daily newspaper to stand for the rights of the laboring class.—Alliance.

CAPITALISM AND THE FAMILY.

Some Suggestions as to How the System of Competitive Production for Profit Undermines and Destroys Home Life—Socialism the Only Hope for Those Who Would Cherish the Home, Honor Women, and Love Children.

Undoubtedly the greatest claim which Socialism has on the consideration of thoughtful men and women is the promise it holds forth for the elevation and improvement of all those human relations which we sum up in the words "home" and "family."

This is the same as to say that the worst of all the evil effects of the competitive wage and profit system under which we live to-day is the degrading influence it has had upon the relations of men and women and its destructive effect upon the home life of the great mass of the people, those who produce the wealth of the world—and also, though in a different way, of those who produce nothing, but own all, the capitalist class.

We Americans especially are given to boasting of our home life, just as we boast of our free government and of our public school system. All of these boasts were at least partly justified in the earlier days of our national history. All of them are losing their foundation and becoming mere cant in these days of fully developed capitalism. The ideal of the home which is held up for admiration as an essential part of American life was in fact a typical institution of our grandfathers' and even of our fathers' times; but in this twentieth century it is becoming harder and harder for this ideal to resist the encroachment of economic forces.

Reasons that Are No Reasons.

There are many who recognize and lament the gradual but certain destruction of the old home life. But most attribute it to quite inadequate or fanciful causes.

Some say it is the saloon that is destroying the home. They do not explain what it is that gives this extraordinary power to the saloon. They would be much nearer the truth if they said that the decay of the old home life is the cause of the growing influence of the saloon. The saloon is, indeed, a substitute—a very bad one, doubtless, but still a substitute—for the home. Wherever the home is destroyed or degraded, there the worst of all that is connected with the saloon is sure to spring up.

Others attribute it to the growth or a spirit of infidelity, immorality, lawlessness, or whatever may be their pet word for the general condition of discontent and unrest that actually prevails, equally do they fail to account for this spirit of unrest and discontent.

The professional defenders of capitalism, these—in the same breath in which they declare that Socialism can never appeal to or really influence the American people, allege that it is the bitter attacks of the Socialists which is destroying the American home. Their accusation is as false as it is inconsistent. The Socialist movement is, indeed, still weak, still in its infancy, in this country—but it is growing; and on the other hand, so far from attacking the home, it strikes at the very root of the forces which have already gone so far toward destroying home and family life.

Let us consider some of the conditions that exist to-day in various parts of our country—"our" country we call it, though in sober truth we have no right to use that phrase, since it is a country owned and ruled by a smaller and more exclusive oligarchy, perhaps, than ever ruled any other country.

"She-Towns" of the East.

In New England and in some of the other Eastern states we have factory towns and cities in which the female population vastly outnumbers the male. This is an abnormal condition and cannot but have disastrous results.

But what are the causes of it? They are purely economic. They are the necessary results of the capitalist system.

In these towns hundreds or thousands of girls and women are employed in great, dingy, cheerless shops and factories, tending the wonderful machinery that makes cotton and woolen goods and shoes and many other articles of commerce. This machinery has been brought to such perfection, made so nearly automatic, that very little physical strength and even comparatively little technical skill are required in the processes of manufacture. Women can therefore, can do the work of tending the machinery as well as men.

But why are the women actually preferred to men in this work? The answer comes as soon as the question can be asked: Because, for various reasons, women are cheaper than men; they can work and will work for lower wages.

Each capitalist (individual or corporation) is looking for profits; only for the sake of profits are the mills run at all; if profits could not be made, the whole world might clamor for clothes and shoes but, so long as the mills remained private property, not a wheel should turn. Each capitalist is obliged therefore, to look for the cheapest efficient labor. Since women can do the work, men have no chance for employment, unless they will work for women's wages, except at those few branches of the work which require superior strength or even special skill and knowledge not ordinarily possessed by the female workers.

The capitalist does not care whether or not the home life of the worker is destroyed. Or if he does care—as in some exceptional cases he does—he is helpless. If he should employ men and pay wages to each sufficient for the maintenance of a family the cost of production of his goods would be so increased that he could not sell them in competition with less scrupulous employers and would be driven into bankruptcy.

So it comes about that the young men born in these towns must go elsewhere in quest of an opportunity to work and live, while the women remain to live—not the life of women, but the life of "female operatives"—all the possibilities of their womanhood sacrificed to the necessity of making profits for the stockholders in the companies that own the mills where they toil all day, day after day, year in and year out, for a mere livelihood.

The Other Half.

From the "she-towns" of the East we may turn our eyes to the lumber camps, the mining camps, and the harvest fields of the Northwest and the Far West. What do we see there?

In the mining regions there are many large communities where the men outnumber the women ten or twenty to one. What is the character and the life of the few women in such towns may be more easily imagined than described. In many of these mining camps home life, even of the humblest sort, so far from being the rule, is the very rare exception.

The conditions in the lumbering regions and in the great wheat-farming districts are little better, possibly even worse.

During the winter great gangs of men are employed in felling the trees and bringing them to the rivers or the railroads by which they are to be transported to the market. There is no possibility of family life for these men. They begin the winter in debt to the company for their outfit of clothes and tools. The company is not only their employer, but their landlord as well. After a terrible winter of the hardest toil, of danger, of suffering, they come out, probably still in debt to the company—possibly, by good luck, with a few, a very few dollars to their credit. In either case they come out hardened and coarsened, more reckless and desperate than they went in. If they have been fortunate, the little that is left of their wages is soon spent in a week of the wild dissipation that comes as an almost necessary reaction from the winter's hardships. Then they remain an easy prey to the employment agents and the railway construction companies and the farm owners—who, like the lumber companies and the Eastern mill owners, all want the cheapest efficient labor that can be found.

Much beautiful poetry, in verse and prose, has been written about the farmer's life. There is not much poetry in the life of the Western farm laborer. He is, with the possible exception of the sweatshop workers of the great cities, the worst exploited slave in the world. He is the victim of a perennial confidence game, played by the "respectable elements" of society. Every summer the cities of the Middle West and even of the East are flooded with alluring advertisements for men to work in the harvest fields and the newspapers are filled with editorials telling of the great opportunities that await the farm laborer and reproaching the city worker for not going "back to the soil." Every summer, while these advertisements are being circulated and these editorials published, the wheat-farming regions are overrun with men, looking for work, earnestly seeking, begging for work. It is good business—for the employment agents, the railroads, and the farmers alike. The farmers are least to blame, for they are being robbed by the financial and industrial trusts and they can recoup themselves only at the expense of the laborers.

Here we have, then, two armies of people cut off from the possibility of home and family life—the female factory operatives of the East and the laborers in the mines, forests, fields, and railroads of the West. And the condition of both is directly traceable to the necessities of the capitalist system—to the need of the capitalist, if he would succeed in competition with other capitalists, at home and abroad, for the cheapest labor that will serve his purpose.

Sweatshop and Tenement.

The condition of the sweatshop workers of the great cities, as distinguished from the smaller factory towns—has been so fully described that it is not necessary to recount its horrors. Here, too, competition among employers for the chance to make profits from the labor of others and the competition of propertiless toilers for permission to work and live, is constantly tending to force the wages of the workers down to the lowest level of subsistence.

Here, indeed, the possibility of family life is not prevented in the same way as in the previous cases. But here the wages of labor are so low and the cost of living so high that the only home life possible is almost worse than none at all.

To those who have not seen the tenements of our great cities no description would be adequate, or no adequate description would be credible, and for those who have seen them no description is necessary. In the homes—and the only possible homes—of a large part of the wage-workers of New York and other large cites of this country privacy is impossible, quiet is impossible, comfort is impossible, cleanliness is impossible—even were the wife and mother free to care for her home, instead of being driven to the shop to eke out her husband's scanty and uncertain wages. While these conditions exist no one has any right to wonder at the actual extent of vice and crime, nor to blame the vicious and the criminal; the matter for infinite wonder is that there are any manly men and womanly women among the victims of such conditions.

We need hardly more than mention the fact—the increasingly important and threatening fact—of prostitution. When tens of thousands of young women are working for wages of from two to five dollars a week in shops and stores—and are required to dress themselves neatly out of such wages—when a large part, though not all, of them are wholly dependent upon their own earnings, when their work is so intense, so dreary, and so long-continued as to generate in the normal girl an irresistible desire for relaxation and amusement at whatever cost—under those conditions no one but a fool can wonder that many "fall"—as the unco guid call it.

Three more phases of the labor problem must be mentioned: The uncertainty of employment and the difficulty of getting employment after middle age, and the prevalence of child labor.

The Unemployed.

"The army of the unemployed" is now a common phrase—because it designates a permanent fact of our present-day society. We have always, even in this era of prosperity, a million or two of men willing to work, anxious to work, even humbly begging for work, and unable to get permission to work. These men, in order to live, must take one or the other of two courses: Either they must take to systematic begging or stealing; or they must underbid their more fortunate brothers, offering to work for longer hours or for smaller wages, so throwing other men out of employment and at the same time lowering the general standard of living. In either case they are a burden upon the rest of the working class; and in either case they help to render a healthy and happy home life for the rest of the working class more difficult—as for themselves it is impossible.

The grimly sarcastic resolution of the Chicago Federation of Labor, proposing that all men over forty years of age unable to prove their possession of an "independent income" should be shot by authority of the state, has called general attention to the fact that it is growing harder and harder for men past middle age to get work. In the iron and steel mills a man is actually superannuated at forty, on account of the extraordinary intensity of the twelve hour work day required by such "captains of industry" as Schwab and Carnegie. The principal railway companies and many manufacturing corporations have recently established rules forbidding the employment of men over forty-five or, in some cases, over thirty-five. At the same time, the United States Census shows that in the last ten years the average money wages have been slightly reduced, while Dun's Agency has shown that the cost of living has been materially increased; so that it is much more difficult than in the past for a workingman, by "industry and frugality" to provide for his old age.

If a workingman is to be blacklisted for old age at thirty-five or forty-five, he cannot with a good conscience take the responsibility of marriage at twenty-five; and if he does, the fear of the future will haunt him day and night, will embitter his life, and will force him to provide for his children in the only way possible to him—by taking them from the school at the most critical period of their lives, and putting them in the shop or factory to begin earning their own living.

Robbing the Children.

The evil of child labor need not be expatiated upon. In spite of laws, in spite of public sentiment which (the hypocritical pretenses of reformers to the contrary notwithstanding) is stronger in the working class than in any other, child labor continues and increases. The same force—the demand for cheap labor—which throws men out of work in the factory towns and drives the women from the home to the factory; that same irresistible force drags the children from the school, from the playground, from their mothers' knees, and makes them compete with their fathers in the industrial field.

Child-labor is the crowning curse of capitalism. When, in future days, men seek for an expression of the most damnable cruelty and the most contemptible meanness, they will look back to this age, when eminent citizens build up their fortunes by stealing away the sacred rights of childhood. To plunder the dead is shameful; but the graveyard ghoul is an honorable man beside the capitalist who plunders the infant generation of the opportunities that can never come to it again.

We have space only to suggest thought upon one more feature of the capitalist system in its relation to the home and the family.

The Money Marriage.

We read every week, almost every day, of some marriage in "high life" which, it is plainly understood, has been dictated, not by the personal affections of the man and the woman concerned, but by considerations of wealth and of rank. Our dollar aristocracy has quite fallen to the level of the royal houses of Europe in this respect. The "mariage de convenance" is an established institution among our Astors and Vanderbilts and Rockefellers and other industrial lords.

If this degrading custom, with all that it implies of marital unhappiness and of open or secret adultery, were confined to the dollar aristocracy, it might not so much matter. Unfortunately, it pervades all but what are called the lowest ranks of society. Considerations of property, of income, and of financial prospects enter into a vast and evidently increasing number of marriages. How often do we hear the saying, "She made a good match!" And what a hideous fact it denotes! So much the more hideous than the prostitution of the streets as cold-blooded and hypocritical vice is worse than frank and impetuous wrong-doing. (It will be worth while, in this connection to read Chapter XXV. of Edward Bellamy's "Looking Backward.")

Result of Profit System.

Such, then, are some of the ways in which the capitalist system injuriously affects the family. All this—and there is much more to say, did the limits of this article allow it—is the legitimate outcome of the capitalist system—the system of private ownership of the means of production, of production by wage labor, of competition among the capitalists for profits and among the laborers for the chance of employment. It is not the fault of the capitalist, as such, that the system of which he is a beneficiary is destroying the home life of the masses of the people; it is not his fault, because he, as an individual, is helpless against the system; if he should abdicate his position as capitalist, he would only hand over his power to other capitalists and add one more to the competing army of wage-workers. It is his fault, however, if he, having leisure for investigation, fails to inform himself as to the results of the system by which he profits. And it is his fault if he, having observed the facts, fails to use his power to overthrow that iniquitous system and substitute a better one. And in any case, it is the interest and the duty of the wage-workers themselves, for the sake of their helpless wives and sisters and children, if not for their own sakes, to use all the power at their command to supplant the social order which tends always to degrade them into mere profit-producing animals by one that will make them free men in a harmonious commonwealth.

The old-fashioned family life of which we hear so much depended upon certain economic conditions—namely: The ability of the husband and father, with a fair degree of certainty, to provide for the wife and mother and for the children up to their maturity, and that without so overtaxing his own energies as to make him unfit to be a pleasant companion to his family. Competition makes it ever harder and harder to fulfil these conditions, and this fact alone condemns the competitive system.

Because these evils are the direct outgrowth of the system of private ownership of the means of production, and because the Socialist movement aims at the overthrow of that system, and at the substitution of co-operative production for profit, we can justly claim for the Socialist movement the adherence of all who care for the sacredness of the home and the stability of the family, of all who honor women and love little children.

THE PRICE OF CLEANLINESS.

FROM "THE SOCIALIST SPIRIT."

It is beautiful to be clean.

Isn't it?

Isn't it, you sweet young girl?

Clean bodies in clean linen are almost a fleshly deity, aren't they?

After being down in the city's grime and soot, isn't a clean waist a luxury?

To come out of your bath and clothe yourself in clean linen; that makes even ones' enemies seem far away and unimportant, doesn't it?

But if the clean waists are not home from the laundry, and you have to slip your clean body into the soiled one again, how it changes things; your enemies seem near and exasperating then!—don't they, sweet young girl?

But now comes the laundry wagon, brightly painted and clean; the sprightly driver bounds up the steps and rings the bell; and in a moment Mary hangs the bundle on your chamber door, gives a light tap, and goes away.

You take in the bundle, and your enemies sink away again into obscurity. You forget about 'em.

You open the bundle with a yank at the string.

There are the clean waists—and the clean other things.

What have they cost, what is the price of all this cleanliness, sweet young girl?

Eighty-seven cents, the laundry list says. That's all it costs you.

Cheap enough; isn't it?

That's all it costs YOU.

But that isn't all it costs.

Oh dear, no, sweet young girl; it costs much more than that.

Go home with the bright wagon, after it completes its rounds; turn into the alley with it, and stop where it stops.

There is a square building of rough brick, fronting on the alley.

It has two little windows, close to the ground.

One of them is closed; you cannot see through it.

The other is open, so we may see what's going on inside.

Let us stoop and peep.

Ugh! what a foul, wet odor! It's worse than the alley smells.

The clothes are being washed. Out of them are being steamed the muck and soot and grime that are absorbed from the outside, and the humors of the body that are absorbed from the inside.

It is nasty breathing, this effluvium. You notice it from the outside. When it is breathed all the time, though, one gets accustomed to it.

There are girls down there in the steam; you can see them moving about. How they are hustling! One would think a demon was driving them.

They have been hard at it since seven o'clock.

In winter they quit at six; in the summer they work till ten or eleven, sometimes till midnight, without extra pay. Shirtwaists come in the summer.

And on their feet, too. They only sit down during their half-hour at noon.

Think of that; sweet young girl!

Ten hours on their feet—in the summer, fifteen—working their arms and backs in that foul atmosphere.

If you did that for one day, you'd want to rest for a week, wouldn't you?

But these girls must be there promptly at seven the next morning; and every morning.

Suppose there should be a day or so in a month when they are not well; days on which you may lie in bed, or take your ease about the house? Do you suppose personal indisposition is considered in their case?

No.

Back-breaking labor during the ten or fifteen hours, just the same, for them.

You never thought of that, did you dear? You don't think much of anything, do you? Your mother did not think much of anything before you—unless she were a working woman; and if you have daughters they won't think much of anything.

And yet the suffering of these girls is the price paid for your cleanliness!

Not the price YOU pay.

The price THEY pay.

Look at them, through the window! Wan, tired, desolate, God-forsaken looking slatterns.

Why should they care for their appearance if no one else cares? Drudge, drudge, drudge, from daylight till dark, and on into the night.

For what?

From $1.50 to $9 per week.

Two or three out of the eighteen or twenty girls get seven, eight, and nine dollars.

All the rest get less than six.

There is one with a gap in her mouth where two teeth ought to be. That's horrible! a toothless young woman. She ought to go to the dentist.

But where is she to get the time to go to the dentist; and where will she get the money to pay him?

You never thought of that, did you, dear? Mother has always looked so carefully after your teeth. You had no responsibility about it, except the bore of going to the dentist.

There is another; pale, morose, shuffling about.

"She's been here a year," the driver whispers.

"She's only seventeen. You'd think she's thirty, wouldn't you?

The driver says she came last spring; buxom, sprightly, gay—off a farm somewhere.

The end of the summer finished her. She was used to the sunshine.

"It's so blamed hot down there in the summer. They don't get no air. That lays the best of 'em out," says the driver. "I'm all right on the wagon, but I couldn't stand that. It 'ud kill me; but women seem to stand it, somehow."

Yes, they seem to stand it, somehow. They stand it about three years.

Then what becomes of them?

What are you going to be, sweet young girl?

A wife, you hope!—perhaps a mother, eh? Yes, you do! You need not blush. That's your training. It's no shame to be a mother. You used to love to play with dolls. That's the mother's instinct.

What are THESE girls going to be? These physical wrecks? These broken and wheezing hacks?

Does any man want such a girl for a wife?

No one wants her for a wife.

Does any one want her for a mother?

No one would say she was fit for motherhood.

They wouldn't have her even in a house of prostitution!

I am sorry to say this, dear. I know it shocks you. I only say it because it's true.

I want you to realize what it costs to keep you clean.

To make prostitutes of women is an unspeakable crime; but to make of women creatures not even fit to be prostitutes, what is that?

What do you say? The laundryman?

No; it isn't his fault. He does not live as you do. He works harder and consumes less than your father does.

He has to compete with other laundrymen.

See the point? That's where we touch something vital. That's where the SYSTEM has to be considered.

Not the LAUNDRY system. The SOCIAL system.

The main stay of the laundry business is the apprentice. The apprentice is taken on at $1.50 per week. A girl is an apprentice until she insists on more pay. She may have worked a year. If she is still vigorous and able she may get another dollar a week if not, she can go and apply to some other laundry for a job. It depends on the "labor market." If there is a lot of homeless, sixteen-year-old girls they keep the wage down to $1.50 per week by bidding against one another for the chance to work.

The laundryman must have prompt and reliable service.

If after working from seven in the morning until midnight in the summer a girl should oversleep and come late the next morning, she can go.

There are lots more who care enough for their work to be on time.

If one should faint at the machines from exhaustion, as they often do, she, too, can go.

Sickly women are a nuisance in any business.

But when they go—where do they go? It is because we ask the question only—and do not seek an answer to it that we can sleep at night.

Let us go round and peep into the ironing room. Both windows are open here. Hot, isn't it?

See those girls who are operating the ironing machines. To work those fore-levers they have to stand for the ten hours, practically on one foot.

The weight of the body all day is on that one leg.

It would kill anyone but a stork or a woman; a woman who has to do it or starve.

See the hot, tired look of that one. The sweat is running down her face and neck. Her rag of a waist is open at the throat, her bosom is half-uncovered. It's so hot she does not care. The less clothing the better. She would stifle in your collar.

She does not mean to be indelicate. She has not thought about it. Working women don't.

She is thinking only of getting your waist ironed.

Don't you know, dear, how your little slipper taps your chamber floor in impatience if the laundry is late? That miserable laundry!

Now you see the girls are doing the best they can.

They are living their lives to keep you clean.

They haven't any other thing to give.

No relaxation; no pleasure; their Sundays spent in limp collapse, dreading the morrow's coming.

But you have your clean linen!

And you have your clean conscience; so long as you do not know the infamy of which you are a part?

When you know this, sweet young girl, you will look out upon life with different eyes.

When you know this, you will see the blood of these girls who are unfit to be wives; who are unfit to be mothers; who are unfit even to be—you know what I said—you will see their blood on everything that comes from a laundry.

When you go into your bath-room, you will see their bath-room.

Did you ever see a bath-room in a cheap boarding house? (Think of the boarding house you must live at when you are getting but $1.50 to $6 a week and buy your own clothes!)

The bath-room in a cheap boarding house would make you shudder, my dear.

You would be afraid of leprosy—to go into it.

No one ever cleans it. The plaster is broken in the walls. The tub is discolored tin.

And there is no hot water.

Only a cold water faucet.

A worn, bloodless girl can't get into ice water.

You see it does cost something to be clean, after all.

Your nice tiled bath-room, with its immaculate porcelain tub, soft rug to step out upon, and all the hot water, and soap, and towels, do not come with the desire for them.

You never think of that when you see an unclean person, do you, dear?

You never think of the price of cleanliness.

Because it is easy for you to be clean, you have been assuming that it is just as easy for everyone to be clean.

You have heard your mother say, "Well, I sympathize with the poor; but there is no excuse for a man or woman not being clean." You see mothers can be ignorant, even when they are good to us, and tender.

Linen costs money, too.

If the laundry girl has any to change after buying food she feels lucky.

There are lots who don't.

Your mother does not tell you these things, even when she knows them.

She says you have only one girlhood; and that you will collide with the grave things of life soon enough.

She thinks that ignorance is innocence.

But we have been to the laundry to-day—you and I.

We know better now, don't we?

We know that ignorance which dulls us into content, and makes the world seem beautiful, while all the time we are blindly stamping out the lives of other human beings, cannot be innocence; it can only be infamy.

When we looked into that laundry window to-day, we realized that the price we are paying for cleanliness of body is stultification of soul.

To keep clean at the cost of others' toil is to bathe the soul in slime.

Some day, dear, you will look into your mother's eyes and she will quail before you; for she will see that in her foolish hope to save you pain she has helped to stain your soul.

She will see that a pure girlhood is not possible for you, until it is possible for every mothers' child. Ignorance does not save.

Did I not see the tears in your eyes as we turned from the window of that dump basement?

Your sweet face paled. It was like a lily.

It was as if the lily should realize for an instant that the sources of its beautiful life are down deep in the subaqueous soil of the pond; down in the ooze and slime—and feel sorry.

You were the lily blossom.

Those girls were the ooze and slime.

It is not with human life as it is with the lily.

Human life might all be blossom.

But first we must want it to be all blossom.

Desire precedes functioning, the scientists tell us.

I want to see the light of high desire in your eyes, dear. It makes a woman so beautiful.

Did you ever see the pictured eyes of Joan of Arc?

That is the light I mean.

It makes an angel of a woman.

Little, gracious pettinesses; little conventional accomplishments; plaything pretinesses; all seem very insignificant in the light of that high glance.

And cleanliness of body alone does not bring that, dear.

Cleanliness of soul brings that. The price of that cleanliness is truth.

Yes; I see you understand.

You see that life is one.

You must help to free those girls in the laundry.

You must strive to get off their weary backs, and to teach and compel other people to get off their backs, and the backs of all who toil.

You must find how to do our share now, must we not?

You cannot find comfort in the old way now.

You are sad, and yet you are happy.

That is the power of truth. It expands the soul.

And that light is coming in your face; you are rising to consciousness—race consciousness—life-consciousness; the birth of purpose.

Your mother would smile if I were to tell her that I love you more than she does, would she not?

Yet I believe I do.

She would say that if I loved you I would take you to pleasant places.

And I took you to a laundry!

But your mother does not understand, dear.

THE WEST NO PARADISE.

The Western Labor Union has issued an address to working people of the East and Middle West, warning them not to believe the statements published by railroads in regard to good times in the Rocky Mountain states. "Inasmuch," says the President of the W. L. U., "as these advertisements are false and misleading in character, and nothing less than criminal in their effect, the Western Labor Union considers it a duty to state briefly the real industrial conditions in the West and Northwest.

"If the plain truth were known, there would be no incentive for settlers, homeseekers, or working people to come West to improve their conditions. There is not a desirable tract of untaken land in the Northwest that will not require hundreds, and in most cases thousands, of dollars to make it productive. The statement that the Northwest is a boundless tract of rich, productive and fruitful land open for settlement and only awaiting the magic touch of the poverty-stricken farmer from the East to make it yield forth in abundance all the best products of the farm, is just as false as it is well-sounding. If the railroad officials who make these staements and advertise them were given their just deserts, they would be considered as criminals and treated as such.

"Do not believe these flattering statements about the West. They are deliberate lies, malicious and criminal in effect, and spread by the transportation companies simply for the purpose of increasing the earnings of their roads. To add a few greasy dollars to their already large dividends these railroad companies are willing to take your last money for tickets, and then leave you (perhaps with families) homeless and without resources, in a country already overrun with idle laborers."

We have every reason to believe that the statement of the W. L. U. is only too true. Horace Greeley's advice, "Go West, young man, and grow up with the country," is out of date. The word to-day is: Stay where you are, young man or old man, and help make the country what it should be by voting the Socialist ticket.

——The hours of labor, the employment of women and children, the scantiness of wages, the uncertainness of employment, the fierce competition fostered by modern political economy, have rendered it impossible for men to live a human life.—Cardinal Manning's Letter to the Deutsche Revue.

National Platform of the Socialist Party.

The Socialist Party of America in national convention assembled, reaffirms its adherence to the principles of international Socialism, and declares its aim to be the organization of the working class, and those in sympathy with it, into a political party, with the object of conquering the powers of government and using them for the purpose of transforming the present system of private ownership of the means of production and distribution into collective ownership by the entire people.

Formerly the tools of production were simple and owned by the individual worker. To-day the machine, which is but an improved and more developed tool of production, is owned by the capitalists and not by the workers. This ownership enables the capitalists to control the product and keep the workers dependent upon them.

Private ownership of the means of production and distribution is responsible for the ever increasing uncertainty of livelihood and the poverty and misery of the working class, and it divides society into two hostile classes—the capitalists and wage-workers. The once powerful middle class is rapidly disappearing in the mill of competition. The struggle is now between the capitalist class and the working class. The possession of the means of livelihood gives to the capitalists the control of the government, the press, the pulpit, and the schools, and enables them to reduce the workingmen to a state of intellectual, physical and social inferiority, political subservience and virtual slavery.

The economic interests of the capitalist class dominate our entire social system; the lives of the working class are recklessly sacrificed for profit, wars are fomented between nations, indiscriminate slaughter is encouraged and the destruction of whole races is sanctioned in order that the capitalists may extend their commercial dominion abroad and enhance their supremacy at home.

But the same economic causes which developed capitalism are leading to Socialism, which will abolish both the capitalist class and the class of wage workers. And the active force in bringing about this new and higher order of society is the working class. All other classes, despite their apparent or actual conflicts, are alike interested in the upholding of the system of private ownership of the instruments of wealth production. The Democratic, Republican, the bourgeois public ownership parties, and all other parties which do not stand for the complete overthrow of the capitalist system of production, are alike political representatives of the capitalist class.

The workers can most effectively act as a class in their struggle against the collective powers of capitalism, by constituting themselves into a political party, distinct from and opposed to all parties formed by the propertied classes.

While we declare that the development of economic conditions tends to the overthrow of the capitalist system, we recognize that the time and manner of the transition to Socialism also depend upon the stage of development reached by the proletariat. We, therefore, consider it of the utmost importance for the Socialist Party to support all active efforts of the working class to better its condition and to elect Socialists to political offices, in order to facilitate the attainment of this end.

As such means we advocate:

1. The public ownership of all means of transportation and communication and all other public utilities, as well as of all industries controlled by monopolies, trusts, and combines. No part of the revenue of such industries to be applied to the reduction of taxes on property of the capitalist class, but to be applied wholly to the increase of wages and shortening of the hours of labor of the employees, to the improvement of the service and diminishing the rates to the consumers.

2. The progressive reduction of the hours of labor and the increase of wages in order to decrease the share of the capitalist and increase the share of the worker in the product of labor.

3. State or national insurance of working people in case of accidents, lack of employment, sickness and want in old age; the funds for this purpose to be collected from the revenue of the capitalist class, and to be administered under the control of the working class.

4. The inauguration of a system of public industries, public credit to be used for that purpose in order that the workers be secured the full product of their labor.

5. The education of all children up to the age of eighteen years, and state and municipal aid for books, clothing, and food.

6. Equal civil and political rights for men and women.

7. The initiative and referendum, proportional representation and the right of recall of representatives by their constituents.

But in advocating these measures as steps in the overthrow of capitalism and the establishment of the Co-operative Commonwealth, we warn the working class against the so-called public ownership movements as an attempt of the capitalist class to secure governmental control of public utilities for the purpose of obtaining greater security in the exploitation of other industries and not for the amelioration of the conditions of the working class.

"Railroading in the United States."

BY BEN HANFORD.

PRICE, FIVE CENTS.

40 Copies $1.00
1000 " 25.00

Sent on receipt of price.

SOCIALIST LITERATURE COMPANY,
184 William Street, New York.

..AN OFFER..

"Railroading in the United States," by Ben Hanford ..... 5 cents.
"The Clerical Capitalist," by Rev. Father McGrady ..... 10 cents.
"Why Workingmen Should Be Socialists," by H. Gaylord Wilshire 2 cents.
"Labor Politics and Socialist Politics," by Algernon Lee ..... 3 cents.
"The Proletariat," by Karl Kautsky ..... 5 cents.
"The Class War in Idaho," by Job Harriman. Third Edition. .. 5 cents.
"The Communist Manifesto," by Karl Marx and Frederick Engels. 10 cents.
"The Development of Socialism, from Utopia to Science," by F. Engels ..... 5 cents.
A Debate on the Tactics of the S. T. & L. A. Toward Trade Unions between Daniel DeLeon and Job Harriman ..... 5 cents.
"The Attitude of the Socialists Toward the Trade Unions," by N. I. Stone ..... 5 cents.
"The Capitalist Class," by Karl Kautsky ..... 5 cents.
"Now and Then," a Socialist play by Frederick Krafft ..... 10 cents.

On receipt of only 40 cents above 12 books will be mailed postpaid.

SOCIALIST LITERATURE COMPANY,
184 WILLIAM STREET, NEW YORK.

Largest assortment of Literature on the Labor Question.
Catalogue Free.

I. X. L. LAUNDRY. GUSTAV LEIST, 241 East 42d St.

WILSHIRE'S MAGAZINE
—SUCCESSOR TO—
'CHALLENGE," SUPPRESSED BY POSTOFFICE.
H. GAYLORD WILSHIRE, Editor.
TORONTO, CANADA.

Five Postals for $1.25; each good for a six months' subscription. Pay me when you sell 'em.

For Sale on all New York News-stands.

H. B. SALISBURY,
COUNSELLOR-AT-LAW
309 Broadway, Room 903. 50 Union Square.

Simon Sultan,
Counsellor at Law.
87 NASSAU, corner FULTON STREET,
(FULTON BUILDING.)
Residence 110 West 120th st., New York.

THOMAS J. MORGAN,
LAWYER. PATENTS.
79 Dearborn St. - CHICAGO, ILL.

Dr C. L. FURMAN,
DENTIST,
121 Schermerhorn street, Brooklyn.

PATRONIZE ....
FRITZ'S COFFEE AND LUNCH ROOM.
373 Bowery, bet. 4th & 5th St. N. Y.
OPEN DAY AND NIGHT.

MORRIS HILLQUIT,
Attorney-at-Law,
320 Broadway. Telephone 2576 Franklin

L'UNION DES TRAVAILLEURS,
730 Washington Ave., Charleroi, Pa.
A weekly advocate of Trade Unionism and Socialism. Should be read by every French speaking worker.
Send for sample copies.
Subscription, $1.00 per year.

SUBSCRIBE FOR
THE REFERENDUM,
the only English Socialist paper in Minnesota. Published at Faribault, Rice County. Fearless, bright, spicy; 75 cents a year, in advance; 35 cents for 6 months. By E. B. FORD.

F. W. HEISS, 69 GOLD ST. New York City.
Use this Label. Union Printer
Lowest Prices. — Mail Orders Promptly Attended To.

L. D. MAYES, LAWYER.
245 Broadway, New York City, Borough of Manhattan. Practice in all Courts. Consultation free

CHILD LABOR IN SOUTH CAROLINA.

A Columbia, S. C., dispatch says: "Within plain view from the South Carolina capitol-building and not more than a mile away are five large cotton mills, employing altogether 2,000 men, women and children. Of that number 1,000 are children between six and fourteen years of age. Fully 400 of them are less than twelve years old." Socialism would put these children in the school and on the playground.

WHAT DO YOU THINK OF THE BEEF TRUST?

What do you think of the Beef Trust? That is what everybody is asking to-day, and the general answer is only a futile denunciation.

It is foolish to curse the Beef Trust Magnates. They are not extraordinary scoundrels. They are only unusually good "business men." If they are robbers, then "business" itself is robbery. And so, indeed, it is. But if we, who have the political power in our hands, allow "business methods" to prevail, then we ought not to complain when we are the victims.

This consideration does not make it any easier for us to bear the sufferings inflicted on us by the Beef Trust. For the great majority of the working-class families of the land, with an income of less than $9 a week, a difference of a very few cents in the price of meat means the difference between bare comfort and positive privation.

The consideration that we, who have the ballot in our hands, have so used or abused it as to give this Trust such power over us does not, indeed, make it any easier to bear the privation; but it does point a way to escape from such privation in the future.

What is the Beef Trust? It is a combination of half-a-dozen great capitalists owning the stockyards and packing houses, in close alliance with the railroad and steamship companies, with a capital aggregating certainly one hundred millions and probably much more, which has been slowly growing in power for the last fifteen years, and now holds by the throat both the cattle-raisers and the meat-sellers and, through them, the whole people.

If you want to understand how it is done—not in the meat business alone, but in all lines—you may read the whole story in Henry D. Lloyd's "Wealth against Commonwealth."

The Meat Trust, like all other trusts, is closely connected with the great transportation companies. In fact, at the present day, you cannot consider any trust separately. If you fight one you must fight all—nay, you must fight the whole system. The same men own stock in dozens or scores of different companies, the same men sit in the Boards of Directors and manage all in harmony, for the sake of profit.

How does the Meat Trust hold up the cattle raisers?

The Trust is the principal purchaser. It says to the cattle dealer, You must not sell to anyone else, or we will not buy of you at all. If he still persists, it brings its railroad connections into play and says to him, If you will not bind yourself to sell exclusively to us, you shall not have a chance to ship your cattle to market.

By such means it drives every refractory cattle raiser into bankruptcy and becomes virtually the sole purchaser of cattle.

On the other hand, it says to the meat dealer, You must not buy of anyone else, or we will not sell to you at all. If he persists, it sets up a retail agency in his neighborhood and undersells him—even sells at a loss for a little while, if need be—and drives him into bankruptcy.

Thus it becomes practically the sole seller of meat. The dealers who remain are no better than agents for the Trust.

The wage-slaves in the stockyards and packing-houses drag out a miserable life of overwork, poverty, danger, disease, and abuse. You may read of that if you like in A. M. Simons' little book, "Packing Town." We have not space for the details that he describes from personal observation.

The wages of these overworked men and women and children are not raised when beef prices go up. Every additional cent that you pay goes to the coffers of that little group that now—in spite of all anti-trust laws—monopolizes the trade.

And it will not stop here. It is not only a Beef Trust; it is a Meat Trust; and if the most reliable capitalist papers are to be believed, it will soon be the Food Trust, absolutely controlling the distribution of meat, poultry, eggs, butter, vegetables, and fruit. (See New York "Times," April 18.)

What will you do about it? Some eminent "friends of labor" (who can afford good food at any price) advise you to fight the Meat Trust by ceasing to eat meat—and some thoughtless "labor leaders" echo their advice. How wise! To avoid being starved by the Trust you are advised to starve yourselves!

The Republican Administration is making pretense of fighting the Meat Trust in the courts. It made the same sort of a "bluff" about the Railway Trust—the Northern Securities Company—a few weeks ago. You remember what a fiasco that was.

Thirteen states have "anti-trust laws" on their statute books. The trusts all operate in those states just the same. There have been anti-trust laws on the statute books of the United States for a dozen years. The trusts have grown and thrived under them.

We have an ex-attorney of the Steel Trust for Attorney-General of the United States. We have other trained corporation lawyers—Republicans and Democrats—on the bench in our state and federal courts.

Do you think there is any chance that these laws will be enforced? Do you think they were ever meant to be enforced? Do you think they can be enforced?

Even honest States Attorneys—there have been a few elected by the old parties, by mistake—have never succeded in enforcing the anti-trust laws. Do you think that Knox will succeed, or that he wants to?

The Democratic party is also making a pretense of fighting the Meat Trust. Its representatives in Congress are loudly demanding—what? The reduction of tariffs on imported meats.

The United States is not a meat-importing country. During the last fiscal year the imports of live animals and meat and dairy products combined amounted to only $7,000,000. The exports of meat products alone were $187,000,000—more than twenty-six times greater than the imports.

Do you think that the tariff has anything to do with the question in the face of such figures as that?

These propositions of the politicians are mere mockeries. The Trust Magnates laugh at them. They feel safe—so long as they can keep the votes of the working class divided on such false issues as these.

Are you, then, helpless? Shall the Trust continue to dictate to you what you shall eat and have the power at their will to reduce you to starvation?

In the days before the French Revolution a Wheat Corner was formed—they called it the "Pacte de Famine," the "Starvation League." The King was in it—just as our kings, Morgan and Rockefeller, stand back of our Food Trust. One of its members, Foulon by name, being asked how the people were to live, replied: "Let the people eat grass."

Not long afterward old Foulon's head, the mouth stuffed with grass, was carried on a pike through the streets of Paris.

That was the only way the people of France a century ago could deal with such a problem—by deeds of blood, striking terror into the hearts of their oppressors. We have the ballot in our hands. We need not think of vengeance, for we have the power to redress our wrongs.

But how? How can we put an end to this mastery of a few over all?

What is it that gives these men their power? It is their private ownership of the means of production and distribution—the stockyards, the packing-houses and their machinery, the store-houses, the railroads and steamships.

These things were not made by Morgan and Rockefeller, nor by Armour, Cudahy, Hammond, and Swift. They were made by the working class.

They are not operated by the Trust Magnates. These men do not herd cattle nor slaughter them nor pack meats nor run railroads nor navigate steamships. They allow the working class to do these things—provided they can get a satisfactory profit out of it. Otherwise—"The public be damned."

These means of production which the working class makes and operates are necessary to our existence.

"You take my life when you do take the means by which I live," says Shakspere. If the lives of the people are not to be held at the mercy of the capitalist class, then the people must own the means by which they live.

This is the Socialist answer to the question, What will you do about the Food Trust? We will use our ballots to establish collective ownership of the means of production, to be democratically administered for the good of all.

It is not the Food Trust only we have to fight, it is the whole Capitalist Class, the whole Capitalist System. In striking at the private ownership of the means of production we strike a blow at all trusts, at all robbery, at all parasitism, at all class rule.

The Morgans and Rockefellers and Armours and their hired preachers and professors say that is wicked. They say it is "Robbery." They say it is "Confiscation."

Those are terrible words, are they not?

But what do you call it when the Meat Trust arbitrarily raises the price of your food and puts millions of dollars in its coffers at a stroke? Is that Robbery?

What do you call it when, as our Republican Census Bureau has shown, the organized capitalists steadily reduce wages while they steadily raise prices, when they put in their own pockets more than half of the value their employees produce? Is that Confiscation?

When the working class takes back the means of production which the working class has created and operated, it will not be Confiscation. It will be Restitution.

Fellow workingmen, do not content yourself with passing resolutions denouncing the Food Trust. That will not help you at all.

Do not content yourselves with sending petitions to the capitalists and corporation lawyers whom you have elected to office on old-party tickets. They will not do anything for you.

Make up your minds to vote against capitalists and corporation lawyers in the future, to vote for men of your own class, to vote for the Socialist Party—and to use all your influence to get others to do the same—to bring Socialism in our time.

That is the only agitation that the Food Trust or any other trust will fear.

AGAINST CHILD LABOR.

Carey's Bill Defeated in Massachusetts Legislature—Old-Party "Friends of Labor" Help Kill It.

Too late for insertion in this issue of The Worker we receive Comrade Mailly's report of the fight made by the two Socialists in the Massachusetts Legislature for Comrade Carey's bill to restrict the employment in factories of children under sixteen years of age. The report will appear next next week.

The remarkable thing about this debate is not Carey's able support of his bill, but the fact that, while there are a number of "friends of labor" among the Republican and Democratic members, several of them trade unionists, only one of them, McNary of Boston, spoke in favor of the bill and several put themselves clearly on record against it.

The bill was defeated, of course, but the Socialist vote in Massachusetts is growing, and some day it will pass.

McGRADY IN NEW ENGLAND.

Rev. T. McGrady will speak for the Socialist Party at Springfield, Mass., on May 19; at Nashua, N. H., on May 20; Dover, N. H., May 21; and Brockton, Mass., May 22. These meetings have been arranged by Comrade Goldstein, under whose direction Father McGrady has already addressed eight meetings.

FLEISCHMANN'S VEGETABLE COMPRESSED YEAST HAS NO EQUAL

SPRING IN WESTCHESTER.

State Organizer Spring addressed an open-air meting at New Rochelle last Tuesday, which adjourned to Music Hall, where he continued his address. One new member was taken in. Comrade Spring's visit has inspired the Local to new endeavors and from now on New Rochelle will have a monthly open-air meeting. The Local donated $2 towards Comrade Spring's expenses.

The next day he visited Peekskill, speaking in the evening at Labor Hall in South street. He gave an interesting and instructive address, which was listened to by the large audience with marked attention for about two hours. Towards the finish of the address he made an earnest appeal to the people to join the Socialist Party, which resulted in four applications for membership and the sale of some literature. Everyone in the audience was given a copy of The Worker and the leaflet, "To the Catholic Workingmen of New York." The Local will take twenty-five copies of The Worker every week until further notice, and will see that they are given out systematically so as to get new subscribers. The Local voted $5 to defray Comrade Spring's expenses. The delegates of Local Peekskill to the Westchester County Committee are instructed to bring before the Committee a motion to engage Organizer Spring for one or two weeks this summer to thoroughly organize the county. Local Organizer A. F. Simpounds informs us that the public and the comrades are pleased with Spring's style and think that he will accomplish a great deal in this state, and that the results of his work will show at the next election.

ON THE MARCH.

Close up! for the lines are thinning, a man drops now and then
Out of the ranks and into the grave as a stone from a sling is hurled,
For the battles of peace are raging, and women as well as men
Are fighting a common enemy all over the waiting world.

The circle is narrowing slowly; the struggle will come at last,
For the hunt goes on, and the quest is sharp, by either night or day,
And never a beast by God create has equaled or surpassed
The Nero-like ferocity of a nation brought to bay.

Close up; did a comrade falter, and fall with a fatal wound?
Another shall step and take his place as the waves press on at sea,
And better be dead, and the spoil of worms, slow rotting under ground,
Than flaunt in a slavish servitude the banner of the free.

The cloud of the future thickens, the shades of the past arise,
And a lurid light, like a far-flung torch, carves light in the darkened space,
And the towering tops of a thousand spires dash down before mine eyes
Where starving hosts of the people meet with Mammon face to face.

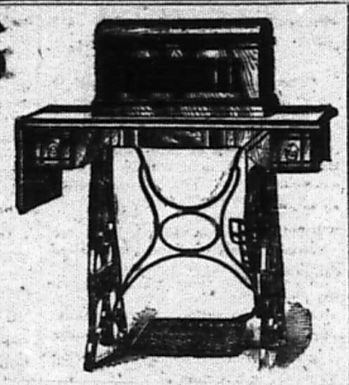
Close up; with song and laughter; for the oil and corn and wine
Shall all be ours in after days, and faces fair to see;
By the strength of many, and might of right, as precedents divine,
Will we gather the harvest and shear the flocks in seasons yet to be.

And forever our banner is justice, and justice our Avatar;
And never a man so humble born but our brother he is known,
And red on the scroll of ages hence will we scrawl the sign of war
Where the cycles reap in armed men the discord they have sown.

Close up for the final conflict, bare arm and swing the sword;
For the glint of steel, like a lightning flash, shall cleanse the poisonous air,
With the right of a man to live as a man, once more to us restored
The sheen of the earth and the fruits thereof for those who do and dare.

—Ernest McGaffey.

SEWING MACHINES



THE ONLY HOUSE

Where you can get all kinds of Sewing Machines and Needles, Attachments and all Articles belonging to every sort of Sewing Machine. We rent, repair, exchange and sell on instalments Machines of every known make. We have the most complete Repairing Department in the city and are always well supplied with duplicate parts, as well as with a full stock of Needles, Shuttles, Bobbins, Bands and Attachments for the following Machines:

Advance	Grover & Baker (St.)	New Home	Queen	Victor
Boston	Grover & Baker (Curv.)	New Howe	Queen City	Victoria
Dauntless	Hartford	Old Howe	Royal St. John	Wanzer, C (Canadian)
Demorest	Household	Howe, D	Seamstress	Wheeler & Wilson Curv.
Domestic	Helpmate	New Williams	Kruse Shuttle	White, N. S.
Eldridge, N. S.	Jennie June	New Ideal	Willcox & Gibbs	White, O. S.
Elridge, flat shank	Progress	New National	Secor	Weed, F.
Elliptic	St. John	New Remington	Singer, I. F. I. M.	Wilson
Excelsior	Polytype	Old Remington	Singer, Medium	Aetna
Favorite	New American	New Stewart	Singer, New Family	Kruse Automatic
Florence	New Davis	New York	Standard, N. S.	Kruse Hand Machine

Needles for the above Machines are sold at 30c. a dozen.

Mail orders from all parts of the country will be promptly attended to. Mention the various numbers of thread to be used. Enclose payment in stamps or by post-office or express money order.

We advise our patrons to buy the best known makes of Sewing Machines, such as

New Home, White, Wheeler & Wilson, Household, Standard, Singer, Domestic and The Kruse.

Hand Machines a Specialty

FROM $6.00 UP.

KRUSE SEWING MACHINE Co.

NO. 218 SIXTH AVENUE.

BETWEEN 14th AND 15th STREETS, NEW YORK CITY.

Open till 9 P. M. Mail Orders receive prompt attention. Call or write for our catalogue.

THE MAN OVER FORTY-FIVE.

The discussion, started in Chicago, as to whether the workingman above forty-five years of age ought not to be shot is causing a great deal of rambling discussion. It will not suffice to show that men have succeeded in business, or written books, or made valuable inventions after reaching forty-five; that is not at all pertinent to the question, for it deals only with the workingman, with the employee. It will not suffice to even show that in times past workingmen have prospered after reaching forty-five; for this is a question of new developments and of the present. We are merely brought to face the FACT that many large employers of the country are discarding their help after they reach forty-five years of age. It is merely another phase in the development of capitalism, another kink in competition, and it is wholly a hard fact, without a particle of theory about it. It merely means that another large body of people are to be submerged by our damnable social usage. The man of forty-five has in his short life-time seen the same thing happen to at least six million people in America. Capitalism could not support three million of its employees, and so turned them out to starve and they became tramps. It could not use another three millions, turned them out and they went to the slums. And still competition is forced to study how to do without labor and how to get labor cheaper. So it is that the man of forty-five has seen manhood cast out that womanhood might take his place, and womanhood, first ground to whose she can't make a living, thrown aside that babyhood may take her place. And now the man of forty-five who has lived only by the sufferance of others is to be turned adrift, to live if he can and die if he must. In the name of God, what next? When will the people get their eyes open and see that chattel slavery, which never produced a pauper, because it was to the master's interest to see that the slave was well cared for, was a heavenly condition compared to this? In all America there is not a horse or cow turned out without shelter to a chance to get anything to eat, but in America 5½ million men, women and children are.—Push.

IN PHILADELPHIA.

Local Philadelphia holds a public meeting every Thursday evening at 1022 Arch street, to which all are welcome. The program of lectures for May is as follows:

May 1—Charles H. Vail on "The Era of Prosperity."

May 8—Oliver Troth of Camden on "Industrial Democracy."

May 15—Morris Hillquit of New York on "The History of Socialism in the United States."

May 22—M. Petrode Cimbar, formerly a member of the Italian Parliament, on "A Page from the History of Italy."

May 29—Wm. W. Atkinson on "The Hope of the Ages."

BIGELOW IN BALTIMORE.

Geo. E. Bigelow's address in Baltimore gave the highest satisfaction to the comrades there. The hall was too small for the crowd that came and all showed deep interest. Comrade Bigelow is assured of a hearty welcome and a still larger audience the next time he comes.

The Baltimore Socialists are beginning work already for the fall campaign. All readers of The Worker in the city are requested to attend the meetings of the Local, held every Monday evening, in Room 4, Labor Lyceum, 1011 E. Baltimore street, where interesting discussions are held. Plenty of work is to be done. Baltimore and the state of Maryland are a good field and a great gain can be made if all do their best.

SPARGO TO SPEAK.

John Spargo will lecture at Colonial Hall, Sunday, May 4, at 8 p. m., on "The Meaning and Message of May Day."

If you think this paper is doing a good work, send in 50 cents for a yearly subscription.

MOE LEVY & CO.

Manufacturers of Mens', Boys' and Children's Clothing,

119—121—123—125 Walker Street,

3 short blocks east of Broadway, near Centre St.

Remember we are out of the high-priced district.

We positively save you the middleman's profit.

To the one who does not understand the value of tailoring, all clothing looks alike when new.

The term Ready to Wear applied to clothing here does not imply that it is Ready Made Clothing, but Custom Made, all ready to wear, far above the finished garments found elsewhere.

SPRING OVERCOATS, the box, medium and the long, all here in the plain and neat effects, $10 to $16, that others must demand $16 to $22 for.

Every new idea in top coats, Prince Alberts, Full Dress and Tuxedo Suits, white and fancy vests.

MEN'S FINE SUITS, $9.00 to $16.00 will procure from us a suit that will meet with your every desire; the short or long military, Single or Double Breasted Sacks, Cutaway Frocks; materials and patterns too numerous to mention; others demand $15.00 to $22.00.

CHILDREN'S DEPARTMENT.

How pleasant it is to have your children properly dressed. Our line of Boys' Sailor Blouse Suits, sizes 3 to 10 yrs., made of Royal Navy and Cadet Blue, Brown and Red Serges; natty designs and beautifully trimmed; special price, $5.00; regular $7.00 value.

Boys' 2-Piece Suits, sizes 4 to 16, made of fine Worsted and All Wool Cheviots and Cassimeres; neat effects and handsomely tailored; special, $3.00 to $5.50; value $5.00 to $7.50.

CUSTOM DEPARTMENT.

We carry only the very finest imported fabrics and demand attention from those who desire style and quality at one-half the usual cost.

Our Men's Furnishing and Hat Department is conducted on a discount basis, where you will find high grade Haberdashery and Hats at wholesale cost.

OUR ONLY STORE.

WHAT THE "COMRADE" SAYS OF IT

"Railroading in the United States," by Benjamin Hanford, the latest publication of the Socialistic Co-operative Publishing Association, is at once one of the most interesting and useful pamphlets published for some time. Addressed primarily to railway workers—"To the Not Yet Dead," as the author whimsically puts it—the pamphlet ought to have a large circulation among these, though, of course, it contains much that is of value to workers of other grades.

The author's style is bright and crisp and he has the happy knack of compressing an unusual amount of information in a few sentences. Indeed there is a perfect arsenal of carefully attested and well chosen facts and figures in the twenty-four pages of this pamphlet, bearing evidence to much careful study and investigation of an important subject. A copy of "Railroading in the United States" in the hands of every railway worker would surely mean an enormous increase in the Socialist vote at the next election. —The Comrade.

Order from the Socialist Literature Company, 184 William street, New York. Price, single copy, 5 cents; 10 or more, 2½ cents a copy.

WILFUL IGNORANCE.

"We hope to see the time when the critics of the labor movement will learn more about it. Especially is this true of the newspaper and magazine critics who seem to be writing to fill space without much regard to whether they are dealing in facts or not." So says the "Colorado Chronicle." The ignorance of the daily press about the labor movement is generally wilful and deliberate. That is why we need a Socialist Daily. Help it along.

ABBOTT BROS.' Lunch Room, 110 Bleecker st. near Greene St. NEW YORK.

Brotherhood of Painters, D & P. of America, Local Union No. 499. Regular meetings every Monday evening, 8 o'clock, at 316 E. Sixty-third street. Labor Bureau at the same place. Telephone call, 1790—79th street.

To Make Port Wine.

Genuine Port Wine cannot be made without the Port Wine Grape of Portugal. It has taken the Speer New Jersey Wine Co. a score of years cultivating and nursing to acclimate these vines in Passaic, N. J., before California wines were known. The California soil is not adapted to them for want of iron. Over forty years ago along the hills of the Passaic Valley, N. J., where the soil abounds in iron, "about the same as along the Douro Valley of Portugal," Alfred Speer planted the first vineyards with vines imported from the Douro Valley. It required twelve years of patient, persistent work and great expense before Alfred Speer, now an old man, succeeded in accomplishing his object in producing a genuine rich Port Wine that the medical profession could rely upon. It is the iron that gives the deep rich color and body that makes this wine so valuable for females, the aged and weakly persons.

NEW AND CHEAPER EDITIONS.

"The History of Trade Unionism." By Sidney and Beatrice Webb. With Map, Appendix of Tables, Bibliography, etc., and Index. New and cheaper edition. 8vo, $2.00 net. By mail, $2.76.

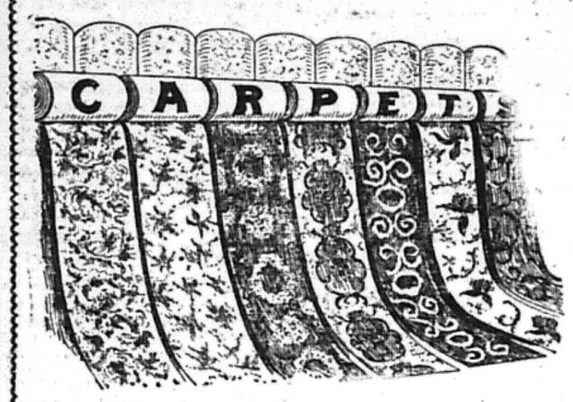
"INDUSTRIAL DEMOCRACY." By Sidney and Beatrice Webb. New and cheaper edition. Two volumes in one, with introduction (36 pp.) to the new edition, dealing with recent developments. 8vo, pp. vi-920, $4.00 net. By mail, $4.25.

LONGMANS, GREEN & CO., Publishers. 91 and 93 Fifth Avenue, New York.

JAS. R. KEANE & CO.

. . . MODERN . . .

HOME FURNISHERS.



Our Carpet Stock consists of all the very latest Patterns and Designs, in various colors.

BRUSSELS, 37c.
VELVETS, 65c.
AXMINSTERS, 90c.
OILCLOTH, 19c.

Go-Carts and Carriages

We have all sorts of Go-Carts and Carriages and we sell them less than anywhere we know of.

This handsome Refrigerator of Hard Wood, lined throughout with mineral wool, would be a bargain at $6.25; special price $4.25.

We also have a very large assortment of Parlor Suits, Pictures, Clocks, Stoves, Etc.

A FULL LINE OF

EDISON PHONOGRAPHS AND NEW MOULDED RECORDS.

A VERY FINE LINE OF GOOD PIANOS Upwards from $10.00.

Weekly and Monthly Payments.

JAS. R. KEANE & CO.

1351-1353-1355 THIRD AVE. AND 201 E. 77th ST.

East Side Third Ave. bet. 77th and 78th Sts.

ARE YOU SATISFIED WITH YOUR . . . HAT?

IF THE SAME IS AS GOOD AS

McCANN'S

IT COSTS MORE.

McCANN'S HATS,

210 BOWERY (Near Spring Street.)

SPRING STYLES NOW READY.

LOUIS D. BEHREN,

Manufacturer of UNION-MADE

HAVANA CIGARS

189 WILLIAM STREET,

Opposite the office of The Worker, NEW YORK.

MAIL ORDERS PROMPTLY ATTENDED TO.

TO SUBSCRIBERS.
The date on which your subscription expires will be found on the wrapper.
The paper will be stopped on that day unless previously renewed.
No bills or receipts sent to individual subscribers.

The Worker.

AGENTS, ATTENTION!
Agents sending in subscriptions without remittance must state distinctly how long they are to run.
Agents are personally charged and held responsible for unpaid subscriptions sent in by them.
Only duly elected and approved agents acknowledged.

VOL. XII.—NO. 6. NEW YORK, MAY 11, 1902. PRICE 2 CENTS.

TWO COURSES.

Submit to Food Trust or Socialize It.

Authoritatively Announced That if Government Proceedings Are Successfully Carried Out, Result Will Be Formation of a Stronger Combine — Only Two Alternatives.

While the Administration is making a great "bluff" of investigating the Meat Trust, it is announced on good authority that the only result of any effective action against the present loosely organized combine would be to bring about the formation of a much more powerful body in its place.

The New York "Times," probably the best informed newspaper in the United States, so far, at least, as financial matters are concerned, publishes a Chicago "special" as follows:

Billion Dollar Food Trust.

publicans, are thinking of joining

"A billion dollar packing trust is among the possibilites if the United States Government should succeed in maintaining, as contemplated, injunction proceedings. The prediction was made in La Salle street financial circles to-day that the large packers who may be made defendants in the Federal Court will be forced formally to combine if the prosecution against them under the Sherman anti-trust law should be successful.

"The combination would be formed along the lines followed by the United States Steel Corporation, and would be made to comprise practically all the beef packing companies in the country. In the formation of such a combination all the powers now denied the packers, with one exception, could be legally exercised. The single exception, [illegible] opinion of the corporation lawyers, would be the adoption of an arbitrary and unreasonable schedule of [illegible] [illegible] which probably would be [illegible] such a combination would [illegible] & Co., with an annual business [illegible] 50,000,000; Swift & Co., with [illegible]00; Nelson, Morris & Co., with [illegible]0; the G. H. Hammond Packing Company, with $75,000,000; the [illegible]zschild & Sulzberger Company, [illegible]50,000,000, and Thomas J. Lipton Co., with $25,000,000."

Two Courses Open.

The Socialist can see two alternatives before the American working people: First, to submit to have a Billion Dollar Food Trust dictate what they may eat and when and how; second, to vote the Socialist ticket, conquer the political power, and take as public property, to be used for the public good, the means of producing and transporting the people's food.

Can anyone suggest a better course than the latter for avoiding the former alternative?

IN CONNECTICUT.

A heavy rain prevented many from attending Comrade H. G. Wilshire's lecture at Warner Hall, New Haven. The 150 or more persons who attended were well repaid for braving the storm. Comrade Wilshire's illustrations of the impossibility of continuing the system of production for profit in the face of the rapid concentration of capital now taking place, presented the subject of collective ownership in a new light to many. Ten subscriptions to "Wilshire's Magazine" were taken.

A meeting will be held at 881 Main street, Hartford, Sunday, May 11, to organize Branch 1, Hartford. All members of The Worker are requested to attend this meeting.

The State Convention will be held in Aurora Hall, New Haven, on Memorial Day, May 30, at 1 o'clock p. m. All branches should be sure to elect the number of delegates to which they are entitled and ensure a full attendance at this first state convention of the Socialist Party of Connecticut.

W. E. W.

THE MIDDLE CLASS.

We, as Socialists, represent the proletariat or propertiless wage-workers and have no particular interest in this lying middle class—nobody has—their interests are not our interest, but in this case, as in most others, competition being what it is, our interests are their interests.

What is this middle class? Just as it is impossible to point out the exact place where the animal kingdom begins and the vegetable kingdom ends, the vegetable kingdom begins and the mineral kingdom ends, so it is impossible to draw a line of demarkation between the classes.

Capital is that part of wealth which is owned by one man and operated by another, yielding wages to the operator and profits to the owner. A capitalist is one who lives by the profits so obtained. A proletarian is one who lives by the wages so obtained. A man may own means of production and help to operate them. In that case, he draws a salary and also makes a profit off his helpers. He is both worker and capitalist—a middle class man. This class is disappearing.—The Undercurrent.

—The American people are so great and powerful that they can't get along without little children working to produce the necessities of life.—William Lilly.

FOR THE DAILY.

Association Meets Again Monday Evening, May 12.

Opportunity for All Comrades Who Are Interested to Take Active Part in the Work—Report of the Fund.

The Workingmen's Co-operative Publishing Association held a special meeting on May 1, with Job Harriman in the chair. Seven applicants were admitted to membership and three new proposals received.

The Committee on Constitution presented a draft which was discussed at length and partially acted upon. The completion of the business was postponed to the next meeting, which will be held in the Labor Lyceum, 64 E. Fourth street, Monday evening, May 12, at 8 p. m. All members of the Association and all who have been proposed and desire admission are requested to be present at this meeting.

The conditions of membership in the W. C. P. A. are: First, the applicant must be a member in good standing of the Socialist Party—called in New York the Social Democratic Party; second, he (or she) must buy one share of stock for $5—$1 to be paid on the proposition of his name, $1 on his admission, and the rest within one year.

Amounts Pledged.

Following is a statement of amounts pledged for the Socialist Daily Fund up to May 5:

Previously acknowledged	$5,023.50
Jacob Hillquit	25.00
H. Wishnefsky	5.00
A. J. Hilldring, New Rochelle	5.00
J. A. Siwczinski, Porterville, Cal.	5.00
George Taufer	25.00
Dr. M. Girsdansky	60.00
Carl Schneider	15.00
A. L. Lindenmeyer, West Hoboken	5.00
Victor King, Ashtabula, O.	5.00
Wm. Meyer	3.00
B. F. Meyer	5.00
Dr. S. Ingerman	50.00
Dr. A. Caspe	20.00
E. Dobin	10.00
Total	$5,261.50
Cash donations	466.78
	$5,728.28

Paid on Pledges.

Payments on pledges up to May 5 are:

Previously acknowledged	$357.50
A. Kopf	.25
Miss Theresa Fox	2.00
H. Wishnefsky	.50
M. M. Bartholomew	2.00
P. Werner	1.00
George Taufer	10.00
B. Merkert	2.00
Emile Abbott	5.00
Oscar Abbott	5.00
Henry L. Slobodin	10.00
Carl Schneider	2.00
Mrs. K. L. M. Meserole	5.00
A. L. Lindenmeyer	1.00
Victor King	1.00
E. Meltzer	1.00
L. Zakshewsky	1.00
E. Dobin	2.00
J. Corales	1.00
E. Spranger	2.00
	$411.25

Cash Donations.

The following amounts have been received as direct cash contributions, irrespective of pledges:

Previously acknowledged	$438.47
Jacob Geil, Cleveland, O.	.50
J. Abeles, Sea Cliff, N. Y.	1.00
Cigarmakers No. 90, box	1.31
L. Rhame, Union Course, L. I.	.50
J. P. Hofstadt	.50
Local Cleveland, Br. 1	10.00
Jacob Klemm, Buffalo	.50
I. C. Hoogreef	1.00
Max Anelam	4.00
H. Walter	5.00
Karl Heidel	4.00
Total	$466.78

Notice to Contributors.

Pledges should be drawn and checks and money orders made payable to the Socialist Daily Finance Committee. All communications should be addressed to the newly elected Agent of the Committee, Wm. Butscher, Labor Lyceum, 64 E. Fourth street, New York.

The Worker will contain, each week, a list of contributions received up to Monday preceding the date of issue.

If any contribution sent is not promptly acknowledged the sender should at once inform the Committee, that the matter may be investigated and set right.

Those who have made pledges should remember to send in the monthly instalments promptly, saving the trouble and expense of notifying them. Let each one feel his personal responsibility for the work we have undertaken and his power to hasten the coming of the Socialist Daily.

—She that was Miss Pullman is building a hospital near Chicago where she intends taking the outcasts from the slums that have fallen victims to disease and poverty. Her father in his life time made the conditions favorable for such a field of work and her two degenerate brothers made the victims upon which she can now exercise her philanthropy.—Advance.

—Readers, this is YOUR paper. YOU should support it. One way to do that is to patronize the firms whose advertisements appear in this paper. In ordering, mention The Worker.

MAY DAY IN BOSTON.

MacCartney and Hanford Address an Enthusiastic Audience in Paine Memorial Hall.

Paine Hall was not big enough for last Sunday's International Labor Day meeting of the Boston Socialists. The audience was not only large but enthusiastic, the applause leaving no doubt that the speakers' remarks were understood and approved. What is still better, a large amount of literature was sold and a good number of the hearers gave in their names as desiring further information about Socialism. Trade unionists were out in force.

State Organizer Malily presided and introduced the speakers, Ban Hanford of New York and Representative MacCartney of Rockland, both of whom were greeted with loud applause. Their speeches glowed with revolutionary enthusiasm and fully exposed the spirit of the international labor movement.

Piano selections were rendered by J. Henry Page of Lynn and H. Slakin gave an appropriate song.

May Day resolutions were introduced by Patrick Mahoney of the Cigar Makers' Union and unanimously adopted.

W. R. Dyer of the Machinists' Union introduced the following resolutions, which were also enthusiastically adopted:

"Whereas, The Brewery Workers of Boston are engaged in a struggle to preserve the right to organize and to protect each other in the enjoyment of that right; and

"Whereas, They have allied against them a combination of employers formed for the sole purpose of destroying the unions, in order to obtain unrestricted control over the workmen and the absolute power to dictate wages, hours, and the conditions of employment; be it

"Resolved, By the working people, with their firends and sympathizers, here assembled, that we express our sympathy with the Brewery Workers, extend to them our best wishes for success, and call upon them to maintain their present attitude until an amicable agreemnt is reached:

"Resolved, That we request all those who share in the aspirations of Labor for better conditions to use every effort in their power to make the termination of the Brewery Workers' strike a victory for organized labor."

ORGANIZER SPRING IN NEW YORK STATE.

State Organizer F. J. Spring left the city on April 23 for a tour of the state. His first public meeting, as reported last week, was at Peekskill, where four new members were gained and considerable literature sold. At Cold Spring the meeting was in a small hall which was filled to the doors, while about fifty people waited outside. Three new members were taken in.

At Newburg, Comrade Spring addressed the Hatters' Union, 200 strong, and gave them a Socialist speech, "straight from the shoulder."

Organizer Nugent of Local Troy reports Spring's meeting there very satisfactory, and says they want him to come again to help organize neighboring places. A good deal of literature was sold. Meetings were also held at Schuylerville and Schenectady. The latter place, especially, has very good prospects.

At Fort Edward the Paper Workers' Union offered the use of their hall and many attended the highly successful meeting which was held there.

Johnston was the next point on the route, followed by Gloversville and Utica. Secretary Williams of Gloversville writes that, although small at the beginning, the audience grew to two or three hundred, and the closest attention was paid the speaker. An indoor meeting was held afterwards, at which five new members were received and plans laid for the future.

Utica's meeting on Sunday was one of the best yet held. Six new recruits were enrolled, many leaflets sold, and several subscriptions taken for The Worker. Utica also wants Spring for several days later in the season. Arrangements are on foot for a regular lecture circuit, so arranged that, at very low expense, each local can be visited by a speaker at least once a month. All locals which wish to be included in such a circuit should at once communicate with the State Organizer, F. J. Spring, General Delivery, Buffalo, that city being the terminus of his present tour.

Local Buffalo has elected the following officers: Organizer, Henry Moses; Secretary, Jos. Mosler; Financial Secretary, Thos. Fitton. The Local nominates Buffalo as the place and July 4 as the time for the State Convention and hopes that other locals will help bring the convention there, believing that it will create great enthusiasm in the local movement.

The Jewish-speaking Socialists of Buffalo have also organized a club for propaganda among Jewish workers, with twelve charter members. They hope to open club rooms soon. The Secretary is B. Schaffer of 124 William street. The club meets every Sunday, at 3 p. m., at 435 William street.

—We say that only through the capture of the powers of government by the Socialist Party can the working class put in operation such steps toward the collective ownership and operation of all industries as are expedient, and at the same time throw around itself the protection of the law, which is now used against it by the capitalist class.—The Wage Worker.

MAY DAY PARADE.

New York's Workers Again Demonstrate Their Solidarity.

If Not for "Autonomy" Conflicts, This Would Have Been the Greatest May Day Demonstration Ever Held in New York—Ringing Speeches and Resolutions.

If it had not been for the internal troubles of the building trades and some other unions—or if the members of these unions had yet risen to the Socialist standard of putting the interests of the working class first and subordinating all special organization to it—then last Saturday's May Demonstration would have been the greatest ever held in New York. It takes a long and hard experience to teach the workers that nothing pleases their masters better than to see them forgetting their class interests in the heat of their minor conflicts.

Even so, the parade and mass meeting was an imposing demonstration of solidarity. The organizations of the East Side made a splendid showing, a number of American unions participated that have not heretofore been seen in our ranks, and the Polish and Italian workingmen were also in evidence. The presence of numerous working women and girls added still further to the effectiveness of the parade as a class demonstration.

After the parade had finished its long march a mass meeting was held at Madison Square where, from several platforms, the crowds were addressed by Comrades Hanford, Harriman, Spargo, Lemon, Edlin, Butscher, Phillips, Loewenthal, Frielman, Lee, Mayes, and others.

The following resolutions were carried with ringing cheers:

"To the Working Men and Women of New York:

"Bitter experience has taught the working people of every country that all the acts of the capitalist class, whether political, commercial, or industrial, are inspired by their illegitimate pecuniary interests and their illgotten power as against the just interests and rightful power of the working class.

"Their motto is, Luxury for the idle rich and misery for the working poor.

"They love those who work not, and live upon and despise those who toil.

"They use the power of wealth to enslave those who produce all wealth.

"They control the powers of government and monopolize the industries of the land with the wealth they rob from the working class.

"They bribe colleges with donations. They bribe pulpits with pew-rents. They buy stocks and control the public press. They buy politicians and control the political machines. They amend constitutions and disfranchise the poor. They let government, state, and municipal contracts at enormous prices and divide the profits and the spoils of office.

"They control the industries and force the working class to accept lower wages and make woman and child labor necessary. They starve human beings by raising the price of meat and bread, while the dogs in their kennels feed on capons and porterhouse steak.

"They choose politicians, capitalists, bishops, and parsons to conduct 'arbitration and peace conferences,' and enforce their decisions at the point of the bayonet, and gloze over their crimes in the columns of the daily press.

"They have shown by their actions, the world over, that the interests of the capitalists are permanently opposed to the interests of the working class and that they will at all times use all the power at their command to continue their life of luxury and to hold the working class in slavery and abject poverty.

"Therefore, be it resolved—

"That we, the working class of New York, declare our determination to unite, both in our unions and in one political party, with the working class of this country and of all countries;

"That we use our economic organization with all our energies to the end that our wages be increased, that the hours of labor be shortened, that child labor be made unnecessary and universal education possible, that our wives may be relieved from the crushing factory oppression;

"That we will support a workingmen's daily paper in New York with which we can and will fight our great political and industrial battles;

"That we employ our political organization with which to capture the powers of government, and that as fast as these powers are captured they shall be used to protect the interests of the working class; that as a working-class government we will take control, not only of the monopolized industries, but of all industries of whatever kind, and that we shall hold and operate them as common property and for the public good; that the hours of labor shall be reduced to a minimum and the remuneration increased to the full product of labor; and that the capitalist or profit system shall be abolished and a community of interest established.

"That we extend our greeting to our comrades, the working class of all countries, assuring them that our best energies will be directed toward establishing the International Socialist Commonwealth and supporting it with our lives.

"Let the battle-cry be, Industrial and political union of the working class! We have nothing to lose but our chains; we have a world to gain."

THE MAY CONCERT

A Complete Success from Every Point of View.

Grand Central Palace Packed at Half Past Three—Everyone Pleased with the Perfect Rendering of the Program — Financial Returns Not Yet Made Up.

The Damrosch Concert for the benefit of the Socialist Daily Fund has taken its place in our records as an unqualified success.

The day was perfect and long before the time for beginning the program every seat in the Grand Central Palace was occupied and hundreds were standing. The crowd was an attentive and appreciative one, and numerous expressions of approval were heard as the people passed out.

Only one thing marred the effect of the music, and that through a pardonable oversight of the committee. No provision has been made in the contract against the proprietors of the hall opening the bar nor even specifying that, if opened, it should be at a place where no disturbance would result. Considerable confusion and noise was the consequence of the placing of the bar in the left wing and the committee was powerless to remove it. On a future occasion such an action can be anticipated and prevented.

The presentation of the program was admirable. The singing of the Choral Union especially and the orchestral accompaniment in the first vocal number call for the highest praise. The work which Director Damrosch has done during the last ten years—and which he has done without remuneration and solely for the love of the work—has borne splendid fruit, as all can testify who heard last Sunday's concert. In the co-operation of Director, Orchestra, and Chorus, the thoughtful Socialist can find a striking illustration of Socialist principles—the development of individual excellence being combined with the perfect subordination of individual interest or whim to the common end in view. Such an institution as the People's Choral Union is more than a school of music, it is a training school for the social ethics of the future, one of the oases in the desert of Profit-grinding.

One of the most pleasing features of the program was the violin solos by Mr. David Mannes—whose name was accidentally omitted from the printed program. Wagner's "Träume" and the "Prize Song" out of the "Meistersinger" were enthusiastically received, as they well deserved.

It is impossible to say, as yet, how great was the financial success of the concert, as many tickets are still outstanding, but one glance over the crowded hall was sufficient to show that the figures will be very gratifying.

The Committee of Arrangements had no easy task and they merit the thanks of the comrades and of all who attended the concert for the work they performed. Especially to Comrades Tanzer and Bowerman is great credit due.

WORK IN PENNSYLVANIA.

Nowhere in America has there been a grander field for Socialism than in the Keystone State, and nowhere has the witchery of capitalism been more successful in casting its spell over the working people than in this land of coal mines, coke fulnaces, rolling mills, railroad shops, millionaires, and Carnegie libraries.

But it is no exaggeration to say that our tollers are at last showing signs of waking up from their hypnotic sleep.

From the extreme corner of the state comes the tidings of a local Socialist daily in Erie following fast on the heels of an astonishingly large Socialist vote at the recent election. The paper is to be owned and controlled by the Socialist Party, and is capitalized at $10,000, the par value being $10 per share; no one person is to be allowed to hold more than ten shares.

Each ward in Erie is now organized and on Thursday, May 8, delegates from each ward will form the Central Committee. Open-air meetings are being held.

Coming south from Erie and passing over Mercer County, with its Greenville Local crying out for reorganization, we strike a live center at for the state election in the person of cialist vote and providing a candidate for the state election in the person of Comrade J. W. Slayton, who not only stirs things up at home, but arouses the Amalgamated Iron Workers' Convention at Wheeling, W. Va., on the Socialist proposition. A special election for a Councilman will be held May 27 in a ward that has been carried several times by the Socialists. Capitalists are getting scared and their political tools, the Democrats and Republicans, are thinking of joining hands to beat our boys. Vail will have two meetings there the day before the election.

Pittsburg and Allegheny are making great preparations to receive and keep Comrade Collins busy from May 17 till the end of the month.

Further south again is Washington County, with its little French colony at Charlerol, and its Socialist weekly paper, "L'Union des Travailleurs," printed in French and bearing the familiar motto, "Workingmen, unite! You have only your chains to lose, you have a world to gain!" These enterprising French fellows can speak and read English, however, for they have just ordered 200 copies of The Worker May Day Issue for distribution, and the editor of the weekly Louis Goazieu, has been addressing a crowd at Connelsville, some twenty miles away, in such forcible English that another big meeting had to be planned there immediately to be addressed by Comrade Vail, with Mrs. Vail to talk to the shop girls in the afternoon.

Cokeville is only a grimy village of 700 tollers, but half the voting population are said to be Socialists. The large town of Blairsville claims Socialists among its well-to-do citizens; one of these guaranteed all the expenses of a meeting in Cokeville to be addressed by Comrade Vail.

Five miles north of Blairsville, the village of Black Lick is planning a rousing meeting for Vail on May 20.

Austin, in Potter County, deserves mention for its diligence in scattering 4,000 pieces of Socialist literature, with the result that the whole town (population, 1,600), is now "talking Socialism."

In the eastern section Socialism is taking root in the "Pennsylvania Dutch" settlements. In York County Comrade Vail is heralded to talk straight to the crowd from the porch of the only hotel in Spring Forge both morning and evening of May 12, and under the very nose of the "Old Boss," who lives in the hotel and buys white slaves for his paper mill for 90 cents and $1.25 per day. The following day Vail speaks in York.

Lancaster is clamoring for Vail, McGrady, and others. The people are getting interested very fast.

Pottstown is going to pay $35 for its Opera House to accommodate Vail and his audience May 8, and the Reading comrades are to stir up the village of Spring City and organize a local there. Reading holds County Convention, May 10; a full ticket will be nominated.

A charter has been forwarded to East Pittsburg. Collins and Vail will both be welcomed at this place.

Comrades are active and good meetings are expected in Wilkes Barre, Nesquehoming, Lehighton, and Mauch Chunk.

On Thursday evening, May 15, Morris Hillquit of New York will speak in the Philadelphia headquarters, 1022 Arch street, on "The History of Socialism in the United States." Admission to these lectures is free and all are invited.

Comrade Vail's route in Pennsylvania for the rest of the month is as follows:

May 11—Lancaster.
May 12—Spring Forge.
May 13—York.
May 14—Maytown.
May 15—Nesquehoming.
May 16—Mauch Chunk.
May 17—Lehighton.
May 18—Wilkes Barre.
May 19—Cokeville.
May 20—Black Lick.
May 21—Connelsville.
May 22—Duquesne.
May 23—East Pittsburg.
May 24—Pittsburg.
May 25—Charlerol.
May 26—New Castle.

Comrades in all parts of the state are urged to reply promptly to communications from the state officers, J. Mahlon Barnes, Secretary, and Caroline H. Pemberton, Assistant Secretary, who will be glad to furnish any information needed.

NOTES FROM MAINE.

Comrade D. A. White of Saco has been speaking at Rockland, Thomaston, and Camden, in Knox County, and reports a widespread Socialist movement in that section.

The Knox County Socialists held their county convention at Rockland on April 23. A full county ticket was placed in the field, with the exception of County Attorney. Comrade White addressed the convention, also speaking in the evening. Several members of the County Committee are women, this being in accord with action of the State Convention in inviting the women to take an active part in the affairs of the organization.

Socialists of Cumberland County held their convention in Portland on April 28, nominating candidates for the Legislature.

Local Portland has recently gained several strong members, and with a handsome cash surplus in the treasury is apparently in better shape to do effective work than at any previous period of its existence.

Skowhegan comrades are congratulating themselves upon their unexpected good fortune. Comrade Roland T. Patten, formerly a prominent member of the Republican party and treasurer of Somerset County, who formally severed his party connections and resigned his office to become a member of Local Skowhegan, has purchased an automobile, which he has placed at the disposal of the State Committee during the progress of the campaign in Somerset County. Carey, Patten, and the auto ought to be an invincible trio, and roll up a handsome majority in this, the banner county of the Socialist movement in Maine.

Our membership now numbers 189, all but 37 of whom are in good standing; gain for the month, 18 to date.

F. E. I.

—John Stuart Mill says that it is doubtful if all the inventions of labor-saving machinery have so far lightened the burdens of any workingmen. The reason is that the machinery belongs to the capitalist, who does not work, and he gets the whole advantage of it. Collective ownership will change all that.

IT IS VERY GOOD BUSINESS.

In our school days we have all read about the "Black Hole of Calcutta," and shuddered at the diabolical cruelty of the Surajah Dowlah who shut up his British prisoners there to suffocate in the foul air or trample each other to death in their struggle to reach the two little barred windows.

It was a horrible affair, that of the "Black Hole" and the Hindu tyrant doubtless deserved all the curses that have been heaped upon him. But Surajah Dowlah was a heathen, a barbarian, he was a thoughtless inexperienced youth of eighteen and he was at war with the British.

The directors and stockholders of the American Cigar Company and of the American Tobacco Company which controls it are adults and experienced business men; they call themselves civilized men and Christians; instead of being engaged in war, they are proud of their peaceful avocations and claim the gratitude of the people for giving employment to thousands of workers. Read here how they have rivalled the Surajah Dowlah in barbarity:

In their Philadelphia cigar factory, the other day, a young boy, one of the employees, was struck and seriously hurt by a descending elevator car. His scream of pain rang through the building.

"In an instant the thousand girls and little children employed on the fourth floor were seized with panic and made a stampede for the stairways, uttering shrill cries of 'Fire!' and for help. The hurried tramp of feet overhead and the sudden screams were heard by the 200 or more employees on the third floor, and these, crazed like the rest, started for the third floor landing. Here the two streams met, and with a crash the screaming mass of girls was flung down to the first landing, turned there and rolled to the second. Those in front were flung down and the resistless pressure of the ranks behind heaped them up in the narrow space. Then over them, and over again, rolled the terro-stricken girls from behind, until the stairway was as a well filled with fighting creatures. And underneath, crushed against the floor, lay a heap of bleeding bodies.

"The awful occurrence occupied less than twenty minutes, but in that brief time eight lives were crushed out and forty women, girls and children were injured. The dead are: Mary Ginoa, 15 years old; Helen Tulena, 12 years; Lizzie Sartine, 19 years; Annie Rothsnyder, 17 years; Ida Green, 17 years; Annie Ford, 15 years; Louise Desipi, 16 years, and Johanna Gilly, 22 years old."

The directors and stockholders will not be hanged. They are not murderers. They are good business men, that is all. It is good business to employ women and children instead of men. They work cheaper and are more obedient. Then the husbands and fathers, being thrown out of work, have to compete for other jobs and so keep wages down in other trades.

It is good business to leave elevator shafts unguarded. It saves ten seconds of a boy's time every trip, and all those seconds put together mean a saving of several cents a day—to the boss, not to the boy of course.

It is good business to have steep, narrow, crooked stairways. They occupy less room and so more machinery can be packed into the shop and more girls and boys to run the machines and grind out profits for the benevolent, pious, cultured gentlemen who hold stocks in the Tobacco Trust.

It is very fortunate—for the benevolent gentlemen—that the majority of the working people vote against the Socialist Party. A Socialist Legislature and Governor being workingmen elected on a working-class platform—would have made it unlawful for the benevolent gentlemen to employ children, or for them to employ anyone in such a death-trap.

It is a little unfortunate for May Ginoa, aged fifteen; Helen Tulena, aged twelve; Lizzie Sartine, aged nineteen; Annie Rothsnyder, aged seventeen; Ida Green, aged seventeen; Annie Ford, aged fifteen; Louise Desipi, aged sixteen; Johanna Gilly, aged twenty-two, and the forty others.

But these people are cheap. They were only working girls. Maybe they had their little romantic dreams of love and home and happiness—sometime in the dim future. And all those sweet dreams and all the possibilities of their lives went out in that little twenty minutes of profitable, business-like hell. They had no business with such dreams. They were working girls—useful, of course; profitable, of course—Oh, yes, quite profitable; but not indispensable—Oh, dear, no! for there are thousands more, just as useful and just as poor, ready to take their places.

Pious, cultured, benevolent [illegible] every Sat by men will not waste any te[illegible] meets every will these slaughtered girls. They will collect insurance on the broken stair-rails and shattered doors. They will put things in order and buy another lot of slaves and give the foremen orders drive this lot a little faster, to make up for lost time. They will even give a little money—out of the extra profits—to the churches, so that the pastors shall tell their flocks that the whole affair was "a mysterious dispensation of Providence."

Pious, cultured, benevolent people take such little incidents as this quite philosophically. They can afford to.

Can you, reader, take it so philosophically? How about your daughter, your sister, your sweetheart?

Can you continue to trust these pious, cultured benevolent gentlemen to advise you, to arbitrate your strikes, to control the education of your children, to nominate candidates and draw up political platforms for you?

Read in this paper the article headed, "Speak for the Children." Read the Socialist platform on the last page. Then think.

HAVE YOU BEEN LOANED?

The trusts and other associations of employers are using a new form of the blacklist. It is especially prevalent in New York and Chicago, but is reported from other sections of the country.

Each workman's record is carefully kept. If he is dissatisfied and voluntarily leaves his employment, he finds that he cannot obtain employment at any of the shops controlled by the Employers' Association.

If, however, he is a nice, tractable man and does not join a union or ask for more wages or complain about overtime, he is assured of more steady employment than his independent comrade. When work gets lack in his own shop he will be "loaned" to some other shop. He has nothing whatever to say about his conditions of employments or when he shall be returned to his former master. Any objection to the "loaning system" results in a very vigorous and effective blacklist.—Illinois Tradesman.

IT IS TO LAUGH.

If there is one thing more than another that will cause us Socialists to be convulsed with laughter, it is the mistake invariably made by capitalist politicians, that we are looking for work. Simply because we are constantly demanding an opportunity to produce wealth for our own sustenance, comfort and luxury, the capitalists imagine that we are looking for an increased amount of labor, and contrive all sorts of schemes and arguments to prove to us that if we will only vote their parties into power we will be provided with jobs where we can work ourselves to death if we wish.—The Wage Worker.

—If labor unions do not take in the poorer laborers the unions are called oppressive and selfish. If they do take them in, the unions are accused of demanding more pay for a poor laborer "than he is worth." Funny, isn't it?—Rossland (B. C.) Evening World.

NOTICE FOR NEW YORK.

In accordance with the By-laws of Local New York, a general meeting of the Local will be held on Sunday, May 18, at 2 p. m., in the Club House, 206 E. Eighty-sixth street. Membership cards must be shown at the door.

The General Committee meets Saturday, May 10, at the Labor Lyceum. All delegates are notified to be present.

JULIUS GERBER, Organizer.

WILL DISCUSS MEAT TRUST.

The 23d A. D. will hold a public meeting in Beckmann's Hall, Eighth avenue and One Hundred Forty-second street, on Friday evening, May 16, to discuss the Meat Trust.

TO CATHOLIC WORKINGMEN.

The leaflet, "To the Catholic Workingmen of the State of New York," issued by the State Committee of the S. D. P., should be widely circulated. It can be had in English or in German—in English at $1.75 for a thousand copies or $1 for five hundred; in German at $2 a thousand or $1.25 for five hundred. Send orders, with cash, to H. Reich, 184 William street, New York.

VERMONT QUARRYMEN.

The quarry workers of Barre, Vt., and vicinity have joined forces—including hoisting engineers, blacksmiths, tool sharpeners, steam and hand rillers, derrick men, and laborers, about 900 in all—under the name of Quarrymen's Amalgamated Union, Local 9696, affiliated with the A. F. of L. The Secretary is Wm. Pinkham of Graniteville. Under the agreement with the bosses the eight-hour rule will take effect on July 1, with a 10 per cent. increase in wages, paid by the hour. The agreement also provides for a standing arbitration committee to hear grievances and settle disputes. The agreement runs till July 1, 1905; and if three months' notice of a desire to revise is not given by either side, it will hold for another year.

The Worker.

AN ORGAN OF THE SOCIALIST PARTY

(Known in New York State as the Social Democratic Party.)

PUBLISHED WEEKLY

AT 184 WILLIAM STREET, NEW YORK,

By the Socialistic Co-operative Publishing Association.

P. O. BOX 1512.

Telephone Call: 302 John.

TERMS TO SUBSCRIBERS.

Invariably in advance.

One year	50c.
Six months	25c.
Single copies	2c.

Bundle rates:

Less than 100 copies, per copy	1c.
100 copies	75c.
200 copies	$1.20
300 copies or more, per hundred	50c.

Weekly Bundles:

5 per week, one year	$1.75
10 per week, one year	3.50
25 per week, one year	7.50
50 per week, one year	12.50

Address all business communications, and make money orders, checks and drafts payable to The Worker.

Receipts are never sent to individual subscribers. Acknowledgment is made by changing the number on the wrapper, the week following receipt of money.

Communications concerning the editorial department of the paper should be addressed to the Editor.

All communications should be written with ink and on one side of the paper; words should not be abbreviated; every letter should bear the writer's name and address; and matter should be put in as few words as possible, consistently with clearness. Communications which do not comply with these requirements are likely to be disregarded.

Entered as second-class matter at the New York, N. Y., Post office on April 6, 1891.

UNION PRINTER

SOCIALIST VOTE IN THE UNITED STATES.

In 1888 (Presidential)	2,068
In 1890	13,331
In 1892 (Presidential)	21,157
In 1894	33,133
In 1896 (Presidential)	36,564
In 1898:
S. L. P.	82,204
S. D. P.	9,545
In 1900 (Presidential):
S. D. P.	96,918
S. L. P.	33,450

A LESSON FROM FRANCE.

The result of the French general election, so far as it is completed—and it is hardly to be expected that the supplementary elections of May 11 will materially alter the result—is an, it might well be expected, so far as you k the whole Socialist movement is concerned.

Three years ago, at a time when the Socialist movement in France, although divided into several parties, was steadily gaining in strength and coherence, a temptation was presented to which a considerable part of the Socialists succumbed and for which the whole movement has now to pay the penalty. The entry of Millerand into a non-Socialist cabinet seemed to many to be the beginning of a new era in Socialist policy, the opening of a "short cut" to Socialism—not only a short way but also an easy one, free from the harshness of revolutionary tactics.

Great things were promised in the way of immediate alleviation of the sufferings of the workers. It would be too much to say that nothing has been accomplished. But what few reforms have been achieved by Millerand are outweighed many times over by the disorganization of the Socialist movement as a whole, the suppression of the aggressive spirit in one portion of it and the turning of that spirit in the other portion to the unwelcome but necessary task of internal controversy.

It can hardly be denied that the Parti Ouvier, the so-called "Guesdists," have gone to extremes in the controversy. But it must be admitted that results have justified their fundamental position, and the blame for any undue violence in their conduct rests as much on those who provoked it as on themselves.

The French Socialists have made their experience—at least, it is to be hoped that no further lessons will be needed. The question for every American Socialist to take to heart is, How to avoid the necessity of going through such dangerous experiences here, how to maintain uncompromising tactics against all temptations that will come with our growing strength and influence.

"GOOD MEN AND BAD MEN."

The "Machinists' Journal," speaking in praise of the late John P. Altgeld—for whom we have already expressed our admiration—says:

"There were only two classes of men in Altgeld's eyes—good men and bad men."

We do not think that our contemporary is right in attributing this view of the world to Altgeld. Had he looked upon men in the way indicated, had he classified them into good men and bad men, he could hardly have taken the comparatively advanced view of his political responsibility that he did take.

However, that is not the question. We do not care to discuss the question whether or not Altgeld held this opinion, but we do heartily protest against the opinion itself as a false and mischievous one.

The churches have taught us, all through the ages, that men were to be classified as "good men" and "bad men," as clean and unclean, righteous and sinful, holy and unholy, the saints and the wicked. The churches, accordingly, have labored to "redeem" individuals, to "convict them of sin and lead them to repentance," to save their souls by bringing them to individual righteousness, to "convert" them from "bad men" into "good men." On these lines the churches have labored vigorously and persistently—and sincerely, no doubt, on the whole; and now even the professional churchmen, the clergy themselves, are coming to question the wisdom of their method, and think that much of their labor has been wasted—coming to admit or assert that conduct is much more a matter of social relations and conditions than of personal virtue or sinfulness.

We Socialists are not often reproached with being too lenient in our judgments; but we believe every Socialist can agree with that splendid, "sinful" Scott, Bobbie Burns, when he says:

"Then gently judge your brother man,
still gentler sister woman;
"Though they may go a kennin wrang,
to step aside is human.
"One point must still be greatly dark
—the moving why they do it,
"And just as lamely can we mark how far, perhaps, they rue it."

The great crime of the present age, before whose awful consequences all individual frauds and robberies and murders sink into insignificance, is the crime of capitalism, of class rule, of the subjugation and exploitation of the working class by the owners of the world's means of production; it is a crime that surpasses all others, because it infects the life of every man and woman, blights the promise of every child, and erects fraud into a virtue, robbery into a system, murder into an institution. Now when we arraign this criminal system, when we point out the wide-spread misery and social degradation that flows from the industrial tyranny of the Morgans and Rockefellers and Carnegies, we are sometimes met with the reply: "Well, they're no worse than anybody else; you can't blame them; if you and I had a chance to be millionaires we should be just as bad as any of those men." The Socialist need not deny that statement, whether it be true or false as regards himself. He may grant it and urge that it is irrelevant, that it has nothing to do with the question. He may carry it further and say, with truth on his side: "Yes, and if you and I were born in penury, nurtured in ignorance, and given over to despair, we should be as bad as any criminal in our crowded prisons."

Rockefeller may be as "good" a man as his valet; Morgan is perhaps no more "sinful" than the average brakeman on his railroads; and doubtless there are many steel workers who are as "bad" as Carnegie. We do not say that the workers, as individuals, are virtuous nor that the capitalists, as individuals, are wicked. We do say that the workers are robbed and defrauded by the capitalists, that thousands of them are murdered by the capitalists for profit every year, that they are deprived of all that is best in life in order that the capitalists may have profits. It is just as disastrous for the workers to be robbed by a righteous, sincere, kind-hearted, well-meaning capitalist as by one who is a brazen rascal; and it is just as demoralizing to society that wicked workeingmen should be robbed as that virtuous ones should be despoiled.

Just so, the English in 1776 were not wickeder men than the Americans; the French priests and nobles in 1789 were not worse than the common people; the Southern slaveholders in 1861 were not more sinful than the slaves or the Abolitionists. Yet we see that in all these cases there were class divisions and class antagonisms quite apart from any differences of personal morality, and we think it well that these struggles ended in the Independence of America, in the French Revolution, in the Emancipation Proclamation.

In fact men cannot be divided into "good men" and "bad men." Every man unites, in somewhat varying proportions, those qualities which we call virtues and vices; but whether his conduct be right or wrong—that is, whether it be socially useful or socially hurtful—depends chiefly on the social system in which he lives and the position he holds in that system.

And taking this view, we see that to-day, in this and every country, there are two classes, a ruling and exploiting class and an oppressed and exploited class; that the conduct—the natural and unavoidable conduct—of the ruling class is socially injurious, that it results in untold harm to the highest interests of humanity, and that it is therefore wrong, and that this ruling class must therefore be overthrown.

This class division, and not any fancied classification into "good men" and "bad men," is the great fact of the present day that gives light and leading to the labor movement—even where it is not fully understood, but only instinctively felt. And the sooner it is clearly recognized and accepted as a guide to the workers' combined action, the sooner will Labor be free.

A comrade in a Western state who has been employed for years on one of the great railways, writes: "An officer of the company told me, when I asked him, that I was debarred from promotion on account of my political faith, and I understand that I am ordered discharged as soon as it suits their convenience. So I must 'make hay while the sun shines.'" (He does it, sending in subscriptions for The Worker.) "But they are too late. The literature I have distributed among my fellow wage-slaves has had an effect that they will not be able to remove by removing me." The capitalists who dictate this policy of blacklisting workmen who dare to think could not understand the spirit of the man who would rather be discharged than give up his work for Socialism. Their little souls cannot contain such an idea. And so they go on, making more Socialists by the methods they use to crush Socialism.

Some good souls want us to run this paper on the plan of never displeasing anybody. We decline; first, because it's an impossible task they set us; second, because success in that task, were it possible, would be failure in all else.

The record of Comrades Carey and MacCartney in the Massachusetts State House is being favorably commented upon by many labor papers. The object lesson is having its effect.

CIGARMAKER AND SMOKER.

With parched lips and bleared eyes the children sit before the huge pile of tobacco leaf mechanically rolling cigars. Their fingers are brown stained and tired; their faces are livid and listless; their minds are dazed by the fumes of the narcotic. With dwarfed souls and poisoned bodies they will soon become little, old women.

The Jewess ties up the Havanas with colored ribbons. She likes making the bows. The Russian sits on the board, table, her legs dangling ominously, her shoulders elevated. She was born shrugging her shoulders and will meet death with the same helpless surrender.

They are noisily discussing Karl Marx and Kropotkin. The fight grows hot, the air heavier with the noxious odor. The Russian brings her heels against the table with vehemence. The Italian calls the Russian "a drunken Cossack." She answers with a shrug and a slow smile. "Dirty little Dago!" calls out the small and equally greasy Polish girl. The Italian scrutinizes the Pole. Then turns out her flat thumbs with deprecatory gesture. The girls laugh. "A dance, Rose, a dance!" cries the hunchback. The young Creole picks up her castenets. They are strung with cotton ribbons of many colors and odd lengths. With languorous grace she falls into the movement. The girls hum a ragtime tune, breaking into a noisy whistle and a final crescendo of boisterous song. The swaying figure grows lighter and the listless feet swifter. Her vivid face takes on pink, her dull eyes fire. Exhausted she drops upon the bench coughing violently.

Turbulent, desperate, anarchistic is their spirit. But the shackles of misery bind them close. Starvation girds them fast. This is their being, their whole being, with its pitiful littleness, its merciless greatness.

And the cigars? They lie in the houses of the torpid, indolent rich. Men smoke of their fragrance and through the delirious vapor they dream of fat bank accounts and wondrous women.—Polly Dawson, in The Conservator.

ONWARD! CHRISTIAN SOLDIERS!

The most modern method of benevolent assimilation is being duly explained to a waiting world by a congressional committee. The most Christian course for a nation to follow is to baptize a whole village with fire. Those who are not brought by this means immediately into the presence of the Almighty, and usually only the children and cripples are thus assimilated, are held by strong and loving hands and put through a carefully planned course of sprouts; the men are thoroughly christened, the women "initiated." It used to be considered sufficient in christening to administer an outward application of aqua pura or water, but the American army has discovered a more strenuous method. They reason that what is good for one side ought to be good for the other and accordingly the inside is thoroughly purged. This they call the "water cure." In the olden times, benevolence was administered to women by means of turpentine and a red-hot poker; in the Philippines, Caucasian civilization is applied in the form of a syphilitic vaccine; the modern method is given preference because it operates more slowly.—The Undercurrent.

NOT LOOKING FOR A MESSIAH.

Those who observe May Day and comprehend its significance are not looking for a political Messiah, a great leader who will conduct them from wage slavery to economic freedom. They have realized that the emancipation of the working class must be the act of the working class itself; that the power to transform present society lies in the organized and united proletariat instead of individual representatives.—Chicago Socialist.

——Generally it will be found that those who are anxious to keep the labor unions out of politics are the ones who hope to get some reward from the old political parties who aim to keep labor votes divided.—Rossland (B. C.) Evening World.

Current Literature

All books and pamphlets mentioned in this column may be obtained through the Socialist Literature Company, 184 William street, New York.

CONTEMPORARY SOCIALISM. By John Rae. Revised edition. New York: Charles Scribner's Son. 1902. Cloth, $2.50.

An especially timely book, a new edition of John Rae's "Contemporary Socialism," is presented by the Scribners. For ten years it has been recognized as a valuable reference book upon a question of expanding interest and importance, and the addition of a new chapter tracing the development of Socialism since 1890 brings the work up to date. As the homely maxim has it, "you don't go to a goat's house to get wool," and, similarly, "Contemporary Socialism," an anti-Socialist work, is hardly an undefiled fountain of knowledge of the philosophy, aims and accomplishments of the political movement of which it treats. With its accuracy as a chronicle of the historic events marking the growth of Socialism no serious fault can be found. The treatment, too, of Ferdinand Lassalle—that fascinating figure whose brilliant faculties and stormy nature are so graphically told in Zangwill's "The Savior of the People"—is admirable, but the author is less happy in the chapter devoted to Karl Marx, the father of modern scientific Socialism. The chapters on "The Socialists of the Chair" and "The Christian Socialists" have been, without exaggeration, characterized as the best things in English on these subjects, and the exhaustive treatment of "State Socialism" is most instructive in the distinction it draws between State Socialism and the real Socialism which animates the international political movement for an industrial democracy. Additional chapters treat what the author calls "the Agrarian Socialism of Henry George," "Russian Nihilism" and "the Federalism of Carl Marlo."

Though he has a most imperfect understanding of Marx's teachings, little fault is to be found with the author's outline of the Socialist ideal, as follows:

"What they want is a democracy of labor, to use one of their own phrases, * * * where citizenship shall depend on a labor qualification, instead of a qualification of birth or of property; where there shall be no citizen who enjoys without laboring and no citizen who labors without enjoying; where everyone who is able to work shall have employment, and everyone who has wrought shall retain the whole produce of his labor; and where accordingly, as the indispensable prerequisite of the whole scheme, the land of the country and all other instruments of production (capital) shall be made the joint property of the community * * *. All this is contended for as a matter of simple right and justice to the laboring classes, on the ground that the wealth of the nation belongs to the hands that made it; it is contended for as an obligation of the State, because the State is held to be merely the organized will of the people."—(Page 3.

While this is the ideal philosophy, the author points out further on (page 94) that "we find Germany the theater of the most important and formidable embodiment of Socialism that has anywhere appeared. Important and formidable for two reasons: It founds its doctrines, as Socialism has never done before (before Marx) on a thoroughly scientific investigation of the facts, and criticism of the principles of the present industrial regime, and it seeks to carry them out by means of a political organization, growing singularly in strength, and based on the class interests of the great majority of the people." This development of Socialism from Utopia to Science the author doesn't attempt to trace, though the process is treated in Frederick Engels' "Socialism, Utopian and Scientific," also published by the Scribners.

In his zeal to discredit Socialism, Dr. Rae—the author is an Edinburgh LL. D.—becomes disingenuous. He quotes Dr. Aveling (Karl Marx's son-in-law) as saying: "Well nigh every word spoken by the chief defendants at the Chicago trial could be indorsed by Socialists, for they then preached not anarchism, but Socialism. Indeed, he that will compare the fine speech by Parsons in 1886 with that of Liebknecht at the high treason trial at Leipsig will find the two practically identical." Upon this Dr. Rae triumphantly seizes and exclaims: "So far, then, as their Socialism goes, there is admittedly no real difference between Parsons, the Chicago anarchist, and Liebknecht, the leader of the German Socialists!" Such a lamé conclusion is all the more inexcusable when the easily ascertainable facts show that the anarchists and Socialists have been at open war for fifty years and more, having nothing in common aside from the ordinary abstractions of personal liberty—save a conviction that the producer of wealth is denied the product of his toil, a conviction shared by every one who admits there is a labor problem at all. When, in 1845, the father of anarchism, Pierre Joseph Proudhon, wrote his "Philosophie de la Misere," Karl Marx, the father of Socialism, was the first to grapple with him, publishing his "La Misere de la Philosophie." Bakounine, Proudhon's disciple and successor, approached the International Workingmen's Association in 1869, asking for admission, which was refused. Again in 1872 he and his followers were denied admission. When the extension of the franchise made it possible for the European Socialists to seek their ends by constitutional methods there remained not even a shadow of unity with the anarchists, and at the London International Socialist Congress in 1896 even the Socialists who would not agree to the constitutional program were excluded. Rae's parallel between Parsons and Liebknecht is even open to the charge of positive misrepresentation when the words of Liebknecht, at Erfurt, in 1891, are recalled: "Revolutionary methods were the methods of the anarchists, and the anarchists had done nothing by them but alienate workingmen. You could put all the anarchists of Europe into a pair of police wagons. With their ridiculous revolutionary phrases, their senseless attempt at assassination, and their stupidities generally, they have done nothing for the proletariat and have merely worked into the hands of their adversaries." Universal suffrage was granted in Germany in 1871, and it was then that Liebknecht raised the cry, "New weapons, new tactics," and the only revolution the socialists have believed in since then is the revolution at the ballot box. It is not only wiser politically, but indicates a wholesome appreciation of the fact that discretion is the better part of valor when the class opposing revolution is at the breech of the gun.

Naturally, however, more interest attaches to the new chapter of the book than to any other portion. This chapter essays to trace "Socialism from 1891 to 1900," a period marked by "the remarkable advance made by the Social Democrats as a political party in several Continental countries and their not less remarkable simultaneous growth in moderation." This chapter bears abundant evidence of having been hastily thrown together, and for that reason falls distinctly below the standard of the portion written ten years ago. Aside from its figures showing the growth of the Socialist Party, it is of little value as an exposition of the present temper of the movement. Dr. Rae, evidently misled by the rather noisy Bernstein agitation—an agitation promoted with suspicious ardor by bourgeois elements—concludes that Socialism has abandoned its revolutionary character to become a mere reform movement. The recent Lubeck Congress, however, overwhelmed the Bernstein proposals, reaffirmed the Socialist purpose to completely revolutionize the industrial system and gave no evidence of abandoning the "class struggle" basis of agitation. Undoubtedly, however, there has been steadily going on a change in tactics. The theory that industrial democracy would come by some great economic catastrophe has been abandoned and it is now recognized that the diffusion of intelligence and increased material resources are fruitful of "noble discontent" among the working class and that human nature, with appetite whetted by a portion, is more prone to demand the entire product of the worker's toil.

Of Socialism in the United States the author evidently knows no more than what he "saw in the paper." Its exponents, he says, "are mainly men of foreign birth and tongue, Germans and Russians, or Polish Jews," but at the recent national convention at Indianapolis the delegates of American birth and ancestry outnumbered the foreigners by over four to one and the movement shows the greatest growth in sections where the native American element preponderates in the population.

CHARLES DOBBS.

Don't write on both sides of paper.

CORRE- SPONDENCE

Don't send anonymous letters.

Approves Our Courage.

Editor of The Worker.

It is no more than right that I should express my great satisfaction in regard to the clear-cut articles you write and publish in The Worker. I hope you will continue to emphasize the difference between State Socialism and Democratic Socialism. I find that with the exclusively "Appeal to Reason" Socialists, whether of old standing or raw recruits, that their agitation is mostly centered on the initiative and referendum and government ownership of monopolies. This seems to be a most dangerous policy to pursue, and such confusionists are liable to be stampeded into one of the old parties during a critical period.

Not long ago I became acquainted with a prominent Bryan Democrat and bitter anti-corporation man. I was introduced to him as a rampant Socialist, but he immediately said, "We are in the same boat, inasmuch as we both believe in the public ownership of public utilities." Then they reason that we should join them because our party is so insignificant and theirs cast millions of votes. So there you are.

Only yesterday I wrote to Comrade Wayland protesting against his advocacy of State Capitalism and asked him to clear up confused minds instead of confusing clear minds.

So once more I express the hope that you will everlastingly keep the class struggle and proletarian character of the movement to the forefront, as you have done heretofore. It will lighten the burden immensely of the class-conscious Socialists down here.

There is a most bitter feeling in this country between the two factions of the Democratic party, and if our newly organized local becomes well grounded in the fundamental principles of Socialism we are sure of making very gratifying headway. The Bryan Democrats, through force of circumstances, will have to come to our camp. Our local has 7 members—all of thirty, with more men in sight. Comrade Carlson and myself were appointed to select subjects for general discussion, and we will take advantage of the opportunity.—Anything we can get from Simonds, Kautsky, Engels, Deville, etc., will be brought up for discussion, in order to make clear the difference between State Socialism and Democratic Socialism.

Our most crying need is a speaker of national reputation. I am sure Comrade Vail would be of inestimable benefit to our movement, particularly if he would challenge these political bunco steerers to a public debate.

RICHARD E. RESLER.

West Palm Beach, Fla., April 25.

(Note.—The closing portion of the foregoing illustrates the need of financial support for the National Committee, which some of our comrades are inclined to question. Here we have, at two or three points in Florida, a few energetic and aggressive Socialists, working away, under great difficulties and with little encouragement. A good opportunity for advancing the cause in their state presents itself, but their distance from the centers of the party strength and their own small numbers prevent them from taking full advantage of it. Somewhat similar conditions prevail in the neighboring states of South Carolina, Georgia, and Alabama. The National Committee should be in a position I said the struggling comrades in such states by sending them speakers and organizers at the minimum expense, and without delay. This it cannot do unless it receives vigorous support, both financial and moral, from the party in the better organized states. The National Propaganda Fund is open to all who appreciate this hint.—Ed.)

——The rich get their riches by taking the wealth produced by the workers. The idlers rob the industrious. Yet there are those who see nothing wrong in this system, and uphold it by action and word of mouth. Some of the advocates of this system prate that they are disciples of God, and approve of the denial of some of God's children to the right and opportunities of enjoying the gifts of God's creation. Out on such disciples!—Colorado Chronicle.

Our Esteemed Contemporaries (and OTHERS)

The Socialist, Seattle, Wash.

Weeks ago "The Socialist" asked this question of "The Appeal," which still remains unanswered:

Now we have one inquiry to make of "The Appeal." It is this: When the Democratic Party takes into its platform the plank "For Public Ownership of Monopolies," what will "The Appeal" advise its readers to do?

There was not a word of personality in our references to "The Appeal." We never called its editor by a single opprobrious term, but confined ourselves to an exposure of the political position occupied by his paper. His reply is to denounce the editor of "The Socialist" by name as "a bigot," a "disorganizer," an "enemy of the Socialist cause," an "alleged Socialist," an "antagonist of labor unions," a "little czar," a "DeLeon," a "mistake," even a "Dr.," and advises the comrades to hurry up and get rid of him.

Last week we spoke of Wayland and DeLeon as two of a kind in their resort to abuse and misrepresentation instead of argument. Now we submit that the last issue of "The Appeal" fully sustains our contention. Wayland under fire is very different from Wayland unopposed. Instead of the complacent, benignant, brotherly, fatherly, lovely, good natured "philosopher," he is transformed into the man revealed in the epithets quoted above.

The Wage Worker.

Now that Socialists are making themselves felt at the ballot box, the Associated Press is being used to associate the word Socialist with every uprising or act of mob violence throughout the world. Formerly they were attributed to "laborers" or trade unionists, but as Socialism is more to be feared by the capitalist class than either the violence of ignorant laborers or the strikes of organized labor, they have set about to impress it upon the minds of the American people that Socialism is all that is disorderly, violence or rebellious. That it is a thing to be shunned, even abhorred. But from this, as from everything else, that tries to fight Socialism, the Socialists are deriving the greatest benefit. The more the word is used either favorably or unfavorably, the more people will investigate the subject; and the more that investigate it the more Socialists there are.

Colorado Chronicle.

The Protestant churches have long been on record as opposed to the Socialist movement in all its forms. And now comes the Catholic church and likewise issues a ukase against the great reform movement commonly called Socialism. We are not surprised at this. It shows that the leaders, at least, of the church know something of what Socialism really is. Socialism, when successful and supreme, will do away, not with Christianity, but with all sects. And insofar as the Protestant and the Catholic churches are sectarian institutions, they are in danger of eclipse by this giant social force.

Chicago Socialist.

Tammany, that blood-thirsty political organization of New York City, has passed resolutions denouncing the beef trust "declaring that the poor wage earner is the sufferer." Tammany must have a particular grievance against the beef trust. Perhaps it is owing to its own blood-sucking carnivorous instincts, which its emblem and trade-mark (the tiger) illustrates, that compels them to kick on the price of beef. It seems as if the bleeding of gamblers, prostitutes and other habitues of the Tenderloin, cannot appease its voracious appetite. But let the "poor wage earner" once get good and hungry he won't be foolish enough to waste his vote on a Tammany candidate, but he will vote for Socialism, which will guarantee not only his beef, but his shoes, clothes, and every other necessary article.

Typographical Journal.

The Meat Trust, which has been the all-important topic of the press for some three weeks, is to be proceeded against under the Sherman Anti-Trust Law. We hope the government officials are really sincere in their action against the Trust, but we fear that that wonderful institution, the Supreme Court, will find that the government is powerless to prevent combinations of this character, even though they are an injury to the people. Our courts seem to have queer ideas as to the rights of the moneyed classes, and it is hardly to be expected that they will find a way to pull the people out of the clutches of this new octopus. We presume the Meat Trust is of the opinion that it has a perfect right to regulate the price of its property and to dispose of it when and where it will. Personal liberty ceases when by its exercise the interests of the masses are injured, and if our laws do not now afford relief from the avariciousness which starves men and those dependent upon them, that a few may profit by their misfortune, it is high time the people recognized that fact and framed a new constitution, suitable to the needs of the present hour. There will surely come a day of judgment for the capitalists who now control the foodstuffs of the country. They are sowing the whirlwind. Watch for the harvest.

"GOAK."

"What is Single Tax agitation?" asked Mrs. Brown.

"It's a shaky feeling Single Taxers have when we Socialists get at them," replied Brown, thoughtfully.—The Wage Worker.

——Those who see perfection in the profit system should not be shocked at the vileness of its progeny.—William Mially.

PARTY NOTES.

Puerto Rico has been granted a territorial charter of the Socialist Party.

A local charter was issued last week to Soldier, Idaho.

State Committees of New York, Massachusetts, Colorado, and California have approved and ordered financial secretary's monthly report book for use of party locals. This makes ten organized states using the system.

The state convention of the Socialist Party of Missouri will be held at Springfield on June 7.

H. Gaylord Wilshire, now of Toronto, will be a parliamentary candidate for St. Thomas, Ont.

Wilshire's meetings at Fitchburg and Worcester, Mass., and Rockville, Conn., are reported highly successful. The meeting at Worcester was the largest ever held there.

John C. Chase has spoken this week before the trade unionists and party organizations in Chicago, Elgin, Spring Valley, Lincoln, and Troy, Ill.

Eugene V. Debs was the orator at the May Day celebration in St. Louis.

Boston comrades appreciate the value of the party press. Local Boston took a thousand copies and the Boston Brewery Workers' Union another thousand of our May Day Number—besides smaller orders.

George Davis, of East Peoria, Ill., an ardent and active worker for Socialism, died on April 11, after a long illness.

Comrade August Klenke, who is now organizing in Pennsylvania, reports that Local Erie is making rapid progress, having already over 220 members. A daily Socialist paper, he states, is one of the certainties of the near future and will probably appear in August or September.

The May Day Number of The Worker went into nearly every state and territory in the Union, on special orders ranging from a hundred to a thousand copies. As this issue goes to press orders for the special number are still coming in. Now, boys, you who worked so vigorously to distribute the May Day Number, fall to and work just as vigorously to get subscriptions. You ought to succeed in getting at least one subscription for every ten copies you distributed—and that would mean a big increase in the Socialist vote next fall.

A Colorado man, in ordering forty copies of "Railroading" for distribution, writes: "I am a wage-slave now for the last ten years; have been going down from travelling salesmen to practically the bottom. At one time in the seventies I was 'worth' $50,000, but—"well, it's the story of the fall of the small capitalists, crushed in the process of concentration. It is a bitter experience that makes Socialists of such men, but now they are working to make Socialists of others and put an end to this devil-take-the-hindmost system.

J. C. Harkness of Northport, Wash., is a good Western hustler. He is starting out to organize Stevens County. As a part of his ammunition he laid in 500 copies of our May Day Number and 100 copies of Lee's "Labor Politics and Socialist Politics." He will also act as agent for party papers.

Wm. S. McLean of Anaconda, Mont., is another of the comrades whose steady and energetic work is building up the party so rapidly and so firmly in the Far Northwest. He has been sending in subscriptions to The Worker at frequent intervals for the last two years. Along with the last bunch he sent an order for 500 copies of our May Day Number for himself and several unions in Anaconda, Butte, and Silver Bow. The miners and other workers of Western Montana are getting ready to make a good showing for Socialism in the near future.

E. B. Ford, editor of "The Referendum," the Socialist paper of Faribault, Minn., has been sentenced to pay a fine of $100 and costs or go to jail for 90 days. He was convicted of "criminal libel," having exposed the swindling practises of one of the local capitalist crooks. Ford refused to pay the fine and is now in jail, and, he writes in "The Referendum," is trying to convert his fellow prisoners to Socialism. "The Referendum" will be continued with the help of his wife and the local comrades, the conditions of his imprisonment in the country jail "at Moshier's boarding house" evidently permitting him to continue his editorial work there.

The General Committee of Local New York at its last meeting nominated New York City as the place and July 4 as the day for the next state convention of the party. Eleven new members were admitted to the Local. Morris Hillquit resigning from the C. E. C., Joseph Goldstein was elected in his place.

Local Kings County has nominated New York City as the place and June 7 as the day for the state convention. Eight applicants were admitted to membership at the last meeting of the County Committee. The following districts were not represented and should see that their delegates attend: 1st, 2d and 3, 5th, 15th, 17th, and 17th, Branch 2.

The comrades of the 6th and 10th A. D. will canvass the enrolled Social Democratic voters and sympathizers in those districts in the interest of the Socialist Daily Fund. Comrades Slobodin, S. Raines, Miss T. Fox, and Hannemann volunteered for this work. All members should be present at the meeting on May 9 at the Labor Lyceum, when further action will be taken. The district is also working steadily for the circulation of Socialist literature; at the last meeting the distribution committee reported 35 copies of The Worker and six copies of "Railroading" sold on news-stands and Comrade Slobodin reported 36 copies of "Railroading" sold.

The 12th A. D. will hold an open-air meeting Saturday evening, May 10, at the corner of Pitt and Rivington streets, to discuss the Meat Trust. Later a public meeting will be held in regard to the Socialist Daily.

The 30th A. D. at its last meeting provided for sending out circulars to enrolled Socialist voters. Also bought 50 copies of "Railroading" for distribution.

Walter L. Oswald, of Arlington, N. J., will lecture on "The Industrial Development of the United States," at the Socialist Club, Fulton street and Ralph avenue, Brooklyn, on Sunday evening, May 11.

Comrade Dugan of Cleveland has an excellent article—brief and clear—on "The Basis of Trade Unionism" in the April number of the "Machinists' Monthly Journal."

SOME CENSUS FIGURES.

Bulletin No. 105 for Oregon shows that the individual wage for 1890 was $570, while in 1900 it was $483—a decrease of $87 in ten years. Yet the average product for each wage-earner was $66 more than in 1890.

Bulletin No. 107 for Colorado gives the average wage in manufactures in 1900 as $651, or $38 less than in 1890.

Bulletin No. 115 for Kansas manufactures shows an average per man in 1900 of $455, compared with $470 ten years ago, a decrease of $15.

Bulletin No. 109 for Connecticut shows that the individual wage of the worker in 1900 was $468, as against $487, a decrease of $19 in ten years.

Bulletin No. 114 for Iowa gives an average wage of $408 in 1900; in 1890 the average wage was $400, a single increase of $8 in ten years. But it shows also that the individual surplus product in 1900 was $575, against $491 in 1890, a gain of $79 for the capitalist.

The bulletin for Illinois shows an average decrease per man employed in manufacture of $25, or from $410 in 1890 to $385 in the census year of 1900.

These figures are so p[illegible] child can understand them

They show that despite [illegible] boycotts and hardships of th[illegible] during the past ten years, d[illegible] brags of politicians and [illegible] writers about "prosperity," [illegible] have gone down!—Cleveland C[illegible]

Letter Box

L. P. PHILIPPI, St. Louis.—Shall take up the question you refer to in an editorial soon.

S. SEILER, San Francisco, Cal.—Our reason for not publishing your letter, although it is very brief, is that we cannot give space to a discussion of vegetarianism, which would necessarily follow. Whether you [illegible] right or wrong in considering meat unnecessary and harmful, our criticism of the proposition that we fight the Meat Trust by ceasing to eat meat still holds good. As we pointed out, this combine is more than Meat Trust; it is, or is rapidly becoming, a Food Trust. Your vegetables, fruit, and nuts are partly trustified already and will be completely controlled in a little while; then the "eminent friends of labor" will advise you to fight the Food Trust by living on one meat a day. Before we give our time to discussing what kind of food is best, which, after all, depends largely on personal peculiarities—let us settle this proposition, that every human being must have a chance to get enough of the best food available, if he is willing to work for it.

H. R. KEARNS, Arlington, N. J.—To paraphrase Henry Clay, We would rather [illegible] fight than have 16,000 subscribers who are not going to connive at any tendency to turn the forces of the Socialist Party to the propaganda for State Capitalism, even though, as you intimate, we may suffer temporarily by taking the position we stand. If we can't start the Daily on a sound moral basis it would do no good to start it on a sound financial basis.—As for your 'inference that there is a concerted move to cripple the 'Appeal,'" that is a moonshine. You have found a mare's nest. The Worker doesn't enter into "municipal conspiracies." It fights for Socialist principle. If it happens that several other Socialist papers are now fighting on the same line, that simply indicates that they have a pretty correct idea of Socialist principles.—Don't deceive yourself. We don't envy the "Appeal" its big circulation. Not a bit. So far from wishing its influence be reduced in quantity, we only wish it be improved in quality.

R. E. FRENCH, Medina, O.—Books sent as ordered.—Do you really think it makes any difference to the exploited and underpaid wage-slave whether he is exploited by an individual or by a corporation, or whether the stock of the corporation is "watered" or not? The Standard Oil Company is the biggest stock-owning corporation in the world, and its stock is not watered in the least; its capitalization probably does not represent one-eighth of the actual value of its property. Its exploited employees are none the better off for that. Stock-watering is a question that concerns small investors, but it does not concern wage-workers.—Why should the steel workers be willing to pay Morgan and his pals 6 per cent. on the value of the plant of the Trust? You say the Trust "furnishes the capital for the workmen." That is a mistake. The workmen furnish the capital—dig and transport the ore and coal, build the furnaces and mills and docks, and operate them all and keep them all in repair. Morgan has no more right to 6 per cent. than to 60. It is only a difference in the size of the steal, not in its justice. Our Revolutionary ancestors objected quibble about the amount of the British taxes; they refused to pay any British taxes at all. They set us a good example. Socialists are following it.

JAMES J. FOY, Quincy, Mass.—Were you satisfied? Found that your fears about the May Day Number were groundless, didn't you? After all, 184 William street isn't such a terrible place.—We are working for Socialism and our first desire is to fight the capitalist class direct. But in order to do that effectively we must use all our influence, when necessary, to see that the lines are drawn clear on the class struggle. It is Social Democracy we want, not mere government ownership. Are you not with us on that?

J. E. VAN KIRK, Merchantville, N. J.—We always welcome real aid sincerely given. But when a daily paper denounces the Ice Trust, ostensibly on behalf of the poor, and then asks the poor to vote for the men who committed the Ice Trust crime—when it systematically follows a policy of political betrayal of which that is only one typical instance—we find it necessary to point out the insincerity of that paper. The "Journal" does help us, in spite of itself. Its campaign policy cannot altogether neutralize the effect of its betwen-campaign policy. It cannot betray all the men who it has set thinking. But the credit for that is largely due to the clear-headed Socialists who persistently criticize the "Journal" and show the "true inwardness" of its position.

G. W. LEWTON, Jamaica Plain, Mass.—We know that "scab" is not a nice word. That is why we use it. A nice word does not properly designate a repulsive thing.

OFFICIAL

NATIONAL EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE.—Secretary, Leon Greenbaum, Room 427, Emilie Bldg., St. Louis, Mo.

NEW YORK STATE COMMITTEE—Secretary, Leonard D. Abbott, 64 E. 4th st., New York. Meets every Tuesday at 8 p. m., at above place.

CALIFORNIA STATE COMMITTEE.—Secretary, Thos. Bersford, 609 Stevenson street, San Francisco. Meets on first and third Fridays in the month.

COLORADO STATE COMMITTEE.—Secretary, Chas. La Kamp, P. O. Box 144, Goldfield.

CONNECTICUT STATE COMMITTEE.—A. B. Cornelius, Secretary, Room 8, 746 Chapel street, New Haven. Meets second and fourth Sunday of the month at above place.

ILLINOIS STATE COMMITTEE.—Secretary, Chas. H. Kerr, 56 Fifth avenue, Chicago. Meets first Tuesday of the month, at 1202 Ashland Block.

INDIANA STATE COMMITTEE.—Secretary, Jas. Oneal, 831 N. Third street, Terre Haute.

IOWA STATE COMMITTEE.—Secretary, W. A. Jacobs, 216 E. Sixth street, Davenport.

KANSAS STATE COMMITTEE.—Secretary-Treasurer, W. L. Nixon, Abilene.

KENTUCKY STATE COMMITTEE—Secretary, A. A. Lewis, 331 Scott street, Covington.

MAINE STATE COMMITTEE.—Secretary, Fred E. Irish, 222 Riverside street, Woodfords.

MASSACHUSETTS STATE COMMITTEE.—Secretary, Seaver E. Putney, 4 Belmont Court, Somerville.—State Committee of Massachusetts Socialist Clubs. Secretary, Winfield P. Porter, 614 Windsor Building, Boston; Organizer, Wm. Mailly. To whose address to whom all matters concerning organization should be addressed.

MICHIGAN STATE COMMITTEE.—Secretary, John A. C. Menton, 1315 Saginaw street, Flint.

MINNESOTA STATE COMMITTEE.—Secretary, Geo. H. Lockwood, 125 Nicollet avenue.

MISSOURI STATE COMMITTEE.—Secretary-Treasurer, E. Val Putnam, Room 9, 22 N. Fourth street, St. Louis.

NEBRASKA STATE COMMITTEE.—Secretary, George E. Baird, 1501 N. Sixteenth street, Omaha.

NEW JERSEY STATE COMMITTEE.—Secretary, H. R. Kearns, Arlington. Meets second Sunday of the month at 3 p. m., at 124 Market street, Newark.

NEW HAMPSHIRE STATE COMMITTEE.—Secretary, Louis Arnstein, 18 Watson street, Dover.

NORTH DAKOTA STATE COMMITTEE.—Secretary, Arthur Bassett, Fargo.

OHIO STATE COMMITTEE—Secretary, W. G. Critchlow, 26 Pruden Bldg., Dayton. Meets every Monday evening.

OREGON STATE COMMITTEE.—Secretary, W. E. Richards, Albany.

OKLAHOMA TERRITORIAL COMMITTEE.—Secretary-Treasurer, Dr. H. R. Dean, P. O. Box 1116, Oklahoma City.

PENNSYLVANIA STATE COMMITTEE—Secretary J. Mahlon Barnes, 1022 Arch street, Philadelphia. Secretary, Jos. K. Edelman, 806 North Second street, Philadelphia.

PORTO RICO TERRITORIAL COMMITTEE.—Secretary, Saturnino Soto, San Juan.

TEXAS STATE COMMITTEE.—Secretary, Thos. Hampton, Bonham.

WASHINGTON STATE COMMITTEE.—Secretary, Geo. W. Scott, 86 Virginia street, Seattle. Meets first Sunday in month, 3 p. m., at 220 Union street.

WISCONSIN STATE COMMITTEE.—Secretary, E. Thomas, 614 State street, Milwaukee.

NOTICE—For technical reasons, no Party announcements can go in that are not in the office by Tuesday, 3 p. m.

NATIONAL SECRETARY'S REPORT.

Receipts—
March 1—Balance on hand $172.88
National dues—

Arizona	$2.50
Arkansas	6.25
California	30.00
Colorado	9.45
Connecticut	30.00
Florida	2.50
Ohio	10.03
Illinois	70.00
Indiana	43.32
Indian Territory	1.05
Kansas	9.10
Kentucky	8.40
Louisiana	2.75
Maine	12.50
Maryland	2.80
Massachusetts	75.00
Michigan	10.00
Minnesota	19.55
Missouri	3.00
Nebraska	4.55
New Hampshire	7.50
New Jersey	10.00
New York	25.00
Oklahoma	2.80
Oregon	16.45
Pennsylvania	10.00
South Dakota	4.10
Tennessee	3.30
Texas	29.15
Utah	18.40
Vermont	.80
Virginia	3.90
Washington	24.00
West Virginia	1.50
Received for supplies	11.08
Received for donations	2.50
Received for Propaganda Fund	163.21
Received for postage	.21
Received for refunds	.20
Total	$877.25

Expenses—
Exchange (money order and checks). $1.66
Incidental expenses 11.82
Expense (transportation, etc., Roche, California to St. Louis 60.00
Express 1.07
Freight 1.82
National Secretary, salary 83.33
National Committee (January meeting) 90.71
Office equipment 42.50
Office help (stenographers) 75.10
Organization account (Boomer, Utah) 50.00
Postage 42.03
Printing 83.57
Rent 24.00
Jos. S. Roche, salary 30.00
Stationery 2.80
Telegrams 1.54
W. E. McDermott, account convention report 75.00
Silvio Origo, account Springfield N. E. C. 27.29
April 1—Balance on hand 172.21
Total $877.25

LEON GREENBAUM,
National Secretary.

St. Louis, April 26.

MASSACHUSETTS.

STATE EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE.

Postponed meeting called to order April 24, at 8:15 p. m., with Goldstein, Page, Sherman, Porter, and Mailly present and Goldstein in chair. Minutes of last meeting read and approved. Sherman reported that he could probably turn the records of the last state convention over to the committee within a few days. Voted to lay the matter on table until next meeting.

Letter from Warren F. Wheelock of Webster, explaining that those Socialist candidates who had subsequently accepted the nomination of capitalist parties, had been publicly repudiated by the Webster Socialist organization; accepted and filed.

Voted to furnish National Secretary Greenbaum, at his request, with a list of Massachusetts Socialist clubs with names and addresses of secretaries. Secretary instructed to forward a copy of document No. 42 to National Secretary.

Report of results of referendum A, as submitted by National Secretary, accepted and filed. Voted to endorse action of National Committee in establishing a Labor Lecture Bureau. Communication from Whitman, protesting the action of Socialists in Avon, Holbrook, and Rockland, in participating in other than Socialist caucus, accepted and filed, and State Organizer Mailly instructed to visit the above named places.

Form of communication to trade unions presented by Goldstein, adopted, as follows: "To the Trade Unions of Massachusetts:

"Fellow Workers:—Because of our recognition of the necessity for a thorough examination of the 'labor problem,' and in response to the action of the Massachusetts State Branch of the American Federation of Labor in convention assembled at Holyoke, October, 1901, which voted to recommend to its affiliated organizations that some time be devoted to the discussion of economic questions (including trusts), we the organized Socialists of this Commonwealth, respectfully submit to your honorable body the desirability of a closer acquaintance with the economic doctrines of Socialism. To that end we enclose a list of our officially recognized Socialist speakers, hoping that you may be prompted to invite our workers to appear before your trade organization, that a better understanding may grow up between the two great bodies which are playing a great part, and which are destined to be called to still greater responsibilities in the elevation and emancipation of mankind."

Voted to ask the various state secretaries for copies of their respective state constitutions. Report of auditing committee accepted, and voted to send copy of itemized financial account, covering the time during which Comrade W. E. Dixon served as financial secretary-treasure, to each club.

Voted to accept the resignation of W. E. Dixon as financial secretary and member of the committee, regretting that circumstances have compelled him to withdraw. David Goldstein elected permanent financial secretary-treasurer.

Financial report book submitted by National Secretary Greenbaum endorsed, and recommended that each club secure a copy of same at 20 cents each. Following bills approved: Weeks and Dotem, duplicating, 75 cents; Miss Hopkins, typewriting, $7.50; rent of typewriter, $3; organizing expenses, $7.19; postage and receipt book, $1.19.

The following received from secretary of Somerville club, and similar one from Lynn club, "Resolved, That Section 2 of the state constitution of Massachusetts Socialist Clubs be amended so as to increase the 'Propaganda Committee to seven (7) by adding the chairman and secretary of the political State Committee of the Socialist Party." Accepted and voted that if the secretary shall receive a similar resolution from a third club, the question shall immediately be submitted to a referendum. Secretary instructed to call for nominations from the various clubs for filling the vacancy caused by the resignation of W. E. Dixon, and that such nominations close Monday, May 26, 1902.

Voted that the secretary request The Worker to publish the reports of the doings of this committee in full under the "Official" head.

Adjourned to Wednesday, May 7, 1902.

W. P. PORTER, Secretary.

STATE COMMITTEE.

The Committee met on April 26 at Comrade Koulikow's house, with a majority of the members present.

It was voted to call a meeting of the full committee at 724 Washington street, Boston, Saturday evening, May 17.

It is urged that each local club send in list of city and town committees at once. Last year there were twenty-seven members of the State Committee elected under the Election Laws of the state, and there should be at least eleven more this year, they being elected by the Senatorial District conventions. A caucus held in one city or town can elect delegates to such a convention, nominate a candidate for Senator, and elect their member of the State Committee.

The following are the eleven districts which did not elect by law last year, which have sufficient club membership to caucus for delegates and make our official ticket more complete:

First Bristol District includes Taunton.
Second Bristol District includes Fall River;
Third Bristol District includes New Bedford.
Second Norfolk District includes Walpole.
Third Essex District includes Newburyport.
First Middlesex District includes Natick and Holliston.
Third Middlesex District includes Somerville.
Fifth Middlesex District includes Winchester.
Sixth Middlesex District includes Lowell, Wards 5, and 9 and Pepperill.
Seventh Middlesex District includes Lowell, Wards 1, 2, 3, 4, 6, 7 and 8.
Franklin and Hampshire District includes Ware.

This is the year for Congressional elections, and this is no good reason why we cannot have a full Congressional ticket in the field, as in every one of the fourteen districts we have town or city committees or good club organization from which to organize political committees to do caucus work.

Comrades, wake up! To be worthy of freedom you must be capable of and faithful to every opportunity.

SQUIRE E. PUTNEY, Secretary.

OHIO.

STATE COMMITTEE.

To the Locals and Comrades of the Socialist Party of Ohio.

Greeting:—As you are probably aware, one of the most important measures to come before the state convention on May 30 will be the adoption of a state constitution.

The convention will only be in session for one day, and it is therefore absolutely necessary that the comrades go over the business carefully before going to the convention in order that the work may be facilitated as much as possible.

Every one has ideas as to a state constitution, and it is not the desire, nor the aim, of the state committee to do anything else than to assist the membership of Ohio in getting the laws to govern them that they desire. With this end in view the state committee has caused to be drafted a state constitution which they herewith submit to you, not to adopt, but to read and consider carefully, and to go to the state convention with any amendments that you may wish to offer, this as a base for a new constitution. We hope that this will have the desired effect, and will result in our convention adopting a constitution which will be perfectly satisfactory to all.

We would suggest that these be given to the delegates to the convention to amend and consider. We will also submit, if possible, a list of the probable business before the convention so as to hurry the work along on the convention day. With best wishes, and trusting that you will have a full delegation at Columbus, we remain,

Fraternally yours,
THE OHIO STATE COMMITTEE, S. P.
W. G. CRITCHLOW, Secretary.
Dayton, O., April 28.

CONSTITUTION OF THE SOCIALIST PARTY OF OHIO.

ARTICLE I—NAME.

Sec. 1. The name of this organization shall be the Socialist Party of Ohio, and it shall be affiliated with the Socialist Party of America.

ARTICLE II—ORGANIZATION.

Sec. 1. The business of this party shall be conducted by a state committee, by a state secretary, by state conventions and by referendum vote of the membership.

ARTICLE III—STATE COMMITTEE.

Sec. 1. The state committee shall be composed of one member from each congressional district and a local quorum of five members residing at the seat of the state committee.

Sec. 2. The state committee shall be elected annually by a referendum vote of the membership of the congressional districts, term of office to begin on the first day of December.

Sec. 3. The local quorum shall be elected by the state committee, and shall be subject to removal at its discretion.

ARTICLE IV—DUTIES AND POWERS OF STATE COMMITTEE.

Sec. 1. The state committee shall represent the Socialist Party of this state, and shall fulfill all legal requirements prescribed for political committees. They shall supervise the work of organization and agitation; call nominating conventions, and special conventions when instructed by the membership; conduct the general propaganda work and supervise and direct the work of the state secretary.

Sec. 2. The state committee shall meet in regular session in December of each year at the state headquarters. Special meetings may be called by a majority vote of the whole committee.

Sec. 3. A majority of the state committee shall constitute a quorum for the transaction of business.

Sec. 4. Upon demand of three members of the state committee any question or action of the local quorum shall be submitted to a referendum vote of the whole committee.

Sec. 5. Vacancies on the state committee by resignation or otherwise shall be filled by a referendum vote of the congressional district.

ARTICLE V—LOCAL QUORUM.

Sec. 1. The state committee shall elect a committee of five from the membership of the local branch at the seat of the state committee who shall be known as the local quorum.

Sec. 2. The local quorum shall supervise the state secretary as may be decided by the state committee.

Sec. 3. The local quorum shall form a part of the state committee, but shall be subject to removal by the state committee. On such removal the local quorum shall have no vote.

Sec. 4. The local quorum shall be elected for a term of one year, term of office to begin on the first of January.

Sec. 5. Four members of the local quorum shall constitute a quorum for the transaction of business.

ARTICLE VI—STATE SECRETARY.

Sec. 1. The state secretary shall be elected by the state committee; his term of office to be one year, to begin on the first day of January of each year. The state secretary shall be subject to removal at the committee's discretion.

Sec. 2. The state secretary shall conduct the correspondence of the state organization; grant charters to local branches; sell and distribute Socialist literature; endeavor to organize the unorganized points; report to the national secretary as provided in the national constitution; report monthly to the local branches the receipts and expenditures of the previous month; and such other work as may be decided upon by the state committee.

Sec. 3. The state secretary shall receive such compensation as may be decided from time to time by the state committee.

ARTICLE VII—CONVENTIONS.

Sec. 1. There shall be held annually a state convention, time and place to be decided by the state committee.

Sec. 2. The state conventions shall consider any business relating to the Socialist movement when presented to the convention in proper form.

Sec. 3. No act of any convention shall become a law of the party until approved of by a referendum vote of the membership.

Sec. 4. The expenses of delegates to state conventions shall be borne by the local branches or by the delegates, if so desired.

ARTICLE VIII—REPRESENTATION.

Sec. 1. The basis of representation in all conventions shall be party membership.

Sec. 2. All party members are entitled to a voice and vote in the conventions, and a paid up membership card shall serve as a credential.

Sec. 3. Each local branch shall be entitled to three delegates who shall cast their own vote and one for each signature attached to their credentials.

ARTICLE IX—INITIATIVE AND REFERENDUM.

Sec. 1. Any five local branches in three congressional districts may demand or initiate a referendum vote of the whole membership of the state on any proposition, or on any action of an officer or committee.

Sec. 2. The state committee may initiate referendums by a majority vote of the whole committee.

Sec. 3. All referendums shall be submitted to a vote within fifteen days after being properly demanded, and without comment.

Sec. 4. The vote on all state referendums shall be open for thirty days after the submission of same, and at the end of that time the state secretary shall compile the results and announce same to the membership.

Sec. 5. Congressional committees shall submit referendums concerning the business of their districts upon demand of two local branches.

ARTICLE X—NATIONAL COMMITTEEMAN.

Sec. 1. A member of the national committee shall be elected annually by a referendum vote; term of office to be for one year, to begin on the first day of January.

Sec. 2. Nominations for said committeeman shall be submitted to the state committee during October and the vote taken during the month of November.

ARTICLE XI—STATE HEADQUARTERS.

SYec. 1. The state headquarters shall be located in such place as may be decided upon by the state committee, subject to approval by a referendum vote.

ARTICLE XII—CONGRESSIONAL COMMITTEE.

Sec. 1. When three local branches have been chartered in a congressional district they shall form a congressional committee composed of one member from each local.

Sec. 2. The congressional committees shall act for the party in fulfilling the legal requirements as prescribed by law for such committees; call congressional conventions when so instructed by their membership; assist the state committee in the work of organization and submit referendums concerning the business of their districts and for the election of state committeemen.

ARTICLE XIII—LOCAL BRANCHES.

Sec. 1. Five or more persons can organize a local branch provided they subscribe to the platform and constitution of the Socialist Party and sever their relations with all other political parties.

Sec. 2. No more than one local branch shall be chartered in any city or town but local branches may be subdivided if so desired.

Sec. 3. Each local shall hold at least one business meeting each month.

Sec. 4. Upon the election of new officers local secretaries shall immediately notify the state secretary of the same.

Sec. 5. Each local shall make monthly reports of its membership and general condition to the state secretary upon blanks provided for that purpose.

Sec. 6. Locals shall not co-operate with nor fuse in any manner with any other political party.

Sec. 7. No candidates for office shall accept any nomination or endorsement from any other political party.

Sec. 8. No member shall accept any appointment or position within the gift of any other political party except those required by law or gained under civil service rules.

Sec. 9. A member shall have the right to visit and speak in meetings of other locals but shall not be allowed to vote.

Sec. 10. Should a protest be made against the admission to a local of an applicant for membership, a two-thirds vote of the entire membership shall be necessary to admit such applicant.

Sec. 11. Any person violating the laws and principles of the organization may be suspended or expelled by a two-thirds vote of the members in good standing of the local of which said person is a member, provided that the charge against the member shall be preferred in writing and the accused furnished a copy and allowed a fair trial. An appeal can be taken to the state committee, whose decision shall be final unless appealed to the referendum vote as herein provided.

Sec. 12. Local branches may adopt such constitutions and by-laws as they deem necessary provided the same is in conformity with the state and national constitution.

ARTICLE XIV—MEMBERS AT LARGE.

Sec. 1. Any person living in a city or locality where no local branch exists may apply directly to the state secretary for admission as a member, enclosing one month's dues. The application will then be passed upon and the applicant enrolled as a member at large, and the applicant issued a membership card bearing the words, "member at large."

Sec. 2. The dues of members at large shall be twenty-five (25) cents per month.

ARTICLE XV—DUES.

Sec. 1. Each local branch shall pay to the state committee monthly a sum equal to ten cents for each member in the local.

Sec. 2. Local branches in arrears for dues shall not be entitled to vote on referendum or in conventions.

Sec. 3. When a local branch becomes three months in arrears for dues they shall be notified of same by the state secretary, and if payment is not made within thirty (30) days they MAY be dropped from the rolls.

Sec. 4. The dues shall be receipted for by stamps to be furnished by the state committee at the rate of ten cents each and to be of a design as may be in general use by the national committee.

Sec. 5. Each local branch shall be entitled to receive the first quota of stamps, equal of the number of members in local, on credit. Such quota to remain a standing indebtedness. All stamps received subsequently shall be paid for in cash and the state secretary shall not send out stamps on any other basis.

ARTICLE XVI—PLATFORM.

Sec. 1. The state and national platform shall be the supreme law of the party and all municipal, county, and congressional platforms shall conform therewith, and the state committee is given power to revoke the charter or charters of any such subdivisions violating its provisions, pending a referendum of the whole membership.

ARTICLE XVII—RIGHT OF RECALL.

Sec. 1. Any officer or member of a committee may be recalled at any time by the referendum vote as herein provided.

ARTICLE XVIII—MISCELLANEOUS.

Sec. 1. After the gaining of official recognition as a party no person shall be nominated for any public office unless they have been a party member for at least six months and have participated in the party work.

Sec. 2. All powers not expressly provided for in this constitution are reserved to the party membership.

NEW YORK.

LOCAL KINGS COUNTY.

Local Kings County has now completed its organization and is prepared to arrange its work. Perhaps no other American city contains so many people whose minds must be ready to respond to the logic and inspiration of Socialism. To present the facts clearly without exaggeration, to explain the problems of the day by the philosophy of Socialism, and to convey a thorough and correct understanding of this philosophy is a work than which none has ever been more worthy. We can afford to omit expressing bitter condemnation of men and institutions rather than to omit to show good reason for condemning the present business system, leaving the understanding to draw the plain conclusion. To show the naturalness of the solution and how readily it may be accomplished is to answer questions all serious people are asking.

Good intentions of a great many people must result in nothing until they are moved to common action, organized for a definite purpose. Those who know the signs of the times must build a strong organization for the crisis which is upon us, not only to destroy the present system, but to undertake the constructive work of replacing it with a better. The strength of an organization from depends entirely upon how far its members fulfil what they undertake to do.

For this work a great number of teachers and agitators is needed. Finished training is not required, since the man in the street will sometimes give more thoughtful consideration to the plain statements of a plain citizen apparently moved by his convictions to speak than to the finished professional. The way to learn to speak is to speak and strive to do better. You can never learn to swim while you do not go into the water.

Remember, the capitalist class, by increasing prices and decreasing wages forces from us the expenditure of more and more strength and life for a smaller return in the good things this labor makes. "Dun's Review" shows that cost of living has increased 40 per cent. since July, 1897, that it is only 16 per cent. less than it was when methods of manufacture and distribution were crude. Reports of the last United State Census seem to show that wages are at the same time growing less. It is a matter of government statistics that, while an hour's labor with the improved methods, produces 26 times as much wall-paper, 535 times as many marble slabs, 7 times as much gold leaf, and 73 times as many watches as it would have produced 100 years ago, it now gets 9-10, 2½, 3-10, and 6-10, respectively, as much pay as formerly. These are illustrations. There are many others just as striking. We see at the same time the price of our products is only about 10 per cent. less than when such methods were unknown. The exactions of the Beef Trust are a mere incident in comparison. Better, is it not, to give some of that strength which is left, to us to abolish this system of blood-sucking rather than to submit to conditions even more slavish. Every noble impulse which has depth and is reasonably directed must lead one at last into this work. Every motive of self-interest which is not short-sighted but is wisely directed in the full knowledge of the facts will make a workingman call the attention of his fellows to their common interest and the study of these things. Now is a great opportunity for us. Our opponents see this, if we do not. If Socialists, understanding the situation, will do each some work to extend the movement, we can have in America within a very few years such a movement for emancipation as nowhere else was ever seen. There is work for every one.

As it is physically impossible for him to address personally all who may take a share in the work, it is necessary to ask that this be considered as a personal appeal, particularly to prospective speakers, to put themselves in communication with the Brooklyn organizer. Let us save our hosts about what can be done and ought to be done, comrades, and apply our zeal instead to the doing.

Fraternally yours,
WARREN ATKINSON,
Organizer, Local Kings County, S. D. P.
122 Fort Green Place, Brooklyn.

COUNTY COMMITTEE.

Regular meeting of the County Committee of Local Kings County is hereby announced to take place Saturday evening, May 10, at the rooms of the Socialist Club, Ralph avenue and Fulton street, Brooklyn.

WARREN ATKINSON,
Organizer.

FOR NEW YORK STATE.

Every Socialist or Sympathizer in the State Is Called Upon to Help in the Work of Propaganda.

To the Workingmen of the State of New York.

The Social Democratic Party of the state of New York asks your contribution for propaganda of Socialism. That is provided you approve of Socialism, or the public ownership and operation of all industries for the benefit of all. For it is the supreme object of the Social Democratic Party to secure to every workingman the full fruit of his labor. If you believe that a workingman must surrender the biggest part of his product to Rockefellers, Morgans, Vanderbilts, Goulds, Schwabs, and a swarm of smaller parasites, that they may bestow it on the pauperized nobility of Europe or on the owner of Monte Carlo—why you should support the Republican or Democratic party, for both these parties represent and are owned by the capitalist class. The Social Democratic Party alone stands for the interests of the working class.

Workingmen:—You have heard before our appeals, but you continued to stand in overwhelming numbers by the old parties. With what result? Republican and Democratic legislatures, Republican and Democratic judges are now, more than ever, the tools of your exploiters. Was there a crime perpetrated by the capitalists in which they were not protected by the very legislators and judges for whom you, workingmen, voted? Was there a right which you demanded that was not refused to you by the very men whom you have elected? Why continue to work against your own interests? The Social Democratic Party is your own party. It consists of workingmen and has no other supporters. Help it to spread Socialism. Help us to send out Socialist agitators. Help us to distribute Socialist literature. The dissemination of Socialist ideas means the final triumph of Socialism, and your own economic emancipation. Remember, he helps doubly who helps promptly.

Send contributions to Emil Neppel, treasurer, S. D. P. State Committee, 288 W. 142d street, New York.

New York State Committee, S. D. P.
LEONARD D. ABBOTT,
Secretary.

All monies contributed will be acknowledged in The Worker, "Volkszeitung" and "Vorwaerts."

ARE WE ALL COWARDS?

Compromisers, traders and neutral men never correct abuses, never found or save free institutions, and never fight for human rights. We seem to have been slowly and unconsciously losing our personal independence. Through the scramble for the dollar, the longing for position, political or social, the fear of the press and the dread of criticism, we are all becoming cowardly; cowardly in conscience, in thought, in speech and in action; and we are losing our birthrights. Cow the nobler instincts of man, and he becomes first a slave and then a brute. Independence is the mother of all human progress. It lifts the human soul; it clears the human mind; it ennobles human speech and it exalts human action. Independence inspires confidence and elevates purpose; it searches nature; it measures the stars; it spans the rivers; it tunnels the mountains and it covers the continent with cities. We are trying to establish a higher justice and bring mankind a day's march nearer to the great high plane of human brotherhood. Two centuries ago the world struggled for religious liberty, a century ago for political liberty; to-day it is in the birth throes of industrial liberty. Religious liberty could not live amid superstition but demanded liberal institutions. Political liberty could not live amid kings and aristocracies but demanded republican institutions. Industrial liberty cannot live amid monopoly and injustice and it is calling for higher standards.—John P. Altgeld.

"WHERE WE STAND."

A lecture by John Spargo, editor of THE COMRADE. Originally delivered under the title, "Our Position, Economic, Ethical and Political." Five cents a copy, 10 for 35c., 50 for $1.40, 100 for $2.50, postpaid. Order now.

ILLUSTRATED AGITATION LEAFLETS.

Published by THE COMRADE PUB. CO., 11 Cooper Square, N. Y. "The Worker with the Capitalist Mind," by Herbert N. Casson, fifth edition; "Dialogue between the Machine Gun and the Manser," by Frank Stahlman; "A Lesson from the Donkeys," by John Spargo. You should use these leaflets for distribution, as they are sure to be read by everybody who gets them. Price, 10c. a bundle of 50, one kind or assorted.

SPECIAL.—Upon receipt of 50 cents in one-cent stamps we will send THE COMRADE, an illustrated Socialist Monthly, for three months, 100 illustrated leaflets, and a copy of "Wher We Stand."

THE COMRADE PUBLISHING CO., 11 Cooper Square, New York (373 Bowery.)

LOCAL NEW YORK.

Below is a list of the subdivisions of Local New York, Socialist Party, with time and place of meeting. If you are not already a party member, but believe in the principles of Socialism, do not fail to attend the next meeting of your assembly district, join the party, and go to work.

The headquarters of Local New York are at the Labor Lyceum, 64 E. Fourth street. Julius Gerber is the organizer, and to him all communications should be addressed. The General Committee, consisting of delegates from the subdivisions, meets in the Labor Lyceum, on the second and fourth Saturday of each month.

1st, 3d, and 5th A. D.—Every Monday at 249 W. Eleventh street, home of L. D. Mayes.

2d and 8th A. D.—Second and fourth Thursday of the month, at 73 Ludlow street.

4th A. D.—Every Friday at Pacific Hall, E. Broadway, near Clinton street.

6th and 10th A. D.—Second and fourth Friday, at the Labor Lyceum, 64 E. Fourth street.

7th A. D.—First and third Wednesday, at Colonial Hotel, 243 W. Seventeenth street.

9th and 11th A. D.—First and third Friday, at 436 W. Thirty-eighth street.

12th A. D.—Every Friday at Grand Central Palace Hall, 99-99 Clinton street, Room 5.

13th A. D.—First and third Saturday, at 342 W. Forty-second street.

14th A. D.—Second and fourth Thursday, at 238 E. Tenth street.

15th and 17th A. D.—Second and fourth Tuesday, at 437 W. Fifty-third street.

16th A. D.—Every Friday at 616 E. Fifth street.

18th and 20th A. D.—First and third Thursday, at 421 First avenue.

19th A. D.—Second and fourth Wednesday, at 125 Amsterdam avenue.

21st A. D.—First and third Friday, at Colonial Hall, One Hundred and First street and Columbus avenue.

22d A. D.—Every Thursday at 215 East Fifty-ninth street.

23d A. D.—First and third Friday, at 19 Manhattan street.

24th A. D.—(Branch 1.) Second and fourth Monday, at 850 second avenue.

24th A. D.—(Branch 2.) Second and fourth Tuesday, at 213 E. 59th street.

26th A. D.—First and third Thursday, at 1452 Second avenue.

26th A. D. (BOHEMIAN BRANCH.)—Second and fourth Thursday, at 326 E. Seventy-third street.

28th A. D.—First and third Thursday, at 1497 Avenue A.

30th A. D.—Second and fourth Wednesday, at 206 E. Eighty-sixth street.

32d and 33d A. D.—First and third Thursday, at 1907 Third avenue.

34th and 35th A. D. (BRANCH 1, GERMAN)—Second and fourth Friday, at 3209 Third avenue.

34th and 35th A. D. (BRANCH 2, ENGLISH.)—Second and fourth Thursday, at 3209 Third avenue.

ANNEXED DISTRICT.—First and third Saturday, at Weide's Hotel, Tenth street and White Plains avenue, Williamsbridge.

LOCAL KINGS COUNTY.

The headquarters of Local Kings County, at the Socialist Club, Fulton street and Ralph avenue, Brooklyn, are open daily, from 10 a. m. to 11 p. m., to give information regarding the Local as well as all kinds of literature, including subscription cards for the party press.

The County Committee meets on the second and fourth Saturdays of the month at 8 p. m. The Local Organizer is Warren Atkinson, 122 Fort Green Place.

The following is a list of the Branches of the Local, with time and place of meeting:

1st, 2d, and 3d A. D. (American Branch.)—First and third Friday, at 121 Schermerhorn street.

5th A. D.—First and third Monday, at Emrich's, 5-7 Boerum street.

6th A. D.—Every Wednesday, at 222 Stockton street.

7th A. D.—First and third Thursday, at Blakenfeld's, 1252 Forty-fifth street.

12th A. D.—First and third Saturday, at Turn Hall, Sixteenth street, near Fifth avenue.

13th and 14th A. D.—First and third Saturday, at Eckford's Hall, corner Eckford and Collyer streets.

15th A. D.—Second and fourth Saturday, at 187 Montrose avenue.

16th A. D.—First and third Friday, at 9 Meibougal street.

17th A. D.—First and third Sunday afternoon, at 9 Meibougal street.

18th A. D.—First and third Thursday, at 9 Meibougal street.

19th A. D.—First and third Monday, at Labor Lyceum, 955 Willoughby avenue.

20th A. D., BRANCH 1, GERMAN—First and third Wednesday, at 257 Hamburg avenue.

20th A. D., BRANCH 2, ENGLISH—Second and fourth Tuesday, at 709 Evergreen avenue.

21st A. D., BRANCH 1, GERMAN—First and third Friday, at 615 Glenmore avenue.

21st A. D., Branch 2—Friday, at New Central Hall, 410 Stone avenue.

THE SOCIALIST PARTY.

The party which this paper represents is known nationally as the Socialist Party, and such is its designation in most of the states. In New York, however, it keeps the former name of Social Democratic Party, for reasons concerning the election laws. It has no connection with the Socialist Labor Party and does not approve of the "union smashing" tactics or the abusive methods used by that party. The Socialist—or Social Democratic—Party works in harmony with the trade unions, though without any organic connection. It holds itself free to criticize their policy when necessary, but it approves of the principle of trade unionism. It does not attempt to dictate to the unions nor is it dictated to by them. It calls upon all workingmen to join the unions of their respective trades as a means of fighting the daily battle against the capitalist class and to join and work and vote for the Socialist Party as a means of putting an end to capitalism.

THE TRUST "DRED" SCOTT DECISION

The most important decision ever rendered by the United States Supreme Court prior to 1902 was handed down in the case of the negro, Dred Scott.

That decision practically closed the contention of half a century's duration. It told the people of this country—and logically I think—that no person could be held to lose his right to property by simply taking that property across a state line. It threw down every bar to slavery that state legislation had erected. It brought the whole question at once to final settlement and the only settlement possible—its absolute eradication.

The second decision of equal importance was recently made by the same tribunal; and the effect of this decision, though not so disastrous to life, treasure and property as the first, will in a short period, be recognized as more far-reaching, aye, vastly more, than those of the first. It is the "Dred Scott' decision on the question of trusts.

Thirteen states of this Union have anti-trust laws; thirteen states have erected barriers against the inroads of capitalistic combinations—Illinois, Indiana, Georgia, Louisiana, Michigan, Nebraska, Mississippi, North Carolina, South Dakota, Tennessee, Texas, and Wisconsin—and in some of them, especially Texas, the law has been rigidly enforced. And now, by a stroke of the pen, our Supreme Court—and logically I think—has swept every one into the waste basket of unconstitutionality.—N. A. Richardson, in the Undercurrent.

BUY UNION LABEL GOODS.

R·I·P·A·N·S

I generally had a headache every day. I thought I would try glasses, but still I had the headache. One day my niece asked me why I did not try Ripans Tabules. I have been taking them since last September and am gaining in health. I only weigh 110 pounds, and now I weigh 140. I take four Tabules every day of my life—one in the morning, two at noon, and one every night before I go to bed.

At Druggists.

The Five-Cent Package is enough for an ordinary occasion. The family bottle, 60 cents, contains a supply for a year.

The annual meeting of Stockholders of the Barton Mfg. Co. for the election of Directors for the ensuing year, will be held at the office of the company, No. 338 Broadway, New York, on the 31st day of May, 1902, at 12 o'clock noon.
Dated April 30, 1902. R. WILDAY, Pres.

Dr C. L. FURMAN,
DENTIST,
121 Schermerhorn street, Brooklyn.

COMRADES, PATRONIZE . . .
FRED. SONNENSCHEIN,
UNION BARBER SHOP
84 E. 4th Street, New York.

Where to Lunch and Dine
Comrades, patronize those who advertise in your paper.

ABBOTT BROS.'
Lunch Room,
110 Bleecker St., near Greene St.
NEW YORK.

PATRONIZE . . .
FRITZ'S COFFEE AND LUNCH ROOM. 373 Bowery, bet. 4th & 5th St. N. Y. OPEN DAY AND NIGHT.

LAWYERS.

MORRIS HILLQUIT,
Attorney-at-Law,
320 Broadway. Telephone 2576 Franklin

L. D. MAYES, LAWYER,
245 Broadway, New York City, Borough of Manhattan. Practice in all Courts. Consultation free

H. B. SALISBURY,
COUNSELLOR-AT-LAW
309 Broadway, Room 903. 50 Union Square.

Simon Sultan,
Counsellor at Law.
203 Broadway (Mail and Express Building) 7th Floor, Room 711.
Residence 110 West 120th st., New York.

WHO WILL DO YOUR LAUNDRY WORK?
I. X. L. LAUNDRY, GUSTAV LEIST, 241 East 42d St.

SPECIAL NOTICES.

Under this heading any matter of interest to the Social Democratic Party (Socialist Party) will be inserted at FIVE CENTS PER LINE EACH INSERTION. Six words about equal one line. Cash must accompany advertisement IN EVERY INSTANCE.

DON'T WEAR YOURSELF OUT TRYING TO SPREAD SOCIALISM, but take hold of things by the smoothest handle. New ideas and labor-saving devices in propaganda material. Samples for 2c. stamp. FRANK OHNEMUS, 196 Park Place, Long Island City, New York.

PARASITIC WORKERS.

As the present evolutionary process in the methods of production, the concentration of capital and the consequent elimination of a constantly increasing number of workers not needed in actual productive enterprises advances, the capitalist politicians are contriving all manner of ways to furnish as many of them as possible with unproductive political jobs. They do this for the purpose of holding them as political workers and ward heelers. This is what is called their machine. This is how they keep in office. This is one reason why the PRODUCING class is getting less and less of the product of its toil, yet so many of the WORKING class seem so well provided for. This is one reason why so many who are considered "working people" will have nothing of Socialism—they are depending for an existence upon the public pap doled out to them in this way by capitalist politicians. Every useless public employee is a parasite upon the backs of the real producers. Not only this, but they become the staunchest supporters of capitalism. This is the gravest problem Socialists have to deal with; how to make this parasite "workingman" understand that he is as much a slave to the industrial masters as is the real producer of wealth, and that he should be as much interested in becoming free and independent of these political and industrial bosses as any other wage slave.—The Wage Worker.

——Henry D. Lloyd's "Wealth against Commonwealth," though it was published eight years ago, and even then did not cover all phases of the trust question, is still a valuable book. It is a remarkable exposure of the methods of the Standard Oil Company—which are typical of the methods of capitalism at large. It can be had of the Socialist Literature Co., 184 William street, New York. Price, postpaid, $1.10.

NO TRUSTS! NO PRISONS! NO SWEAT SHOPS!
Shirts, Waists, Collars or Cuffs
BEARING THIS LABEL ARE O. K.
INTERNL. SHIRT, WAI

SPEAKS FOR THE CHILDREN.

Carey's Fight on Child Labor in Massachusetts Legislature.

"Labor Representatives" Elected on Old-Party Tickets, Even Trade Unionists, Support Exploitation of Children—Every Reason Advanced but the True One.

BOSTON, April 26.—If, through the agency of some occult power, the working people of Massachusetts who really care about such things could have seen what transpired in the Lower House last Thursday afternoon, they would have witnessed a strange sight. They would have seen members who claim to represent especially the "labor interests" voting and even speaking against a bill to restrict the employment in factories of children under sixteen years of age. They would have heard these men, trade unionists, at that, put forward the specious plea that because their constituents had not made a special petition for this bill, therefore its passage was not necessary.

The discussion upon the bill could not be dignified by the name of debate. The replies to Carey's argument for the bill were in the nature of apologies for the adverse report of the Labor Committee, rather than arguments against the bill itself. Incidentally some of the Labor Committee members scolded Carey for insisting upon the bill's passage, apparently because he had put them on the defensive in explaining their report. Mr. Callender of Boston, who should be familiar to the readers of these letters by this time as a versatile representative of many conflicting ideas, seemed especially wroth, and directly charged Carey with injuring the people whom he (Carey) was trying to aid, and this because Carey did not accept the Committee's report.

Politicians Dodging.

When the adverse report of the Committee was reached, Carey moved to substitute his bill for the report. Very few members were present at the opening, again revealing the intense interest taken by "Labor's friends" in bills of this kind. Carey called attention to this in opening his argument, saying that some bills during a session, came to be known as "most important." In his opinion legislation that affected the welfare of the children of the people constituted the most important that could come before any legislature; and yet many members did not interest themselves sufficiently in the bill to be present. Any matter that affected the fathers nd mothers of the future was of fundmental importance and demanded the ost earnest consideration.

Carey's Argument.

n order that the importance of this asure can be grasped, we must alize that we are living in a comercial age in which everything is reced to the level of commodities. is age was supported by all races d all creeds. Some one had said t this age was a godless one, but was not true. The present age a god and all races and all creeds ship it—and that god is Profit. In r to satisfy that god the lives and piness of millions of human beings sacrificed daily in blind obedience s desires.

is god Profit had its existence from present system and its reign deded upon the reduction of all g to commodities, and consequentuman labor is a commodity also, beef or old junk. The price of is regulated by the cost of protion, and the trusts recognize this regulating the cost of production d then gaining a monopoly price by ding to the cost of production. Unfree competition supply and dd regulated the price of commodi but under the trust system comtions regulated prices. The only modity now subject to free comion was labor power, except e labor organizations interposed. price of a day's labor is the cost sistence of the laborer for that re The effect of a constantly in- g supply of labor upon the without a corresponding in- of demand is to beat down the of labor. The introduction of saving machinery into industry ws men out of employment, ever s the supply, and reduces the her labor. In former times the slave was put upon the block ld to the highest bidder. At pres- wage slave is put in competi- with his fellows and sold to the bidder. Formerly when a chatave escaped, bloodhounds were his trail to scent him out; now ge workingman need a bloodscent him out a job.

Nine Thousand Children in Factories.

were 29,000 children at work Mills of Massachusetts and the of their competition upon the sent the wages of the workers mills downward. Machinery is constantly introduced that can erated more easily, and the own- the machinery take advantage workers' condition by putting to work and thus throw men the street, intensifying the comn among the workers.

know that those whose interests stake object to any restriction r; these are the people who beat competition is a good thing workers but a bad thing for ves. The manufacturers were favor of restricting child labor, that would assist the workers more wages. The ability of We do to operate the machines wn valuable in the capitalists' d gave the employers more control the price of labor, o increasing profits.

re the economic reasons why this bill should become a law, but there were other reasons which were greater in some people's eyes, ethical, moral, and physical reasons. Carey went on to describe the conditions prevailing in the mills and factories, and related how he had heard that a member of the Labor Committee, during the Committee's recent tour of the factory districts, had to leave one of the mills to avoid becoming sick. And yet we allow children to work in an atmosphere like that! Modern conditions in the mills tend to the deterioration of the moral and physical standard of the children.

Children at fourteen years of age have not matured, and it is torture to compel them to perform such labor at that age. Physical misery results in moral deterioration, and the continual sucking away of their vitality into everything produced unfits them for the duties of later years. Not a man present would put his children into the mill—because they knew that conditions in the factory do not accrue to the fullest development of the child.

Precious Commercial Supremacy.

Carey anticipated the argument that to take these children out of the mills would interfere with the commercial supremacy of Massachusetts. He would ask, Why did men suffer and die to establish this government. Was it to ensure its commercial supremacy? The man who says that flies in the face of history and denies the sublimest theory of human progress. Our highest ideal should rise above the desire to produce a yard of cloth cheaper than a Chinaman. If this Commonwealth of Massachusetts is great it is not because of its commercial advantages, but because it has led in the fight for progress and liberty, and because it numbers among its sons and daughters those who had done the most for freedom, enlightenment, and human elevation. This is what constitutes true greatness.

"What opportunity," he asked, "do you think the children who work in these mills have to develop and grow to the real stature of men and women? What chance have they to learn what is best and greatest in the world? They are kept in a prison-house and denied a glimpse of all that makes the world sweet and worth living in. For them, instead of the glitter of the sun upon the stream, there is only the sheen of the revolving machinery; instead of the cries of nature they are deafened with the roar and din of the factory; instead of the beautiful scenes they have the dust-grimed windows and the monotonous bench and walls of their prison. When Massachusetts is called upon to choose between its children's happiness and commercial supremacy, there should be no hesitation. Massachusetts should stand first for humanity. It is better that one child should grow untrammeled into manhood than that Massachusetts should gain the earth."

Apologists for Child Labor.

At the conclusion of Carey's speech Nightingale of Fall River was recognized, and said as he was raised in a mill he believed it his duty to defend the Committee. Then he proceeded to make the astounding argument that as men and women have to work in a mill it is better that they go in early, as it was impossible for them to become skilled spinners unless they went into the mill young. The sooner the better, and fourteen was not too young. Then, to enact this bill would compel the mother to go into the mill until the children were sixteen. And then again, would it be right to leave the children at home without some one to take care of them? More immorality resulted from leaving children at home than from having them in the mill. It was better for children to go into the mill than have their mothers ground down to keep up the home and the children in idleness. If Mr. Carey would introduce a bill prohibiting women who had become mothers from going into the mills he would vote for it, but he was opposed to taking the children under sixteen out of the mills. The solicitude of Mr. Nightingale for the mothers was quite touching.

Mr. Underhill of Somerville offered an amendment that the age specified in the bill be changed to fifteen instead of sixteen. He said he offered the amendment in good faith, as fifteen was the age at which children generally graduated from high school, and it would be better for them to go to work than to be in the streets. It would not entail much hardship for parents to wait another year, and it would also help labor by diminishing the quantity of labor on the market. He asked every father present to take the question home to himself and consider whether he would care for his children to work under present conditions.

Mr. Cummings of Orleans made an almost unintelligible speech, from which one could gather that he knew that children were not obliged to go to work at fourteen, and it was unfair for Carey to say there were 29,000 children in the mills that would have to come out if the bill was passed, as all these children were not compelled to go to the mills.

McNary of Boston said it was a highly improper thing to have children of fourteen work in the factories, and proceeded to make an extended argument for the bill on moral and physiological grounds. He said that mothers would not have to go into mills under a proper industrial system. He said it was the greed of the parents and not the greed of the capitalists that was to blame.

Schofield of Ipswich opposed the bill because it would bring serious results to the working people. The present law was not enforced and it would be time to talk about this bill when that was done. Mr. Schofield did not explain why the present law was not enforced.

At this point Callender of Boston took a hand. He directed his remarks mostly at Carey, whom he blamed for trying to "force the bill through." The gentleman from Haverhill had injured the cause of the working people instead of helping it. The Committee on Labor this year was the best in thirty years, and he (Callender) had gone on it in order to get a favorable report on labor bills. The Committee was a patriotic one, and had thrown aside personal feelings in order to do something for labor. The committee had united on several bills and thrown aside others to get these through. Mr. Callender repeated this six times, by actual count, seeming to believe this sufficiently convincing to exonerate the Committee. He proceeded to throw a bouquet at the Labor Committee, and with some feeling resented what he called Carey's attack on the Committee. Carey asked him when a criticism of a committee's report constituted an attack on the committee, but Callender dodged the question.

The "Labor Representatives."

Donahoe of Fall River next assayed to defend the Committee. Donahoe is a "labor representative," and gave as his chief reason for opposing the bill the fact that he had not been solicited by the people in his district to support it. He also attempted to criticize the phraseology of the bill by reading a certain section, claiming that that alone would invalidate its passage.

Carey interrupted and informed Donahoe that the bill was exactly similar to the present law, except that the word "sixteen" took the place of "fourteen." He then asked if Donahoe knew that the State Federation of Labor platform contained a plank similar to the bill. Donahoe replied with a cry that Carey was always interfering where he had no business and insisted on chasing rainbows. Carey asked if he (Donahoe) considered a plank in the State Federation of Labor platform a rainbow. Donahoe turned red and angry, and went on to defend the Committee, which he said had received no request from the centers to be affected. Underhill asked what about the children who could not be heard from. Donahoe said the children should have sent a delegation to the House. Wise Mr. Donahoe!

Ross of New Bedford, another "labor representative" and a trade unionist to boot, prominent in the textile workers' unions, also spoke against the bill. He said he did so for the children's sake, for they would be the chief sufferers. He made the brilliant plea that compelling the children to stay out of the factories would cause their parents to lose their wages, and as there were men with families that only received seven and eight dollars a week, it would work a great hardship upon them. It did not seem to enter into Ross' philosophy that it was partly because the children were in the factories that the parents' wages were so low.

Hadberg of Worcester said he didn't pretend to be a special representative of labor, but he opposed the bill because the present law was not enforced. In Lawrence he saw children at work that could not possibly be over twelve years of age.

Jackson of Fall River, still another "labor representative" and trade unionist, also spoke against the bill and defended the committee, which he complimented for its fairness. Stearns of Lowell opposed the bill, which upon a rising vote was defeated by 71 to 23. Carey demanded a roll call, but only 10 responded, 30 being necessary. The Committee's report was then accepted.

Immediately afterwards Carey's bill to raise the school age from fourteen to sixteen came up and was defeated by a vote of 46 to 27.

False Reasons and Real Reason.

Summed up, the following were the arguments for the Committee's adverse report: The Committee had decided to kill the bill to make room for other "labor measures," not one of them as important as this one—a fact well known to the Committee and to those who defeated the bill and to the labor men most of all; the present law was not enforced, a confession of guilt on the part of the administration; the parents would miss the children's wages, an acknowledgment of the poverty of the textile operatives; the children had not asked for the passage of the bill; and the sooner children went to work in the mills the quicker they would become skilled workers—and thus displace the older workers who could not keep up the pace.

The real reason was not mentioned: Because it would interfere with the capitalists' profit-making facilities. It would not do to state that, of course, but everybody knows that is the reason why all such measures are defeated. But what an old story it is, to be sure.

WILLIAM MAILLY.

"ON RIGHT SIDE EVERY TIME."

Herbert W. Cooke, the Boston correspondent of the "Typographical Journal," writes in the May number as follows:

"Representative Carey's bill, accompanied by his petition for trial by jury in cases of contempt of court by strikers who are charged with violating an injunction, was defeated in the lower branch of the state legislature. Even with an adverse committee report, the measure had 55 votes for to 60 against, on a roll call. Messrs. Carey and MacCartney are making a good record this year in standing up for the common people, and are receiving more encouragement and meeting with greater success than ever before. I am not a Socialist (although, as Waudby says, a study of the labor problem seems to lead in that direction); but I cannot help noticing that whenever anything for the betterment of the condition of the working classes, and particularly in the interest of organized labor, is under consideration, these two gentlemen are to be found on the right side every time."

—Did you ever pinch a dog's tail and watch him bite his tail instead of you? You doubtless thought the dog foolish. But the workingmen have done the very same thing for many years. When capitalism pinches the working people, they always fight each other instead of fighting capitalism.—Sioux City Union Advocate.

A LEADING CANDIDATE.

Max Hayes to Go as Delegate from Typographical Union to American Federation.

Comrade Max S. Hayes of Cleveland is probably the leading candidate for delegate from the International Typographical Union to the American Federation of Labor. He is being enthusiastically supported by the Cleveland union, No. 53, and has been nominated by more than 200 locals, including New York, Philadelphia, Indianapolis, Terre Haute, St. Louis, Louisville, Detroit, and many other important places.

A circular issued by his Cleveland supporters states his position as follows, on one of the most important issues in present-day trade unionism:

"Max Hayes is a strong advocate of "Industrial" trade unionism as opposed to suicidal "Autonomy." He believes that all the workers in one industry ought to be under the jurisdiction of one organization, instead of being separated in three or four national unions, each at war with the other, and thus giving comfort and aid to combined employers, as in Pittsburg and many other localities. In this day of labor-saving machinery and centralized capital it is necessary for craftsmen to be in one compact body, which means power and strength for that organization. The employers are combined, why should not we be as well situated, in order to have a solid stone wall of unionism in case of trouble? It means many thousand more members for the I. T. U., as well as better conditions."

THE ARBEITER RING HOLDS CONVENTION.

The "Arbeiter Ring" or Workmen's Circle, a sick and death benefit society of Jewish workingmen, holds its second annual convention in New York City this week, the sessions opening at 83 Forsyth street on Friday, May 9.

The society has made considerable progress since its organization and the prevailing spirit in its ranks is Socialistic. Still greater strength and aggressiveness is hoped for in the future. The General Secretary is our well known comrade, B. Feigenbaum, and the headquarters are at 217 Henry street.

A HUNDRED GIRLS LOCKED OUT.

The Worker is asked by the United Garment Workers to call attention to the lockout by the firm of J. N. Ward & Co. of Peoria, Ill., of the members of the United Garment Workers No. 146.

It was on January 16 that Mr. Ward told the girls in his employ that they might take their choice of leaving the union or leaving his factory. About 25 of the girls submitted and 122 came out, and not one of the latter has wavered in these three months. The national union, with the assistance of the United Mine Workers of Illinois and other organizations, have given them all possible aid; but as only $27 has been paid to each girl in strike benefits, it will be seen that they have not had an easy time.

The union requests that sympathizers all over the country will discriminate against Ward & Co.'s goods and use their influence to force the firm into line. The firm is sending out circulars to its customers misrepresenting the facts in the case—as capitalists usually do. The girls are determined never to submit and, if the firm succeeds in starving them out, to seek work elsewhere rather than to return to Ward's.

Sympathizers who can afford to give financial aid should address Miss Myrtle Weber, Secretary Garment Workers' Union No. 146, 103 Main street, Peoria, Ill.

AID FOR BELGIAN WORKINGMEN.

At a meeting of the Belgian workmen of this city it was decided to request all friends having charge of scription lists issued by our Committee for the benefit of the equal suffrage agitation in Belgium to stop collecting funds for the present, and to deliver the moneys and lists in their possession to those in authority as soon as possible.

The amount collected will be forwarded by us to the National Committee of the Belgian Labor Party, Maison du Peuple, Brussels, who will use the funds for the benefit of the victims.

We acknowledge receipts as follows: From Cigar Makers' Union, No. 165, $25.00; Jos. De Bens, $25.00; United German Trades, $25.00; Socialist Liedertafel, $10.00; Textile Union No. 8, $5.00; Labor Lyceum Association (Sixth and Brown streets), $10.00; list issued by our committee, $93.30; total, $193.30.

Further subscriptions will be acknowledged as they come in.

The Philadelphia committee, on behalf of the Belgian proletariat, conveys its most sincere thanks to all those who have contributed to the fund. We expect, through the medium of the labor press of Belgium, to be in possession of the true state of affairs in that country within a few days.

For the Philadelphia Committee,
J. DE BRUYN.

Philadelphia, April 29.

HOW SHOULD THEY VOTE?

The legislature of Massachusetts has defeated the bill limiting the power of courts of injunction and protecting the right of trial by jury in strike and boycott cases. Messrs. Carey and MacCartney, the two Socialist members, were the only two friends of the measure who stood up and fought for it. In view of the fact that the Executive Council of the American Federation of Labor recently advised union men everywhere to make an issue of anti-government by injunction, the question arises, How should they vote?—The Workers' Gazette, Omaha, Neb.

—The worst thing that can be said about capitalism is that under it Love is reduced to a business transaction—and merchandised affections are invariably shoddy.—William Mailly.

THE UTAH TROUBLE.

Statement of Opposition and of National Committee on Question of Organization.

(The subjoined statement from the National Secretary, embodying a statement from the opposition in Utah, was received too late for our issue of April 27, and it was not deemed advisable to print it in the May Day Number.)

To the Members of the Socialist Party.

Comrades:—Your National Committee having knowledge that the following communication, which has been sent to us, has also been widely circulated among the state and local organizations of the party, as well as the party press, we subjoin a statement of the facts for your consideration:

Opposition Statement.

"Salt Lake City, Utah, April 7, 1902.

"To the Members of the Socialist National Committee and to the Socialists of the United States.—Greeting.

"Comrades:—We, the Socialists of Utah, desire to present a brief statement of the facts existing in relation to the disagreements which have recently arisen in this state among the Socialists.

"On December 28, 1901, a Socialist State Convention was held in Salt Lawe City, Utah. A difference of opinion arising in the convention in regard to proxies, two delegates, representing two factions, were sent to the National Convention in St. Louis. Neither of these delegates were recognized by the National Convention, hence Utah was not represented, or had a vote in its proceedings. The National Committee thereupon, without consulting the party in Utah, or asking permission so to do, and as we believe arrogating to itself power which it does not and should not possess, sent George E. Boomer to organize the Socialists of Utah.

"Therefore, be it Resolved, by the Socialists of Utah assembled in Salt Lake City this seventh day of April, 1902, that we now emphatically deny the right of the National Committee to invade the state of Utah for any purpose whatsoever.

"Resolved, That we claim the right of organizing our own state in our own way in conformity with the National Constitution, to call the convention at such time as we see proper to do so, to decide the number and method of representation, to elect our own state officers and conduct our own affairs as seem to us best suited to the local conditions existing in our own state.

"Resolved, That while recognizing the power of the National Committee under the Constitution to organize the party in an unorganized state or territory when requested so to do, yet Utah is not in that helpless condition, having the ability in our own ranks to organize the state to our own satisfaction and for the best interests of the Socialist Party.

"Resolved, That we, fourteen locals in caucus assembled, hereby respectfully request from the National Committee a state charter, said charter to be sent to Comrade William Bogart of Murray, Utah, temporary State Secretary, or to Comrade Kate S. Hilliard of Ogden, Utah, temporary State Chairman of the Socialist Party of the state of Utah.

"And be it further resolved, that should the National Committee deny this just request that we do proceed to perfect the party organization on plans best suited to secure to the Socialists of Utah state autonomy.

"M. H. King,
"Secretary of Socialist Caucus.
"H. W. LAWRENCE,
"Chairman Socialist Caucus.
"Kate S. Hilliard, Ogden;
"Peter Johnson, Secretary, Murray;
"C. C. Goodwin, Logan;
"Ben Johnson, Third Precinct;
"[illegible] Urie, Cedar City;
"J. R. Johnson, Cayote;
"Jonas Maltson, Salina;
"August Erickson, Salina;
"John E. Anderson, Sandy;
"James Brighthouse, 59th Precinct, Murray;
"Lucie Hoving, Organizer of Ogden;
"C. Anderson, Elsinore;
"G. B. Hobbs of Nephi, A. L. Porter of Eureka, A. J. Shock of Plateau, and F. M. McQuivey of Park City, by proxies per Kate S. Hilliard;
"H. Claude Lewis, Cedar City;
"J. F. Whittemore, Salt Lake City;
"M. E. King, Kingston; Delegates."

The Facts.

At the meeting of the National Committee in January two contesting National Committeemen appeared from Utah, namely, Mrs. Ida Crouch Hazlett and A. B. Edler. Each of these committeemen represented factions of the Socialist Party of Utah which split as the result of a packed state convention held at Salt Lake City on December 28, 1901. The character of said convention was developed in the hearing before the Committee on Credentials and is also admitted in letters on file at National Headquarters received from comrades whose names appear as signers of the above document, which refers to the split as "a difference of opinion in the convention in regard to proxies." The Credentials Committee, consisting of Comrades Job Harriman, Walter Thomas Mills, and George E. Boomer, made the following report on the contesting delegation from Utah.

1. That the charter issued to the state of Utah be hereby revoked and that a member of the National Committee be sent to Utah with power to reorganize all locals and call a state convention, said convention to be made up of delegates from organized and chartered locals on a basis of representation of one delegate to every five members in good standing, no delegate to represent other than the local of which he is a member.

2. That both of the Utah comrades, Mrs. I. C. Hazlett and A. B. Edler, be extended the courtesy of a seat and voice in the committee, but no vote.

The above report was indorsed on the floor of the committee by both contesting committeemen. The question on the report as offered was divided. The first section was coupled with a recommendation that five locals in three states request a national referendum on the action of the National Committee. In this form it was carried by the vote of every committeeman present save Comrade Berger (Wisconsin), who, on request, was recorded in the negative.

The second section also carried. The National Committee furthermore acknowledged the contesting delegates from Utah by electing A. B. Edler as a member of the "committee on Local Quorum" and Mrs. I. C. Hazlett as a member of the "committee on finance," both comrades serving in said capacity throughout the entire deliberations of the committee, Mrs. Hazlett representing at that time, the faction whose names now largely appear as the signers of the before-mentioned document. The statement therein that "neither of these delegates were recognized by the National Committee, hence Utah was not represented or had a voice in its proceedings" is, therefore, not borne out by the records. The National Committee also adopted a resolution instructing National Committeeman George E. Boomer of Washington, "to go to Utah for the space of sixty days if necessary to carry out intention of the committee so far adopted." This resolution also met with the approbation of the contesting delegates from Utah, but nevertheless the claim is now put forth that "the National Committee sent George E. Boomer to organize the Socialists of Utah without consulting the party in Utah or asking permission so to do."

The minutes of the National Committee containing its action on the Utah case were published in the party press in January and while subsequently two objections were received from locals in Utah to the time of holding the proposed unity state convention, none of the fifteen locals in that state nor of the more than 600 locals in the United States questioned the constitutionality of the act of the National Committee.

Furthermore, out of the fifteen chartered locals in Utah, eleven received and recognized the authority of Comrade Boomer. In accordance with the instructions of the National Committee, Comrade Boomer went to Utah, and visited every point save one, where the party was organized.

On March 24, he issued a call for state convention to be held at Salt Lake City on April 7. Said convention was duly held and attended by twenty-two delegates, representing six chartered locals, formed a state organization, elected state officers and made application in the usual form for a state charter. Said application is now in possession of the National Committee, but under the rules of the committee must lies on the table for a period of thirty days before being granted. On the same day that the state convention was held comrades held a "Socialist caucus," from which emanated the document before quoted, questioning the right of the National Committee to send Comrade Boomer to organize the Socialists of Utah.

Constitutional Authority.

The authority under which the National Committee acted is contained in the following clauses of the national constitution:

"Article 3. Duties and Powers.—Section 1. The duties of this committee shall be to supervise and direct the work of the National Secretary; to represent the party in all national and international affairs; to organize unorganized states and territories; to call national nominating conventions and special conventions called by referendum of the party; to submit questions to referendum; to receive semi-annual reports from the state committees and to make reports to national conventions.

"Article 6. State Organizations. Section 1. Each state or territory may organize in such way or manner and under such rules and regulations as it may determine, but not in conflict with the provisions of this constitutions.

"Section 2. A state or territory shall be deemed organized and shall have a right to affiliate upon the organization of not less than four branches, each branch to consist of not less than five members. Each state or territory so organized shall receive a charter.

"Section 4. In states and territories in which there is one central organization affiliated with the party and representing at least ten local organizations in different parts of such state or territory respectively, the state or territorial organization shall have the sole jurisdiction of the members residing within their respective territories, and the sole control of all matters pertaining to the propaganda, organization, and financial affairs within such state or territory, and the National Committee and sub-committee or officers thereof shall have no right to interfere in such matters without the consent of the respective state or territorial organizations."

The report of the Credentials Committee at the National Committee meeting was to the effect that both state organizations of Utah had been effected in violation of Article 6, Section 1. The presence of two contesting committeemen and the existence of TWO CENTRAL ORGANIZATIONS in Utah at that time rendered Section 4 of Article 6 inoperative.

The revocation of the state charter placed Utah in the position of an unorganized state. The National Committee is charged by Article 3, Section 1, "to represent the party in all national affairs," "to organize unorganized states and territories," and it was under these provisions that they sent Comrade George E. Boomer into Utah in order to effect a safe, united and harmonious state organization.

The authority of the National Committee being challenged in the premises, we submit this statement of the facts, together with the sections of the national constitution bearing on the same to the comrades.

LEON GREENBAUM,
National Secretary.

St. Louis, April 21, 1902.

National Platform of the Socialist Party.

The Socialist Party of America in national convention assembled, reaffirms its adherence to the principles of International Socialism, and declares its aim to be the organization of the working class, and those in sympathy with it, into a political party, with the object of conquering the powers of government and using them for the purpose of transforming the present system of private ownership of the means of production and distribution into collective ownership by the entire people.

Formerly the tools of production were simple and owned by the individual worker. To-day the machine, which is but an improved and more developed tool of production, is owned by the capitalists and not by the workers. This ownership enables the capitalists to control the product and keep the workers dependent upon them.

Private ownership of the means of production and distribution is responsible for the ever increasing uncertainty of livelihood and the poverty and misery of the working class, and it divides society into two hostile classes—the capitalists and wage-workers. The once powerful middle class is rapidly disappearing in the mill of competition. The struggle is now between the capitalist class and the working class. The possession of the means of livelihood gives to the capitalists the control of the government, the press, the pulpit, and the schools, and enables them to reduce the workingmen to a state of intellectual, physical and social inferiority, political subservience and virtual slavery.

The economic interests of the capitalist class dominate our entire social system; the lives of the working class are recklessly sacrificed for profit, wars are fomented between nations, indiscriminate slaughter is encouraged and the destruction of whole races is sanctioned in order that the capitalists may extend their commercial dominion abroad and enhance their supremacy at home.

But the same economic causes which developed capitalism are leading to Socialism, which will abolish both the capitalist class and the class of wage workers. And the active force in bringing about this new and higher order of society is the working class. All other classes, despite their apparent or actual conflicts, are alike interested in the upholding of the system of private ownership of the instruments of wealth production. The Democratic, Republican, the bourgeois public ownership parties, and all other parties which do not stand for the complete overthrow of the capitalist system of production, are alike political representatives of the capitalist class.

The workers can most effectively act as a class in their struggle against the collective powers of capitalism, by constituting themselves into a political party, distinct from and opposed to all parties formed by the propertied classes.

While we declare that the development of economic conditions tends to the overthrow of the capitalist system, we recognize that the time and manner of the transition to Socialism also depend upon the stage of development reached by the proletariat. We, therefore, consider it of the utmost importance for the Socialist Party to support all active efforts of the working class to better its condition and to elect Socialists to political offices, in order to facilitate the attainment of this end.

As such means we advocate:

1. The public ownership of all means of transportation and communication and all other public utilities, as well as of all industries controlled by monopolies, trusts, and combines. No part of the revenue of such industries to be applied to the reduction of taxes on property of the capitalist class, but to be applied wholly to the increase of wages and shortening of the hours of labor of the employees, to the improvement of the service and diminishing the rates to the consumers.

2. The progressive reduction of the hours of labor and the increase of wages in order to decrease the share of the capitalist and increase the share of the worker in the product of labor.

3. State or national insurance of working people in case of accidents, lack of employment, sickness and want in old age; the funds for this purpose to be collected from the revenue of the capitalist class, and to be administered under the control of the working class.

4. The inauguration of a system of public industries, public credits to be used for that purpose in order that the workers be secured the full product of their labor.

5. The education of all children up to the age of eighteen years, and state and municipal aid for books, clothing, and food.

6. Equal civil and political rights for men and women.

7. The initiative and referendum, proportional representation and the right of recall of representatives by their constituents.

But in advocating these measures as steps in the overthrow of capitalism and the establishment of the Co-operative Commonwealth, we warn the working class against the so-called public ownership movements as an attempt of the capitalist class to secure governmental control of public utilities for the purpose of obtaining greater security in the exploitation of other industries and not for the amelioration of the conditions of the working class.

PARTY BUTTONS.

We now manufacture three different sizes in one-half, seven-eighths, and one and a half inch diameter. Either Socialist Party, Social Democratic Party or the one-half inch size simply with Arm & Torch Emblem:

CASH MUST ACCOMPANY ALL ORDERS.

1 Button . .	5 Cents.
12 Buttons . .	25 Cents.
25 Buttons . .	50 Cents.
100 Buttons . .	$1.75

SOCIALIST LITERATURE COMPANY,
184 WILLIAM ST., NEW YORK.

MILLS IN SAN FRANCISCO.

Walter Thomas Mills' Sunday afternoon lectures in the Metropolitan Temple, San Francisco, are drawing big crowds. The course began April 6 and ends June 8. The titles are suggestive, showing how Comrade Mills takes up "questions of the day" from the Socialist standpoint. They are as follows: Chinese Exclusion, Chinese Workshop, and Chinese Market; President Roosevelt's War on the Trusts and Its Outcome; Nora Fuller and the Children of the Unemployed (referring to a sensational murder case); The Small Merchant and the Department Store; The Classes at Home and the Castes of the Orient, or Classes which Struggle and Classes which Don't; Organized Labor, Organized Capital, and Their War; The Child Worker, Driven from the Playground and Schoolhouse, Forced Into the Factory, and Denied the Ballot-box; What Is Socialism? and How to Meet the Issue; Current Political Parties and Problems; How the Worker Who Makes Things May Protect Himself from the Shirker Who Takes Things.

Judge Short of Fresno arranged to debate the question of Socialism with Comrade Mills; but when Mills arrived in Fresno the Judge reported that he had been busy and was very tired and would be unable to speak. It is understood that after arranging to debate he went to San Francisco and heard Mills speak in the Metropolitan Temple. The question is whether Mills made him so tired that he was unable to speak on reaching home; or was the Judge really converted to Socialism and unwilling to place one straw in its way—which is about what his speech would have amounted to had he not been weary.

The Mills International School of Social Economy has started a class in New Zealand and one in Bombay, India. True to its international name!

Comrade Mills' present address is 2 Octavia street, San Francisco.

—Vandervelde's "Collectivism and Industrial Evolution" is a good book for the serious student of Socialism. Cloth, 50 cents; paper, 25 cents. Socialist Literature Co., 184 William street, New York.

BROOKLYN LABOR LYCEUM.

Fellow-Workers: As you no doubt are aware, the reconstruction of the Brooklyn Labor Lyceum has been commenced. As this building is to be a monument to the solidarity and harmony of the workers, we, the Brooklyn Labor Lyceum Association, deem it our duty to deposit a correct record of the present economic and political situation in the corner-stone. You are therefore requested to prepare and send to us a short sketch as to the aims, objects, successes achieved, etc., by your organization, the same to be used for the purpose above mentioned. As the time allotted us is a very limited one we would request that all communications be sent no later than May 24, as the ceremony takes place May 30.

With fraternal greeting,
H. CANTIUS,
TH. RAFFA,
WM. SEUBERT,
The Committee.

P. S.—It is requested that the communications be written upon parchment or linen paper with indellible ink as a precaution aginst dampness and fading.

FATE'S FAIRER FAME.

In ev'ry land there shall arise
A people full of hope and mirth,
With music mounted to the skies
And glory girt about the earth;
Like waking flowers all bright with dew,
Like roses opning to the sun;
The souls of men shall hail in view
A golden life for ev'ry one.

Pale weariness shall be unknown,
And greedy care shall pass away,
No more shall tolling millions moan,
And weep their fate from day to day;
Like songs in June from happy birds,
Like wimpling waters in a wood,
Like hero's will in poet's words,
Shall life be felt and understood.

The dream shall be the day's delight,
And beauty, Art's perpetual boon,
No fear shall mar the silent night,
No grief invade exultant noon;
But valor walking ev'ry land,
And honor circling ev'ry brow,
And good will gleaming from all eyes,
Shall fate with fairer fame endow.

In ev'ry heart there shall upspring
An impulse new, of noble birth,
And with and grace and worth shall ring
A glow of fancy o'er the earth;
And laughter o'er the lips of men,
Shall leap alive with artless glee,
And kindness in its kingdom then,
Shall reign supreme from sea to sea.

—David Lowe, in The Comrade.

—Some Americans act as if they never would forgive their ancestors for being foreigners.—William Mailly.

TO SUBSCRIBERS.

The date on which your subscription expires will be found on the wrapper.

The paper will be stopped on that day unless previously renewed.

No bills or receipts sent to individual subscribers.

The Worker.

AGENTS, ATTENTION!

Agents sending in subscriptions without remittance must state distinctly how long they are to run.

Agents are personally charged and held responsible for unpaid subscriptions sent in by them.

Only duly elected and approved agents acknowledged.

VOL. XII.—NO. 7. NEW YORK, MAY 18, 1902. PRICE 2 CENTS.

FOR THE DAILY.

Publishing Association Effects Permanent Organization.

Job Harriman Elected President—Account of Work Done and of Plans Now Under Way.

The Workingmen's Co-operative Publishing Association held another general meeting in the Labor Lyceum last Monday evening at which Henry L. Slobodin acted as chairman and William Butscher as secretary pro tem.

The first business was the consideration of the constitution, left uncompleted at the last meeting. This was discussed at length, several changes made in the committee's draft, and the whole as amended was finally adopted.

Eleven new members were admitted to the Association and four more were proposed for membership, to be voted on at the next meeting, which will be held on call of the Board of Managers [illegible] notice of which will be published in this paper.

The conditions of membership in the [illegible] C. P. A. are: First, the applicant must be a member in good standing of the Socialist Party—called in New York the Social Democratic Party; second, he (or she) must buy one share of stock for $5—$1 to be paid on the proposition of his name, $1 on his admission, [illegible] Press [illegible] within one year.

Elected.

The Board [illegible]ers was next in order, [illegible]ades were nominated [illegible] President, but all [illegible] Mother of Job Harriman, [illegible] For the be[illegible]ously elected.

[illegible] York and [illegible]pern was the unanimous [illegible] the Treasurer of the Association.

As members of the Board of Trustees there were elected John Nagle, Morris Hillquit, Edward Loewenthal, H. C. Bowerman, Alexander Fraser, Henry L. Slobodin, and William Butscher.

For members of the Advisory Board the choice fell to Courtenay Lemon, Theodore F. Cuno, E. P. Clark, E. M. Martin, N. S. Reichenthal, and David D. Rubinow.

The Auditors chosen are, for the short term, M. Winchevsky and S. Godbarth, and for the long term, Wm. J. F. Hannemann.

The Board of Management was instructed to elect at once a Committee on Ways and Means and a desire was expressed that all organizations intending to arrange entertainments, etc., for the benefit of the Socialist Daily Fund communicate with this Committee and act in co-operation with it. The Board was further instructed to report at the next general meeting on preliminary plans for a grand fair to be held for the benefit of the Fund. Also to report upon the continued employment of an agent to take general charge of the work, such agent to be paid from the treasury of the Association, not from the Fund.

Butscher's Work.

The work inconnection with the raising of the Fund, is under the supervision of Comrade Butscher, beginning to take concrete and definite shape. Most of the work so far done has been preparatory and results will show later.

About half the districts in Manhattan and Bronx are now at work soliciting pledges and contributions and collecting payments on pledges, an dthe others will be visited within the next two weeks.

Comrade Butscher has also visited the Kings County Committee and arranged for a general meeting of comrades and sympathizers in Brooklyn to be held about June 1. It is hoped that Comrade Debs can be secured to address the meeting, along with others. The exact date and arrangements will be announced later.

Similar steps will be taken in Hudson and Essex Counties, N. J. The comrades there are requested to be ready to co-operate with the Association in the movement.

Comrade David Rubinow of 65 Sherman avenue, Newark, has been chosen as agent in Essex County and pledges andc ontributions may be made to him direct by residents of that county, to whom also he will gladly give desired information.

Comrade Butscher makes the statement:

"After revising the pledges and correcting some errors in the list I find that the amount pledged prior to May 5 is $5,326.50 and the amount collected on pledges and donations is $878.53."

Amounts Pledged.

Following is a statement of amounts pledged for the Socialist Daily Fund up to May 13:

Previously acknowledged	$5,326.50
Dr. Jos. Harvitt, City	25.00
A. Schoenberg, City	5.00
John Frankenpohl, Newark	5.00
H. D.	10.00
A. Milstein, Newark	5.00
Aug. Waldinger, City	25.00
Henry A. Steinbock, City	10.00
	$5,411.50

Cash Receipts.

The following amounts have been received on pledges and donations:

PAID ON PLEDGES.

H. Heerlein	$2.00
Aug. Waldinger	2.00
Dr. Jos. Harvitt	2.00
Job Harriman	2.00
Algernon Lee	5.00
W. W. Passage	8.00
A. S choenberg	1.00
Victor Schneider, Yonkers	2.00
Carl Classen	2.00
H. D.	1.00
Dr. I. M. Rubinow	2.00
F. M. Hill	3.00
J. Corrales	1.00
L. D. Abbott	5.00
O. Wegener	1.00
Theo. E. F. Schorr, Buffalo	1.00
Timothy Ivers, Graniteville, Vt.	1.00
H. A. Steinbock	1.00
Otto Christoph, Buffalo	1.00
H. R. Kearns, Arlington, N. J.	1.00

CASH DONATIONS.

Elias Aronowitz	2.00
Geo. Laubenstein, Marlboro, Mass.	1.00
D. A. 49, K. of L.	10.00
Alb. Hohl	1.00
Louis Abramowitz	1.00
C. Rice, Boston	1.00
Louis Meyer	5.00
Hugo Wester, Newark	5.00
Emil Zimmerman, Newark	1.00
B. C. G.	1.40
Previously acknowledged	878.53
Total	$950.93

Notice to Contributors.

Pledges should be drawn and checks and money orders made payable to the Socialist Daily Finance Committee. All communications should be addressed to the newly elected Agent of the Committee, Wm. Butscher, Labor Lyceum, 64 E. Fourth street, New York

The Worker will contain, each week, a list of contributions received up to Monday preceding the date of issue.

If any contribution sent is not promptly acknowledged the sender should at once inform the Committee, that the matter may be investigated and set right.

Those who have made pledges should remember to send in the monthly instalments promptly, saving the trouble and expense of notifying them. Let each one feel his personal responsibility for the work we have undertaken and his power to hasten the coming of the Socialist Daily.

The Board of Management, consisting of the President, Treasurer, Trustees, and Advisory Board, will meet at the Labor Lyceum Monday, May 19, at 8 p. m.

PLEDGE.

To Job Harriman, Dr. Julius Halpern and Leonard D. Abbott,
Socialist Daily Finance Committee:

I hereby pledge myself to contribute for the publication of an English Socialist Daily the sum of $.....to be paid in monthly installments of $.....

Name .....

Address .....

IMPORTANT MEETING OF LOCAL NEW YORK.

In accordance with the By-laws of Local New York, a general meeting of the Local will be held on Sunday, May 18, at 2 p. m., in the Club House, 206 E. Eighty-sixth street. Membership cards must be shown at the door.

The order of business is the consideration of the following questions:

1. Shall the Social Democratic Party of this city concentrate its agitation this year in certain Assembly Districts with the view of achieving political success?

2. Shall the trade unions be invited to take part in the conventions of the Social Democratic Party?

It is proposed to limit the length of speeches to five minutes.

JULIUS GERBER, Organizer.

COMPETITION AND CRISES.

The perfectibility of machinery, carried to its highest point by the stimulus of anarchy in production, converts itself into an imperious command that compels the capitalist, engaged in industry, ever to improve his machinery and ever to increase its productive capacity. The bare possibility there exists to extend the field of his production also converts itself into a command that drives him on with equal imperiousness. The enormous power of expansion of industry on a large scale, in comparison to which that of the gases is but child's play, now stands out as a qualitative and quantitative necessity for expansion that mocks all resistance. The resistance is offered by consumption, by the sales, by the markets for the products that are turned out by the industry in gross. But the power of expansion, extensive as well as intensive, which exists in the markets, is primarily governed by quite another set of laws that operates with much less vigor. The expansion of the markets cannot keep step with the expansion of production. A crash becomes inevitable, and, seeing it can lead to no solution, so long as it does not burst the capitalist mode of production itself, it must be of periodic recurrence.—Frederick Engels, in "Socialism, Utopian and Scientific."

—Incorporated wealth is opposed to Socialism. Do you know why? Find out what Socialism is and you will know.

IN ESSEX COUNTY.

Convention at Newark Saturday Night to Nominate Full Ticket and Open Campaign.

The Socialist Party of Essex County, N. J., holds its nominating convention on Saturday evening, May 17, at the party headquarters, 124 Market street. The session is to begin promptly at 8 o'clock, as there is a great deal for the convention to do before it adjourns.

Every comrade in Essex County should make it a point to attend and take part in the work of this convention. It is desired to nominate, as nearly as possible, a full ticket—congressional, county, and municipal—ninety-eight candidates in all.

Essex County is a very important industrial center and harmonious and energetic work on the part of the comrades from now till Election Day will surely roll up an enormous vote for Socialism. It is not enough that the comrades vote the ticket and pay their dues; they must take an active personal interest in the party work in order to make it successful.

The campaign will begin at once and will be kept up persistently till November—and then it will be time to begin again. Funds are needed and the services of faithful comrades are needed to organize and educate the workingmen of Essex County. Let a good beginning be made Saturday night.

IN ST. LOUIS.

Over Four Hundred Delegates Attend Enthusiastic City Convention of the Socialist Party.

The city convention of the Socialist Party of St. Louis, on May 4, was attended by more than four h undred delegates and was marked with great enthusiasm.

An incident which happened in the early part of the proceedings furnished an excellent demonstration of the working class basis of the Socialist movement and the thorough accord between the Socialist Party and the trade unions. The call for the convention stated that it would be called to order at Druid's Hall at one o'clock. When the delegates began to arrive, however, it was learned that the hall was employing two non-union painters in the basement of the building and after the temporary organization had been perfected it was unanimously decided to leave the hall and hold the convention at Delabar's Hall, Broadway and Elm streets. The delegates filed out of the hall and formed into a parade which extended for a distance of five or six blocks and in a drizzling rain marched down to Delabar's Hall, crowding it to the doors, many being compelled to stand throughout the deliberations of the convention. To those who knew the purpose of this action, it was indeed an inspiring sight. Over four hundred men gathered together for the purpose of nominating a working class ticket, with one accord register a stinging rebuke to an employer of scab labor and march forth in the rain in order that their rebuke may not be misunderstood.

Comrade John C. Chase addressed the convention and raised the already abundant enthusiasm of the delegates to the highest pitch.

Plans for organization and agitation were laid out, and platform and a strong manifesto to the wage workers of St. Louis were adopted. Campaign pledges were circulated among the delegates, which resulted in the pledging of $106.

Nominations for candidates for sheriff resulted in the selection of Comrade L. E. Hildebrand, of Boot and Shoe Workers' Union No. 25. There were three candidates to be chosen for judge of Circuit Court, which, upon vote, resulted in the selection of Comrades Paul Fromm of Brewers (alsters Union No. 6; A. E. Sanders n, clerk, and W. J. Lewis, clerk. Upon motion, the selection of a candidate for judge of the Court of Criminal Correction was referred to the City Central Committee, there not being enough attorneys present to fill the nomination at the convention. For judge of the Probate Court, Wm. H. Holman, of the Railway Clerks' Union. For Clerk of the Circuit Court, Phil H. Mueller, of Cigarmakers' Union 44. For Clerk of the Criminal Court, Leonard Stoll, of Tailors' Union 11. For clerk of the Court of Criminal Correction, J. H. Buttrell, of Machinists' Union 85. For clerk of the Probate Court, W. T. Smith, of Carpenters' Union 5. Nominations for prosecuting attorney and assistant prosecuting attorney were referred to the City Central Committee for the same reason as that in the case of the judge of the Court of Criminal Correction. Nomination for coroner took the same course. For Recorder of Deeds, D. C. Ward. For License Commissioner, W. C. Eggerman, Beer Bottlers' Union 187.

Nominations were then made for candidates for Congress in the respective districts, resulting as follows:

Tenth Congressional District, Wm. M. Brandt, of Cigarmakers' Union 44.

Eleventh Congressional District, S. A. McInturff, of Stove Moulders' Union.

Twelfth Congressional District, nomination referred to City Central Committee.

—Comrade Edmiston of Riverside, Cal., writes: "We are gradually extending The Worker to the "Appeal" followers, as it helps to straighten out the kinks in their brand of Socialism."

NEGROES TO BREAK STRIKES?

Remarkable Proposition Made to Boston Millionaires.

Representative of Carolina Industrial School for Colored People Offers Their Services as Scabs in Exchange for Capitalists' Donations.

The Twentieth Century Club, a society of cultured Boston aristocrats, held an interesting meeting the other day. The Reverend C. F. Dole, the new president of the Club, imparted the odor of sanctity to the occasion in a brief address. Then he introduced J. W. MacDonald, Agent for the Massachusetts State Board of Education, who said a number of things about the public school system, which were either very good or very bad, according to the application made of them.

The principal invited speaker of the day, however, was a negro, a Mr. Dunham, who is in New England soliciting money for the industrial education of the colored people of North Carolina. Mr. Dunham knew he was addressing an audience of capitalists—good, pious, shrewdly philanthropic, profitably benevolent gentlemen—and he talked straight to their hearts, which they carry in their pocket-books.

Mr. Dunham carefully explained that it was not proposed to give the colored people a "scholarly" education, but only to train them to be good mechanics and factory "hands." He said in part:

"There are a million and a half of boys and girls of my race who need training and we want to give them an industrial training. The white men of the South would help them if they had an industrial training, but they do not want to have anything to do with them if they only have a scholarly education. You could employ them here if they had an industrial education and they would help you.

To Train a Million Scabs.

"Look at the great strikes you are having, and every time you have to make concessions. You have to do it. There are the carpenters. They get $2.50 a day and next week they want $3 a day, and you will have to give it. Next year they will want $4 a day and seven hours, and you will have to come again. After a while their union will demand $5 a day and six hours. It is coming. But if you educate this million and a half of colored boys and girls and make skilled laborers of them they will take the place of these strikers.

"You talk about trusts; although they are dangerous, these labor unions are far more dangerous than they are.

"Now you have a million and a half of young people thirsting for knowledge and education and it embarrasses me to come here year after year to ask for money. But the people down there need money. So long as Boston stands, though, we shall always have backers of my class. There is your President. I have called upon him three times and he always gave me money."

Bitter Feeling Aroused.

The plainness with which Mr. Dunham put his proposition that, in return for the money which the millionaires should give, the negroes should help break strikes for the Northern capitalists, has called forth much comment among workingmen and is likely to cause considerable bitterness.

Booker T. Washington, the well known negro educator, who has been cultivated to a great extent of late by "eminent citizens" and whom President Roosevelt invited to dinner, expresses much the same feeling, though not in quite such plain language.

AID FOR BELGIAN VICTIMS.

We wish to report through the columns of The Worker additional receipts for the benefits of the families of those who were shot down by the troops, injured, or cast into prison during the late agitation for equal suffrage in Belgium.

Previously acknowledged	$193.30
Socialist Party, Flemish Br., second contribution	15.00
Collected by Philadelphia "Tageblatt"—Illing, $1; H. Baumgarten, $1; A. Malkus, $2; P. B., $1; Jos. Edelman, $1	6.00
German Machinists' Union	5.00
Brewers' Union	5.00
Sick and Death Benefit Society, Br. 95	5.00
Collected on lists	15.35
Total	$244.65

Our committee will meet for the last time on Sunday, June 1, at 11 a. m., at the Labor Lyceum, Sixth and Brown streets, Philadelphia. All friends having lists or money in their possession donated for the Belgian victims are requested to settle on or before that date.

The "Werker" of Antwerp, Belgium, informs us that the Liberal Party, who had promised to stand by the Socialists in their demand for equal suffrage, withdrew their support from the movement at the eleventh hour, and that the Council of the Belgian Labor Party, seeing that the government was determined to butcher the people rather than give them justice, decided to discontinue the general strike for the present. The agitation is not dropped, however, but will be continued on other lines. The election for one-half of the members of the Chamber of Representatives will be held in a few days. The expectation is that a greatly increased vote will be given to the candidates of the Labor Party, with a probable gain of seats.

For the Philadelphia Committee,
J. DE BRUIN.

WAGES FALLING IN NEW YORK.

Census Shows Absolute Decrease of Average Wages.

Figures Summarized from Census Bulletin No. 159—Average Product Largely Increased, but Workers' Share Reduced.

The Census statistics of manufactures of the state of New York conclusively establish the fact that New York is pre-eminently a manufacturing state. The greatest number of wage-earners employed at any one time in 1900 was 1,091,026, or 15 per cent. of the total population of the state, which constitutes the bulk of the available working population of the state. The average number of wage-earners of the state of New York for 1900 is 849,056, or 11.7 per cent. of the entire population.

A comparative summary of the thirty-six leading industries of the state of New York for 1900 and 1890 reveals the significant fact that while the capital invested in these industries increased 52 per cent. and the value of the total product increased 27.6 per cent., the average number of wage-earners employed in those industries increased only 12.8 per cent. and the total wages paid to those wage-earners increased only 11.1 per cent. That is, the increase of the total sum paid in wages did not even keep up with the increase of the number of wage-earners. The evident result was that the wages of the wage-earners declined. And so we find that the per capita wages of the wage-earners in the thirty-six leading industries of this state were in 1890 above $474, and that in 1900 the wages fell below $467. Coupled with the undisputable increase of the prices of the necessities of life, or the decrease of the purchasing power of the wages, these figures offer a good subject on which the Socialist, and especially the trade unionist may meditate to his advantage.

Product Increased.

And this decrease of wages has taken place in the face of the fact that the total value of the product, including the cost of materials, of each wage-earner has increased from $2,203 in 1890 to $2,746 in 1900. In other words, the capitalist has appropriated to himself all the fruits of the increased productivity of the wage-earner resulting from the improvement of machinery during the last decade, and at the same time has further increased his profits by diminishing absolutely the share of the wage-earner. Summing up the result of a ten years' battle of the workingmen of the state of New York with their exploiters—the workingman have lost considerable ground.

Skilled Trades Suffer.

An examination of the wages of various trades shows that the biggest slump of wages has occurred in the skilled trades. The printers and compositors employed on newspapers and periodicals lead with a decrease from an average per capita wage of $775 in 1890 to $634 in 1900. And Brother Cummings all the time in Congress, too! The printers should see to it that Bob Campbell or Brother Donnelly gets into Congress; then they will be sure to reach $550 in 1910.

But while the wages of the printers still tower above the general average, the factory furniture makers have come down with a thud to the common level. The average wages of the factory furniture makers decreased from $574 in 1890 to $482 in 1900.

The Shoe Workers.

But the most startling decrease of wages occurred in the boot and shoe trade, factory product. The average wages of the factory boot and shoe workers decreased from $432 in 1890 to $388 in 1900. Every trade unionist should take those figures to heart. Here is a trade that may be classed among the skilled. We find that the wages of the wage-workers in this trade were, in 1890, $42 below the general average wages, and we now find that, while the general average wages decreased, the wages of the boot and shoe workers fell still further to $80 below the general average, sinking to the starvation level—for wages which are $80 below the general average are starvation wages. This reveals the secret of the invasion of Europe by the American shoe. The shoe workers have cause to swell with patriotic pride. We earnestly call the attention of Mr. Tobin and Mr. Eaton to the above figures. If I am not mistaken the International Boot and Shoe Workers' Union claims jurisdiction over New York Rights involve responsibilities. We will await the explanation of the I. B. & S. W. U. with a feeling that is not mere curiosity.

Textile and Clothing Trades.

The wages of the workers in the textile industries show a slight increase, from $542 in 1890 to $546 in 1900. A very poor showing considering the volume of agitation against child and woman labor in that industry!

The wages of the factory men's clothing workers increased from $445 in 1890 to $473 in 1900, and those of the factory women's clothing workers increased from $437 in 1890 to $451 in 1900. It must, however, be borne in mind that the 1900 wages of the factory clothing worker are undoubtedly above his average during the last decade, while this cannot be said with a similar degree of certainty of the 1890 wages in relation to the preceding decade. It must be also remembered that the census enumerators often include the small "sweater" in the wage-earning class.

Clothing manufacturing is now the leading industry of this state. It gives employment to 90,017 wage-earners, or 10.6 per cent. of the wage-earners of this state; and their product is valued at $233,370,447, or 10.7 per cent. of the total value of the products of the state.

Labor Intensified

Though the average wages of the workers in the shirt industry show a gratifying increase from $289 in 1890 to $347 in 1900, a further examination of the figures arouses some misgivings. The number of wage-earners employed in this industry has decreased from 17,948 in 1890 to 13,565 in 1900, while the value of the total product has increased from $17,483,958 in 1890 to $22,782,302 in 1900, or 30.3 per cent. What increased intensity of labor, what "screwing up" of speed of machinery was necessary in order to obtain these results, may be easily imagined.

The wages of the cigar and cigarette makers decreased from $457 in 1890 to $428 in 1900. They fell from $17 below the general average wages to $39 below the average—the average wages decreasing at the same time. In Greater New York the Census shows 11,634 men (of sixteen years and over) cigar and cigarette makers, their wages averaging $506; and 8,830 women cigar and cigarette makers, their wages averaging $336.

Humbug, thy name is Prosperity!

HENRY L. SLOBODIN.

New York, May 11.

FOR NEW YORK STATE.

Every Socialist or Sympathizer in the State Is Called Upon to Help in the Work of Propaganda.

To the Workingmen of the State of New York.

The Social Democratic Party of the state of New York asks your contribution for propaganda of Socialism. That is provided you approve of Socialism, or the public ownership and operation of all industries for the benefit of all. For it is the supreme object of the Social Democratic Party to secure to every workingman the full fruit of his labor. If you believe that a workingman must surrender the biggest part of his product to Rockefellers, Morgans, Vanderbilts, Goulds, Schwabs, and a swarm of smaller parasites, that they may bestow it on the pauperized nobility of Europe or on the owner of Monte Carlo—why you should support the Republican or Democratic party, for both these parties represent and are owned by the capitalist class. The Social Democratic Party alone stands for the interests of the working class.

Workingmen:—You have heard before our appeals, but you continued to stand in overwhelming numbers by the old parties. With what result? Republican and Democratic legislatures, Republican and Democratic judges are now, more than ever, the tools of your exploiters. Was there a crime perpetrated by the capitalists in which they were not protected by the very legislators and judges for whom you, workingmen, voted? Was there a right which you demanded that was not refused to you by the very men whom you have elected? Why continue to work against your own interests? The Social Democratic Party is your own party. It consists of workingmen and has no other supporters. Help it to spread Socialism. Help us to send out Socialist agitators. Help us to distribute Socialist literature. The dissemination of Socialist ideas means the final triumph of Socialism, and your own economic emancipation. Remember, he helps doubly who helps promptly.

Send contributions to Emil Neppel, treasurer, S. D. P. State Committee, 288 W. 142d street, New York.

New York State Committee, S. D. P.
LEONARD D. ABBOTT,
Secretary.

All monies contributed will be acknowledged in The Worker, "Volkszeitung" and "Vorwaerts."

Previously acknowledged	$16.50
Albert Splitt, Rochester	1.00
Theo. E. F. Schorr, Buffalo	1.25
H. Gost	.50
R. Barr	1.25
R. Robson	.25
Wm. J. Mack, Buffalo	.50
H. Weidemuller, Buffalo	.25
F. May, Buffalo	.25
A. Roming, Brooklyn	.25
J. Lamotte, "	.25
P. Tohresen, "	.50
J. Walsh "	.50
C. A. Swenson, "	.25
A. H. Blutan, Rochester	1.00
Chas. Koch, Salamanca	.15
H. Foster, "	.10
B. Koch, "	.15
Chas. Koch, Jr., "	.25
Total	$25.15

LABOR AND THE BEEF TRUST.

The Central Labor Union of Portland, Me., has adopted resolutions binding its members not to eat beef for thirty days, "as a protest against the unjust discrimination of the Beef Trust as especially directed against the working class," and declaring further that "when a trust thus becomes dangerous to the country at large, it is time for the people at large to take the ownership and management of that trust."

The C. L. U. also adopted resolutions of hearty sympathy with our brother workmen in Belgium in their efforts to secure equal suffrage.

THE MINE WORKERS' BATTLE.

Pennsylvania State Committee of Socialist Party Prepares to Aid Strikers.

The nation is stirred to the depths by the impending struggle between organized labor and that phase of capitalism that controls the coal products of this country.

The Executive Board of the United Mine Workers on last Saturday called upon every member in the affected district to cease work on Monday and assemble in special meeting that afternoon, to consider the situation and elect and instruct delegates to a convention to be held at Hazleton, Wednesday, May 14. This meant that upwards of 150,000 men were to gather on one afternoon in mining villages, hamlets and towns within a limited area of the Keystone state.

A special meeting of the Socialist State Committee was held at the headquarters, 1022 Arch street, on Sunday morning, and addressed the following letter to the Chairman of every local meeting board of the United Mine Workers throughout the anthracite coal region:

"Men and Brothers:—In the common interest of all wage-workers we sent you sympathy and greeting as you face the dreadful choice of submitting like slaves to a master or enduring the sufferings of a strike.

"The Coal Barons, standing guard over nature's supplies and the necessities of life, tell you, 'There is nothing to arbitrate.'

"We tell you that the votes of 147,000 miners cast for the public ownership of the mines would make them speedily change their view of this matter.

"Permit us to suggest that you instruct your delegates to the Hazleton convention to vote for this proposition. The ballot is the most powerful weapon you possess and the one the mine owners most fear.

"If strike you must, stand as one man! Vote as you strike!

"Fraternally yours,
"J. MAHLON BARNES,
"Secretary.
"CAROLINE PEMBERTON,
"Assistant Secretary.
"Socialist State Committee."

The "United Mine Workers' Journal" says the organization's mail is stolen in many parts of the country by the Barons or their agents who serve as postmasters. A United States Inspector recently caught Manager Rutland of the Empire (Ky.) Coal Company red-handed, with a stack of opened union letters in his possession. But it is hoped this letter—sent by special delivery—will reach the rank and file of the miners in meeting and not find lodgement in the company's offices.

No one can estimate the amount of suffering and self-sacrifice awaiting these brave men, or the wide-spread influence the coming struggle is bound to have on the labor question throughout the country.

Whatever be the outcome, all Socialists will stand ready to give sympathy, counsel and aid as far as lies in their power.

The State Committee of the Socialist Party of Pennsylvania pledges its sympathy and support to the miners. To carry out this pledge it is our intention to keep a speaker and organizer in the strike field, that we may be constantly advised of their situation and needs. More money will be needed than can be furnished by our treasury. We must raise a special fund for the purpose, so as not to interfere with the general work of organization throughout the state—a work that has been carefully mapped out and is already partly under way.

Among his other dates, Comrade Vail is scheduled to speak on May 14, 15, 16, 17, and 18 in the mining towns of Nesquehoming, Mauch Chunk, Lehighton, and Wilkes Barre, where we are told the miners are already eager to learn about Socialism. The work in this district must be pushed with energy and enthusiasm.

There will be no trouble getting audiences. We can secure them at every street corner and cross roads, and we can pack the largest halls all day long with men sitting with folded hands who now have time to think.

We are close to the field of action and can carry on the work at least expense. At the same time we are pledged to the support of the work in all quarters of the state, and no part must be neglected.

That we may measure up to this great opportunity, we call upon the comrades and locals everywhere to contribute as speedily and liberally as possible. In order that organized financial aid may be extended by the Socialists of this country, we will reserve one-half of all contributions to meet any appeal for aid that may come from the United Mine Workers' Union.

Send all contributions to Joseph Edelman, treasurer, 807 W. Cambria street, Philadelphia, Pa.

For the State Committee,
J. MAHLON BARNES,
Secretary.
CAROLINE PEMBERTON,
Assistant Secretary.

Note.—This appeal has been submitted to the National Committee of Socialist Party for aproval.

ANOTHER SOCIALIST CITY COUNCILMAN?

J. W. Slayton Said to Have Good Chance of Election in New Castle.

A special election is to be held at New Castle, Pa., this month to choose a Councilman from the Fifth Ward. J. W. Slayton, the candidate of the Socialist Party, is reported to have an excellent chance of success. The New Castle "Tribune" of May 8 announces his candidacy in these words:

"On Saturday the Socialist Party of the Fifth Ward nominated John W. Slayton as their candidate for Select Council in that ward. Mr. Slayton needs no introduction to the people of this city in which during the past few years he has labored unceasingly in the interests of the working people. He is an ardent trade unionist and most of his efforts for the good of his fellows have been through these channels. For years past Mr. Slayton has been of the opinion that the working people can only gain their rights through united political action and has spent much time studying the industrial questions in the broader social light. Last February the Socialists carried the Fifth Ward and as their movement is daily gaining strength they are confident of the election of their candidate to the Council."

Comrade Slayton is a man whose strong character as well as his thorough knowledge of the labor movement especially fit him for the difficult and responsible position of a political representative of the workihg class. His election would add greatly to the power of the labor movement in New Castle and in the whole state.

UNDER ONE FLAG.

"'Tis perfectly preposterous to say that ocean steamers
"Which cross the pond that separates the dollar from the pound
"Shall ever be, concerning flags, a fleet of light esteemers,
"While there is one beneath whose folds the cheapest slave is found."
Thus Brassy unto Hanna cries (and you may believe their oath.)
"That flag which gives the cheapest men shall be the flag of both."

The object each commander must forever keep in view
Is not so much to dock the ship as
"dock" the gallant crew—
To cheapen all from chaplain to the boy that helps the cook
Our race is for the minimum far more than Sandy Hook.
It is no quiz of sentiment between a cap and crown,
That flag alone shall we run up that runs the wages down.

PETER E. BURROWES.

OUR VOTE DOUBLED IN TERRE HAUTE.

Socialist Party Polls Twice the Vote Cast in Last City Election—Only Party That Gained.

The total vote for Mayor at the recent election in Terre Haute, Ind., was as follows: Democratic, 4,128; Republican, 3,121; Independent, 630; S. M. Reynolds, Socialist Party candidate, 553. Our candidate for Clerk received 375 votes, and for Councilmen-at-large our vote ran from 400 to 444. Socialist Party candidates for Ward Councilmen, in the six wards, received a total of 426.

The poll was light, only about 75 per cent. of the entire vote being cast. The only party that made a gain was the Socialist Party. The vote received by Reynolds, our candidate for Mayor, was more than double that received in the last city election and over 60 per cent. more than the total vote received in Vigo County for Debs in the presidential election of 1900, which was 331.

VICTIMS ALONE WERE TO BLAME.

Capitalists Who Profited by Philadelphia Cigar Factory Horror Are Exonerated by Verdict.

The coroner's inquest in regard to the Philadelphia cigar-factory horror, on which we commented last week, is described as being a mere formality. Coroner Dugan asked leading questions of all the witnesses—such as, "Were not the foreign-born girls to blame for the whole affair?"—and the factory officials readily took the hint and answered in the affirmative, while the parents of the dead girls were easily confused and silenced by hostile cross-questioning.

Nevertheless, it was clearly shown that the Cigar Trust was violating the child-labor law and that the poverty of the parents often tempted them to connive at the crime.

The verdict, of course, completely exonerated the capitalists who were making profits on the children's hard labor and threw the whole blame upon the victims themselves.

This it is to have capitalist tools instead of class-conscious workingmen in public office.

VAIL IN WILKES BARRE.

Charles H. Vail will lecture on Socialism in Central Labor Union Hall, 16 S. Main street, Wilkes Barre, Pa., on Sunday evening, May 18. Admission, 10 cents. All readers of The Worker in Wilkes Barre and vicinity are expected to help make this meeting a success.

The Worker.

AN ORGAN OF THE SOCIALIST PARTY

(Known in New York State as the Social Democratic Party.)

PUBLISHED WEEKLY

AT 184 WILLIAM STREET, NEW YORK,

By the Socialistic Co-operative Publishing Association.

P. O. BOX 1512.

Telephone Call: 302 John.

TERMS TO SUBSCRIBERS.

Invariably in advance.

One year	50c.
Six months	25c.
Single copies	2c.

Bundle rates:

Less than 100 copies, per copy	1c.
100 copies	75c.
200 copies	$1.20
500 copies or more, per hundred	50c.

Weekly Bundles:

5 per week, one year	$1.75
10 per week, one year	3.50
25 per week, one year	7.50
50 per week, one year	12.50

Address all business communications, and make money orders, checks and drafts payable to The Worker.

Receipts are never sent to individual subscribers. Acknowledgment is made by changing the number on the wrapper, the week following receipt of money.

Communications concerning the editorial department of the paper should be addressed to the Editor.

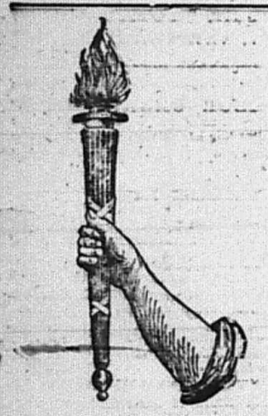
All communications should be written with ink and on one side of the paper; words should not be abbreviated; every letter should bear the writer's name and address; and matter should be put in as few words as possible, consistently with clearness. Communications which do not comply with these requirements are likely to be disregarded.

Entered as second-class matter at the New York, N. Y., Post Office on April 6, 1891.

UNION PRINTERS

SOCIALIST VOTE IN THE UNITED STATES.

In 1888 (Presidential)	2,068
In 1890	13,331
In 1892 (Presidential)	21,157
In 1894	33,133
In 1896 (Presidential)	36,564
In 1898:
S. L. P.	82,204
S. D. P.	9,545
In 1900 (Presidential):
S. D. P.	96,918
S. L. P.	33,450



THE PARTY'S EMBLEM.

TO NEW YORK COMRADES.

We would urge upon all members of Local New York the importance of attending the General Meeting of the Local at the Workingmen's Educational Association Club House, 206 E. Eighty-sixth street, on Sunday afternoon, May 18. The questions to be discussed are of the highest importance. No comrade who fails to attend and vote will have the moral right to complain if they are not decided as he would wish. In order to a satisfactory discussion and decision it is necessary that there be a full attendance from the beginning of the meeting, which will open promptly at two o'clock, the hour designated in the call.

PARTIES, NOT MEN.

The fate of the Direct Legislation Bill in the Massachusetts Legislature is significant. The bill had a majority, in the House; but, as it embodies a constitutional amendment, it needed a two-thirds vote in order to pass; and of this it failed.

The bill is a popular one. The old-party politicians know this. But they do not want it to pass because it would take away some of their power and would proportionately detract from their value in the eyes of their capitalist masters. On the other hand, to vote against the bill would be dangerous, for sometimes the people remember at election time.

There was the dilemma for the capitalist parties: How to defeat the bill? How, at the same time, to avoid the odium of having defeated it? It was solved by casting as many votes for the bill as could safely be so cast and throwing on the negative side just enough votes—and those from the districts where least danger would be incurred—to ensure its defeat. And as some members could not safely vote against the bill and might, by voting for it, effect its passage—why, they simply absented themselves. It is very easy, if you know how to do it.

So the bill is defeated, and the voters hardly know whom to blame.

One thing is plain: They must credit the Socialist members with unwavering support of the bill. These two men not only always vote right when they were present, but they are always present at the right time to speak and vote.

But one more thing should be plain: That the people must hold parties, and not merely individual members, responsible for what is done in the legislative halls. They must blame in this case, not only the sixty-four old-party members who voted against the bill and the sixty or seventy old-party members who absented themselves (and these latter will all claim to have been friendly to the bill)—they must blame the old parties as such, the party organization, which compassed the defeat of the measure.

It is parties, not men, that count in present-day politics.

THE SOCIALIST VIEW OF MUNICIPAL OR GOVERNMENT OWNERSHIP.

An editorial which appeared in Hearst's "Chicago American" of May 9, entitled "Capital and Municipal Ownership," should enlighten those who cannot understand why Socialists do not indiscriminately join in every movement for municipal or government ownership without regard to its source or the political party which is to bring it about. In support of the statement that capital should encourage municipal ownership on business grounds, the "Chicago American" says:

"Why does capital look askance at the public ownership of municipal utilities? Capital, if proverbially timid, should be shrewd enough to discern inviting avenues for safe investment and reasonable profit. It will obtain both under municipal ownership. CAPITAL SHOULD WELCOME MUNICIPAL OWNERSHIP, RATHER THAN OPPOSE IT, UNDER THE LATTER THERE IS MERELY A TRANSFERENCE OF SECURITY AND A SAFER INVESTMENT THAN BEFORE. INSTEAD OF SECURITIES BASED ON PRIVATE CONTROL OF UTILITIES, MUNICIPAL OWNERSHIP WILL GIVE CAPITAL AVENUES FOR ABSOLUTELY SAFE INVESTMENTS BASED ON MUNICIPAL CREDIT. It is true there will be no fancy rates of interest on municipal ownership bonds. But capital, these days, in stress of competition and immense hoarding of funds, seeks gilt-edged securities rather than unreasonable profits. Municipal ownership bonds are recognized by the shrewdest financiers as equal, under ordinary conditions, to the highest classes of general municipal bonds. In some cases they are rated as high as federal government bonds. * * * No matter how a city's general credit may be impaired, through misgovernment or bad fiscal management, bonds that are based on specific plants, such as Chicago's water bonds, remain impregnable. * * * Such bonds usually command a high premium. * * * MUNICIPAL OWNERSHIP IS A BUSINESS PROPOSITION THAT THE MOST TIMID OF CAPITALISTS CAN WELL AFFORD TO INVESTIGATE. As for the general public, it is needless to repeat that municipal ownership will ultimately solve the city's financial problems. IT WILL REDUCE GENERAL TAXATION, WHICH, BY THE WAY, SHOULD APPEAL STRONGLY TO THE HEAVIEST TAXPAYERS, AS WELL AS THE SMALLER ONES."

There are two possible ways of governing a city—for the benefit of the working class or for the benefit of the capitalist class who fatten on rent, interest and profit. The only way we know in this country is the latter way; it is called "administration on business principles." Likewise there are two possible ways of conducting municipal ownership—for the benefit of the capitalist class as represented by the Republican or Democratic parties, or for the benefit of the working class under a Socialist working class administration. A capitalistic administration would use the profits of municipal ownership to pay interest to idle bondholders and reduce the taxes of the rich. A Socialist administration would raise the wages and reduce the hours of municipal employees, reduce fares and better the service, and tax the robber rich to feed the school children of the robbed poor.

The Socialist Party intends to restore "public utilities" (and the means of producing food and clothes are just as surely "public utilities" as are street railways and gas plants) without giving "compensation" to those who have stolen them from the people, for it does not believe in putting a premium on robbery or rewarding it. But if the national government prevented this, a Socialist municipal administration would force the owners to sell out at the lowest price and tax the capitalists to pay for it, and it would make the life of private corporations so hard that they would be glad to get out on any terms.

Individual capitalists may be very willing to sell the watered stocks of their street railways to the city at a handsome profit and continue to draw interest on bonds instead of dividends on stocks. Under this arrangement they would be saved all worry and expenses of management, and the city would serve as an agent to collect profits and turn them over to the bondholders. The capitalist class as a whole might be very glad to have the expenses of the city government paid out of that portion of the profits of municipal ownership which did not go to the bondholders, in order that the taxes which the capitalists have to pay might be reduced.

But the Socialist sees nothing in this proposition for the working class to become enthusiastic about. He knows that it would be some time before a reduction of taxtion would reduce the cost of living, and he knows that a reduction in the cost of living would finally be followed by a reduction of wages. He knows that employees would probably be powerless to strike against the oppression of a capitalistic administration such as now calls out police, militia, and injunctions to break strikes against private employers. And the condition of the overworked and underpaid postal clerks and letter carriers give him a sample of what employees could expect from municipal ownership under capitalist control. The Socialist knows that the great question for the working class is not whether the government or individual capitalists own monopolies, but the question: Who owns the government?

Socialists are not carrying on any particular campaign against "public ownership" of any kind, however. We simply point out that government ownership is of no importance to the working class until they, as a class, have captured the powers of government to serve their own interests. If the capitalist political parties introduce municipal ownership, the Socialist Party will bide its time and upon its own accession to power will take advantage of the fact that these things are already in its hands. If the capitalist political parties do not introduce municipal ownership, the Socialist Party will do so and it will be a very different kind of municipal ownership from that contemplated by its capitalistic advocates.

THE POINT IS THAT MUNICIPAL OWNERSHIP WITHOUT A WORKING CLASS GOVERNMENT IS A MATTER OF INDIFFERENCE TO THE WORKING CLASS. IF MUNICIPAL OWNERSHIP IS ESTABLISHED BY A CAPITALISTIC ADMINISTRATION IT MAY POSSIBLY MAKE THE TASKS OF THE FIRST SOCIALIST ADMINISTRATION ELECTED A LITTLE EASIER. BUT IF NOT ALREADY ESTABLISHED IT WILL BE BROUGHT IN BY THE FIRST SOCIALIST ADMINISTRATION ANYWAY. AND AS IT IS VALUELESS WITHOUT A WORKING CLASS ADMINISTRATION IT DEVOLVES UPON THE SOCIALIST TO POINT OUT THAT FACT, AND TO MAKE THE WORKING CLASS CONSCIOUS OF THE FACT THAT THEIR INTERESTS AS A CLASS ARE ALWAYS AND EVERYWHERE OPPOSED TO THE INTERESTS OF THE CAPITALISTS, IN ORDER THAT THEY MAY NOT BE LED AWAY FROM THE ONE REAL ISSUE, WHICH IS THE CAPTURE OF THE GOVERNING POWER BY THE WORKING CLASS. IF THE CAPITALISTS GIVE US MUNICIPAL OWNERSHIP, LET THE WORKING CLASS PRESS ON TO ITS SOCIALIZATION, BUT MEANWHILE LET US NOT WASTE TIME OVER WHAT IS NOT REALLY THE THING AS WE WANT IT.

As reards the kindred question of government ownership of railroads; the smaller capitalists engaged in manufacturing industries and having no railroad interests are quite willing to have government ownership of railroads in the hope that the transportation advantages and privileges of the trusts would be stopped and rates made equal and lowered—just as this same class are willing to have municipal ownership in order that their taxes be lowered.

But as the railroad interests represent the most powerful part of the capitalist class and are so completely intertwined with the great industrial combinations, government ownership of railroads is not likely to come except as a concession to a revolutionary movement which menaces the whole capitalist class. Rather than lose all they may yield something under the pressure of such a movement as they have done in Europe, and thus again the necessity of uncompromising class-consciousness in the Socialist movement is shown. While taking advantage of every concession the capitalists may be fo reed to give, let the working class continue to demand everything. Wherever they yield an inch, let the attack be pushed the more vigorously, for only by this method can capitalism be killed.

C. L.

THAT MEAT BOYCOTT.

A few of our readers seem not to approve of our attitude in regard to the proposed method of fighting the Meat Trust by abstaining from meat. They complain that we have needlessly "sneered" at a sincere effort to oppose this criminal combine.

It should hardly be necessary to say—but, if need be, we have no objection to saying, over and over again—that we never sneer at the working class, that we never doubt its sincerity, however much we may often doubt its wisdom. We cannot doubt the good intentions of those hard-working laborers and mechanics who have resolved not to eat meat for a month. We do seriously doubt the sincerity of most of the "eminent citizens" who have advised such a course. And we insist that the course is an utterly foolish one.

Those "eminent citizens"—who, if they abstain from eating meat, can afford all sorts of substitutes which are out of the reach of the workingmen—people of this same class are always preaching "frugality" to the workers, holding up to them as a good example the working people of Europe who do not have meat more than once a week or once a month, and, at the same time, justifying their own luxury on the ground that it "gives employment to the poor." We do not accuse even these people, in general, of conscious insincerity; but, consciously or unconsciously, they are dishonest, and the workers cannot afford to trust them.

To test this proposition of a meat boycott to fight the Meat Trust, let us ask a question: Will those of our readers who object to our criticism extend the plan to any other commodity? Will they advise us to fight the Sugar Trust by eating no sweets? To fight the Standard Oil Company by sitting in the dark? To fight the Paper Trust by buying no newspapers or books? To fight the Coal Trust by going cold al winter? To fight the Railway Trust by making our journeys on foot? Doubtless men can live without meat. They can live also without railways, kerosene, coal, sugar, or newspapers. But will anyone propose to extend the boycott? And if not, why not?

The Meat Trust does not care two cents for such opposition as this, no matter how sincere the boycotters may be. It will go on extending its monopoly to fish, eggs, butter, cheese, and milk; and if you do not pay tribute to it on one article you must on another—just as, if you do not pay tribute to the Standard Oil Company in the shape of profits on kerosene, you must perich the same company whenever you pay your gas bill or your electric light bill.

The capitalist press, in general, owned or controlled by the trust magnates, has openly or tacitly commended this "cut-off-your-nose-to-spite-your-face" method of fighting the Meat Trust. It is so orderly and law-abiding, so free from all taint of Socialism or confiscation or class-hatred, so truly individualistic, and, above all, so perfectly harmless—to all except the poor workingmen.

"It is a condition, not a theory, that we have to deal with." We cannot oppose the aggressions of twentieth-century organized capitalism with weapons fitted to the petty conflicts of eighteenth-century small producers.

Maybe we cannot carry the country for Socialism at this fall's congressional and state elections. But we can come as near to it as to inducing even a majority of the workingmen to quit eating meat for a month. And even to double the Socialist vote will do a hundred times more to frighten the capitalists and bring them to reason.

THE CHURCH AND SOCIALISM.

Two recent utterances of two men, one high in the Catholic Church, the other high in the Protestant Church, throw a strong light on the relation of organized religion to labor and the Socialist movement for the emancipation of the working class.

In his speech at the banquet of the Maynooth Alumni Association, held on April 29, at the Catholic Club in New York City, Father Sheedy said:

"A short time ago a prominent non-Catholic American addressed a remarkable letter to Pope Leo XIII. The writer stated that he was much interested in the success and growth of the Catholic Church in the United States, and added:

"'I believe it is almost necessary for the future of my country that the Catholic Church shall grow and be strong here. Thousands of the strongest men in the United States, MADE APPREHENSIVE BY THE SPREAD OF SOCIALISM, are turning their eyes toward the Church,' and he cites the greatest banker in the world, Mr. J. Pierpont Morgan, as saying that he (Morgan) believed that 'the Catholic Church was A NECESSITY FOR THE PRESERVATION OF SOCIETY.'

That is, Mr. Morgan, "made apprehensive by the spread of Socialism," looks to the Catholic Church as "a necessity for the preservation" of the form of "society" which suits Mr. Morgan—a form of society which gives to the working class enough to keep them alive and working and gives to Mr. Morgan the millions which their labor produces. Mr. Morgan thinks it very important that this social system be preserved, because it gives him untold wealth and power. And if the church can tie the hands of the people while he goes through their pockets, he thinks the church is a very good church. Mr. Morgan views with horror the suggestion that the social system which enables him to rob the producers of the product of their labor be replaced by one which would give to the workers the fruit of their toil.

What do the working class think about it? Well, a good many of them don't think at all, but those who do think are beginning to think that Socialism is a necessity for the preservation of their class from the clutches of Mr. Morgan and his class. So Mr. Morgan, "made apprehensive by the spread of Socialism," hopes that the church will keep them from thinking or make them think wrongly, which is "a necessity for the preservation" of the present social system which Mr. Morgan likes so well. That Mr. Morgan is right in his view of the church, the attempts of the Catholic Church to undermine the Socialist movement in Europe and its recent crusade against Socialism in America leaves no doubt. Mr. Morgan knows where his interests are. Do you know where your interests are?

Now for the Profestant side. In a letter to the secretary of the Church Association for the Advancement of the Interests of Labor, expressing his regret that he could not attend their annual dinner held in New York on May 6, Bishop Potter wrote:

"The whole outlook for the mutual understanding of labor AND THOSE WHO ARE DEPENDENT UPON IT, employ it OR ARE ENRICHED BY IT looks to me at present more hopeful that at any time within my recollection, and this chiefly because I do not think there has ever been a day when there have been more honest efforts on either side of THE LINES WHICH DIVIDE THE GREAT CLASSES to understand each other.

Especially have employers and those whom they represent learned to respect men in the labor ranks whose candor, TEMPERATE SPEECH, clear and direct statement and enduring SENSE OF EQUITY have been illustrated on many fields and in many ways."

It will be remembered that Bishop Potter was one of a carload of bishops whom Mr. J. Pierpont Morgan carried on his special train to the Episcopal convention in San Francisco last year, where the scheme of the "Industrial Peace Conference" and the Civic Federation was hatched, for the purpose of breaking strikes.

Mr. Morgan's Bishop Potter preaches the doctrine that the interests of capital and labor are identical, that is that the interests of those who labor are identical with the interests of those who do not labor, but "who are dependent upon labor" and "are enriched by it." Bishop Potter wants a "mutual understanding" on both sides of "the lines which DIVIDE the great classes"—a "mutual understanding" of identical interests between the class which labors and the class which does not labor but "is enriched by it!"

The Church Association for the Advancement of the Interests of Labor doubtless has among its members many good people who really think they are helping labor, but, considering the men who pull the strings of such organizations and their real effects, a better name for it would be the Church Association for the Assassination of the Interests of Labor.

Bishop Potter's idea of an "understanding" is to befool the workers into believing that their interests are identical with the interests of the plundering parasites who are enriched by the unpaid labor of the working class; and to delude labor into trusting such capitalist organizations as the Civic Federation, which lately betrayed the Boston and San Francisco strikers, is his idea of industrial peace. Mr. Morgan's Bishop Potter loves the kind of labor leaders who by their "temperate speech" aid in such work and keep the working class from radical action, keep them from demanding their rights, and keep them from revolutionary political action. He loves labor leaders with a capitalistic "sense of equity"—a "sense of equity" which says that it is equitable for labor to be given 17 per cent. of what it produces and for capitalist parasites to take the other 83 per cent. Let labor beware of such leaders!

The two utterances quoted above call to mind the following words of Karl Marx in the preface to the first edition of "Capital:" "The English Established Church will more readily pardon an attack on 38 of its 39 articles than on 1/39 of its income."

C. L.

TO RECEIVE THE BANNER.

The Fourth Assembly District, which won the banner last year by casting the largest proportional vote of any subdivision in the city, will hold a concert and entertainment next Friday evening, May 23, at 412 Grand street, at which the banner will be formally presented. The Socialists of the Fourth worked hard in the last campaign, and the comrades of other districts should turn out in force to congratulate them on the result and encourage them to renewal of their activity. The admission fee is 10 cents.

BUY UNION-MADE GOODS.

Mosquito Bites

By PETER E. BURROWES

Poor old Senator Lodge, who in his intellect, conscience and methods, is a "solomon" warning that the New England type of sentimentalism which begot "Uncle Tom's Cabin," is liable to beget anything, made a "warm" defense for capitalist brutalities in the Philippines before the Senate the other day. But who else was warmed? "My love," says the Song of Solomon, "is like a lodge in a garden of cucumbers."

Mr. Havemeyer, while under examination by the Senate Cuban Committee, appointed to ascertain, if possible, whether or not sugar is sweet, made this reply to one of the questions: "The Cubans are not in a financial position to hold their crops." Apply this to all producers on earth and you have the lever of classic political economy—capitalism.

Facts are queer things—especially those "Facts About Cuba," prepared by Mr. Donner at the order of Mr. Havemeyer, and published by "inside" papers for cash paid. There are, of course, other facts about Cuba which Mr. H. does not order, and which the "inside" papers are therefore not printing—such as the fact that the Cubans are only the squeezeable factors between the Spanish and American planters; and that every one who has his head above the wage-line in Cuba today has that head in the noose of the money lender.

They say it is not good tactics to say anything about church with your hat on. But tactics are nothing if not debatable. Now every day of a modern year sees somebody's intelligence outraged by the fake feudalism of that fifteen ounces of politics to the pound of religion known as chuchianity, and these people will be glad to know that there is at least one party in this country that does not bow the knee to Baal. Slip this into your little book of tactics.

The English-speaking business-doing world venerates the memory of Charles Dickens; for, without counting his many other merits, it was he who invented the pickwickian sense—that sense in which the Beef Trust is not a beef trust, that sense in which Dr. Webb, of the Central strike infamy, is enabled openly and impudently to lie over his own signature as not being in it, while in it; which enables him to be Webb-headed in prosperous times and web-footed enough to take to the water when the Meyer-crash came.

It is in the pickwickian sense that the Brooklyn Rapid Transit Company speaks to folk on the front and rear platforms of the cars when their noses are jammed up against an announcement informing them that they are forbidden to be on those platforms, in fact, the pickwickian sense is the necessary common sense of modern business and politics. Thank you, Mr. Dickens.

To select a prisoner of war by lot, and to execute him by way of retaliation, appears to be Article of War 100, under which our American officers have been exercising their discretion and musketry on the Filipinos. Ex-Secretary Root assures us that it is a very excellent article, and that Lincoln considered it "a contribution to civilization, of great and recognized value." Yet when, during the tempest of treachery and slaughter by which they were surrounded, the Communards dealt so with certain old-time tyrants, spies, and traitors, civilization shuddered. You see it all depends upon whose civilization it is, and whether you happen to have a foreign trade to establish, or an Article of War 100.

An attempt to militarize the railroad employees of Italy is now in progress; but it has so far only led to the refirement of one war minister. Nevertheless, it is a good idea to have your workman under articles of war, so that you can shoot them if they strike for more wages. This is one of the little snags which our national-ownership-alone sort of Socialists are up against.

What a pity it is that the Irishman with so much blessed fighting power in him has not yet, even in this our time, managed to get hold of a human issue worth fighting for. You would suppose that parliamentarism was in itself an all-sufficient, with or without a national aspiration, for the right use of it. Never a word falls from the lips of these political brawlers to indicate any public intelligence larger than the four provinces in a caucus.

The first gleam of decency ever known to be manifested towards their emigrating populations by European governments has, curious to say, developed from Italy. That country having recently sent out a military officer in one of the passenger ships to see if Italy's exiled poverty is properly treated on the sea. If a little more of that concern were manifested towards these people while yet on terra firma, a sea voyage in such shabby company might have been spared the unhappy officer. But why a military officer? Well, you see, Italy has an army, and young men run away. Oh, that's it, is it?

While Uncle Sam is letting the Anarchists get any old clubs or gags or outrages that any candidate for promotion may fling their way, Uncle Sam is preparing conditions for himself when foreign courts, instead of his own democracy, shall bind him and lead him whither he would not. Are we to accept as Americanism such Moscow policeism as the breaking up a farewell reception to Herr Most? It seems as if the authorities really wanted more of Most.

Either to assume that everybody is a rogue or that everybody is honest would give an equally definite and satisfactory basis for human beings to live upon, but to assume nothing about it until you find out how much money he is able to get and then to decide that all the smaller quantitarians are rogues is what the expressman of Jersey City are striking against.

It is quite the style now among America's hightoned politicians to say that everything "may safely be left in the hands of the President." The Funston affair, the Miles affair, and Schurman now thinks the Philippine inquiry might be left in his beloved hands. If only our beloved President could do the whole of the nation's voting, what a world of worry it would save. Buffalo Bill's is a great show. Isn't it?

Current Literature

All books and pamphlets mentioned in this column may be obtained through the Socialist Literature Company, 184 William street, New York.

THE CONSERVATOR. Horace Traubel. Philadelphia, Pa. Monthly.

One of the most sane and significant voices to be heard above the din and confusion of this transitional age is that of Horace Traubel in "The Conservator." Month after month Traubel's affirmative protests against things as they are reverberate like thunder from a mountain top.

The social organism, like all things else, is always growing, changing, developing, but the present age is particularly and peculiarly a time of transition. The immense social and productive forces which have grown up in the last century have not yet given birth to the new social system which they are to bring forth and society is now in a period of travail. The industrial revolution which has taken place in the production of wealth has not yet been extended to its distribution, and, consequently, man's potential dominance over the material conditions of existence has not yet reached its social and intellectual expression. The means of life remain in the hands of the dominant class who control the forces of wealth-production, and the changed economic conditions have not yet been readjusted to meet the requirements of the individual and the mass. Approximate social co-operation in the production of wealth is contradicted and rendered nugatory by the private appropriation of social wealth by a small ruling class who own the great tools which are now used in the production of wealth and which can be operated only by the labor of myriads of men—men who produce by the permission and for the benefit of the parasitic owning class. We are about to pass from the chaos of individualism to an industrial collectivism as our social basis; as Carlyle put it, "We shall pass from competition in individualism to individuality in co-operation." Humanity calls for the socialization of the forces which are overpowering and crushing it, and the push of economic evolution makes both this demand and its fulfilment inevitable.

As we stand on the threshold of the new order, the confusion, the general throwing of things out of joint, and the contradictions and paradoxes of our social system, which become more pronounced as the old order nears its end, are strongly reflected in the literature and art of the time.

Thus it is that contemporary literature is such a strange mixture of the small and the sublime, the petty and the prophetic. Now that "the time is ripe and rotten-ripe for change" some sink into the ooze of social rottenness and others, with glad shouts of defiance, struggle through the miasma of the social swamp and bring all their efforts to bear on the task of breaking through the confining crust of old conditions. Thus it is that we see at one and the same time subsidized sycophancy and powerful protest. Much of our literature is prostituted to the service of the plundered power held by the masters of bread, and perverted to purposes of ignorance and degradation, but in the great and growing literature of protest is to be found some of the best work of all time. The age produces both the prostitute and the prophet.

We have a prostitute press, a prostitute pulpit, and prostitute professors in the educational institutions endowed by our robber barons in oil and steel. In literature and art we have the dawdling dilletantism of the rich, and the drear decadence of those who have lost their way amid the confusion of transition; we have poets who make their poems as a lady of fashion makes her toilette; we have economists who are afraid of their own conclusions; in journalism we have a band of echolali who parrot the phrases that please the sociophagous class to whom their minds are hired out—parasites upon a parasite class these are; we have men who forsake suffering, struggling humanity to write "odes to my lady's eyebrow;" we have subsidized sophistry and commercialized criticism; we have novels that are impotent, inane, and irrelevant; we have all that is mediocre and mercenary.

But if the age of capitalism gives us the worst it also gives us the best. Such men as Tolstoy, illogical and essentially immoral as his message of asceticism and non-resistance is, and Ibsen, Maeterlinck, Zola, William Vaughan Moody, Carpenter, Gorki, Markham, and lately Ruskin, Morris, Whitman, and Hovey—these are oases in the desert of contemporary literature. All of them are of the army of revolt, fighting the battle of brotherhood, some with pessimistic portrayal of existing wrong and some with prophecy of the future. Those who look in despair at the lackadaisical literature and inane art of this vertiginous age, should rather glory in these great figures, standing out like lonely oaks against the open sky, and be assured that the time is sure to soon call forth others and greater of their like.

It is to this bright group that Horace Traubel belongs. Traubel's democracy is so spontaneous and unfailing, so universal in its scope, and so much a part of the very fibre of the man as to signally distinguish him. Many other democrats there are, calling valiantly for the better day, but they are unable to overcome entirely and without evident effort the conditions and mental habits which society has thrown around them; their democracy is sincere but self-conscious and uneasy and one can imagine some of them secretly applauding themselves as great good fellows on account of it. They cannot quite extend their democracy into questions of morals and motives, but make distinctions of good and bad, which are necessary and inevitable enough from the standpoint of the present and the practical, but are not eternal, like the law of cause and effect. Traubel is no logician, no scientist, no economist, but his refusal to make moral distinctions between individuals is in harmony with science, which, in recognizing the law of cause and effect and the inexorable influence of environment and rejecting all subjective metaphysical abstractions, denies individual responsibility and makes the words "good" and "bad," as applied to men, simply terms of approval or disapproval, which last is itself, perhaps, an impudence.

Many men are fighting for a free society, but Traubel seems, in addition, to be the very kind of a man who would be the product of such a society. There is an ultimateness about him which would be awesome were it not so wholesome and loving.

With Traubel democracy is not a fad but a fact. His lines are athrob with the breath of life and adame with the fire of a cosmic passion. Traubel deals neither in syllogisms nor sophistry, but seems rather to strike central truth with the chaotic logic of a divine inconsistency.

He writes somewhat after the manner of Whitman, of whom he is a disciple and literary descendant, yet those who know both would easily differentiate their unlabelled work. For one thing he never falls into Whitman's occasional redundancy and superfluity of enumeration. And, like Carpenter, his work is intellectually more under the influence of modern thought than was that of the "good gray poet;" and, though dealing less with the concrete and more with generalities, it is, perhaps, more coherent—has a nearer approach to logic and the intellect as distinguished from the emotions. "The Conservator" may also be called the organ of the Whitmanites and the repository of Whitmania.

Traubel's cosmic democracy, his unconscious logic, which does not stop to explain surface inconsistencies, his universal sympathy and powerful style make "The Conservator" a thing to be looked for and lingered over.

COURTENAY LEMON.

Just at present the Socialists of almost every country are struggling with the agrarian question, hence it is not surprising to find the first pages of the May number of the "International Socialist Review" given up to an article from Mr. J. B. Webster, a former Populist candidate for governor of California, giving "A Farmer's criticism of the Socialist Party." The editor, A. M. Simons, replies to the objections of Mr. Webster in a discussion of "The Socialist Party and the Farmer." Bulletins from the International Socialist Bureau at Brussels give the latest news of the Socialist movement in Norway and Bulgaria. Other noteworthy articles are, "Natural Selection under Socialism," by Raphael Buck, which offers a novel and suggestive solution of the Malthusian objection to Socialism, "Revolutionary Expressions," by Peter E. Burrowes, and the opening chapters of a "History of the United States," by J. L. Franz. This history is an attempt to apply the economic determinist survey of America[illegible] despite the extremely interesting [illegible] of the torial is a critic[illegible]rs, d[illegible] the "Impossibilism" [illegible] and the Socialist [illegible]arity," department co[illegible]unalism and C count of the [illegible]us Ha[illegible] ice for[illegible] gium.

Fund re[illegible] 288.33 1.00 2.00 1.65 1.00

TOLSTOY ON MODERN SLAVERY.

All men of our time are divided clearly into slaves and masters. The truth of this proposition is not affected because it may be more difficult now than it was in former times to define accurately the relations between the master and the man or because among these modern slaves are some who are slaves only provisionally, becoming in turn owners of slaves, or because there are others who at the same time are both slaves and the masters of slaves. . . . If our modern master has no longer his bondsman who can be ordered to perform certain work, he has money, which is so necessary to others that he can choose among them for his bondsmen any he may wish, and for a few dollars have this modern slave perform the work, and look upon the performance as a privilege. The slaves of to-day are not only the underpaid toilers in the factories who, in order to exist sell themselves to their masters, but also nearly all of those who cultivate the fields for others or for themselves that they may pay the interest on their debts. . . . The slavery of the workingman of our time has hardly yet been recognized by the advanced men of modern society, and the majority are entirely convinced that slavery no longer exists among us. . . . As a matter of fact, the "abolition" of serfdom and slavery was only the abolition of an old form of slavery. . . . One form of slavery disappears only to be replaced by another. The forms are many, and one or the other, and sometimes several forms together, hold the people in this position; the small minority has full power over the work and life of the great majority. In this control of the majority by the minority is to be found the principal cause of the miserable situation of the people. . . . The published statistics of England show that the average longevity of the higher classes is fifty-five years; the average duration of life of the laborer is twenty-nine years. Knowing this—and we cannot be ignorant of it—does it seem possible that we who profit from this work, which costs human lives, unless we are wild beasts, should have a moment's tranquility of conscience? . . . We zealously prohibit the teamster from overloading his horses; in our butcher shops we are careful that the beasts be killed with the least possible pain; and yet we allow millions of workingmen—fellow human beings—to kill themselves slowly, painfully dying at their work that we may add to our comforts and pleasures.—Tolstoy.

WILL DISCUSS THE MEAT TRUST.

The 23d A. D. will hold a public meeting on Friday evening, May 23, at Beckmann's Hall, Eighth avenue and One Hundred and Forty-second street, on the subject of the Meat Trust. Miss Johanna Dahme is expected to be one of the speakers.

Every member should turn out and bring his friends and help to make the meeting a success. There is a great deal to do in the district and members should get rid of "that tired feeling," attend the business meetings on the first and third Fridays of the month, and generally bestir themselves.

BUY BLUE-LABEL CIGARS.

PARTY NOTES.

State charters have now been granted to the comrades of North Dakota and of Montana.

The State Committees of Indiana and Illinois have adopted the monthly report book for use of financial secretaries of the party locals. It is now in use in all the unorganized states, and in twelve of the organized states.

John C. Chase has addressed trade unionists this week at St. Louis, and at Troy and Lebanon, Ill.

The Socialists of Texas will hold a state convention at Dalias on July 4, to nominate a full ticket for the fall election.

Six locals of the Socialist Party were chartered during the last month. They were located in five different states and territories.

Comrade Debs will address a public mass meeting in the Coliseum Hall at Denver, Colo., in connection with the opening of the tenth annual convention of the Western Federation of Miners on May 26. Comrade McGrady was also invited, but was prevented by other engagements from accepting the invitation.

Another Catholic priest, Father Haggerty, is going on the warpath for Socialism. He intends to resign his parish and devote his time to lecturing on Socialism.

About the latter end of May a Lithuanian Socialist monthly will make its appearance in Chicago.

The Socialist Party in St. Paul, Minnesota was denied a place on the official ballot. Comrades were compelled to use pasters in order to vote.

Cumberland County, Me., including the city of Portland, will have a full he field.

——— Keating, of Toledo, O., he comrades in Toledo feel Associatic d with the strength of So- Monday, iment in this city. While ceum. It small, nevertheless we are shall be e hearings now in quarters Board. efore none would listen. raising the os here three nights just ed and the ng to good audiences, and ed to su d impression."

Pledges— r of the United Brother- Organizati lway Employees, in Oak- Reichenthe rites: "Nearly all of our ments—Slo ad our brightest member; Press Comr At our last con- Clark. es who were Social- The Board wi d to rise to their evening, May 2 half of those present

Meth

For the ben tle old Socialist war- York and vi go, was nominated for congr the Second Congressional District at a delegate convention held at Grand Crossing Monday night. The Second Congressional District comprises South Chicago, Pullman, Woodlown, and the lower half of Hyde Park. The district holds the banner for the largest Socialist vote in Chicago. Within the four wards are eight branches of the party. The comrades expect to make a great campaign, as the Democratic party is in a hopeless minority in the district the boys expect to make the campaign so strong that the issue will be squarely between the Socialists and the Republicans.

Local Rome, N. Y., observed May Day with a public meeting, the first of the sort ever held in that city. Comrade Brown of Rochester was the speaker, and the meeting was an encouraging success. State Organizer Spring visited the Local on May 5. Two new members were gained. The Local favors Syracuse as the place for holding the state convention.

The 4th A. D. is now meeting at the new club rooms of the New York Socialist Literary Society, 241 E. Broadway. At last Friday's meeting the work for the Socialist Daily was taken up and Dr. Halpern chosen to supervise it. A concert was arranged for the presentation of the banner which the district won last fall by casting the largest proportional vote in the city. This affair will be held on Friday evening, May 23, in New Windsor Hall, 412 Grand street. Good speakers will address the audience. Admission will be 10 cents. The district also provided for the sending out of circulars to enrolled voters and decided that open-air meetings shall be held at Rutger Square, Grand and Henry streets, and Henry and Pike. Next regular meeting will be very important.

The Socialist Educational League of 215 E. Fifty-ninth street has begun its open-air propaganda. Comrades Loewenthal and Mayell last Sunday visited the street railway depots, speaking to the employees and distributing Hanford's "Railroading." They were well received. In the evening there was an instructive discussion at the Club Rooms on "Labor Politics," participated in by Comrades Harriman, Phillips, Reichenthal, Flick, Wenthal, Clune, and Goldbarth. Comrade Slobodin lectures next Sunday. The work of this club is very advantageous to the movement. Many strangers visit it daily to get information and buy literature. Comrades should give whatever financial support they can and they will have an opportunity at the ice-cream festival to be held Saturday, May 24. Admission is 10 cents.

The 35th A. D. will hold an open-air meeting Saturday evening, May 24, at the corner of Willis avenue and One Hundred and Forty-eighth street, to discuss the lesson of the Meat Trust. The Socialist Drum and Fife Corps will play.

The newly organized 34th A. D. has had some trouble in finding headquarters, but has now satisfactorily established at 830 Willis avenue. Meetings are held every Friday evening. At the last meeting another new application for membership was received. Readers of The Worker living in the 34th A. D. are requested to come and join. The District's delegates in the General Committee are William Sorge and P. Donnoghue.

Every subdivision in New York which has not already done so should get at least 25 copies of "May Flowers" and sell or distribute them. Outside organizations may also take the limit. There are still about 2,000 copies to be had. The price, in bundles of 25 or more, is 3 cents a copy. They can be had at the Labor Lyceum, 64 E. Fourth street, or by mail orders addressed to Ed. Meyer, Club House, 206 E. Eighthy-sixth street. Cash must accompany orders.

Eight young comrades met at 241 E. Broadway last Saturday and formed themselves into a Socialist Bicycle Club, with Pat Rhein as captain, M. Topkin as his assistant, and H. Reich as secretary. A startling club yell was adopted. If you want to hear it and join in it, attend the next meeting at the same place on Monday evening, May 19. Every Socialist who rides a wheel will be welcome, and work and pleasure will be combined throughout the season.

Notwithstanding the approach of the summer season, the efforts for the formation of a class in New York City to study the principles of Socialism have been attended with unexpected success. With John Spargo as leader, the class of twenty-five members meets every Thursday evening for an hour and a quarter at 215 E. Fifty-ninth street. At the meeting of May 7 three new members joined. On May 14, the fourth lesson in the series of twenty will be given out. The comrades are enthusiastic over the value and interest of the lessons and are prompt and regular in their attendance. The interest taken is shown by the fact that members come from Washington Heights and the Battery section, from Brooklyn and Long Island. The class contains representatives from the General and City Executive Committees as well as from the "rank and file." The 21st A. D. leads with nine members, the Socialist League has five, and the 23d A. D. four.

At the Manhattan Liberal Club, 220 East Fifteenth street, New York City, on Friday, May 23, Bolton Hall is expected to speak on "Class Co nsciousness." Some of the comrades should be present to tell him a few things about it.

Leonard D. Abbott will speak at the Socialist Club of Brooklyn, Fulton street and Ralph avenue, Sunday evening, May 18. His subject is: "The Socialist Spirit in Art and Literature." All comers are welcome.

TO LAY CORNER-STONE.

The Manhattan, Bronx, and Richmond Boroughs and New Jersey sections of the Arrangements Committee for the laying of the corner-stone of the new Brooklyn Labor Lyceum meets every F riday evening in the New York Labor Lyceum, 64 East Fourth street. Wm. J. F. Hannemann is Secretary. Numerous trade unions, subdivisions of the S. D. P., and other labor organizations are represented and others are invited to send delegates.

The corner-stone of the new building at 949-955 Willoughby avenue, Brooklyn, will be laid on May 30, Decoration Day.

The Brooklyn Central Labor Union will supply one English speaker for the occasion and Job Harriman will be invited to represent the organizations ont his side of the East River. The German speakers will be Dr. Foekel and Dr. Gundlach.

It is intended to hold a great parade in connection with the affair, which can be done by the Manhattan, Bronx, and Richmond Boroughs and New Jersey organizations assembling at the Broadway ferry, on the Brooklyn side, at a time to be decided by the Conference. It is recommended that each organization attend in a body.

Broadway, Brooklyn, can be reached via Roosevelt Street Ferry, E. Twenty-third Street Ferry, and E. Forty-second Street Ferry. The Brooklyn Committee will send a committee with music to meet these organizations and escort them to the site of the new building, meeting the Brooklyn organizations on the way and joining the two bodies in one parade.

HUDSON COUNTY.

The last meeting of the Hudson County Committee was one of the best ever held. With few exceptions the reports of branches were most encouraging, that of Hoboken deserving especial mention—in that it was accompanied by eight applications for membership. The reports showed relations of sincere good feeling with the trade unions.

The new constitution was presented, but was referred back to the Secretary, to be submitted by him to the branches.

Delegates from Arlington and Kearney called attention to the parade and memorial services to be held on Decoration Day in honor of Comrade Scrimshaw. Comrades from all neighboring towns and cities are invited to join in making this demonstration impressive and inspiring. Communications should be addressed to A. P. Firth, 222 Devon street, Kearney.

——Every new subscription you get for this paper helps to spread the light of Socialism and helps us to make The Worker a better paper.

——The Socialist Party is the political party of labor. There is not one single proposition in its platform that was formulated with any other purpose but to help the laborer and show him the way to freedom and the emancipation of his class from wage slavery. Get in to the political party of labor and become a worker in the cause for human betterment.—Social Democratic Herald.

IN VIRGINIA.

The Socialist Party of Newport News, Va., at a regular meeting, nominated the following ticket for the May election:

For Mayor—E. K. Emerson.
For Treasurer—H. E. Baumeister.
For Sergeant—W. L. McKnight.
For Constable—L. A. Hall.

PLATFORM.

Workingmen of America, unite! You have nothing to lose but your chains. You have a world to gain.

We, the Socialist Party, in convention assembled, proclaim our allegiance to the Socialist Party of America. We affirm our unfaltering adherence to the principles and the program of International Socialism.

In presenting our candidates for municipal office to the working-class voters of Newport News, we base our appeal upon the following declarations as our platform of principles:

1. Labor produces all wealth.

2. Under the present economic and political conditions, labor's share in the wealth it creates is merely a mean and uncertain subsistence.

3. So long as the present organization of industry remains the capitalists will monopolize the machine of production, and will appropriate to themselves, through the wage system, the wealth created by the working class.

4. This appropriation of labor's wealth is so complete that it enables the capitalist to live in luxury and idleness.

5. As a necessary consequence of this exploitation of the laborer by the capitalist, this expropriation of all property out of the hands of toilers into the private ownership of the holders of capital, there is an inevitable war between the interests of the working class on the one hand and the interests of the capitalist class on the other.

6. This class struggle between the wealth makers and the wealth takers will endure so long as our present system of production for profit continues.

7. In this conflict between the workers and the capitalist, labor is comparatively disarmed on the economic side, all the instruments of producing and distributing wealth being owned and controlled by the holder of capital.

8. There is only one weapon by which the working class can successfully oppose the capitalist class, and that is the ballot.

9. This fact demands, as an inevitable conclusion, the organization of the working class into a political party that shall be, everywhere and always, distinct from and opposed to every party not founded entirely upon the interests of the working class. The Socialist Party is organized to meet this demand, and is therefore the party of the working class.

10. The Socialist Party, when in office, shall always and everywhere, until the present system of wage slavery is utterly abolished, make the answer to this question its guiding rule of conduct:

Will this legislation advance the material interests of the working class and al dthe workers in the class struggle against capitalism? If it does, the Socialist Party is for it; if it does not, the Socialist Party is absolutely opposed to it.

11. In accordance with this principle, the Socialist Party pledges itse'f to conduct all the municipal affairs of Newport News in such a manner as to promote the interests of the working class.

12. In conclusion, we appeal to all workingmen to study the principles of Socialism, to vote with and for their class at all elections, until they overthrow the power of private capitalism, abolish industrial classes in society, and inaugurate the Co-operative Commonwealth, based upon this fundamental principle of justice: To every worker the full product of his labor.

IN KANSAS CITY.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., May 8.—A fitting example of the identity of interests of the trade unions and the Socialists was given here last night. The Women's Auxiliary of the Socialist Club of Jackson County gave an entertainment at the Academy of Music for the benefit of the locked-out bakers. This hall is the best in the city for the purpose, and was filled with trade unionists, Socialists, and their friends, who enjoyed a program of recitations, tableaux, vocal and instrumental music, in which, however, the opportunity was improved to instil a sense of duty of the working class to itself, in order that it might enjoy the earth and the fulness thereof. The speakers were Kate Richards O'Hare, editor of the women's column in the "Coming Nation;" William Wallace of the Bakers' Union; Charles F. Ceilly, of the Amalgamated Woodworkers, an organizer for the A. F. of L.; and Frank O'Hare, of the International School of Social Economy, who is now employed as organizer by the Socialist Club. After the program there were refreshments, and dancing until a late hour.

As a net substantial result, the Women's Auxiliary turned $118.75 into the treasury of the Bakers' Union, which has caused a deal of favorable comment at Labor Headquarters. The Socialist unionists are now asking their fellows if they ever heard of a Democratic or Republican, or any other political club, which dared to come to the assistance of the laboring man against the interests of the bosses? And they are also taking the opportunity to explain that the strike the Socialists are leading is of vastly more import than a struggle against a little league of masters.

The Women's Auxiliary has been given charge of the musical part of the program at a lecture which is to be given under the auspices of the Industrial Council by Comrade E. T. Behrens of Sedalia, who is president of the Missouri Federation of Labor, and a staunch Socialist who "showed" the politicians of his home city last spring.

Kansas City is going to be a storm center from now on. There will be sufficient "strenuousness" to please any one. With a "reform administration" in control of the city, floundering around and showing its imbecility; the Beef Trust agitation; Vrooman's co-operative movement; a "free thinkers" college, whose promoter, Roberts (the "successor of Ingersoll"), is no friend of Socialism—the clear-thinking Socialists are going to have plenty to do.

OFFICIAL

NATIONAL EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE.—Secretary, Leon Greenbaum, Room 427, Emilie Bldg., St. Louis, Mo.

MASSACHUSETTS.

STATE EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE.

Meeting held May 7, with Page, Goldstein, Sherman, Porter, and Mailly present and Page in chair.

Bills approved as follows: Postage, 37 cents; 50 mailing tubes, 70 cents; political State Committee of Socialist Party, postage, $1.50; N. P. Geiger, car fares, $9; organizing expenses, $5.26.

Communications received and filed as follows: From National Secretary Greenbaum; W. P. Wheelock of Webster, reporting financial condition of club; H. E. Sawyer of Reading, reporting financial condition; Roslindale, announcing formation of organization, and referred to Boston Central Committee; W. F. Wheelock of Webster, reporting a case of scabbing, and Organizer's reply to same endorsed; New Bedford; Boston; Fitchburg; Clinton; Ware; Lowell; Somerville; Warren.

Voted to accept and distribute referendum ballots on candidates for secretary of International Socialist Bureau, as received from National Secretary Greenbaum.

Monthly report of Financial Secretary-Treasurer Goldstein, for April, read, audited, found correct, filed, and copy ordered sent to each club and to The Worker. Organizer Mailly's report accepted and filed.

Voted to authorize the Organizer to arrange dates for Speaker N. P. Geiger, where feasible, with the understanding that clubs defray expenses.

Voted to accept form of communication to Webster Socialist Club, as presented by Goldstein, and to forward copy of same to Comrade Wheelock, Secretary, as follows:

"Dear Comrades:—Your letter in answer to our inquiry was duly received. We accept your explanation with the fullest confidence in the integrity of your purpose in placing in nomination men who had not served as privates in our rank and file. We are well aware that at the points of incipient development of the party's organization that the official political requirements will be necessarily accompanied by such grave mistakes in tactics as will react in undesirable consequence to our organization. However, such experience will prove anew, by added demonstration, the wisdom of the party's policy which is grounded upon, and evolved from, just such experience as has been made by the Socialists at Webster. We trust that hereafter greater care will be exercised in making political nominations under full control of the club membership, which will insure the party in this community against such ill-advised and unsocialistic action. Thus only may be secured that direct progress which is the fruit of order."

Secretary instructed to write Leominster regarding the last election.

Voted to communicate with clubs for the purpose of arranging dates for Eugene V. Debs in the fall.

Adjourned to meet Wednesday, May 21.

W. P. PORTER, Secretary.

STATE FINANCIAL REPORT.

Following is the report of the Financial Secretary-Treasurer for April:

Receipts—
Apr. 4, Boston Socialist Club	80	stamps.	$8.03
Apr. 4, Reading	"	10	" 1.00
Apr. 4, Somerville	"	20	" 2.01
Apr. 7, Malden	"	20	" 2.00
Apr. 7, Walpole	"	12	" 1.20
Apr. 10, Cambridge	"	25	" 2.50
Apr. 11, Clinton	"	100	" 10.03
Apr. 12, Brockton	"	50	" 5.00
Apr. 14, Walpole	"	10	" 1.00
Apr. 16, Fall River	"	25	" 2.50
Apr. 17, Boston	"	38	" 3.80
Apr. 23, E. Bridgewater	"	17	" 1.70
Apr. 24, Milford	"	29	" 2.09
Apr. 24, Lynn	"	39	" 3.90
Apr. 25, Amesbury	"	27	" 2.70
Apr. 26, Salem	"	30	" 3.00
Apr. 30, Fitchburg	"	50	" 5.00
Apr. 11, Tan Hefferman, member-at-large		5	" 1.20
Total		578
Apr. 12, Brockton Socialist Club, due cards			.50
Apr. 12, Walpole Socialist Club, due cards			.50
Apr. 23, East Bridgewater Socialist Club, 1,000 leaflets			1.25
Apr. 23, East Bridgewater Socialist Club, error last remittance			.10
Apr. 30, Quincy Socialist Club, receipt books, due cards			.35
			$61.21
Balance on hand April 1			62.25
Total			$123.45
Expenditures—
Apr. 3, National Headquarters, receipt books			.20
Apr. 8, Boston Co. Press, printing charters			$5.00
Apr. 9, Express shipping leaflets			.90
Apr. 9, Wm. Mailly, organizing expenses			17.77
Apr. 9, David Goldstein, loan of Nov. 23, 1901			21.45
Apr. 10, Dues, National Headquarters			25.00
Apr. 24, Fifty mimeograph circulars			.75
Apr. 24, Postage and receipt book			1.19
Apr. 24, Rent of typewriting machine			3.00
Apr. 24, Wm. Mailly, organizing expenses to date			7.19
Apr. 24, Balance due Martha Hopkins, stenographer			7.50
			$89.95
Balance on hand May 1			33.50
Total			$123.45
Stamp account—
On hand April 1			661
Received during April			1,000
Total			1,661
Sold during April			578
May 1, on hand			1,086

Audited and found correct,

J. H. PAGE,
JOHN WEAVER SHERMAN.

Mailly's bill includes $5.90, the expense of meeting at Marblehead.

Approved.

W. P. PORTER, Secretary.

NEW YORK.

STATE COMMITTEE.

The State Committee met in the Labor Lyceum, April 22, with Comrade John Asa A in the chair.

The Secretary reported the facts in regard to the challenge of Bishop Quigley of Buffalo. No answer had been received from the Bishop. Dr. A. Heller, after making an open challenge in the "Volkszeitung," which was accepted by H. Gaylord Wilshire, imposed terms which Comrade Wilshire found it impossible to accept, namely, that the debate should take place in a parochial school house, and should be conducted partly in English and partly in German. Robert Steiner, editor of the "Arbeiter Zeitung," invited Dr. Heller to meet him in debate at International Hall, and a debate in German was held in that hall.

A report was received of Comrade Spring's agitation tour through the state. Up to date, Spring has spoken at the following places: New York, Brooklyn, Long Island City, Evergreen, L. I., Yonkers, New Rochelle, Dobbs Ferry, Stapleton, Peekskill, Newburgh, Catskill, Troy, Schenectady, Johnstown, Gloversville, Frankfort, Utica, Rome, and Syracuse.

Regarding the coming State Convention, the Secretary reported that a referendum was being taken on place and time of said convention.

Receipts during past month, $112.95; expenses, $141.60.

LEONARD D. ABBOTT, Sec'y.

Letter Box.

M. WINKLER, Lawrence, Mass.—The Socialist Party stands for the public ownership of the means of production as a whole. We hardly see how this could be effected except by what capitalist advocates call consecation, what you more correctly designate as expropriation. Where public ownership advocates who propose that the government shall purchase the means of production from the capitalist owners, giving bonds or other indemnity of the sort, just as the government now does when it finds it to take private property. A little thought will show that this would not improve our condition at all. The capitalists would be quite as well pleased with the possession of government bonds representing the wealth of the nation as with private title-deeds and certificates representing the same wealth; then, as now, they would enjoy an unearned income out of the product of other men's labor. Obviously, that would not be Socialism. Your parallel with the chattel-slave question is a correct one. Through the ownership of the means of production, the capitalists hold the whole wage-working class in slavery none the less absolute because it is not legally recognized. When it was proposed to pay ransom for the slaves, Emerson answered in these words:

"Pay ransom to the owner? Are!
"And roll the log to the brim!
"But who is the owner? The slave is owner
"And ever was. Pay him!"

For a really excellent treatment of this question, read Bellamy's "Equality," Chap. 37.

MRS. CHASE.—You evidently don't know him or you would rebuke us for the criminal mildness of our language. We couldn't "make him ill-natured." He was born that way.

E. K. EMERSON, Newport News, Va.—The S. L. P. leaflet which you inquire about is, as to be expected, a tissue of falsehood. Anyone who knows the history of the split in the old S. L. P., which resulted in the organization of the S. P., will tell you that the account of the birth of the S. D. P. given in this leaflet is an absurd lie, put forth for the purpose of confusing and misleading those who do not know the facts. If we attempted to answer all the falsehoods disseminated by the frantic boss of the rapidly disintegrating S. L. P., we would have no time left for Socialist propaganda. Such a persistent violator of the truth will discredit himself where answers would be useless. Although the cases cited in this leaflet are misrepresented and falsified, it is doubtless true that in some places where the movement is young, inexperienced members of the S. D. P. have made mistakes; but such mistakes have always been rectified or repudiated by the party and the party press. Such occasional mistakes by inexperienced or ill-informed members could only be avoided in a small party controlled by an autocratic boss. The national and local platforms of the S. D. P., the uncompromising attitude of the party as a whole, and the character of the party press, should satisfy anyone that the S. D. P. stands for class conscious, revolutionary Socialism. If you have a file of The Worker, Comrade Hanford's "Address to the Common Soldiers in the Ranks of the S. L. P." published in our issue of March 24, 1901, may be of use to you.

FOR THE NATIONAL PROPAGANDA FUND.

An Appeal by the National Committee to All Party Members and Sympathizers.

To the State and Local Organizations of the Socialist Party.

Comrades:—At the meeting of the National Committee in this city on January 24, 25, and 26, 1902, the work that has thus far been accomplished by the national organization and the means of continuing the same were taken under advisement, and after due consideration, we decided to issue this appeal to the state and local organizations and to all of the comrades of our party for such amounts as each may be able to contribute as donations to a National Propaganda Fund.

The purposes of this fund are to enable us to continue the great and far-reaching task already begun of giving the greatest possible degree of general publicity to the aims and methods of the Socialist Party; to extend the influence of our party as a vital political factor, especially in the various economic organizations of the working class; to be the means of communicating advice to and co-operating with comrades in their efforts to agitate, organize, and educate the proletariat; and to assist the local and state organizations and the Socialist press in general in extending the scope of their respective activities.

Official records show that 470,000 pieces of printed supplies, especially intended for party organization, have been used throughout the country since the Unity Convention designed by and supplied through the agency of the National Committee. The National Secretary's report, showing an increase of membership in good standing of 50 per cent. since the Unity Convention, is eloquent evidence of the splendid achievements of our comrades in the townships, cities, counties, states, and territories.

During the past six months the demands of all kinds upon your National Committee from every section of the country have been far beyond our resources, and we have been repeatedly handicapped by lack of funds. At this writing, while the business of the party is increasing heavily from day to day, our financial receipts are not sufficient to enable us to meet the most important requirements of the party work, and it is urgently necessary that the comrades render immediate financial aid to the national organization.

As a means to this end we again call the attention of the comrades to the National Propaganda Fund. Donations to this fund should be sent to the National Secretary, and will be acknowledged weekly in the Socialist press.

LEON GREENBAUM,
National Secretary,
427 Emilie Bldg., St. Louis.

By order National Committee, Socialist Party.

Previously acknowledged	$316.98
Philadelphia, German Br.	5.00
Cleveland "Citizen"	5.25
Hoboken, N. J. Br. 1	2.00
California State Committee	23.45
Total	$352.68

BUY BLUE-LABEL CIGARS.

Dr. C. L. FURMAN,
DENTIST,
121 Schermerhorn Street, Brooklyn.

Strictly Union made

BUFFO
TINY SPICY HAVANAS
10, 15 & 20¢ Packages
PLAIN

If you cannot get them of your dealer, write to THE
E. Seidenberg, Stiefel & Co.,
MAKERS.
98TH STREET AND FIRST AVENUE, NEW YORK.

"WHERE WE STAND."

A lecture by John Spargo, editor of THE COMRADE. Originally delivered under the title, "Our Position, Economic, Ethical and Political." Five cents a copy, 10 for 35c., 50 for $1.40, 100 for $2.50, postpaid. Order now.

ILLUSTRATED AGITATION LEAFLETS.

Published by THE COMRADE PUB. CO., 11 Cooper Square, N. Y. "The Worker with the Capitalist Mind," by Herbert N. Casson, fifth edition; "Dialogue between the Machine Gun and the Manser," by Frank Stuhiman; "A Lesson from the Donkeys," by John Spargo. You should use these leaflets for distribution, as they are sure to be read by everybody who gets them. Price, 10c. a bundle of 50, one kind or assorted.

SPECIAL.—Upon receipt of 50 cents in one-cent stamps we will send THE COMRADE, an illustrated Socialist Monthly, for three months, 100 illustrated leaflets, and a copy of "Where We Stand."

THE COMRADE PUBLISHING CO., 11 Cooper Square, New York (373 Bowery.)

R·I·P·A·N·S

To say that I am surprised at their action will convey but a slight idea of the value I set upon Ripans Tabules. I derived immediate benefit and to Ripans Tabules am deeply indebted for feeling as I do to-day. If the people of this country knew the efficacy of Ripans Tabules for stomach and head troubles they would be relieved from many afflictions.

At Druggists.

The Five-Cent Package is enough for an ordinary occasion. The family bottle, 60 cents, contains a supply for a year.

COMRADES, PATRONIZE . . .
FRED. SONNENSCHEIN,
UNION BARBER SHOP
84 E. 4th Street, New York.

The annual meeting of Stockholders of the Barton Mfg. Co. for the election of Directors for the ensuing year, will be held at the office of the company, No. 338 Broadway, New York, on the 31st day of May, 1902, at 12 o'clock noon.
Dated April 30, 1902. R. WILDAY, Pres.

Where to Lunch and Dine

Comrades, patronize those who advertise in your paper.

ABBOTT BROS'
Lunch Room,
110 Bleecker St., near Greene St.
NEW YORK.
Kangaroos are welcome.
No line drawn on smaller animals.

PATRONIZE . . .
FRITZ'S COFFEE AND LUNCH ROOM. 373 Bowery, bet. 4th & 5th Sts. N. Y. OPEN DAY AND NIGHT.

LAWYERS.

MORRIS HILLQUIT,
Attorney-at-Law,
320 Broadway. Telephone 2576 Franklin

L. D. MAYES, LAWYER,
245 Broadway, New York City, Borough of Manhattan. Practice in all Courts. Consultation free

H. B. SALISBURY,
COUNSELLOR-AT-LAW
309 Broadway, Room 903. 50 Union Square.

Simon Sultan,
Counsellor at Law.
203 Broadway (Mail and Express Building) 7th Floor, Room 711.
Residence 110 West 120th st., New York.

Have Your Printing Done at Union Printers.

F. W. HEISS, 69 GOLD ST. New York City.
Use this Label. Union Printer Lowest Prices. — Mail Orders Promptly Attended To.

WHO WILL DO YOUR LAUNDRY WORK?
I. X. L. LAUNDRY, GUSTAV LEIST, 774 Second Ave.

SPECIAL NOTICES.

Under this heading any matter of interest to the Social Democratic Party (Socialist Party) will be inserted at FIVE CENTS PER LINE EACH INSERTION. Six words about equal one line. Cash must accompany advertisement IN EVERY INSTANCE.

Manhattan, Bronx, Richmond Boroughs and New Jersey Section of the Arrangement Committee for laying cornerstone of Brooklyn Labor Lyceum Building and monster parade demonstration: All delegates are urgently requested to attend the next meeting on Friday evening, May 16, at 8 o'clock, at the New York Labor Lyceum, 64 E. Fourth street, Manhattan; also the following meeting on Friday evening, May 23, at 8 o'clock, in the same place. Please attend promptly.
763 SECRETARY.

ORGANIZER WANTED.

An organizer is wanted to put in a month or more in Connecticut, visiting sympathizers and readers of party papers, inducing them to join the party, extending the circulation of party papers and pamphlets, and addressing open-air meetings. Salary and expenses will be paid an energetic worker. Address Connecticut State Committee, A. B. Cornelius, Secretary, 746 Chapel street, New Haven.

Ms. Edward King will lecture Sunday, May 18, at 8:30 p. m. in the club rooms of the Young Men's Educational League, 351 Broome street. Subject: 'Preparation for the French Revolution." Admission free. All are welcome.

NO TRUSTS! NO PRISONS! NO SWEAT SHOPS!
Shirts, Waists, Collars or Cuffs

BEARING THIS LABEL ARE O. K.

INTERN'L UNION SHIRT, WAIST & LAUNDRY WORKERS' Registered

This label is sewed on Shirts and Waists just below the tab or bosom and is stamped in miniature on Collars and Cuffs

No Chinese exclusion act needed when up-to-date Union Laundries use this Label to stamp Price List Slips on your laundry packages. Ask for it.

EGYPT...
Southern Illinois. A real Garden of Eden. No place in the United States produces a greater variety of finer fruits, vegetables and grains, or more of them. Splendid climate and water. Cheap lands. THE FARMERS' INSTITUTE, Carbondale, Ill., will tell you all about it. Four months for ten cents. Sample copy for two-cent stamp.

GERMAN SOCIALIST LITERATURE.

We constantly keep in stock a large assortment of German Publications, and offer the following eight Pamphlets at half price for 25 CENTS.

Ein Wort an die Arbeiter Amerikas	5 Cents
Die Mission der arbeitenden Klasse von Chas. H. Vail	5 Cents
Das Kommunistische Manifest von Marx und Engels	10 Cents
Municipale Forderungen der Socialdemokratie von H. Schlüter	5 Cents
Die Agitation des Allg. deutschen Arbeitervereins, von F. Lassalle	10 Cents
Ceterum Censeo von Dr. F. Krasser	2 Cents
Was ist Socialismus von Emil Lieb	10 Cents
Zehn socialistische Lieder	2 Cents

Bei Einsendung von nur 25 Cents verschicken wir obige acht Schriften frei per Post.

On receipt of 25 cents above publications will be mailed postpaid.

Catalogue of German Publications free.

SOCIALIST LITERATURE COMPANY,
184 WILLIAM STREET, NEW YORK.

PUBLICATIONS.

A NEW LEAFLET.
What Do You Think of the Beef Trust?

10 copies	5 cents.
50 copies	15 cents.
100 copies	25 cents.
1,000 copies	$2.00.

Postpaid, cash with order.

SOCIALIST LITERATURE CO.,
184 William St., New York.

SOCIAL JUSTICE.
EDITED BY FREDERICK G. STRICKLAND.

A monthly message from agitators in the field. Good for the man who hasn't thought and full of suggestions to Socialist workers.
25 Cents for Eight Months. 35 Cents per Year.
Address: SOCIAL JUSTICE, Yellow Springs, Ohio.

LATEST PUBLICATIONS.

"Adventures of John McCue" . . . . . 10c.
"American Fabians." By Simons. Cloth, 50c.
"American Communities." By W. A. Hinds. Cloth $1.00
"The Man with the Hoe," and other poems. By Edwin Markham. Cloth, $1; paper, 50c.
"History of Trade Unionism." By S. & B. Webb. Cloth . . . . . $2.00.
"Industrial Denouncing." By Sidney and Beatrice Webb . . . . . $4.00.
"The Passing of Capitalism." By Ladoff. 25c.
"Organized Self-Help." By H. N. Casson. 25c.
"Religion of Capital." By Lafargue . . . . 10c.
"Social Effect of Machinery." By Cotton. 10c
"Tales from Gorky" . . . . . $1.20.
"The Pride of Intellect." By F. H. Wentworth; and "What is a Scab?" By A. M. Simons . . . . . 5c.
"The Westcotes." By A. T. Quiller-Couth . . . . . $1.00.
"Useful Principles of Logic." By T. Bersford . . . . . 15c.
"Voice from England." By Father McGrady . . . . . 10c.
"The History of Trade Unionism." By Sidney and Beatrice Webb. New edition. New york, Longmans, Green & Co., 1902. 558 pages. Cloth . . . . . $2.60.
"Industrial Democracy." By Sidney and Beatrice Webb. 929 pages . . . . . $4.00.
"Where We Stand." By J. Spargo . . . . . 5c.
"Woman." By Martha Moore Avery . . . 10c.

A large stock of Labor Literature in English and German always on hand. Catalogues free.

SOCIALIST LITERATURE CO.,
184 William St., New York.

CO-OPERATE SOCIALIST BOOKS IN PUBLISHING

What is the way to get them? A social contribution of $2 a month five months makes you joint owner in our business with the right to buy books at the prices in second column, postage included. Others have to pay prices in first column.

The America Farmer. Simons. Cloth	.25	.30
Collectivism. Vanderveide. Cloth	.25	.30
Collectivism. Vanderveide. Paper	.10	.13
Ehrlich's Life of Marx. Cloth	.50	.60
Ehrlich's Life of Marx. Paper	.25	.30
Engels' Origin of the Family. Cloth	.50	.60
Love's Coming-of-Age. Edward Carpenter	1.00	.60
Socialism, Utopian and Scientific. Engels. Cloth	.50	.60
Socialism Utopian and Scientific. Engels. Paper	.10	.05
Socialism. Wilhelm Liebknecht. Paper	.10	.05
Life of Engels. Kautzky. Paper	.10	.05
Pocket Library of Socialism. Per copy	.05	.03
Pocket Library of Socialism. Per 100, assorted	3.00	2.00
International Socialist Review. Per copy	.10	.05
International Socialist Review. Per year	1.00	.50

Our co-operative plan is fully explained in a booklet entitled "HOW SOCIALIST LITERATURE IS PUBLISHED," mailed free on application. Locals Chicago, Philadelphia, Erie, Minneapolis, Davenport and many others are already with us.

CHARLES H. KERR & CO. (Co-operative)
56 Fifth Avenue, CHICAGO.

L'UNION DES TRAVAILLEURS,
730 Washington Ave., Charleroi, Pa.

A weekly advocate of Trade Unionism and Socialism. Should be read by every French speaking worker.
Send for sample copies.
Subscription, $1.00 per year.

Have you seen a copy of the
THE COMING NATION?
Opinions from the comrades:
"It's a strong, attractive, and instructive number."
"The best propaganda paper in the field."
"Its cartoons and pictures are drawing cards. People will read pictures where they won't read rhetoric."
Send your name on a postal card and receive three sample copies free.
FRED D. WARREN, Editor.
E. N. RICHARDSON, Assistant Editor.
THE COMING NATION, Rich Hill, Mo.

THE DECATUR LABOR WORLD
Decatur, Ill.
AN UP-TO-DATE LABOR PAPER.
Subscription $1 per year, in advance.
HAS A WEEKLY CIRCULATION OF 3,500 COPIES.
Advertising rates quoted on application. Address:
THE DECATUR LABOR WORLD,
231 N. Main St., Decatur, Ill.

LABOR ORGANIZATIONS

Standing advertisements of Trade Unions and other Societies will be inserted under this heading at the rate of $1 per line per annum.

CIGARMAKERS' PROGRESSIVE INTERNATIONAL UNION No. 90. Office and Employment Bureau: 64 East 4th Street. —District I. (Bohemian), 331 East 71st Street, every Saturday at 8 p. m.—District II. (German), at 50 E. First street, meets every Saturday at 8 p. m.—District III. meets at the Clubhouse, 206 East 86th Street, every Saturday at 7:30 p. m.—District IV. meets at 342 West 42d Street, every Saturday at 8 p. m.—District V. meets at 547 East 157th Street, every Saturday at 8 p. m.—District VII. meets every Saturday evening at 1432 Second Avenue.—The Board of Supervisors meets every Tuesday at Faulhaber's Hall, 1551 Second Avenue, at 8 p. m.

LOCAL 476, MACHINE WOOD WORKERS AND TURNERS. United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners of America. Meets every Tuesday in Bohemia Hall, 323 East Seventy-first street, New York. Financial Secretary, W. E. P. Schwartz, 27 Fulton avenue, Astoria, L. I.; Recording Secretary, Chas. Fiescler, 522 East Eighty-fifth street, New York.

Workmen' Children Death Benefit Fund of the United States of America.

The address of the Financial Secretary of the Executive Committee is:
HENRY HAUPT, Bible House, Room 42, Astor Place, N. Y. City, N. Y.

Arbeiter-Kranken- und Sterbe-Kass luer die Ver. Staaten von Amerika.
WORKMEN'S
Sick and Death Benefit Fund of the United States of America.

The above society was founded in the year 1884 by workingmen imbued with the spirit of solidarity and Socialist thought. Its numerical strength (at present composed of 130 local branches with 25,000 ma e and 4,500 female members) is rapidly

CAPITALISTS CULTIVATING RACE HATRED AMONG WORKERS.

Capitalism perverts every good thing—at least, it tries to pervert every right demand and every wholesome tendency, and far too often it succeeds.

We have in the United States several million colored people, the descendants of slaves. They are poor. When the Government—actuated partly by humane sentiment, but more by economic necessity—set the slaves free forty years ago, it carefully refrained from providing them with land or other means of production. It simply changed them from chattel slaves to wage slaves. Their descendants are still hewers of wood and drawers of water for the owners of land and mill.

These people are wage-workers. So are many more millions of white people, North and South. The white wage-workers, however, are a little less helpless, because they are generally a little better educated, are more accustomed to organized action, and have a tradition of revolt to inspire them, rather than a tradition of servility to weigh them down.

These colored people desire education. They need education for the advancement of their own interests. In the interest of white wage-workers also (because they belong to the same class) they should have education. In the highest interest of society they should have education.

Education of the negroes is certainly a good thing. It is a right demand and a wholesome tendency. Now see how capitalism perverts it.

The owners of Southern cotton mills and iron mills and other industries want an abundant supply of docile and at the same time sufficiently skilled workers to make profits for them. Nay, they want an over-supply; they want to have an army of capable workers always begging for permission to work—just as the capitalists of the North do.

The poor white people of the South are many. But they are not numerous enough to satisfy the desires of the mill lords. Moreover, they are sometime too independent, too likely to go on strike.

These mill lords despise the negroes—but they need them. What do they do?

They take advantage of the negroes' desire for education, and also of their inherited servility—their willingness to consider themselves inferior beings and to be humble and grateful to their "betters."

They do not want these negroes to be really educated. They do not want them to learn to think for themselves. But they do want to have them trained into good working animals. They want them to acquire the skill of white workers without losing their servility.

So these mill lords affect a very generous interest in the colored people whom they despise. They give money for Industrial schools for them—industrial schools only, mind you. They praise Booker T. Washington and others of his sort. Some of them even forgive President Roosevelt for dining with Washington. By gifts of money and still sweeter praise they buy these leaders of the colored people, body and soul, and use them as tools to turn the colored workers to their greater profit.

Very likely Booker T. Washington and the other colored leaders do not know that they are selling themselves and betraying the working people of their race. But they are doing it, nevertheless.

These mill lords of the South are not all Southern men. In almost every company that owns cotton mills in Georgia or the Carolinas or iron works in Alabama or Tennessee there are some Southern capitalists of the old slave-holding families and some Northern capitalists of the old anti-slavery stock. Being joint owners of the Southern wage-slaves, black and white, they forget old scores and get along together very nicely indeed.

In another column, under the heading "Negroes to Break Strikes?" you may see how much farther the capitalists propose to carry their perversion of this right demand, this just tendency of negro education.

They propose to give the colored people education of a sort—not "scholarly" education, not real education, but just industrial training.

They do not propose to give it to them as a matter of right, or for the negroes' benefit.

They do not propose to give it to them for the interest of society as a whole.

Least of all do they propose to give it to them for the benefit of the white workers.

No. They propose to give it to them as a means of training, not only skilled and docile workers for Southern mills, but skilled and servile scabs to break the strikes of textile workers in Massachusetts, steel workers in Pennsylvania, railroad men in Illinois, miners in Montana, of wage workers of any part of the country.

Negroes have played too large a part as scabs already in many different places and many different trades. But it is intended that in the future they shall play a still larger part.

It is worth while to remember, too, that the standing army of the United States is largely made up of colored men and that colored troops have more than once been sent—as in the Cœur d'Alene affair—to shoot strikers.

It is worth while to remember that donations are made to colored churches and theological seminaries whose preachers and professors make a business of denouncing trade unions.

It is worth while to remember that trade union organizers in the South have been threatened with lynching—by the "most respectable citizens"—for trying to bring colored workmen into the unions.

It is worth while for both white and colored workers to think seriously of these things.

This is not a sectional question and it should not be treated as a race question. It is a class question and should be so recognized.

Northern capitalists are even a little more active in this detestable movement than their Southern fellow stockholders.

And the politicians of both old parties—where are they. Bryan has not had a word to say again it. Neither has Tillman. Neither has Morgan nor Jones nor Bacon nor Culberson nor Daniel nor Clark nor any other. They are too busy talking about the Filipinos. As someone has said, "Brotherly love is a beautiful thing—at long range." On the Republican side it is as bad. Roosevelt, who dined Booker T. Washington, did not think to warn him about setting black workingmen against white workingmen. Hanna, who loves Labor very dearly, has not raised his voice against this infamy. Neither has Hoar nor Depew nor Allison nor Foraker nor Aldrich nor Beveridge nor any other.

The professional peacemakers of the Civic Federation—even the sanctified "representatives of the disinterested public," like Ireland and Potter—have had nothing to say against this plan to cultivate race hatred among the workers in order to maintain capitalist rule.

Carnegie, volunteer adviser-in-chief to the universe, has not raised his voice in warning, nor has his worthy friend, Grover Cleveland.

And they will not. They know on which side their bread is buttered, as the homely saying goes.

The working class alone must deal with this malign attempt to revive the race conflict in its worst form. The rank and file of the men in the trade unions must shoulder the responsibility of solving this question, if they woul not suffer the fearful consequences of neglect.

We shall have more to say of this subject next week. In the meantime, we urge every reader to think of it; we advise every workingmen's organization to take it up for calm and serious discussion; we suggest that every labor paper lay the matter before its readers and express its own opinion.

OPPORTUNIST TENDENCIES.

A Review of Some Recent Developments in the Socialist Parties of Europe.

Recent events in some European countries are extremely interesting in view of the efforts of a few Socialists in this country to deflect the movement in the direction of "opportunism." During the "prosperous" times which prevailed in Europe a few years ago it was possible for the employing class to grant small concessions to the workers. Such concessions were less harmful than any cessation of industry and stoppage of profits. But during the last year has come the "American invasion," and business depression, industrial bankruptcies, unemployed armies and hunger riots followed one another in swift and terrible succession. When this time came the day of compromise was past. Employers could not grant favors that would destroy their small remnants of profits, even though the alternative was the destruction of the whole profit system. Such a concession meant their individual disappearance from the ranks of profit receivers and the capitalist has not yet risen to that lofty stage of class-consciousness where he is willing to sacrifice his individual chance to secure profits for the sake of any social system.

Because of these and other recent developments there have been some interesting occurrences in European Socialist circles. In France the Millerand movement seems to have well nigh reached its end. Steadily the ministerialist supporters have fallen away. Attempting to trim their sails to the varying winds of disintegrating bourgeois interests, they have gradually drifted away from all genuine proletarian interests. Once the field of bourgeois politics was entered, all the influences of capitalist environment tended to mould them to its image. They became ever less and less revolutionary.

When a few weeks ago the Ministerialist convention was held at Tours the attendance was so pitifully small that the management refused to give out the list of delegates. At the same time so far had they departed from the position of international Socialism that the Berlin "Vorwaerts" described the result of their deliberations as an "organization for disorganization and the furtherance of opportunism." Existing alliances with capitalist parties were reported and plans laid for new bargains of the same kind. Yet with the contradictory character that is ever the accompaniment of opportunism they adopted a platform filled with the phrases of the revolutionary Socialism which their every action had repudiated and then "most unkindest cut of all" unanimously resolved that "no Socialist may enter a ministry without the consent of the party."

"Le Mouvemente Socialiste," long considered as at least sympathetic with the ministerialist policy and Jaurès, but which now is clearly with the revolutionary forces, says in a late issue of the "union," engineered by Jaurès in 1899, and of which so much was expected at the time: "One by one all the revolutionary forces there artificially assembled have disintegrated, and the process still continues. In 1900, at the convention in the Hall Wagram at Paris, the Parti Ouvrier Francais (Guesdists) were the first to break away and make union impossible. * * * At Lyons in 1901 the Parti Socialiste Revolutionaire in its turn severed all connection between its organization and the elements which appeared so chaotic and uncertain. Some months later the Parti Ouvrier Socialiste Revolutionaire in its turn declared its independence, and to-day the best of the independent federations have broken from a party which now retains nothing Socialist save the name."

So fatal has been the disorganizing influence of the bourgeois tendencies, that have been admitted under the name of opportunism, upon the unification of the French Socialist movement that to-day, in the face of a general election, it is Jaurès, who is without doubt one of the most brilliant figures in the French Socialist movement if not in the whole international movement—Jaurès, who a few short months ago was looked upon as the one man who more than any other single individual was bringing closer the day of a united Socialist movement in France, is to-day declared by Kautsky to be the greatest obstacle in the way of securing that unity. "Perhaps the coming election," says Kautsky in a late issue of the "Neue Zeit," "may serve to soften these personal antipathies and prepare the way for union. A battle against a common foe often does wonders in this direction. But this result can only be secured when the main obstacle now standing between the two fractions is removed, and that obstacle is—Jaurès. * * * The unity of the French Socialists can only be secured against, not with Jaurès." "Le Mouvemente Socialiste" makes this significant comment upon Kautsky's words: "We do not think it is necessary to struggle simply against one single person. * * * We prefer rather to declare war on tendencies and systems—to state Socialism we would oppose revolutionary Socialism." Let the comrades in America ponder well these words. Can we not learn from the experience of the French comrades or must we have a term at the same terribly costly school.

Turn now to England, the classic land of Fabianism, compromise and opportunism and the events of the last few months are teaching the same lesson. About three years ago an effort was made to unite the Independent Labor Party, the Social Democratic Federation, the Fabians and some of the trade unions upon a Socialistic basis in the hope of securing a "labor group" of members in Parliament. The S. D. F., with some of the trade unions, desired that a Socialist resolution, affirming the class war and the fundamentals of international Socialism, be made the basis of union. This position was opposed by the Fabians and the I. L. P. with the usual arguments of opportunism. Unfortunately the latter forces were the stronger. Steadily since then the Labor Representation Committee has grown further and further from Socialism. This opinion of ours is based, not alone on the statements of the S. D. F., who withdrew when bourgeois tendencies seemed to dominate, but on the printed reports of the succeeding conferences and the comments of the capitalist press and the discussions that have arisen within the I. L. P. At the last meeting of the Labor Representation Conference there were not lacking defenders of the group of notoriously anti-Socialistic "labor members" now in the House of Commons, and it was evident that to-day there would be no hope of carrying the Socialist resolution, whose passage would have been an easy matter at the first meeting had the avowed Socialists stood by their colors.

Meanwhile there seems to be some signs of disintegration within the I. L. P. itself, which has always been opportunistic in its tactics. Many branches grew rebellious at the action of the I. L. P. officials in actively opposing Comrade Quelch, when he made his recent gallant fight for Socialism at Dewsbury. Finally, to make the parallel with France even closer, Robert Blatchford, who has always been considered more or less opportunistic in his attitude, comes out clearly for the class struggle position, throws his influence on the side of the S. D. F. and declares Keir Hardie to be the greatest obstacle to Socialist unity in England.

Recent events in Italy have been teaching the same lessons with even greater clearness and additional emphasis. The Zanardelli ministry came into power with the votes of the Socialists because it was fighting the reactionary effort being made by the conservative forces to deprive the laborers of the right of organization. Under these conditions many Socialists, including the brilliant Turati, were in favor of considering the Socialists as pledged to the support of the ministry. But Enrico Ferri, and those who with him stood upon a revolutionary position, declared that while they had accepted the formation of this ministry as the alternative to a period of persecution of organized labor, they would not be bound by any policy as a ministerialist party, but would hold themselves as ever antagonistic to any and all capitalist governments. For a time it looked as if opportunism, here as elsewhere, would become a disrupting force and split the hitherto solid ranks of the Italian proletariat. Opportunism seemed for the moment to be gaining ground. At once the logical result followed. The bourgeois, no longer frightened by the advance of a solid proletarian movement, saw no necessity in granting even momentary palliatives, but, on the contrary, redoubled their attempts to crush the laborers. The government replaced strikers by soldiers, threatened to force the railroad employees into military service if they dared to strike, absolutely forbid any organization of the employees of the postoffice and telegraphs, and prepared a series of laws for the regulation and annoyance of all bodies of laborers. Under these conditions it is no wonder that it was not long until Comrade Schiavi, the well-known correspondent of the "International Socialist Review," was able to write in "Le Mouvement Socialiste:" "Our foreign comrades may be reassured; the harmony between the Socialists and the Ministry is ended, and the Socialist group in Parliament no longer soils its conscience with votes of confidence in a bourgeois Ministry."

But the king has refused to accept the resignations of this ministry and has sent them back into power. As to the further occurrences we cannot speak with so much accuracy, as we are still dependent on the reports of the capitalist press (not having yet received any direct word through Socialist sources), but according to these reports the king has declared himself a "Socialist." What he means by this is shown by his extended instructions to his cabinet. He outlines a plan of nationalization and municipalization that for elaborateness of detail and inclusiveness is more extensive than any list of "immediate demands" ever yet outlined by any American, German, or English opportunist. We may be sure that this program will be carried into effect with a rapidity exactly proportionate to the growth of an uncompromising, class-conscious revolutionary Socialist Party in Italy, and let those who sneer at these phrases mark that fact.

There is scarcely a theoretical argument in support of opportunism that is not answered by the experience of these three countries during the last few years. All that the opponents of opportunism have ever said as to its disintegrating tendencies and corrupting influence is justified in France and England, while Italy confirms once more what Germany proved under Bismarck, that the most effective way for Socialists to advance reforms is to neither beg nor demand them of capitalism, but to threaten the whole structure of plutocracy and exploitation, when those who are in control of governmental machinery at present, and who therefore alone can enact reforms, will hasten to throw these sops to their opponents in the hope of retaining the possibility of continuous, even though diminished exploitation.—A. M. Simons, in International Socialist Review for April.

A SUFFICIENT REASON

To Induce Intelligent Workingmen to Vote for Socialism.

The following statement, taken from the New York "Journal" of May 8, should need no comment. By itself, it gives a sufficient reason why workingmen should vote for Socialism.

"President Schwab's annual report of the Steel Trust's operations shows that, while he draws a salary of $1,000,000 a year, the average daily wage of all the 158,263 employees, from the million-dollar president down to the 50-cent-a-day mule boys, is $2.25. The mill laborers drew $1 a day each. Puddlers and a few other classes of highly skilled men get $4 a day.

"Leaving out the president and the $50,000-a-year executive officers, the average wage of the employees is considerably less than $2. Their total share of the pay-roll money is one-quarter of the whole.

"Every working day of the year President Schwab's salary amounts to $3,205. In mine and mill it takes 1,325 men to earn a like sum. They dig and delve, haul ore and coal to the furnaces, smelt iron, squeeze it and roll it or work like demons amid the flames of coke or steel furnaces, and finally turn it out in rod and bar plate or rails ready for industrial uses."

It need only be added that a large part of the steel workers—especially of those highly skilled, four-dollar men—are compelled to work twelve hours a day, and that they become old, broken-down men at the age of forty. See Spahr's "America's Working People" for these facts.

ABSORBING BELGIUM.

"They are already talking in Europe of the possibility of Belgium being absorbed by France as the outcome of the Socialistic troubles in the former country. In this era of merger it is just as difficult for the small countries to maintain themselves as it is for the small business concerns."—Minneapolis Tribune.

It is not quite so certain that Belgium is regarded as such a dainty morsel by the French capitalist government. It is rather too highly tainted with Socialism to be quite palatable and France has about as much of that already as it can easily digest. The absorption of Belgium would mean about another million Socialists to whom equal suffrage would have to be conceded. For the little countries, Socialism is a good preventive against "benevolent assimilation" and the best guarantee of national independence so long as capitalism lasts at any rate.—Chicago Socialist.

BEER DRIVERS' UNION NO. 23.

A regular meeting of Beer Drivers' Union No. 23 was held on Sunday, May 11, with Matthew Kearney as chairman and Jos. K lass as vice-chairman. Minutes of the previous regular meeting, the shop delegate meeting, and the special meeting were adopted as read in the respective order. Various communications were received and acted on. Upon notification of the death of Brother George J. Dittmar, a vote of sympathy and condolence was extended to his widow and children in their hour of trial. Various matters of routine business were acted upon. Reports from those cities in which the U. B. W. have struck or been locked-out were received, showing the outlook promising for an early settlement.

W. H. G.

——Cuba will be governed by the sugar trust whether it has a government of its own or becomes a state of the United States, that is as long as capitalism rules.—Chicago Socialist.

REFERENDUM BILL IS LOST.

Massachusetts Legislature Does Not Trust the People.

Socialists Support the Bill—Opponents Admit They Fear the Workingmen—Many Dodge the Issue—Brewers' Strike Still On.

Few matters of immediate interest to the readers of these letters have come before the Legislature during the past two weeks. The Socialist members have had occasion to speak three times within that period—upon the resolve providing for constitutional amendment whereby amendments may be submitted to the people upon petition of 50,000 voters; against the bill providing that street railway locations be first approved by the State Railroad Commissioners; and against a bill to permit licensed innholders to furnish barbering until noon on Sundays to guests who have resorted to the hotel for food and lodging.

The time of the House has been consumed in considering the Luce Election Bill, which seeks direct nomination of candidates, and which was passed after a long debate covering several days; a bill providing for district option in Boston on the license question, which also passed; and a bill permitting the sale of candy, soda, and fruit on Sunday—the latter a result of the rigid enforcement of the old "blue laws," which makes the traditional Puritan Sabbath so beautiful in theory, so uncomfortable in practise. The bill passed and will become a law unless the worshippers of tradition in the Senate decide otherwise.

Socialists Support Referendum.

The Committee on Constitutional Amendments reported unanimously in favor of the bill providing for the referendum on constitutional amendments, and, although the bill passed to a third hearing, yet when the vote on roll-call arrived, as provided by the constitution, it lacked the necessary two-thirds, and died right there. When the bill came up on Tuesday, April 28, it was opposed only by Mr. Dana of Newton, who asked the reason why a change should be made in the constitution which had worked so well for years; only one other state had made such a provision in its constitution, and that was the new one of South Dakota. Carey replied to Dana, and said in part:

"We are told many times that Massachusetts is in the van, and that she is the leader in progress. Yet here is an argument made that Massachusetts is too old to accept a new thing, and then when a new state has accepted the same thing it is pointed out as an argument against it that only one new state has accepted it. Pray, Mr. Speaker, what kind of a state may we expect to accept this provision to the satisfaction of the member from Newton? Are we to lead by standing still, or shall we not lead by going ahead?"

Afraid of Working People.

The bill came up again on the Friday following, when the principal opponent was Schofield of Malden, an able man and one of the conservative leaders in the house. He opposed this bill as he has every one introduced looking towards any change in existing affairs. He defended the constitution, and said that the adoption of the amendment proposed would keep the state in a constant turmoil, as the same amendment could be brought up over and over again. We must protect ourselves from the 80,000 people organized in the trade unions of the state, who, acting together, could break down the barriers provided by the constitution, if this amendment were adopted.

MacCartney replied to Schofield by saying that the trade unions were the most democratic institutions under the present system, and that the working class was the most law-abiding and patient class. It was because of that they urged the passage of this bill. He said he would rather trust the working class than the lawyers at the bar, or the ministry of the state.

The bill lacked 17 votes of having sufficient to pass, receiving 111 in favor and 64 against. The Boston Central Labor Union last Sunday blamed the Boston members for the defeat of the bill, some of them through absence and others voting against it.

Street Railway Bill.

There was a warm debate on the bill granting the State Railroad Commissioners power in the granting of locations for street railways. The bill was drafted on recommendation of the Governor, and was opposed especially by the members from the towns, who objected to the control being taken from the towns and their selectmen. The two Socialists opposed the bill on the ground that the people of the towns were the best judges in the matter, and because the State Commission was notoriously in favor of the corporations.

Among others Schofield of Malden favored the bill, as a wise provision under the proposition for combinations of railways which were coming. Carey asked Mr. Schofield what he meant by talk of concentration. Did he favor the bill because, giving supervision to the Railroad Commissioners, it would promote concentration? Mr. Schofield said, No; but he thought as concentration was going on the Board should have this power. Carey said he would rather trust the selectmen than the Railroad Commissioners, who had never rendered a decision in the interest of the people as opposed to the corporations.

MacCartney bitterly criticized the Street Railway Committee for adversely reporting his bill on this question into the Senate, where it lay on the table. The time had not come for the state to establish a system of state supervision. He thought the selectmen in the several towns were to be trusted before the Railroad Commissioners.

Upon a point of order, the bill was at last referred to the Ways and Means Committee, and reported favorably by that committee on Thursday last. An amendment requiring that the decision of the Commissioners be referred to a vote of the people, was rejected and the bill, by a vote of 69 to 26, passed to be engrossed.

On Friday the Sunday Barbering Bill was refused a third reading after a short discussion. The bill was objected to by the barbers' unions because it opened up the way for the opening of all barber shops on Sunday. Both Socialists spoke against the bill.

A bill to provide for the establishment in cities and towns of emergency funds for the employment of the unemployed in times of business depression was under discussion when the House adjourned yesterday. It will probably be defeated.

The Brewers' Strike.

The Brewers' strike is still on and the boycott is being vigorously pushed. A conference between the strike committee of Brewery Workmen, Engineers' and Firemen's unions and a committee of the employers took place on Wednesday last, but did not result in an agreement. The men declined to accept any proposition that did not provide for arbitration in case of the discharge of any workmen. The employers offered a compromise, granting a hearing to a discharged workman before his employer, but this was rejected by the strike committee as offering no protection to the union men.

At a mass meeting of the strikers held on Thursday morning the action of the committee was enthusiastically endorsed, and it was unanimously decided to continue the fight. The boycott is an effective one and the outlook is in the strikers' favor. In the meanwhile, whatever the readers of The Worker can do to help the workmen win should be done.

WILLIAM MAILLY.

Boston, May 10.

BEEF TRUST A LA MODE.

(A DRAMA.)

BY PETER E. BURROWES.

Scene, at Washington, D. C. Enter Mr. Gill Tedge Stox of the Beef Trust and Mr. Prestidigitateur Knox, Attorney General of the Roosevelt Trust, bearing each a large case.

Mr. G. T. S.: "Now by the immortal hogs I swear, and bust may I, if false I swear, we have no trust. This packers' case, by jealous hordes decried, unpack good Knox. You'll find no trust inside."

Mr. P. K.: "I well believe you, Stox, and will not seek for butchers' bills beyond the current week. But if, when I have done my honest quest, there doth remain one beefsteak in that chest, or skin enough to make an infant cough, then by my halydom your head comes off."

G. T. S.: "Proceed." (Knox peeps into the empty box.)

P. K.: "'' is void, I see, as patriotic voter's bliss."

G. T. S.: "And so was tother ere 'twas filled from this."

P. K.: "You tell me not, good soul! Come let us see." (They proceed rapidly to transferring the cans of beef from the trust case into the empty case.) "'Tis empty as the rantings are of W. Jennings B."

G. T. S.: "While Knox unpacks you'll find no trust in me."

BRONX BAKERS WINNING.

At a mass meeting held last Saturday night at 3083 Third avenue by the organized bakers of the Bronx, of which twenty-three were locked out, it was reported that not only had these men been reinstated, but twenty-four new men had made application for membership in the union. The bakers will continue their fight for strict enforcement of the ten-hour law, if necessary, calling strikes in the different shops where the law is violatrd. They also voted to thank the labor press for the active support which it gave to them during their struggle. Speeches were made by Comrade Bernhard Weidekaff of the 35th A. D., George Teppervien, August Burghardt, Joseph Schmied, and George Reich. The bakers of the Bronx ask readers of The Worker living in this neighborhood to see that the label is on every loaf of bread they purchase—and this will apply to other localities as well.

A PIOUS OPPONENT OF LABOR.

The Railroad Branch of the Y. M. C. A. at One Hundred and Fiftieth street and Railroad avenue has a very class-conscious manager, who does not hesitate to declare openly that he is an enemy of organized labor and of every trade unionist. A committee of the locked-out bakers of the Bronx visited the gentleman last week and requested him to use his influence in bringing about the reinstatement of the locked-out employees of Zink's bakery, 630 Courtlandt avenue, but the gentleman declined positively, stating clearly that he, being opposed to unions, would never help a union man to better his condition. The committee laid before him the demands of the organization, which at the present time are only the enforcement of the ten-hour law and sanitary conditions, and Mr. McNell admitted that those demands were very reasonable, but that he had to refuse his help to any union man. The railroad workers who may occasionally frequent the restaurant of this branch of the Y. M. C. A. ought to remember the old saying: "Whosoever is not with us is against us" and act accordingly.

GARMENT WORKERS' STRIKE WON.

The strike of the garment workers of Peoria, Ill., against the firm of J. N. Ward & Co., of which we gave an account last week, has been settled satisfactorily. The firm has agreed to take back all the strikers and unionize their factory throughout.

——An American who calls himself patriotic is either a fool or a philosopher. And I am bound to admit that, in this country, the philosophers do not preponderate.—Julian Hawthorne, in Wilshire's Magazine.

COMRADE BROWN LEAVES PULPIT.

Rochester's Socialist Clergyman Offers Resignation.

Reasons for His Action Frankly Stated—Feels That the Position Is Inconsistent with His Scientific and Political Convictions.

Our well known Rochester comrade, Rev. William Thurston Brown, last Sunday announced his retirement from the pulpit of the Plymouth Congregational Church, which he has occupied for about four years.

In explanation of his withdrawal he says in part:

"I am unwilling that you should longer be held responsible for anything I may teach or do. Under no circumstances could I agree to adjust my teaching to any creed and for the sake of my own peace of mind and manhood I cannot consent to adjust my life to immoral social conventions. Religious creeds and social conventions stultify and strangle manhood. It is no better to live a lie than it is to teach one. It is no better to conform to immoral and artificial standards in one's living than it is to conform to false standards in one's thinking.

"When I made choice of what is called 'the Christian ministry,' it was not because I felt that men and women were in danger of a future hell, but because I was convinced that the chief end of human life was the establishment of the kingdom of heaven or happiness on the earth; and it seemed to me that the church was the most natural and suitable agency for that purpose. I assumed that an institution that took Jesus as its head could have no other aim.

"Of course, I discovered my mistake. I found not only that the church as an institution nowhere contemplates any such program, but that it does not possess in its equipment, whether material or intellectual, any of the agencies that can realize such a result. I heard much talk of the 'brotherhood of man' and the 'fatherhood of God,' but I saw that these phrases meant nothing and were taken to mean nothing in men's social and industrial relations.

"At first, like many another clergyman, my mind dulled and stupefied by the teachings I had received. I was inclined to blame individuals for those social conditions which make all our talk of 'brotherhood' and 'fatherhood' a species of hypocrisy that completely discounts anything the 'scribes and Pharisees' of Philestine could show. But I have discovered my error and am convinced that men of all classes are about as good as their environment will permit them to be. And I understand that men's social and industrial relations are determined by forces over which either religion or the church has not more influence than they have over the motions of the planets.

"Accepting the ideas of origin and devlopment as enunciated by Darwin and others my whole thought of social problems and personal duty has radically changed. To my mind, the whole philosophy of religious and so-called philanthropic activity is mistaken, and the church and charitable institutions are simply manifestations of misdirected energy.

"My hope of moral progress lies in the direction of enlightenment and of the development of such a sense of personal and class interests as will make the people the masters of their own destiny. I have long ceased to believe that any outside being or force is going to help men in either their personal or social life. The forces which are to solve our problems and bring us emancipation from all kinds of slavery are within and about ourselves. Believing thus, I look forward with hope to the advent of industrial democracy as giving promise of a larger freedom and a better life for all.

"But the most imperative reason for the action which I take relates to the question of personal morality. No man can continue to think worthily who does not square his deeds with his words. We can know only in proportion as we do. A man's life is his creed, and if his personal action does not reflect the ethics of his teaching or his convictions, he is bound soon or late to crystallize into a hypocrite. In our modern world, conformity has taken the place of morality. We are not free souls—we are only monotonous reflections of customs based on economic slavery.

"For my part, if I am to retain my own self-respect, I must at least make the attempt to gain freedom. I must at least make a break for it. In my judgment, the world can have no severer judge, no holier messiah, than freedom. And by freedom I mean the absence of all formal coercion. Only in the light of freedom can we really know ourselves or the world we live in. Only in freedom can life find fulfilment. If we have any sacred bequest from the past, it is that of freedom of conscience and the heroism consequent thereupon. For its sake the Pilgrims came to Plymouth—the rock, not the church. For its sake the Catholics came to Maryland, the Quakers to Pennsylvania, the Huguenots to Georgia. For its sake men and women have dared everything. For its sake, it is quite possible that men and women will in the future do likewise.

"I cannot let you be responsible for me in any way. My conscience requires me to assert my freedom, to express myself. I wish no being any harm. I want every one to be free and happy. I want justice and liberty. If I must choose between being an exploiter and being exploited, I choose the latter."

No announcement of Comrade Brown's plans for the future has yet been made, but the brave fight he has made in the past, with which his present act is thoroughly consistent, assures us that his efforts will be earnestly devoted to the cause of Socialism in whatever manner circumstances allow.

LIGHT AND HOPE FROM DARK PLACES.

Even by the Natives in African Colonies the Class Struggle Is Coming to Be Realized.

Sometimes light and hope come to us from unexpected quarters. To find the labor question, the class struggle, recognized in Quebec, in Ireland, in Armenia, in West and South Africa, in India, in the Philippines, in countries where until recently all the resistant energies of the oppressed have been wasted because they were spent on lines of race or religion instead of class lines, is most encouraging.

In the "Lagos Weekly Record," a paper published in the British West African possessions, we find an editorial on "The Labour Question," dealing with the legislative methods by which the colonizing powers—the British worst of all, because most skilfully and persistently of all—seek to establish in these new countries the conditions of capitalism, to force the people out of their old habits of life, to transform them into wage-workers, and so to make profits for the colonizers.

The West African colonial authorities have established regulations, it seems, forbidding the natives to leave the colony, forbidding them to follow certain of the principal industries on their own account without licenses, and imposing hut-taxes upon them, and in some cases providing for forced labor at wages fixed by the magistrates.

This, says the editor, "brings out an aspect of the labour question which cannot but impress every thoughtful mind. * * * Ground for apprehension exists in the government making use of the labour law for purposes revenue. It is matter of common knowledge that the white mine owners of South Africa are urging the government to tax the native heavily in order to force him to work in the mines where his employer will see to it that his pay is reduced to the lowest minimum; so that between the government on one hand and the mine owners on the other, the native must be made a slave. Viewed from this standpoint the recent legislation in regard to labour becomes fraught with danger which is far greater than any one that it is likely to achieve. * * * Everywhere there appears the increasing tendency to bring the native under the hard yoke of the modern labour market, and in so doing to make that yoke more severely on him. * * * It is more possible to do this now is due to the fact that the fundamental axiom of Christianity, the equality of all human beings, has fallen into the shade, and become obscured by an overwhelming spirit of cupidity and lust for wealth which is swamping everything. However, a striking object lesson has been afforded on the Gold Coast of the result which must follow abuse in the direction of introducing forced labour measures in West Africa; and while it may be to the temporary gain of a few to inaugurate such a policy, it can never prove helpful in the promotion of British or any other foreign rule in West Africa."

In some cases the natives have systematically followed the policy of burning their huts rather than pay the hut-tax and have emigrated in large numbers, in spite of the law, to the wilder parts of the country.

The editor notes that such "legislation in respect to labour is never introduced with white communities, but is especially assigned to subject native races. This implies, he thinks, "that the whites regard the principle as too dangerous and unconstitutional to be essayed."

This is so far true that rather more caution is observed in such countries as the United States. The methods followed are more indirect. But the essential principle of legislation enacted under capitalist influence is the same in Washington or Albany as in Lagos or Cape Town. We have our injunctions against picketing and boycotting and our conspiracy prosecutions; we have our land grants to corporations that do not intend to use the land, but only to keep others off it; we have, as pointed out elsewhere in this paper, a systematic cultivation of race hatred to keep the workers divided and subjected; we have industrial schools for whites as well as for blacks, whose constant object is to turn out a supply of skilled scabs; we have our Civic Federation to break strikes by "conciliatory" methods; and our capitalist politicians are feeling their way toward "compulsory arbitration," whenever they dare attempt it.

The "fundamental axiom of Christianity" will not help us much. The Bishops have interpreted that to suit their patrons' interests. But what will help us is this: That, through hard experience, the workers of all lands, of all races and colors and creeds, are learning to feel their common interest and to feel their common opposition to the master class; in this way, the Brotherhood of Man, which has seldom been more than a useful phrase in the mouths of the preachers, is being translated into the International Solidarity of Labor, a most potent fact in the hearts and brains of the toilers.

——If you find the Catholic workingmen in your vicinity prejudiced against Socialism distribute among them the leaflet issued by the New York State Committee, "To the Catholic Workingmen of New York," in reply to Bishops Corrigan and Quigley. Address orders to H. Reich, 184 William street. One thousand for $1.75; 500 for $1; in German, 1,000 for $2; 500 for $1.25.

FACTORY TO POCKET
Why pay 2 profits to retail dealers? This week 14K Waltham Watches, 20-year guarantee, retail dealers price, $16.95 to $25.00. Our Factory to Pocket price, $8.75. W. F. DOLL MFG. CO., 175 Broadway, N. Y. Established 1876

TO SUBSCRIBERS.
The date on which your subscription expires will be found on the wrapper.
The paper will be stopped on that day unless previously renewed.
No bills or receipts sent to individual subscribers.

The Worker.

AGENTS, ATTENTION!
Agents sending in subscriptions without remittance must state distinctly how long they are to run.
Agents are personally charged and held responsible for unpaid subscriptions sent in by them.
Only duly elected and approved agents acknowledged.

VOL. XII.—NO. 8. NEW YORK, MAY 25, 1902. PRICE 2 CENTS.

FOR THE DAILY.

Methods of Organized Work Outlined.

Next General Meeting of Publishing Association to Be on June 2—Board of Management at Work.

The next general meeting of the Workingmen's Co-operative Publishing Association will be held at the Labor Lyceum, 64 E. Fourth street, on Monday evening, June 2. All members should be present, as also comrades desiring to join.

The conditions of membership in the W. C. P. A. are: First, the applicant must be a member in good standing of the Socialist Party—called in New York the Social Democratic Party; second, he (or she) must buy one share of stock for $5—$1 to be paid on the proposition of his name, $1 on his admission, and the rest within one year.

The Board of Management of the Association held its first meeting last Monday, May 19, at the Labor Lyceum. It was decided that a chairman shall be elected at each meeting of the Board. The work in connection with raising the Daily Fund was subdivided and the following committees elected to supervise it: Committee on Pledges—Nagel, Halpern, Martin; On Organizations — Hillquit, Harriman, Reichenthal, Rubinow; On Entertainments—Siobodin, Loewenthal, Bowerman; Press Committee—Lemon, Cuno, Clark.

The Board will meet again Monday evening, May 26, at the same place.

Methods of Work.

For the benefit of comrades in New York and vicinity the following account of the system adopted for soliciting pledges and collecting funds is given.

Each district organization has one comrade in charge, to whom the comrades in the district are requested to make weekly reports of work accomplished by them.

In soliciting pledges, comrades are requested to use the cards distributed for the purpose and always, on receiving a pledge, to see to it that a duplicate card is at once made out—the original card remaining in the hands of the pledger and the duplicate being turned over to the district manager.

Each comrade is expected to collect monthly the instalments on pledges he has solicited and to report upon them at once to the district manager. Each payment should be entered on both original and duplicate card. Cards not used must be returned to the district manager, as he is held to account for them.

The following comrades have volunteered to act as district managers:

4th A. D.—Dr. J. Halpern, 250 East Broadway.

6th and 10th.—Henry L. Slobodin, 60 Second avenue.

12th.—Wm. Halpern, 402 Grand street.

14th.—C. E. Brommer, 420 E. Ninth street.

18th and 20th.—J. N. Wood, 321 E. Sixteenth street.

21st.—E. M. Martin, 887 Columbus avenue.

22d.—A. Mayell, 220 E. Fifty-second street.

23d.—E. P. Clark, 501 W. One Hundred and Sixty-fourth street.

24th.—Siskind Goldbarth, 311 E. Fifty-fourth street.

Yorkville Agitation District.—H. C. Bowerman, 510 E. Eighty-first street.

In Kings County.

The comrades of Local Kings County have arranged for a mass meeting to be held at the Labor Lyceum, 949-955 Willoughby avenue, near Myrtle avenue, on Sunday, June 1, at 2:30 p. m., sharp. Job Harriman and John Spargo will be the principal speakers and the comrades should do all in their power to thoroughly advertise this meeting so as to get out as large an audience as possible. No party member should fail in attendance as the meeting will be of great importance. Comrades advertise this meeting among all workers you meet. Let us make this meeting a great success.

Amounts Pledged.

Following is a statement of amounts pledged for the Socialist Daily Fund up to May 19:

Previously acknowledged	$5,411.50
John H. Lutz, Brooklyn	5.00
Northwestern Branch, Local Philadelphia	10.00
Max Pine, City	5.00
Andrew Moeller, Newark	12.00
Edw. C. Wind, Newark	10.00
G. H. Strobell, Newark	100.00
Dr. Henry Schwartz, City	50.00
Chas. Boni, Newark	25.00
O. Sarchi, Brooklyn	5.00
Total	$5,633.50

The following amounts have been received on pledges and donations:

PAID ON PLEDGES.

M. Winchevsky	$5.00
Dr. M. J. Rubinoff	2.00
Arbeiter Maennerchor	50.00
John H. Lutz	1.00
F. Schade, Wilkes Barre	2.00
F. Gerald, Jersey City	1.00
E. Sif	1.00
Dr. J. Ortman	3.00
Dr. J. Mintz	10.00
Samuel Bernstein	10.00
Dr. I. M. Rubinow	2.00
Northwestern Br., Local Phila.	1.00
B. Feigenbaum	2.00
J. Ginsburg	2.00
H. C. Bowerman	3.00
Dr. Schwarz	5.00
Dr. Parsonette, Newark	4.00
A. Millstein, Newark	1.00
E. C. Wind, Newark	.50
D. Rubinow, Newark	2.00
O. Sarchi	.50
Wm. Butscher	2.00

CASH DONATIONS.

J. F. Rose, Providence, R. I.	$5.00
German Parliamentary Voters' Club, New Haven, Conn.	50.00
Peter Hiltz, Greenwich, Conn.	1.00
C. Klump, Greenwich	1.00
J. Assum, Hawthorne, Conn.	.50
J. Goeltz, Port Chester, N. Y.	1.00
A. Walter, Greenwich, Conn.	1.00
Robert Waddell, Chicago	1.00
Previously acknowledged	950.93
Total	$1,121.43

The sum of $1 previously credited to J. Solomon by error is acknowledged as coming from J. Goldring, Newark.

Notice to Contributors.

Pledges should be drawn and checks and money orders made payable to the Socialist Daily Finance Committee. All communications should be addressed to the newly elected Agent of the Committee, Wm. Butscher, Labor Lyceum, 64 E. Fourth street, New York

The Worker will contain, each week, a list of contributions received up to Monday preceding the date of issue.

If any contribution sent is not promptly acknowledged the sender should at once inform the Committee, that the matter may be investigated and set right.

Those who have made pledges should remember to send in the monthly instalments promptly, saving the trouble and expense of notifying them. Let each one feel his personal responsibility for the work we have undertaken and his power to hasten the coming of the Socialist Daily.

ACCOUNT OF CONCERT TICKETS.

Many organizations and individuals still have tickets outstanding for the Damrosch Concert of May 4. The Financial Secretary of the Committee, H. C. Bowerman, requests that all tickets be accounted for at the earliest possible opportunity. Returns of money and tickets may be made at the W. E. A. Club House, 206 E. Eighty-sixth street; at the Labor Lyceum, 64 E. Fourth street; or at the office of The Worker, 184 William street.

THE ALMIGHTY DOLLAR.

Down with the king that rules this goodly land,
That crushes life, blights hope on ev'ry hand;
That stifles love, engenders ruthless hate—
That barters men, that owns and runs the state.

That forces children into mill and mine,
To give up life on capital's greedy shrine;
No childhood's joys, no time for eager play——
Incessant toil from dreary day to day.

That forces woman into life of shame,
Makes brute of man—disgraces God-like name;—
That temps the statesman, owns the venal press—
The clergy, judges—all at his behest.

That makes of life one joyless round of toil,
A ceaseless struggle, daily strain and moil;
The mass existing in the meanest way
That few may hold their royal, vicious sway.

Down with the king, his reign is hellish lust;—
We'll rule the earth, control the mighty trust;
That all the workers in this fair domain
Possess the product that their thrift may gain;
That no man sitting on exalted throne
May filch from labor what is labor's own.

GEO. C. BOOMER, Worcester, Mass.

——If you live in a boarding house, be sure to give your landlady one of our leaflets on "What Do You Think of the Beef Trust." Twenty-five cents a 100. Socialist Literaure Company, 184 William street.

PLEDGE.

To Job Harriman, Dr. Julius Halpern and Leonard D. Abbott,
Socialist Daily Finance Committee:

I hereby pledge myself to contribute for the publication of an English Socialist Daily the sum of $..... to be paid in monthly installments of $.....

Name .....

Address .....

ONE MORE BIG PROFIT MURDER.

Two Hundred Miners' Lives Pay for Operator's Profits.

Coal Creek Disaster Foreseen a Year Ago, but No Precautions Taken by Bosses.

Just as a hundred and fifty thousand anthracite miners in Pennsylvania are beginning their brave struggle for endurable conditions of employment as against the gigantic power of the Coal Combine, the news comes to us of a coal-mine "accident" in Tennessee, by which about two hundred soft-coal miners have met sudden death.

The explosion at Coal Creek is called an accident. But in truth it is nothing of the sort. It is a tremendous massacre, a sordid, cowardly, atrocious murder.

Not an Accident.

The first press dispatches, published even by the most conservative dailies, say:

"The Fraterville mine is owned by the Coal Creek Company, of which Major E. C. Camp is president. He was in Cincinnati, and is now hurrying to the scene of the disaster. In 1901, after inspecting Fraterville mine, State Commissioner of Labor R. A. Shiflett reported that the ventilation was not up to requirements; that the furnace was inadequate to ventilate the mine, and that the air ways were choked in many places. Commissioner Shiflett found that 164 men were at work on the day of his visit, requiring by statute 15,200 cubic feet of air per minute. The volume of air entering the mine, he said, was only 8,000 cubic feet per minute."

For a year the respectable gentlemen who own the mine, and who are in close league with the authracite operators of Pennsylvania, have known that the men in their employ were daily breathing a poisonous atmosphere, killing them by slow degrees; and they knew that these men were in hourly danger of just such an explosion as actually occurred last Monday.

These respectable gentlemen knew their business. They figured things out carefully and decided that it was more profitable to work the mine, full force, without proper cleaning and ventilation, than to spend the comparatively small sum necessary to make it safe. The lives of two hundred miners, the happiness of two hundred working-class families, never entered into their calculations. They are good business men.

Under Socialism.

Under Socialism, there would be no incentive to such crime as this. To-day the mines are worked, not to get coal for the people, but to make profit for the non-producing capitalists. Under Socialism there would be no profits. The object of industry would be to supply the people's wants. The workers would get the full value of their product. It would be the interest as well as the duty of the democratically chosen managers to guard against accidents, just as it is now the interest of the plutocrats to let their wage-slaves take the risk while they take the profit.

THE SYSTEM ANALYZED.

The landlord possesses the land and will not allow you to use it without payment of Rent.

The capitalist possessses the machinery and will not permit you to turn a wheel without Interest.

The distributor possesses the products of labor and will not let you carry them away without Profit.

Private ownership of land demands Rent. Private ownership of machinery requires Interest. Private ownership of commodities calls for Profit.

The system is indifferent to the suffering and misery imposed upon its victims. The victims are the working class, the producers of wealth. From the results of their toil Rent, Interest and Profits are wrung.

Socialism would do away with private possession of land by rent-gatherers.

Socialism would abolish private possession of machinery by interest sharks.

Socialism would put an end to private trading in the products of labor for profit.

Under Socialism Rent, Interest, and Profit disappear. All natural resources and productive capital—land and the tools of production—become a social possession. There will then be no Rent, Interest or Profit to pay. Every worker will receive the full socially due share of the values his labor creates.

Vote to support the capitalist system and retain its means of exploitation—Rent, Interest and Profit—and you vote to continue the miseries of the world; you vote for your own enslavement and forge shackles for the limbs of your children.

No higher civilization is possible, for the world's wage workers. Capitalism must be destroyed if the race is to advance to the enjoyment of freedom.

Freedom cannot be won so long as Rent, Interest and Profit devour the people's substance. Socialism alone promises a life for the people free from the haggard uncertainties of capitalist production and distribution. Vote for Socialism.—Social Demogratic Herald.

BUY UNION LABEL GOODS.

LABOR BILL IS KILLED.

Massachusetts Senate Puts Itself on Record.

Democratic Politicians Propose to "Make an Issue" of Labor Bill—Easy to See Why.

BOSTON, Mass., May 19.—The corporation lobbyists of the state dealt labor legislation a body blow to-day when by a union of all interests enough pressure was brought to bear to kill the bill prohibiting women and children working in mills at night in the Senate, though it had been unanimously reported by the Labor Committee and passage especially requested.

The vote stood 13 to 24. Before the bill was called up the cloakrooms and corridors of the Senate were crowded by lobbyists, buttonholing senators for the mill interests. The Arkwright Club, the mill treasurers' organization, keeps a large lobby at the State House; but to-day the railroad agents and all other professional molders of legislative opinion were at work against the bill, plying their trade so openly that members of the House were angered at their boldness, one veteran member denouncing their work as the coarsest and most disgraceful he had ever witnessed.

The labor element in the legislature is indignant over the treatment of the bill, and to-night is considering the advisability of asking Governor Crane to call for an investigation as to the means used and the amount of money spent by the mill owners. The Boston Central Labor Union-Legislative Committee will order a perpetual blacklist of two Boston senators who opposed the bill. The Democrats voted solidly for the measure, and it was declared by a state leader that they would make the bill an issue at the next election.

The above is a special dispatch to the New York "Times."

There are no Socialists in the Massachusetts Senate. If there were, there would have been a harder fight before that bill could have been killed.

And the Democratic party will "make the bill an issue," too! Let the workingmen look to Alabama, Georgia and the Carolinas, absolutely controlled by the Democratic party, where the cotton mills, largely owned by New England capitalists, are crowded with little children who ought to be in school or on the playgrounds.

The Democratic legislatures of these states have steadily refused to pass laws against child labor and their Democratic Senators and Congressmen, instead of using their influence in defense of the child-slaves, have spent their efforts in opposing the Chinese Exclusion Bill in the interest of the cotton-mill owners.

It is easy for the Democratic party to "make an issue" of a labor bill in Massachusetts, where it never expects to control the Legislature, and is therefore in no danger of being called on to keep its promises.

But let us ask, Why did the Massachusetts Democrats never realize their duty in this matter before? Why this sudden zeal?

The answer is evident: The presence of two Socialists in the Legislature, both of whom fight vigorously for Labor's interests and for Labor's interests alone, has alarmed the capitalist politicians. If the Massachusetts workingmen are wise, they will boycott at the polls every old-party politician who helped kill their night-work bill and other labor bills and will cast their votes solidly for Socialist workingmen to make their laws.

ALBANY REJECTS CARNEGIE'S OFFER.

The City Council of Albany, N. Y., has refused Andrew Carnegie's offer to give $150,000 for a public library. The press reports say: "The reason for the rejection is laid at the door of the labor element, which opposed the offer vigorously. Although the matter can be brought up at a later meeting, it is believed that it was effectually killed." The trade unions actively opposed the proposition from the start, declaring that they considered Carnegie's gifts as blood-money, and frightened most of the old-party politicians into voting against it.

The Worker takes some credit for having been the first paper to formulate the instinctive protest of the working class against the infamous steel capitalist's attempt to wipe o ut the memory of his crimes by the vulgar ostentation of his "benevolence." We congratulate the working people of Albany on their stand.

RATE CUTTING AND WAGE CUTTING.

The restraining order granted by the Federal Court in Chicago to prevent six railroads from cutting rates will not please the advocates of competition to any great extent. But the railroad magnates will be saved much worry, and profits likewise. Incidentally it shows that Uncle Sam is taking a kindly interest in the welfare of the capitalists. Now, if the courts should happen to issue injunctions to prevent wage cutting by scabs how happy we would be. But that is another story.—Cleveland Citizen.

——A new leaflet, "What Do You Think of the Beef Trust?" Ten copies, 5 cents; 50 copies, 15 cents; 100 copies, 25 cents; 1,000 copies, $2. Socialist iLterature Company, 184 William street, New York City.

IN THE COAL STRIKE FIELD.

Socialists of Pennsylvania Help in the Fight.

Amusing Misrepresentation of Socialist Circular by Capitalist Press—Miners Gladly Hear Vail — Work Done Throughout the State.

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., May 19.—The strike of 147,000 miners in Pennsylvania is now a matter of absorbing interest to every Socialist in the country. Not only does it arouse the deepest sympathy for these oppressed and long suffering men, but it opens up a vista of possibilities, a march of possible events having tremendous consequences, in which the giant Labor may be seen slowly rising from the industrial chaos to his majestic height as the modern savior of men and the founder of a higher order of civilization.

It is, however, in the power of the operators and railroad magnates to postpone almost at any moment the crisis they have invited. To the astonishment of all thoughtful observers, they seem—so far, at least—to be unaware of the gravity of the situation. With unwavering hand they stand ready to apply the torch to the powder magazine—to remove the keystone from the arch that holds back the rising flood—as if totally ignerant of the great forces that economic evolution may suddenly bring into play.

Their arrogant attitude is unquestionably moulding public opinion into support of the miners' cause. This in itself counts for much. But they are doing more. They are inviting public attention to the fact that they are standing guard—and a mere corporal's guard, at that—over the abundant supplies of nature in a determined conspiracy to withhold the necessities of life from the people's reach. And they are doing this in order that they may plunder the people the more! They openly avow that it is of no consequence to them whose fires burn low, whose hunger goes unappeased, so long as they themselves are luxuriously fed, clothed, and housed at the people's expense. In doing this they but repeat history. The blindness of the ruling class has ever been its undoing.

Amusing Misrepresentations.

The circular letter sent out to the miners by the State Committee of the Socialist Party of Pennsylvania, as reported in The Worker last week, seems to have created something of a sensation, according to the following news dispatch of the "Evening Telegraph" of May 12:

"MYSTERIOUS LETTERS TO STRIKE LEADERS.

"Scranton, Pa., May 12.—A number of special delivery letters sent out, it is said, from Philadelphia and addressed to the chairman of miners' special meeting, reached this city at noon. The letters were first sent to the headquarters of District No. 1 and from there were sent to the various local union meetings now being held in this city and adjacent towns. Reports had it that the letters were sent out by a leading coal-carrying road with headquarters in Philadelphia. It was further reported that the letters contained matter bearing on the strike situation. The chairman of the meeting refused to divulge the contents of the letters, which are being closely guarded."

Other Philadelphia newspapers alluded to the "mysterious letters," gravely explaining that they contained anonymous threats of lock-outs and reduced pay if the miners go on strike—while admitting that the miners had refused to divulge their contents.

Miners' Friendly Response.

The members of Tamaqua Local No. 1,571 of the United Mine Workers sent back an official acknowledgement of the letter with a vote of thanks and wishes of success. Our comrades in Carbondale report that the letter was favorably commented upon by the miners in that locality. An urgent request comes from this place to send them speakers and organizers—especially William Mailly.

Comrade Vail had all the population of Nesquehoming (a mining town) surrounding the school house on May 16, louding cheering the truths of Socialism. Pottstown wants a speaker for May 20, and a Wilkes Barre comrade has been assigned this mission.

Work Throughout State.

In other parts of the state the work is progressing. Organizer John Collins entered the Pittsburg district on Saturday, May 17, where many meetings have been arranged. He will also stop a few days in New Castle before the special Councilmanic election on May 27. It is likely that Comrade Slayton will be the representative of the working class from the Fifth Ward in the Council of that city after that date.

Comrade Vail has been having well attended meetings in Pottstown, Lancaster, York, Spring Forge, Ephrata, Lehighton, and Mauch Chunk.

A county convention will be held in York, May 30, when a full ticket will be put in the field. In the same county, Comrade Vail recently addressed in the village of Spring Forge two open-air meetings, described by one of the comrades as follows: "The meetings were a great success. In the morning there were about two hundred present—three times the number we expected, and in the evening there wr about five hundred within the sound of his voice. All wanted to hear him; but many, as is usual in small towns, gathered their inspiration from a distance, listening attentively from nearby alley-ways or neighboring windows." A local with twenty-one charter members was formed after the meeting, and the charter has been forwarded.

The Local Despot.

The timidity frequently remarked in villages is due mainly to the existence of the town's solid man, "the Boss," who can say to most of the inhabitants, "You may stay in town and work for me," or "You can't work for me," which means, get out of town or starve. The "Old Boss" in this instance is the owner of the paper-mill, who works his men twelve hours a day and pays them wages that they can easily take home without the use of a wheelbarrow; in fact sometimes the children come to draw the pay while the parent works overtime, and it has been remarked that the child carries home a child's pay. Our comrades there are going to try to show that the working class cannot vote the boss class, and they can do it nice and quietly with their secret ballot.

The State Committee is arranging to send two or more speakers into the strike field, close on the heels of Comrade Vail.

Funds are urgently solicited from all locals, comrades, and sympathizers to carry on the extensive work planned for the Pennsylvania strike field.

J. MAHLON BARNES,
Secretary.
CAROLINE PEMBERTON,
Assistant Secretary.

Send all money to J. Edelman, treasurer, 807 W. Cambria street, Philadelphia.

NATIONAL COMMITTEE GREETS STRIKERS.

The National Committee of the Socialist Party sent the following telegram to the convention of anthracite coal miners at Hazleton, Pa., last week:

"W. B. Wilson, Secretary United Mine Workers of America, Convention Hall, Hazelton, Pa.:

"We are with you, heart and soul, whether in peace or war. If your demands are refused and the strike is prolonged, you can count on us all along the line. The same class that owns the mines owns the government. Carry the strike with us into the polls on Election Day.

"Fraternally,
"LEON GREENBAUM,
"National Secretary, Socialist Party."

"By order of the National Committee."

THE PRESENT NEED.

The "New Era," on behalf of the trade unions of Philadelphia, addressed to President Mitchell of the United Mine Workers a message assuring that organization of sympathy and moral support, and offering financial aid if needed. President Mitchell replied by wire: "No assistance needed at this time. Thanks."

For the present, the best use to which the spare funds of sympathizers can be put is that of sending speakers and literature into the strike field to encourage the strikers, inspire them with revolutionary feeling, and point them the way to final victory.

Contributions for this purpose should be sent to the Treasurer of the Pennsylvania State Committee of the Socialist Party, J. Edelman, 807 W. Cambria street, Philadelphia.

GREETING FROM MASSACHUSETTS.

BOSTON, Mass., May 20.—The Massachusetts State Committee of the Socialist Party at last night's meeting adopted the following resolution, a copy of which was forwarded to President Mitchell:

"Whereas, The miners of the anthracite coal fields have at last struck, after a patient but unsuccessful attempt to settle their grievances with the mine-owners, who, declaring there is nothing to arbitrate, refuse to enter into a settlement; and

"Whereas, The low wages, the long hours of toil, the unfair weighing system, the pluck-me stores, and the numerous other disabilities from which the miners suffer have reached a point past endurance by self-respecting and liberty-loving men; be it

"Resolved, That we, the State Committee of the Socialist Party of Massachusetts, endorse the strike of the United Mine Workers and call upon Socialist citizens in particular and upon the fair-minded public in general morally and financially to support these workmen in their battle to add some little advantage to their hard lot; be it further

"Resolved, That we respectfully suggest to the 150,000 miners and their friends a fuller consideration of the economic relationship existing between man and man, which is the fruitful cause of each specific strike and of labor troubles in general; which relation is the more plainly revealed in time of strike, as on the one hand it plainly arrays a few men in control of the coal fields, the capital for operating them, the complete opportunity to protect themselves against financial loss and even to add to their profit by extracting more revenue in times of industrial strife, and, greater than all, the full command of the employment by which workmen gain their daily bread; and on the other hand the thousands of men with their families, who live only because they are enabled to sell their only merchandise—their labor-power; kings of the coal monopoly pitted against the naked hands of the men who do the necessary work of the world!

"Therefore we, the Socialists of Massachusetts, recommend to you miners a weapon above the reach of the coal barons, in a battle of ballots on next election day. Congressional and state representatives may be by you elected who are pledged to the Federal ownership of all mines, to be democratically administered.

"That you will acquit yourselves like men in this battle we believe, and that you will win we fondly hope."

HIRING THUGS TO KILL MINERS.

The following news from the "Evening Telegram" of Newport News, Va., issue of May 14, is significant:

"An agent for the Pinkerton detective agency has been in the city for the past few days for the purpose of securing men to act as guards and officers for the mine owners in Pennsylvania in the region where the strike is now on. This agent left yesterday taking with him about twenty-five men, whom he secured here for the purpose. These men will be provided with rifles and placed in charge of the property where the strike is on, as is the custom in such instances. The departure of the men from this city is a source of relief to the police department here, as they are about the worst class of people that the police have to deal with."

Remember this if you should hear that the thugs and plug-uglies hired by the mine owners to look for trouble have made it and killed a few strikers.

ONLY THREE WAYS.

When we look at the question fairly it is readily apparent that there are, after all, only three means of living known to men—by the charity of others, by your own labor, or by stealing. All the experience of the ages does not reveal another means whereby men can live. If, however, we turn to the great wealth-holders of to-day and ask, "Whence this wealth—did you by your labor create these vast possessions?" there comes only an answering cry of derision. It remains, then, only to decide whether they hold that wealth and its resultant power through charity or theft, and we, the producers, who alone have a right to bestow it, know full well that it is not by charity. They do not come and beg us to give them of our substance, but on the contrary, when by our labor we have produced so much wealth, they take the lot and very kindly give us back just enough to enable us to live and continue working upon the same terms.—John Spargo, in "Where We Stand."

——If your neighbor asks you "What do you think of the Beef Trust?" be prepared to hand him one of our leaflets bearing that title.

WHY WE ARE WITH THE STRIKING COAL MINERS.

The hundred and fifty thousand miners who are out on strike in Pennsylvania are not Socialists. Probably not one per cent. of them voted the Socialist ticket. Most of them hate Socialism—or think they hate it, because they do not understand it.

But every one of the hundred and fifty thousand or more Socialists in the land is with the miners, heart and soul, in their battle. We wish them all success. We are with them because we are Socialists and because they are workingmen.

Whatever the demands of the miners, we are with them. For we know that workingmen on strike never demand half of what they have a right to.

We are with them because we too are workingmen, because our party is a working-class party, because we know that in fighting for themselves they are fighting the battle of our whole class on the industrial field, just as we are fighting it on the political field.

These miners are not Socialists—not one in a hundred of them—not yet. But they will be with us some day, just as we are with them to-day. The terrible logic of events will teach them as it has taught us.

A handful of capitalists, meeting in their offices on Wall Street, own the coal deposits that lay under the earth millions of years before man appeared on its surface and control the working of the mines and machinery which hundreds of thousands of workingmen have created by years of hard and dangerous labor. They can permit these miners to work or forbid them to work. They can dictate the terms at which the men may toil and live. They can dictate the prices which other workingmen shall pay for coal to keep them warm and cook their food.

The joint labor of myriads of men creates every cent of value in the mines and breakers and coal-roads and yards. Only by the joint labor of these myriads of toilers can the means of production be maintained. And the mines are a necessity for the life of the whole people. Yet we have left this handful of useless capitalists to control the whole industry for their own profit. Consider, you miners now on strike, is it not ridiculous?

You have to strike now for excessively moderate demands. The bosses would not even consider arbitration. For these very small demands you have to endure all the sufferings of a strike, all the dangers of a blacklist that may follow if you should be defeated. Yet you have a right to more than double the amount you are now getting in wages. Your labor produces every year more than twice as much as you get back. The larger half goes to Morgan and his friends. Under Socialism you would get all you produce.

And your lives are always in danger when you are at work. Only this week two hundred of your brothers were killed through the criminal negligence of the "operators" in the neighboring state of Tennessee. You have seen similar "accidents" in your own state. The mine owners did not risk their lives. They went calmly on clipping their coupons and betting on fast horses and spending on fast women the product of your dangerous toil.

Do you think these men are your friends? Do you think you can trust them in politics? Do you not think that when they oppose Socialism, it is an excellent reason for you to support Socialism? Fellow workingmen, striking miners, we, the Socialists of the land, are with you because you belong to our class and are fighting the capitalist class. We will gladly give you what aid we can and only wish it were a thousand times as great. We wish for your success in this battle and we invite you to join with us in another battle for the same cause at the ballot-box on November 4.

GAINS IN INDIANA.

Increase of Socialist Vote Is Not Confined to Terre Haute.

Indiana Socialists are much pleased with the results achieved in the Terre Haute city election, as reported last week. Vigo County, which includes Terre Haute, will have a [illegible]tion in a few weeks and [illegible]ialists of Party will make itself felt.

Several other places in the state made good record.

In Linton we polled 94 votes out of a total of 995 on the city ticket and in the Third Ward our candidate for Councilman, Comrade Price, beat the Republican and tied with the Democrat, making a second ballot necessary.

In Columbus the Socialist Party cast 138 votes, as against 16 for Debs in 1900.

Kokomo gives 111 in place of the 48 cast for Debs.

Huntington, which gave us but 18 in 1900, now polls 233.

Anderson casts 150 votes for Socialism. None were ever cast there before.

In Alexandria, where we had 47 for Debs a year and a half ago, we now have 208. In this city the Socialist Party holds second place, the Democrats having only 116 votes.

The Indiana state convention will be held on July 4 and a regular organizer will probably be put in the field.

SOCIALIST VICTORIES.

The "Social Democratic Herald" is authority for the following gratifying election returns:

The Socialists elected the mayor at Cameron, Colo.

A city councilman was elected by the Socialists in Plattsmouth, Neb.

Twelve offices were won by the Socialist Party in Standish township, Arenac County, Mich.

At Port Arthur, Texas, the Socialists elected the city clerk and have two members in the council.

The Sioux Falls, S. D., election resulted in a Socialist vote of 618; the Republicans carrying the city with 1,247 votes.

ECONOMIC DETERMINISM.

The economic system at any time prevailing determines the character of the laws, institutions, and religions of society. Subject to the operation of these laws and institutions there is no easily-determined limit to man's capabilities, save that which environment imposes upon him. People are what they are because of the economic environment by which they have been surrounded. All that we call crime, all injustice, all misery, all problems of society are rooted in economic conditions and not in individual "sin."—Social Democratic Herald.

——Hanford's pamphlet on "Railroading in the United States" is the liveliest piece of Socialist literature out. Get a supply at 184 William street, and hand them around among your friends.

The Worker.

AN ORGAN OF THE SOCIALIST PARTY

(Known in New York State as the Social Democratic Party.)

PUBLISHED WEEKLY

AT 184 WILLIAM STREET, NEW YORK,

By the Socialistic Co-operative Publishing Association.

P. O. BOX 1512.

Telephone Call: 302 John.

TERMS TO SUBSCRIBERS,

Invariably in advance.

One year	50c.
Six months	25c.
Single copies	2c.

Bundle rates:

Less than 100 copies, per copy	1c.
100 copies	75c.
200 copies	$1.20
200 copies or more, per hundred	50c.

Weekly Bundles:

5 per week, one year	$1.75
10 per week, one year	3.25
25 per week, one year	7.50
50 per week, one year	12.50

Address all business communications, and make money orders, checks and drafts payable to The Worker.

Receipts are never sent to individual subscribers. Acknowledgment is made by changing the number on the wrapper, the week following receipt of money.

Communications concerning the editorial department of the paper should be addressed to the Editor.

All communications should be written with ink and on one side of the paper; words should not be abbreviated; every letter should bear the writer's name and address; and matter should be put in as few words as possible, consistently with clearness. Communications which do not comply with these requirements are likely to be disregarded.

Entered as second-class matter at the New York, N. Y., Post Office on April 6, 1891.

UNION PRINTER

SOCIALIST VOTE IN THE UNITED STATES.

In 1888 (Presidential)	2,068
In 1890	13,331
In 1892 (Presidential)	21,157
In 1894	33,133
In 1896 (Presidential)	36,564
In 1898:
S. L. P.	82,204
S. D. P.	9,545
In 1900 (Presidential):
S. D. P.	96,918
S. L. P.	33,450

THE PARTY'S EMBLEM.

Clubs are trumps on the East Side—policemen's clubs.

If we had a Debs instead of a Lo[illegible]ist in the White House, we [illegible]al schools between the Armours and Swifts and their pals of the Meat Trust hustled off to prison by as summary process as Debs himself suffered under for leading the railway strike of 1894. Consider this between now and Election Day.

Those bosom friends and labor leaders, Mark Hanna and Samuel Gompers, were in conference last Saturday at Mark's home about the coal strike and ways and means of "settling" it. Mark, the cautious candidate, doesn't want any labor troubles to interfere with the possibility of his election to the presidency.

A New York daily, to show the wickedness of the striking miners, recites the numbers of railway men who are being laid off as a result of the strike. It especially sympathizes with the flagmen on pusher engines, "a majority of whom are cripples." We might ask, Who made these men cripples? Who profit by the maiming of over thirty-five thousand railway men in this country every year? Who lobbied against the enactment of a law to compel the use of safety couplers and who violate that law and fight against its enforcement to-day? This capitalist paper is also very sorry for the railway station janitresses—many of them poor widows—whom the strike has thrown out of work. Who killed these women's husbands for the sake of profit and thus forced them to leave the home and go to work? For whose enrichment do more than twenty-five hundred railroad workers lay down their lives every year? Let the railway presidents answer. And meanwhile, let Labor's enemies be silent about crippled railway men and their widowed fellow-workers.

The New York "Sun" would like to have the Mine Workers' Union prosecuted for raising the price of coal, and declares that such action would be much more justifiable than prosecution of the Meat Trust. We do not argue with the "Sun" on points like this. To call attention to the fact that the miners produce the coal by their own labor, while the Meat Trust magnates only appropriate profits on the labor of other men, would be no answer. Rather it would confirm the "Sun" in its position. The "Sun" logically and consistently represents the capitalist class, in whose eyes profits are sacred and workingmen have a right to live only on condition that someone shall make a profit out of their toil. Yes, the "Sun" is logical—as logical as Foulon, who told the people to eat grass. And workingmen can act consistently by doing the exact opposite of what the "Sun" advises—by sticking to their unions and voting the Socialist ticket.

IT DOES ITS WORK WELL.

The Civic Federation—the famous Committee of Thirty-six that was to settle the labor question and "harmonize" Capital and Labor—has again been tried and found wanting.

So we write, on our first impulse. But we are mistaken. The truth is this:

The Civic Federation has again been tried and has done to perfection the work it was intended to do.

It has done good service for the coal barons just as it did good service for the transportation lords in Boston, although in a little different way.

It has succeeded in holding the miners in parley for several weeks, while the "operators" (as they call themselves, who operate nothing but stock-market swindles) made all their preparations for resisting the strike—laid up a stock of coal to sell at advanced prices, hired their thugs, supplied their subsidized newspapers with a stock of assorted lies, and made things safe with their judges and public officials.

Every step in the career of the "Peace Committee" still further justifies us in the position we took five months ago, when we denounced it as a scheme for betraying the working class and declared that the labor leaders who took part in it had been duped by the Hannas and Schwabs, the Irelands and Potters.

THE "GREAT" MIDDLE CLASS.

The merchants of the "great middle class" in the anthracite region have shown their sympathy with the workers by refusing credit to the strikers from the very beginning of the struggle. We are reminded of Karl Marx' keen and terse characterization of the small trading and shopkeeping class in Germany fifty years ago:

"Its intermediate position between the class of larger capitalists and the proletarian or industrial class determines its character. Aspiring to the position of the first, the least adverse turn of fortune hurls the individuals of this class down into the ranks of the second. * * * Thus eternally tossed about between the hope of entering the ranks of the wealthier class and the fear of being reduced to the state of proletarians or even paupers, * * * possessed of small means, the insecurity of the possession of which is in the inverse ratio of the amount—this class is extremely vacillating in its views. Humble and crouchingly submissive under a powerful feudal or monarchical government, it turns to the side of liberalism when the capitalist class is in the ascendent; it becomes seized with violent democratic fits as soon as the capitalist class has secured its own supremacy, but falls back into the abject despondency of fear as soon as the class below itself, the proletarians, attempts an independent movement." ("Revolution and Counter-Revolution," pp. 7, 8.)

Of the small capitalists as a class—granting many individual exceptions—those words were true in Germany in 1848 and are no less true in America to-day. They talked bravely in the Bryan campaigns; they could endure to be called Socialists and Anarchists in the hope of financial legislation that would scale down their debts. But now, when it is a question of extending credit for a few weeks to their toiling neighbors, helping them to fight the plutocrats that oppress both alike—now they "fall back into the abject despondency of fear," they cringe at the crack of the Coal Trust's whip, they turn a deaf ear to the voice of manhood and to the pleadings of hunger, they hug their petty savings and tremblingly cry for "Peace," for "Law and Order."

And yet there are those who would persuade us to base our hopes for Socialism on the sordid cowardice of this middle class.

A SAMPLE OF "RETRENCHMENT AND REFORM."

The St. Louis "Star" gives us the following interesting piece of information:

"Enormous quantities of diseased meat—unfit for human consumption—are regularly sold in the cheap butcher shops of St. Louis to poor families and low-priced restaurants.

"The only fortification which St. Louis has against the packers and butchers who sell this diseased meat is one lone inspector whose duty now consists in inspecting the meat supply of the public institutions.

"No general meat inspection to protect the public from these poisonous meats is ever made, and has not been made since August, 1900, when three out of four of the city meat inspectors were discharged because the city was in financial straits, and cut them out to economize."

The real point of the article lies in the last paragraph. We all know that diseased meats—as well as adulterated and sophisticated foods of other sorts—are sold wherever there is an opportunity; and that the motive to this indirect and therefore doubly criminal species of murder is the capitalists' desire for profits; and that it is the working class that suffers chiefly, if not exclusively from such diabolical practises.

What is new and especially timely in the article is the fact that it was the economy policy of the respectable good-government "reformers" that put the working people of St. Louis particularly at the mercy of the Meat Trust in this respect.

There is nothing surprising in this. The "reformers" belong to the capitalist class. They and others of their class are in the habit of buying the more expensive sorts of meat and therefore their life and health are not endangered if diseased meat is offered for sale cheap. These same capitalists pay most of the taxes and are therefore interested in municipal economy. It is the most natural thing in the world that they should economize by crippling the food-inspection service.

Workingmen should bear these thing things in mind whom capitalist "reformers" ask for their votes on a platform of "economy."

STATE CAPITALISM AGAIN.

The "Social Democratic Herald" says:

"Some of our ultra 'scientific' fellows may sneer at the postoffice department as state Socialism, but as compared to private corporations, its employees get good salaries and are guaranteed a certain security of livelihood for the future during good behavior, that makes their job more valuable still. The workers in our shops and factories would be much better suited if the government owned the business instead of private profit sharks. And if the government owned it, it would be the easiest thing in the world to get wages up, to get shorter hours, and to provide safeguards for the workers not now dreamed of. Competition makes waste, and if the government ran the industries there would be no competition, and so the workers could rightfully demand their share" (sic!) "in the saving."

In reply to which we venture to say: Some of our unscientific friends may point to the Postoffice Department as "an example of Socialism," but its employees are overworked and underpaid and their "certain security of livelihood for the future" would vanish at once if it were possible to apply labor-saving machinery in the postal service. The workers in the postal service would be much better suited if a Socialist administration conducted it instead of government profit sharks in league with the railroads. And if a government of capitalists owned a few other industries, it would not be the easiest thing in the world to get wages up and to get shorter hours. If it would, why is it that the letter carriers and postal clerks are constantly pleading for these things, without success? And why did President Roosevelt issue an executive order prohibiting them from trying to influence legislation for higher wages? The trusts do away with a great part of competition and thus eliminate waste, but the workers can "rightfully demand their share in the saving" till the end of time without getting it, unless they take the government out of the hands of the capitalist class and administer things in the interest of all who are willing to work. This information is tendered to the editor of the "Social Democratic Herald," as a contribution to his agitation fund, for the good of our common cause. Selah!

C. L.

An engineering paper published in India says:

"An attempt, we believe, is being made to introduce Chinese labour to work in a certain Indian colliery, but we hardly think it will succeed. Labour is cheaper in India than in any other part of the world; the only thing wanting at present to make it thoroughly effective is a proper agency to select and train it. The trained Indian miner is not only cheaper than the Chinese miner, but he is also more reliable, as he is not such a prey to obstinate superstition, as those who have seen the Celestial at work in the tin mines of Maleya can testify."

A correspondent, calling our attention to the item, remarks that the last sentence explains the anxiety of Western capitalist nations to send missionaries to the Chinese and convert them.

A PHARISEE'S PRAYER.

The other day I chanced to see on the children's page of a religious paper these words: "Thank God for food and clothing; thousands of children are hungry and cold."

Thousands of children are hungry and cold! What shall they thank God for? Is there anything to be expected from a church, from a religion, so self-complacent that it teaches its children such a Pharisee's prayer as this—to thank God that they are not as other children?

Imagine the mental and moral condition of a person who can tell a child to thank God that he is fed and clothed while thousands of children are suffering from cold and hunger!—W. T. Brown.

—Give your neighbor our leaflet on the Beef Trust and get his subscription to The Worker.

Current Literature

All books and pamphlets mentioned in this column may be obtained through the Socialist Literature Company, 184 William street, New York.

THE AMERICAN FARMER. By A. M. Simons. Chicago, Charles H. Kerr & Co. 1902. Cloth, 208 pages. Price, 50 cents.

It is perhaps not much to say in praise of "The American Farmer" that it is the most valuable book in the way of serious and original investigation yet contributed by America to the literature of Socialist economics. Unfortunately, it stands almost alone in such a category. That it may soon be followed, or surpassed the author no doubt hopes as earnestly as we; in his preface he expresses himself as "thoroughly satisfied if this work shall succeed in arousing students of American society to take a greater interest in the agrarian question and compel them to look at it from the point of view of the Socialist philosophy." It should do more than this.

The work opens with the declaration that: "The American farmer is a distinct and peculiar social factor. No other age has anything comparable to him. No other nation has his counterpart. His problems, his history and his future evolution present complications and relations* unknown elsewhere. At the same time he is more closely united to great world questions than any previous race of tillers of the soil. He is part of the great social development of his age to a greater extent than the farmers of any other nation, past or present. For these reasons the voluminous literature on the 'Agrarian Question' in European countries is of little value to the student of American agricultural problems, save in relation to the most general phases of the subject." It is pointed out that, even in those European countries where feudalism has for the longest time and most completely been overthrown, the conditions and the character of the agricultural population "are still more or less deeply affected by traditions" of the old system and that every discussion of European agriculture must take into consideration its development from the feudal stage. In America the development has been from a very different starting point and the present conditions differ accordingly.

Perhaps we may think that our author lays too much stress on this contrast between European and American agricultural development; yet it must be admitted that the difference between conditions in the two continents is much greater in this field than in those of manufacture, transportation, and commerce.

With this view of the nature of his task the author proceeds, through the first seven chapters to sketch in its main outlines the history of American agriculture in the New England states, in the South, in the Middle West, on the Great Plains, in the Far West (the Pacific Coast states), and in the Arid Belt. This historical section is perhaps the most interesting and the best written part of the book. We may give some illustrative quotations.

The decline of New England farming is thus succinctly told: "From now on" (that is, from the beginning of the manufacturing period, about the close of the eighteenth century), "the farmer was more and more forced to confine himself exclusively to tilling the soil. He no longer produced all the various articles used by himself and family, and hence, what he did produce was for exchange rather than for use. He no longer grew wheat and corn for the purpose of feeding himself and family, but rather to sell in order to buy a great variety of things hitherto manufactured on the farm. This made him a competitor with other farmers located in much more advantageous situations, who were producing the same articles to sell in the same market. His children, crowded out from the old home neighborhood, had gone West and were there producing these same crops to be sold in the same market. With the introduction of the steamboat and later the railroad, the distance element was well-nigh wiped out, and as the Western farmer was working on rich prairie soil with improved methods, it was not long until he was underselling New England producers. But the value of a farm is measured by the value of the goods it can furnish to the markets of the world at the market price. Hence the price of New England farms began to decline and instead of constituting a savings bank paying compound interest through rise in land values they became gigantic sponges sucking up all the farmer's capital and affording him only an opportunity to earn scanty wages." (P. 21.)

From the really brilliant chapter on the South, we take only this illuminative sentence: "There is a popular impression which a moment's thought should have shown to be erroneous long ago, that a large proportion of all Southern white farmers were slave holders. On the contrary, it is probable that not more than 5 per cent. of those who fought so bravely on the Confederate side for the right to own slaves ever had any more opportunity to exercise such ownership than the soldiers who fought in Cuba and the Philippines to secure the expansion of American markets ever had of becoming exporters to those markets." (P. 24.)

Passing over the treatment of the Middle West to that of the Great Plains, we find a clear statement of the seeming paradox by which the very advantages of the settling of that region turned to the disadvantage of the settlers and enforced a capitalistic character on what had now become the dominant factor in American agriculture: "The new pioneer of these boundless prairies was not compelled to brave the dangers of a wilderness or suffer exposure and hardships in order to reach his destination. There was no tedious and dangerous journey by flatboat or on horseback through a savage-infested wilderness, no fear of wild beasts, and no forest solitude to brave. On the contrary, they rode to their new homes over the rails of a a tie that united them to the capitalism they had left behind with a bond they not break no matter how much they wished. All lines of communication were open between them and the economic conditions from which they fled. The same mail that brought them tidings of the loved ones in the old home carried back to the Eastern money-lender the mortgage that was to hold them in a grip of iron for years to come. They were totally unable to escape from the complicated society into which they were born. The capitalist exploiter, with arms of steel, reached on after them into their new home and established there at once all the conditions from which the great pioneer army of America had been fleeing ever since the founding of the first straggling colony along the Atlantic coast." (Pp. 40-42.) And again: "Instead of towns arising as trade routes developed, the trade routes, in the form of railroads, came first and their owners arbitrarily decided where the centers of population should be located. Once the site had been decided upon the city immediately apeared, not by a gradual differentiation and specialization of industrial society, but through the simple fiat of a corporation. Such artificial communities had none of the co-operative fellowship of the neighborhoods of the earlier frontiers. They were intensely competitive from the start." (P. 43.)

Only one more excerpt can we give from this historical section, this one dealing with the consequences following upon the development of California from a grazing to a mining country and from that to wheat-growing and fruit-raising. "With each of these steps there was a continual widening of the economic and social circle of life. At first this circle was little more than the ranch. Then it was widened to the state with occasional breaks into the outer world. In this last stage of communication the barriers were broken down in all directions and California entered the great 'world market.' In 1869 and 1870 the transcontinental railroads were completed and California was united to the East with a tie which often partook of the nature of a fetter as well as a highway. For the next twenty years indeed, the history of California is to no small degree the history of the struggles between the railroads and the producers of wealth. Production having become for profit and sale and not for use, the price was determined by the surplus sold. At the same time the income of the farmer depended, not as heretofore upon the abundance of his crop so much as upon the fluctuations of railroad rates and market prices. The surplus, which fixes the price, can only be sold after transportation to Eastern markets. The railroads control the only effective means of such transportation and they therefore control the means of life of an entire community, upon which they are enabled to levy tribute. Within that community there are all imaginable complexities of exploitation and robbery and suffering, but the grip of the railroad remains the most dramatic and oppressive from the farmers' standpoint." (Pp. 52, 53.)

The most valuable part of the book, from a theoretical point of view, is, of course, that on "Agricultural Economics," to which the historical section is introductory and in which the foundation is laid for the concluding section, which deals with "The Coming Change."

In the first chapter of this section, entitled "Toward the City," the author shows from the Census and other statistics that the concentration of population has been a constant and, on the whole, an accelerating tendency for more than a century. He does more than this; for he shows, as against the comfortable cant of "back-to-the-soil" reformers, that it is a natural and irresistible economic tendency under our present system; great as are its attendant evils, these evils are only incidental to the normal functioning of our existing social organism. The city is the dominant factor in our society and its laws of development, by force of economic competition as well as through political power and other agencies, impose themselves upon the country and determine the conditions under which the agricultural population shall work and live.

The second chapter pictures "The Modern Farmer" in contrast with the farmer of earlier decades. No longer a man-of-all-work, producing directly the greater part of the goods necessary for his own subsistence and producing, therefore, for use rather than for sale, he is now a specialized worker, who can avail himself of the product of his labor only through the market. The very fact that the specialization of the farmer's skill is not so complete as that of the mechanic or factory operative—or, rather, that it is of a very different sort—this fact itself only makes the farmer's struggle for existence harder. "But it is in the marketing of his crops that the average farmer is at the greatest disadvantage. With the development of specialized farming the farmer is absolutely dependent on the market. In the modern competitive system it is a commonly recognized fact that the success of the average manufacturer depends much more on his ability as a salesman, as a skillful advertiser and manipulator of the market than upon his knowledge of the processes of manufacture. With very many articles to-day the process of sale is much more expensive than the process of manufacture. To be sure a society that tolerates such a wasteful condition of affairs is very foolish and undesirable, but we are not just at this point concerned so much with criticisms of the present society as with the manner of its operation and the position of the farmer in that society. The average farmer, however, has practically no knowledge of the best methods of marketing. He often has no choice as to the time or place of marketing, being forced to sell to the first bidder that appears after harvest, even if, as often happens in some localities, his crop is not already sold in advance to some mortgage-holder. * * *The manufacturer who should trust the marketing of his product to the chance honesty and activity of a body of men whom he had never seen would be considered little short of insane, and his business life would certainly be short. Yet this is exactly what the farmer is compelled to do. * * * To sum up, it may be said that the farmer of to-day has become a specialist with all the risks of his predecessor and none of his independence. He is compelled to 'put all his eggs in one basket,' and yet that basket is subjected to all the chances of season and crops that ever beset the life of the farmer. In addition, there are wholly new elements of chance introduced in the form of market fluctuations, which are as completely beyond his control as the changes of the weather."

In the following chapter, on "The Transformation of Agriculture," the specialization of agricultural processes and the increased productive power resulting from the use of machinery are further discussed, with the consequences that flow from these facts. "The fact that the farmer has actually become a part of the competitive system is a fact of tremendous importance. Yet it is a fact that is almost invariably neglected." This fact is the fundamental one in the whole argument.

The next chapter deals with "Concentration in Agriculture" and is, perhaps, the crucial point in the whole book. The author admits the fallacy of the theory, sometimes rashly advanced by Socialists who make a direct and crude application of the analogy of factory production to agricultural industry, that the "bonanza farm" is the type of successful agriculture and that the small farms are tending to disappear. He admits that, while in some regions bonanza farming is successful, yet in others the tendency is rather to the breaking up of even medium-sized farms into excessively small ones, and that, on the whole, the size of the typical farm does not show any marked tendency to increase.

Admitting this, however, he proceeds to show that this does not at all call in question the theory of concentration, which, he claims, applies just as truly to agriculture as to manufacture and commerce. Concentration he defines as "a movement tending to give a continually diminishing minority of the persons engaged in any industry a continually increasing control over the essentials and a continually increasing share of the total value of the returns of the industry." Thus defined—and it would be hard to question the correctness of the definition—it is certain that concentration in agriculture has already gone far and that it is evidently still proceeding.

One form of concentration is in the separation of certain processes from agricultural industry and their transformation into manufactures. Thus the slaughtering and preparing of meat and the making of butter and cheese, which up to the last few decades formed a part of the work of the independent farmers, are now chiefly carried on in great industrial establishments and—as we have learned to our cost even since the recent publication of this book—are largely controlled by one great national trust.

Another form of concentration in agriculture is seen in the increase of tenantry and, more especially, of farm mortgages. The mortgage-holder, even more securely than the owner of a rented farm, controls the nominal possessor and is able to exploit him, often beyond the point where a wage-worker's endurance would cease. And, while no adequate statistics on the subject are published, it is certain that the greater part of the farm mortgages are held, not by neighboring independent farmers, but by the great banking and other financial companies which also hold a large share of the bonds and stocks of railroad and industrial companies—that is, by the great capitalist class.

But yet another view must be taken of the subject. Agriculture is closely dependent upon other industries. The process of wealth-production must, in this age of the world, be considered as a whole, all of whose parts are interdependent. "The different productive processes must, especially when considered in their relation to general social evolution, be treated as a part of one organic movement. When so treated, it becomes evident that 'for a continually diminishing minority of the persons engaged in industry to secure a continually increasing control over industry, it is only necessary for them to gain control of the dominating essentials of industrial life. Considering the processes of wealth creation in this organic manner, it appears at once that there are a few industrial processes that are peculiarly essential in relation to the whole productive process. With the highly developed complex industrial life of to-day, coal, iron, and transportation interests are so vitally essential to the entire process of production that, once they are centralized in the possession of a few, those possessors are practically able to control the whole industrial life, the vital processes, so to speak, of any society." (Pp. 119, 120.)

Having thus shown that the farmer is a part of the competitive system and that agriculture constitutes no exception to the law of concentration which prevails wherever, in the present age, competition holds away, the author proceeds in the following chapter, the concluding one of this section, to show a close analogy between farmer and wage-worker—or, to put it more correctly, he proceeds to argue that the economic position of the farmer exactly corresponds to that of the wage-worker in other industries, in that he is deprived of the full control of the essential tools of production, is therefore absolutely dependent upon the owners of these essential tools, and is obliged to give up to them the whole value of his product in excess of the cost of subsistence. We may quote two passages from this chapter:

"It has been frequently stated that the farmer combines all economic functions—that he is at once capitalist, laborer, and manager of industry. In one sense this is true, but in another and the only rational sense, this is a part of the same fallacy that would ascribe to the wage-earner all those various functions and interests because as a carpenter he happens to own a hammer and saw, or as a miner he possesses a pick and shovel. But a man's economic classification is fixed by the dominant determining factor in his life and not the incidental ones. Does the economic position of the miner, his wages, mode of life, thought and social position depend upon the fact that he owns the pick and shovel, or upon the fact that he does not own the mine? Does he receive his income by virtue of the ownership of the pick and shovel or by virtue of the exertion of his strength? Apply the same test to the farmer. Does he receive his income from ownership or from productive labor? All authorities agree that in amount at least his income is more nearly comparable to that of the wage-worker than to that of any other class of society." (P. 127.)

And again: "We have noticed that farmers are forced to compete among themselves in the raising of all manner of produce. The result is that from the standpoint of the present system there is a constant overproduction of goods on the farm, and this while thousands are suffering for those same goods in the city. The farmer having raised the crops, comes to the railroad, elevator, cold-storage, or packing companies whose 'tools' he must use to complete the process of 'producing' his crop. He cannot transport his crops in the old way because of the fact that under competition only the cheapest method can be used where both are operating in the same field. But when he seeks to use the 'tools' for transportation, storage, etc., he finds that the owners of those charge him, to use their own expression, 'what the traffic will bear.' That is, they take from him, just as they take from their employees, all save enough to enable him to exist and perpetuate a race of producers for future exploitation. It will make no difference how much machines are employed, or methods of farming perfected so far as this condition is concerned. If the machine is one which can only be used upon the farm it will but aid the farmer to produce a larger crop and make the competition between him and his fellow farmers for the opportunity to reach the restricted market, still more fierce, and therefore the increased production will only add to the income of those who stand between him and that market. If the improvement takes the form of perfecting an entire process which can be taken from the farm, it will but become a part of the great factory system, and assist in the further subjection of the actual tiller of the soil. All the benefit of improvements and new tools will go to those who control these last and most essential processes of production.

"So long as there is infinitely more land than is required to produce the necessary agricultural produce the ownership of land conveys little advantage. So long as an unlimited number of saws and planes can be produced, the possession of such tools by the carpenter is ridiculously ineffective to secure him a position or enable him to retain his product. So long as the essential tools of his profession and those which are subject to monopoly by a small class of owners, are outside his control, he can never be but little more than a slave to those who do own such monopolized and essential tools.

"It thus becomes evident that the manner of exploitation of the individual wage-worker of the mines and factory and the farmer is practically the same. Both stand as a class opposed to the exploiting class, neither owns the essentials of production which are necessary to the class of producers. Under these conditions their position is shoulder to shoulder in a common battle for a common freedom. The farmer must enter the political battle from the point of view of the laborer, not of the capitalist. In the two great armies into which modern society is divided his place is with the creators of wealth in mine and shop and factory." (Pp. 135-137.)

The third part, "The Coming Change," includes a consideration of the agrarian political movements of the past—the Greenback movement, the Grange, Populism, etc.—pointing out their weakness and the reasons for it. From this the author proceeds to argue that the farmers' interest lies in political union with the class-conscious labor movement—not on the basis of "log-rolling" or the trading of support for two separate programs, one for industrial proletarians and one for farmers, but on the basis of an essential community of interests, which can be served only by the establishment of Socialism.

Doubtless many Socialists will be slow to accept Comrade Simons' position. It may be that he has carried his argument a little too far at some points, that at some points it fits conditions as they will be in the near future rather than conditions as they are. It may be, too, that in drawing his political inferences from the economic argument he has underestimated a psychological factor—the deceitful glamour by which the fact of legal ownership, of formal independence, so often masks and conceals the real facts of dependence from the dependent himself and misleads him into false courses. But we believe that the position taken in "The American Farmer" is essentially correct, and we cordially advise every reader to give the book careful study.

L.

WHAT SOCIALISM STANDS FOR.

Socialism is collective ownership of the means of producing the means of life, democratically managed by the workers who use them and with equal opportunity for all to the use and benefits of the use of these means of production, so collectively owned and democratically managed.

These are not three steps which may be taken one at a time, as if each step was a sample of Socialism. They are the three points, all of which are necessary to fix the position of a plane. They are the three legs of a stool without any one of which the stool cannot stand.—Walter Thomas Mills.

—If you want to make propaganda for Socialism, send a quarter for a hundred copies of our new leaflet on the Beef Trust, and get busy.

Our Esteemed Contemporaries (and OTHERS)

New Era, Philadelphia.

Where is the much-vaunted Civic Federation? In the anthracite coal regions there is work for it to do. Capital has found that it doesn't do to carry this brotherly love for labor business too far. The miners actually thought the operators did love them, and now they feel sore because they have found out it was only a flirtation.

It is too bad that the obstinacy of the operators spoiled the plans of the dope mixers. But no one can blame the operators. Any one would be obstinate if his money-making game was threatened. What did a wise Providence create us for? To make money, to be sure. It is all well enough to talk of how God loves the poor, but the churches only hold gorgeous funeral services over the bodies of the wealthy. And if God's agents have such a nice discriminating sense you can bet your simoleons St. Peter ain't dead stuck on a tramp!

But to get back to the Civic Federation. Why did the miners throw coal dust on its white plumage? Is there nothing the horny handed sons of toil hold sacred? The base ingratitude of the miners is enough to turn every coupon clipper of the Civic Federation against them. When honored and respected society people give up their auto trips to rig up a confidence game for Labor, the miners have no right to show that the dice were loaded and the cards marked. Gentlemen don't squeal when they lose to bunco sharps. It is only rude, uncultivated work people who make a fuss when they find they have been cheated.

Who will save us now? Hanna is a broken reed. Morgan won't interfere. Gompers is dreaming of the higher aspirations of the American labor movement, and we have nothing but the common sense of the workers to rely on.

The Miners' Magazine.

It is time for the laboring people to take up the argument of the trust magnates—"There is nothing to arbitrate," while the producers of wealth receive nothing but a miserable existence from the product of their labor.

It is hard to conceive of a greater enemy to the interest of the laborers than the men high in their ranks proposing to surrender their rights to a committee of millionaires to arbitrate.

Every wage earner in the country who has a spark of independence in his veins should make himself heard against this unholy alliance between his enemy on the inside and his uncompromising foe on the outside, who are conspiring to rob him of what little liberty he enjoys and eventually land him in the Republican ranks to elect Senator Hanna or President Roosevelt to wield the lash over him for another four years.

Social Democratic Herald.

During slavery days in the South the little black children, before their frames were firmly knit and braced for the struggle of life, were free to run in the sunshine, their food and shelter was sure and adequate and they played with all the irrepressible joy of childhood on the mellow soil of the plantations. Yet they were slaves!

At the present time the Yankee profit skinners of New England—the "eminently respectable," if you please!—have invaded the free South, and little white children are hurried from their beds before daylight to the great cotton factory-prisons, and there kept out of the sunlight and away from the grass and the trees for twelve hours daily, working at exhausting toil, monotonous, gloomy, laughter-hating toil. And the doctors say their space of life averages but a few years, after the factory gets hold of them. Yet they are free!

Under chattel slavery, human beings were property and hence their health and soundness was guarded by the owner, the same as that of a horse.

The Workers' Gazette, Omaha.

It is reported that J. Pierpont Morgan is a great Socialist, who, after winning all the people have and teaching them the folly of unlimited private property privileges, intends to give the country back to the people if they will establish public ownership. After Mr. Morgan gets the whole cheese it will make little difference whether he wants to give it back or not. The people will take it. But if he can teach the people the folly of unlimited private property privileges he will do enough to earn a niche in the temple of greatness by the side of Patrick Henry and Abraham Lincoln.

THE CLASS WAR.

When we Socialists appeal to the class interests of the workers, when we urge the necessity of class-conscious political action, we are accused of creating a class war. But that is absurd. We do not create the class war—it exists as a result of the economic methods. We simply call attention to the fact of its existence and urge the necessity of dealing with it. We abhor the class system and its evils and say it must be abolished. But how? That is the question. In order that the class war may be abolished its existence must be recognized. We emphasize it therefore, and call upon our fellows to join us, because we know that in this strife there are no neutrals; in this especially is it true that "He who is not for us is against us." Further, we do not say to them, "Let us defeat the ruling class that we may rule them as they have ruled us!" No, it is not a cry of vengeance or of envy; on the contrary, we say, "Let us destroy the power of the ruling class so that henceforth there may be no classes, but a unified people which is far better."—John Spargo, in "Where We Stand."

BUY BLUE-LABEL CIGARS.

PARTY NOTES.

Comrade Debs will address a number of meetings in Colorado.

James S. Roche spoke before the miners at Bevier, Mo., on Injunction Day, Saturday, May 17. On the same day John C. Chase spoke before the miners at Staunton, Ill.

Enough dates have been made with trade unions to keep Comrade Chase in Missouri during the entire month of May and in Iowa and Minnesota during the months of June and July. From there he will go through the Northwestern states to the Pacific Coast.

Twelve state committees have so far approved the monthly report book for financial secretaries. The National Committee has in preparation a uniform receipt book for local secretaries.

Comrade Louis Goazieu, editor of the French labor paper, "L'Union des Travailleurs," of Charleroi, Pa., is making a short tour of Indiana and Illinois, addressing meetings of French-speaking miners.

Local Rochester has opened headquarters and free reading room at 95 Main street, room 9, right in the heart of the city. This will "supply a long felt want" and should be energetically supported.

Local aBttle Creek, Mich., has offered, through the public press, prizes of $5 each to the five pupils in the public schools and business schools of the city who shall write the best essays on Socialism. The prizes will be given at a public mass meeting.

Comrade Vall addressed a good audience in Wilkes Barre, Pa., Sunday evening. The audience was very attentive and seemed to appreciate the excellent lecture to the full. There were a number of women in the audience and Mrs. Vall gave an instructive little talk for their benefit, which was well received. Financially also the meeting was a success; tickets were sold at 10 cents and the receipts covered all expenses and left a small surplus.—Local Wilkes Barre meets in Central Labor Union Hall, 16 S. Main street, on the second and fourth Sunday of each month, at 2:30 p. m. The comrades keep in close touch with the labor movement. All Socialist readers of The Worker in the vicinity are urged to join the Local and help in its work.—Comrade Charles F. Quinn, Secretary-Treasurer of the Pennsylvania State Federation of Labor, will address the meeting of May 25.

Wm. W. Atkinson is the next lecturer in the course at the Philadelphia headquarters, 1022 Arch street. On Thursday evening, May 29, he will speak on "The Hope of the Ages."

The General Committee of Local New York meets Saturday evening, May 24, at the Labor Lyceum.

The County Committee of Local Kings County will meet Saturday evening, May 24, at the Socialist Club, Ralph avenue and Fulton street, Brooklyn.

There will be a meeting of the New York Speakers' Club at the Labor Lyceum, Friday, May 23, at 8 p. m. All who are willing to become speakers for the party should attend.

The City Executive of Local New York has printed 30,000 copies of the leaflet, "What Are You Going to Do about the Beef Trust?" especially for use in the city and state of New York. These should be distributed at once. Every subdivision in New York and Brooklyn should take as many as it can use. Order of Organizer, at Labor Lyceum, 64 E. Fourth street, or Socialist Literature Company, 184 William street. Price, $1.25 a thousand. Cash must accompany all orders.

The 4th A. D. at its last meeting decided to call a conference of the 2d, 4th, 8th, and 12th A. D. to begin preparations for the campaign in the Congressional District; also to ask the General Committee and the First Agitation District to hold meetings in protest against the robbery of the working people by the Meat Trust.

A special meeting of the 7th, 9th, and 25th A. D. organizations of the S. D. P. of New York City will be held on Thursday evening, May 29, at the home of Comrade Wecklein, 508 West Twenty-sixth street, top floor. As business of importance is to be transacted all members should be present without fail, and all other readers of The Worker living in these districts are urged to attend and join the party organization.

The newly organized 34th A. D. at its last meeting added two more to its membership, bringing the number up to twenty. The district meets every Friday evening at 380 Willis avenue—back of a cigar store, entrance through the hall. Every Socialist in the district should be present at the meeting of May 23, at 8 p. m., sharp.

Bolton Hall, the well-known Single Taxer, is expected to speak on "Class-Consciousness," at the Manhattan Liberal Club, 220 East Fifteenth street, Friday evening, May 23. Some of the comrades should be present to set the audience straight after our Single Tax friend ge through.

AND HE WAS RIGHT.

First Office Boy—De boss told me I should save at least half what I earned!

Second Office Boy—Wot did you tell him?

First Office Boy—Told him dat would be at least four times me salary!—Puck.

SPRING IN BUFFALO.

State Organizer Spring is now at Buffalo, where he will remain for a few days. Several mass meetings have been arranged for him in different parts of the city, as well as a debate with a Mr. Thayer, a more or less prominent lawyer of the city, who recently addressed the high-school pupils on "The Evils of Socialism," and whom Spring promptly challenged. The movement in Buffalo is getting into shape again, after a period of inactivity. The attack by Bishop Quigley has had much to do with the revival and Spring will see that we make the most of it.

MASSACHUSETTS NOTES.

It is some time since the movement in Massachusetts presented such an encouraging aspect as it does to-day. The state organization has gotten into fairly good shape and if the comrades continue working as they are doing now we can be assured of a fine increase in our vote throughout the Commonwealth next November. The state committee, however, is hampered by lack of funds to do the organizing work necessary in this state. We have need for at least one more organizer who could put his whole time in the field. There are a great many places where the party had votes last year where we have no organization and where one could be easily established if some one could visit them, and thus ensure a still further increase in future elections. With the growth of the organization more time is required to attend to the correspondence and other details, more than anyone employed in a shop or factory can afford to give. The consequence is that the time of the organizer is necessarily taken up with the masters not directly within his sphere. If the Socialists of Massachusetts devote some energy to their organization and continue to rally to the support of the state committee, they will be agreeably surprised with the results. It is only by organized effort that we can take advantage of the many opportunities offered to advance our propaganda—opportunities which no other state continually presents, and which we have not, for many reasons, made the most of in the past.

The state committee is arranging a tour for Eugene V. Debs for October next, and it is probable at least half a dozen dates will be made for him. As it is two years since Debs was in Massachusetts there is a great desire to see and hear him again, and with the increased interest being taken in the subject of Socialism, his visit should be a thoroughly successful one.

The lecture course of Charles H. Vail was so successful in Boston last winter that another one will probably be arranged for next fall or winter. There are other cities in this state that could well follow this plan, and where the full course cannot be given one or two dates can be made. Few speakers can present the Socialist position so clearly and so effectively as Vail.

I was at Haverhill during the past week, and am pleased to report that the organization there is settling down to steady work that is bound to have its effect next fall. Open-air meetings on the public square are held each Saturday night, Representative Carey being the speaker at the first one held two weeks ago, and at which there was a very big crowd. The club is practically out of debt and holding regular meetings. The latest attempt of the capitalist politicians to sidetrack the Socialist movement finds expression in a proposed new city charter which would do away with ward representation. The Common Council would be abolished, and the Socialists shut out of representation in the city government. It is hoped also to exclude Socialists from the School Board and as Assistant Assessors. The charter will have to be adopted by a vote of the city and it is not likely the attempt will succeed.

An open-air meeting was held at Lawrence on Thursday-night at which Comrade Putney, of Somerville, and the writer were the speakers. There was a good crowd, considering that next day those present had to go to work at an early hour. Things have got in rather an unsatisfactory shape in Lawrence, although the Socialist sentiment is stronger than ever. The old and faithful worker, Comrade Tepper, is still on deck, and, with the aid of a number of other young comrades, will soon get affairs into better running order.

Comrade Fischler, of Chicago, is in Massachusetts and is addressing Polish meetings wherever he can make dates. He had a good meeting at Taunton on the 13th, and spoke in the town hall in Fall River on the 16th. He also spoke in German in New Bedford on the 15th. Comrade Fischler will visit many cities where there are Polish workingmen and wherever we have clubs at these places comrades should get up meetings.

Out Brockton way an active propaganda is being carried on all the time. Father McGrady speaks there on Monday next and a good meeting is assured. I hear that the Brockton comrades are talking of putting their main efforts into electing representatives to the General Court and several districts will be warmly contested. There are a number of Socialists in Brockton who would make good companions to Carey and MacCartney.

N. P. Geiger is located in Boston at present and is prepared to fill out of town dates, for open-air meetings, Saturday evenings preferred, as he is at work in the day time. Address him at 84 Kendall street, Boston, or the State Secretary, W. P. Porter.

The Quincy comrades are arranging a grand picnic for the middle of June, and as they are experts at picnicing, this one will be like all previous ones—if not more so. In fact this affair is going to be the most elaborate ever given by the Quincy Socialists and the program will be the best ever. Some of the best Socialist speakers will be there and there will be sports of all kinds. Reports from Quincy are to the effect that more interest is being taken in Socialism than at any time previous, the trade unionists especially showing signs of progress.

The regular meetings on Boston Common are now in full swing. Last Sunday was a beautiful day and large crowds assembled along the mall, and listened to the "cranks," of which there is an ample sufficiency. Comrade Putney's bench was surrounded by a big crowd during the two hours that he and Comrades Mahoney, Geiger and the writer spoke.

As soon as the Legislature adjourns, Representative Carey will make a tour through Maine for the party. Elections come in that state in September, and it is important that the Socialist Party should make a showing that will set an example to the rest of the country. Carey has filled many engagements this month, principally before trade unions. Representative MacCartney will take a rest for a while, and save his energies for a vigorous campaign in the fall.

Boston Socialists will give a picnic in the summer—somewhere—as soon as the committee appointed gets ready to act and make arrangements. Open-air meetings will also be held in all the public squares.

The Socialist Party has never been stronger in Springfield than it is today. The vote for Mayor last fall was considerably larger than ever before, and better than that, the average of the whole ticket showed a still greater gain. The activity of the Socialist Club this spring already promises well for the coming fall. Five new members were admitted at the next meeting after the May Day celebration, which was very successful and at which Representatives Carey and MacCartney were the speakers. But all records were broken by the meeting last Monday night, when Comrade Father McGrady spoke at Graves' Hall. The hall seats about twelve hundred and was packed to the doors and window sills, many being turned away. Father McGrady made a great speech and without any doubt reached and made a lasting impression on a great many who had never heard a Socialist speech before. Both the May Day meeting and the McGrady meeting netted the club a little, so it is more prosperous financially than it has been for some time. It is hoped now to get Comrade Debs to speak in Springfield in the fall.

Lynn comrades are organizing more closely and a city central committee is in process of formation. This step is taken in order that the members in West Lynn can work together with the others in the city proper. The Lynn comrades are on the lookout for new quarters, although some think it might be best not to have clubs in the summer as the agitation meetings will be held every Sunday in a grove near the city. These meetings will begin the first Sunday in June, and there will be a different speaker each Sunday.

W. M.

MAINE NOTES.

Local Portland held a "smoker" last Friday evening. A good audience was present, who were addressed by Comrades Chas. L. Fox, candidate for Governor; H. E. Rouillard, candidate for State Legislature from South Portland; Wm. P. Rogers of Freeport, candidate for County Commissioner, and Samuel C. Phillips of Westbrook, candidate for Sheriff. A collection of nearly $45.00 was taken in cash and pledges.

There is good prospect of a French branch being organized at Westbrook in the near future. One of the comrades reports much interest in Socialism among the French in that city, and thinks they will be able to organize with a charter membership of fifteen or twenty.

State Committeeman L. E. Bramhall of Camden writes encouragingly of the prospects in Knox County. We note that the press in that section, and especially the Rockland "Opinion," are very fair in their treatment of trade unionism and Socialism.

From far off Washington County Comrade Bangs of North Lubec writes: "Over two hundred have signified their intention of voting our ticket this fall." As our total vote in this county at the last presidential election was only 76, these figures would indicate a most gratifying per cent of increase.

Now and again an application for membership comes in from Penobscot County, where Comrade E. N. Tracy has been waging an almost single-handed fight. More power to the comrades whose pioneering makes possible the ultimate harvest of sentiment and votes.

And so it goes. From the north to the south, from the east to the west comes the words of hope and good cheer. The fountains of Puritanical conservatism, which has won Maine the unenviable reputation of being the most hidebound state in the Union, are being stirred to their depths by the steady growth of Socialistic ideas and ideals.

We are preparing to take our stand in the front rank of Freedom's Army.

F. E. I.

ST. LOUIS CAMPAIGN.

The comrades of St. Louis have settled down to hard work immediately after their enthusiastic city convention which we reported last week. Reports of the first week show such items as these: First Ward held two public meetings, addressed by Wm. Brandt, candidate for Congress in the Tenth District and M. Ballard Dunn, candidate for the legislature; new members were taken in at both meetings. Second and Sixth and Ninth Ward comrades are devoting themselves to precinct work. Eighth and Tenth Wards hold meetings, addressed by Jas. S. Roche and G. A. Hoehn, and took in new members. Leon S. Greenbaum speaks this week for the Eleventh and Eighteenth Wards, and C. F. G ebelein and W. W. Baker for the Twenty-first. The campaign fund is increasing rapidly and everything looks hopeful.

The platform adopted at the city convention contains a clear statement of revolutionary Socialist principles, based on our national platform, which is followed by the following statement:

"DUTY OF THE SOCIALIST PARTY.

"While we declare that the development of economic conditions tends to the overthrow of the capitalist system, we recognize that the time and manner of the transition to Socialism also depend upon the stage of development reached by the proletariat. We, therefore, consider it of the utmost importance for the Socialist Party to support all active efforts of the working class to better its condition and to elect Socialists to political offices, in order to facilitate the attainment of this end.

"MUNICIPAL MEASURES.

"As municipal measures we, therefore, advocate:

"1. The public ownership and operation of all public utilities, such as street railways, gas and electric plants, telephone systems and all other industries which the powers of the municipality permit it to acquire; the revenues to be applied to the increase of wages and shortening of hours of labor of the employees and to improve generally the condition of the working class of this city, but under no circumstances shall any part of said revenues be applied to the reduction of taxes in favor of the capitalist class.

"2. The abolition of the contract system on all public work, such work to be done under direct supervision of the city and under union conditions, with a minimum wage of two dollars per day of not exceeding eight hours.

"3. Inauguration of public works for the employment of the unemployed.

"4. The enactment and strict enforcement of laws protecting all workers in stores, shops and factories.

"5. Compulsory education of all boys and girls up to the age of sixteen years; the city to provide all books and school supplies free and food and clothing where necessary.

"6. Application of the principles of direct legislation (the initiative and referendum) and the imperative mandate to the conduct of all public affairs.

"7. Amendment of the city charter enlarging the powers of the municipality in the interest of the working class."

THE SCRIMSHAW MEMORIAL PARADE.

The general arrangements for the parade and meetings in memory of Frederic Scrimshaw, to be held on Decoration Day in Arlington, are about completed.

The program provides for the line to form at the corner of Harrison avenue and Fourth street, Harrison, at one o'clock, and, led by the Socialist Drum and Fife Corps to march through Harrison avenue, Kearny avenue, Midland avenue, and Elm street, to the Arlington cemetery.

Addresses will be made over the grave by Peter E. Burrowes and possibly by Dr. Furman, both old companions of Comrade Scrimshaw, and by Comrade Cole. In addition, a few appropriate songs will be sung by the Socialist Quartet of Jersey City. The steps will then be retraced to Roche's Hall, on Kearny avenue, where refreshments will be served, and a propaganda meeting held. Leaving here, the march will be resumed to Harrison, where a street meeting will be held and the parade dispersed.

Several hundred people are expected to be in line, as most of the Socialist organizations and many of the unions of Hudson and Essex counties have signified their intentions of participating.

All organizations or individuals wishing to join in the demonstration are requested to communicate at once with A. P. Firth, 222 Devon street, Kearny, N. J., in order that an estimate may be made on which to base the preparations.

W. L. O.

FOR THE NATIONAL PROPAGANDA FUND.

An Appeal by the National Committee to All Party Members and Sympathizers.

To the State and Local Organizations of the Socialist Party.

Comrades:—At the meeting of the National Committee in this city on January 24, 25, and 26, 1902, the work that has thus far been accomplished by the national organization and the means of continuing the same were taken under advisement, and after due consideration, we decided to issue this appeal to the state and local organizations and to all of the comrades of our party for such amounts as each may be able to contribute as donations to a National Propaganda Fund.

The purposes of this fund are to enable us to continue the great and far-reaching task already begun of giving the greatest possible degree of general publicity to the aims and methods of the Socialist Party; to extend the influence of our party as a vital political factor, especially in the various economic organizations of the working class; to be the means of communicating advice to and co-operating with comrades in their efforts to agitate, organize, and educate the proletariat; and to assist the local and state organizations and the Socialist press in general in extending the scope of their respective activities.

Official records show that 470,000 pieces of printed supplies, especially intended for party organization, have been used throughout the country since the Unity Convention designed by and supplied through the agency of the National Committee. The National Secretary's report, showing an increase of membership in good standing of 50 per cent. since the Unity Convention, is eloquent evidence of the splendid achievements of our comrades in the townships, cities, counties, states, and territories.

During the past six months the demands of all kinds upon your National Committee from every section of the country have been far beyond our resources, and we have been repeatedly handicapped by lack of funds. At this writing, while the business of the party is increasing heavily from day to day, our financial receipts are not sufficient to enable us to meet the most important requirements of the party work, and it is urgently necessary that the comrades render immediate financial aid to the national organization.

As a means to this end we again call the attention of the comrades to the National Propaganda Fund. Donations to this fund should be sent to the National Secretary, and will be acknowledged weekly in the Socialist press.

LEON GREENBAUM,
National Secretary.
427 Emilie Bldg., St. Louis.

By order National Committee, Socialist Party.

Amount reported to May 10	$352.68
Flemish Branch, Philadelphia	5.00
Joe McGann, South Norwalk, Conn.	.25
Local Bellaire, O.	1.00
Local Arlington, Wash.	2.25
Leonard D. Abbott, New York	5.00
Total to May 17	$366.18

THE MATERIALISTIC CONCEPTION OF HISTORY.

The materialistic conception of history proceeds upon the principle that production, and, next to production, the exchange of its products, is the ground work of every social order; and that in every social system that has arisen historically, the distribution of the products, together with the social divisions into classes and orders, depends upon that which is produced, and the manner in which it is produced, and also upon the manner in which the articles produced are exchanged. According to this, the prime causes of all social changes and political revolutions are to be traced, not to the heads of men, not to their increasing perception of eternal truth and justice, but to the changes in the manner of production and exchange; they are to be traced, not to the philosophy, but to the economic of the respective epochs. The awakening perception that existing social institutions are unreasonable and unjust, that sense has become non-sense, and right wrong, is only an evidence that, in the methods of production and forms of exchange, changes have silently taken place with which the social order, fitted to the previous economic conditions, is no longer in keeping. Hereby it is at the same time implied that the means for the removal of the discovered abuses must be latent and more or less developed in the changed conditions of production themselves. But these means are not to be invented by the brains, they are to be discovered, with the aid of the brains, in the material facts of production that are on hand.—Frederick Engels, in "Socialism, Utopian and Scientific."

BUY UNION-MADE GOODS.

OUTING & PICNIC,
Socialist Club, B'klyn,
Decoration Day, May 30th,
At Koessinger's Highbridge Park.
Jamaica Road & Schurman Str.,
RICHMOND HILL, L. I. Tickets 15 Cents.
TO REACH PARK: Broadway & Fulton Str. "L" or surface cars transfer at East N. Y. to Jamaica trolley. Myrtle Ave. "L" or surface cars transfer at Ridgewood to Richmond Hill cars. If using Rapid Transit Road, stop at Morris Park Station.

New York & Westchester, Attention.
Grand Festival at Grace Farm, Yonkers, on Sunday, June 1st, 2 P. M. Take Jerome Ave. Trolley cars to Dunwoodie Station, ask for Grace Farm, rear of Hollywood Inn Ball Grounds, close to station. Admission free. Games, Singing, Dancing & Shooting. All welcome.

Dr C. L. FURMAN,
DENTIST,
121 Schermerhorn street, Brooklyn.

COMRADES, PATRONIZE . . .
FRED. SONNENSCHEIN,
UNION BARBER SHOP
84 E. 4th Street, New York.

Strictly Union-made
BUFFO
TINY SPICY HAVANAS
10,15 & 20¢ Packages
PLUM
If you cannot get them of your dealer, write to THE
E. Seidenberg, Stiefel & Co.,
MAKERS.
98TH STREET AND FIRST AVENUE, NEW YORK.

"WHERE WE STAND."
A lecture by John Spargo, editor of THE COMRADE. Originally delivered under the title, "Our Position, Economic, Ethical and Political." Five cents a copy, 10 for 35c., 50 for $1.40, 100 for $2.50, postpaid. Order now.

ILLUSTRATED AGITATION LEAFLETS.
Published by THE COMRADE PUB. CO., 11 Cooper Square, N. Y. "The Worker with the Capitalist Mind," by Herbert N. Casson, fifth edition; "Dialogue between the Machine Gun and the Mauser," by Frank Stuhlman; "A Lesson from the Donkeys," by John Spargo. You should use these leaflets for distribution, as they are sure to be read by everybody who gets them. Price, 10c. a bundle of 50, one kind or assorted. SPECIAL.—Upon receipt of 50 cents in one-cent stamps we will send THE COMRADE, an illustrated Socialist Monthly, for three months, 100 illustrated leaflets, and a copy of "Where We Stand."
THE COMRADE PUBLISHING CO., 11 Cooper Square, New York (373 Bowery.)

R-I-P-A-N-S
I have been a great sufferer with piles for years, and I have tried everything I heard of, and have had bleeding piles, and felt terrible. An aunt of mine came from the country to see me and she made me take Ripans Tabules. I first took two four times a day, then I took one at each meal, and then one every day. At the end of two weeks I felt a great change. I thank Ripans for relieving me of all I suffered.
At Druggists.
The Five-Cent Package is enough for an ordinary occasion. The family bottle, 60 cents, contains a supply for a year.

The annual meeting of Stockholders of the Barton Mfg. Co. for the election of Directors for the ensuing year, will be held at the office of the company, No. 338 Broadway, New York, on the 31st day of May, 1902, at 12 o'clock noon.
Dated April 30, 1902. R. WILDAY, Pres.

THE DECATUR LABOR WORLD
Decatur, Ill.
AN UP-TO-DATE LABOR PAPER.
Subscription $1 per year, in advance.
HAS A WEEKLY CIRCULATION OF 3,500 COPIES.
Advertising rates quoted on application. Address:
THE DECATUR LABOR WORLD,
231 N. Main St., Decatur, Ill.

Where to Lunch and Dine
Comrades, patronize those who advertise in your paper.
ABBOTT BROS.'
Lunch Room,
110 Bleecker St., near Greene St.
NEW YORK.
Kangaroos are welcome.
No line drawn on smaller animals.
PATRONIZE . . . .
FRITZ'S COFFEE AND LUNCH ROOM.
373 Bowery, bet. 4th & 5th Sts. N. Y.
OPEN DAY AND NIGHT.

LAWYERS.
MORRIS HILLQUIT,
Attorney-at-Law,
320 Broadway. Telephone 2576 Franklin
L. D. MAYES, LAWYER,
245 Broadway, New York City, Borough of Manhattan. Practice in all Courts. Consultation free
H. B. SALISBURY,
COUNSELLOR-AT-LAW
309 Broadway, Room 903. 50 Union Square.
Simon Sultan,
Counsellor at Law.
203 Broadway (Mail and Express Building)
7th Floor, Room 711.
Residence 110 West 120th st., New York.

WHO WILL DO YOUR LAUNDRY WORK?
I. X. L. LAUNDRY, GUSTAV LEIST,
774 Second Ave.

SPECIAL NOTICES.

Under this heading any matter of interest to the Social Democratic Party (Socialist Party) will be inserted at FIVE CENTS PER LINE EACH INSERTION. Six words about equal one line. Cash must accompany advertisement IN EVERY INSTANCE.

ORGANIZER WANTED.

An organizer is wanted to put in a month or more in Connecticut, visiting sympathizers and readers of party papers, inducing them to join the party, extending the circulation of party papers and pamphlets, and addressing open-air meetings. Salary and expenses will be paid an energetic worker. Address Connecticut State Committee, A. B. Cornelius, Secretary, 746 Chapel street, New Haven.

Edward King will lecture Sunday, May 25, at 8:30 p. m., in the club rooms of the Young Men's Educational League, 331 Broome street. Subject: "The Labor Struggle in England for Free Speech and Organization." Admission free. All are welcome.

WANTED.—An active comrade who will take the agency for The Worker for Detroit and vicinity.

DON'T WEAR YOURSELF OUT TRYING TO SPREAD SOCIALISM, but take hold of things by the smoothest handle. New ideas and labor-saving devices in propaganda material. Samples for 2c. stamp. FRANK OHNEMUS, 196 Park Place, Long Island City, New York.

NO TRUSTS! NO PRISONS! NO SWEAT SHOPS!
Shirts, Waists, Collars or Cuffs
BEARING THIS LABEL ARE O. K.
INTERNATIONAL SHIRT, WAIST & LAUNDRY WORKERS UNION Registered
This label is sewed on Shirts and Waists just below the tab or bosom and is stamped in miniature on Collars and Cuffs
No Chinese exclusion act needed when up-to-date Union Laundries use this Label to stamp Price List Slips on your laundry packages. Ask for it.

EGYPT...
Southern Illinois. A real Garden of Eden. No place in the United States produces a greater variety of finer fruits, vegetables and grains, or more of them. Splendid climate and water. Cheap lands. THE FARMERS' INSTITUTE, Carbondale, Ill., will tell you all about it. Four months for ten cents. Sample copy for two-cent stamp.

$1.00 OFFER FOR 60 CENTS.

Railroading in the United States by BEN. HANFORD	5 Cents
The Clerical Capitalist by Rev. Father MCGRADY	10 Cents
Why Workingmen Should be Socialists by H. GAYLORD WILSHIRE	2 Cents
Labor Politics and Socialist Politics by ALGERNON LEE	3 Cents
The Proletariat by KARL KAUTSKY	5 Cents
The Class War in Idaho by JOS HARRIMAN. Third Edition	5 Cents
The Communist Manifesto by KARL MARX and FRED'K ENGELS	10 Cents
The Development of Socialism, from Utopia to Science. By F. ENGELS	5 Cents
A Debate on the Tactics of the S. T. and L. A. toward Trade Unions between Daniel DeLeon and Job Harriman	5 Cents
The Attitude of the Socialists toward the Trade Unions, by N. I. STONE	5 Cents
The Capitalist Class by KARL KAUTSKY	5 Cents
Now and Then. A Socialist Play by FRED'K KRAFFT	10 Cents
The Adventures of JOHN MCCUE—Socialist	10 Cents
The Religion of Capital by PAUL LAFARGUE / Social Effect of Machinery by FRANK W. COLTON	10 Cents
Where we stand by JOHN SPARGO	5 Cents
Socialism. A Reply to the Pope's Encyclical by ROBERT BLATCHFORD	5 Cents

On receipt of Only 60 Cents above 15 books will be mailed postpaid.
Socialist Literature Co., 184 WILLIAM ST., New York.
Largest Assortment of Literature on the Labor Question.
CATALOGUE FREE.

PUBLICATIONS.

SOCIAL JUSTICE.

EDITED BY FREDERICK G. STRICKLAND.

A monthly message from agitators in the field. Good for the man who hasn't thought and full of suggestions to Socialist workers. 25 Cents for Eight Months. 35 Cents per Year.

Address: SOCIAL JUSTICE, Yellow Springs, Ohio.

LATEST PUBLICATIONS.

"Adventures of John McCue" ..... 10c.
"American Farmer." By Simons. Cloth. 50c.
"American Communities." By W. A. Hinds. Cloth $1.00
"The Man with the Hoe," and other poems. By Edwin Markham. Cloth, $1; paper, 50c.
"History of Trade Unionism." By S. & B. Webb. Cloth $2.60
"Industrial Democracy." By Sidney and Beatrice Webb ..... $4.00.
"The Passing of Capitalism." By Ladoff. 25c.
"Organized Self-Help." By H. N. Casson. 25c.
"Religion of Capital." By Lafargue .... 10c.
"Social Effect of Machinery." By Cotton. 10c
"Tales from Gorky" ..... $1.20.
"The Pride of Intellect." By F. H. Wentworth; and "What is a Scab?" By A. M. Simons ..... 5c.
"The Westcotes." By A. T. Quiller-Couth ..... $1.00.
"Useful Principles of Logic." By T. Bersford ..... 15c.
"Voice from England." By Father McGrady ..... 10c.
"The History of Trade Unionism." By Sidney and Beatrice Webb. New edition. New ork. Longmans, Green & Co. 1902. 558 pages. Cloth ..... $2.60.
"Industrial Democracy." By Sidney and Beatrice Webb. 929 pages ..... $4.00.
"Where We Stand." By J. Spargo ..... 5c.
"Woman." By Martha Moore Avery ..... 10c.

A large stock of Labor Literature in English and German always on hand. Catalogues free.

SOCIALIST LITERATURE CO., 184 William St., New York.

Just Received from England

A large importation of

"CAPITAL," by Karl Marx.

Only authorized edition, translated by Samuel Moore and Edward Aveling, and edited by Frederick Engels.

CONTENTS:

Prefaces by the author and editor.
Part I.—Commodities and Money.
II.—The Transformation of Money into Capital.
III.—The Production of Absolute Surplus Value.
IV.—Production of Relative Surplus Value.
V.—Production of Absolute and of Relative Surplus Value.
VI.—Wages.
VII.—The Accumulation of Capital.
VIII.—The So-called Primitive Accumulation.

Library Edition, cloth, $2.50, postpaid.

SOCIALIST LITERATURE CO., 184 William Street, N. Y.

CO-OPERATE IN PUBLISHING SOCIALIST BOOKS

That is the way to get them at actual cost. $10 each or $2 a month five months makes you joint owner in our business with the right to buy books at the prices in second column, postage included. Others have to pay prices in first column.

The American Farmer. Simons. Cloth	.50	.30
Collectivism. Vandervelde. Cloth	.50	.30
Collectivism. Vandervelde. Paper	.25	.10
Liebknecht's Life of Marx. Cloth	.50	.30
Last Days of Enslin Commonwealth. Cloth	.50	.30
Engels' Origin of the Family. Cloth	1.50	.90
Love's Coming-of-Age. Edward Carpenter	1.00	.60
Socialism Utopian and Scientific. Engels. Cloth	.30	.18
Socialism Utopian and Scientific. Engels. Paper	.10	.05
Socialism. Wilhelm Liebknecht. Paper	.10	.05
Life of Engels. Kautsky. Paper	.10	.05
Pocket Library of Socialism. Per copy	.05	.02
Pocket Library of Socialism. Per 100, assorted	2.25	1.00
International Socialist Review. Per copy	.10	.05
International Socialist Review. Per year	1.00	.50

Our co-operative plan is fully explained in a booklet entitled "How Socialist Literature is Published," mailed free on application. Locals Chicago, Philadelphia, Erie, Minneapolis, Davenport and many others are already with us.

CHARLES H. KERR & CO. (Co-operative)
56 Fifth Avenue, CHICAGO.

L'UNION DES TRAVAILLEURS,

730 Washington Ave., Charleroi, Pa.

A weekly advocate of Trade Unionism and Socialism. Should be read by every French speaking worker.

Send for sample copies.

Subscription, $1.00 per year.

SUBSCRIBE FOR
THE REFERENDUM,
the only English Socialist paper in Minnesota. Published at Faribault, Rice County. Fearless, bright, spicy; 75 cents a year, in advance; 35 cents for 6 months. By E. B. FORD.

Have you seen a copy of the
THE COMING NATION?
Opinions from the comrades:
"It's a strong, attractive, and instructive number."
"The best propaganda paper in the field."
"Its cartoons and pictures are drawing cards. People will read pictures where they won't read rhetoric."
Send your name on a postal card and receive three sample copies free.
FRED D. WARREN, Editor.
E. N. RICHARDSON, Assistant Editor.
THE COMING NATION, Rich Hill, Mo.

LABOR ORGANIZATIONS

Standing advertisements of Trade Unions and other Societies will be inserted under this heading at the rate of $1 per line per annum.

CIGARMAKERS' PROGRESSIVE INTERNATIONAL UNION No. 90. Office and Employment Bureau: 64 East 4th Street.—District I. (Bohemian), 331 East 71st Street, every Saturday at 8 p. m.—District II. (German), at 50 E. First street, meets every Saturday at 8 p. m.—District III. meets at the Clubhouse, 206 East 86th Street, every Saturday at 7:30 p. m.—District IV. meets at 342 West 42d Street, every Saturday at 8 p. m.—District V. meets at 547 East 157th Street, every Saturday at 8 p. m.—District VII. meets every Saturday evening at 1432 Second Avenue.—The Board of Supervisors meets every Tuesday at Faulhaber's Hall, 1551 Second Avenue, at 8 p. m.

LOCAL 476, MACHINE WOOD WORKERS AND TURNERS. United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners of America. Meets every Tuesday at Bohemia Hall, 323 East Seventy-third street, New York. Financial Secretary, W. E. P. Schwartz, 27 Fulton avenue, Astoria, L. I.; Recording Secretary, Chas. Flescler, 522 East Eighty-fifth street, New York.

Workmen' Children Death Benefit Fund of the United States of America.
The address of the Financial Secretary of the Executive Committee is: HENRY HAUPT, Bible House, Astor Place, N. Y. City, N. [illegible] ounciations of Arbeiter-Kranken- und Sterbe-Kassenfuer die Ver. Staaten von Amerika.

WORKMEN'S
Sick and Death Benefit Fund of the United States of America.
The above society was founded in the year 1884 by workingmen imbued with the spirit of solidarity and Socialist thought. Its numerical strength (at present composed of 130 local branches with 23,000 male and 4,500 female members) is rapidly increasing among workingmen who believe in the principles of the modern labor movement. Workingmen between 18 and 45 years of age may be admitted to membership in any of the branches upon payment of an initiation fee of $4.00 for the first class and $3.00 for the second class. Members belonging to the first class are entitled to a sick benefit of $5.00 for 40 weeks and of $4.50 for another 40 weeks, whether continuous or with interruption. Members belonging to the second class receive under the same circumstances and length of time $6.00 and $3.00 respectively. A burial-benefit of $250.00 is guaranteed for every member, and the wives and unmarried daughters of members between 18 and 45 years of age may be admitted to the third class upon payment of an initiation fee of $1.00. Monthly assessments are levied for the three different classes of members of $1, 75 cents and 22 cents respectively. Members at large are not accepted, but all candidates have to join existing branches. In cities and towns where no branch exists, a new branch can be formed by 15 workingmen in good health, and men adhering to the above principles are invited to do so.
Address all communications to HENRY STAHL, Financial Secretary, 1-3 Third avenue, Room 2, New York City.

WORKMEN'S
Furniture Fire Insurance
Organized 1872. Membership 14,000.
Principal Organization, New York and Vicinity.
OFFICE: 64 East Fourth street. Office hours, daily, except Sundays and holidays, from 1 to 2 o'clock p. m.
BRANCHES: Yonkers, Troy, Binghamton, Gloversville, Elmira, Albany, Oneida, N. Y.
Paterson, Newark, Elizabeth, South River, Passaic and Trenton, N. J.
Adams, Boston, Holyoke, Springfield, Mass.
New Haven, Waterbury, Meriden, Hartford, and Bridgeport, Conn.
Philadelphia, Pittsburg, Allegheny, Lazern, Altoona, Scranton, Pa.
Chicago, Ill.
Cleveland, O.
San Francisco, Cal.
For addresses of the Branch bookkeepers, see "Vorwaerts." 222

CARL SAHM CLUB (MUSICIANS' UNION. Meets first and third Tuesday of the month, 10 a. m., at Club House, 206 E. Eighty-sixth street. Secretary, H. Frey, 171 E. Eighty-seventh street.

PENNSYLVANIA.
WILKES-BARRE—Local Luzerne Co., Pa., Socialist Party meets in Central Labor Union Hall, 16 S. Grant street, on the second and fourth Sundays of each month, at 2:30 p. m. All Socialists are invited.

Have Your Printing Done at Union Printers.
F. W. HEISS, 69 GOLD ST. New York City.
Use this Label. Union Printer
Lowest Prices. — Mail Orders Promptly Attended To.

HUNGRY WOMEN CLUBBED BY "REFORMER" LOW'S POLICE.

It is easy for comfortable aristocrats to moralize, after a good dinner, over the wickedness of the poor women of New York who have been "rioting" against the extortions of the Meat Trust. It is easy for them mildly to condemn the greed of the Trust, and loudly to demand the enforcement of "Law and Order" against the working people who—only half fed the year round—are now driven to desperation by the crime of the Trust.

A capitalist "reform" Mayor, who could weep crocodile tears last fall over the woes of the people of the East Side, can think of nothing better to do now than to send out platoons of police with orders to break up meetings, insult and club men, women, and children, and drag them before the Magistrates for fine and imprisonment.

Does Mayor Low know, do his well-fed Magistrates know what a ten-dollar fine means to a woman who has to live on three dollars a week, or to a man who has to support his family, when he can find work, on seven or eight dollars a week? The Mayor and the Magistrates neither know nor care. They do not trouble themselves about these things.

How would it be if a workingman were Mayor of New York? Suppose Ben Hanford had been elected last fall. Do you suppose, you working people who are now "rioting," that he would have sent police to club you for meeting to discuss your troubles.

Socialist city councils in France tax the capitalists to get funds for feeding the school-children of the working class and for helping workingmen on strike. How would it be to have a Socialist administration in this city now?

And the national Administration, what is it doing?

It is making a great pretense of prosecuting the Meat Trust, to be sure.

You remember that two months ago this same administration at Washington was talking loud about how it would prosecute the Northern Securities Company—the Morgan-Hill-Harriman Railway Trust. Now read in the daily papers of last Wednesday, this little dispatch:

"CHICAGO May 20.—An amicable understanding is about to be effected between the Federal Government at Washington and the Northern Securities Company. For some time friends of J. P. Morgan and J. J. Hill have been importuning President Roosevelt to have the suit against the company called off. From one of the stockholders of the Northern Securities Company it has been learned that assurances have been given by the Federal officials that, if certain modifications in the company's financial construction be made, the Attorney General would consider withdrawing the Government's suit against the company."

Meanwhile, Morgan has absorbed the Louisville road, Hill has got the Eastern Minnesota, and Harriman is hobnobbing with Republican politicians at grand banquets.

Do you think the strenuous Roosevelt will do any more against the Meat Trust than he has against the Railway Trust?

Roosevelt knows the game of "bluff."

But you, workingmen, can "call" the bluff. Your winning card can be played on November 4. It will be a straight Socialist ballot—in this state, the straight ballot of the Social Democratic Party, bearing the emblem of the Arm and Torch. Be ready to play it.

IN ESSEX COUNTY UNIONS.

After a bitter contest, lasting nine weeks, the Journeymen Plumbers have won a decided victory over the Master Plumbers' Association. The eight-hour day has been established at a standard wage of $3.50; all overtime, including Sundays and holidays, to be paid for at the rate of double time.

The fight between the plumbers and their economic masters, the bosses, developed a peculiar state of affairs. One of the leading lights in the Master Plumbers' Association is a Republican Assemblymanenamed Smith, and he it was who led the movement against granting any concessions whatever to the striking journeymen. It appears that Smith had a contract on hand, which he was under bonds to have completed upon a certain date and he boasted that he would demonstrate to organized Labor that they were not essential to the completion of the contract. He advertised for s cabs, but with no result. The buildings were too well picketed. As a last resort, the Master Plumbers decided to help him save his bond, and they all donned overalls and went to work. The jour- It we lay back and smiled; they had Lo al ...ship ties work before and they ...the enthusiasm soon wears off. Their surmises were correct, for the Master Plumbers were glad to concede everything asked, and are now taking Turkish baths and trying to get their joints straightened out. When Assemblyman Smith bobs up again for political honors the working class of Newark will see to it that he is properly retired to private life, where he may practise his union-smashing tactics as a private citizen and not as a public official.

A committee representing the proposed Socialist Daily and The Worker recently appeared before the District Council of the United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners of North America. They were most cordially received, and after explaining the object of the papers they were granted credentials by the Council authorizing them to appear before the various locals in Essex, Union, Hudson, and Passaic Counties. The Brotherhood of Carpenters is one of the most progressive bodies in the labor movement in New Jersey. Their membership in the vicinity of Newark is over two thousand.

Quite a shock was delivered to the pure and simplers at the Essex Trades Council last Friday evening. It happened under the head of reports of delegates, and George Wright, delegate from Feeders and Assistant Pressmen's Union No. 19, was the man who delivered the solar plexus. Mr. Wright stated that at his union's regular meeting in May they voted unanimously to devote two hours to the discussion of Labor Politics at their regular quarterly meeting which will be held on Tuesday, June 3, and that they had also extended an invitation to the representatives of the Socialist Daily and The Worker to be present. They will also serve a collation after the discussion is over. This is a typical American organization containing about one hundred members, ranging from twenty-one to thirty years of age. They are both fearless and aggressive. Their delegates to the central body, George Wright and Frank Ostentag, are both brainy men who are always to be found upon the side of enlightenment and progress. The time has at last arrived in Essex County when the fossilized misfits of the labor movement are compelled to take to the high weeds and tall timbers in order to make way for the young blood that will navigate the ship of Trade Unionism from out of the stagnant pools of pure and simpledom into the clear and crystal waters of political action.

Jewelers' Union No. 2 has succeeded in organizing a number of shops during the past few months and is in good condition. At the last meeting Comrade E. C. Wind was elected delegate to the national convention of the union, which will be held in Boston in the second week of July.

Delegate Fred McIntosh of Printing Pressmen's Union No. 31 is back in town after a two week's trip through Massachusetts. He reports that the trade unions in Fall River, Worcester, Brockton, Lowell, and Boston, all of which cities he visited, are rapidly becoming honeycombed with Socialism.

TREMAINE.

WORKMEN'S CIRCLE ENTERS ITS PROTEST.

The convention of the Workmen's Circle (Arbeiter Ring) held on May 9 to 11 at 414 Grand street, unanimously adopted the following resolution:

"The Workmen's Circle, in its second annual convention assembled, calls the attention of the workingmen to the scandalous suppression of the freedom of the press and of speech, started recently by the ruling capitalist class of this republic. The old champion for the rights of the workers according to his honest convictions, John Most, was, at his advanced age, again buried alive for one year for reprinting an article which, fifty years ago, was published in this country unobjected to by the authorities.

"A peaceful assemblage of workingmen was raided by a band of armed detectives, who disturbed the meeting and again arrested the same Mr. Most for the ridiculous charge of having applauded a harmless remark made by his friend, McQueen, who in turn was also brutally dragged to prison for the same remark.

"While we absolutely do not indorse the teachings of Anarchism, we call, however, the attention of the workers to the fact that these scandalous Russian measures are not aimed in this free republic mainly against that harmless part of Anarchism, which forms its special feature, but against that which Anarchism shares in common with the whole labor movement, viz: the development of the sentiment of resistance among the working class against the shameless robberies of concentrated capital.

"Most of those reactionists who recently raised the blood-thirsty cry for drastic measures against the so-called Anarchists are, in fact, ignorant of the very foundations of Anarchist teaching. What they understand by the word Anarchism is the awakening of dissatisfaction of the working class with the present conditions and the development of the social revolutionary power of that class which disturbs the sweet rest of the parasitic class in its enjoyment in luxury of the accumulated wealth produced by the working masses.

"We deplore that many workers fail to realize that by their partaking in the outcries against so-called anarchy, they naively allow themselves to be dragged with their worst enemies in the attempt to stamp dissatisfaction with existing inequalities a crime.

"We, therefore, call upon our brother workingmen not to be frightened by these drastic measures, but on the contrary to draw from the same a stronger conviction of the necessity for our class to obtain the ruling power the sooner in this country in order to put an end to the capitalist rule which is tending to turn this republic into a Russian tyranny."

THE JEWELRY WORKERS.

The watchmakers of the city of New York will hold a meeting at Odd Fellows' Hall, 67 St. Marks place, Friday, May 23, at 8 p. m., under the auspices of the International Jewelry Workers' Union. Prominent speakers will address the meeting. All journeymen watchmakers are invited.

International Jewelry Workers' Union No. 1 shows practical appreciation of the value of the labor press and of The Worker in particular. The union has elected a standing Committee on Press Agitation, of which E. Koeppicus is chairman. This committee has printed blank subscription lists, headed by the following paragraph, addressed to members:

"As the public press is the most efficient means to spread and teach knowledge and to educate the masses of the people and as the working class of New York has no daily paper devoted exclusively to the interests of organized labor, efforts have been made and funds raised to issue such a daily newspaper. But as funds are small and as advertisements cannot be counted on very much in the beginning, it is necessary first to secure a number of subscribers. Now there is a weekly paper existing here in New York called The Worker, devoted to the laboring class entirely, which is to be converted into a daily paper. In order to secure a sufficient number of subscribers, our union recommends to all members to subscribe to this weekly paper for a year. It costs 40 cents a year (union rate) and will be sent to your address weekly."

These lists are circulated in each shop, under the direction of the Press Committee, and a large number of subscriptions have already been secured.

IS IT A VICTORY?

By No Means Certain That Passage of Eight-Hour Bill Is Secure.

The House of Representatives on Monday passed without division the bill providing for the eight-hour day on all Government work performed by private contractors. It provides that all contracts must contain an eight-hour day provision.

The New York "Times" special dispatch says:

"It has already become evident that the Republicans are determined to appear as the friends of labor in the coming Congressional campaign. * * *

"Some of the Democrats, therefore, are predicting that the Senate will see to it that radical labor legislation does not get through at this session. They recall the fate of the Ray Anti-Trust bill, which was passed by the House on the eve of the campaign of 1900, so that the party might be in a good position on the trust question, but which never was heard of afterward and simply slumbered to death."

It is very good politics for the House to pass a labor bill, with the quiet understanding that it is to die in the Senate. The Republican Congressmen can all "point with pride" to their vote on the eight-hour bill—and the capitalist contractors lose nothing by it.

THE AGE IS WEARY OF WEAK CAMP FOLLOWERS.

The world has been slow to accord labor its due. For thousands of years privilege, plunder and organized robbery, called warfare, were honorable pursuits, and the man who toiled in order that all might have was despised. In the flight of time it was but yesterday that the labor of the earth was driven with the lash, and either sold on the block like cattle, or tied by an invisible chain to the soil, and was forbidden to even wander outside the parish. In the yesterday of time even the employers of labor were despised. The men who conducted great industries, who carried on commerce, who practised the useful arts, the men who made the earth habitable, were looked down upon by a class which, while possessing the pride of the eagle, had only the character of the vulture. This century brought upon its wings higher ideas, more of truth and more of common sense, and it announced to mankind that he is honorable who creates; that he should be despised who can only consume; that he is a benefactor of the race who gives it an additional thought, an additional flower, an additional loaf of bread, an additional comfort; and that he is a curse to his kind who tramples down what others build, or, without compensation, devours what others create. The century brought us still greater things. It tore away parish boundaries, it cut the chains of the serf, it burned the auction block where the laborer and his children were sold; and it brought ideas; it taught the laboring man to extend his hand to his fellow laborer. . . . The men of the past did their duty. Shall we do ours? They were asked to face death. You may have to face calumny and obloquy. No man ever served his country without being villified. For all who make a profit out of injustice will be your enemies. But as sure as the heavens are high and justice is eternal will you triumph in the end. The age is weary of polite and weak camp followers, weary of servility, weary of cringed necks and knees bent of corruption. This age is calling for men of strong character, calling for men of high purpose, calling for men who have conclusions of their own and who have the courage to act on them. . . . The tendency has been toward a colorless and negative dilettanteism, having the comeliness of the pharisee, with the greed of the wolf, and drawing all its inspirations from the altar of concentrated and corrupting wealth. . . . If our institutions are to undergo great change it is vital that men of America, and not money, should direct the change. Money may be a blessing as a servant, but it is a curse as a master. Money has neither soul nor sentiment. It does not know the meaning of liberty and it sneers at the rights of man. It never bled on the battlefield in time of war and it never voluntarily sought the public treasury in time of peace. Money possesses none of the virtues.—John P. Altgeld.

ARE THERE NO CLASSES?

Compare the life of the man who works in the gas works, breathing impure air, covered with grime, or working all day in darkness feeding the furnaces, an employment of the most melancholy, hopeless sort, compare such an existence, we say, with that led by the capitalist who draws his share of the profits. His hands are lily-white, his days are spent in travel, in eating fine dinners, and when he does work it is only to scheme to make more dollars out of the toil of others.—Social Democratic Herald.

ESSEX COUNTY NOMINATES.

Clear Platform Adopted and Strong Ticket Nominated.

The mass convention of the Socialist Party of Essex County, N. J., held at Newark last Saturday, was one of the most harmonious and successful ever held.

The convention was called to order by Organizer Neben and organized with Comrade Billings as Chairman and Comrade Wind as Secretary.

After the committees had been elected and had retired to do their work, Comrade Butscher addressed the convention on the plans for the Socialist Daily, and was well received.

The Platform Committee reported the following, which was adopted:

The Platform

"Workingmen of America, unite! You have nothing to lose but your chains; you have the world to gain.

"We, the Socialist Party of Essex County, in convention assembled, proclaim our allegiance to the Socialist Party of America. We affirm our unfaltering adherence to the principles and the program of International Socialism.

"In presenting our candidates for office to the working-class voters of Essex County we base our appeal upon the following declaration as our platform of principles:

"1. Labor produces all wealth.

"2. Under the presnt economic and political conditions, Labor's share in the wealth it creates is merely a mean and uncertain subsistence.

"3. So long as the present organization of industry remains, the capitalists will monopolize the machine of production and will appropriate to themselves, through the wage system, the wealth created by the working class.

"4. This appropriation of Labor's wealth is so complete that it enables the capitalist to live in luxury and idleness.

"5. As a necessary consequence of this exploitation of the laborer by the capitalist, this expropriation of all property out of the hands of toilers into the private ownership of the holders of capital, there is an inevitable war between the interests of the working class on the one hand and the interests of the capitalist class on the other.

"6. This class struggle between the wealth-makers and the wealth-takers will endure as long as our present system of production for profit continues.

"7. In this conflict between the workers and the capitalists, Labor is comparatively disarmed on the economic side, all the instruments of producing and distributing wealth being owned and controlled by the holders of capital.

"8. There is only one weapon by which the producing class (which includes the farmers) can successfully oppose the capitalist class, and that is the ballot.

"9. This fact demands, as an inevitable conclusion, the organization of the producing class into a political party that shall be, everywhere and always, distinct from and opposed to every party not founded entirely upon the interest of the producing class. The Socialist Party is organized to meet this demand and is therefore the party of the producing class.

"10. The Socialist Party, when in office, will always and everywhere, until the present system of wage slavery is utterly abolished, make the answer to this question its guiding rule of conduct:

"'Will this legislation advance the material interests of the working class and aid the workers in the class struggle against capitalism?'

"If it does, the Socialist Party is for it; if not, the Socialist Party is absolutely opposed to it.

"11. In accordance with this principle, the Socialist Party pledges itself to conduct all the affairs of Essex County in such a manner as to promote the interests of the working class.

"12. Imperative mandate.—All members of the Socialist Party elected to public office shall render an account of their acts to a general meeting of tehir constituents once every month, an dshall promptly resign their office if so demanded by a majority vote of the party members in the county.

"13. In conclusion, we appeal to all workingmen to study the principles of Socialism, to vote with and for their class at all elections, until they overthrow the power of private capitalism, abolish industrial classes in society, and inaugurate the Co-operative Commonwealth, based upon this fundamental principle of justice: To every worker the full product of his labor."

The Ticket.

Upon this platform the following nominations were made:

For Congress—James E. Billings.

For State Senator—George Nelson Wright.

For Assemblymen—Emil Zimmerman, Edward Hedden, Peter J. Lindstroem, Hugo Wester, William Gessler, Percy Goebel, Ernest Heppner, Charles Miller, Henry Miller, Henry Urbach, and Edward Ban.

For Trustee of City Home—Edward C. Wind.

For Sheriff—Jules Magnette.

For Mayor of Newark—Fred McIntosh.

The Political County Committee was authorized to fill out the ticket.

BERGEN COUNTY.

The convention of the Socialist Party will be held in Fink's Hall, Ridgewood, Monday evening, May 26, for the nomination of congressional and county ticket. Every comrade in Bergen County should be present.

——While everyone is talking about the Beef Trust, all Socialists should get in their work by distributing our new leaflet on the subject.

Mosquito Bites

By PETER E. BURROWES

From the Martinique disaster there are a few lessons to be learned which be that runs may read.

Lesson One.—A race of men not in chains, or under the gilded bonds and apprehensions of private property, would have never waited there to be destroyed; since it was known to observers and freely spoken of among the well informed inhabitants of the island that this destruction was coming. So that science labors and is able to shed light upon the world in vain while private property holds the light houses.

Lesson Two.—A volcano suggests eruptions besides its own. The Republican caucus now at the head of our affairs at Washington has presented some of its astonished admirers with such a monotonous dead level of cynical consent to all successful evils that it would have been very difficult indeed for its Senators to go before the people again with the old raiment of godliness and humanity still on them. But here is a calamity, one of the very few quite outside the profit system, not likely to recur, befallen a people practically out of the world long ago, no danger of seriously helping the lower class. This is just the occasion for a great national philanthropic gush.

Lesson Three.—Another obvious advantage, gentlemen, of exhibiting your benevolence at this time is to be found in the fact that our manifest destiny abroad among our new labor subjects and the requirements of capital at home among our old labor subjects will for a long time to come deprive us of another spectaclar opportunity of showing ourselves with our sister of mercy frills on. While we are collecting that money and calling off the amounts with a very loud European voice, let the master-at-arms rivet the chains upon the miners. The world will be indulgent to a nation's cruelty that can subscribe like this.

Lesson Four.—Also be it remembered that here we have no great political or commercial rival in pyrotechnic benevolence. England, which once played off its splendid humanities in West Indian waters, is not liberating any more slaves, and generally she has other fish to fry; she therefore leaves our hands of mercy free. What poor politicians we would be if we stepped not in! Remember, we have a future in those waters; already we are buying up islands there. Every dollar given by Congress at this time spells not only charity, but U. S., and us too, in a very near future. Charity uncovers a multitude of dollars. And lastly, forget it not, there will be fine official pickings in this charitable eruption.

Lesson Five.—Armed greed and ignorance have ever been the world's calamity. Think of the government of St. Pierre having no better use for its pre-eminent brains and its bayonets than to form a cordon around the doomed city to prevent the citizens from escaping! To be sure, they knew so much more than the mere citizens; they knew the danger was over just a moment before it came, and so drove the people back into that terrible fire. So do the soldiers of the Czar drive back the "beloved" subjects into the factories. So will courts and legal physical forces drive back the famished peoples into the clutches of the trusts. Why were the St. Pierre victims driven back? Well, the mesdames and messieurs had fled to the mountains. Some must remain to look after the property.

Some simple souls connected with the labor unions are talking about the President accepting the post of arbitrator between the coal slaves and their owners. President Roosevelt has not so slickly played the game of rough rider to take a jump of this height that has nothing on the other side. Hanna has done all the party can do in the matter. He has made friends with the miners and made time for the masters. The period of truce procured, while Hanna cackled and cluttered over the egg of arbitration, was worth millions to the mine-owners. What more could the President do for them? We must have slaves if we are to be a great nation.

Three stages of the cold-water cure have developed in connection with our acquisition of the Philippine Islanders: First, the cold-water cure itself as applied by those "hot ones," our gallant officers in command; second, the cold-water cure as applied to those "hot ones" themselves from the moral elevators of the Democratic Party; third, the cold-water editorials poured upon the moral product of said elevators from higher elevators that are more moral. But the streams have become so mixed after a few day's yap that the Senators have all forgotten where they were at.

Now what's the matter with the cold-water cure? What if it is the first time in the history of missionary enterprise when a Christian nation applied the regenerating rite of baptism where it will do the most good—that is, inside? Internal baptism seems all right for an internal religion. Moreover, as a mode of having your own way with the untutored savage, it seems smooth outside; if the victim survives, it leaves no scars for criticism's caustic pen. And the victim is also so gratifyingly degraded! No despiser of humanity would wish to see the poor live carcass of a slave in a plight more abject. From a conqueror's point of view, I repeat, What is the matter with the cold-water cure?

Certainly no sinner could be so unreasonable as to refuse his patronage and membership to the church of Dr. Hillis of Brooklyn. Prayers less likely to disturb the even tenor of our daily vices are offered to no other audiences in Brooklyn. Concerning the recent tragedy in the Ford family, the moral of which would come of itself to every resident, this is what he prayed: "Save our young men from too great devotion to bodily exercises (hem) and to a love of books and pictures, and a life of literary pleasure." It is almost a pity God did not hear him; if it were only to find out what sort of a man has succeeded Beecher.

Like a giant with the colic, we see Columbia University writhing and roaring and filling the air with the malevolent speeches and flying whiskers of two eminent professors who have attained the heights of literary leisure. Is this the salvation our dear Hillis prays for? If so, 'twere better he kept his breath to cool his porridge. "Save 'our' boys to love of pictures," too, that love of pictures which keeps the revenue department in a sweat about copies and originals; that love which runs away with an Englishman's Gainsborough and rewards the thief who copies the thief by stealing for him a Mexican's Murillo. There is no grace, wisdom, or understanding in this prayer beyond what is contained in the pronoun "our." "Our" boys, save them from too much exercise. Does he mean the miners? No. This is the same "our" which usually precedes "country," "flag," "army," "finances," "trade." This man is not praying for your boys, workingmen. He very much hates Socialism; so fortunate are we in our enemies.

"Standing firm" is the newspaper terms applied to the present "millionaire strike against the miners." Standing firm, as the infection in a plague-smitten building stands, by closing its deadly pestilential self, from the touch of all fresh air of equity, all light of inquiry. With the strenuousness of the steel trap, having only teeth closed and no mechanism for opening, whether closed on a human life or a rat life. Let us get some other word for this sort of "firm" standing.

It is a pity that Croker was a Democrat. If he were to die to-morrow he would die possessed of the choicest assortment of enemies a man could desire. (Wish we could say the same of his friends.) Nixon has resigned; the disintegration of the hucksters' American Democracy is coming nearer. Are we ready to be the other of the only two possible parties—capitalism and Socialism?

Among the many luxuries and new sensations which art and nature are kept busy providing for the holders of the millions stolen from labor, volcanic eruptions with a margin of safety are in season just now. The Goulds are off in their beautiful steam yacht to view the sights at Martinique.

Poor Chicago, the metropolis of pork, the elysian field of the packer, the corn cornerer, and the beef truster, is too impecunious to support its public library. There seems to be some difference between the millionaire germ which fattens on pork and the germ which fattens on steel. The former favors the great university in the brief moments of its mad giving, while the latter leans to libraries. Certainly the pork business would not be improved by public libraries, whereas "industrials" are always likely to increase in value if the workmen can be shepherded into the mechanical reading of classical economics and properly selected literature. The two great dangers in both cases are thinking and Socialism.

Any person desirous of not knowing who are the builders of the state, how they do it, or what it is they have been building when the job is finished, should read R. Watson Gilder's new hand-organ poem, "The Builders of the State," delivered to the Society of Colonial Wars of New Jersey. It is surprising how much virtue American society can stand, in its verses, without wincing. For instance, we are here poetically informed that the builder of the state is not he whose power is rooted in wrong and intrenched in gold; or he whose eternal light is quenched; neither is it he who strikes conscience from the throne; nor they who sow in hate and blood, tears and cries, and lawless power; nor they who wear virtue as a mask. Who else isn't it, Mr. Gilder? You give us one little affirmative. It is the man with clean hands who does it. This is the same man, or old needle, that we have been hunting in the haystack of history for centuries. Suppose you are wrong, Mr. Gilder. Suppose, to drop a metaphor and come down to fact, that it is the man who must constantly wash his hands in good strong soap and water before he eats or sleeps, who builds the state. Suppose it is simply the laboring class; what, then, becomes of your cloud-capped couplets, your high sounding negatives and your society of colonial war fakirs, together with their very latest hand-organ poet?

A NEW LEAFLET.

What Do You Think of the Beef Trust?

10 copies ..... 5 cents.
50 copies ..... 15 cents.
100 copies ..... 25 cents.
1,000 copies ..... $2.00.
Postpaid, cash with order.

SOCIALIST LITERATURE CO., 184 William St., New York.

HERE AND THERE.

Now that the warm weather is approaching, the New York capitalist dailies will again begin to dole out "charity" in the shape of free ice, free excursions, and aid for sick babies—all for the benefit of the "deserving poor." Of course, this will not prevent them from telling you in another part of their papers that "the unprecedented prosperity is continuing."

"It has been calculated that the salary and expense bills of the travelling salesmen of the United States in a single year would more than pay off the entire national debt." The debt amounts to $1,107,711,257, or $14.52 per capita. What an argument in favor of the socialization of industry! These salesmen could be put to work and help in the creation of wealth, thus lightening the burdens of others; instead of running around the country and benefiting absolutely nobody. Thus over one billion dollars more of wealth could be distributed among the wage workers. Oh, but this would destroy competition, "the life of all trade." Yes, no doubt it would. If the people as a whole do not decide to change from capitalism to Socialism, the trusts will destroy competition anyhow, but with the difference that they will pocket the extra billion as profits. Which way would you rather have it, Mr. Workingman? Give your answer at the ballot box next November!

Whenever I read accounts of strikes, lockouts, or boycotts in the capitalist newspapers and see the wilful misrepresentation of the workingmen's position on every occasion, it always seems to me that the workers ought to learn that they cannot expect to get justice from the very source they are fighting—the capitalist class. These newspapers will always remain true to their capitalist class, who own and control them. Let the members of the trade unions realize this fact and lend a hand to the efforts of New York's Socialists to starting a daily newspaper which will be a newspaper of, for and by the working class.

The following conversation between a father and son, which I read in a weekly paper, explains the usefulness of lawyers under our present social system:

"Who makes the laws, father?"

"Our legislators, my son."

"Well, then, what are lawyers for?"

"They are created, my boy, to explain to legislators the meaning of their laws."

As the elections for members of Congress are to take place this November it would probably be well to remind the workingmen of the country that they will have a chance to have themselves represented by members of their own class if they vote for the Socialist Party. Just at present there are no workingmen in our congress, nor is there anybody there that represents the working class. This is as much the fault of the workers as it is the good luck of the capitalists. The workingmen have simply been fooled into voting against themselves. They can turn the tables at the next election, and thereby show the capitalists that they are beginning to see their own interests.

There were nearly 100,000 votes cast for Debs and Harriman, the Socialist candidates in the national election of 1900. Now if each of these voters were to contribute $1 towards the Socialist Daily Fund we could start the paper at once. This is a reminder that in another part of this paper will be found a blank pledge where any amount may be subscribed for this purpose. Don't lay your Worker aside until you attend to this. Of course it is not absolutely necessary that you pledge just one dollar; you may pledge as much as you like. Remember that some will not pledge anything, therefore YOU should do all the more.

Some Socialists are fond of quoting the statement of the "Encyclopedia Brittanica" that, "The ethics of Socialism are identical with the ethics of Christianity." From the same source I have gleaned the following choice conglomeration of nonsense: "Anarchism is the name adopted by a phase of revolutionary Socialism," and also this: "The Anarchist contingent from Chicago had an opportunity of advocating the putting into practise Karl Marx' theory of the use of force, which force was dynamite." This proves conclusively that we should be careful whom we quote. Here is a great reference work actually muddling the people's minds, instead of educating them, as it claims is its mission.

CHAS. UFERT.

PURSE AND SOUL.

The soul doth sow and the purse doth reap;
The purse doth feast while the soul doth weep—
O, such is the world's strange way.
Power and honor the purse doth bring—
Worship of trader and priest and king
While souls are as cheap as clay.

O, ne'er of souls will the world be void—
What matters, then, if some be destroyed,
In sweatshop or sunless mine?
A soul doth every rogue possess,
While the purse a favored few doth bless
So men worship at its shrine.

O, such is the bitter way of life;
A way of unending toil and strife—
Our heritage but a curse.
So must it be till the knell we toll
Of senseless greed that gives to the soul
Less honor than to the purse.

—Hebe, in The Comrade.

——Bishop Potter of New York has been "lauding labor" in a recent speech at Yale University. This probably portends that the "Civic Federation" is preparing to play another dirty trick on the fool laborers similiar to that perpetrated on the Boston teamsters a few weeks ago.—Chicago Socialist.

FOR NEW YORK STATE.

Every Socialist or Sympathizer in the State is Called Upon to Help in the Work of Propaganda.

To the Workingmen of the State of New York.

The Social Democratic Party of the state of New York asks your contribution for propaganda of Socialism. That is provided you approve of Socialism, or the public ownership and operation of all industries for the benefit of all. For it is the supreme object of the Social Democratic Party to secure to every workingman the full fruit of his labor. If you believe that a workingman must surrender the biggest part of his product to Rockefellers, Morgans, Vanderbilts, Goulds, Schwabs, and a swarm of smaller parasites, that they may bestow it on the pauperized nobility of Europe or on the owner of Monte Carlo—why you should support the Republican or Democratic party, for both these parties represent and are owned by the capitalist class. The Social Democratic Party alone stands for the interests of the working class.

Workingmen,—You have heard before our appeals, but you continued to stand in overwhelming numbers by the old parties. With what result? Republican and Democratic legislatures, Republican and Democratic judges are now, more than ever, the tools of your exploiters. Was there a crime perpetrated by the capitalists in which they were not protected by the very legislators and judges for whom you, workingmen, voted? Was there a right which you demanded that was not refused to you by the very men whom you have elected? Why continue to work against your own interests? The Social Democratic Party is your own party. It consists of workingmen and has no other supporters. Help it to spread Socialism. Help us to send out Socialist agitators. Help us to distribute Socialist literature. The dissemination of Socialist ideas means the final triumph of Socialism, and your own economic emancipation. Remember, he helps doubly who helps promptly.

Send contributions to Emil Neppel, treasurer, S. D. P. State Committee, 288 W. 142d street, New York.

New York State Committee, S. D. P.
LEONARD D. ABBOTT,
Secretary.

TRADE UNION DISPUTES.

Commenting upon troubles in the local labor movement, involving questions of jurisdiction and "trade autonomy" and decisions of the Executive Council of the American Federation of Labor thereon, the "New Era," the organ of the central body of Philadelphia, says:

"Some people cannot tell the difference between a purpose and the means that are used to accomplish a purpose. Infantile minds often mistake the means for the end.

"The purpose of the labor movement is to free the working class from its subjection to the capitalist class. The means used to attain that end are labor organizations and the ballot. No labor organization has been divinely commissioned to act as the saviour of the working class. Experience has taught the workers that it saves energy and strengthens their unions to combine them in a federation.

"As a general proposition it is a good thing to have all the trade unions affiliated with a national organization. But like all general propositions, there are exceptions to it. There is no good reason why a central union of a city should exclude any bona fide trade union or labor organization because it is not affiliated with the A. F. of L. The Knights of Labor in the heyday of their power foolishly and arrogantly said it was the only genuine labor organization in existence. To make good its claim it used all its power to disrupt the trade unions.

"Disruption followed this act of fratricidal frenzy. All the independent organizations combined against it, the dissatisfied districts and locals subordinate to it withdrew, and the unorganized workingmen disgusted with its arrogance fought it as their worst enemy.

"Narrow-minded men with elastic consciences should not be permitted to duplicate the foolish and criminal acts of the Knights of Labor. The true interests of the working people of Philadelphia are identical. In the continual battle we are waging for our rights there are higher things to contend for than organizers' salaries, dues to national organizations and the patching of fences of so-called labor leaders. The essential thing for the success of the local labor movement is unity of action. We cannot have united action if we dogmatically say that the only bona fide unions are those affiliated with the A. F. of L.

"The A. F. of L. is only a means to an end. If it were possible for it to secure all its program calls for, the final act in the transformation of society would still have to be performed. While we are compelled to strike and boycott to get a little larger share of the wealth we produce, we should not allow any organization or its officers to sow dissensions in Philadelphia by forming dual unions to force old associations to affiliate with national bodies.

"If national organizations are built on true lines, local unions will be attracted to them. Consolidation is the order of the day. Independent labor organizations will naturally gravitate to their national bodies when they find it to their interest to join them. Meanwhile no ambitious self-seekers should be allowed to use national federations or city central bodies as clubs to beat unions to submit to the arrogant dictation of trade union politicians.

"There is no labor organization in Philadelphia that has a quarrel with a national trade union. Several trade unions have reasons to question the advisability of attaching themselves to the national unions of their trades. Their doubts as to the advisability of joining national unions is not a good reason to debar them from membership in an organization calling itself the Central Labor Union of Philadelphia.

TO SUBSCRIBERS.
The date on which your subscription expires will be found on the wrapper.
The paper will be stopped on that day unless previously renewed.
No bills or receipts sent to individual subscribers.

The Worker.

AGENTS, ATTENTION!
Agents sending in subscriptions without remittance must state distinctly how long they are to run.
Agents are personally charged and held responsible for unpaid subscriptions sent in by them.
Only duly elected and approved agents acknowledged.

VOL. XII.—NO. 9. NEW YORK, JUNE 1, 1902. PRICE 2 CENTS.

FOR THE DAILY.

Publishing Association Meets Next Monday.

Report of the Progress Made Toward Raising of the Fifty Thousand Dollar Fund.

A meeting of the Workingmen's Co-operative Publishing Association will be held at the Labor Lyceum, 64 East Fourth street, Monday, June 2, at 8 p. m. The order of business is as follows:

Reading of minutes and correspondence;
Admission of members and propositions for membership;
Reports of the Secretary and the Board of Management;
Consideration of name and date of issuance of the Daily;
Recommendation to increase Pledge Committee from membership of the Association;
Report of Entertainment Committee and of other committees;
Unfinished business;
New business.

All members should be present promptly at 8 o'clock. Comrades desiring to join the Association should also be present in person.

The conditions of membership in the W. C. P. A. are: First, the applicant must be a member in good standing of the Socialist Party—called in New York the Social Democratic Party; second, he (or she) must buy one share of stock for $5—$1 to be paid on the proposition of his name, $1 on his admission, and the rest within one year.

The proposed meeting of Brooklyn comrades, originally intended to be held on June 1, has been postponed by decision of the Kings County Committee. Notice will be given.

Amounts Pledged.

Following is a statement of amounts pledged for the Socialist Daily Fund up to May 26

Previously acknowledged	$5,633.50
H. L. Duff, City	5.00
J. J. Nolte, City	6.50
Dr. A. Fischer, Newark	12.00
S. Elges, City	10.00
Mark A. Schwartz, City	25.00
N. I. Stone, City	10.00
Wm. Brager, City	5.00
Marcus Bros., Westchester	10.00
Edward Rau, Newark	5.00
Louis Mandelkern, City	5.00
Phineas Rotrosen, City	3.00
Felix Brosch, City	5.00
B. Yedlin, City	10.00
Total	$5,745.00
Less pledge of G. Leist, cancelled and new pledge of $10 substituted	2.00
Total	$5,743.00

Cash Receipts.

The following amounts have been received on pledges and donations:

PAID ON PLEDGES.

John Kerrigan, Dallas, Tex.	$5.00
Fred. Bennetts, Yonkers, N. Y.	1.00
S. Kahn, City	1.00
Wm. Brager, City	.50
Dr. I. Ingermann, City	5.00
N. I. Stone, City	1.00
F. Brunhöber, City	1.00
H. L. Duffe, City	2.00
A. Kopt, City	.25
Job Harriman, City	2.00
Wm. Bernauer, City	2.00
A. Chorosh, City	5.00
W. C. Burgwald, City	.25
J. A. Goldstein, City	4.00
J. R. Anderson, City	1.00
Angus McDonald, Brooklyn	1.00
John Spengler, Brooklyn	1.00
Emil Boehme, Brooklyn	3.00
Ludwig Zakshewsky, Brooklyn	1.00
W. C. Hager, Brooklyn	1.00
Geo. Holderman, City	1.00
Marcus Bros., Westchester, N. Y.	1.00
Phineas Rotrosen, City	.50
Louis Mandelkern, City	2.00
Sam G. Raines, City	1.00
Felix Brosch, City	1.00
O. Abbott, City	5.00
Hugo Pick, City	2.00
R. Bock, City	2.00
John Wilkins, City	6.00
W. E. White, New Haven, Conn.	10.00
P. Werner, City	1.00
G. Steinhardt, City	3.00
E. Abbott, City	5.00
Wm. Meyer, City	1.20
H. F. Meyer, City	1.50
J. J. Flick, City	.50
Albert Delz, City	1.00
M. Princer, City	1.50
H. Katzenstein, City	1.00
O. Wegener, City	1.00
B. Merkent, City	2.00
Dr. A. Fischer, Newark	1.00

CASH DONATIONS.

A. A., City	$1.00
Chas. Gunner, Yonkers	1.00
J. Welling, Brooklyn	1.00
Franz Gerau Maennerchor, Brooklyn, collection	1.70
J. Fred. Rinzel, Danbury, Conn.	5.00
Chas. Ludwig, Newark, N. J.	2.00
Previously acknowledged	$1,121.43
Total cash	$1,222.33

The acknowledgement made last week of $50 paid on pledge by the Arbeiter Maennerchor should have been credited to the Arbeiter Maennerchor of New Haven, Conn.

Comrade Butscher states that the following comrades cannot be located at the addresses that he has on his books and he desires that they will inform him of the full and correct addresses: Harry Kravetz, Ludlow street; S. Solomon, 53 First street; A. Siff; Ab. Fischman, 329 E. Third street; C. Hitzel; Christian Brunn, 759 Lexington avenue; C. M. Armas, 881 Eighth avenue.

Notice to Contributors.

Pledges should be drawn and checks and money orders made payable to the Socialist Daily Finance Committee. All communications should be addressed to the newly elected Agent of the Committee, Wm. Butscher, Labor Lyceum, 64 E. Fourth street, New York.

The Worker will contain, each week, a list of contributions received up to Monday preceding the date of issue.

If any contribution sent is not promptly acknowledged the sender should at once inform the Committee, that the matter may be investigated and set right.

Those who have made pledges should remember to send in the monthly instalments promptly, saving the trouble and expense of notifying them. Let each one feel his personal responsibility for the work we have undertaken and his power to hasten the coming of the Socialist Daily.

PLEDGE.

To Job Harriman, Dr. Julius Halpern and Leonard D. Abbott,
Socialist Daily Finance Committee:

I hereby pledge myself to contribute for the publication of an English Socialist Daily the sum of $..... to be paid in monthly installments of $.....

Name .....

Address .....

FOR NEW YORK STATE.

Every Socialist or Sympathizer in the State is Called Upon to Help in the Work of Propaganda.

To the Workingmen of the State of New York.

The Social Democratic Party of the state of New York asks your contribution for propaganda of Socialism. That is provided you approve of Socialism, or the public ownership and operation of all industries for the benefit of all. For it is the supreme object of the Social Democratic Party to secure to every workingman the full fruit of his labor. If you believe that a workingman must surrender the biggest part of his product to Rockefellers, Morgans, Vanderbilts, Goulds, Schwabs, and a swarm of smaller parasites, that they may bestow it on the pauperized nobility of Europe or on the owner of Monte Carlo—why you should support the Republican or Democratic party, for both these parties represent and are owned by the capitalist class. The Social Democratic Party alone stands for the interests of the working class.

Workingmen:—You have heard before our appeals, but you continued to stand in overwhelming numbers by the old parties. With what result? Republican and Democratic legislatures. Republican and Democratic judges are now, more than ever, the tools of your exploiters. Was there a crime perpetrated by the capitalists in which they were not protected by the very legislators and judges for whom you, workingmen, voted? Was there a right which you demanded that was not refused to you by the very men whom you have elected? Why continue to work against your own interests? The Social Democratic Party is your own party. It consists of workingmen and has no other supporters. Help it to spread Socialism. Help us to send out Socialist agitators. Help us to distribute Socialist literature. The dissemination of Socialist ideas means the final triumph of Socialism, and your own economic emancipation. Remember, he helps doubly who helps promptly.

Send contributions to Emil Neppel, treasurer, S. D. P. State Committee, 288 W. 142d street, New York.

New York State Committee, S. D. P.
LEONARD D. ABBOTT,
Secretary.

Previously acknowledged $25.15
List 1,420, Wm. Brandt, Brokolyn. 2.00
List 939, J. Smith, Rochester 1.00
List 1,514, J. Lutz, Brooklyn .... .25
List 1,633, O. Sloobs, Brooklyn .. .25
$28.65

THE A B C OF SOCIALISM.

Dr. Titus spoke to a full house last Sunday night. Two professors in the university were present, one with his entire class. The A B C of Socialism was considered thus: (A) What Socialism professes to get, wealth for all. (B) What Socialism proposes to do, take possession of the means of wealth production. (C) How Socialism proposes to do it, viz., by a political party of the wealth producers. The speaker claimed the last point was the important one at present, that is the How To Do It:—The Socialist, Seattle, Wash.

——Mr. Quay wants to admit Christianized Chinamen, but the evidence seems to show that Mr. Quay is not an expert witness.—The Commoner.

"COTTON IS KING."

Two Southern Senators on Imperialism.

"Two Souls with but a Single Thought, Two Hearts That Beat as One"—Republican and Democrat Agree.

Here is something for the Anti-Imperialists to think about. What is more to the point, it is something for workingmen to think about. It is a New York "Evening Post" report of May 22:

"Senator Pritchard of North Carolina and Senator McLaurin of South Carolina, at the meeting of the American Asiatic Association last night, talked on the Philippine question. They did not declare that the Filipinos were unfit for independence, but based their opposition to surrender of the islands on a simple argument that the United States needs somebody to whom to sell its cotton. Senator Pritchard said:

Republican Pritchard.

"'The great problem with which the Southern people have had to deal in the past has been as to where we could find an adequate market for raw cotton and the cotton fabrics of the South; and I want to say to you tonight that the only hope for the Southern people in that respect is in the Orient, and, inasmuch as the Philippine Islands lie in the pathway of the Orient, I cannot for the life of me understand how any Southern man who has the good of his country at heart can for one moment contemplate the idea of relinquishing our jurisdiction over those islands.

"'Once we restore law and order in those islands, as we certainly will do, in my opinion the trade with the outside world with the islands will treble, and the Southern people will be the chief beneficiaries thereof.'

And Democrat McLaurin.

"Senator McLaurin said that he represented the most intensely Southern state holding interests in common with New York. He said:

"'Before the war the South was almost purely an agricultural country. Now the manufacturer is coming down to the cotton fields, and the planter puts his surplus money in mill stock. At no distant date the American planter and cotton manufacturer will control the market for American cotton, and through that control dictate the terms upon which the world shall be clothed with this great American product.

"'The United States has learned of late years that it needs an ever widening and expanding market for its products, and it has found an important foreign outlet among the teeming millions of the Orient. The Asiatic market has come into the field as one of the most prominent factors in the modern commercial problem. And yet, just as we were profitably developing this great market in China, a movement was instituted which, if successful, would have neutralized all the good results already obtained and paralyzed our trade with China. I refer of course to the recent attempt to enact a very drastic measure of Chinese exclusion.'"

These Southern gentlemen are frank, at least. They indulge in no cant about "manifest destiny" and "our duty to civilize the Filipinos and give them good government," that is poured forth in such sickening doses by Northern politicians. They come out very frankly and say they want to keep the Philippines in order to sell their cotton goods at a better price.

Those Common Interests.

When Senator McLaurin speaks of South Carolina as "the most intensely Southern state having interests in common with New York," he refers to the fact, noted elsewhere in these columns, that Southern cotton mills are owned jointly by Southern gentlemen and Northern capitalists. The New York interests he talks of are those of Wall Street and he hits the mark when he puts the interests of Wall Street and of the Southern exploiters of child labor in opposition to those of the workingmen of the country, who have been begging for protection from the competition of Chinese cheap labor.

"People" and "Hands."

McLaurin is a Democrat, but Pritchard is a Republican; they are good friends, though, and quite agree in supporting the interests of the capitalist class. When Pritchard speaks of "the only hope for the Southern people," he is referring to the planters and manufacturers only, the owners of land and mills, not to the working class of the South, whose poverty forces their six-year-old children into the cotton-mill hell. These are not people, in his estimation; they are "hands."

If all the capitalist politicians were as straightforward as McLaurin and Pritchard, the Republicans would nominate Hanna in 1904, the Democrats would endorse him, and we would have a clear field for the battle between capitalism and Socialism.

PASSAIC COUNTY.

The county convention of the Socialist Party of Passaic County will be held in the Second Ward Labor Lyceum, 98-100 Sheridan avenue, Paterson, on Tuesday evening, June 3, for the purpose of nominating candidates for the General Assembly, and to transact any other business that the convention may consider necessary.

WM. GLANZ, Organizer.

NEW YORK STATE.

Preparing for Convention and State Campaign.

Vote Being Taken on Time and Place of Convention—Organizer Spring's Work—Vail Will Tour the State.

At the last meeting of the New York State Committee, held in the Labor Lyceum on May 20, a considerable amount of correspondence was received from locals throughout the state regarding the matter of the coming state convention. The time most generally favored is the Fourth of July. There is some difference of opinion in regard to the best city in which to hold the convention, but the majority of party members in the state at large seem to favor Syracuse. Local Rochester presented a lengthy argument in favor of Syracuse, and Syracuse was nominated by Rome, Gloversville, Long Island City, Queens County, and Peekskill; Locals Troy and Ticonderoga nominated Albany; Local Utica nominated Buffalo; and New Rochelle and Richmond Borough nominated New York. A referendum is now being taken which will settle the question of both time and place of the convention.

Organizer Spring's tour in the state has been accompanied by most encouraging results. Comrade Spring has now visited almost all the locals in the state, and during the past two weeks has been conducting a vigorous campaign of agitation and organization in Buffalo, which is especially receptive to Socialist doctrine just at present, on account of Bishop Quigley's attack upon the Socialist movement. Comrade Spring expects to be back in New York in time for the convention, and will visit before his return Watertown, Rochester, and Syracuse.

Local Rome reports that a large public meeting was recently held in that town, with William T. Brown of Rochester as the principal speaker.

During the month of June, Charles H. Vail will tour the state. Meetings for him have already been arranged as follows: June 1, Staten Island; June 2, Long Island City; June 3, Mount Vernon; June 4, Yonkers; June 5, Dobbs Ferry; June 6, New Rochelle; June 7, Peekskill.

It is desired to make arrangements, if possible, so that at least one agitator can be kept always on the road, in addition to Comrade Spring. If a sufficient number of locals undertake to have public meetings monthly or oftener this can be done at very low expense to those locals, railway fares being kept to the minimum in proportion to the number of meetings. Every local in the state should take steps to this end and communicate with the State Secretary, Leonard D. Abbott, 64 E. Fourth street, New York, at once, in order that vigorous agitation may be carried on.

AGAINST MEAT TRUST.

Mass Meeting in Cooper Union Applauds Socialist Speakers and Resolutions.

The following resolutions were adopted at a mass meeting in Cooper Union, Tuesday night, held for the purpose of discussing the Meat Trust:

"Whereas, Recent events show that the meat supply of this country is now absolutely controlled by a small group of capitalists, who are rapidly extending their power over the whole of the people's food, who care nothing for the people's wants and sufferings, but whose sole motive is the desire of wealth and unbridled power;

"Whereas, The Food Trust is but a part of the great system of organized capitalism, by which the workers of field and factory and mine, whose collective labor creates all wealth, are robbed and enslaved;

"Whereas, The farmers and retail merchants of the middle class have proven powerless to combat organized Capitalism, and have even become the tools of the monopolists for the exploitation of the workers; and

"Whereas, Neither the promises of Republican and Democratic politicians nor the blind outbursts of popular indignation described as "meat riots" have availed anything against the power of capital; be it

"Resolved, That we, the Social Democratic Party workingmen of New York City, denounce the capitalist parties now and for years past in control of the powers of government for their complicity in this enslavement of the working class;

"We declare that the only hope for freedom is in the ownership and democratic control of the means by which the food, clothing, fuel, and all other things necessary to the people's life are produced;

"And we call upon our fellow workingmen, of whatever past political affiliation, to join us in effecting this end through the method of independent political action of the working class, as set forth in the platform of the Social Democratic Party."

William Butscher acted as chairman and the speakers were Algernon Lee, C. L. Furman, Courtenay Lemon, and Benjamin Hanford.

Having been hastily arranged and imperfectly advertised, the meeting was far from being as large as it should have been; but as the audience was chiefly composed of strangers and showed ready appreciation of the Socialist position as explained, it undoubtedly had a good effect.

IN PENNSYLVANIA.

Active Socialist Agitation Throughout the State.

Vail's Tour Has Had Good Results—Collins at Pittsburg and Spargo in Strike Field.

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., May 26.—Comrade Vail's report of work in the state is most gratifying. Four new locals have been chartered—Spring Forge with 21 members, Mauch Chunk with 19, Cokeville with 19, and Black Lick with 24; and a number of new members have been added to locals visited.

Mauch Chunk has arranged a return visit for Vail on May 29; on May 30 and 31 he will again be in the mine region.

The county convention of the Socialist Party of Philadelphia is called for Saturday, May 31, 8 p. m., at the Labor Lyceum, Sixth and Brown streets.

Comrade Collins reports good meetings at Pittsburg and East Pittsburg. During June he will visit all locals in the state. Locals are therefore requested to be prepared to receive him on short notice.

John Spargo, at Wilkes Barre, today begins a week's trip in the coal field.

Several locals are in process of organization in Crawford, Potter, and Allegheny counties.

Wilkes Barre hopes to have Father McGrady of Kentucky as the orator on Labor Day. Williamsport and Carbondale are trying to arrange a date for him about the same time.

Our speakers in the strike district say: "The miners hear with eagerness and enthusiasm of the necessity of the class struggle being carried to the political arena, where the workers are strong and the capitalists weak. As to audiences, an audience can be secured almost anywhere or time, with an hour's notice."

The min owners' wail is: "We might as well give up our mines as surrender to the strikers." That is just what we want, gentlemen, and will have, as soon as the miners and others stop voting for "you gentlemen" and vote for themselves and their class. Capitalism will never rest until it has forced the toilers to choose between actual slavery without hope of better conditions—or a war of organized, universal rebellion against the institution of capitalism.

The capitalists have decided that this war has to take place, and they have chosen the state of Pennsylvania as their first battle-ground. If our workers do not yet realize this fact, it will not be long before it is forced upon them. Here comes in the great need of Socialist speakers and organizers ot pave the way for political action and direct the thoughts of organized labor in Pennsylvania to the only goal in sight.

We have secured the services of a number of able comrades and it is of the utmost importance that we should be able to cover this territory.

The State Committee acknowledges with thanks the following contributions to the cause of the striking miners and the spread of Socialism among them: Local Philadelphia, Nineteenth and Twentieth Ward Club, $5; J. G. Sewell, Louisville, Ky., $5; S. Innes Forbes, Philadelphia, $5. Send all contributions to J. Edelman, Treasurer, 807 W. Cambria street, Philadelphia.

J. MAHLON BARNES,
State Secretary.
CAROLINE PEMBERTON,
Assistant Secretary.

"COMPANY OUGHT TO BE INDICTED."

Once in a long while even a City Magistrate tells the truth.

We quote from a New York daily of May 22:

"Magistrate Flammer, in the Harlem Court to-day, denounced the Metropolitan Street Railway Company, when Herman von Praag, twenty-two years old, of No. 2026 Seventh avenue, a motorman of that company, whose car ran over and killed a little girl last Saturday evening, was arraigned on a charge of homicide. 'The whole company ought to be indicted for maintaining a public nuisance,' the Magistrate said. 'All it cares for is making time, and does not care if its cars kill people.'"

And then—Oh, lame and impotent conclusion!—Magistrate Flammer held Von Praag in $2,000 bail for trial.

Of course, it would never do for a City Magistrate, holding his office from one of the two old parties, to both of which the Metropolitan contributes liberally, to initiate proceedings to indict the Metropolitan officers even for maintaining a nuisance, to say nothing of homicide.

Poor Von Praag, workingman, who had to "make time" or lose his job, will probably have to "do time" for the killing of the little girl. It is the Wisker story over again. The capitalists apply the orthodox doctrine of vicarious atonement—they make the wage-workers atone for the crimes by which they profit. And the capitalist judges play the double part of Judas and Pilate in the drama.

How would it be to try Socialist workingmen as judges?

——Send 10 cents to this office for ten copies of this paper. Hand them out to your friends. Ask them to read the paper carefully. That is the way to make votes for Socialism. THIS MEANS YOU.

SLAYTON ELECTED.

Socialist Enters City Council of New Castle.

Carries Fifth Ward by Plurality of 89—Election Marks an Epoch in Socialist Movement of Pennsylvania.

NEW CASTLE, Pa., May 27.—In the special election held in the Fifth Ward of this city to-day, the candidate of the Socialist Party for member of the Select Council, John W. Slayton, was elected, after a hotly-contested campaign, by a plurality of 89 votes.

The result announced in the foregoing dispatch has been confidently hoped for by the Socialists and secretly dreaded by the old-party politicians from the beginning of the fight.

In the state and county election last November the Socialist Party cast 312 votes in New Castle. At the mayoralty election in February, with Comrade Slayton as our candidate, we increased the vote to 563, and carried the Fifth Ward, in which Comrade Slayton lives, by a narrow margin. Tuesday's election seals the doom of the Republican politicians in that ward, formerly a stronghold of their party.

J. W. Slayton is an active member of the Brotherhood of Carpenters, having been a member of the National Executive Board of the organization and its delegate in the last convention of the American Federation of Labor. For some years past he has been equally active in the Socialist Party without neglecting his duty as a union man. He is a man of great energy, well informed, and distinguished by cool, sound judgment. His election to the Select Council will mark an epoch in the Socialist movement, not of New Castle alone, but of the whole state.

CHASE SPEAKING TO TRADE UNIONS.

Addressed Twenty-nine Unions in Illinois During Six Weeks' Tour—Pleased with Results.

John C. Chase, having completed a six-weeks tour of Illinois, lecturing chiefly to trade unions, under the direction of the National Committee of the Socialist Party, has made a report of his work to National Secretary Greenbaum.

During the six weeks, Comrade Chase has addressed twenty-nine unions and eight party locals. Of the unions, fifteen were miners' organizations and six were local central bodies; the others included cigarmakers, bakers, carpenters, coopers, and metal polishers. The towns visited were: Davenport, Ia., and Galesburg, Canton, Kewanee, Rockford, Bloomington, Dixon, Sterling, Toluca, Colchester, Girard, Nilwood, Witt, Taylorville, Sorrento, Decatur, Hillary, Peru, Carbon Hill, Alsip, Chicago Heights, Elgin, Morris, Spring Valley, Lincoln, and Troy, Ill., closing with a week in Chicago. He travelled about 2,500 miles on the tour, which was financially self-sustaining.

Comrade Chase says, in closing his report: "These details will show that I have been able to get into places and before audiences that could have been reached in no other way. It will be understood of course by those who read this report that my mission has been to propagate the class struggle and the principles of Socialism among the working class, through the organizations of labor, and I can say to them that the work in that direction has been successful, more successful than I had anticipated on entering this field of work.

"Those who are familiar with the history of Socialism in this country know how hard it has been to bring the trade unionists to the belief that Socialism is the only solution of the labor problem and the only means of emancipation of the working class from wage slavery. In fact the apparently slow progress in that direction has led many Socialists to become sceptical and to assume a wrong position upon this subject. I am one of those who have always believed that the Socialists are obliged to have organized labor with them before they can win, and that organized labor will have to accept Socialism before it can win anything of a permant nature for the working class.

"I am more convinced of this now than ever before, and I believe that the trade unions of this country are fast coming to see this, and are fast awakening to the fact that they are helpless in their struggle without Socialism. In nearly every instance where I have spoken to organized labor, I have found a large attendance and I have yet to find a single instance where the most radical Socialist position was not heartily applauded and accepted by an overwhelming majority. * * * It has been my endeavor to show to those with whom I have come in contact the limitations of the trade union movement in its contest with organized capital, at the same time giving them credit for what they have done, and I have had no difficulty in making it plain to them that there is no possible permanent improvement to be gained under capitalism and that the ultimate aim of trade unionism in itself is the abolition of the wage system. Once this position is made clear to and accepted by them, there is no difficulty in convincing them that political action on independent working-class lines is absolutely necessary. Once they are brought to unoerstand their class position and realize that they are engaged in a class struggle, the more readily do they see the need of an uncompromising Socialist political party. From my experience of the past six weeks in the propaganda of this doctrine to organized labor, I am led to believe that the trade unions of this country are ript for change.

"If Socialists do their duty and handle this question in the future as evolution demands that it should be handled, Socialism will grow as it has never grown heretofore in America. Organized labor is in itself an evidence of the class struggle; organized labor is, as a whole, honest and seeking as best it knows how the emancipation of the working class. Our duty as Socialists is to bring them into the class struggle politically, and it is my opinion that the Labor Lecture Bureau, by sending out speakers who have had experience in the trade union movement, and have from that experience gained a knowledge of the limitations of the power of trade unions and can impart that knowledge to trade unionists in a convincing manner, will be a big factor in accomplishing this result."

BUY UNION LABEL GOODS.

THE COAL MINERS' STRIKE.

The Strikers Have No Faith in Mark Hanna and the Civic Federation.

Socialist Speakers Are Warmly Welcomed, Writes John Spargo—Men Realize the Gravity of the Struggle They Are In.

WILKES BARRE, Pa., May 27.—A stranger arriving in Wilkes Barre might well be pardoned for imagining that the crowds of idle and listless men in the streets meant nothing more than a general holiday, or, at worst, an ordinary, "suspension" at the mines. There is no trouble, no sign of violence or turmoil thus far, and little enough to indicate the terrible struggle that is being waged between the handful of "operators," backed by all the powers of government in this corporation-ridden Republican-bossed state, and the great army of workers who are the true "operators" in the mines. But in spite of the quiet there is a great deal of anxiety and uneasiness and everybody seems to feel instinctively that there is trouble ahead. The anthracite coal region is a great social volcano, threatening terrible eruption. Perhaps that is what the old miner with the gray pow meant, when he said to me yesterday, "There's worse'n hell coming."

At present there are about 147,000 men on the strike roll, and, in addition, some 50,000 railway workers are idle in consequence of the stoppage of the mines. As I have stated, the men are quiet enough—everything here is as quiet as a Quaker meeting when the "spirit moves" nobody to speak—but nevertheless the Republican governor has already sworn in an army of special armed coal police, ready to murder, at the first opportunity. Nobody doubts that the governor, and the operators whose pliant tool he is, are anxious for some trifling disturbance to take place in order to afford pretext for calling upon the militia. Our friends, Bliss, Bolton Hall, Casson, et al., should try the experiment here in the strike region now of proclaiming there is no class struggle. Even the unblushing politicians of the "machine" here cannot muster courage enough for THAT!

Strikers' Demands.

The demands of the men are:

An eight-hour day for those who work by the day; an increase of 5 per cent. in the contract price for the men who are paid by the ton; a more equitable and just method of weighing the coal; and recognition of the union.

It is difficult indeed to secure any very accurate information upon the question of wages here. The miners who are paid by the ton have to provide powder, oil, tools, etc., and pay their own laborers, and naturally their earnings vary considerably. Miners employed by the day are paid, so several have told me, from $2 to $2.50 per day—little enough in all conscience when one remembers the nature of their work! The "United Mine Workers' Journal" quotes figures from the Pennsylvania Bureau of Statistics which show that last year the miners worked, on an average, 194 days each, earning an average of $1.28 a day, which "means that their daily wage averaged a trifle over 79 cents a day for a year." The same report shows that, in the ten years preceding 1900, 4,374 miners lost their lives in the mines of the state by accident, and over 10,000 were injured in the same period. Each year one man in every 200 is killed.

Bosses' Frauds.

I have spoken with a good many miners, as well as with some of the leaders, and they all seem to attach less importance to the demand for an increase of wages than to some of the other demands, notably the demands for an eight-hour day and a more equitable system of coal weighing. At present there is no system of "weighing" so far as the miner is concerned. He has to fill the wagons so that they bear a six-inch "topping" at the landing place. Now a man might so fill the waggon, but in the course of transit some loss will occur and then he falls under the ban of "Docking Boss," and finds that he is "docked" as much as half a waggon for the loss. The usual practise is, therefore, to put from nine to twelve inches of "topping" to guard against this, but still the power of the Docking Boss inflicts much hardship upon the men. So they want a definite system of weighing the coal and to appoint their own check-weighers in the same way as the British miners, and, I believe, the soft coal miners of this country already do.

They Distrust the Civic Federation.

To-day there is some talk about the possibility of a settlement through Mark Hanna's Civic Federation. President Mitchell has been for a day or two in Chicago, and it is understood that an effort will be made to put the machinery of the National Civic Federation into operation at once. Several prominent citizens assured me today that there were grounds for believing that a settlement will be arrived at before the critical period is reached. A concensus of opinion seems to place the date of the crisis at June 2. But the miners themselves do not trust the Civic Federation. At a meeting here last night which was attended by about seven hundred men, mostly miners, I incidentally referred to the Federation, in the course of my speech, and the hisses and groans with which the reference was greeted were significant. One of the men came to me after the meeting and expressed the opinion that they would have been in a better position to-day had their leaders not dallied with the Civic Federation, but instead had allowed them to come out on April 1, as originally intended.

Socialists Welcomed.

Opinion as to the outcome of the strike is about evenly divided. Some few are confident of success; others are equally confident of failure. But the great bulk of the men only answer: "We don't know how 'twill end; strikes are hard to win now." So the listen eagerly to our speakers and applaud their strongest utterances. I read to the meeting last night the telegram of our national committee to President Mitchell, and drove home the lesson that only the Socialist Party of all the political parties had openly declared in their favor. They were alike bitter in their denunciations of the old parties and [illegible] praise of the stand [illegible] Party. Several men from [illegible] miners organization came asking [illegible] to visit their districts, which is, alas! for this visit, impossible. Indeed they are clamoring for our speakers, and it would be a good thing if we could put a dozen men in the field here with literature. Agitation among the Poles and the Lithuanians is especially necessary.

The comrades of Local Luzerne County are an active and enthusiastic body of men. Their influence in the various labor unions is evidently very great and they do not forget to drive home the lessons of the strike. I do not know many of the comrades by name as yet, and may in my haste to do justice to some, overlook others equally worthy. That, however, will be understood—and forgiven—best by the comrades themselves. But a word of praise is certainly due to Comrades Roth, Lavin, Schade, Quinn, Durand, Gulach, Harris, Bicker, Kuttenberger, Jones, and others for their quiet but persistent work. The prospects for Socialism were never, I am told, so bright in Pennsylvania as they are today, and I can well believe it. The workers are sick of the two old parties and turn readily to our propaganda. There is a great field—white unto harvest, but, alas! "the laborers are few."

J. SPARGO.

LEAFLET FOR STRIKING MINERS.

Wm. P. Nichols of Vineland, N. J., and a New York comrade have asked that the articles in last week's paper, "Why We Are with the Striking Coal Miners" and "One More Big Profit Murder" be printed in leaflet form, and have each offered a dollar to pay for sending a thousand copies into the strike field subject to the direction of the Pennsylvania State Committee.

The leaflet is now being printed. It will be sold at the price of $1 a thousand.

We hope a few more readers will follow the example. Send a dollar and we will send a thousand copies of the leaflet to Pennsylvania, or, if you prefer, to your own locality. Send at once. Socialist literature will be welcomed by the strikers.

The Worker.

AN ORGAN OF THE SOCIALIST PARTY

(Known in New York State as the Social Democratic Party.)

PUBLISHED WEEKLY

AT 184 WILLIAM STREET, NEW YORK,

By the Socialistic Co-operative Publishing Association.

P. O. BOX 1512.

Telephone Call: 302 John.

TERMS TO SUBSCRIBERS.

Invariably in advance.

One year	50c.
Six months	25c.
Single copies	2c.

Bundle rates:

Less than 100 copies, per copy	1c.
100 copies	75c.
200 copies	$1.20
500 copies or more, per hundred	50c.

Weekly Bundles:

5 per week, one year	$1.75
10 per week, one year	3.50
25 per week, one year	7.50
50 per week, one year	12.50

Address all business communications, and make money orders, checks and drafts payable to The Worker.

Receipts are never sent to individual subscribers. Acknowledgment is made by changing the number on the wrapper, the week following receipt of money.

Communications concerning the editorial department of the paper should be addressed to the Editor.

All communications should be written with ink and on one side of the paper; words should not be abbreviated; every letter should bear the writer's name and address; and matter should be put in as few words as possible, consistently with clearness. Communications which do not comply with these requirements are likely to be disregarded.

Entered as second-class matter at the New York, N. Y., Post Office on April 6, 1891.

UNION PRINTED

SOCIALIST VOTE IN THE UNITED STATES.

In 1888 (Presidential)	2,068
In 1890	13,331
In 1892 (Presidential)	21,157
In 1894	33,133
In 1896 (Presidential)	36,564
In 1898:
S. L. P.	82,204
S. D. P.	9,545
In 1900 (Presidential):
S. D. P.	96,918
S. L. P.	33,450

THE PARTY'S EMBLEM.

Andrew Carnegie says that giving away money is an art. So it is, in his case, much like that of the proverbial optimist.

Do you think a Beef Trust Mayor is any better than an Ice Trust Mayor? Why not try a Labor Mayor—a workingman on a working-class platform, such as the Social Democratic Party nominates?

A half-loaf is better than no bread, it is said. True; but it is foolish to beg for the half-loaf and get only the crumbs, when you have a right to the whole loaf and have the power to take it when you will.

It is better to vote for what you want and not get it than to vote for what you don't want and get it. For many years the workingmen of America have been voting for what they didn't want—and getting it, "in the neck."

The Presbyterian Assembly has, after much debating, passed a resolution against infant damnation. We should like to be assured that the measure is retroactive, even though ex post facto law is ruled out by the United States Constitution; but anyhow, we congratulate the Assembly on being more progressive than the Massachusetts Legislature, which defeated a bill against that form of infant damnation known as night work for children in factories.

The capitalists' ideal workingman is the one who thinks always of his master's interests, who hopes to save himself from pauperism by working at a killing pace and meekly submitting to every insult and imposition. In a word, the capitalists' ideal workingman is that of a good slave. The workingmen's ideal workingman is the one who thinks always of the interests of his class and of his own interests as one of his class, who is willing to risk individual hardship in defense of his self-respect and his class interest. In a word, the workingmen's ideal workingman is that of a manly comrade.

The workingmen of New York, many of whom actively supported the "reform" ticket last fall, are finding out that they made a serious mistake. The Low police are ordered to club workingmen and working women just as were the Van Wyck police. Committees have to be sent to Low just as they had to be sent to Van Wyck, and with just the same result—abundance of vague promises, every one of which is broken at the first opportunity. Well, there will be a work-class candidate in the field again next year, on the ticket of the Soical Democratic Party. Then the mistake can be set right.

THE ECONOMICS AND ETHICS OF OVERWORK.

The capitalist papers are much incensed over the attempts of labor organizations to limit, in some degree, at least, the present tendency to speeding up and excessive driving in all branches of industry. The New York "Times," in a recent editorial attack upon the trade unions, says:

"Less fault is found with high wages, however, than with the inroads of the British idea of 'ca' canny—the restrictions placed by the unions upon the disposition of industrious men to do a full day's work. The standard is below that which an ambitious man would fix for himself, and he can raise it only when his pay is increased. For example, if a man rece iving $4.50 per day does as much work as one receiving $5, he is reprimanded by his associates, and if he persists he is reported to his union for discipline. In that case his only alternative is to restrict his output or seek some other occupation. An instance was lately brought to the attention of a New York contractor of an industrious German who thought that by working hard he would secure the good will of his employer and in slack times would be kept at work. The German was being paid at the rate of $4 a day, and he performed as much work as the $5 a day men. He was reported to the labor union, and because he would not cease his industry he was fined $100, and finally was expelled from the union because he was too industrious."

This sort of action upon the part of the unions moves the "Times" to deep indignation—not on behalf of the boss, of course, but solely in the interest of the individual "sucker" who was willing to work himself to death and set a killing pace for his fellows in order to "stand in" with the boss and hold onto his job when other men should be laid off.

Some trade unionists are inclined to deny the fact of the policy here alleged or to apologize for it or explain it awny. They should do neither. Under existing conditions it is a necessary policy and a right one and no apology for it is in order.

The capitalist would like to have every workmen consider himself as an entirely separate and independent individual, with no interests to look after but his own. The capitalist does not believe in competition in his own class—though he sometimes pretends to; but he does heartily believe in unrestrained competition among wage-workers. He thinks indiscriminate price-cutting by capitalists is immoral. He calls it "cut-throat competition." He says there is a certain "legitimate" margin of profit which every capitalist is morally bound to exact for himself or else go out of business, because the capitalist who sells below the price at which a "fair" profit can be made forces other capitalists to do the same thing and thus undermines the whole sacred edifice of profitable business. But for his workmen he has quite a different code of morals. He does not recognize any such thing as common interests or mutual obligations among workingmen. He says it is the duty of every workingman—his duty to the boss, who "gives him employment"—to work as well as he can, as hard as he can, as fast as he can, as long as he can each day, and as steadily as he can the year round, so long as the boss will let him work at all; to put his wife and little children in the shop, if the boss wants them, and let them work as well as they can, as hard as they can, as fast as they can, and as long and steadily as they can, until the boss lays them off; and when he finds that he and his wife and children have worked themselves out of a job, to be content, to respect "law and order," buckle his belt tighter if his stomach feels hollow, to vote an old-party ticket without asking why, and to wait patiently till the boss is ready to give him permission to work again. This, from the capitalist point of view, is the whole duty of workingmen.

Workingmen, having learned by long and painful experience, take another view of the matter. We know that for our class competition is not a theory, but a hard fact, with which we have to deal and against which we have to struggle. We know that, in consequence of this fact, the interests of workingmen are indissolubly linked together and that, in all matters of wages, hours of labor, amount and speed of work, and the like, the actions of each workingman react upon the conditions of all his fellows and must therefore be regulated by the common will for the common good.

If each man were working for himself—if, as in the old times, each owned his separate tools or means of production and, consequently, owned his whole individual product—then no one would care how fast or hard or long another worked; each would be conceded the right to decide for himself, because each would bear the consequences of his own action. If, again—as in the Socialist Commonwealth that is to come—all owned the means of production in common and each was guaranteed the opportunity to work and to receive the full value of the product of his labor, we could, on the whole, safely leave such matters to the individual will, because any man who was foolish enough to overwork would injure only himself and would soon learn better.

But we are not living under the old individual system nor under the future Socialist system; we are living under capitalism—selling our labor-power to capitalists, who pay us wages fixed in the process of competition as the price of any other commodity is fixed and who keep for themselves all the surplus product of our labor.

Under this system we have to beg for permission to work even on such terms. Any man who works faster than his fellows directly injures them and, in the long run, does not even benefit himself; the advantage of his folly goes to the employer. Knowing that "hard times" are coming when a part of the men will be laid off, stimulated by the fear of unemployment for himself and the desire, as we have said, to "stand in" with the boss, the short-sightedly selfish workman applies himself to his task with feverish energy, strives to do the utmost possible amount of work without demanding higher pay, and thus creates every day a greater profit for his master.

But in so doing he sets a pace for his fellows which they must try to keep up or risk unemployment for themselves. If they succeed, the result is: First, that they enormously increase the profits of the master class without increasing their own wages and at the expense of impaired health, reduced vitality, and shortened life for themselves; Second, that so much the sooner they produce enough goods to glut the market and thus bring on the hard times when all are thrown out of work, because the masters can no longer make a profit on their labor.

The policy of regulating by united action the speed and amount of work to be done, like the policy of reducing hours of labor and of restricting or altogether preventing the employment of women and children or of any others whose competition tends to reduce the working-class standard of living, is a perfectly right and necessary policy. It is a matter of self-preservation, and union men should not be ashamed to avow it openly nor afraid to enforce it whenever they have the power.

May 17 was celebrated as Injunction Day by the United Mine Workers, for the purpose of protesting against the injunctions which have rained upon the working class during recent years. There is just one day that is the logical day for such a purpose and that is Election Day, when the working class has the power to take things into its own hands by casting Socialist ballots.

IMPOSSIBLE? NO, EASY!

The law-breaking glass capitalists of New Jersey say that it is impossible to run glass factories without boys. Even the State Commissioner of Labor supports them in this statement as a justification of their habitual violation of the child-labor law. Fifty years ago the cotton mill capitalists of England solemnly affirmed that it was impossible to carry on cotton manufacture without the labor if six-year-old children for ten or twlve hours a day, that no machinery could possibly be invented to do the work, and that to forbid such child labor would ruin the cotton industry. Under pressure from the workingmen, however, such a law was passed—and pretty strictly enforced—and straightway a machine was invented which did the work just as well as the babies had done it.

"Impossible," said Napoleon; "I do not know that stupid word."

It is possible and perfectly feasible for the workingmen of New Jersey to put an end to child labor in the glass works and other factories of their state, thus securing health and education to the children and at the same time, by diminishing competition in the labor market, increasing the parents' wages. All they have to do is to elect tried and trusty workingmen on the Socialist ticket to legislative, executive, and judicial offices, to enact stricter laws and to visit severe punishment on every capitalist who violates them.

The working class can do all that it dares to do. Dare to be free, and your chains will break like cobwebs.

It is instructive to note how quick the courts can punish a boy who throws stones at an automobile party and how slow they are to punish an auto-owner who runs over a child.

It was highly appropriate that the office of Chairman of the Finance Committee should carry with it the recognized leadership of Tammany Hall. Tammany's campaigns are financial campaigns, in methods and in purpose. But now, to their surprise, the braves are told that their Finance Committee knows nothing of Tammany's finances—the explanation of which is that the members have been looking too closely after their private finances. And this is appropriate, too. If Mr. Croker "works for his own pocket all the time," why should not each of his followers? We may admire the efficiency of Tammany's organization, but in the long run the higher ideal of Socialism will make our organization the stronger.

THE RESPONSIBILITIES OF DEMOCRACY.

This is a word to comrades in the Socialist movement. It may apply to others—to members of trade unions, for instance. If it applies to you, reader, profit by it; if not, still it will do you no harm.

We all believe in democracy, these days. From time to time some of us think it necessary rather noisily to affirm our devotion to democratic principles. Sometimes this really is necessary. Oftener it is not. Oftener, the trouble is that we have ourselves been at fault, have failed in our duty as good democrats, and then, being dissatisfied with the result, would like to put the blame upon someone else. We are not usually conscious of this. We have a grievance, and we quite sincerely think that our grievance is the grievance of democracy. So we appoint ourselves as champions of democracy and representatives of the rank and file, and get up and make a loud protest against this thing that has been done or that thing that has not been done or the other thing that has been done in a way different from what we should have advised. And then we are surprised and grieved that good comrades of ours, equally entitled to represent the rank and file, set us down as "kickers" or "grumblers."

It is an unfortunate thing to be a "chronic kicker." It is almost as bad to get the reputation of being one. For every man has a tendency to live up—or down—to the reputation he has, however he got it.

Let us consider, then, what is the difference between a "chronic kicker" and a real democratic comrade. What is democracy? And how shall a man behave in order to be a good democrat?

We are very likely to define democracy as a system or method of organization which allows all to participate on an equal footing in the decision of matters of common concern. We are likely to think that the submission of every question to general discussion and general vote is the whole of democracy.

That is a mistake. Democracy is more than this. Generally speaking, it includes this; but it includes something more.

Democracy implies more than the recognition of certain rights. It implies also the fulfilment of certain responsibilities.

A democratic society—be it a nation, a political party, a trade union, or a social club—is not simply an aggregate of equal individuals, with a certain scheme of voting to safeguard their various interests. That definition was good enough for bourgeois theory and practise in the last century. It will not do for workingmen here and now.

A democratic society is not simply Tom plus Dick plus Harry plus several others, each with a natural and unalienable right to vote and a divine and illimitable right to find fault. A democratic society is Tom and Dick and Harry and the rest, all with a common interest and a common aim, to which the several rights of voice and vote are merely means.

We make a mistake when we set the means above the end, when we forget the common aim in asserting our several rights.

In a word, democracy includes solidarity. That is a word pregnant with meaning. It is the great word of the present age.

How then shall one act if he would be a good democrat?

He must not only claim his own right to voice and vote, and respect the same equal right in others. He must do more than this. He must use his right of voice and vote, and use it at the right time. And when he finds himself in the minority he must behave as he would have his opponents behave when he is on the winning side. The minority has a certain right: To become a majority if it deserves to—that is, if it can do so by power of argument and example. It also has a duty: To work with the majority—not passively and submissively, but actively and cheerfully—when a decision has once been made, unless and until that decision can be intelligently reversed. Such are the responsibilities of democracy.

But the real democrat can best be described by picturing his opposite—the sham democrat.

The Sham Democrat in our party—and he is much the same elsewhere—does not attend party meetings regularly. He says it's no use, because all the other comrades are dead or asleep. He, of course, is very wide awake—somewhere else.

Whenever he is nominated for a party office or a committee to do some work, he firmly declines. But he is exceedingly ready and2 voluble and severe in criticizing the party officers and committees for everything they do or refrain from doing.

If he does happen to go to a meeting, he either sits stolidly in a corner, not taking the trouble to speak or vote for or against the propositions that come up, or else he is so intent on hearing himself talk that it is impossible for him to listen calmly to any other comrade's arguments. And then, when some decision is made of which he disapproves—or thinks he disapproves—he either goes off and sulks silently or, worse yet, he lifts up his voice in just the places where such matters ought not to be discussed, to condemn others for taking a step that he failed to oppose at the right time and place.

And he really thinks he is the Voice of the Rank and File, the personification of Outraged Democracy. Such is the power of self-hypnotization.

This is the type of the Sham Democrat, and it is a very bad type, even when combined with sincerity and many other virtues. He knows only the rights of democracy, nothing of its responsibilities.

Fortunately, there are not very many in the party to whom this description applies. We may say that we do not know one to whom it fully applies. We do know many to whom it applies in part. We are all likely to fall into some of the bad habits of the Sham Democrat. It is a danger we all have to guard against—not so much in others as in ourselves.

And here endeth this preachment, whereof the preacher taketh due note for his own behoof and amendment of his evil ways, and craveth the pardon of any to whom it may be a weariness and a cause of offense.

A man in Muskegon whose intentions may have been better than his spelling left part of his fortune to "indignant old women." Some of this should be distributed among the citizens who voted the Reform ticket and have just woke up—partly.

The New York "Times" pronounces the Humbert swindle in Paris "the biggest bunco game on record." Not quite. Workingmen who vote the Republican or Democratic tickets are taken in every year by a bunco game of more magnificent dimensions and richer "graft." And, bunco-steerers being up for consideration, how about "captains of industry" and "friends of labor." The superlative shell-game skill of these gentlemen is not to be so lightly passed over.

The high regard of the capitalist class for patriotism and "republican institutions" is well shown by ex-Senator John M. Thurston's remarks on the difficulties before the Cuban Republic. In the New York "Journal" of May 19, he writes:

"I believe the first difficulty will arise when those who actually participated in the revolutionary movement and who feel that their services ought to be signally rewarded by the government their service has made possible, present their demands for leadership in the control of Cuban affairs. The men who led the Cuban Revolution were necessarily compelled to draw almost wholly for their fighting force upon those WHO HAD NO BUSINESS INTERESTS TO CONSERVE and who, without offense, may be said to be the least fitted for intelligent participation in public affairs. I fear they will inevitably resent a political organization which gives the greater part of the power to those who were not actively in sympathy with the revolution, or WHO WERE COMPELLED FOR THE PROTECTION OF THEIR OWN BUSINESS INTERESTS to suppress the manifestations of their sympathy and to hold themselves aloof from the organized movement directed against the Spanish power."

You see, "those who have no business interests to conserve" are "the least fitted for intelligent participation in public affairs," for they might not be sufficiently vigilant in maintaining the system of s lavery and robbery on which business interests thrive. Keep the government out of the hands of the vulgar revolutionists and Cuba will be governed well enough to suit its owner, the Sugar Trust. Hurrah for patriotism and Cuba Libre!

TIMELY TOPICS.

Open war is better t han deceptive peace.

Mark Hanna is doing the cause of Socialism a great service by warning workingmen against it.

The Coal Trust can be expected to develop a strong regard for the public welfare just about this time.

As it failed to avoid the miners' strike, let us hope the Civic Federation won't get a chance to break it.

The men whose children do not work in the mills cannot be expected to enact and enforce laws against child labor.

Invention will never lighten the burden of the race, while the race permits a few men to own and control inventions.

That the Coal Trust considered the Miners' Union oppressive and worth fighting is the highest compliment the union could receive.

When the character of the men elected to office is considered, one wonders why they are afraid to trust the people with the referendum.

Mine o wners are never the victims of mine disasters, which is another good reason why the miners should also be the mine owners.

To paraphrase and combine two historic sentences: "As the Senator from South Carolina said to the Senator from North Carolina, 'The working people be damned!'"

Considering that American workers are said to be the best paid in the world, there is a decided antipathy on the part of those who say it to see them any better paid.

It is significant that 75 per cent. of the miners who are now condemned for striking for higher wages and shorter hours were formerly denounced as "foreign pauper laborers" for accepting whatever terms the capitalists gave them.

Capitalist papers are sneering at working girls in a Rhode Island factory for striking for ten minutes to "make themselves beautiful" before going home in the evening. The average society belle would be happy if she could accomplish that task in six times ten minutes.

In their anxiety to arouse public indignation at the threat to shut down all the coal mines, the capitalist press makes some queer admissions. For instance, it is cited that for 456,500 miners to strike would mean a daily loss in wages of $704,095—an average of not $1.50 a day, out of which must be deducted cost of powder, oil, tools, tool-sharpening, and other necessary expenses. These figures make clear why the miners are reported to have large bank accounts and why a raise in wages would mean bankruptcy for the mine owners.

W. M.

VROOMAN'S CIRCUS

Performances of the Middle-Class "Multitude Incorporated."

KANSAS CITY, Mo., May 17.—A brass band mounted on a gorgeous red and yellow circus wagon (strange comingling of emblems of proletariat and plutocrat) and followed by a old hyena cage, both rescued from the effects of the last stranded circus, paraded the streets here last Monday and every day this week, announcing to the wondering inhabitants that the Western Co-operative Association, and "The Multitude Incorporated," were ready for business. This is the Vrooman co-operative movement previously mentioned, and but for the fact that the scheme is exploited on all sides as "Socialistic," would not merit more attention from the Socialist press than would any other business institution. The Vroomans, father and two sons, have been known as "Socialists" for many years, but the fact that the brand of Socialism advertised with this institution is known as "imperial" is sufficient explanation to the knowling ones why the regular Socialist movement has not been graced with Vrooman talent. It might be well to say for the uninitiated that as the regular Socialist movement has about ten million voting adherents and at least as many non-voting adherents in the world, it has the same right to define the position and purpose of Socialists as the Roman Catholic Church has to define the doctrines held by that body; and by no twisting of English can the qualification of "imperial" be gotten out of Socialism.

As to the nature of this movement itself. The hyena cage was inscribed on both sides: "Small Dealer, You Are Doomed. You Must Either Join the Monopolists' Trusts as a Hireling, or Join the People's Trust as an Equal." No Socialist would quarrel with the first statement, but the salvation to be found in the "People's Trust" while logical, is by no means a certain quantity; should the movement actually reach a respectable strength sufficient to attract the attention of the class now dominating the country we shall see very quickly that the "equality" of the "People's Trust" is decidedly of the quality enjoyed by the working class now—equality of insecurity and want. "The Multitude Incorporated" is entirely a misnomer. The "Middle-class Incorporated" would be nearer the truth; as indicated by the hyena cage the appeal is made to the small merchant; and as a business proposition it concerns the small merchant only. The inducement held out to him is worth considering—the ability of the pooled or merged interests to buy their supplies in quantities and therefore cheaper, which is at once their strength and weakness, and also the weak point of the whole co-operative; sooner or later must they learn the lesson that unless they control ALL THINGS NECESSARY TO PRODUCE THE MEANS OF LIFE their efforts will finally be brought to naught.

"The Multitude Incorporated" is another product of New Jersey laws. The voting stock is all held in trust by Ruskin College, of Trenton, Mo., so to use Walter Vrooman's own words, "The affair is not to be managed by the mob." There is a provision that should Ruskin College fail to discharge its duties properly, the State University at Columbia, Mo., should take hold; and should this institution fail likewise, the United States Government itself should come into control. All this of course to be determined by the courts. The small dealers who are taking their stocks into this latest "trust" do not receive cash according to the statement of those connected with the management, neither do they receive stock, but are given bonds with 5 per cent. interest and a position in the management. The writer has not been able so far to ascertain the nature of the bonds; they are not quoted in local securities, but perhaps this iniquitous feature will not disgrace the conduct of the newest "trust."

Some may be wondering just where the "multitude" comes in; and here it is: Pay in ten dollars, buy at the "multitude" stores and each six months you will receive a dividend calculated on the amount of your purchase. But it is provided that one-third of the profits are to be used by the management in furnishing free entertainment to the members of the "mob" who have no part in the management; advertised to be four theater admissions per week; free reading rooms; free scholarships at Ruskin College, to be given in competition, number not stated; and finally, oh woeful thought, free employment bureau! (The state free employment bureau here boasts that it finds positions for 23 per cent. of applicants.)

As stated at the beginning the only reason for filling Socialist columns with an account of this movement is its political aspect. This, as indicated in its appeal to the small dealer, who, of course, is the one to furnish the sinews for an enterprise of the kind, carefully avoids any reference to property rights, and moreover throws out a strong hint that the concern is open to propositions political. Mr. John Doggett, a once retired merchant prince," is manager of the local territory, and really it is too much to expect that a capitalist of thirty years is likely to turn against the interests of his class. Mr. Doggett is flaunted as a "convert to imperial Socialism," and has this to say regarding politics: "Most assuredly we shall go into politics, but not partizan politics. The people's trust will make its first fight to establish the initiative and referendum" (to give the "mob" a chance to rule most likely.) "No matter what boasts the political parties may make they can't deliver the goods, for the trusts have them throttled body and soul." (This is first intimation that political parties have souls or that a soul could be throttled, but innovations are to be expected.) "We can buy as cheaply as the trusts and will save the consumer as high as 30 per cent."

And further, quoting from the "Multitude," the official magazine of the movement, "We are allied with no ephemeral political party, but advocate measures and methods regarding our party, whichever it be, in the light of an instrument or means, which, when it cannot be used to satisfy our ends, should be cast aside. We do not belong to any party, but seek to make all parties belong to us."

Mark Hanna would laugh to think of his party as "ephemeral." The careful student of events knows that a political party for the interests served is one of the hardest of all hard facts. It would be hard to conceive of anything more "ephemeral" than this Vrooman scheme of salvation from industrial despotism, no matter how successful it may be for a time. It is difficult also for one at all versed in industrial organization of the day to understand just what is meant by "buying as cheaply as the trusts," for the work of the association thus far is entirely in the line of distribution, and not of production. Except the department store, there is no trust in distribution, that is in retailing. And right here you have the Vrooman view, which is also the view taken by the middle class, that security and prosperity depend on the terms the consumer receives, and not on what the producer gets.

The productive forces under control of Mr. Vrooman so far are few. A farm or so (let the Single Taxers laugh here), and possibly a bakery. Say that a small abbatoir, a small bukery can be conducted successfully on a co-operative basis, will they supply those whose food supply is now jeopardized? To date we have not heard that any bargain has been struck with the stock yards, or the packing houses, neither has any railroad company been after any Vrooman stock for its property. The few who own all the real estate here hold strangely aloof. No flouring mill will roll for the "people." None of the coal barons or iron and lead mine owners living here have taken hold of the scheme. The lumber companies don't warm up a bit. There was something about a brickyard, but possibly brick-bat was meant. The few who own all the ground in this locality hold strangely aloof, neither does any contractor come forth as a builder of co-operative housing. There is much talk here of a cotton factory, which, as a prominent business man says, "will utilize the labor of women and children, thus giving much needed employment," but we will not do Mr. Vrooman the injustice of charging this capitalist scheme to him. And really it looks as if the whole thing would fizzle down to a consumers' league which would last as long as the consumers have the wherewithal to purchase.

It will not be long until the Vrooman movement will have an opportunity of showing its hand politically, for the time of conventions draws near. The Socialists of the country may be sure of one thing: The "people's trust" may seek to make all political parties belong to it, but it will have a hard time acquiring the Socialist Party. Contrari-wise, it is the logic of events that the adherents of Vroomanism must have their eyes opened in the end, and the Socialists complacently watch this latest economic development in the course which must be taken before the people will learn that they must take possession of the earth and control it themselves, giving to each his due, if they are ever to enjoy the fruit of their labor and all the other powers which Nature has given them.

Among the notables who were featured at the free entertainments given at the Century Theater and in the big tent not far from it, was Granville Lowther of McPherson, Kan., who has just been expelled from the Methodist Church because he did not know whether Jonah was swallowed by the whale or not. Mr. W. D. P. Bliss of New York was also a star. He has been written up before in the Socialist press. He may well be classed as "unavailable." These people are long on the "brotherhood of man," and possibly actually believe that the powers that be will finally be persuaded. Dave L. Guyotte is calculated as a card to catch the trade unionists, as he is secretary of the Missouri Federation of Labor. Comrade Behrens of Sedalia can probably attend to his case. Guyotte has always been a mixer in capitalist politics, and it will be interesting to see where he lands this time. John W. Breidenthal of Kansas, Populist, holding a federal appointment of Treasury Department, was also on the card. It is said the "middle of the roaders" sometimes have their suspicions of John. And Mrs. Annie L. Diggs must not be forgotten. It is said by Socialists present that she made a fairly good presentation of Socialism, but carefully refrained from any application of it to the scheme at hand.

It has been suggested that the "imperial" part of this latest "Socialistic" scheme is the "bread and circuses" of decaying Rome. As an advertising dodge, free theaters and tent vaudeville certainly draw the crowd.

Let us give Mr. Vrooman all credit for good intentions, and also for ability as far as his means allow. His work in the establishment of Ruskin College at Trenton, Mo., cannot be overlooked. If he can alleviate the conditions of any part of the people he is some use in the world, but his actions must not be allowed to compromise or cloud the issue between the people whose labor has built up the vast properties controlled by the trusts which Vrooman fights, and who in their ignorance have given up their birthright in the world which gave them life—and those who have possessed themselves of all these things.

GARNET FUTVOYE.

Our Esteemed Contemporaries (and OTHERS)

Saginaw Exponent.

We have frequently noticed that the meaner the vice the higher the virtue invoked to justify it. Witness the appeal to filial duty in justification of child labor.

Pueblo Courier.

We note that the President has laid the corner-stone of the McKinley memorial. That is well. He should be remembered, and in furtherance of that idea we would suggest that on one corner of the "memorial" there be placed a glass case containing the skeleton of one of the men who were butchered in the Coeur d'Alene bull pen, and on another there be placed the picture of a Filipino soldier in his death agony with his life blood staining the land of his birth, for which he has fought, even as did Washington, and is dying. You see there are so many, so very many things to remember and we don't want to forget any of them. By all means let the memory of William McKinley be preserved. The ton or so of petitions he received asking that a stop be put to the outrages committed by the negro soldiers in Coeur d'Alenes might be boxed and set in front of the edifice. They would receive some attention there and that's more than they did at the hands of William McKinley.

The Socialist, Seattle, Wash.

The first skirmish with the "Appeal to Reason" may now be considered closed by the hauling down of the flag. With its issue of May 10, the battlecry which it has carried for five years at the mast-head has disappeared. It no longer professes to be published "For Public Ownership of Monopolies."

This furnishes the occasion for a summary up to date. Two or three points have been made clear which should not be forgotten, but rather committed to memory.

First Point: A discussion is not a quarrel. Differences in opinions and insight are not personal differences. A criticism is not an attack. It seems preposterous that anyone should ever have imagined that free criticism and discussion were forbidden among Socialists.

Second Point: It is settled that "Public Ownership of Monopolies" is not Socialism. Without a single dissenting voice, the Socialist press, which may be assumed to represent pretty accurately the sentiment of the Socialist Party, has agreed on the point. The latest to speak is "Wilshire's Magazine" for May, which but echoes the chorus with the leading article on "The Fallacy of Public Ownership." It is in response to this universal and imperative sentiment that the "Appeal" has taken down that headline which it has persistently and consistently carried at the head of its first page since 1897.

Third Point: The "Appeal" is not printed for Socialists and does not profess to do more than "interest people in the subject of Socialism." In other words, to learn what Socialism is, it is not enough to read the "Appeal." It aims to take advantage of the prevailing discontent and unrest and point a finger toward Socialism. It depicts the beauties of the promised land, but says little of the way to get there. * * *

Does not the "Appeal" as well as many others, fail to discriminate between the industrial evolution and the political revolution? One proceeding like a process of nature, as Marx explains, and the other being the culmination and climax of the evolution process, like the bursting of the chrysalis and the escape of the butterfly already formed within.

—Between campaigns is the time when the people think calmly. That is the time to make Socialists of them. Use The Worker for that purpose.

PARTY NOTES.

John C. Chase addressed trade unionists at East St. Louis, De Soto, and El Dorado, Ill., and also in St. Louis, Mo., last week.

The Pennsylvania State Committee has indorsed financial secretary's monthly report book.

Comrades are warned against one C. C. Ross, late organizer of Texas, recently repudiated by the Texas State Committee. Ross is a very tall portly man, about forty-five, with a very blustering manner. In revenge for notice regarding him furnished by National Secretary and Indiana State Committee, Ross is advising secession from the Socialist Party and formation of an independent organization. He is now operating in the South.

Among the results of Comrade Vail's tour of Pennsylvania in the month of May is the organization of four new locals—Spring Forge, Mauch Chunk, Cokeville, and Black Lick—with a total charter membership of eighty-two.

The "Undercurrent," formerly of Redlands, Cal., has moved to San Bernardino (address, P. O. Box 464) and comes out in larger and better form.

Wilshire's campaign in Toronto is getting lively. The papers are freely quoting Margaret Haile's speeches. One of the busiest men in the campaign there is Comrade James Simpson, a preacher, who is a parliamentary candidate from East Toronto. It is said that all his Sunday sermons bear on Socialism.

Walter Thomas Mills is kept busy on all evenings when not engaged in teaching, speaking for the trade unions and literary societies of San Francisco. The Machinists, Garment Workers, Street Car Employees, Presbyterian Club, Unitarian Club Congregational Club, Iroquois Club, and William Morris Club are among recent appointments.

John S pargo of New York, William Thurston Brown of Rochester, J. Stitt Wilson of Berkley, Cal., S. M. Reynolds of Terre Haute, Max S. Hayes of Cleveland, and H. H. Wise of Denver, have been added to the Examining Board of the International School of Social Economy.

The various branches of the party in Toledo, O., held a joint meeting and elected Charles R. Martin to represent Local Toledo in the coming state convention. The last two meetings, May 13 and 27, were rendered especially valuable by the reading of a paper by Dr. J. S. Pyle on "Socialism and the Socialist Program" and one by Mrs. Kate Brownlee Sherwood on "Modern Socialism." Mrs. Sherwood is working for the cause with an energy which inspires the older comrades to renewed activity. Branch 1 meets on the second-fourth Tuesday evenings of the month at Harmonia Hall, 518 Summit avenue. Readers of The Worker are invited to attend and join.

Comrade Spring spoke at Niagara Falls, N. Y., on Monday and at Watertown on Tuesday.

Comrade Moses of Rochester is still rustling in subscriptions in a creditable way. The Local has taken 5,000 copies of the Beef Trust leaflet.

Local Rochester will hold a general meeting on June 13, 8 p. m., at 95 Main street, Room 9 ,the headquarters and reading room of the S. D. P. Every comrade in the city should be present, as very important business will come up.

Local New Rochelle will hold an open-air meeting Friday evening, June 6, at the corner of Main and Church streets. Comrade Vail will speak.—Since Organizer Spring's visit this local has gained four new members and is in good financial condition.

Local Yonkers holds its second annual outing on Sunday, June 1, at Grace's Farm, Dunwoodie Station. Comrades from out of town can reach the place by trolley from Mount Vernon and from New York by trolley or by the New York and Putnam Railway. The picnic will start at 2 p. m., with dancing, games, shooting, and refreshments; prizes for different contests. The proceeds of the outing will go to the campaign fund and all comrades are invited to attend. No admission fee.

The agent for The Worker in Spring Forge, Pa., is C. H. Stover.

George Orendorff of 38 Columbia avenue, Batavia, N. Y., has been appointed agent for The Worker in that place.

Comrade Jennings, who has now made his home of Newark, N. Y., has lost no time in getting in some work for the party. He writes of the organization of a new local there, with Fred Phelps as Secretary, George C. Perkins as Treasurer, and Dr. Martin as Organizer. He says: "Ben Hanford's speech here some months ago, the work of Comrade Vail, and the energetic efforts of a few local Socialists have prepared the field. The new local includes seven college graduates. We have the enthusiasm and energy for a good campaign and the finances to support it. You can expect to hear good news from Newark."

Comrade Healey of Lynn, Mass., writes: "A large and enthusiastic body of Polish workingmen met at the Ward Six Socialist Club room on Wednesday, May 21, and were addressed by Comrade Eischlet of New York on the Socialist question. Many pamphlets were sold and a number of subscriptions taken for "Robotnik." As a result of the meeting we admitted to membership a number of those who attended the next evening. It is very evident that the spreading of the Socialist doctrine among these people will bear good fruit. Comrade Fischler is to return here again in about a week and endeavor to organize a club of his countrymen."

George N. Ward, cigarmaker, of Erie, who was the Socialist candidate for Mayor in February, is now nominated for the Legislature. Many citizens who failed to vote for him three months ago have regretted it since, and at this writing it seems likely that he will go to Harrisburg at the next session.

John Spargo is preparing a pamphlet on "Child Labor," to be illustrated by Ryan Walker, which will be issued from this office about June 15.

A meeting of the Speakers' Club was held at 64 East Fourth street last Friday evening. Comrade Roemer was elected chairman and Martin, secretary. A permanent organization was effected, by-laws adopted, and arrangements made for future work. Another meeting is called for Friday, May 30, 8 p. m., when a debate will take place on the subject of the Beef Trust.

The 12th A. D. favors Buffalo as the place and July 4 as the day for the state convention. One application for membership was received at the last meeting. A collection of 85 cents was taken for the West Side Agitation Committee. It was decided to communicate with the 15th and 17th A. D. in regard to getting better headquarters.

The 24th A. D., Br. 2, took in one new member at the last meeting. It was decided to start an active campaign and Comrade Brunn, Goldbarth, Loewenthal, Reichenthal, and Wallace were chosen a sa committee to carry on distribution of The Worker and other literature from house to house and in the trade unions. One hundred copies of The Worker weekly were subscribed for for a year. The paer will be found on nearly every newsstand in the district. A thousand Beef Trust leaflets were also taken, a thousand of the "Address to Catholic Workingmen," and a thousand of Wilshire's "Why Workingmen Should Be Socialists."

The 31st A. D. received two applications for membership at its last meeting. Reports showed the festival to have been a good financial success.

Two applications for membership were received at the last meeting of the 34th A. D. The Agitation Committee reported that an out-door meeting would be held Saturday evening, May 24, at One Hundred and Forty-eighth street and Willis avenue, with Sol. Fieldman as speaker on the Beef Trust. Letters are being sent out to all readers of The Worker in the district and they are invited to attend the meetings held every Friday at 380 Willis avenue.

The 35th A. D., Br. 2, met at 3309 Third avenue on Thursday, May 22. S. Eiges was elected Secretary in place of Comrade Fieldman, who resigned on account of his intention to go to Germany. The draft of by-laws submitted by Comrade Eiges will be discussed and voted on at the joint meeting of June 6. The Auditing Committee will also report and other important business will come up.—The open-air meeting held last Saturday was very satisfactory; twenty-six copies of The Worker and about thirty 5-cent pamphlets were sold and five hundred Beef Trust leaflets, besides others, were distributed.

The ice cream festival of the Socialist Educational League of 215 East Fifty-ninth street has been postponed to June 21.

Comrade Lee spoke by invitation at a well attended meeting of the West Side Machinists last Saturday.

SPRING IN BUFFALO.

In Conjunction with Steiner and Others, He Works to Organize the Interest in Socialism Aroused by Bishop's Attack.

The Buffalo "Daily Express" gives a surprisingly full and fair account of State Organizer Spring's first public meeting in that city, held at International Hall on Monday evening, May 19. It reports him as saying in part:

"We Socialists are often attacked on the ground that we are seeking to create classes. That is not so. We do not try to create classes in society. The classes are already here. The Socialist as a student is merely pointing out that there are two distinct classes in society with two distinct economic interests. We are also trying to show the way to wipe out this nauseating class distinction.

"Let me tell you about the two classes in society. One, the class of people who possess the means of production, such as machinery and the like, form the capitalist class. Then there is the class who have been expropriated of all means of existence by the capitalist class except their labor power. That class is the labor class. The producing class does not operate machinery for the benefit of society, but for its own benefit. You laboring people are hopelessly at the mercy of the man who owns your product. There is just so much to a commodity. The more the capitalist gets out of it the less you get. The war is now on between the classes.

"The solution of this problem of the classes lies with the Socialist. Private ownership of the means of production is that which gives the capitalist class power. That power is protected by legislative policies. All legislation is practically in line with the desires of the capitalist class. By legislative power alone is the capitalist enabled to take from you your labor value. If this legislative power is the power by which the capitalist retains the private ownership of the means of production and distribution, does not the solving of the problem lie with you? Just so long as you vote with the present political parties, the Republican, the Democratic and the Prohibition, just that long you will deprive yourselves of the rights of human beings, just that long you will tighten the shackles of slavery on yourselves, just that long you will keep your children in the sweatshops.

"Wo you think it visionary for you to recognize your own class interest, to seek to get the possession and control of the machinery of production? Is there anything wild, anything dangerous about such a proposition? Would not the world be happier and better if there were collective ownership of the means of production, as against the present private ownership of those means? And how can we make the change, you ask? Not by sitting down and listening to fellows talk nor by reading books. The only way is to solidify our class into a great political organization that will grasp from the hands of the capitalist class the reins of government and legislate in favor of the workingman and against the capitalist.

"If you want to help yourself join our party, the Social Democratic Party. Our platform demands collective as against private ownership of the means of production. It demands that its members must give up their allegiance to any other party. But the principles of that platform do not in anyway interfere with a man's religious beliefs, notwithstanding much that has been said to the contrary lately. A man, whether he be a Roman Catholic, Presbyterian, Methodist, agnostic, atheist, infidel or anything else, may belong to our party without interfering in any way with his religious convictions."

Robert Steiner, editor of the Buffalo "Arbeiter-Zeitung," also addressed the meeting in German.

Comrade Spring's ten day's campaign in Buffalo closed Sunday with a meeting in Sangford Hall which, in spite of the heavy rain, was a rousing success. Comrade Steiner spoke first in German, followed by one of our Jewish comrades in that language, and both were loudly applauded, as was also Spring when he addressed the meeting. A good amount of literature was sold and two applications for membership in the party were received.

The Jewish Literary Club held a meeting later in the day, and 11 of its members joined the party.

During the week Spring addressed a meeting of 300 striking carpenters, besides several meetings arranged by the party.

The debate with Attorney Thayer, announced last week, turned out as such affairs often do—the opponent of Socialism ran away. The Socialists agreed to pay all expenses, let Mr. Thayer fix the statement of the question and division of time, and supplied him with party literature. At 8:30 on the night of the debate, after the audience had gathered, a telegram came to the hall announcing that Mr. Thayer had gone to Rochester and would not return till 10 o'clock. If the audience desired to wait, he would begin the debate at that hour! The meeting proceeded, with Spring as speaker, and Mr. Thayer did not show up at all. The audience drew its own conclusions.

POLICE INTERFERENCE.

Socialists of Kansas City Will Resist Petty Tyranny.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., May 24.—The police are doing what they can to make Socialists in these parts. On Wednesday noon, May 21, Frank P. O'Hare, who is employed by the Socialist Club of Jackson County as organizer, was speaking on Eleventh street about thirty feet west of Main street to a hundred people. Eleventh street here is by no means a busy street, and there was no obstruction whatever. The police officer on duty near, though, prompted, it is said, by a certain alderman who is going to get himself into trouble if evidence can be obtained, ordered O'Hare to move on as he was "obstructing the street." O'Hare insisted that he was not, and that there was plenty of room, however requesting the crowd to leave the sidewalk so people could get by. At least three-fourths of the roadway was clear. But this, of course, not being the reason for police interference, did not suit; and O'Hare was ordered to cease speaking. He refused and was placed under arrest, taken to the Central Station, where he was searched and roughly handled by two of the plug-uglies, then thrown into a cell until bond could be furnished. The charge against him was "obstructing the street," but Friday morning some fifteen witnesses were present to refute the statement of the officer. That, however, made no difference. To let O'Hare go would not be sufficient intimidation, and so he was fined. Teh fine was small, but it was not paid. An appeal was taken and the case is now in the hands of competent attorneys.

A mass meeting has been called at the County Court House for Thursday evening, and everything possible will be done to arouse public sentiment and finally show those who have grown bold with their power that they cannot abridge the right of free speech guaranteed to the citizens of Missouri by their constitution; that what the national constitution denies to Congress shall not be exercised by a Police Judge and Board.

It takes things like these to solidify and clarify the Socialist movement. As long as no one runs counter to capitalist interests, but keeps out of sight, "talking with the neighbors," hiring stuffy halls into which none can be induced to come, the movement is stagnant. The Socialists could doubtless have obtained another "permit" from the Mayor to break that same ordinance under which the arrest was made, as this was done in the municipal campaign, it being thought wise then not to make any fight. The conduct of the Election Commissioners, however, has so far destroyed the faith of the members here in the honesty of capitalist officials that they are determined to fight it out right now. Even though permission were given it would doubtless be under the direction of the Police Board and the Socialists prefer to manage their own campaign. Moreover, the permit would expire with the fall campaign, while the time for most effective propaganda is in the off years; and no permit could be obtained then. The Mayor will therefore be relieved from breaking any ordinances this time.

It will pay all Socialists who have not already gone through this experience to look well into the ordinances of their municipal government. It has been known for several years that this ordinance could be enforced as it was Wednesday, and in fact in 1898 several Socialists were arrested but released without trial, because of the pending election. Another ordinance relating to the throwing of paper on the streets can be very effectually used to absolutely prevent the passing of a piece of literature.

"Eternal vigilance is the price of liberty"—the man who starts out to obey laws because they are laws will have plenty of laws to obey. It is to be seen whether "public opinion" cannot be used in favor of constitutional rights as well as the present rotten order of things.

WILSHIRE IN MICHIGAN.

Comrade Wilshire, having accepted a nomination for parliament in Ontario, was compelled to change the plans for his tour of Michigan. His dates in the Wolverine State, as now arranged, will be as follows: Clifford, May 30, evening; Almont, May 31, 1:30 p. m.; Dryden, May 31, evening; Oxford, June 1, 1:30 p. m.; Flint, June 1, evening; Battle Creek, June 2; Kalamazoo, June 3; Jonesville, June 4; Ann Arbor, June 5; Pontiac, June 6; St. Clair, June 7; Detroit, June 8.

Michigan Socialists are active and Socialism is constantly breaking out in new spots. It is nothing uncommon to hear of work being done in new fields by men of whom the organization has previously known nothing. The farmers are slow to take hold, but they will come, too. The great growth of our vote within the last three years in this state is a good omen for the future.

C. J. L.

NEWS FROM LYNN.

The Socialist movement in this city is growing gradually. Last Wednesday the Ward 6 Club of West Lynn formally affiliated with the National and State Committees, the club membership of twenty signing the charter list, and officers of the City Central Committee were elected.

The Central Branch has moved its quarters to the building adjoining the former location. The new quarters are only one flight from the street, located in the centre of the city, 85 Monroe street. The main audience room seats about three hundred people, with a good sized smoking and reading room adjoining. The whist parties run by the Entertainment Committee all winter will be continued on Saturday evenings as long as the attendance warrants. Comrades should attend Wednesday night meetings and keep square with the Treasurer.

The Liberal Forum meetings, conducted by the Educational Committee of the Central Branch, have been discontinued after a fairly successful series held on Sunday evenings. The local press has given good reports.

Beginning next Sunday, at 4:30 p. m., the Central Branch of Lynn will begin a series of open-air meetings at Bartholomew's Pond Grove in Peabody, near the Lynn line. The speakers for Sundays in June will be N. P. Geiger, W. P. Porter, William Mailly, and John Weaver Sherman. Comrades and sympathizers from Peabody, Salem, Beverly, and Danvers are cordially invited to attend. Five cents fare from Central Suare, Lynn. It is hoped that friends and comrades in Boston will come down to these meetings. Refreshments are handy to the grove. Leave cars at Bartholomew.

J. H. P.

IN ESSEX COUNTY.

All delegates from the various branches in Essex County, N. J., to the County Committee are to meet on Tuesday, June 3, at 8 p. m., sharp, at 124 Market street, Newark. The opening of the campaign will be taken up and steps taken to push the work in every quarter of the county. It is of the utmost importance that every delegate attend this first meeting of the campaign, as there will be work for everyone from the start.

On Thursday evening, June 5, a meeting will be held at Essex Hotel, in Bloomfield Centre, for the organization of a new branch of the Socialist Party in that vicinity. Every sympathizer in Montclair, Watsessing, and other places near Bloomfield, should be present, in order to start the branch with a good membership and make it a political power in the Northern and Western part of Essex County. Bring with you any wage-working friends who have a leaning toward Socialism.

E. T. NEBEN, Organizer.

HOBOKEN LONGSHOREMEN.

Longshoremen's Union No. 271, of Hoboken, N. J., has been admitted to the International Federation of Transport Workers, which holds its convention on July 4 at Stockholm, Sweden. This is the local which roused the wrath of the president of the American organization, Mr. Keefe, by adopting resolutions against the Civic Federation, of which he is a member. This question will come up in the convention of the International Longshoremen's Association at Chicago on July 7.

BUY BLUE-LABEL CIGARS.

FOR THE BENEFIT OF THE CAMPAIGN FUND.

Picnic & Summer Night's Festival of

Local New York, S.D.P.

ON SUNDAY, JUNE 29,

AT SULZER'S WESTCHESTER PARK.

Tickets, 10 cents — At the Gate, 15 cents

Tickets can be had in all Assembly District Organizations or from the Organizer at 64 East 4th Street.

"WHERE WE STAND."

A lecture by John Spargo, editor of THE COMRADE. Originally delivered under the title, "Our Position, Economic, Ethical and Political." Five cents a copy, 10 for 35c., 50 for $1.40, 100 for $2.50, postpaid. Order now.

ILLUSTRATED AGITATION LEAFLETS.

Published by THE COMRADE PUB. CO., 11 Cooper Square, N. Y. "The Worker with the Capitalist Mind," by Herbert N. Casson, fifth edition; "Dialogue between the Machine Gun and the Mauser," by Frank Stuhiman; "A Lesson from the Donkeys," by John Spargo. You should use these leaflets for distribution, as they are sure to be read by everybody who gets them. Price, 10c. a bundle of 50, one kind or assorted.

SPECIAL.—Upon receipt of 50 cents in one-cent stamps we will send THE COMRADE, an illustrated Socialist Monthly, for three months, 100 illustrated leaflets, and a copy of "Where We Stand."

THE COMRADE PUBLISHING CO., 11 Cooper Square, New York (373 Bowery.)

WHY JOIN THE PARTY.

A Word to Socialists Who Have Not Joined the Political Organization.

"Socialism is all right. I voted the ticket last election. Will vote it again, like enough, if you put up good men, but what do I want to sign a blank and pay dues for? I never did it for any other party. I had rather be a free man."

Yes, it is a delightful thing to be a free man, but how are you going to be free if you have to live under the capitalist system that makes people slaves? And how do you you expect to change the system unless you join hands with those who are working to change it?

But no other party asks you to pay dues. Think a moment and you will see why. It takes money to run a campaign. Very little for a Socialist campaign compared with what each of the old parties spend, but it takes money in either case. Now where does the money come from?

It used to come from the office-holders and office-seekers. But civil service laws have cut off most of the money from such sources, and still the campaign funds of the Democratic and Republican parties grow larger and larger. Where do they come from?

Of course from the class that has money, the capitalist class. Not one old party fund alone, but both. The funds are needed to keep up the appearance of a brisk fight and divide the votes of unsuspecting workingmen between the two parties. No matter which wins, the politicians who are elected owe gratitude to the capitalists.

Gratitude in "practical politics" has been well defined as "a lively sense of favors to come." The politician in office must always remember whose money elected him and whose money will be needed to re-elect him.

The capitalists do not pay out this money as a matter of sentiment nor for the fun of the thing. Their wealth comes from the labor of others and they can continue to control that labor only so long as they can have the laws made in their own interest. So you begin to see why they should be so willing to pay all expenses if you will only vote their ticket.

But you are a Socialist. You want to make the laws in the interest of your own class. Very well, then you must elect men of your own class to office, and you must see that they owe no obligation to any other class for their election expenses. Now the fairest way yet devised for sharing these needful expenses is the dues system.

Every Socialist local must collect at least ten cents a month from each member. Of this amount five cents goes to the National Committee and five cents to the State Committee. This money goes to pay for postage, clerk hire, office rent, printing, traveling expenses of the organizers, and for the living expenses of such comrades as give their whole time to the work of the party.

Besides this ten cents each local usually collects from five to ten cents more, which is expended for party work at home under its own supervision, in whatever way the majority of the members think best. In nearly every case, whether in nation, state or local work, every dollar of money is made more than doubly effective by the unpaid labor of comrades who earn their living working for capitalists and find their greatest happiness in working for Socialism whenever they have an hour to spend.

Get into the work yourself and you will find the same pleasure in it that others do.

As for the matter of dues be a man. Do your part. You want Socialism to come. Your own happiness and that of your children after you depend upon it. Then don't grudge the small sacrifice that all of us have to make in these glorious years that are bringing in the new social order.—Chicago Socialist.

(Note.—This article will shortly appear as a leaflet published by C. H. Kerr & Co., 56 Fifth avenue, Chicago, Ill. Price, 50 cents per thousand, postpaid.)

TEN DAYS' WORK.

Comrade Keogh of Toledo, in sending in a list of eighteen yearly and fifteen half-yearly subscriptions, says: "The attached list is nearly all the result of ten days' hustling by one comrade, Thos. A. Bragg, which shows the possibilities in this most important branch of propaganda work." The Toledo comrades have been at this sort of work steadily for many months past and the great increase of the vote at the recent election, in spite of the influence of "Golden Rule Jonesism," is a gratifying result. The same might be done in every city in the land.

—When a nation's loftiest ideal is expressed in a cry for "more markets," Socialism is needed to save its soul from impending damnation.—William Mailly.

RIPANS

IF MORE SALES OF RIPANS TABULES ARE MADE DAILY THAN OF ANY OTHER MEDICINE, THE REASON MAY BE FOUND IN THE FACT THAT THERE IS SCARCELY ANY CONDITION OF ILL HEALTH THAT IS NOT BENEFITED BY THE OCCASIONAL USE OF A RIPANS TABULE, AND A PACKAGE, CONTAINING TEN, IS OBTAINABLE FROM ANY DRUGGIST FOR FIVE CENTS.

At Druggists.

The Five-Cent Package is enough for an ordinary occasion. The family bottle, 60 cents, contains a supply for a year.

New York & Westchester, Attention.

Grand Festival at Grace Farm, Yonkers, on Sunday, June, 1st, 2 p. m. Take Jerome ave. Trolley cars to Dunwoodie station, ask for Grace Farm, rear of Hollywood Inn Ball Grounds, close to station. Admission free. Games, Singing, Dancing and shooting. All welcome.

LOUIS D. BEHREN,
Manufacturer of UNION-MADE
HAVANA CIGARS
189 WILLIAM STREET.
Opposite the office of The Worker, New York
MAIL ORDERS PROMPTLY ATTENDED TO.

Attention, Workingmen!

If you are in want of Trusses, Abdominal Supporters, Shoulder Braces, Elastic Stockings, Knee Caps and Anklets, GO TO THE MANUFACTURER.

GUSTAVE BARTH,
22 E. 125th St., bet. Mad'son and Fifth ave.
357 Bowery, bet. 3rd & 4th St., New York.

Dr C. L. FURMAN,
DENTIST,
121 Schermerhorn street, Brooklyn.

THE DECATUR LABOR WORLD
Decatur, Ill.
AN UP-TO-DATE LABOR PAPER.
Subscription $1 per year, in advance.
HAS A WEEKLY CIRCULATION OF 3,500 COPIES.
Advertising rates quoted on application. Address:
THE DECATUR LABOR WORLD,
231 N. Main St., Decatur, Ill.

Where to Lunch and Dine

Comrades, patronize those who advertise in your paper.

ABBOTT BROS.'
Lunch Room,
110 Bleecker St., near Greene St.
NEW YORK.
Kangaroos are welcome.
No line drawn on smaller animals.

LAWYERS.

MORRIS HILLQUIT,
Attorney-at-Law,
320 Broadway. Telephone 2576 Franklin

L. D. MAYES, LAWYER.
245 Broadway, New York City, Borough of Manhattan. Practice in all Courts. Consultation free

H. B. SALISBURY,
COUNSELLOR-AT-LAW
309 Broadway, Room 903. 50 Union Square.

Simon Sultan,
Counsellor at Law.
203 Broadway (Mail and Express Building)
7th Floor, Room 711.
Residence 110 West 120th st., New York.

WHO WILL DO YOUR LAUNDRY WORK?

I. X. L. LAUNDRY, GUSTAV LEIST, 774 Second Ave.

SPECIAL NOTICES.

Under this heading any matter of interest to the Social Democratic Party (Socialist Party) will be inserted at FIVE CENTS PER LINE EACH INSERTION. Six words about equal one line. Cash must accompany advertisement IN EVERY INSTANCE.

WANTED.—An active comrade who will take the agency for The Worker for Detroit and vicinity.

SPECIAL FOR BOSTON.

The Boston Workingmen's Co-operation begs to announce to all progressive organizations of Boston that it has made arrangements for a grand picnic and concert, to be held July 4, 1902, at Apolo Garden Grove, Amery street, Roxbury. Tickets, 25 cents. Children free.

County convention of Socialist Party of Philadelphia will be held at Labor Lyceum, Sixth and Brown streets, Saturday, May 31, at 8 p. m.

—It doesn't require a very large heaven to hold the soul that seeks salvation through the slot of a collection box.—William Mailly.

NO TRUSTS! NO PRISONS! NO SWEAT SHOPS!

Shirts, Waists, Collars or Cuffs

BEARING THIS LABEL ARE O. K.

INTERN'L UNION SHIRT, WAIST & LAUNDRY WORKERS — Registered

This label is sewed on Shirts and Waists just below the tab or bosom and is stamped in miniature on Collars and Cuffs

No Chinese exclusion act needed when up-to-date Union Laundries use this Label to stamp Price List Slips on your laundry packages. Ask for it.

EGYPT...

Southern Illinois. A real Garden of Eden. No place in the United States produces a greater variety of finer fruits, vegetables and grains, or more of them. Splendid climate and water. Cheap lands. THE FARMERS' INSTITUTE, Carbondale, Ill., will tell you all about it. Four months for ten cents. Sample copy for two-cent stamp.

$1.00 OFFER FOR 60 CENTS.

Railroading in the United States by BEN. HANFORD ..... 5 Cents
The Clerical Capitalist by Rev. Father McGRADY ..... 10 Cents
Why Workingmen Should be Socialists by H. GAYLORD WILSHIRE ..... 2 Cents
Labor Politics and Socialist Politics by ALGERNON LEE ..... 3 Cents
The Proletariat by KARL KAUTSKY ..... 5 Cents
The Class War in Idaho by JOB HARRIMAN. Third Edition ..... 5 Cents
The Communist Manifesto by KARL MARX and FRED'K ENGELS ..... 10 Cents
The Development of Socialism, from Utopia to Science. By F. ENGELS 5 Cents
A Debate on the Tactics of the S. T. and L. A. toward Trade Unions between Daniel DeLeon and Job Harriman ..... 5 Cents
The Attitude of the Socialists toward the Trade Unions, by N. I. STONE 5 Cents
The Capitalist Class by KARL KAUTSKY ..... 5 Cents
Now and Then. A Socialist Play by FRED'K KRAFFT ..... 10 Cents
The Adventures of JOHN MCCUE—Socialist ..... 10 Cents
The Religion of Capital by PAUL LAFARGUE / Social Effect of Machinery by FRANK W. COLTON ..... 10 Cents
Where we stand by JOHN SPARGO ..... 5 Cents
Socialism. A Reply to the Pope's Encyclical by ROBERT BLATCHFORD ... 5 Cents

On receipt of Only 60 Cents above 15 books will be mailed postpaid.

Socialist Literature Co., 184 WILLIAM ST., New York.

Largest Assortment of Literature on the Labor Question.

CATALOGUE FREE.

PUBLICATIONS.

SOCIAL JUSTICE.

EDITED BY FREDERICK G. STRICKLAND.

A monthly message from agitators in the field. Good for the man who hasn't thought and full of suggestions to Socialist workers. 25 Cents for Eight Months. 35 Cents per Year.

Address: SOCIAL JUSTICE, Yellow Springs, Ohio.

LATEST PUBLICATIONS.

"Adventures of John McCue" ..... 10c.
"American Farmer." By Simons. Cloth. 50c.
"American Communities." By W. A. Hinds. Cloth $1.00
"The Man with the Hoe," and other poems. By Edwin Markham. Cloth, $1; paper, 50c.
"History of Trade Unionism." By S. & B. Webb. Cloth $2.00
"Industrial Denouncing." By Sidney and Beatrice Webb ..... $4.00.
"The Passing of Capitalism." By Ladoff. 25c.
"Organized Self-Help." By H. N. Casson. 25c.
"Religion of Capital." By Lafargue ..... 10c.
"Social Effect of Machinery." By Colton. 10c
"Tales from Gorky" ..... $1.20.
"The Pride of Intellect." By F. H. Wentworth; and "What is a Scab?" By A. M. Simons ..... 5c.
"The Westcotes." By A. T. Quiller-Couth ..... $1.00.
"Useful Principles of Logic." By T. Bersford ..... 15c.
"Voice from England." By Father McGrady ..... 10c.
"The History of Trade Unionism." By Sidney and Beatrice Webb. New edition. New ork. Longmans, Green & Co. 1902. 558 pages. Cloth ..... $2.00.
"Industrial Democracy." By Sidney and Beatrice Webb. 929 pages ..... $4.00.
"Where We Stand." By J. Spargo ..... 5c.
"Woman." By Martha Moore Avery ..... 10c.

A large stock of Labor Literature in English and German always on hand. Catalogues free.

SOCIALIST LITERATURE CO., 184 William St., New York.

Just Received from England

A large importation of

"CAPITAL," by Karl Marx.

Only authorized edition, translated by Samuel Moore and Edward Aveling, and edited by Frederick Engels.

CONTENTS:

Prefaces by the author and editor.
Part I.—Commodities and Money.
II.—The Transformation of Money into Capital.
III.—The Production of Absolute Surplus Value.
IV.—Production of Relative Surplus Value.
V.—Production of Absolute and of Relative Surplus Value.
VI.—Wages.
VII.—The Accumulation of Capital.
VIII.—The So-called Primitive Accumulation.

Library Edition, cloth, $2.50, postpaid.

SOCIALIST LITERATURE CO., 184 William Street, N. Y.

CO-OPERATE IN PUBLISHING SOCIALIST BOOKS

That is the way to get them at actual cost. $10 cash or $1 a month five months makes you joint owner in our business with the right to buy books at the prices in second column, postage included. Others have to pay prices in first column.

The American Farmer. Simons. Cloth	.10	.30
Collectivism. Vandervelde. Cloth	.10	.30
Collectivism. Vandervelde. Paper	.05	.15
Liebknecht's Life of Marx. Cloth	.10	.30
Last Days of Rankin Commonwealth. Cloth	.10	.30
Engels' Origin of the Family. Cloth	.10	.30
Love's Coming-of-Age. Edward Carpenter	1.00	.60
Socialism Utopian and Scientific. Engels. Cloth	.30	.90
Socialism Utopian and Scientific. Engels. Paper	.10	.30
Socialism. Wilhelm Liebknecht. Paper	.10	.30
Life of Engels. Kautsky. Paper	.10	.30
Pocket Library of Socialism. 10 per copy	.10	.30
Pocket Library of Socialism. Per 100, assorted	2.50	.90
International Socialist Review. Per copy	.10	.30
International Socialist Review. Per year	1.00	.60

Our co-operative plan is fully explained in a booklet entitled "How Socialist Literature is Published," mailed free on application. Locals Chicago, Philadelphia, Erie, Minneapolis, Davenport and many others are already in.

CHARLES H. KERR & CO. (Co-operative)
56 Fifth Avenue, CHICAGO.

L'UNION DES TRAVAILLEURS,

730 Washington Ave., Charleroi, Pa.

A weekly advocate of Trade Unionism and Socialism. Should be read by every French speaking worker.

Send for sample copies.

Subscription, $1.00 per year.

HERE'S WHAT YOU WANT!

ILLUSTRATED PROPAGANDA LEAFLETS.

"What Is Socialism?" by Mills. Per 100, 10c. "Scientific Socialism," by Mills. Per 100, 20c. "The Civilized Monkeys," by Warren. Per 100 ..... 15c. "Ahli Grabitali, Financier," by Warren. Per 100 ..... 20c.

Convenient in Size. Convincing in Argument.

Send a dime for 10 weeks' subscription to The Coming Nation, an illustrated Socialist weekly, and sample copies of the above leaflets. Address:

THE COMING NATION, Rich Hill, Mo.

COMRADES, PATRONIZE

FRED. SONNENSCHEIN.

UNION BARBER SHOP

88 E. 4th Street, New York.

LABOR ORGANIZATIONS

Standing advertisements of Trade Unions and other Societies will be inserted under this heading at the rate of $1 per line per annum.

CIGARMAKERS' PROGRESSIVE INTERNATIONAL UNION No. 90. Office and Employment Bureau: 64 East 4th Street. —District I. (Bohemian), 321 East 71st Street, every Saturday at 8 p. m.—District II. (German), at 50 E. First street, meets every Saturday at 8 p. m.—District III. meets at the Clubhouse, 206 East 86th Street, every Saturday at 7:30 p. m.—District IV. meets at 342 West 42d Street, every Saturday at 8 p. m.—District V. meets at 547 East 157th Street, every Saturday at 8 p. m.—District VII. meets every Saturday evening at 1432 Second Avenue.—The Board of Supervisors meets every Tuesday at Faulhaber's Hall, 1551 Second Avenue, at 8 p. m.

LOCAL 476, MACHINE WOOD WORKERS AND TURNERS, United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners of America. Meets every Tuesday at Bohemia Hall, 323 East Seventy-third street, New York. Financial Secretary, W. E. P. Schwartz, 27 Fulton avenue, Astoria, L. I.; Recording Secretary, Chas. Fiescler, 522 East Eighty-fifth street, New York.

Workmen' Children Death Benefit Fund of the United States of America.

The address of the Financial Secretary of Executive Committee will match for HENRY HAUPT, Bible House, Astor Place, N. Y. City, N. Y. on Arbeiter-Kranken- und Sterbe-Kassuer die Ver. Staaten von Amerika.

WORKMEN'S

Sick and Death Benefit Fund of the United States of America.

The above society was founded in the year 1884 by workingmen imbued with the spirit of solidarity and Socialist thought. Its numerical strength (at present composed of 120 local branches with 23,000 male and 4,500 female members) is rapidly increasing among workingmen who believe in the principles of the modern labor movement. Workingmen between 18 and 45 years of age may be admitted to membership in any of the branches upon payment of an initiation fee of $4.00 for the first class and $2.00 for the second class. Members belonging to the first class are entitled to a sick benefit of $9.00 for 40 weeks and of $4.50 for another 40 weeks, whether continuous or with interruption. Members belonging to the second class receive under the same circumstances and length of time $6.00 and $3.00 respectively. A burial benefit of $250.00 is guaranteed for every member, and the wives and unmarried daughters of members between 18 and 45 years of age may be admitted to the third class upon payment of an initiation fee of $1.00. Monthly assessments are levied for the three different classes of members of $1, 75 cents and 22 cents respectively. Members at large are not accepted, but all candidates have to join existing branches. In cities and towns where no branch exists, a new branch can be formed by 15 workingmen in good health, and men adhering to the above principles are invited to do so.

Address all communications to HENRY STAHL, Financial Secretary, 1-3 Third avenue, Room 2, New York City.

WORKMEN'S

Furniture Fire Insurance

Organized 1872. Membership 14,000.

Principal Organization, New York and Vicinity.

OFFICE: 64 East Fourth street. Office hours, daily, except Sundays and holidays, from 1 to 9 o'clock p. m.

BRANCHES: Yonkers, Troy, Binghamton, Gloversville, Elmira, Albany, Oneida, N. Y.

Paterson, Newark, Elizabeth, South River, Passaic and Trenton, N. J.

Adams, Boston, Holyoke, Springfield, Mass.

New Haven, Waterbury, Meriden, Hartford, and Bridgeport, Conn.

Philadelphia, Pittsburg, Allegheny, Lasern, Altoona, Scranton, Pa.

Chicago, Ill.

Cleveland, O.

San Francisco, Cal.

For addresses of the Branch bookkeepers, see "Vorwaerts." 259

CARL SAHM CLUB OF MUSICIANS' UNION. Meets first and third Tuesday of the month, 10 a. m., at Club House, 206 E. Eighty-sixth street. Secretary, H. Frey, 171 E. Eighty-seventh street.

PENNSYLVANIA.

WILKES-BARRE—Local Luzerne Co., Pa., Socialist Party meets in Central Labor Union Hall, 16 S. Grant street, on the second and fourth Sundays of each month, at 2:30 p. m. All Socialists are invited.

Have Your Printing Done at Union Printers.

F. W. HEISS, 69 GOLD ST., New York City.

Use this Label. Union Printer

Lowest Prices. — Mail Orders Promptly Attended to.

MASSACHUSETTS LEGISLATURE.

Socialist Representatives Score a Victory.

Win First Point on Carey's Referendum Bill—Senate Busy Killing Labor Bills Passed in House.

BOSTON, May 24.—The two Socialists won a decided victory in the House yesterday, a victory that caused a sensation and some uneasiness on the other side. After being voted down twice upon a rising vote, and a quorum being called in, Carey and and MacCartney succeeded in substituting the former's bill to provide for a constitutional amendment requiring the referendum on statutory legislation for the adverse committee report, by a vote on roll-call of 54 to 52. During the roll-call many members left the chamber, presumably to avoid going on record.

Careys' bill provides that upon the petition of 25,000 voters matters before the Legislature can be referred to a general vote of the people, and is broader in scope than the referendum bill defeated two weeks ago. Carey moved to substitute his bill for the committee report, and in support of the bill delivered one of the most brilliant speeches given during the present session. I regret that I am unable to give a report of the speech that would do justice to its eloquence or its strength of logic. At its conclusion Carey was applauded until the Speaker rapped for order. MacCartney answered the objections to the bill made by Fall of Malden, who was in charge of the bill for the Committee, in a forcible manner. Carey's speech, though only twenty minutes long, covered tersely every point that had been made against the referendum upon previous occasions and anticipated the arguments that might be made in the debate. The result was that the opponents of the bill had nothing to say, and Mr. Fall, in defending the Committee, acknowledged that what Carey had said was "God-given truth," but that the bill would take away the responsibility from the Legislature, and when that was done there might as well be no General Court.

Carey asked if Mr. Fall knew that the people of '76 took away the responsibility from George the Third when they inaugurated the Revolution. Fall replied by saying that that was an historic fact, but he did not wish to see a revolution again, if that was what the gentleman from Haverhill was after. Carey asked what Mr. Fall meant by revolution. A great many people confused the word with murder, riot, and bloodshed, whereas it did not necessarily mean that. He was not afraid of the word revolution; he wished it understood that, as a Socialist, he believed in revolution when brought about as the culmination to the evolutionary processes at work in society, assisted by the vital factors of education, agitation, and organization. Mr. Fall dropped the subject of revolution and said that while the Committee favored the referendum, yet it believed the time had not come to enact such a measure.

Andrew Cingmen Favor Bill.

Raway sen of Fall River supported the bill and quoted the organizations of labor as being in favor of it. Fall asked if it was not the previous bill providing for the referndum on constitutional amendments that organized labor favored. Jackson replied that the labor organizations favored this bill even more than the other. Fall said that he had been told by a representative of the labor unions that they did not favor this bill. Jackson asked the name of the gentleman, but Fall would not give it. Jackson reiterated that the trade unionists favored the bill, and warned the members of the House that, if the referendum was not granted the people, they would get it through another party or form a new one.

On the question of substitution, the rising vote showed 36 for to 43 against. Carey made the point of no quorum and 84 were shown to be present. Upon motion a sufficient number of members were brought in from the corridors to make a quorum, and, upon another rising vote, the bill received 58 for and 60 against. Carey asked for a roll-call which, being granted, resulting in 54 for and 52 against. The bill was declared substituted amid applause, and the two Socialists were the recipients of congratulations from many members for their successful fight. This unexpected turn will make the debate on the bill when it comes up for passage all the more interesting.

The Callender bill (in the form of a rule) to prohibit the solicitation of jobs by members of the Legislature from public service corporations was adopted and became a law last week. The bill will be remembered as the one to which Carey added a resolution early in the session requiring an investigation into the matter to see if any of the members were guilty of what the bill aimed to remedy—a resolution which Mr. Callender opposed and which was defeated. In the debate on the bill last week, MacCartney said the rule would be ineffective as the members would not inform on each other. It was true that the evil existed, and it was a most pitiable thing that the necessities of the working class were used to keep them voting for their enemies. He favored the bill, but it would not remove the cause of the evil, for no one believed that it would cease.

Senate Kills Labor Bills.

The Senate had a day of amusement last Monday when four labor bills were killed with brevity and dispatch. They came up one after another and were laid away on roll calls, going where all good labor bills go. The first called for specifications in textile factories relative to the intended length of "cuts." It was defeated by 11 to 26.

The next bill was to prevent the employment of women and minors in the manufacture of textile goods after 6 p. m. or before 6 a. m. The vote was 13 to 24.

The other were two bills of MacCartney's which had passed the House and came under the head of the employers' liability acts. One referred to injuries received upon or about railroads or railways, and provided that the breaking or falling out of a pin, coupler, etc., should be prima facie evidence of neglect on the part of persons or corporation owning or operating the railroad or railway. It got 11 votes as against 22.

The last bill to be murdered related to the "assumption of risks" by employees, and provided that in cases where an employee is injured because of a defect in machinery or want of repair of the same, the assumption of the risk of said defect or want of repair "shall be a question of fact and not of law"—that is, a question for the jury to decide, not for the judge. The question came on engrossment and it met death to the tune of 12 to 20.

On Tuesday the slaughter was renewed, and a bill requiring that a printed notice of the number of hours must be set up in each factory, and that the employment of persons at any other time than that stated on the printed notice should be a violation of the 58-hours-a-week law, received 15 votes against 16. On Thursday the Senate reconsidered its action on this bill and passed it to a third reading by 18 to 8. If it becomes a law it is because its value is inconsequential and something is wanted to offset the effect of the action on Monday, which aroused indignation all over the state, and which provides a fine opportunity for Socialists to show how the Upper House is used to kill bills that have been passed for political effect in the lower branch. In fulfilling this historic duty the Massachusetts Senate is right up with that of the national legislature and those of other states.

What is called "Candy Law" has at last been enacted, and now the people of the state can purchase candy, ice cream, and soda water on Sunday without infringing upon the puritanical code as laid down by the fathers. Who can say that Massachusetts lingers behind the procession after this?

WILLIAM MAILLY.

"WILL MAKE AN ISSUE OF IT."

Safe Proposition of Massachusetts Democrats.

Labor Record of Democratic Party in States Where It Has Power—Not Even Bryan Has Spoken for Southern Child-Slaves — Massachusetts Game a Simple One.

The Democratic party in Massachusetts has the effrontery to propose to "make an issue" in the coming campaign of the bill prohibiting night-work for child and female factory operatives, which was defeated in the state Senate last week. In this connection it will not be amiss to call attention to conditions now existing in the states of Alabama, Georgia, and the Carolinas, where the Democratic party holds full sway.

Cotton manufacturing has had a rapid growth in these states during the last few years and the danger of Southern competition is a club which New England mill-owners hold over the heads of their employees whenever the latter venture to ask for better wages or conditions. Yet it is a well-known fact that the Southern mills are largely owned by the same men who own the New England mills. In almost every Southern cotton-mill company there are some Northern capitalists and some Southern gentlemen, living together in peace and brotherly love and dividing the profits derived from the labor of tens of thousands of little children.

Conditions in Southern Mills.

A recent number of the "American Federationist" contains an article by Irene Ashby Macfadyen, who investigated the conditions in the Southern cotton mills under the direction of the American Federation of Labor. We quote some passages. Mrs. Macfadyen says:

"There are American children dragged into the mills when scarcely out of their babyhood, without education, without opportunity, being robbed of health morally and physically, forced to labor as in the days of negro slavery negro children never were. With their baby hands these little slaves are undermining the liberties of the future, not only of the cotton operatives of the South, but of the American working people; nor only of the working people, but of the community in which they for good or evil are to play so large a part."

Why Are They There?

In answer to the question, Why are they there? she continues: "They are there, it is said, 'to attract Northern capital'—a scathing comment on both those who sell and those who ask the sale. * * *

"There is but one of the Southern states in which there is a Labor Commission—North Carolina. Mr. G. B. Lacey, as Labor Commissioner, gives in his last report 7,605 children under fourteen employed in 261 mills. Taking this as a general average would give at least 20,000 children under fourteen in the textile mills of the South. * * *

"The Associated Press reported the president of the Whitney mills as stating before the Legislature that 30 per cent. of his operatives were under twelve years, which percentage he says referred only to the spinning room, but that is startling enough. Jas. K. Orr stated that 25 per cent. of his machinery was run by children under twelve years. These cold percentages do not give an adequate expression of their meaning. To the horrified visitor the mills appear to be swarming with little children.

"Light and Easy Work."

"The 'light and easy work' of which the managers speak is to stand on their feet all day before a spinning frame, where the threads may break at any moment, and when the thread breaks the spool stops and the thread is to be rejoined and the spool started again.

"'A baby has one frame to attend to, but most have two, many have three and some have four or five. The boys are generally doffers or sweepers, that is, they have to change the bobbins on the frames as they become full and substitute empty ones. In the exercise of their work they often run sixteen or seventeen miles a day with their trucks. The little sweeper plies a broom bigger than himself to perform these actions, trivial in themselves, uninterruptedly for twelve hours a day on the average, with only one-half hour for rest and food. We all remember how Lord Shaftesbury obtained powerful backing for his child labor law by inducing a gentleman in high place to repeat for fifteen minutes the very action required of the child. At the end of that time he was willing to vote for anything to put a stop to such barbarity. * * *

Babies Working Nights.

"Without regulation of hours there is no reason to prevent the mills working at night and when they can do so profitably they avail themselves of this permission. I have talked with a little boy of seven years who, worked for forty nights in Alabama, and another child not nine years old, who at six years old had been on the night shift eleven months. * * *

"A clerk in a cotton mill told me that little boys turned out at two in the morning for some trivial fault, afraid to go home, would beg him to allow them to go to sleep on the office floor.

"In Georgia it is a common sight to see the children of cotton operatives stretched on the bed dressed as they came from the mills in the morning, too weary to do anything but to fling themselves down for rest. * * *

Cutting Off Babies' Fingers.

"In one city mill in the South a doctor told a friend that he had personally amputated more than a hundred babies' fingers mangled in the mill. A cotton merchant in Atlanta told me he had frequently seen mill children without fingers or thumb and sometimes without the whole hand.

"So frequent are these accidents that in some mills applicants for employment have to sign a contract that in case of injury in the mill the company will not be held responsible, and parents or guardians sign for minors.

"No mill children look healthy. Any one that does by chance, you are sure to find out has but recently begun work. They are characterized by extreme pallor and an aged, worn expression infinitely pitiful and incongruous in a child's face. The dull eyes raised by the little ones inured to toil before they ever learned to play, shut out by this damnable system of child slavery from liberty and the pursuit of happiness, often to be early robbed of life itself, are not those of a child but of an imprisoned soul, and are filled, it always seems to me, with speechless reproach. There is unfortunately no question as to the physical debasement of the mill child. * * *

"All holidays are 'made up' in South Carolina. A strike occurred at one mill among some organized employees because they were required to make up Labor Day beforehand. They were locked out and starved into submission. * * *

"Mill children are so stunted, that every foreman, as you enter the mill, will tell you that you cannot judge their ages. Children may look, he says, to be ten or eleven, and be in reality fourteen or fifteen.

"A horrible form of dropsy occurs among the children. A doctor in a city mill, who has made a special study of the subject, tells me that 10 per cent. of the children who go to work before twelve years of age, after five years, contract consumption. The lint forms in their lungs a perfect cultivating medium for tuberculosis, while the change from the hot atmosphere of the mill to the chill night or morning air, often brings on pneumonia, which frequently, if not the cause of death, is a forerunner of consumption.

The "Pound of Flesh."

"How sternly the 'pound of flesh' is insisted on by the various employers, is illustrated by the case of two little boys of nine and eleven, who had to walk three miles to work on the night shift for twelve hours. One night they were five minutes late and were shut out, having to tramp the whole three miles back again. The number of accidents to those poor little ones who do not know the dangers of machinery, is appalling."

Democratic Responsibility.

All of these states have Democratic Governors and overwhelming majorities in the Legislatures; of their eight United States Senators seven are Democrats and of their thirty-six Representatives thirty-four are Democrats. The Democratic party cannot well disclaim responsibility for the conditions that are permitted to exist in the mills.

On the petition of trade unions, bills for restricting child labor have repeatedly been introduced in all these Democratic Legislatures. On the representations of mill-owners—Northern and Southern, Republican and Democratic—these bills have invariably been voted down.

The Senators and Representatives from these states plead eloquently for the poor Filipinos. Not one of them has ever raised his voice against the barbarities practised upon the children of his own state by the profit-grinders who supplied his campaign fund.

When, within the last month, the Chinese Exclusion Bill, demanded by trade unions of North and South alike, was under consideration in the United States Senate, Democrat McLaurin of South Carolina joined Republican Forsaker of Ohio in opposing it on the ground that it would interfere with the prosperity of the Southern mill-owners by alienating the Chinese purchasers of American cotton goods. Not a word did he find to say for the child-slaves of his own state.

Mr. Bryan has travelled through the South, has visited the cotton mills, has dined with the mill lords, has praised their enterprise. He has not spoken one word on behalf of the exploited babies whose unnatural labor is enriching those mill lords.

The Massachusetts "Issue."

Truly, it comes with a poor grace when the Democrats of Massachusetts propose to "make an issue" of the bill against night work of women and children. But it is easily explainable.

These gentlemen never thought of "making an issue" of a labor bill until within the last three or four years. Why do they do it now? Beause the Socialists, and especially Carey and MacCartney in the Legislature, by their vigorous fight against child labor and for all labor bills, have already made the issue and drawn it clear. Now the Democratic politicians would like to steal the credit.

A Safe Proposition.

Moreover, the Democratic politicians do not expect to carry the state of Massachusetts. They do not expect to control the Legislature. They do not expect to be in a position where they can be called on to "make good" on their campaign promises. It is safe for them, therefore, to take up such issues as this, and the mill-lords of Massachusetts will contribute to their campaign fund as well as to that of the Republican party, in order to "make themselves solid" with both, and to keep votes away, if possible, from the only party that takes up labor legislation, not as a means of catching votes, but as a means of serving its own class—the Socialist Party, which exists only as the political representative of the working class.

There are now two Socialists in the Massachusetts Legislature. It is not too much to say that the election of two more next fall would assure the passage of the night-work bill, Carey's child-labor bill, and many other important labor measures, by the fear which it would inspire among the old-party politicians. It is to be hoped that the Socialist delegation in the State House at Boston will be much more than doubled on next Election Day. Surely the workingmen of Massachusetts have had object-lessons enough.

LITTLE BETTER IN NEW JERSEY.

Condition of Child Glass-Workers in Republican State Matches That of Child Cotton-Workers in Democratic South.

To match the accounts of child slavery in the Democratic states of Alabama, Georgia, South Carolina, North Carolina, we may present extracts from a special article in the New York "World," describing conditions in the glass factories of the now safely Republican state of New Jersey. These conditions grew up under Democratic governors and legislatures and have continued under the Republican governors and legislatures which have had almost complete control during the last six years. The "World" correspondent says in part:

"There are child slaves in the South Jersey glass factories.

"These boys, from eight years old upward, often work one, two, and three 'shifts' out of the twenty-four hours.

"Many of the boys are living simply to carry bottles and close molds and eat and sleep and are receiving not one day's education.

"The boys often do not know their last names, and they do not know their ages. They can neither read nor spell, and many of them cannot speak English. Their reply to all questions about name or age is, 'Me fadder knows.'

"In every case so far as I could determine the factory owners have been furnished with affidavits from parents that the children employed are twelve years old and over, and none is received who gives in his age as less than twelve. * * *

"Whether or not parents are compelled to do this by the low wages received by themselves in the factories is one of the issues of the Minotola strike, and to make the situation a little clearer two statements may be set over against each other, each coming from Mr. Charles Jonas, proprietor of the Minotola glass factory, 325 of whose employees are now on strike. One statement is:

"'My men make as much as their skill permits them. It is all piecework. Skilled men can earn as much as they please.'

"Mr. Jonas' other statement is:

"'If two men apply to me for work and one has one or two or three children and the other has none, I take the man with children. I need the boys. They do work men cannot do. * * * I simply take the parents' word.'"

Mr. Jonas means, of course, that the boys do work that men cannot do for such low piece-wages and, therefore, so profitably to him.

As to the parents' responsibility, Mr. Jonas' statement is conclusive. Individually, the parents are helpless. The fathers cannot get work unless, in selling themselves, they will "throw in" their little boys.

The correspondent continues:

"However it is the boys get in the factory or why it is their parents consider it necessary for them to work, the fact that each South Jersey factory employs them and in most cases employs them under age remains. The school census of the state shows 5,519 children between the ages of eight and thirteen who are not attending school, and the estimate is that two-thirds of them are at work, mostly in factories. This is probably a small estimate. * * *

"There they stood, little lads as high as the blowers' elbows, clad in brown trousers and open flannel shirts; there they stood before the red mouthed doors of the furnace, breathing in the hot air, opening and closing molds, carrying bottles to the 'glory hole,' passing the completed product on the carriers, fifteen of them walking for hours at a time the little space close to the furnace, little red hands snapping together the heavy molds for the fresh blown metal to enter. And such faces! Healthy enough, brown enough, but the saddest, oldest little faces outside the tenements. There they were, with the green fields forty rods away all abloom with May and aflame with flowers, and yet spring means for them only more daylight hours in which to work. * * *

"In the next few minutes I discovered a quick succession of pathetic things, but I think the one that hurt the most is that these little lads, who have worked here a year and more together, do not know each other's names. When they are through work, they go home with their parents, a sad little procession among the noisy, good natured men and women with whom work is a duty—a sad little procession which ought not to know what work means.

"The strikers assert that if the men were paid more they would not be compelled to put their boys to work and that, though the employees are technically allowed to make all they can, really they are compelled to trade at the company's store, which is against the law, and are given poor positions if they do not trade there. In evidence of this they showed me in their tent a dozen envelopes from the More, Jonas & More factory in Bridgeton which, they said, had been given to them empty, bearing the statement: $9.01; store, $9.01. Or, where the account did not balance, the envelope read: $12.36; store, $10.30; coal, $2.06. This, they said, meant that they had been made to balance their account in coal."

And the working people of New Jersey had a chance to elect a Socialist governor last fall, and failed to do it!

ERIE AGAIN TO THE FRONT.

Socialist Workingmen Follow Up February Success.

Large and Enthusiastic County Convention Adopts a Class Struggle Platform and Nominates Strong Ticket—All Conditions Favorable.

ERIE, Pa., May 23.—The Socialist Party, which came so near capturing this city in February and gave such a serious scare to the old-party politicians, held a most successful county convention in the Court House last evening. There were over two hundred delegates representing the various branches of the party and some twenty-five local trade unions. Every union representative was chosen on his explicit declaration that he accepted the platform of the Socialist Party and severed all affiliation with other parties.

A. W. Garren, editor of the Erie "People," called the convention to order, and it organized with Harry C. Gould as Chairman, and W. G. Allen, J. E. Perry, and A. W. Garren as Secretaries. The work of the Credentials Committee was soon disposed of, as the most harmonious spirit prevailed.

The Committee on Platform and Resolutions, however, had a longer job, as nothing was "cut and dried," and the convention devoted the recess to listening to addresses by August Klenke, James Wilson, Jr., and other comrades.

The reading of the platform and resolutions, when reported, was punctuated with applause at every reference to the distinctive working-class character of the movement.

The Ticket.

The convention then proceeded to the nomination of the following ticket:

Congress—Fay O'Camb, a member of the Metal Polishers' Union.

Assembly (city)—George N. Warde, of Cigarmakers' Union.

Assembly (county)—David Walmsley.

Registrar and Recorder—W. G. Allen of Carpenters' Union.

Prothonotary—William E. Stevenson of Iron Moulders' Union.

District Attorney—Chas. Heydrick.

Clerk of Courts—Thomas J. Sullivan, Printing Pressmen's Union.

County Commissioners—Jas. Benson, James J. Reed, of Electrical Workers' Union.

Auditors—Elmer Perry of Clerks' Union; Murty O'Brien of Iron Moulders' Union.

Poor Director—John Mayer of Laboringmen's Union.

No Slate.

A local daily commented upon the unusual character of the convention. "It was an orderly and well conducted convention and the proceedings were devoid of the usual stereotyped features so common in the conventions of the old parties. There was no slate; the resolutions had not been prepared in advance and the officers were not agreed upon until after the convention was called to order."

The platform adopted gives a concise statement of the class struggle between Capital and Labor and the consequent necessity for political action by the working class to establish collective ownership of the means of production.

Our One Test.

Plank 10 draws the lines clear in the following words:

"The Socialist Party, when in office, always and everywhere until the present system of wage slavery is utterly abolished, will make the answer to this question its guiding rule of conduct:

"Will the legislation advance the material interests of the workers in the class struggle against capitalism? If it does, the Socialist Party is for it; if it does not, the Socialist Party is opposed to it."

Resolutions were adopted reaffirming the national and state platforms of the Socialist Party and endorsing the Socialist state ticket—for Governor, J. W. Slayton; for Lieutenant-Governor, J. Mahlon Barnes; for Secretary of Internal Affairs, Harry C. Gould. Further resolutions were as follows:

"We call the attention of the wage workers of this city and county to the manifestations of the class struggle between the laborers and the capitalists in the general unrest and distress of the working class. One hundred and forty-seven thousand miners in this state are battling against the oppression of the master class; locally, the electrical workers, carpenters, plumbers, painters, moulders, tinners, and longshoremen are in conflict with exploiters of labor, and everywhere throughout the land the same conditions prevail.

"We urge our brothers and comrades to maintain the solidarity of their ranks, pledging them our moral and financial assistance and urge them to transfer this unequal struggle from the economic field, where they are disadvantaged, to the political field, where by reason of their numerical strength our victory is assured.

No Fusion.

"We denounce boss rule and machine politics, but we refuse to abandon the integrity of the class struggle and betray our class by making a fusion or combination with any capitalist party, or organization, whose only purpose is to break the machine. We are waging our fight not only against the political machine, but against the economic system which makes the machine not only possible but inevitable, and we call upon all good citizens who would protest against the recent shameless exhibition of machine politics to rally to the support of the ticket this day nominated, and strike an effective blow at the very root of the evil.

"We point to the contemplated rape of public rights in the proposed making of our parks a switchyard for the Erie Electric Motor Company, as an inevitable sequence of the business administration as was constantly asserted by us in the late municipal campaign. We are unalterably opposed to the granting of any new or the extension of any old franchises to any private corporation for the exploitation of the people, insisting that the franchises for public utilities are, and of right should be, the property of the whole people and should be owned and operated by and for the whole people."

The political situation is peculiar. The Republican party is completely under the domination of a machine which runs things with a brazen effrontery that would put Matt Quay to blush. The Democratic politicians are talking of a "citizens' movement to break the machine," but the Socialist Party is now too strong to be disorganized by that game. Everything points to steady and rapid progress for Socialism in this part of the state, at least.

C. H.

OF COURSE HE SNEAKS.

Democratic Congressman McDermott, Trust Magnate and "Trust Smasher," Will Not Debate with Socialists.

The following letter has been sent to Democratic Congressman Allan L. McDermott of New Jersey, corporation lawyer, trust magnate, and "trust smasher," all in one:

"Congressman Allan L. McDermott.

"Dear Sir:—At an Anti-Beef Trust meeting held in this city last week and addressed by you as principal speaker, resolutions were adopted purporting to express the sentiments of the citizens of Jersey City. Five hundred persons (a charitable over-estimate of the attendance) cannot truthfully be construed to indicate the popular feeling of a municipality with a population exceeding 200,000.

"While we approve and heartily commend all assemblages to consider, discuss, and act upon grievances, we as emphatically condemn any attempt to herald meetings comprising only a small fraction of any locality and addressed by representatives of one party, as meetings representative of the entire community.

"The question of life, liberty, and the pursuit of happiness appeals to all mankind and can be solved by the people only. As trustification has become international, the problem has assumed an international character and its solution must be on an international, world-wide basis. The Socialist Party is an international organization with a voting strength of ten millions; thus establishing its claim to be the largest, strongest, and ever-increasing political organization on the globe. We therefore justly expect recognition in the meetings of the world's citizenship.

"The mighty problems disturbing this nation must be discussed, not in the legislative chambers, but in the forum of the people, where all may be heard irrespective of race, creed or political views. Therefore, if the welfare of this country and its people be uppermost in your heart, you will not hesitate to meet us, together with able exponents of other political beliefs, in public debate on the subject: 'The Trust Question and Its Solution.'

"We feel justified to expect a courteous reply of acceptance to this fair and unbiased request, feeling that you will thereby contribute your share to one of the most interesting and instructive gatherings ever assembled in this state.

"We would suggest that the expense of hall and advertising be met by an admission fee of 25 cents. A committee stands ready to meet you or your proxy for the arrangement of necessary details.

"We have addressed you in preference to others because of your high office, and awaiting a favorable reply within a reasonable time, we remain, very respectfully,

"COUNTY COMMITTEE,
"SOCIALIST PARTY.
"324 Central avenue, Jersey City, N. J."

The Jersey City "Journal," a Republican organ, which published the communication in full, and which had "roasted" both McDermott and his Beef Trust meeting, said editorially:

"The Socialists have a regular organization in this county and they have challenged Allan McDermott to a debate on 'The Beef Trust and Trusts in General.' There is nothing wrong about that, but they would be more likely to get attention if they retained him as counsel. He is a pretty busy man, and while he may be considered an expert on trusts, it is not at all probable that he will think it worth while to give them expert evidence for nothing. They might as well ask any other professional man or artisan to give them the result of his labor for nothing."

And this goes unchallenged by the American people! A so-called representative of the people is not supposed to give information to his constituents gratitously! And he is paid a salary of $5,000 from the pockets of those he is supposed to represent. Small wonder, then, that McDermott's answer was:

"House of Representatives,
"Washington, D. C.

"County Committee, Socialist Party:

"Gentlemen:—Your favor of May 5 received. I do not desire to participate in the debate therein suggested.

"Respectfully,
"ALLAN L. McDERMOTT."

BUY UNION LABEL GOODS.

A NEW LEAFLET.

What Do You Think of the Beef Trust?

10 copies ..... 5 cents.
50 copies ..... 15 cents.
100 copies ..... 25 cents.
1,000 copies ..... $2.00.

Postpaid, cash with order.

SOCIALIST LITERATURE CO.,
184 William St., New York.

Mosquito Bites

By PETER E. BURROWES

One of the keenest satires upon mankind that is offered on the face of contemporaneous history is the bomb in the chambermaid's house pail which now must always be found somewhere about the palace as part of the program in our properly regulated coronations. To think that the royal house of Spain should be entering, in 1902, upon a renewal of its lease for another reign with no protest from humanity, which it has so long disgraced and insulted, other than the regulation bomb shell from the police department is indeed satire. That some policeman or half idiot of an anarchist with his clumsy penn'orth of pop tries to deal the blow that should long ago have come from the hands of the race is as great an insult to our intelligence as the Spanish throne has been to our religion, morals, and humanity.

Perhaps the chief among President Roosevelt's numerous personal delusions is that he is one of the class known as men of action, and that his class, so described, is a law unto itself. He, though labelled "rough rider," being one of the greasiest mounts that ever reached the White House, seeks to disarm the clergymen's criticism of our foreign brutality rather because the clergymen ought to be its critics than because they are—thus: "Those who sit at ease at home should not be querulous on those who are doing strong men's work abroad." This is probably how the Spanish court spoke or felt in the time of Pizarro. When thus addressing the Presbyterian Assembly he makes a false claim for men of action or falsely thinks himself to be one of them. The world's producers are its men of action, and they are committing no crimes.

I am sceptical, I must confess it. I am growing sceptical of many things, and I pray you to pardon me if I be growing sceptical even as to the genesis of some of our great strikes. It seems that the railroad companies have altogether too great an interest in promoting some strikes not to promote them. With just so many strikes they seem to be able to do just so many chronic things. They are just able to supply all their orders and yet by these scares of artificial crises in production they are able just to keep famine prices up. They are just able to keep a surplus army of miners out of work at their own volition and their own charges and so avoid accumulated coals and a drop in the markets. They are able to keep the miners good and poor by mutual levies and they are able to do business in non-producing times by hitting the unions a la Fitzsimmons. By manipulating prices to consumers, at the proper nick of time, they are able to make poor city folk swear at the striker; and through a subsidized press the strike becomes a sermonette for the teaching of false political economy otherwise out of print. Out of some strikes, by dickering, they reveal a false leader among the men and so shake their confidence in one another. Take it all in all the gain to capital is so large and that to labor so small in some strikes that I doubt, terribly doubt, their genesis. Oh that the workers would unite for freedom at the ballot boxes!

One of the fly blows that has appeared, by affidavit, on the trust company's beef has been allowed to slip notice without much comment so far. The little maggot in question which labor leaders might well take up a little livelier is the statement sworn to concerning the companies' blacklists of employees and retailers not in the odor of beef trust sanctity. The ability of the modern trust to boycott society should prove a useful lesson to the people who don't own them but ought-er.

Take it all in all we may well congratulate President Roosevelt and the leaders of his party that in spite of the many forms of public corruption inherent in capitalism there is a community conscience and a sense of honor in the world purer than the conscience of the Republican party and stronger than the interests of the Democratic party which has led to Cuba's political freedom. Let us hope that Cuba may soon learn how little that means.

With a lie in their right hand and a lie in their left hand and a lie all over them, the professional prosperity howlers, who conspired to howl it through thick and thin to glorify the gold standard of republicanism, are up against several hard, cold, unresponsive stone walls that need explanation. Charity and church funds which are usually first to suffer in times of depression, are mildly rebuking an ungrateful prosperity for not showing up. Funds for foreign missions in New York were not for years so low as at the present time, and the great cathedral of Long Island City is quaking to its financial foundations. It is the strangest prosperity the world ever saw, it neither materializes nor spiritualizes.

The disgraceful mining disaster of Knoxville, Tenn., which could and should have been avoided, according even to the official reports that can be obtained in our days on such matters, grows more hideous as the days roll by. The mines have been officially declared as running on half air for a long time. What diabolism is not this greed capable of? Think of it. Three hundred human creatures, bearing all of them good English-American names (not foreign cattle, mark you, they might have struck) have been working their way to death on half air for months. But now, if you please, the company has discovered that some boy struck his pick into something and let the gas in. Was it a manuscript in a bottle or only a lie in a company's office?

The moral element of New York City is still being kept alive by Mr. Jerome on a diet of cold poulitices, some of which were applied last year to old police captains and other cases of ulcerous depravity. Taking it in from my side of morality I think Jerome's is about the meanest, if not the dirtiest little way, that ever the legal life of this great city was administered. Let us have something besides old sores and poultices, Mr. J.

That home-grown and most remarkable case of heredity cited at the ladies' temperance convention in New York City last Wednesday, should be sent to Comrade Ferri of Italy for his deep consideration and comment. A lady prone to intoxicants died here in Brooklyn seventy-five years ago. That she had other pronenesses besides liquor is proved by the circumstances cited at the convention. She left 800 descendants that are known to the authorities, 700 of whom have been in jail, and 342 of whom were drunkards, 127 were also immoral by their own confession, and 37 were hanged for murder. There is no evidence that the lady or her descendants were anarchists or Socialists. On the contrary, they would all seem to have been strict observers of the sacrament of marriage, since all their descendants are so well known. Here is matter for meditation.

One of the greatest stimulants to the moral enterprise of our industrious New York detectives appears to be menaced by the law's refusing to pay for the drinks which its officers find it necessary to put up in order to discover who drinks and to "run 'em in." If the city or county will not pay for the drinks, why then the Rev. Dr. Coldwater, D. D., or some other gentlemen in petticoats, must pay for the drinks, and so the crime must go or the pursuer must forego his virtue. To such crooked places get we who are troubled with overmuch corkscrew morality.

The most disgusting feature of the eight-hour law concession made to labor in the government service by congress the other day was the hypocrisy of the Republicans who fathered it and the hypocrisy of the Democrats who feared to oppose it. Whereas both sides of the capitalist bunco party smilingly felt and acknowledged that it was a farce for the galleries only.

It is the cowardice of the people and that only which keeps them in bonds. If the proletariat were to make one move together, aye, only half way together, no power on earth could keep them in wage slavery. In the United States Congress itself, the other day, the cobweb nature of a despot's power was manifested when Hendersen fell down and a few Republicans dared to pass by him over to the other side—then the bubble of that great terror, the Republican boss-the-house machine was broken. But what led to this courageous breaking away? Was it a sentiment for liberty? No. Was it the shrill voiced eagle and the spangled banner? No. A lot of beet sugar money saw its economic ruin at head and did more for freedom in a moment than all the Hoar-y twaddle of Massachusetts could do in years. Hurrah for the fellow that's hurt.

TO SUBSCRIBERS.
The date on which your subscription expires will be found on the wrapper.
The paper will be stopped on that day unless previously renewed.
No bills or receipts sent to individual subscribers.

The Worker.

AGENTS, ATTENTION!
Agents sending in subscriptions without remittance must state distinctly how long they are to run.
Agents are personally charged and held responsible for unpaid subscriptions sent in by them.
Only duly elected and approved agents acknowledged.

VOL. XII.—NO. 10. NEW YORK, JUNE 8, 1902. PRICE 2 CENTS.

A GREAT WEEK.

Socialists to the Front in Massachusetts Legislature.

The Two Socialist Members Command the Attention of the House and Put Old-Party Politicians on Record.

BOSTON, May 31.—The last four days have been the most strenuous, from a Socialist and labor standpoint, since the present legislative session began, and their results will be of the most far-reaching character. Each day a Socialist bill was up for consideration and the action of the Socialist members was highly gratifying to their comrades and embarrassing to the other fellows.

It was indeed a great week. The contest over the various measures grew more bitter as each day passed until it assumed a political significance that threatened to overwhelm the principles involved. Only the Socialists kept their equilibrium. The Democrats were hopelessly at sea, for they have neither principles to steer by nor a competent leader to guide them. They floundered this way and that till they landed in a bog of political doubt where explanations will weigh down their feet and make them still more helpless.

The Republicans were not much better off, except that they had the benefit of the majority and therefore less to fear. Their position can be imagined, however, when it is stated that Mr. Meyers, the Speaker of the House, was compelled to leave the chair and explain for the benefit of his terrified friends, his action of the day before, when he cast the deciding vote which killed (for that day, at least) the picketing bill and thus stirred up the biggest sensation of its kind during the legislative year.

This explanation became necessary because the Speaker is a candidate for the Republican nomination for Lieutenant-Governor, and from a personal and party standpoint his vote was practicaly a "defi" to the aroused labor sentiment throughout the state. But his "explanation" did not help matters, but if anything, made them worse for his side, for in this case, as in nearly all others, it will probably be found that the politician who has to explain is lost.

What Two Men Can Do.

The power to be exercised in a body like the Massachusetts Legislature by two Socialists who know their business was never more forcibly brought home than it was this week. We saw the men who aspire to the title of statesmen and representatives of the people hunted from cover and compelled to apologize, defend, and equivocate until their very friends must have blushed for shame. That their position was galling to more than one was evidenced by the attacks made upon the two Socialists upon personal grounds, attacks which were met in a way that carried worse confusion to those that made them. It requires no exaggerating to say that of all those who participated in the debates the Socialists alone came forth unashamed.

On Monday Carey's bill requiring that when there is a strike or lockout in any factory or workshop the employer shall state the fact when advertising for other employees was debated and defeated. On Tuesday MacCartney's bill providing for the referendum in cities was also defeated after a warm debate. On Wednesday the famous bill introduced by Carey to legalize picketing was defeated without debate on a tie vote, the Speaker making the tie with the first vote he has cast this session. On Thursday this bill was reconsidered and passed to a third reading, after a debate occupying the morning session, during which the Speaker left the chair, for the first time in two years, and explained his vote of the day before, and to which the morning papers had given great prominence, in view of the Speaker's political aspirations. In the afternoon Carey's bill for the referendum on statutory legislation, which had been substituted for the adverse committee report on Friday of last week, was refused passage to a third reading after a debate extending over nearly the whole afternoon.

Carey's Strike Bill.

The Committee on Labor had reported adversely on the strike advertising bill and Carey, in moving to substitute the bill for the report, called attention to specific instances where workingmen had been decoyed into going into strike localities through the misrepresentation of manufacturers and their agents—how agents get a percentage for securing men under false pretenses, how workingmen, through necessity, are led to listen to the stories of these agents, how they find upon reaching their destination, that they are expected to become traitors to their class or tramps, unless the strikers give out of their scanty treasury to send the victims home. He cited what was done during the teamsters' strike, and what had been done within the preceding week at Plymouth, where weavers were brought from Tilton, N. H., to take the place of strikers, but how the majority of these men had manfully refused to go to work when they learned the conditions. He had been in Tilton a few days ago, and learned how the woollen company's agent had denied there was a strike on in Plymouth. This was a universal practise, and it had been recognized in Illinois, where a law similar to that proposed by the bill had been enacted. If it was necessary to legislate to prevent misrepresentation in the sale of canned lobsters, why was it not necessary to legislate, he asked, where the interests, and often the lives, of human beings were directly affected?

Attack on Socialists.

Callender of Boston replied in a bitter and sarcastic speech, defending the Committee and ridiculing the Socialists. Two years ago, he alleged, the gentleman from Haverhill was advocating bloody revolution; now he wanted peaceful revolution; if things kept on we might see the gentleman from Haverhill acting as chairman of the Committee on Mercantile Affairs and defending the chop suey trust, while the gentleman from Rockland would be seen going around with a banner on his back marked "Sold out to Raymond"—a local hit which raised some laughter.

Jackson of Fall River, the best of the "labor representatives," said he could not allow the gratuitous insults of the gentleman from Boston to pass without protest. Carey had stated the case for the bill truthfully and fairly. This was a bill which the workers wanted, for they were continually being shown the need of it. If the workmen were unable to make contracts for themselves it was because they were too poor to enforce justice and that was their misfortune, and not their fault. If the people had not secured the referndum this year they would some other year, let those oppose it who might.

MacCartney followed, citing a case reported in a morning paper of men who had been deceived into going from New York to the Pennsylvania strike center, but had turned back on learning of the strike. In reply to Callender's suggestion that workingmen had ample protection in their right to sue for damages if they were deceived, he sarcastically remarked that he did not believe even Mr. Callender (who is a lawyer) with all his friendship for Labor, would take such a case.

Howard of North Brookfield supported the bill, citing facts to support it. He did not claim to be an estecial representative of Labor, was not a member of a trade union, and would probably never be one; but this was not a question of unionism but of simple justice. Mr. Callender had sought to befog the issue. If the manufacturers did not want the bill, was not that a sign that they were willing to deceive?

Schofield of Ipswich, a member of the Committee on Labor, said he believed the bill would do harm to the workingmen, but did not explain how. He wanted to "preserve the rights of both capitalists and laborers."

Trying to Straddle.

When Carey was next recognized the members turned in their seats to listen. They expected something spicy—and they got it. Carey first likened Schofield to the Colossus of Rhodes, spanning a river which divided Labor and Capital, with a foot on each bank. The great difficulty was that the banks kept growing farther apart, and unless Schofield hurried up he would be required to perform an act quite beyond his powers. As for the gentleman from Boston, he never heard him (Carey) preaching bloody revolution. No man, living or dead, had ever heard him do that. If the man who said that was out in the street, instead of in this House, he would be tempted to call him a lineal descendant of Ananias. As it was, he would simply say that the gentleman was mistaken. Continuing, he set the House in roars of laughter with his rejoinder to Callender's attempted ridicule.

Democrats Kill the Bill.

Donahoe of Fall River, another "labor representative," defended the committee report and talked as if he was trying to square himself for acquiescing in it. Keenan of Boston, one of the leaders (save the mark) of the Democrats in the House, also opposed the bill and seemed to be indignant because the Socialists insisted upon pushing such measures. MacCartney closed the debate.

On a viva voce vote the noes had it, and on a rising vote 18 voted for the bill and 80 against it. Carey asked for a roll-call, but only 26 responded, and that settled it. The light vote was accounted for by the Democrats answering the call of Keenan not to vote for the bill.

Referendum Bill.

The debate on MacCartney's referendum bill was even more interesting. MacCartney spoke ably in its support. The bill sought to give 15 per cent. of the citizens in any city the right to have local affairs submitted to a general vote; it was founded upon the principle of the old town meeting which Thomas Jefferson, John Fiske and Bryce had all commended. The city is the epiphany of the present civilization, and around them would wage the battle of the future. If corruption exists anywhere it manifests itself most in the cities, and corruption exists there because a few men own the franchises and desire special privileges. This bill gives the citizens the right to present petitions for the referendum to the aldermen, so that the power to vote away franchises should be controlled. The trend of the people's thought was toward a wider democracy, and the early difficulties attendant upon the attempts at democracy were removed by the increased facilities in communication. He could not see how the members could vote against this bill in view of their votes on the referendum last week.

Jewett of Worcester opposed the bill, his principal objection being that it would place every public service cor-

(Continued on page 4.)

CONNECTICUT NOMINATES.

State Convention Held at New Haven.

John W. Brown Heads the Ticket of Socialist Party, with Sweetland for Congressman-at-Large.

The State Convention of the Socialist Party of Connecticut was held in New Haven on May 30. Eleven branches in nine towns were represented. Geo. A. Sweetland of Bristol presided and W. E. White acted as Secretary.

The officers' reports showed fourteen branches in existence with 264 members. Receipts of the state organizations since December 1 were reported as $118.70 and the present balance on hand as $14.20.

The Platform Committee recommended the adoption of the national platform, with some additional declarations on state matters, which was adopted. The following resolutions were also carried:

"Resolved, That we pledge our support to The Worker and adopt that paper for the publication of party news relating to Connecticut and for distribution by the State Committee, and urge the local branches to do the same.

"Whereas, A Socialist daily paper devoted to organized labor is the most effective medium for the advancement of the Socialist movement,

"Resolved, That we pledge our efforts to the support of the daily Socialist paper to be started by our comrades in New York City and urge local branches to form clubs of regular contributors to the fund for that purpose."

An address to the trade unions was adopted setting forth the essentially political character of the labor question and the necessity for independent political action on Socialist lines.

The following ticket fas unanimously nominated:

For Governor—John W. Brown.

For Lieutenant-Governor — Anton Frank.

For Secretary—W. E. White.

For Treasurer—Irving G. Chatfield.

For Comptroller—Charles T. Peach.

For Attorney-General—George A. Gowdy.

For Congressman-at-Large—George A. Sweetland.

State headquarters were fixed at New Haven, with Rockville as the seat of the Board of Appeals and Waterbury as the place of the next convention. A. B. Cornelius was chosen as State Secretary; Eugene Toomey, Treasurer; W. E. White, Organizer; George A. Sweetland, National Committeeman.

A resolution of sympathy with the striking miners was unanimously adopted.

An attempt will be made in this campaign to carry our literature into every corner of the state and bring our principles before all the people.

AND OHIO, TOO.

State Convention at Columbus Nominates a Ticket.

Ohio Socialists also held their state convention on Decoration Day at Columbus. The report reaches us too late to be presented in full this week. The gathering seems to have been a most enthusiastic one. The reports showed a party membership of 822, divided into twenty-nine locals.

The following ticket was put in nomination:

For Secretary of State—Max S. Hayes.

For Judge of the Supreme Court—Dr. G. P. Maxwell.

For Food and Dairy Commissioner—George Flumerfelt.

For Member of the Board of Public Works—W. C. Edwards.

A fuller report will be given next week.

ONE MORE ELECTED.

Socialist Party Gets a Councilman in Linton, Indiana.

LINTON, Ind., May 30.—The special election for Councilman in the Third Ward Monday resulted in a victory for the Socialist candidate, Edward Price. The vote stood: Price, 109; Griffin, 77; Harris, 40.

Two weeks ago The Worker announced that, in the regular city election at Linton, Comrade Price beat the Republican candidate and tied with the Democrat, making a special election necessary.

GAIN IN VIRGINIA.

NEWPORT NEWS, Va., May 28.—The Socialist vote here grows slowly but surely. In the election of 1900 we had 15 votes for Debs for President. In that of 1901, our candidate for Governor polled 27. In the recently held city election, E. K. Emerson, our candidate for Mayor, is conceded 67. We believe that he had more. Our other candidates ran higher: Clark, for Treasurer, 128; McKnight, for City Sergeant, 221; Hall, for High Constable, 217. W. G.

THIS IS SUPPOSED TO BE A JOKE.

Butcher—"Well, my little dear, an' what do you want?"

Little Dear—"Tain't wot hi wants! Hi wants a dimind dog collar, an' a bro'm, an' a perminint parse to the Music 'All, an' a seat at the corinashun. But it ain't wot hi wants, it's wot muvver wants, an' she wants 'arf a pound off the scraggy end of a neck o' mutton, on the nod till Monday."—Punch.

THE WESTERN MINERS ARE FOR SOCIALISM.

Convention of Western Federation, After Long Deliberation, So Declares.

Eugene V. Debs Sends the News—Subject Fully Discussed—Presidents Boyce and McDonald Support Proposition—Action Creates Sensation.

DENVER, Colo., June 3.—The convention of the Western Federation of Miners in session here to-day adopted a platform and declared in favor of the Socialist Party and International Socialism.

EUGENE V. DEBS.

The foregoing dispatch indicates what will be to all Socialists a most pleasing outcome of the exhaustive deliberations of the national convention of the Western Federation of Miners at Denver. The convention met on Wednesday, May 28, and the Socialist proposition, supported by President Boyce of the W. F. of M. and President McDonald of the Western Labor Union, was taken up on the following day. It was evidently exhaustively discussed, for the decision was not reached till the seventh day of the convention.

A Momentous Step.

If The Worker is not mistaken, the dispatch indicates that the Western Labor Union, which includes other trades besides the miners, coincides in the action taken. These organizations, which form a body independent of the American Federation of Labor—and to which the latter is bitterly hostile—comprise most of the unions of the Rocky Mountain states and territories, from Montana to Arizona, in which, of course, mining is the chief industry.

The workingmen of this region are energetic and determined fellows—as they showed at Cripple Creek, in the Cœur d'Alenes, and elsewhere, and their decision to enter the political field on Socialist lines is a most important one. There may be other parts of the country where Socialism as a theory is better understood, but the Rocky Mountain workingmen have the true proletarian instinct, which goes far to make a sound and effective movement.

Capitalists Alarmed.

We have received at this office several copies of Denver and Colorado Springs papers issued during the earlier days of the conventions, and they show that great excitement was produced in capitalist circles by the fear of the action which has now actually been taken. These capitalist papers warn the men that if they declare for Socialism they will destroy their unions, that they will endanger law and order, and so on to the end of the chapter. The workingmen knew what this advice was worth.

DEBS IN DENVER.

Addresses Big Meeting at Labor Convention.

National conventions of three labor organizations began their sessions at Denver, Colo., on May 27—the Western Federation of Miners, the Western Labor Union, and the United Association of Hotel and Restaurant Employees. The evening was given to a great mass meeting in Coliseum Hall, where over 3,000 workingmen listened to addresses by Lieutenant-Governor Coates, Father Hagerty, and Eugene V. Debs.

A Rousing Reception.

The Colorado Springs "Gazette" says: "Mr. Debs was given a rousing reception, in fact the applause accorded him has seldom been equalled in length to any public speaker ever heard in Denver."

Comrade Debs said in part:

"We are in the midst of one of the greatest industrial revolutions the world has ever known. Humanity is struggling on the verge of the greatest political shake-up in the history of the United States. What is known as the competitive system in our country must go and with it all factional classes. We have the fruits of this competitive system before us for inspection. It has given us millionaires and paupers; palaces and hovels; robes and rags. The importance of organizing is so conceded that it need not be discussed. The one thought should be the use that shall be made of organized power. You have tried strikes, you have tried the lockouts, and you have been defeated and blacklisted. The time has come when workingmen must learn to combine their forces on the political field, where they would find themselves absolutely invulnerable. In that field, where they would find one capitalist you find ten workingmen.

Refers to Coal Strike.

"As I speak here to-night an army of 147,000 coal miners are on strike in Pennsylvania. The average wages they receive is 78 cents per day, and yet they have been organized for years. They have at all times looked forward to some time when they could command enough power through striking to bring about better wages for themselves and better homes for their families. These miners ought to get together, 147,000 strong, and adopt a resolution to obey the laws of the state of Pennsylvania, but they should also send word to the governor of [illegible] vania who has ordered [illegible] together and watch them, that they [illegible] brought the same men, want to, to walk along the streets and public thoroughfares without being shot down, and if there is any shooting done while they are walking along these highways, they will also take a hand in it. These miners voted the Republican ticket and they gave this man two hundred and some odd thousand majority and he is now rewarding them in the usual capitalist way, by returning bullets for bullets. When they learn to vote as they strike they will then be a power themselves.

"You are having a strike in Denver, and I hope the wood workers will win. But I also wish that they would adopt the better way of settling these disputes. That is, through the ballot. I notice that the mill owners claim they will not suffer. Of course they will not. There are only a few of them, while there are thousands of you. In a struggle of this kind it is a contest between a human stomach and a steel bank vault. Centralization is the order of the day. The capitalists understand that in this system of competition the human being is the cheapest commodity. The whole battle is being fought out over the tool of production."

The Trust Question.

Turning to the question of trusts, the speaker said:

"The middle class will fail in their attempt to destroy the trust, because they are trying to get into the capitalist class themselves. But where one of them reaches the capitalist class, hundreds will drop back into the working class. The middle class is trying to stem the onward march of Socialism, but I want to say the time will come when they will embrace Socialism. This convention has a grand opportunity. If you will adopt the doctrines of Socialism, your actions will reverberate around the world, and you will prove to the east that the west has accepted a chance to better herself. I know if you attempt this it will meet with opposition, but have the courage of your convictions, and allow those men who are opposing this movement to go. They are only opposing it because some capitalists who are politicians keep them in political jobs. I am no reformer. So far as I am concerned, I intend to end, not mend, the system. I don't like the word 'reform.' It savors of suspicion. I prefer revolution. I prefer agitation instead of stagnation."

Persecution and Progress.

Socialism, he said, is unpopular as yet. Socialists are condemned and sometimes persecuted. But this is the way with every great forward movement. "Lovejoy was mobbed in Illinois for protesting against slavery and 60 years afterwards the children of the men who mobbed him erected a monument to his memory. When John Brown was mobbed he was looked upon as the greatest criminal of that day. Ten years later he was called a misguided fanatic. Ten years after that the people sympathized with him and a few years ago the state of New York purchased John Brown's homestead and considered it the most sacred spot in the state.

"Socialism proposes that you miners shall own your mines, that the ore you dig shall be yours. Who owns the ore you are mining to-day?"

"Mark Hanna," yelled out someone.

"You workingmen seem to want him to own everything, by the way you vote for him," retorted Debs. "The most pitiable sight I ever witnessed was a labor leader standing around on the outer edges of the legislative hall trying to get the members to place some unenforceable labor law on the statute books. The thing to do is to send the right man to the legislature in the first place."

GREETING TO WESTERN MINERS.

By order of the National Committee of the Socialist Party, National Secretary Greenbaum sent the following telegram of greeting, which was read at the opening session of the Western Federation of Miners:

"The victims of the slave republic send mute appeal to you from North, South, East, and West. There are Cœur d'Alenes in Pennsylvania and Bull Pens in West Virginia. The power of industrial organization coupled with political organization is irresistible. Mindful of these things will you strike the blow for Socialism and Freedom?"

The question of declaring for independent political action on Socialist lines was taken up in both the Western Federation of Miners and the Western Labor Union conventions—the presidents, Edward Boyce and Daniel McDonald, leading the argument in favor.

MASSACHUSETTS' ACTIVITY.

The Massachusetts State Committee has just sent to this office an order for twenty thousand copies of our leaflet, "What Do You Think of the Beef Trust?" to be sent to clubs throughout the state. That "looks like business," doesn't it? Massachusetts is going to make a record for Socialism this fall, if we may judge from the awakened activity of the party organization.

LISTEN GLADLY TO SOCIALISM.

Striking Miners Crowd to Hear Spargo Speak.

In Four Days He Addresses Eleven Thousand Persons—Socialism Loudly Cheered.

WILKES BARRE, Pa., May 30.—The reception accorded by the striking miners to John Spargo, who was sent down to the strike field by the Pennsylvania State Committee of the Socialist Party was a surprise to everyone. His speaking has mostly been in the open air and the crowds that gathered have been so great as to tax his excellent voice and his great physical energy to the utmost.

On Monday evening Comrade Spargo spoke at Wilkes Barre to a street crowd of more than six hundred people. The following afternoon at Luzerne he addressed an audience nearly as large. Tuesday night he was in Nanticoke and fully eight hundred hearers cheered his exposition of Socialist principles.

Wednesday afternoon he had a meeting seven hundred strong at Duryea. That evening it was intended to hold an open-air meeting at Pittston, but on account of the weather it had to be abandoned. The meeting was held instead in the Union Hall, which holds only about three hundred and was packed to the doors. It was a rousing success. The workingmen were so pleased that Spargo was at once asked to come for the Labor Day celebration to be held by the Pittston Central Labor Union on September 1.

Thursday afternoon at Edwardsville the enthusiasm ran higher than ever. Fully 2,500 men listened to his address—and, as in every other place where he spoke, they got straight Socialism.

Five Thousand Hearers.

But Thursday evening at Plymouth brought the climax. When Spargo arrived at the place announced for the meeting he found the main street thronged with people eager to hear him. The street cars had the greatest difficulty in getting through the crowd. People had been coming in from all the surrounding districts for two or three hours.

The boys got a wagon and drew the crowd into a side street, filling it from side to side and almost from end to end of the block. The people covered porches, balconies, roofs, and were literally wedged in. The rest of the town seemed to be deserted. It was a sight worth beholding—a great sea of eager faces, men and women, hanging on every word. Even the clergymen were there, and some of them joined in the cheering.

After four days of speaking to large crowds in the raw cold wind, Comrade Spargo was, as may be imagined, pretty thoroughly tired out. But he rose to the occasion and for over an hour he held the rapt attention of from five to six thousand people, the vast majority of them worn with toil and anxiety, to whom the ideas of Socialism came as a glad ray of hope in the darkness of their present struggle. He held their rapt attention—except when, as happened again and again, they broke out into tumultous cheers and applause.

Enthusiastic Greeting.

When the speaker finished, "Three cheers for Spargo" rang out again and again—and they meant "Three cheers for Socialism," too. Hundreds crowded about to shake hands with him and groups of fifty or sixty could be seen gathering here and there on all the neighboring streets to discuss the question long after the meeting was closed.

Never has Socialism been so widely discussed in this region as it now is, and never so favorably. The miners want more speakers and papers and leaflets.

Spargo's presentation of the subject is clear and forcible and, at the same time, he sets forth the theories of revolutionary Socialism in the most uncompromising form. And the people understand and approve it. They will respond far better to this than to any sugar coated "reform" argument.

At Duryea the old S. L. P. men were delighted. They saw how they had been deceived in regard to our movement, and a number of them assured Comrade Spargo that they wanted no more fighting between the parties. "You're all right," was the sentiment, "and we're with you."

WIN IN SCHOOL ELECTION.

DAVENPORT, Wash., May 23.—The recent school election was somewhat exciting. The main issue was "should the citizens of Davenport support a Director who was in favor of a principal with progressive ideas, or one who favored a sectarian and unprogressive person for the principalship." The Socialists worked hard and succeeded in electing Comrade H. V. Martin as School Director for a term of three years. Comrade J. H. Perkins will now get the position of professor of the High School if he desires it. The ballot was close; 267 votes were cast for Comrade Martin and 260 for his opponent. A. S.

—C. L. Fox of Portland, Me., is one of the comrades who always keeps some of The Worker paid subscription postals in his pocket ready to catch a new subscriber at a minute's notice.

TO THE STRIKING MINERS.

You mine-workers of Pennsylvania, West Virginia, and Michigan who are on strike, the Socialist Party of this country has a message to you.

Very few of you are Socialists, as yet Probably most of you do not know much about Socialism, having had little chance to learn anything about it except from its enemies. No doubt many of you are more or less prejudiced against it.

But now you are showing an interest in the subject—as is quite natural, because you are engaged in a great battle in which all Socialists sympathize with you, and because Socialism is now "in the air," is being thought of and talked of everywhere.

What has Socialism to do with your strike? What does the Socialist Party want to do? How would it solve the problem you are now facing? We shall try to answer these questions in a few words.

Who made the mines? The coal was in the earth before the human race began. No man made that. Who sank the shafts and built the machinery and made it possible to get the coal to the surface and bring it to the people who need it?

It was you and men like you who did that, was it not? It is the joint labor of many thousands of wage-workers, that digs the coal and transports it. It is your united labor that creates all the value in the mines.

But you, who have made and are making the mines, do not own them, nor any share in them. A few capitalists, who do not dig coal nor do any other useful labor, own the mines that you have made.

You cannot work in the mines without the permission of these capitalists. They are willing to let you do the hard, unpleasant, dangerous work—provided they get a satisfactory profit. When they cannot get a satisfactory profit, they will not let you work. You might be hungry and eager to work. The rest of the people might be cold and eager for fuel. If the Coal Barons could not get what they call a "fair" profit, they would calmly see you starve in idleness and see other people suffer from cold.

Every day you work you create for the capitalist from two to four times as much as you get back in wages. That is why you who work are always poor and they who do not work are always rich. It is because you do not own the means of production—the things which you have to use in your work—because, therefore, you are dependent on these owners of the earth for opportunity to work and live at all.

What is true of you in the mines is true of other wage-workers on the railroads and steamship lines, in the mills and factories, wherever useful work is being done. The workers are slaves and the idlers are masters—and all because one class owns the means of production (the land, mines, railroads, ships, factories, machinery, and the like, and can thus dictate terms to the other class which uses these things.

In order to better your condition even a little, under this system—in order to get even a little larger share of the wealth you produce—you have to go on strike. A strike means suffering and hardship to you. It means loss to the capitalists, but not suffering or hardship. They can hold splendid banquets while you are on strike. That is because your labor has already created for them more wealth than they could possibly use up. You do not hold banquets these days.

A strike means danger to you. You are going to do your best to win, and workingmen of other trades are going to help you. But, at the best, you are not sure of winning. You know that some of you may be blacklisted if you lose. You have courageously taken the risk.

But is not something terribly wrong when you have to suffer such hardships and brave such dangers in order to get just a little larger share of the product of your labor? Socialists say the system is utterly wrong. We want to change it entirely—to secure to every man the right to work and to receive, not a larger share, but the whole of the value of his product. We appeal to you to help make this change.

The reason you cannot work without asking the capitalists' permission, the reason you get only a small share of the value you create when you do work, is that the mines are held as private property by the capitalist class.

The way to remove these evils, then, is to remove their cause—to abolish private ownership and establish public ownership of the mines and other means of production, joint ownership by the people whose joint labor creates and operates them.

But, you ask, How are we going to make this change? We answer by asking, How do the capitalists carry out their will? How do they rule you for their own profit? How do they oppose you when you dare to strike?

They use the power of government. Government makes and executes laws for their benefit and sets judges on the bench to issue injunctions against you and employs police and militia and regular troops to enforce the laws and, if need be, to club you or put you in prison or shoot you as they did at Lattimer. When the mine-owners violate the laws for the sake of profit, as they did at Fraterville, and hundreds of miners are killed, the police do not club the mine owners, the judges do not send them to prison.

Now if the power of government is so useful to the capitalists, why should it not be equally useful to you? If it is now used to make slaves of you, why should it not serve to set you free?

For every capitalist in the land there are ten wage-workers. In a strike or a lockout, one capitalist is a match for hundreds of workingmen. But on Election Day, each workingman is as powerful as Morgan or Rockefeller. Whenever the working class decides to use its political power it can emancipate itself.

That is what the Socialist Party is in the field for. It proposes that the working class shall take hold of the government—too long left in the hands of coal barons, railroad kings, and corporation lawyers—shall elect its own men, on its own platform, without any connection or compromise with capitalist parties, to legislative, executive, and judicial offices in town and state and nation, to put an end to wage slavery by restoring to the people the means of production which they have created, which they operate, and without which they cannot live.

This is Socialism. Will you not vote for it next November? Will you not work for it from now till the day of victory?

THE TIME FOR SOCIALISTS TO ACT.

The center of activity in the labor movement at the present moment is in the anthracite fields of Pennsylvania.

The miners have leisure now for listening to speeches, for reading and thinking. They are in the mood to give a favorable hearing to Socialism. The experience through which they are passing is an object lesson, which needs only the comment of Socialist propaganda to crystallize their hopes and fears, their sense of wrong and their desire for a better condition, into definite Socialist thought and feeling.

Comrades who live in that region and others who have visited it since the strike began report that the strikers listen with thoughtful attention to our speakers, and that they are eager for Socialist papers, leaflets, and pamphlets, that they may get a full knowledge of our principles and be able to act wisely on Election Day.

Comrades, this is an occasion that calls for action on your part. The iron is hot; it is for you to mould it into a weapon against capitalism.

The Pennsylvania State Committee wishes to send more speakers into the field, it wishes to send thousands of papers and leaflets for free distribution among the miners, to show them the peaceful and easy way to emancipation.

It takes money to pay expenses for speakers, to print and mail literature. You are called upon to supply the money.

Do not wait till next week. Send now—five dollars, one dollar, whatever you can afford, to the Treasurer of the Pennsylvania State Committee, J. Edelman, 807 W. Cambria street, Philadelphia. Every cent will be put to good use in the teaching of Socialist principles.

TIMELY LEAFLETS.

The Socialist Literature Company has the following timely leaflets, which should be circulated widely.

1. "Why Socialists Are with the Striking Miners."—Price, $1 a thousand.—Good to distribute anywhere, but especially in the mining regions.

2. "What Do You Think of the Beef Trust?"—Fifty copies, 15 cents; 100 copies, 25 cents; 1,000 copies, $2.

Cash must accompany all orders. Address Socialist Literature Company, 184 William street, New York City.

See also, on third page, advertisement, headed "An Offer."

—The capitalist labors neither with his hands nor with his head.—Lafargue.

The Worker.

AN ORGAN OF THE SOCIALIST PARTY

(Known in New York State as the Social Democratic Party.)

PUBLISHED WEEKLY

AT 184 WILLIAM STREET, NEW YORK,

By the Socialistic Co-operative Publishing Association.

P. O. BOX 1512.

Telephone Call: 302 John.

TERMS TO SUBSCRIBERS.

Invariably in advance.

One year	50c.
Six months	25c.
Single copies	2c.

Bundle rates:

Less than 100 copies, per copy	1c.
100 copies	75c.
200 copies	$1.20
300 copies or more, per hundred	50c.

Weekly Bundles:

5 per week, one year	$1.75
10 per week, one year	3.25
25 per week, one year	7.50
50 per week, one year	12.50

Address all business communications, and make money orders, checks and drafts payable to The Worker.

Receipts are never sent to individual subscribers. Acknowledgment is made by changing the number on the wrapper, the week following receipt of money.

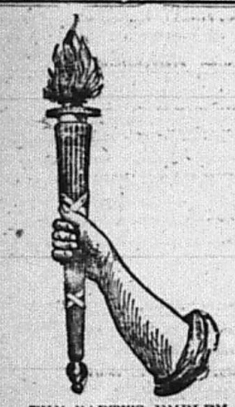
Communications concerning the editorial department of the paper should be addressed to the Editor.

All communications should be written with ink and on one side of the paper; words should not be abbreviated; every letter should bear the writer's name and address; and matter should be put in as few words as possible, consistently with clearness. Communications which do not comply with these requirements are likely to be disregarded.

Entered as second-class matter at the New York, N. Y., Post Office on April 6, 1891.

SOCIALIST VOTE IN THE UNITED STATES.

In 1888 (Presidential)	2,068
In 1890	13,331
In 1892 (Presidential)	21,157
In 1894	33,133
In 1896 (Presidential)	36,564
In 1898:
S. L. P.	82,204
S. D. P.	9,545
In 1900 (Presidential):
S. D. P.	96,918
S. L. P.	33,450



THE PARTY'S EMBLEM.

A correspondent, referring to the Ohio Republican convention, asks, "Does the Honorable Pyrkus Hanna Andall the people for fools?" He does, and that is where he makes his mistake. The working people learn slowly, but they do learn.

SOCIALISM IN THE ROCKIES.

The victory of the labor ticket over the so-called "law and order" party in Wallace, Idaho, is hailed by the Colorado "Chronicle" as being "a severe rebuke to the pernicious deputy system" and the editor thinks that it presages the downfall of that system in next fall's election in the Coeur d'Alenes."

To those of our newer readers who do not fully understand the allusion, we commend the reading of Job Harriman's "Class War in Idaho," reprinted from The Worker in the spring of 1900, which relates the history of the crushing of the Idaho miners' strike by the use of Pinkertons, state militia, and federal troops, martial law, bribed judges, and packed juries, carried out by the joint efforts of Democratic Governor Steunenberg and Republican President McKinley. When the strike had been broken, what Governor Steunenberg called a "state blacklist" was established through a proclamation of the Governor, countersigned by the President's representative, General Merriam, forbidding the employment of union men in any of the mines of the state. And to carry out this infamous decree a force of armed thugs, backed with the legal authority of the state and used according to the directions of the Standard Oil mine-owners, has been maintained ever since in the mining districts of the state.

This extraordinary outrage—of which not an Eastern paper gave the slightest approach to a true account until The Worker published the facts and raised a vigorous protest—has effected one good purpose along with all the misery it has produced. It has taught the Rocky Mountain workingmen a lesson. Socialism is growing rapidly in all that region. The "Miners' Magazine," the Colorado "Chronicle" and "Courier," the Utah "Labor News," and other labor papers are teaching Socialist ideas in every issue; the circulation of The Worker and, we have no doubt, of other party papers there has considerably increased; the Socialist Party has organized a number of locals in the Rocky Mountain states, and everything points to a vigorous class-conscious movement which will inspire the mine magnates with fear and the workers of the East with greater hope.

And now comes the news of the endorsement of the Socialist Party by the Western Federation of Miners—news wholly unexpected to us, although we were aware of the strong Socialist tendency in that region. The action of the Denver convention is a spontaneous expression of the awakening intelligence of the workers, and it is a happy omen for the future.

The army of Labor marches on to victory, growing in numbers and in courage as it goes; and the Western division will not be the last nor the least renowned when the lines are drawn for the final battle.

The people of Toledo are finding out that their great "non-partizan" mayor, Golden Rule Jones, is up to all the tricks of old partizan politicians and uses them with good effect. We Socialists learned that in the campaign of 1900, if not earlier.

ONE "LABOR" MAYOR.

"Advance" reports that Mr. Schmitz, the "Labor" mayor of San Francisco, said at a Republican banquet that he believed in the principles of the Republican party; and in a letter to the public added, "If the people ask me to accept the Republican nomination for Governor I will accept."

In other words, he has won support for the Union Labor Party in order to turn it over to the party of the trusts. Such was the outcome which Socialists foresaw and predicted when Schmitz was elected, and it required no power of clairvoyance to foresee it. Such is the inevitable end of every labor party which is not based on a recognition of the fact that the interests of Capital and Labor are diametrically opposed and that there can be no compromise between them, and which has not as its aim the destruction of capitalism. "Labor" parties may come and go, but only the class-conscious Socialist Party endures and grows, because it is based on the solid rock of the class struggle and never compromises with capitalism.

TURNING A MARTYR TO USE.

Perhaps the most nauseating piece of vulgarity in present-day politics is the use of President McKinley's name for political capital by the Republican party. Politicians who would have knifed him in an instant at any period of his political career had their interests required it now reply to every arraignment of their own rascality by an appeal to McKinley's memory. Does some one denounce the admitted massacre of non-combatants and the alleged torture of prisoners in the Philippines? The Republican politician rolls his eyes to heaven and deprecates such an "insult to the memory of our martyred leader." Does some one point out that the Administration bluffed in regard to the Railroad Trust and is now bluffing in regard to the Meat Trust? The Republican politician meekly folds his hands and weeps at the "insult to our martyred leader." Does some one reproach Hanna for posing as a "friend of labor" while his own employees are on strike for the eight-hour day? The obese aspirant to Presidential honors indignantly resents such an "insult to our martyred leader."

Mark knows the political value of martyred leaders and he has no qualms of false delicacy about using his dead friend's memory for his own advancement—assuming to himself all McKinley's virtues, great or small, and depositing on McKinley's grave all his own undoubted iniquities.

Mayor Rose of Milwaukee has sent a letter to the Board of Public Works of that city, giving notice that hereafter no non-union men must be employed by the city on contract work. This is undoubtedly the result of the alarm of the old party politicians at the enormous increase in the Socialist vote at the recent election in Milwaukee, when our party polled over 8,000 votes. This is another illustration of the fact that the working class can secure palliative measures and "get something now" only by threatening capitalist rule with revolutionary Socialism.

WORSE INSTEAD OF BETTER.

The "Appeal to Reason" has shifted its ground—at first we thought for the better, but as it now appears much for the worse.

In the issue of May 10 the "Appeal" took down its flag of "Public Ownership of Monopolies" and substituted the Socialist motto, "Ownership of the Earth by the People of the Earth." So far, so good. It seemed that the "Appeal" proposed to teach true Socialism thenceforth.

But the issue of May 24 is devoted solely to the referendum irrespective of party, and the only inference we can draw from the leader is that the "Appeal" advises its readers to vote for any legislative candidate, Socialist or capitalist, no matter, who pledges himself to that one proposition.

We think the comment of the "Missouri Socialist," which is to be found in our columns of "Esteemed Contemporaries" covers the case of Editor Wayland. We had hoped that our controversy with the "Appeal" was at an end. We fear that it is but beginning—but we know where the Socialists of the country will stand, and we are not disturbed. After Pouteroy, Jones, Shibley, and a score of others have failed to sidetrack the Socialist Party into the single-plank no-thoroughfare, even the "Appeal" will not succeed.

Already since the beginning of this year about a thousand men and children have lost their lives by "accidents" in the coal mines of this country. And almost without exception these "accidents" were directly traceable to the greed of the mine-owners. Socialism is truly a question of life and death with the miners.

The Republican state convention of Ohio "commends Congress for re-enacting the Chinese Exclusion Law, thus ensuring continued protection to American labor." The trade unions of the land are not very well satisfied with the form in which that law was re-enacted and are doing a good deal of grumbling about it. Will they resent this insuling utterance from Mark Hanna's booming committee?

The New York "Journal" is "seeing things" again. Last week it had a display article telling how Jesus Christ appeared to some sisters in a convent near St. Pierre just before the eruption of Mount Pelee to reassure them. Only the wicked were to be destroyed, it seems. But the best of the story is the part which intimates that the wicked Socialists were responsible for the whole affair, having provoked the divine wrath by carrying on their campaign for the workers' freedom without the sanction of the church. Really, it's time for Hearst to take another trip to Egypt. He evidently needs it.

The "Christian Advocate" seems to be a literary asylum for the feeble-minded. Its issue of May 22 contains a contribution by George Lansing Taylor, D. D., L. H. D., in which the author asks himself the mysterious question: "What are the origin and purposes of political socialistic anarchy?" We should judge that the purposes of this hitherto undiscovered school of thought must be cross-purposes; but as for its origin that is plain—its origin is in the gaseous void enclosed by the skull of George Lansing Taylor, D. D., L. H. D. This learned man also gives the astonishing information that "Karl Marx, a German, a younger contemporary and disciple of Proudhon, carried out his teacher's doctrines more completely in his famous book 'Capital,' which rivals his master's book, 'Property,' in authority among their followers and exceeds it in bitterness. It is, in fact, the 'New Testament' of anarchy. It amplifies the doctrines of no property, no government, no marriage, and no religion and openly advocates violent measures for abolishing these four chief pillars of civilized society." The case of George Lansing Taylor, D. D., L. H. D., is one for pathological inquiry as well as passing amusement. He is an instructive specimen of the genus turned out by the subsidized colleges of capitalism. We have never had the pleasure of seeing George Lansing Taylor, D. D., L. H. D., but from reasonable inference we should describe him as a low organism, with a digestive apparatus and a rude mouth.

TIMELY TOPICS.

Slayton's election as Councilman in New Castle comes in the right season to show the Pennsylvania workingmen how easy it would be to elect him Governor next fall.

Industrial war will cease when the workers compel the capitalists to surrender the ownership of the tools of industry. The terms of peace will be industrial liberty for all mankind.

The important thing about a strike at the ballot box is that it would only have to occur once to win the workers what they cannot gain by striking every day between elections.

The miners will probably learn that among the necessary preparations for this strike they neglected to take the important precaution of electing a Socialist governor two years ago.

That Mark Hanna is so anxious to have the unions on the side of capitalism is a very good reason why Socialists should work to have them on the side of Socialism.

The attitude of the New York "Sun" on the miners' strike indicates that signing the typographical union scale does not necessarily make a newspaper a "union paper."

"The miners have become insolent toward their employers," says a mine-owners' journal. Wait until the miners demand all that is coming to them!

It looks as if the American capitalist had secured such a tight grip on Cuba that he no longer needs the American flag to shield his graft.

That Mr. Bryan remains grateful for small favors is again demonstrated by his announcement that he is satisfied with the Democratic outlook in the South.

Massachusetts workingmen are again discovering that it takes more than resolutions to pass labor bills with only two Socialists in the Lower House to fight for Labor. W. M.

Mosquito Bites

By PETER E. BURROWES

Some people without being sent there, do of their own volition and in obedience to the law of gravity which bids them morally to drop behind everything in sight, do go away back and sit down. This was the case with the late Presbyterian Assembly of New York, which suffered one of its number to get up and make a general charge of being drunkards and what-not against the labor leaders of the coal regions. This poor man deserves promotion.

It is instructive to note how people who desire very much to dance with Mrs. Herod are apt to out-herod Herod himself in not seeing the crimes of the lady. From the Reverend MacArthur up, the proper stripe of good people have been hurling loyal epithets at the heads of the caitiffs who dared to say that "our boys" were doing naughty things in the Philippines. When up speaks Old Herod himself, General Chaffee, and instead of thanking the gentlemen and saying to the dear soldiers, "Bless you, my children," frankly admits that they behaved as rascals, and almost reverses the court martial that acquitted one of their leaders of murder. When ministers' consciences have to be straightened out by old soldiers it is time for a general revival.

Some surprise has been manifested in business circles at the wickedness of certain New York coal dealers in getting "what the coal would bring." This surprise indicates how well established the practise of fixing the prices of necessaries has become. Since when have traders ceased to get what they could for their goods? Yet this piling up of prices by the get-what-you-can, thus early, is very disconcerting to the plotters who sit in their offices and rig things up by schedule. It is by this unregulatable element of business gamblers that capitalism's fall will be hurried on.

It has been publicly staed by a representative of Virginia miners, that they are mining coal there cheaper than in any part of the world. This astounding statement, which is enough to make our venerable Uncle Samuel shudder, was made by a man who knows; and made in a very public manner; yet, strange to say, none of our great patriots have steamed up their automobiles in any sort of haste to deny it. Is it because the idea is too ridiculous? Or is it because the statement is too true? What a time of humiliating disillusion awaits the flag-blinded workingman of America!

It is to be expected from now on that that grand old man, the Lord of the Lakes, the friend of all silent laborers, the nursing pop of blatant arbitration and of all good subsidy-suckers, will gather around his fog-horn personality a following to boom him for the presidency. And then, at some sublime moment in the performance, the great Marcus Aurelius will arise and surrender all his popularity into the bosom of his grateful party, from which bosom more milk than ever will flow into the lips of the infant shipping and other infants of our beloved country.

Poor old President Palma of Cuba has had his first taste of the man who wants money in government circles. Before his first message was delivered to the bran' new Congress, an evening paper had it all spread out in full for the perusal of everybody. Palma is irritated; the House is hushed; and a typewriter gets the sack. This President has, however, learned his first lesson very cheap, if he learns it well. Keep the man who wants money away from you, Mr. President, and you will be the only ruler on earth who is safe. But remember, the most dangerous type is he that wants a lot of it.

Is it a sign of moral enlightenment or of increasing darkness that our great churches are no longer particular where their light comes from? Or, come to think of it, Were they ever particular? Mr. Morgan, by the magnificent gift of an electric plant to St. Paul's Cathedral in London, has literally turned on the light to that grimy old edifice; and Morgan is the man to do it, for by his advent into English financing he will turn on more darkness than St. Paul's will ever be able to show up.

A water famine in New York may be confidently looked for in the near future. The present Administration is doubtless under many unfulfilled obligations to the eminently public persons who have an eye on supplying us through private pipes, from Ramapo or any other old po that will yield a hundred per cent. Commissioner Dougherty is therefore already about to resign on account of the provision for a famine already made by the city fathers in the water compartment of their budget. What a pity it rains now and again!

Among the rising shopkeepers of New York during the late Editor Godkin's time, it was possible for Mr. Godkin or any other man capable of printing a newspaper three hundred and sixty-five times a year and never letting a live thought into it, to become a great editor. He was a martinet who maintained good old English order in all his newspaper columns—for, although the "Post" was not printed in old black-letter, it ought to have been. All his usefulness was strictly confined to the financial district of the city in which he would always have remained a pilgrim and a stranger but for the privilege of Anglicizing his numerous readers. In his dislike to democracy he was previous to the "Sun," though not fiercer in his rays. Yet he wrote good strong English, which was strictly tory and delightfully, purblindly brutal on matters relating to the efforts, hopes, and aspirations of the working people for saving themselves. In England, where every local journal has a similar editor at its head, he could never have risen above third class. But when he "came over," the small emigrant shopkeepers from Albion's isle, etc., wanted a Godkin, and hence his fame. We shall not see in journalism so small a god again.

The safest bits of paternalism ever yet engineered by the shrewd benevolence of thieves are the pension schemes of the big railroad companies. There can be no doubt that poor humanity may acquire a power of stiction which in time enables it to stick to anything on earth, even to a switchman's job on a railroad for thirty years. Men who are really too good for anything and who cannot be rushed into any evil ways, not even into trade unions, what shall be done with them? Clear them out, of course, if they are old.

Some people will live too long, anyway, even on the railroad tracks. To get rid of these long livers and those who threaten to be stickers, the Reading Railroad Company proposes to make a clean sweep of the elderlies, under what it is pleased to call a pension system. If any miraculous old men of seventy have survived the imminent deadly smash for thirty years, AND ARE STILL CAPABLE MEN, they shall be pensioned. If others, being incapacitated, ARE STILL IN THE COMPANY'S SERVICE, and are also over sixty-five years of senility, they shall be pensioned. Grazie, Signori! But to reach these miracles of survival quite an army of the moderately old will have to go, to have their wages saved to pay the pensions. There are workmen in the world who fondly believe that private companies will pension them off, forgetting that there are a thousand ways of making the job a hell to a man who is maturing for that benevolence. None but a slave in soul and body could ever pull through these later years. And save me, ye gods, from living with them after they have won it!

The medical profession occupies rather a peculiar position between the law and the people. They bill a man for visits, not for benefits received. Since ecclesiastical tithes were abolished there is no class of litigants more clamorous nor who can show less for their bills than the doctors. The law has armed them each and all with a vaccinado which they have the privilege of sticking into a houseful, a frainful, or a shipload of people at will and then get paid for it. They have the public hospitals in which to learn their trade free and pick up patients, and they may dump into those hospitals patients no longer able to pay them. Now they want the legal power to collect from all hospital patients waited upon who are thought to be able to pay. Their bills kill more patients than their science is able to cure. What an indictment against civilization is the doctor's bill!

A SOCIALIST ODE FOR DECORATION DAY.

By Edward W. Searing.

Oh, days that are dead as the roses
That blossomed where no roses grow,
On the grave where forever reposes
The soldier that fear did not know,
Your sun that rose sullen and lurid
And gleamed through the smoke of the fight
In the darkness of peace is now buried
As a meteor lost in the night.

No war-horse tramples the meadows
In the passion and power of might;
No more through the sentineled shadows
Of evening the camp-fire gleams bright;
No more the far bugle sounds lonely
To call the tired soldier to sleep,
Far watched by the distant eyes only
Of Night in her infinite deep—

Peace reigns—Peace that steals the rich favors
That War out of carnage hath won
Through the long and continued endeavors
That robbed half our homes of a son;
Peace, that keeps back its earnings from Labor;
Peace, oppressing the homes till they groan;
That makes a Shylock of the neighbor,
That takes the flesh and the bone.

Peace? Peace may be deadlier than War!
Peace with evil, injustice, and sorrow,
With wrongs men scarce live to endure!
Homes fearing the landlord each morrow!
Such Peace is a sanctified strumpet,
And we long for the sound of the fife,
We long for the blast of the trumpet
That shall call us to action and life.

Then, winds of the world, blow us battle,
So it teach us in honor to smite.
Let the loud roar of musketry rattle,
So we struggle and fight for the right.
Ah, tears for the dead are yet sweeter
Than those that false Peace makes us shed
And the nation is better and nobler
That mourns not the live but the dead.

—The workingman's time is money; every minute that he loses is a theft he commits upon the capitalist.—Lafargue.

POST-OFFICE "SOCIALISM."

Railway Postal Clerk, Speaking from Experience, Approves the Stand of The Worker.

"Editor of The Worker.

"My Dear Comrade:—You will find enclosed a few remarks elicited by the article taken from the 'Social Democratic Herald.' Can you give me space for same? Of course, you must omit my name, for various reasons that you no doubt can guess. People nowadays imagine a railway postal clerk has a fine job. We in the service know better. I feel that I must personally express to you my thanks for your great service in the cause of Socialism. Each and every week I look for The Worker and am never disappointed in your attitude. Some may talk sneeringly of class-consciousness, but I say without class-consciousness our movement would not be worth a minute's consideration. All my hope, all my encouragement comes from knowing that our party is class-conscious. I know that as a rule editors of Socialist papers do not receive handsome salaries, and that they make sacrifices day after day for the cause. I hope that you are better off in that respect than some I know of I feel that your cause is helping the workers all over the country. Dare to do as you have been doing and receive thanks from your friend and comrade.

"———."

(This letter enclosing the subjoined article, was not intended by the writer for publication; but it seems to us to throw so much additional light on the subject that we take the liberty of printing it. The fact that, "for obvious reasons," the writer's name must be suppressed, is, by itself, almost a sufficient reply to those who would abandon the working-class basis of our movement, and, join with all sorts of "reformers" in advocating mere government ownership.—Ed.)

A Postal Clerk's Opinion.

Editor of The Worker.

I wish to second your remarks about the Post Office Department. The Railway Postal Clerks have had a bill up in Congress for the increase of their wages for the last six years, and they have still to get the increase. Last year the clerks of Classes 5 and 4 were RESTORED TO THE SAME AS THEY RECEIVED ABOUT TWENTY YEARS AGO, when they were reduced on account of the government being short of money. The government wanted to ECONOMIZE, and the only way to do that was to LOWER THE WAGES OF THE WORKERS, of course. True capitalistic economy! Never a year passes but we receive orders, about May 1, to be saving of this or of that on account of the appropriation being exhausted. Last year it was the twine; this year it is the blank slips and printed slips. The printing on our slips is paid for by ourselves; that is, the printing used by clerks. Never heard of a government OFFICIAL having to pay for ANY of their printing.

We have an organization, the N. A. R. P. C., and every year the whole Association gets down on their knees and begs for what everybody knows we have long been entitled to. Every year we expected to be successful, except the Socialists among us (there are not many), who know that the congressmen need not worry about the great majority of R. P. C.'s. They will get their votes anyhow.

We railway postal clerks that are Socialists, know THAT ONLY WHEN WE UNITE WITH THE REST OF OUR FELLOW WORKERS AT THE BALLOT-BOX AND ESTABLISH A WORKING-CLASS GOVERNMENT will we get our due. We are at the beck of our superiors, who at any time can call on us for extra duty, and for which we don't get a cent! When the mails get heavy or a clerk or so is injured, and the appropriation is low or is exhausted, then Mr. Postal Clerk works for glory. Let me ask the editor of the "Social Democratic Herald" if he ever saw a trade unionist work for nothing because there was so much to do, or one of his comrades was killed or injured? As compared with the employees of private corporations, I will say that our necessities are greater. We are on duty from twelve to thirty hours at a stretch, and frequently, by the time we arrive at the terminal, are ready to collapse. Add to this length of hours on duty the mental strain that is placed upon us, and you can imagine what a nerve-racking picnic we have.

The President tells us to "hold our tongues" if we want to "hold our jobs."

It is not a question of government ownership alone, but of GOVERNMENT OWNERSHIP CONTROLLED BY THE WORKING CLASS and administered democratically.

"We have a vote yet, ain't it?"

Sincerely and fraternally,

RAILWAY POSTAL CLERK.

Another Phase of the Question.

Among the many letters from readers throughout the country endorsing our position in the recent controversy with the "Appeal to Reason" and the "Social Democratic Herald"—most of which we have refrained from publishing, not wishing to allow that controversy to occupy too much of our space—is one from L. Maier of Grangeville, Cal., dated May 1, and enclosing a clipping from the San Francisco "Examiner," which reads as follows:

"WASHINGTON, April 27.—The Post Office Department has disposed of the report that Representative Woods of California had been loading the mails during the weighing season for the benefit of Prince Poniatowski's Sierra road. The report, though exculpatory, admits substantially what had been charged.

"Second Assistant Postmaster-General Shallenberg made this remarkable statement on the subject to 'The Examiner:'

"'The reports we have received from the official inspectors show simply an enormous distribution of public documents, which were legitimately to the credit of Mr. Woods and forwarded under his frank.

"'THE ONLY THING THAT EXCITED ANY ATTENTION WAS THAT IT JUST HAPPENED THAT FOR A FEW DAYS THESE DOCUMENTS ACCUMULATED AND WERE IN EXCESSIVE AMOUNTS, AS COMPARED WITH THE SHIPMENTS OF A YEAR AGO.

"'Our inspectors are asked to report anything excessive and of course we received a prompt report.'

"It may be stated that at the time of the report that Representative Woods' mail was particularly heavy over the Sierra road during the weighing season the Second Assistant Postmaster General's inspectors on that road had not reported any 'excessive' amounts to the department. It is not explained here why they had failed to do so."

For the benefit of those who are not familiar with the details of the system it may be explained that the mail matter going over each mail-carrying road is weighed for a few days each year, and the amount carried in those days is taken as representing the average amount actually carried and is made the basis for payments to the road by the government. It is a common thing for railroad companies themselves to send out enormous quantities of mail matter at the weighing season, for the purpose of raising their subsidy. In this case, however, by the collusion of a Republican Congressman, they seem to have bettered the trick. Had the company sent out the extra matter, it would at least have had to pay postage on it; the company's obliging friend at the Capitol can send matter free. We do not know whether or not the company was decent enough to pay Congressman Woods anything for his aid. Perhaps it didn't need to. Perhaps it already owns him.

And the Administration which winked at such a fraud as this is the same strenuously business-like administration that upheld Madden in withdrawing mail privileges from Socialist and trade union papers with a bona fide circulation—"in the interest of economy." It is an Administration of the same capitalist party which, as noted by our first correspondent, reduced the wages of postal clerks "in the interest of economy." And it is the same Administration which, "in the interest of discipline in the service," forbid postal employees, through their organizations, to agitate for the reduction of their hours or the increase of their wages.

A Consistent Policy.

And the Administration is perfectly consistent. All this is good business. The two old parties both frankly support the system of business, of private property operated by wage labor for capitalist profit. Accepting capitalism as a foundation for society, there is no reason why we should not carry its principles into the realm of government and apply them consistently as the old parties do—the Democratic party hypocritically and clumsily; the Republican party more openly and much more skilfully. Profit-making is the test of efficiency in private capitalism. In state capitalism the same test must hold good. State capitalism, of which the postal service is an example, implies low wages and overwork for the common employees, petty tyranny on the part of officials, and fraud for the joint benefit of officials and contractors, just as private capitalism implies low wages for the wage-workers, petty tyranny on the part of bosses, and fraud for the benefit of the individual capitalist. It's all of a piece. If you vote for government ownership on a capitalist basis, as already advocated to some extent by both old parties, you vote simply to transfer all the evils of capitalism from the field of private business to that of goverment.

As Socialists—as advocates of Social Democracy against private capitalism and state capitalism—we repudiate all suggestions of compromise and appeal to the growing intelligence of the working class on our revolutionary platform.

THE CONSUMERS' LEAGUE.

It was well named "Consumers' League," and it was fittingly introduced to fashionable Los Angeles society, in the neighborhood of 3200 Figueroa street, by a select luncheon.

The condition of the working children, dwarfed for want of food, was discussed most feelingly between the courses, and the ladies pledged each other never—never to wear sweatshop clothing. The very name "sweatshop" was enough to call down the ban of good society—what lady was ever known to sweat—and so they "resolved" that the "Consumers" should abolish sweating.

All this is a fair sample of the "reform" efforts put forth by the employing, or consuming class, that toll's not neither does it spin. What a joke for the "consumers" to resolve that the producers shall not sweat, with the double burden of feeding themselves and the idle rich, who live in the houses that line fashionable Figueroa street!

Read the names of the eighty "prominent women" who have joined the Consumers' League—wives of bankers, factory owners and cash-boy employing merchants. Will they give back in charitable dole a one hundredth part of the wealth that little children's hands have piled up for them? Are they willing to work, so that their sisters' toil in the factory or store may be lessened? Are they willing to stop being merely "consumers" and share the sweat of production with the working world? No. A dole is what they like to give—a dole, that will ease their dyspeptic-laden consciences from nightmares of hell.

"The rich will do almost anything for the poor—except get off their backs."—Los Angeles Socialist.

BUY BLUE-LABEL CIGARS.

Our Esteemed Contemporaries (and OTHERS)

The New Era.

Morgan and six other American citizens have now become more powerful than any congress or parliament in the world.

Fourteen steamship lines and forty-four railroad systems belong to them.

On land a mileage of 108,500 and on sea a tonnage of 1,200,000 are in their control.

Three hundred of the largest steamships in the world and 30,000 of the best equipped passenger and freight trains take orders from them.

This railroad mileage is greater than the combined mileage of Russia, Great Britain, Germany, Holland, Spain and Belgium. And more than 300 vessels which will sail under its orders cannot be duplicated from the merchant marine of every ocean.

Cleveland Citizen.

National Chairman Hanna of the Republican party appears to be quite alarmed at the spread of Socialism.

Every few days or so interviews and special articles appear in the leading daily newspapers in which the Senator discusses the "evils of Socialism."

Monday's Cleviand "Leader" contained a half-column Washington dispatch that was quite instructive. It dealt with the G. O. P.'s answer, the National Civic Federation, of which the Senator is also the chairman, and in fact the whole thing.

With a frankness that is really surprising it is pointed out that one of the National Civic Federation's important missions is "the eradication of the evils of Socialism." Hanna had become impressed with the spread of "Socialistic ideas" in 1900, and divulged his fears in a speech at a banquet given in his honor by the Union League Club, a New York millionaires' organization, at which "were present many of the most prominent financiers and industrial leaders in the United States, and hundreds of millions of capital were represented."

The remedy for the threatened danger, the Senator said, was to be found in leading the great mass of the population in the right direction and to convince the people that the interests of capital and laber are identical.

So at that memorable banquet Senator Hanna doubtless decided to become an industrial labor leader to strengthen his position as a political labor leader.

The "Leader" correspondent does not reveal all that was said by the great boss, but that his views struck a responsive chord in the bosoms of his hearers may be taken for granted, for when J. Pierpont Morgan was called upon for a few remarks he said:

"SENATOR HANNA HAS MADE MY SPEECH!"

The dispatch concludes with the statement that "the work of the Civic Federation is evidence of the efforts which Mr. Hanna is making to ward off the danger of Socialism and the success attending those efforts."

Comment is unnecessary.

Missouri Socialist.

The Socialist movement should indeed feel proud of Comrade Wayland's last issue of the "Appeal to Reason," wherein he advises his readers to work and vote for the candidates of the old parties which can be forced to put in their platforms demands for Direct Legislation.

The value of this issue to the Public Ownership and Allied Third parties as an argument to show their practical step-at-a-time Socialism, at once becomes apparent when we recite the fact that those parties in St. Louis are distributing thousands of copies among the working class of this city.

The editor of the "Appeal" is a member of the Socialist Party, organized as a working class party distinct from and opposed to all parties of capitalism. Yet by direct voice he is aiding and abetting the enemy in his appeal to his readers to work and vote for the candidates of capitalist parties. If Local Girard, Kas., is truly a revolutionary body it is certainly their duty to take action.

TOLSTOY ON MODERN LITERATURE.

Within my recollection, in fifty years there has been wrought this amazing decline of the general taste and the common sense of the public. This corruption is easily traced in every branch of our literature. * * * The ignorance of our educated circles is such that the truly great thinkers, poets and prose writers, whether of antiquity or of the nineteenth century, are regarded as stale and out-of-date, incapable of satisfying the high and refined demands of the present generation; we either patronize these masters or frankly dismiss them with a contemptuous smile.

In philosophy the last word is found in the immoral, crude, inflated, incoherent stuff of Nietzsche; as poetry of the highest order we have the senseless, unnatural juxtaposition of words connected only by meter and rhythm. In all the theaters are produced plays whose meaning no one understands, not even the authors themselves, while millions of copies of so-called novels are circulated in which there is neither art nor significance. * * * If in our day a bright young man from the common people, desirous of educating himself, should be given access to all the extant books and papers, and left to his own efforts, it is highly probable that for ten years he would read nothing but trivial and immoral things. It would be as hard for him to run up against a good book as to find the proverbial needle in the haystack. The worst of it is that, reading bad books constantly, his understanding and taste would be continuously perverted, so that, if he ever found a meritorious work, he would have no capacity to comprehend it.—Tolstoy.

—"I could not think of getting along without The Worker," says Comrade Seibert of Washington, in renewing.

PARTY NOTES.

John C. Chase addressed trade unionists and Socialist locals this week at Cape Girardeau, Dexter, Poplar Bluff, and St. Louis, Mo.

Comrade Vail spoke at Mauch Chunk, Coledale, and Nesquehoning, in the strike field, on the last two days of May. Good meetings at all three places.

John W. Brown of Hartford, Conn., will speak on Socialism at Washington Park, Bridgeport, Friday evening, June 6.

Howard H. Caldwell of Philadelphia has a good letter on Socialism in the "Brewers' Journal."

Delaware County, Pa., is waking up and will soon have a lively Socialist movement. Charles W. Olson of 322 W. Second street, Media, is the temporary secretary.

The Roslindale district of Boston has been organized with eight charter members.

A local has been formed at Franklin, N. H., and one will soon follow at Somersworth, where there are already many Socialist voters.

J. E. Nash has been elected Organizer of Local Minneapolis, in place of Geo. H. Lockwood, who has taken up state work.

Comrade Emil Vandervelde of Belgium, with Madame Vandervelde, contemplates a tour of two months in America, and negotiations for lectures by them are now in progress. They are expected the latter part of August or early in September.

Large quantities of Socialist literature intended for distribution among the striking miners have been received by Local Wilkes Barre. All comrades in this vicinity having time to distribute are requested to report to Organizer J. G. Roth, 40 W. Market street, or come to the meeting next Sunday afternoon at 16 S. Main street and receive a supply.

The State Committee of Massachusetts Socialist Clubs has ordered 20,000 copies of the leaflet issued form The Worker, "What Do You Think of the Beef Trust," to be apportioned among the various clubs for distribution. Comrades should see that the copies are properly distributed, as the subject is an interesting one at this time and the leaflet is an effective one.

The Socialists of Quincy, Mass., will hold their fourth annual picnic on Tuesday, June 17, at Quincy Woods, and the affair promises to be the finest yet given them. In addition to speaking by John Spargo of New York and Dr. Edward A. Gibbs of Worcester, there will be sports of all kinds, such as running, jumping, tug-of-war, and so on. A band concert will also be held throughout the day. A mammoth clam dinner will also be a feature. As the picnic occurs on Evacuation Day, there should be a great crowd gathered to make the occasion a success. Admission to the grounds, ten cents. Take cars for Hough's neck. Free transfers on all Quincy electric cars. Socialists of Massachusetts invited.

New clubs have recently been organized in Massachusetts at Plymouth and Rockland, while the Everett Club affiliated again with the state organization. At Plymouth a very successful meeting was held, at which Representative Carey and Organizer Mailly were the speakers. Two hundred weavers are on strike at this place against the two-loom system being introduced into the Puritan mill, owned by the American Woollen Company. A large number of the strikers were at the meeting, and seemed to appreciate Carey's speech. Comrade Hallinan is the leading spirit among the Plymouth comrades, and he has done good work among the strikers, who are fighting a hard battle and seem determined to win.

At a meeting held Tuesday, May 27, Local Toledo adopted an amendment to the constitution providing for women members paying 15 cents monthly dues. Heretofore they have been but honorary members. We have a number of active women workers who insisted that they should be admitted as dues-paying members. Hence the amendment. We immediately received the applications of four women and expect many more in the near future. The splendid growth of the movement here recently is due largely to the efforts of our comrades of the professions, who are not of the working class, but who realize thoroughly that it is a class struggle we are engaged in and not a sentimental or religious movement. Branch 2 of Local Toledo is temporarily crippled by a strike in the Libby glass plant, where most of the members of that branch are employed. Eighteen of them have gone to Pittsburg to work until the trouble is settled. Comrade H. Gaylord Wilshire will speak in Toledo on Sunday, June 8.

The 12th A. D., at its last meeting, elected a committee of five for the purpose of carrying on an aggressive and systematic educational campaign until Election Day. The next meeting, Friday, June 6, at 96 Clinton street, will be preceded by a lecture on naturalization, delivered by Comrade Edlin. Those wishing information on the subject are requested to come. The presence of the members will be urgently required, as matters of high importance will come before the business meeting.

Branch 2, 24th A. D., held an open-air meeting last Saturday night on the corner of Fifty-seventh street and Third avenue. Comrade Goldbarth acted as chairman and Comrades Wood, Phillips, and Reichenthal spoke to an attentive crowd on trusts in general and the Beef Trust in particular. Another open-air meeting will be held on Saturday evening, June 7, at the corner of Fity-eighth street and Second avenue, when good speakers will be present.

The last meeting of the 24th A. D. was addressed by Sol Fieldman. One new member was gained and the committee chosen to visit readers of The Worker gave a very encouraging report. The organization meets every Friday evening, at 380 Willis avenue and all Socialists in the district are invited to join.

The meeting of Speakers' Club held last Friday at 64 E. Fourth street, was devoted to a discussion of the Beef Trust. After a short defense of the Trust by Comrade Wood, the members present opened a general fire in the negative. Bowerman, Paulitsch, Martin, Abrams replied and the decision was rendered in their favor. A series of impromptu speeches were then made showing how each speaker would explain the Socialist cure for the Beef Trust to a street corner audience. Until further notice meetings will be held on Wednesday evenings at same address.

The outing of the Brooklyn Socialist Club on Decoration Day was highly successful in every way. The attendance was small on account of the Labor Lyceum parade early in the day, but later a good crowd was in attendance. Frederick Krafft was the speaker of the day.

STATE CONVENTION IN NEW YORK.

General Vote Fixes July 4 as the Date and New York City as the Place.

To the Locals and Members of the Social Democratic Party in the State of New York.

In accordance with the general vote of the members of the party in the state of New York, the convention of the Social Democratic Party of the state of New York to nominate candidates for public offices and to elect a State Committee for the ensuing term, and to transact such other business as may come before the convention, is hereby called to meet on the fourth day of July, 1902, in the Labor Lyceum, 64 E. Fourth street, in the city of New York.

Locals and county committees are hereby called upon to elect delegates to the convention. Delegates to said convention must be elected at town, city, or county conventions. The delegates to such conventions must be elected at primaries held according to law.

Information in regard to primaries and conventions will be mailed to local secretaries.

For the State Committee, Social Democratic Party of New York,
LEONARD D. ABBOTT,T
State Secretary.

New York, June 3.

COUNTY CONVENTION.

Primaries for the election of delegates to the county convention of New York County will be held on Saturday, June 21, in all the assembly districts. Secretaries must secure meeting places for that date.

By order of the General Committee.
JULIUS GERBER, Organizer.

REPORT OF SPRING'S WORK.

State Organizer Spring visited Niagara Falls, N. Y., last week and formed a small local there.

From there he proceeded to Watertown, where four public meetings were held and much interest shown. Seven new party members were gained.

He addressed the Paper Workers' Union of Dexter and was favorably received. He also held an open-air meeting there, with a large crowd. After the meeting, those who agreed with the Socialist principles set forth and wished to work for them were invited to a neighboring hall, where a local of the party was formed with fifteen members. This was the first Socialist meeting ever held in the place; the seed is now sown and it will grow.

Comrade Charles H. Vail, having just completed a month's work in Pennsylvania, began his tour of New York on June 1, speaking at Stapleton, Long Island City, Mt. Vernon, and Yonkers on the first four days of the month. His future dates, as now arranged, are: June 5, Dobbs Ferry; June 6, New Rochelle; June 7, Peekskill; June 8, Cold Spring; June 9, Newburgh; June 10, Catskill; June 11, Troy; June 12, Schenectady.

THE SCRIMSHAW MEMORIAL.

The parade and meetings held by the Socialists of Essex and Hudson County, N. J., on Decoration Day, in honor of the memory of Comrade Frederic Scrimshaw, formerly assistant editor of The Worker, was an inspiring demonstration.

The procession formed in Harrison, headed by the Socialist Fife and Drum Corps, and included large delegations from the West Hudson branches of the party and from Local Essex County, and of Brewers' Union No. 2 and of Branch 45 of the Workingmen's Sck and Death Benefit Society. A group of young girls in white, daughters of comrades, escorted the red flag. E. T. Neben and H. R. Kearns were marshals.

Marching through Harrison, Kearny, and Arlington, followed by a great crowd, the parade reached the cemetery, where wreathes were laid on the grave of our brave and loveable comrade and his old friend, Peter E. Burrowes, introduced by Comrade Kearns, spoke a few fitting words. Comrades Cole and Goebel also spoke.

After the speeches a halt was made at Kearny for lunch. The parade returned to Harrison, and at several points on the way addresses were made to the large crowds of spectators by Comrades Burrowes, Neben, C. Ufert, and McIntosh, which were well received.

The parade was not only a hearty tribute of affection to a friend and comrade whose memory deserves to be held dear; it was also a means of effective propaganda for the cause in which he labored so well.

BERGEN COUNTY CHOOSES TICKET.

The Socialist Party of Bergen County, N. J., held a county and congressional convention at Carlstadt last week. The national and state platforms were endorsed as stating the position of the party and its candidates.

For Congressman, W. H. Wyatt of Rutherford was nominated.

For Assemblymen, the choice fell to E. M. Dobbelaar of Fort Lee and Frederick Schaffer of Carlstadt.

The other candidates are: For Surrogate, Abram H. Thompson of Ridgewood; for Coroner, Anton Braum of Fort Lee.

All workingmen in Bergen County are called on to support this ticket and platform, which represents the interests of their class.

WORK IN PENNSYLVANIA.

The Socialists of Pennsylvania are holding their county conventions and putting full tickets in the field. Following the Erie County nominations, as reported last week, York County nominated on May 30 and Philadelphia County on May 31.

The York County candidates are: For Congressman, John Tome; for Senator, J. E. Keech; for Assemblymen, A. W. Koehler, Lewis Allwine, and H. C. Wuerthner; for Treasurer, Jacob Hoffman; for Recorder of Wills, C. H. Stover; for Clerk of Court, Jacob Saylor; for County Commissioners, H. J. Brady and Edward Miller.

The Philadelphia comrades chose Frank H. Slick as candidate for Sheriff; Anthony M. Ely for Coroner; and Clemens A. Meyer and Frederick Haecker for City Commissioners.

The Lancaster County convention is called for June 4 and that of Luzerne Count yfor June 22, at Wilkes Barre.

The State Committee has granted charters to Locals Lancaster and Delaware County.

Comrade Collins is having successful meetings so far, and many locals have asked for dates. His presnt engagements are: June 1, Brownsville; 2 and 3, Connellsville; 4, Mt. Pleasant; 5, West Newton; 6, Cokeville; 7, Black Lick; 8, Austin; 9, Sweden Valley; 10, Coudersport; 11, Clinton; 12, 13, and 14, Williamsport.

As to progress in the coal strike territory we need only say in four days Comrade John Spargo spoke to audiences aggregating eleven thousand. His report will be found in another column.

We regret to say that at present we have no comrade in the strike field by reason of having no funds to send them. Literature to the extent of our resources is being scattered. Contributions for work among the miners are: Previously acknowledged, $15; Philadelphia German Branch, $5; Edward Moore, $1; total, $21.

J. MAHLON BARNES,
Secretary.
CAROLINE PEMBERTON,
Assistant Secretary.
1022 Arch street.

DETAILS OF VOTE IN NEW CASTLE.

NEW CASTLE, Pa., May 20.—The vote in the Fifth Ward stood: Slayton, Socialist, 277; Beven, Republican, 188; Gorman, Democrat, 133. Slayton's vote is a gain of 25 per cent. over what the Socialist Party cast in the ward in February.

The voting was quiet early in the day, but in the afternoon the old parties got scared and did their best to get out every man. Carriages were flying here and there and considerable excitement prevailed. But it did not help them. As the "Tribune" says: "The election plainly shows that the workingmen are doing some thinking and are learning to vote as they think."

Comrade Slayton takes his seat at once.

MASSACHUSETTS STATE COMMITTEE.

The Massachusetts State Committee has voted to call a state convention of the Socialist Party to meet in Boston on Monday, Sept. 22, at 10:30 a. m. Caucuses are called for Friday evening, Sept. 12.

All citizens who voted for the candidates of the "Democratic Social Party" in 1901 or who intend to vote for the candidates of the Socialist Party in this year's election will be admitted to participation in the caucuses.

It was decided that the Executive Committee shall act as a committee on credentials for the convention; that all town and city committees enroll their voters and send lists to the Executive Committee; that the Propaganda Committee act as a committee on rules for the convention; that Comrades Goldstein, Mailly, and Putney prepare a draft of platform to be submitted to the convention and also a draft of platform for city and town elections.

The basis for representation in the convention will be: One delegate from each ward or town and one additional for each hundred votes or major fraction thereof cast in such ward or town for the candidate for Governor of the Democratic Social Party in 1901.

In the district conventions the basis of representation will be: One delegate for each ward or town and one additional for each twenty-five votes or major fraction thereof cast in such ward or town for the candidate for Governor in 1901.

Comrades Carey and McCartney were instructed to prepare card form of literature for election propaganda.

SQUIRE E. PUTNEY, Secretary.

CHASE'S TOUR.

During the latter half of May, Comrade Chase addressed fifteen meetings of labor organizations in Illinois and Missouri. In St. Louis he spoke to the Journeymen Tailors', Bridge and Structural Workers', Metal Polishers', Cigar Makers', Brewers' and Malsters', Carpenters' and Brewery Firemen's unions. All of these meetings were very well attended and Socialism was received in every instance with cordial welcome and enthusiasm.

Comrade Chase says in his report: "It seems to me, from the way they receive the idea of taking political action through the Socialist Party, that the outlook for a great growth in the movement in St. Louis is assured, and that great success is bound to be attained in the coming fall election. I fell sure that the workingmen see the futility of chasing after 'Public Ownership parties,' 'Allied third parties' and the like, and will line up in the coming election for the only party that stands for and insists upon the abolition of the wage system and the establishment of the public or collective ownership of all industries."

Besides these meetings in St. Louis he spoke at Troy, Ill., for the local; at Lebanon for the Miners' Union; at El Dorado for the Federal Labor Union; and at Carterville for the Miners; all except the last were very well attended. On May 17 he spoke at the Injunction Day demonstration in Staunton, accompanied by Comrade Kassel in German.

TO GIVE STRIKE NEWS.

The National Secretary of the Socialist Party has sent out to the secretaries of the various miners' unions in the coal strike field the following circular letter:

"Dear Sir and Brother:—We take this opportunity to inform your organization that since the outbreak of the present trouble, the daily newspapers of the entire country, with few exceptions, are pulishing only the most meagre accounts of the strike. The largest dailies in St. Louis have published practically no news whatever of the strike, in order to keep the workers of the city in the dark. The capitalists are conscious of the fact that the wide publication of such a great strike creates enthusiasm and confidence in the working class and corresponding depression among capitalists. They fear, on the one hand, that the organized workers all over the country will render aid to the miners and, on the other hand, that investors will get frightened and withdraw their capital from the stock market. The same class of capitalists who own the mines own the newspapers and associated press agencies, and thus the suppression of the truth is easily accounted for. Our party has one hundred papers in the United States and Canada which are anxiocs to obtain news of the strike. We cannot obtain it from the usual sources, and we therefore write to suggest that your union appoint a press committee to keep us posted regularly. We propose to issue a daily press bulletin containing all the news of the strike. We will send a copy of this daily bulletin to all of the labor and Socialist papers in the country, and thus break up the 'conspiracy of silence.' The facts which the working class generally will be interested in and which we desire to furnish daily are as follows:

"1. Is the strike order being generally obeyed, and is the tie-up of the mines complete in your vicinity?

"2. Are the men standing firm?

"3. Has the company given notice of any kind to the men? Any efforts to start up with non-union men?

"4. Has there been trouble of any kind?

"5. Are men of affiliated crafts being laid off?

"6. What is the attitude of the community towards the strikers? Has credit been stopped by merchants?

"7. Do the public authorities (police, sheriff, etc.) back up the demands of the strikers or are they the tools of the mine operators?

"8. New developments and any other news of the strike.

"We take this occasion to impress upon your organization the importance of encouraging and supporting the labor and Socialist press and the necessity for establishing daily labor papers, owned by the working class and operated in its interest.

"In conlusion, if any request is made by the national officers of the United Mine Workers of America for financial aid, the Socialist Party stands ready to issue a special appeal to its members.

"Trusting that your organization will give this matter serious consideration and that we will hear from your press committee, I remain,

"Yours fraternally,
"LEON GREENBAUM,
"National Secretary.

"Emilie Bldg., St. Louis, May 24.

"P. S.—In publishing our Daily Press Bulletin we will not mention the names of our correspondents. Such names will be kept in confidence."

THE FARMERS' MISTAKE.

It is one of the commonest expressions among farmers that ownership of a farm is nothing more than the ownership of a "job." The average farmer would laugh at anyone who expected to receive interest on money invested in improvements and tools by a modern farmer. Yet in all his previous attempts at relief he has worked upon the assumption that he was a capitalist. All the efforts of the farmer have been towards giving permanency to the class of small capitalists to which the farmer has fondly dreamed that he belonged. He has arrayed himself against the large capitalist upon the one hand and the wage worker upon the other and valiantly sought unaided to sweep back the oncoming tide of progress.—A. M. Simons, in "The American Farmer."

RAMIFICATIONS OF THE TRUSTS.

The arrangements for the formation of a boxboard and paper combine will probably go through within a month. Among the three men announced as representing the American Strawboard Company in t he deal we note the names of R. G. Clowry, President of the Western Union Telegraph Compand, and J. A. Spoor, President of the Union Stock Yards and Transit Company—another little indication of the way in which the different trusts and combines are linked together and the most diverse industries brought under the profit-rule of the same men.

FOR THE BENEFIT OF THE CAMPAIGN FUND.

Picnic & Summer Night's Festival of

Local New York, S.D.P.

ON SUNDAY, JUNE 29,
AT SULZER'S WESTCHESTER PARK.

Tickets, 10 cents — At the Gate, 15 cents

Tickets can be had in all Assembly District Organizations or from the Organizer at 64 East 4th Street.

"WHERE WE STAND."

A lecture by John Spargo, editor of THE COMRADE. Originally delivered under the title, "Our Position, Economic, Ethical and Political." Five cents a copy, 10 for 35c., 50 for $1.40, 100 for $2.50, postpaid. Order now.

ILLUSTRATED AGITATION LEAFLETS.

Published by THE COMRADE PUB. CO., 11 Cooper Square, N. Y. "The Worker with the Capitalist Mind," by Herbert N. Casson, fifth edition; "Dialogue between the Machine Gun and the Mauser," by Frank Stahlman; "A Lesson from the Donkeys," by John Spargo. You should use these leaflets for distribution, as they are sure to be read by everybody who gets them. Price, 10c. a bundle of 50, one kind or assorted. SPECIAL.—Upon receipt of 50 cents in one-cent stamps we will send THE COMRADE, an illustrated Socialist Monthly, for three months, 100 illustrated leaflets, and a copy of "Where We Stand."

THE COMRADE PUBLISHING CO., 11 Cooper Square, New York (373 Bowery.)

THE "PREMIUM" SYSTEM.

A Labor Paper's Comment on One of the Shrewdest Schemes of Capitalist Slave-Drivers.

Alexander E. Outerbridge of William E. Sellers & Company, machine builders, Sixteenth and Hamilton streets, addressed the students of the Wharton School, University of Pennsylvania, Monday, and told his auditors that he favored the "premium" system of paying wages, because it was better than the "time-wage" system.

Willful or ignorant misstatements to young men in college does a great deal of harm, for the average student is in the habit of receiving all information as gospel truth when it comes from the professorial chair.

It flatters the pride of your practical man to pose as a lecturer before young fellows who are accustomed to listen to prosy old men who make a point of telling their classes that they are theorists, not practitioners. The hearts of the healthy young men go out to greet the successful business man, so different in looks and action from the poor, old, depressed, dyspeptic book-worm.

This, we believe, is not Mr. Outerbridge's first offense. Be that as it may, however, let us see what the Sellers' Company's clerk told the University students. He said, in effect:

"The management of every manufacturing establishment suffers considerable loss when it pays workmen according to the time they work. Men waste time, unconsciously, by loitering and gossiping, if they are not spurred on to their work.

"It would be better for the management and would result in cheaper production, if the employees were paid a standard rate of wages for each class of work and bonuses for work done in excess of requirements."

We heartily agree that the "premium" system is better in some respects for employers than the "time" system. But we protest that the "premium" system is killing on workpeople, making them their own pace-makers, urging them on and on, indefinitely, to more and more work, and eventually breaking them down. The "premium" system is the worst form of piece-work, with its constant increase of requirements to meet the constantly increasing demands of competition.—The New Era.

A DETECTIVE STORY.

(The secret service men who guard the President issued a "cock and a bull story" which perhaps should in this case be called a "hen and a cow" story. They informed the newspapers and the latter informed the public in large type that they saw two men who looked as if they were following our distinguished visitors.)

Roosevelt and I the other day came down
To visit New York's fusion-sweated town,
And to smile in upon the gentle Low
Who has been trying to be good, you know,
But couldn't, 'cause of Tammany's wicked den;
When, lo! amidst the crowd that thronged the place
A spectral sight arose—that human brace,
Which froze the fluid in my fountain pen.

"We saw two men."

Among the crowd were they, and poor enough
To carry gatlins and be classed as "tough,"
Who gazed upon us avariciously
(Because this splendid show of ours is free.)
Out from the crowd they were a-gazing then,
Without a doubt, and there the villains stood,
Not cheering quite so loud as patriots should;
And thus revealed by treason to our ken,

"We saw two men."

Two foreigners with mustard-colored hair,
Or red, or brown, or black, or grey, stood there;
And when they tarried not on Jersey's mud,
But braved, as we, the river's surging flood;
'Twas plain to us, as five and five make ten,
That they were criminals in murder dyed
Who contemplated presidenticide.
(Oh, heart of mine, jump not like that again.)

"We saw two men."

P. E. B.

—One of the humorous incidents connected with the "virtuous" anti-gambling spasm now irritating Seattle is the indignant protest of a national bank president against allowing gambling houses on the same street with his lay-out.—The Socialist, Seattle.

R·I·PANS

I have been using Ripans Tabules for nearly a year and have derived a great benefit from them. I had suffered with stomach trouble and dizziness when going to bed at night. Seeing that the Ripans Tabules relieved me, I continued the use of them to the present time, and my stomach is now in good condition and the dizziness has left me.

At Druggists.

The Five-Cent Package is enough for an ordinary occasion. The family bottle, 60 cents, contains a supply for a year.

LOUIS D. BEHREN,
Manufacturer of UNION-MADE
HAVANA CIGARS
189 WILLIAM STREET.
Opposite the office of The Worker, New York
MAIL ORDERS PROMPTLY ATTENDED TO.

Attention, Workingmen!

If you are in want of Trusses, Abdominal Supporters, Shoulder Braces, Elastic Stockings, Knee Caps and Anklets, GO TO THE MANUFACTURER,

GUSTAVE BARTH,
22 E. 125th St., bet. Madison and Fifth ave.
357 Bowery, bet. 3rd & 4th St., New York.

Dr. C. L. FURMAN,
DENTIST,
121 Schermerhorn street, Brooklyn.

THE DECATUR LABOR WORLD
Decatur, Ill.
AN UP-TO-DATE LABOR PAPER.
Subscription $1 per year, in advance.
HAS A WEEKLY CIRCULATION OF 3,500 COPIES.
Advertising rates quoted on application. Address:
THE DECATUR LABOR WORLD,
231 N. Main St., Decatur, Ill.

Where to Lunch and Dine

Comrades, patronize those who advertise in your paper.

ABBOTT BROS.'
Lunch Room,
110 Bleecker St., near Greene St.
NEW YORK.
Kangaroos are welcome.
No lino drawn on smaller animals.

LAWYERS.

MORRIS HILLQUIT,
Attorney-at-Law,
320 Broadway. Telephone 2576 Franklin

L. D. MAYES, LAWYER.
245 Broadway, New York City, Borough of Manhattan. Practice in all Courts. Consultation free.

H. B. SALISBURY,
COUNSELLOR-AT-LAW
309 Broadway, Room 903. 50 Union Square.

Simon Sultan,
Counsellor at Law.
203 Broadway (Mail and Express Building)
7th Floor, Room 711.
Residence 110 West 120th st., New York.

WHO WILL DO YOUR LAUNDRY WORK?

I. X. L. LAUNDRY, GUSTAV LEIST, 774 Second Ave.

SPECIAL NOTICES.

Under this heading any matter of interest to the Social Democratic Party (Socialist Party) will be inserted at FIVE CENTS PER LINE EACH INSERTION. Six words about equal one line. Cash must accompany advertisement IN EVERY INSTANCE.

WANTED.—An active comrade who will take the agency for The Worker for Detroit and vicinity.

Local Rochester will hold a general meeting on June 13, 8 p. m., at 95 Main street, Room 9, the headquarters and reading room of the S. D. P. Every comrade in the city should be present, as very important business will come up.

—In the city of Wallace, Idaho, in the heart of the Cœur d'Alene mining district, the remnant of the camp followers of martial law and the Judas Governor Steunenberg nominated a "Law and Order" ticket at the municipal election, with a banker for mayor. The laboring people put up a ticket, headed by Dan Connors, a railroad brakeman, and they swept the city by an overwhelming majority. This "labor mayor" business is becoming a mighty serious question to the politicians.—Cleveland Citizen.

BUY UNION LABEL GOODS.

NO TRUSTS! NO PRISONS! NO SWEAT SHOPS!
Shirts, Waists, Collars or Cuffs
BEARING THIS LABEL ARE O. K.

This label is sewed on Shirts and Waists just below the tab or bosom and is stamped in miniature on Collars and Cuffs

No Chinese exclusion act needed when up-to-date Union Laundries use this Label to stamp Price List Slips on your laundry packages. Ask for it.

EGYPT...

Southern Illinois. A real Garden of Eden. No place in the United States produces a greater variety of finer fruits, vegetables and grains, or more of them. Splendid climate and water. Cheap lands. THE FARMERS' INSTITUTE, Carbondale, Ill., will tell you all about it. Four months for ten cents. Sample copy for two-cent stamp.

$1.00 OFFER FOR 60 CENTS.

Railroading in the United States by Ben. Hanford	5 Cents
The Clerical Capitalist by Rev. Father McGrady	10 Cents
Why Workingmen Should be Socialists by H. Gaylord Wilshire	2 Cents
Labor Politics and Socialist Politics by Algernon Lee	5 Cents
The Proletariat by Karl Kautsky	5 Cents
The Class War in Idaho by Job Harriman. Third Edition	5 Cents
The Communist Manifesto by Karl Marx and Fred'k Engels	10 Cents
The Development of Socialism, from Utopia to Science. By F. Engels	5 Cents
A Debate on the Tactics of the S. T. and L. A. toward Trade Unions between Daniel DeLeon and Job Harriman	5 Cents
The Attitude of the Socialists toward the Trade Unions, by N. I. Stone	5 Cents
The Capitalist Class by Karl Kautsky	5 Cents
Now and Then. A Socialist Play by Fred'k Krafft	10 Cents
The Adventures of John McCue—Socialist	10 Cents
The Religion of Capital by Paul Lafargue / Social Effect of Machinery by Frank W. Colton	10 Cents
Where we stand by John Spargo	5 Cents
Socialism. A Reply to the Pope's Encyclical by Robert Blatchford	5 Cents

On receipt of Only 60 Cents above 16 books will be mailed postpaid.

Socialist Literature Co., 184 WILLIAM ST., New York.

Largest Assortment of Literature on the Labor Question.
CATALOGUE FREE.

PUBLICATIONS.

SOCIAL JUSTICE.
EDITED BY FREDERICK G. STRICKLAND.

A monthly message from agitators in the field. Good for the man who hasn't thought and full of suggestions to Socialist workers. 25 Cents for Eight Months. 35 Cents per Year.

Address: SOCIAL JUSTICE, Yellow Springs, Ohio.

LATEST PUBLICATIONS.

"Adventures of John McCue" ..... 10c.
"American Farmer." By Simons. Cloth. 50c.
"American Communities." By W. A. Hinds. Cloth $1.00
"The Man with the Hoe," and other poems. By Edwin Markham. Cloth, $1; paper, 50c.
"History of Trade Unionism." By S. & B. Webb. Cloth ..... $2.60.
"Industrial Denouncing." By Sidney and Beatrice Webb ..... $4.00.
"The Passing of Capitalism." By Ladoff. 25c.
"Organized Self-Help." By H. N. Casson. 25c.
"Religion of Capital." By Lafargue ..... 10c.
"Social Effect of Machinery." By Colton. 10c
"Tales from Gorky" ..... $1.20.
"The Pride of Intellect." By F. H. Wentworth; and "What is a Scab?" By A. M. Simons ..... 5c.
"The Westerns." By A. T. Quiller-Couch ..... $1.00.
"Useful Principles of Logic." By T. Berisford ..... 15c.
"Voice from England." By Father McGrady ..... 10c.
"The History of Trade Unionism." By Sidney and Beatrice Webb. New edition. New ork. Longmans, Green & Co. 1902. 558 pages. Cloth ..... $2.60.
"Industrial Democracy." By Sidney and Beatrice Webb. 929 pages ..... $4.00.
"Where We Stand." By J. Spargo ..... 5c.
"Woman." By Martha Moore Avery ... 10c.

A large stock of Labor Literature in English and German always on hand. Catalogues free.

SOCIALIST LITERATURE CO., 184 William St., New York.

Just Received from England
A large importation of
"CAPITAL," by Karl Marx.

Only authorized edition, translated by Samuel Moore and Edward Aveling, and edited by Frederick Engels.

CONTENTS:

Prefaces by the author and editor.
Part I.—Commodities and Money.
II.—The Transformation of Money into Capital.
III.—The Production of Absolute Surplus Value.
IV.—Production of Relative Surplus Value.
V.—Production of Absolute and of Relative Surplus Value.
VI.—Wages.
VII.—The Accumulation of Capital.
VIII.—The So-called Primitive Accumulation.

Library Edition, cloth, $2.50, postpaid.

SOCIALIST LITERATURE CO., 184 William Street, N. Y.

CO-OPERATE IN PUBLISHING SOCIALIST BOOKS

"That is the way to get them at actual cost. $10 each or $1 a month for 9 months makes you joint-owners in our business with the right to buy books at the prices in second column, postage included. Others have to pay prices in first column.

The American Farmer. Simons. Cloth	.50	.30
Collectivism. Vandervelde. Cloth	.50	.30
Collectivism. Vandervelde. Paper	.25	.13
Liebknecht's Life of Marx. Cloth	.50	.30
Last Days of Roelin Commonwealth. Cloth	.50	.30
Engels' Origin of the Family. Cloth	1.00	.60
Love's Coming-of-Age. Edward Carpenter	1.00	.60
Socialism, Utopian and Scientific. Engels. Cloth	.50	.18
Socialism Utopian and Scientific. Engels. Paper	.10	.05
Socialism. Wilhelm Liebknecht. Paper	.10	.05
Life of Ferdinand Lassalle. Kautsky. Paper	.10	.05
Pocket Library of Socialism. Per copy	.10	.05
Pocket Library of Socialism. Per 100, assorted	2.25	1.00
International Socialist Review. Per copy	.10	.05
International Socialist Review. Per year	1.00	.50

Our co-operative plan is fully explained in a booklet entitled "Co-Operation in Socialist Literature," mailed free on application. Locals Chicago, Philadelphia, Erie, Minneapolis, Davenport and many others are already in line.

CHARLES H. KERR & CO. (Co-operative)
56 Fifth Avenue, CHICAGO.

L'UNION DES TRAVAILLEURS,
730 Washington Ave., Charleroi, Pa.
A weekly advocate of Trade Unionism and Socialism. Should be read by every French speaking worker.
Send for sample copies.
Subscription, $1.00 per year.

HERE'S WHAT YOU WANT!
ILLUSTRATED PROPAGANDA LEAFLETS.

"What Is Socialism?" by Mills. Per 100, 10c.
"Scientific Socialism," by Mills. Per 100, 20c.
"The Civilized Monkeys," by Warren. Per 100 ..... 15c.
"Ahli Grabitali, Financier," by Warren. Per 100 ..... 20c.
Convenient in Size. Convincing in Argument.

Send a dime for 10 weeks' subscription to The Coming Nation, an illustrated Socialist weekly, and sample copies of the above leaflets. Address:

THE COMING NATION, Rich Hill, Mo.

COMRADES, PATRONIZE . . .
FRED. SONNENSCHEIN,
UNION BARBER SHOP
84 E. 4th Street, New York.

LABOR ORGANIZATIONS

Standing advertisements of Trade Unions and other Societies will be inserted under this heading at the rate of $1 per line per annum.

CIGARMAKERS' PROGRESSIVE INTERNATIONAL UNION No. 90. Office and Employment Bureau: 64 East 4th Street. —District I. (Bohemian), 321 East 71st Street, every Saturday at 8 p. m.—District II. (German), at 50 E. First street, meets every Saturday at 8 p. m.—District III. meets at the Clubhouse, 206 East 86th Street, every Saturday at 7:30 p. m.—District IV. meets at 342 West 42d Street, every Saturday at 8 p. m.—District V. meets at 547 East 157th Street, every Saturday at 8 p. m.—District VII. meets every Saturday evening at 1432 Second Avenue.—The Board of Supervisors meets every Tuesday at Faulhaber's Hall, 1551 Second Avenue, at 8 p. m.

LOCAL 470, MACHINE WOOD WORKERS AND TURNERS. United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners of America. Meets every Tuesday at Bohemia Hall, 323 East Seventy-third street, New York. Financial Secretary, W. E. P. Schwartz, 27 Fulton avenue, Astoria, L. I.; Recording Secretary, Chas. Fleischer, 522 East Eighty-fifth street, New York.

Workmen' Children Death Benefit Fund of the United States of America.

The address of the Financial Secretary of the Executive Committee is: HENRY HAUPT, Bible House, Room 42, Astor Place, N. Y. City, N. Y.

Arbeiter-Kranken- und Sterbe-Kassiuer die Ver. Staaten von Amerika.
WORKMEN'S
Sick and Death Benefit Fund of the United States of America.

The above society was founded in the year 1884 by workingmen imbued with the spirit of solidarity and Socialist thought. Its numerical strength (at present composed of 180 local branches with 23,000 male and 4,500 female members) is rapidly increasing among workingmen who believe in the principles of the modern labor movement. Workingmen between 18 and 45 years of age may be admitted to membership in any of the branches upon payment of an initiation fee of $4.00 for the first class and $3.00 for the second class. Members belonging to the first class are entitled to a sick benefit of $9.00 for 40 weeks and of $4.50 for another 40 weeks, whether continuous or with interruption. Members belonging to the second class receive under the same circumstances and length of time $6.00 and $3.00 respectively. A burial benefit of $250.00 is guaranteed for every member, and the wives and unmarried daughters of members between 18 and 45 years of age may be admitted to the third class upon payment of an initiation fee of $1.00. Monthly assessments are levied for the three different classes of members of $1, 75 cents and 22 cents respectively. Members at large are not accepted, but all candidates have to join existing branches. In cities and towns where no branch exists, a new branch can be formed by 15 workingmen in good health, and men adhering to the above principles are invited to do so.

Address all communications to HENRY STAHL, Financial Secretary, 1-3 Third avenue, Room 2, New York City.

WORKMEN'S
Furniture Fire Insurance
Organized 1872. Membership 14,000.
Principal Organization, New York and Vicinity.

OFFICE: 64 East Fourth street. Office hours, daily, except Sundays and holidays, from 1 to 9 o'clock P. m.

BRANCHES: Yonkers, Troy, Binghamton, Gloversville, Elmira, Albany, Oneida, N. Y.

Paterson, Newark, Elizabeth, South River, Passaic and Trenton, N. J.

Adams, Boston, Holyoke, Springfield, Mass.

New Haven, Waterbury, Meriden, Hartford, and Bridgeport, Conn.

Philadelphia, Pittsburg, Allegheny, Lazern, Altoona, Scranton, Pa.

Chicago, Ill.

Cleveland, O.

San Francisco, Cal.

For addresses of the Branch-bookkeepers, see "Vorwaerts." 23

CARL SAHM CLUB (MUSICIANS' UNION. Meets first and third Tuesday of the month, 10 a. m., at Club House, 206 E. Eighty-sixth street. Secretary, H. Frey, 171 E. Eighty-seventh street.

PENNSYLVANIA.

WILKES-BARRE—Local Wilkes-Barre, Pa., Socialist Party, meets in Central Labor Union Hall, 16 S. Grant street, on the second and fourth Sundays of each month, at 2:30 p. m. All Socialists are invited. C has. F. Quinn, Secretary, 63 Wyoming street.

Have Your Printing Done at Union Printers.

F. W. HEISS, 69 GOLD ST., New York City.
Use this Label. Union Printer
Lowest Prices. — Mail Orders Promptly Attended To.

WAGE SLAVERY IN NEW JERSEY.

Commissioner of Labor Pictures Terrible Conditions.

Dangers of the Glass Works—Health of Strong Men Soon Undermined—Little Boys Subjected to Same Hardships—What Will You Do About It?

"First as to the factories in which the men are employed. In the last two decades some improvements have been made in the conditions surrounding the glassblowers while at work, especially in the new factories built within that period. For many years the factory buildings were the merest shells, affording but slight shelter and protection to the workingmen. The exposure particularly to the severe storms of winter was very great, and draughts of icy air were continually passing over the blowers so that they were almost burning upon the one side and freezing upon the other. Then, too, they stood upon the bare ground, which frequently became sodden with dampness from the water splashed around them when the pipes were being cooled. Many old blowers declare that, while their bodies were bathed in perspiration from the heat of the furnace, their feet were aching from the cold. These conditions were very prejudicial to health and coughs, colds, and rheumatic pains were engendered which frequently developed into acute diseases of the throat and lungs which resulted fatally and the mortality among glassworkers from these causes was alarmingly high. In later years the manufacturers have given more attention to improving the surroundings of the workingmen; the factories are, as far as practical, weather proof, and in many instances the furnaces have been so constructed that workingmen can stand upon raised wooden platforms instead of the damp ground or brick pavements.

"These improvements have removed some of the most serious causes of ill-health and greatly lessened the workman's liability to contract disease while at work.

New Elements of Danger.

"But new elements of danger to health have been brought into play by the introduction of the 'continuous tank furnace.' The men employed in factories in which these are installed begin work at 5 p. m., and continue until 2:30 a. m., alternate weeks. It is severe upon all blowers, and especially so upon the older men who have been accustomed for years to work out of a pot furnance and only during the day. The heat of a tank furnace is much greater than that of a pot furnace. There is an immense body of molten glass and a corresponding increase in the body of the fire. The alternation from day to night work weakens the system and reduces its power of resistance to attacks of disease. The alternation keeps the men under a continuous strain and they cannot become accustomed to the recurring changes. They are to a great extent victims of insomnia, being unable to sleep in the daytime after night work; and cannot enjoy a sound night's sleep in the week of their day-work; the men in consequence become nervous and depressed. The irregular meals, hurriedly taken, disorder the stomach and seriously affect all the organs of digestion and thus a great deal of time is lost from illness. Not only are the workmen compelled to endure higher degrees of heat, but in the arrangement of a tank furnace the men are crowded closely together and have not the same opportunity to obtain air as in factories where pot furnaces only are in use. The working conditions, which are severe enough during the day, become infinitely more trying to physical endurance at night; the atmosphere then being usually close and moisture-laden, greatly intensifies the enervating effects of the heat and makes work under such circumstances very exhausting in its effects.

Men Cannot Rest.

"To particularize: The night shift goes to work at 5 p. m., probably partaking of food before starting to the factory; about 8 o'clock a lunch is taken, and at 12 midnight there is a half hour's rest and another meal is eaten; at 2:30 a. m. the men leave the factory and repair to their homes, where they must wash and change underwear, so that it is 3:30 or 4 o'clock when they finally reach their beds to seek rest and sleep.

"Interviews with a large number of the blowers show that with many sound sleep is out of the question; they may doze fitfully for two or three hours, but the street noises which begin with dawn arouse them, and they cannot go to sleep again, and arise unrested and unrefreshed. This is the status for one week; the ensuing week presents entirely different conditions. Work is in the daytime, the meals are more regular and the entire night is before them for sleep. But this alternation injuriously affects the workman; his meals are not enjoyed and his nights are restless, his sleep broken and lacking in that refreshment that should come naturally to the tired worker.

"These are the conditions which tell upon the health of the glass worker; he becomes nervous, depressed and shaken; he suffers the horros of dyspepsia and indigestion, with a sure and certain weakening of the system which predisposes him to become the victim of some organic disease.

"It is no wonder, then, that throughout the West and some parts of the East there is already strong agitation for the abandonment of all night work.

The Children's Burden.

"If the conditions heretofore spoken of so seriously affect the strong men, what shall be said of their ultimate effect upon the health of the tending boys? At a period of life when it is essential that their habits should be regular, particularly as to eating and sleeping, so that healthy physical growth should not be impeded or interfered with in any way, these little fellows, many of them of very tender years, are forced by the nature of the work assigned them to violate continually the laws of health, and it would be a miracle if some were not cut off before reaching the years of manhood, while many others attain that period of life prematurely decrepit and without the mental and bodily vigor that should be the best heritage of young manhood. The boys who work through the night, when they should be enjoying sound and refreshing sleep, exhibit clearly to the observer the pernicious and baneful effects of this disregard of natural laws in their pallid and drawn features, stunted growth, and shrunken chests and limbs. If they reach the years of manhood, many of them will be constant sufferers from painful and distressing complaints.

"This, to say nothing of their reaching maturity without education and without a trade. Unfortunately, glass factories cannot be run without boys. Large sums have been expended by the manufacturers in experiments to find a way of doing by machinery, at least in part, the work now being done by them, but these efforts have resulted in failure in every instance. Many of these boys bear the scars of severe burns. In the crowded factories where so many of them are constantly moving to and fro carrying the hot bottles, occasional collisions are inevitable, and some of the boys show the marks of these terrible burnings in the form of scars which they will bear all through their lives. Another evil, but one for which the factory owners are not responsible, is the habit of many boys after work is over to lie down and sleep in the factory. It is dark and stormy perhaps when work is done, and the little fellows are afraid to face the darkness and the storm, and so try to get what sleep they can near the furnace until the day dawns. This is another demoralizing condition. It is indeed a hard and trying life they lead, these boys of nine, ten, eleven years and upwards, for many such are in the factories, despite the provisions of the law."

The foregoing extract is from the Twenty-fourth Annual Report of the Bureau of Statistics of Labor and Industry of New Jersey for the year ending October 31, 1901.

Barbarous Capitalism.

What a condition of affairs, and that in the year 1901 of our much boasted civilization! How happy the Puerto Ricans and the Filipinos must feel at the thought of soon enjoying this same civilization with us!

A stronger condemnation of the barbarous capitalistic profit system could hardly be found. Here is an open admission by the authorities that the lives of men, and even boys, are sacrificed for profits—and, mark you, despite the provisions of the law! What do the capitalists care for the law? Have they not their representatives in all of our legislative bodies and upon the bench—the Republican and the Democratic office-holders—who are the servile tools of the capitalist class.

A splendid plea could be made for the speedy remedy of these appalling conditions from an ethical or humanitarian standpoint, but as Socialists we clearly recognize that such a plea will not avail in itself. Men are not moved to action by sentiment, but by material interests. The owners of the glass-works are no better and no worse than any other capitalists, they are simply in that line of business in order to make money, to become rich. Most naturally, they can make more profits by employing boys than if they were to employ men, therefore they employ boys; for to make profits is their main purpose. The health of boys? Why, that is a secondary consideration.

On the other hand, it is quite plain that it is of vital interest to the workers that such conditions should speedily terminate. Now therefore, it follows, that the workers should organize themselves for their mutual protection and benefit. We already find that numerous trade unions are in existence, which is proof that the pressure from existing conditions has become so great that the workers have become conscious of their class interests and that they have combined to protect themselves from greater pressure. To thus organize is the duty of every workman who has the welfare of his family and himself at heart. Much can be gained by such organizations; and they tend to show the workers the strength of their numbers when organized—they become a disciplined body instead of a helpless mob. While it is true that the workers can win numerous and far-reaching benefits through a trade union organization, it is equally true that they cannot entirely remedy such conditions as those described above.

How to Set It Right.

In order that these condtions be changed it is necessary that the working class should also organize upon the political field, in order to capture the powers of government; which powers are at present in the hands of the capitalist class. The workers have, by casting their votes for the Republican and Democratic parties, entrusted their enemies with the powers which they use whenever the wage-workers go on strike for better conditions, to club or shoot them into submission.

"The Socialist Party is the party which alone represents the working class. It is composed almost entirely of members of the working class, and it stands in perfect sympathy with the trade union movement. The Socialist Party, in its platform, "declares its aim to be the organization of the working class, and those in sympathy with it, into a political party, with the object of conquering the powers of government and using them for the purpose of transforming the present system of private ownership of the means of production and distribution into collective ownership by the entire people." That is the party which the working class ought to join and give it their votes at all elections.

What Socialists want, then is to change the present state of society for a higher and nobler state of society. "The whole economic history of the world," says Emile Vandervelde, "is that a regime of production, no matter what acts of injustice it involves, what protests it excites, what revolts it provokes, never disappears but to give way to a superior regime, superior not only in the point of view of abstract justice, but also and above all in the point of view of social productivity.

"Slavery and serfdom, condemned for centuries by moralists, were not suppressed in countries of Christian civilization until the moment came when the necessities of production required the formal emancipation of Labor.

"Likewise, all the sentimental arguments that can be invoked in favor of Socialism would not suffice to determine the real emancipation of Labor, if collectivism (ownership by all the people) were not destined to prevail over the capitalist regime by reason of its superior productivity."

That collectivism would be superior to capitalism has been admitted even by a great many of its enemies, among whom may be mentioned Carroll D. Wright, the statistician, who is employed by the United States government. This gentleman at one time said: "If industry were properly organized, two to three hours' work a day, by all men physically able, would suffice for the production of all the necessities of life." Socialism therefore has a sound economic basis, and it should appeal to workingmen, to whom it will bring untold benefits, as a movement to which they ought give their every attention.

The victory of the Socialist movement would result in the eradication of all these evils described in the beginning of this article, for most assuredly, if production can be carried on by the employment of men working three hours a day, it is unnecessary and cruel to force boys of tender years to do the work, as is the case to-day.

Fellow workingmen, it is for you to say whether or not we shall change this system. You alone, by virtue of your overwhelming numerical strength, and further because it is only to your interest that a change be brought about, can accomplish this great work. "The liberation of the working class must be the work of that class itself," is the admonition of Karl Marx and it is a true one.

Workingmen, arise! Unite with your brothers to put an end to the dark night of capitalism, which has enshrouded you so long, so very long! Put your shoulder to the wheel and help to bring the dawn of a brighter and happier day—the advent of Socialism.

Comrades, raise aloft the Torch of Light, that those who are wandering in the dark may find the path which will lead them to freedom!

CHARLES UFERT.

West Hoboken, N. J., May 24.

MAX HAYES ELECTED?

Unofficial Report of I. T. U. Election Says He Will Be a Delegate to A. F. of L.

Although the full result of the election in the International Typographical Union will not be definitely known until the Canvassing Board, which meets on June 5, has completed its work, a press dispatch from Indianapolis announces that Comrade Max Hayes of Cleveland is one of the three delegates elected to attend the next convention of the American Federation of Labor at New Orleans. William Garrett is also reported elected, but it is still doubtful whether the third place will go to Frank Morrison or M. P. Walsh. President Lynch is re-elected by a large majority. The vote seems to have been the largest in the history of the I. T. U.

A NEW SOLUTION OF THE PROBLEM OF THE UNEMPLOYED.

Law and order being up for consideration, the dispatch from Topeka, Kan., published on Easter Sunday, that day of Glad Tidings, by the New York "Herald," surely deserves more than a passing attention as placing Miami County, Kansas, on a high ethical plane:

"Topeka, Kansas, Saturday.—Miami County, in this state, is free from peddlers and tramps as a result of a reward recently offered by Mr. Barney Sheridan, an eccentric newspaper publisher. Mr. Sheridan has always been opposed to tramps and peddlers, and all his life has been trying to devise some means to rid his community of them. He has offered a reward to any boy or man in the county who will whip a tramp or peddler. The reward is $20, and there must be proof that the punishment administered was so severe that the peddler could neither walk nor see for three days.

The unique offer appeared in the current issue of Mr. Sheridan's newspaper, with the announcement that it would be kept standing. The fact that he requires the punishment to be so severe has aroused the members of the Humane Society in Miami County, and they hope to have the severity of the punishment lessened. The editor declares that his offer is for the good of his community, and refuses to change it. The plan is attracting a great deal of attention in other counties, and may be followed there."

It is beautifully touching that the Humane Society should pray for a lessening of the severity of the punishment. For a peddler not to be able to walk or see for three days might make him a burden upon the county.

It is to be hoped that the society may induce the editor to make it just a day; when the peddler could lie in a ditch or beside a hedge and not bother the community.

Mr. Sheridan must exert a salutary influence upon his neighbors to induce them to fall in so readily with his plan to train the boys to fight and at the same time administer proper punishment to people who evince the reprehensible ambition to sell things in the country. At this rate Kansas may yet hope to produce a greater than Funston.—Socialist Spirit.

——The unhappy consumer is beginning to inquire how he is to pay for the high-priced coal with which to cook the beef that he is unable to buy.—Kansas City Journal.

BUY UNION LABEL GOODS.

FOR THE DAILY.

Report of Progress in Gathering Funds for the Work.

The Workingmen's Co-operative Publishing Association held a regular meeting last Monday evening. Considerable routine business was transacted and several important matters were discussed and laid over to the next meeting, the date of which will be announced through The Worker.

Amounts Pledged.

Following is a statement of amounts pledged for the Socialist Daily Fund up to June 2:

Previously acknowledged	$5,743.00
Gustav Schmidt, Newark, N. J.	15.00
F. K.	10.00
Chas. A. Goll, City	6.00
Rudolph Wyssman, City	6.00
Gustav Linke, City	2.00
P. Schaffer, City	6.00
E. P. Clarke, City	10.00
J. G. Dailey, City	10.00
J. Bernard, City	10.00
C. Flincker, City	5.00
P. Bauer, City	5.00
W. A. Smith, City	5.00
Total	$5,833.00

Cash Receipts.

The following amounts have been received on pledges and donations:

PAID ON PLEDGES.

Eugene Meves	$2.00
Michael Gunther	1.00
F. Schultz	5.00
S. Benain	5.00
Dr. I. Levin	5.00
M. Hilliquit	10.00
Miss Rosengarten	1.00
S. Panzer	5.00
A. A. Mayell	1.00
G. W. Brown	1.00
S. Reichenthal	2.00
F. Schultz	5.00
F. Tepper, Lawrence, Mass.	3.00
H. Reich	4.00
Dr. Margolis	1.00
M. Pine	1.00
Gustav Schmidt, Newark	3.00
H. R. Kearns, Arlington, N. J.	1.00
F. K.	1.00
Otto Christoph, Buffalo	1.00
W. H. Luttman, Brooklyn	10.00
C. M. Armas	1.00
A. Halpern	1.00
P. Schaffer	2.00
Gerold Tushak	2.00

CASH CONTRIBUTIONS.

L. M. D., Westport, Conn.	.25
Committees of Branches W. S. & D. B. F.	1.00
Carl Bahsler, Laconia, N. H.	1.00
Otto Friedrich, Laconia, N. H.	1.00
Jos. Panzigran, Laconia, N. H.	1.00
Wm. Scheer, Laconia, N. H.	1.00
Percy F. Morse, Baltimore	.20
Chas. Baumle, Fred. Schuler, Fritz Anthes, and J. P. Andres, Cold Spring, N. Y., 25c. each.	1.00
J. Edgren, Park City, Utah	.50
P. J. Marker, Lawrence, Mass.	2.00
Harvey W. Shay, York, Pa.	1.00
Bokshitzky Bros.	5.00
Leander Kress	1.00
Local Portland, Me.	5.00
W. Klaiber	1.00
Emil Zwikirsch, Alexandria, Ind.	1.00
Chas. Krogman, Chicago	10.00
Wm. Meyer	1.00
Nic. Luther	1.00
O. Giescke	1.00
L. Hope Cooker	1.00
A. Thompsen	1.00
Edmond Kelly, Paris, France	3.25
E. Maguire, Philadelphia	.25

Total for week: On pledges, $74; contributions, $42.45 ..... $116.45
Previously acknowledged 1,222.23

Total cash $1,338.68

Addresses Wanted.

The following have made pledges, but cannot be found at addresses given, and are requested to advise Comrade Butscher at once of their correct addresses: C. Hitzel, City; A. Siff, City; Samuel Miller, 102 E. One Hundred and Fifth street; J. J. Friedland, 152 E. Eighty-sixth street; Geo. Winkel, 527 E. Seventy-second street; Geo. W. Mills, 61 Park Place; S. Solomon, 53 First street; Ab. Fishman, 329 E. Third street; Christian Brunne, 759 Lexington avenue.

Comrades who have made pledges are requested to notify Comrade Butscher at once of any change in address, as it will save considerable time and expense.

Comrades soliciting pledges are again urged to report promptly every week the result of their work.

The district managers are as follows:

4th A. D.—Dr. J. Halpern, 250 East Broadway.

6th and 10th.—Henry L. Slobodin, 60 Second avenue.

11th.—Geo. Brown, 423 West Thirty-eighth street.

12th.—Wm. Halpern, 402 Grand street.

13th.—Hugo Pick, 326 W. Thirty-eighth street.

15th and 17th.—Wm. Meyer, 408 W. Fifth street.

18th and 20th.—J. N. Wood, 321 E. Sixteenth street.

19th.—M. L. Klauber, 132 W. Sixty-sixth street.

21st.—E. M. Martin, 887 Columbus avenue.

22d.—A. Mayell, 220 E. Fifty-second street.

23d.—E. P. Clark, 501 W. One Hundred and Sixty-fourth street.

24th.—Siskind Goldbarth, 311 E. Fifty-fourth street.

Yorkville Agitation District.—H. C. Bowerman, 510 E. Eighty-first street.

34th and 35th.—A. Halpern, 670 E. One Hundred and Seventy-first street.

Newark and Vicinity.—D. Rubinow, 65 Sherman avenue, Newark.

Hudson County, N. J.—For Jersey City, F. Krafft; for North Hudson County, Ferd. Ufert.

Notice to Contributors.

Pledges should be drawn and checks and money orders made payable to the Socialist Daily Finance Committee. All communications should be addressed to the newly elected Agent of the Committee, Wm. Butscher, Labor Lyceum, 64 E. Fourth street, New York. The Worker will contain, each week, a list of contributions received up to Monday preceding the date of issue.

If any contribution sent is not promptly acknowledged the sender should at once inform the Committee, that the matter may be investigated and set right.

Those who have made pledges should remember to send in the monthly instalments promptly, saving the trouble and expense of notifying them. Let each one feel his personal responsibility for the work we have undertaken and his power to hasten the coming of the Socialist Daily.

PLEDGE.

To Job Harriman, Dr. Julius Halpern and Leonard D. Abbott,
Socialist Daily Finance Committee:

I hereby pledge myself to contribute for the publication of an English Socialist Daily the sum of $..... to be paid in monthly instalments of $.....

Name .....

Address .....

A GREAT WEEK.

(Continued from page 1.)

poration within the reach of a certain class of citizens, which it was known would mean confiscation.

Carey replied. He would not deny that he wanted to give citizens a chance to get at the corporations. The Socialists would not have to retire and hold a caucus on that point. The party they represented was unanimous on the matter. He pointed out the contradictory position held by many members in denying to the cities what was conceded to the towns. A town could not receive a charter as a city unless it had 10,000 inhabitants, but it could exercise the referendum upon petition of ten citizens. If a town had 9,999 inhabitants it had the referendum, but if a child was born and the population thereby increase to 10,000, then the ten thousand should not have the referendum. This was a most illogical position to take.

A Lesson in Logic.

Callender, wso was still smarting under Carey's arraignment of the day before, was recognized. He said Carey was illogical and reminded him of the lessons in logic taught in the books at school. One lesson ran thus: Does one grain of sand make a heap? No. Do 99 grains make a heap? No. Do 9,999 grains make a heap? No. Do 10,000 grains make a heap? Yes. (Laughter.) Callender yielded the floor to Carey, who said he only wished to remark that if that was the sort of logic the gentleman from Boston was fed on, he wondered no longer at some of the arguments made by him in opposition to labor bills. There was more laughter at this, which made Callender flush crimson and then grow pale. When he spoke again, his voice trembled with anger. He said the members would understand that it required some self-control to speak after the words spoken about him in that House a few hours ago. He would not attempt to answer the gentleman from Haverhill; but he would say they had been good friends, but that the comparison of himself to a biblical gentleman could not be easily forgotten.

He proceeded with a eulogy of representative government as the best yet devised.

Carey replied to Callender in a speech that provoked applause. His answer to Callender's personal allusions was particularly happy. He said he regretted that anything should have occurred to mar their friendship, but anything he had said was in opposition to the attack made upon his colleague and himself. He would say that no matter what came between the gentleman from Boston and himself, no matter what he might say or do, now or hereafter, nothing could make them forget that the gentleman from Boston was the first man to arise on the floor of the house and defend the Socialists when to defend them meant something. For himself, he was of that section of the working class whose motto was "We never forget." We never forget those who wrong our class, nor those who help it, be the deed ever so small. And, though the gentleman from Boston should sink to the lowest depths of political iniquity, which we know he would not do, yet he and his colleague would remember those words of defense when all else would be only worth forgetting.

He proceeded with an effective reply to the argument for representative government and against the referendum, showing that with changed conditions political methods must change.

Newton of Everett, at once the most able and outspoken opponent of all progressive measures, and the real leader of the Rpeublicans in the House, opposed the bill as an attack on representative government, which would give members a chance to shirk responsibility. MacCartney replied.

On a rising vote the bill was voted down by 38 to 76. MacCartney asked for a roll-call, which was granted, resulting in 55 for the bill and 118 against.

And as this is enough for one sitting, I will have to let the report of the proceedings on Wednesday and Thursday lie over. The Legislature will adjourn in a couple of weeks.

WILLIAM MAILLY.

AN OPEN LETTER

To the New York City Board of Health.

Attention Called to the Violation of Law by Elevated Railways—Of Course, the Board Will Take No Heed.

To the Board of Health of New York City.

Gentlemen:—For the last two days the Sixth and Ninth Avenue Elevated Railway locomotive engines of the Manhattan Railway Company have been burning soft coal on their trips up and down town. It is easily detected by the black smoke from the smoke-stacks and is still more noticeable by the strong smell of bitumen one gets while riding in the cars. The employees have also admitted to me that such is the case.

If the law were applied to this corporation and they were fined $50 for each offense, it would amount to considerable, when you consider the number of trains each way each day.

But of course we understand that there is one law for the poor man and another for the rich corporation, and that if the Manhattan Railway Company can assist in downing the striking miners, it will be only too glad to do so; and that we can ease our consciences by saying that "the extreme of the law is the extreme of injustice."

But what a reflection on the laws of civilization! Of course, it is only the poor man that feels the "extreme of the law" or the "extreme of injustice." There is not a day passes that I do not see other violations of the law by the Manhattan Railway Company as well as the one mentioned above, but this one falls directly within your province.

Yours very truly,
DANIEL K. YOUNG.
New York City, May 31.

CONTRADICTORY PLEAS OF MINE "OPERATORS."

The insincerity of the coal "operators" and of their apologists in the capitalist press is well shown by the contradiction between two arguments which they advance for the purpose of alienating public sympathy from the striking miners.

First, they told us that the miners, strictly so called, are very well paid men, being actually sub-contractors, who work four or five hours a day and get four or five dollars a day for themselves, and that the hard work is done by the helpers and laborers whom the miners employ. This statement, which is, after all, one of those half-truths that are said to be worse than whole lies—was intended to turn public sympathy away from the miners by intimating that the latter were striking only for themselves and at the expense of the laborers and others.

But now the bosses come out with a new argument. They say: "The adoption of the eight-hour day would in no way benefit the miner or the miners' laborer. On the other hand, it would tend to work to his disadvantage, as he is practically a contractor, working on his own time. The company pays its miners for the number of cars of coal mined, regardless of the number of hours worked. If the miners adopt any rules to limit the amount of coal they are to send out, the operator is forced to employ additional miners and open up more chambers. This is expensive, for they are compelled, in turn, to employ additional drivers and runners, purchase more cars and mules to wait on these men, with no appreciable benefit in the way of tonnage. The men who would be affected by the eight-hour day and ten hours' pay are those known as company men." (See New York "Times," May 20.)

In their first argument, the "operators" posed as disinterested champions of the common laborers, as against the wicked miners. In the second, the "operators" profess themselves eager to save the foolish miners from the disastrous consequences of their own demands, the granting of which would cut down their wages and benefit only the more poorly paid men.

Our inference from these contradictory arguments is that the miners are neither wicked nor foolish; that both miners and laborers would benefit by the winning of the demands they have joined in making; and that the "operators" are racking their brains for pretexts to enlist public opinion in defense of their own unearned profits.

The capitalist papers are now declaring that the miners were more prosperous during the last year than ever before and that "they were perfectly satisfied and would have remained at work had not agitators aroused them." Do the capitalist editors think none of us can remember what they publish even from month to month? Less than thirty days ago these same papers were telling us—and they told the truth then, the time for profitable lying not having yet arrived—that, if a strike came, it would be against the desires of the union officials and forced upon them by the rank and file in the union.—All of which goes to show how greatly we need the Socialist Daily, to tell the truth about labor affairs every day.

——And now the daily papers are suggesting that the killing and roasting of thousands of human beings by the volcanic eruption was far more merciful than if they had escaped to face the competitive system penniless. In a year or so the same papers will be howling for us to vote to maintain a system which they admit is worse than a cataclysm.—The Socialist, Seattle.

A NEW LEAFLET.

What Do You Think of the Beef Trust?

10 copies ..... 5 cents.
50 copies ..... 15 cents.
100 copies ..... 25 cents.
1,000 copies ..... $2.00.
Postpaid, cash with order.

SOCIALIST LITERATURE CO.,
184 William St., New York.

SCAB BEER SOLD IN PROHIBITION STATE.

Socialists and Organized Workingmen of Portland, Me., Declare Their Position.

The Central Labor Union of Portland, Me., at its last meeting, adopted the following resolutions:

"Whereas, Fourteen hundred workmen connected with the twenty-four breweries in Boston are now on a strike in order to secure justice to themselves and to protect the legal and constitutional rights of the many as opposed by the selfish interests of the few; and

"Whereas, This strike was made necessary by the action of the master brewers; therefore be it

"Resolved, That the Central Labor Union of Portland, Me., heartily endorses the present strike in the breweries in Boston.

"And we hereby pledge ourselves to use no beer made in Boston during the continuance of the strike; and we further call upon all dealers and all individuals, both union and non-union, to refrain from handing or consuming any beer made in Boston until this trouble is adjusted.

"And we further declare that no true union man will purchase any non-union beer."

Altough Maine is supposed to be a Prohibition state, it is declared by the Portland "Daily Advertiser" that, "owing to the strike, Maine is now the only field to which Boston-made beer is shipped in any quantity." Large shipments of scab beer from Boston have been brought into Portland and Bangor under the old party Sheriffs' noses.

Two deputy sheriffs are now under arrest on charges of bribery and the workingmen are roused to indignation by the condition of affairs thus exposed. The Socialist Party of Cumberland County, which includes the city of Portland, have chosen Samuel C. Phillips as candidate for Sheriff in the September election, and a warm fight will be made.

The Press Committee of Local Portland has issued the following open letter:

"To the Editor of the 'Advertiser':

"Sir:—The Socialist local branch of Portland believes that the time has come to call public attention to a better treatment of the liquor question than that of a law prohibiting sales, while leaving private profit, the all powerful inducement to such sales, untouched.

"They further believe that any law which leaves the manufacture of liquor in private hands is doomed to failure.

"Socialists declare that under the present system whoever controls the manufacture also controls the market, the sales, and the retailers of liquor.

"They also declare that so long as liquor can be sold for profit men will sell it, and as long as there is profit in the manufacture of liquor men will manufacture it.

"The whole liquor traffic is a matter of profit and nothing but profit. The Socialists therefore offer the following solution:

"First. The people shall own and control the manufacture of all liquor.

"Second. The question of liquor selling in each locality shall be decided by local option.

"Third. All sales shall be from public agencies, of strictly pure liquor under careful restrictions and at cost; the agents to be elected by direct vote of the people.

"Fourth. The private manufacture and sale of liquors to be prohibited under severe penalties.

"Socialists do not think laws will abolish drunkenness, but that the above regulations would greatly decrease it. They also believe that these regulations will abolish bribery and such debauchery of public officials as has long afflicted us; taht they will banish impure liquors, together with the infamous system openly avowed of intentionally creating a taste for liquor among young men.

"And the local branch further adds, that Socialism, besides making the sale of intoxicating liquors a profitless occupation, will also, by opening the way for all to engage in honorable industry at fair pay, remove the force which now fairly presses many liquor dealers into a means of livelihood otherwise distasteful to them."

This statement is accompanied with a letter from Comrade Phillips as follows:

"To the voters of Cupmberland County: Having accepted the nomination for Sheriff of Cumberland County by the Socialist Party with a full and clear understanding of their position upon the liquor question, I do heartily endorse their principles as well as their stand upon the liquor question, and if I am elected I pledge myself to carry out their plans to the utmost of my ability subject to existing laws. If circumstances do not permit a fulfilment of their plans immediately. I pledge myself to carry out the prohibitory laws as now on the statutes until the prohibitory law is repealed.

"SAMUEL C. PHILLIPS."

CONCENTRATION.

Concentration does not necessarily mean the mechanical amalgamation of the smaller plants, or even an increase in the size of the individual plants. The sweating industry is an example of an industry in a highly centralized condition, and yet in which the individual plants are extremely small. The essential feature of concentration in industry is the centralizing of the control of the essentials of an industry in the hands of fewer and fewer persons, and this may take place without any change whatever in the form of the production.—A. M. Simons, in "The American Farmer."

——"Packingtown," by A. M. Simons, is a remarkable little study from life of working-class conditions. Pamphlet; price, 5 cents. Socialist Literature Company.

THE WORST YET.

Capitalist Insolence Reaches Its Climax.

Are Workingmen Satisfied with a System Under Which Their Children Must Accept Charity from Dogs?

The subjoined article, headlines and all, we reprodnce from the New York "Herald" of May 28. We have had dog dinners in the "smart set," at $50 a plate; cat weddings, with diamond earrings as wedding presents; birthday parties for animal pets, with every imaginable form of luxury and ostentation; dog funerals, with caskets adorned with precious metals and gems; but this seems to be the limit. Rich dogs give ice to poor babies! How do you like it, you workingmen in the tenements, whose babies may die in the summer heat, in spite of the aid of charitable terriers and benevolent dachshunds?

GIFT TO ICE FUND FROM GRATEFUL DOG.

Toodles, Restored to Mistress, Sends, with Waldo, $10 to Herald's Charity.

PETS PLEAD FOR THE POOR.

Check Accompanied by Words of Praise for Work Among Tenement Dwellers.

To the Editor of The Herald.

It is getting warm again, and we therefore think it will not be long before you open your ice fund's work to benefit the many poor and suffering in the city. As we think this is one of the greatest charities in the city, we enclose herewith our check to your order for $10, and hope that many others will help you to carry the work on as successfully as in former years.

You know we are old friends of yours, and this year we have special reason to be contributors to your fund, as you helped one of us—Toodles—to get back to his mistress when he was lost a few months ago. You no doubt know that Toodles is a little pet dog, as is his friend Waldo. Waldo is a dachshund and Toodles is a little white maltese terrier, or something similar to it, any way. Yours sincerely,

TOODLES AND WALDO.

THE "ACCIDENT" AT COAL CREEK.

The National Executive Board of the United Mine Workers has voted $1,000 for the relief of the whiows and orphans of the two hundred or more men murdered for profit in the Fraterville mine at Coal Creek, Tenn., and President Mitchell has added a personal donation of $100. A subscription has been opened by the organization. About 1,200 persons are rendered destitute by the explosion.

The "Mine Workers' Journal" says:

"Every mine operator is always ready to claim that his mine is in the best possible condition, and so it was with this mine. The operator who could sit in his well ventilated room in a massive brick block in the city, with the pure air and sunlight of heaven shining in on him in a well regulated manner, could instantly tell you the fine condition of his mine, without probably ever seeing the head of the workings, the dangerous top, the stifling rooms, the dilapidated canvass used as a device to conduct air in the air courses, where loose slate and rock were continually being dumped in, to save the expense of hauling it outside and in this manner interfering with the free circulation of the air which was so necessary for the poor fellows who were struggling to make a living for themselves and their loved ones in the entries and rooms they worked in, thousands of yards under the mountains."

It is a matter of official record that the company had for months known the mine to be in an unsafe condition and neglected to provide for the safety of the employees.

The company will fight all damage suits, it is announced; and undoubtedly an attempt will be made to get a favorable verdict at the inquest, which begins on June 9.

Such an experience should be enough to convert every coal miner to Socialism—to make him vote for a system under which the miners would own the mines, and not be at the mercy of profit-grinding masters.

THE DEVIL'S AUCTION.

"Who bids for the little children—body and soul and brain?
Who holds for the little children—fair and without a stain?
Will no one bid? What! no one—for their souls so pure and white?
And fit for all good, or evil which the world on their page may write?"

"I bid," cries Beggary, howling, "I bid for them one and all!
I'll teach them a thousand lessons—to lie, to skulk, to crawl!
They shall sleep in my lair—like maggots; they shall rot in the fair sunshine;
And if they serve my purpose, I hope they'll answer thine."

"And I'll bid higher and higher," says Crime, with wolfish grin,
"For I love to lead the children through the pleasant paths of sin;
They shall swarm in the street to pilfer, they shall plague the broad highway
Till they grow too old for pity, and ripe for the law to slay.

The prisons and the gallows are plenty in the land;
'Twere folly not to use them, so proudly do they stand.
Give me the little children—I'll take them as they're born,
And feed their evil passions with misery and scorn.

"Give me the little children, ye good, ye rich, ye wise,
And let the busy world spin while ye shut your idle eyes
And your judges shall have work, and your lawyers wag the tongue,
And the jailers and policemen shall be fathers to the young."

Charles Mackay.

——Do not let the memory of the crime of the Republican-Democratic combine in Idaho in 1899 fade away. Circulate Job Harriman's "Class War in Idaho." Order of Socialist Literature Company, 184 William street, New York. Single copy, 5 cents; ten or more, 2½ cents a copy.

TO SUBSCRIBERS.

The date on which your subscription expires will be found on the wrapper.

The paper will be stopped on that day unless previously renewed.

No bills or receipts sent to individual subscribers.

The Worker.

AGENTS, ATTENTION!

Agents sending in subscriptions without remittance must state distinctly how long they are to run.

Agents are personally charged and held responsible for unpaid subscriptions sent in by them.

Only duly elected and approved agents acknowledged.

VOL. XII.—NO. 11. NEW YORK, JUNE 15, 1902. PRICE 2 CENTS.

THE WORK OF TWO SOCIALISTS.

A Record That Shows What Even Two Fearless Representatives of Labor Can Do.

Carey and MacCartney Put Massachusetts Politicians on Record and Force the Picketing Bill Through the House — No Socialists in the Senate, So It Perishes There.

BOSTON, June 6.—When Carey's strike picketing bill came up on Wednesday, May 28, for passage to a third reading, the Committee on Labor, which had reported favorably, with the exception of three House members and one Senator dissenting, allowed it to go to vote without debate. A rising vote showed 32 for and 38 against. Carey made the point of no quorum and after a quorum had been verified a second rising vote showed 45 for and 71 against. A roll-call was then had and resulted in 76 for the bill and 75 against. Before the vote was announced the Clerk notified the Speaker, who then requested that his name be called. The Speaker then cast his vote, against the bill, tying the vote and thus defeating the bill.

There was applause from the enemies of the bill, and Carey gave notice that he would move reconsideration on the morrow. This was the first time the Speaker had voted during the session, or, in fact, for two years, and as he acted promptly, there is no disputing where he stands on labor measures—indeed, there never has been any question as to that matter, so far as the Socialists were concerned. The Speaker's action has constituted the principal political gossip of the past two weeks and the capitalist papers are still discussing the probable effect upon the next election, especially if Speaker Myers is the candidate for Lieutenant-Governor, which it is likely he will not now be, as the workingmen never were so much aroused over matters affecting their own interests as now.

The Speaker Explains.

That the Speaker's vote had carried consternation into the ranks of the Republicans, and of his friends in particular, was made manifest on the following day, when Carey's motion to reconsider the previous day's action on the bill was under discussion. Brigham of Marlborough had introduced an amendment to the bill, providing that nothing in the act should be construed to permit the violation of any statute law, city ordinance, or town by-law. This amendment gave the Speaker a chance to favor reconsideration, and, incidentally to make a speech that would "square" him with the multitude. The debate on reconsideration had run along for some time when the Speaker called Newton of Everett to the chair and took the floor. The explanation was rather an indefinite sort of thing, and practically left the Speaker on the same side he had always occupied. He favored reconsideration because he believed that Bingham's amendment put a different light on the bill, which he believed was not in the form it ought to pass. He believed the bill would, if enacted, make it possible for persons to block the street in front of a man's place of business, and he did not believe that a black line around any person is a safe or wise way of conducting any business. If the amendment was not adopted he would vote against the bill again if such action became necessary.

This attempt of the Speaker to cover up his action of the day before by the use of Bingham's amendment will not hold water with anybody who stops to think for a moment. Carey's bill does not seek to give anyone power to violate any statute. The proposition is absurd, in the first place, and in the second place there is no statute to violate. The bill seeks to prevent the issuance of injunctions by judges who use their power, without the existence of any statute, to prohibit workmen from doing that which would enable them peaceably to make a strike effective. Bingham's amendment was therefore unnecessary but nevertheless harmless, and any criticism of the bill without the amendment would apply equally to the amended form.

Debate on the Bill.

The debate on the bill when reconsideration was taken was a long and interesting one, consuming almost the entire morning. Dana of Newton said the question was a legal one purely and until it was shown that it was illegal to issue injunctions when violence was committed, the bill should not pass. Schofield of Ipswich cited a dissenting member of the Massachusetts Supreme Court as saying that peaceful communication should not be interfered with.

But the interesting part of the debate was the discussion between Carey and MacCartney and Newton of Everett, the Republican leader in the House. Carey had spoken at some length, giving the principal reasons for the bill's passage. He showed that anyone could walk in front of any factory and speak to whom he chose and not be enjoined; but when workmen go out on strike, if the strikers seek to speak to anyone and acquaint him with the conditions existing in the factory they were treated as if they had violated a criminal law. What was right yesterday had become a criminal offense to-day. If there is no statute against peaceful communication, why should the right be denied? When a judge issues an injunction forbidding workmen to speak to each other he becomes a law unto himself, assumes a legislative function and usurps power. We do not ask to violate any law, but only to protect certain people in the exercise of their rights.

Labor Injunctions.

Newton asked if Carey meant that courts had issued injunctions to prevent one man from speaking to another. Carey said yes. Injunctions of the most sweeping character had been issued. He cited the phraseology of one forbidding anyone "to persuade or to attempt to persuade" anyone else not to enter the employment of another. Newton said he would explain the full meaning of the phrase. Carey read the famous opinion of Chief Justice Holmes of the Massachusetts Supreme Court upon the subject, whose exact words are used in the framing of the bill.

Newton quoted an opinion and cited the difference between "agitation through a scheme of organization" and that of an individual. Carey replied and showed how inconsistent it was to deny to an organization what was declared to be the right of an individual. He regretted that disturbances occurred during strikes, but they mostly arose through misunderstandings as to the rights of strikers. We ask merely that the Legislature define these rights and we have no doubt that strikers will rise equal to the added responsibility. Give to the workers a definite understanding of their rights and that will minimize the chance of disorder. The opponents of the bill were in danger of increasing disturbances instead of removing them.

Newton asked Carey if he favored Brigham's amendment. Carey replied that the bill did not seek to repeal or violate any law, but only to define certain rights.

Newton spoke against the bill. He said Carey had discussed the bill in an exceedingly fair and able manner, but he failed utterly to get the main point of objection to it. The right of one man to speak to another was not disputed; but it was the third party's rights that had to be considered—the rights of the company involved in the controversy. Carey asked Newton what he thought of an injunction issued against a corporation sending out agents to get men by misrepresentation during a strike. Newton replied that when a corporation infringes upon the rights of others the courts interfere. Government by injunction was a catch-phrase used for political purposes; courts have never interfered with individual rights, but they have acted wisely in preventing organizations from encroaching upon the rights of other men.

MacCartney said that Newton inferred that the only wrong committed was on the part of strikers. He would ask Mr. Newton if he ever heard of an injunction being issued or granted against one corporation to prohibit it from soliciting men not to go into the employment of another company. Newton said he had not. MacCartney replied that that was the point at issue. If it was conceded to be right for one company to solicit employees from another company, why was it not right for an organization of workmen to solicit men not to go into the employment of a corporation?

Brigham's amendment was adopted, and upon a rising vote the bill was passed to a third reading by a vote of 100 to 67. On Monday last the bill was passed to be engrossed and was sent up to the Senate. No bill has attracted more attention during this session than this one, and that the Socialists should have got it through the House is looked upon as one of the most flattering tributes that could be paid to their energy and ability, as well as emphasizing their growing importance as representatives of a growing cause. The support given the bill by the Labor Committee was neither impressive nor enthusiastic, and the whole fight for the bill devolved upon the Socialists, who showed themselves well able to take care of their side. They succeeded in making the bill one of the issues of the Legislature, and their victory is all the more complete since they had the leaders of the House opposed to them.

Referendum Bill.

On the same afternoon that the strike picketing bill was passed to a third reading, Carey's bill providing for the referendum on statutory legislation came up on the question of passage to a third reading. This is the bill that Carey had succeeded in having substituted for the adverse committee report by a vote of 54 to 52.

Keenan of Boston offered two amendments. One substituted the words "general laws" for the word "measures" and the other sought to make it so that only matters enacted during the current year could be submitted to the people upon the petition of 10 per cent. of the voters.

Jackson of Fall River offered an amendment providing that 10 per cent. of the voters of the state be required in order to have measures submitted to the people.

Carey, in his speech for the bill, pointed out that Keenan's amendment would only confer power to negate Legislation, while the bill gave 25,000 voters the power to initiate legislation. He spoke at some length for the bill, and the principal speech in opposition was made by Dana of Newton, in the course of which he said that this government was bound to fail if ever pure democracy prevails. MacCartney replied to Dana in a splendid manner, and was followed again by Carey, who gave what may be called a philosophical discourse upon the referendum and its principle. It was nearly time for adjournment when they had finished and the vote was taken, concluding a hard week's work. The first Keenan amendment was defeated by a vote of 63 to 65, the Socialists favoring. Keenan's second amendment was rejected by 29 to 71, with the Socialists opposed. The Jackson amendment received 14 against 71. On a rising vote the bill received 46 against 75. The roll-call was 45 to 53, with 36 pairs, and the bill died.

Senate Does Its Work.

On Monday the strike picketing bill came up in the Senate, and passed to a third reading, after a short debate, by a vote of 13 to 12. Berry of Suffolk presented the chief opposition to the bill, and Bliss of Hampden made the principal speech in its favor. On Thursday the bill was defeated on the question of passing to be engrossed (the final stage) by a vote of 16 to 11, and the expected had happened.

The debate on the bill served the purpose of showing how necessary it is that a Socialist should be in the Senate who could present the case for the workers from the standpoint of the class struggle. A large number of prominent labor representatives were present to see the bill receive its deathblow, for the action of the Senate in passing it to a third reading had aroused some hope that the bill would be enacted.

Carey's bill providing for the appointment of an official committee to represent the state in a movement for an eight-hour day was considered in the Senate on Wednesday. The bill was amended by Bliss of Hampden, with Carey's consent, that two members be added to the existing committee on uniformity of legislation in the various states, to have the duty of advancing the eight-hour cause, at least one of the two new members to consist of a representative from the trade unions. The bill was passed as amended, and will come back to the House shortly.

MacCartney's bill providing for an emergency fund for the unemployed in times of exceptional distress is the only matter remaining in which the Socialists are directly interested. Adjournment will probably occur before the twentieth of the present month. This letter can therefore be said to close the Socialist story of the Massachusetts Legislature of 1902. That the story has been of service to the Socialist and of benefit to the thinking workingman who hopes for something more than the present system offers to his class, is the hope of

WILLIAM MAILLY.

THE DOG AND THE WOMAN.

LONG BRANCH, N. J., May 18.—Mr. and Mrs. H. P. Kingsland, who are occupying the Lockwood cottage at Elberon, are mourning over the loss of their pet fox terrier, which died on Thursday last of asthma. The dog's body was sent to a funeral director, who embalmed it, and procured a handsome casket, with silver handles, that cost over $55. The body will be buried temporarily to-morrow on the Kingsland property at Elberon. It is the intention to take the dog to New York later for permanent interment.—New York Times.

Mrs. Annie Schwartz, a Bohemian woman of 341 East Seventy-fourth street, attempted suicide last Sunday afternoon, that her family might get $500 insurance on her life. Mrs. Schwartz was found by her husband unconscious from gas. She recovered in the Presbyterian Hospital, and in Yorkville police court told why she had intended to kill herself. The husband is a painter by trade and is also the janitor of three tenement houses. Three months ago he became ill from lead poisoning and was in the hospital until last Saturday. His wife and two children had a hard time of it during those three months, but managed to exist. When the husband came back from the hospital, too weak to work, however, the problem of existence for the little household became more serious, and the wife and mother decided to take her life.—New York Sun, May 21.

ISN'T IT QUEER?

That the miner is at his wits end to keep warm in winter?

That the carpenter lives in a little rented hovel?

That the tailor is the most ragged individual we meet on the street?

That the weavers of woollens and silks are the most cheaply dressed?

That the best shoemakers wear the poorest kind of shoes?

That the man who builds carriages never owns one?

That the man who builds ships never had an interest in one?

That the man who makes watches has to ask his neighbor "what time is it?"

That the man who makes stoves is using a "cast off" one?

That the man who creates the most wealth has the least of it?

That men who dig diamonds out the bowels of the earth can never afford to wear one?

The "Labor Union" suggests that the people wake up.—The Labor Union.

——If legislation could not head off the combination of capital in the form of a trust, why should we expect legislation to be able to "bust the trust" after it is formed? If a rope is not strong enough to hold the calf can we expect it to hold the bull four years old?—Social Economist.

GAINS IN OREGON.

Large Increase in Vote Cast for Socialist Party.

Incomplete Returns Indicate That Vote of 1900 Is at Least Trebled—Portland Alone Nearly Equals Vote of the State in That Year.

The gubernatorial election in Oregon shows a great increase in the Socialist vote in that state. The "People's Press," the Socialist Party organ in Oregon, gives the following report:

"Up to time of going to press we have received complete returns from no single county in the state, so we cannot give any satisfactory returns; but enough is already in to show very satisfactory gains in all parts of the state. The precincts thus far heard from indicate a gain of from two to nine hundred per cent. over the vote in 1900.

"Albany gave Debs 7 votes in 1900, and our vote now runs from 38 to 80. One precinct in Benton County gave one vote to Debs, now casts 11 for the Socialist ticket. One precinct in Lincoln County gave 26 votes for the Socialist ticket out of a total vote of 54. Gerdes, our candidate for Congress in the Second District, received 1,161 votes in Portland alone, being but 305 less than the entire vote of the state cast for Debs in 1900, and in his own precinct in Clatsop County he received 58 votes out of 204 cast. Ryan, our nominee for Governor, ran behind the state ticket in every county, on account of so many "reform" Socialists voting for the Democratic candidate; so when the returns are in, we shall base our strength in the state on Secretary of State, who polled the full Socialist strength.

"First Socialist ticket ever voted in Parker Precinct, Barker County, polled over 10 per cent. of the total vote —13 to 129."

Carl D. Thompson's recent agitation tour through the state seems to have had good effect.

There are now forty local branches of the Socialist Party in Oregon.

ANOTHER COUNCILMAN.

Comrade W. J. Croke, Glass Worker, Reported Elected in Marion, Ind.

The Cleveland "Citizen" reports that W. J. Croke has been elected on the ticket of the Socialist Party to the City Council of Marion, Ind., and that our vote in that place was 544, a gain of 350 since last election.

Comrade Croke is a well known member of the American Flint Glass Workers' Union and was one of the representatives of that organization in the last convention of the American Federation of Labor. He was recognized as one of the ablest men in the convention and did good work, along with Max Hayes and the other Socialist delegates. The "Citizen" says:

"Croke is an able young fellow and is well liked among the 'flints.' • • • He will be a splendid speaker if he keeps up his gait. He is as short as Sam Gompers and fully as persistent and more pugnacious. Croke is one of the many rising young men who will make their mark in the labor movement."

SOCIALISM IN CUBA.

The "Missouri Socialist" of St. Louis says:

"Comrade H. J. Stegerwalt of this city, has recently received a communication from Mr. P. Nickel of La Gloria, Cuba, stating that a Socialist club with twenty members had been recently formed in the American colony at that place, and were at work collecting funds for the erection of a club house.

"There seems to be no end to the Socialist sentiment abroad these days. The capitalist will find himself on the outside in a short while at this rate."

ENTERING WEDGE IN IDAHO.

RIGBY, Ida.—School election was held in this district on May 26. The Socialist Party won out. For the three-year term, Fred Peterson had 22 votes against 17 for the Republican, 10 for the Democrat, and 7 scattering; for the one-year term, Wm. Adams had 19, with 10 for the Democrat, 9 for an independent, and 15 scattering. The Socialists are pledged to a liberal school policy. This is the entering wedge in Idaho.

THE REAVENLY TWINS.

PITTSBURG, Penn., May 22.—Senator Hanna is acting as mediator between the blast furnace operators of the Mahoning and Shenandoah Valleys and the furnace workmen, so as to avoid a strike June 15. THE SENATOR IS THE OWNER OF SEVERAL BLAST FURNACES and his interest in coal, iron, and transportation will be hard hit, as well as his reputed magnanimity toward labor.

SENATOR HANNA AND SAMUEL GOMPERS HAVE JOINED FORCES TO KEEP THE MEN AT WORK. It is reported that the operators will offer as a compromise an advance of wages rather than give an eight-hour day.—New York Times.

Mark Hanna, friend of Labor, who owns several blast furnaces and exploits the furnace workmen, joins forces with Samuel Gompers, labor leader, to keep the wage-slaves at work piling up more profits for Hanna. As friends of Labor, Mark and Sam are heavenly twins.

——It has been said that the Democratic party never can learn anything. Perhaps that is why it does not know that it is dead.—Brewers' Journal.

STATE CONVENTION.

In Accordance with Referendum Vote, It Will Be Held in New York City on July 4.

Henry L. Slobodin took the chair at the last meeting of the New York State Committee, held in the Labor Lyceum on June 3. The Secretary submitted the vote received in the state referendum regarding time and place of the coming State Convention. July 4 was voted the best date for the convention. The vote for place was as follows: Albany, 99; Buffalo, 53; New York, 155; Rochester, 12; Syracuse, 74. The convention will accordingly be held in the Labor Lyceum in New York City on Friday, July 4.

The basis of representation will be: One delegate from each local and one additional for every fifty members or major fraction thereof in good standing.

An encouraging report from Organizer F. J. Spring was read to the State Committee, and application for a charter was received from a new local organized by him at Niagara Falls. He reported an active organizing campaign carried on in Buffalo and in Watertown.

Correspondence was received regarding the coming tour of Charles H. Vail, who will spend June in this state.

E. P. Jennings, Jr., reported active work on behalf of the party done in Newark, N. Y., and Union Springs.

Comrade C. H. Caspar of Fort Edward reported healthy growth in that vicinity, and stated that nominations would be made for Assemblymen and Senator.

Correspondence was read from Rome, Peekskill, Schenectady, Ticonderoga, Long Island City, New Rochelle, Gloversville, Yonkers, Watertown, Buffalo, Richmond Borough, Batavia, Catskill, and Troy.

PRIMARIES IN NEW YORK COUNTY.

Primaries of the Social Democratic Party of New York County, to elect delegates to the County, Congressional, Senatorial, and Assembly District Conventions, will be held on Saturday, June 21, from 7 p. m. to 9:30 p. m., at the following places:

BOROUGH OF MANHATTAN.

Second A. D., at 184 William street, office of the "New Yorker Volkszeitung."

Third A. D., at 126 Varick street, residence of Comrade Lowstrand.

Fourth A. D., at the club rooms of the Socialist Literary Society, 241 E. Broadway.

Fifth A. D., at 249 W. Eleventh street, residence of Comrade Mayes.

Sixth A. D., at the Labor Lyceum, 64 E. Fourth street.

Seventh A. D., 330 W. Eighteenth street, residence of Comrade Lemon.

Eighth A. D., at 118 Division street, residence of Comrade Lane.

Ninth A. D., at 508 W. Twenty-sixth street, residence of Comrade Wecklein.

Tenth A. D., at 170 E. Fourth street, residence of Comrade Riegel.

Eleventh A. D., at 436 W. Thirty-eighth street, Meyer's Hall.

Twelfth A. D., at Great Central Palace, 90-96 Clinton street.

Thirteenth A. D., at the West Side Labor Lyceum, 342 W. Forty-second street.

Fourteenth A. D., 238 E. Tenth street.

Fifteenth A. D., at 408 W. Fiftieth street.

Sixteenth A. D., at 817 E. Fifth street, residence of Comrade Panzer.

Seventeenth A. D., at 559 W. Fiftieth street.

Eighteenth A. D., at 421 First avenue, hall.

Nineteenth A. D., at 125 Amsterdam avenue, hall.

Twentieth A. D., at 309 E. Twenty-sixth street, hall.

Twenty-first A. D., at 944 Columbus avenue, stationery store.

Twenty-second A. D., at 216 E. Forty-first street, hall.

Twenty-third A. D., at Beckman's Hall, N. E. corner of One Hundred and Forty-second street and Eighth avenue.

Twenty-fourth A. D., at 215 E. Fifty-ninth street, club room of the Socialist Educational League.

Twenty-fifth A. D., at 136 E. Twenty-fourth street, tailoring store.

Twenty-sixth A. D., at Preininger's Hall, 1432 Second avenue.

Twenty-seventh A. D., at 260 West Forty-first street, residence of Comrade Hoerdtner.

Twenty-eighth A. D., at 1497 Avenue A.

Twenty-ninth A. D., at 904 Eighth avenue, residence of Comrade Tauffer.

Thirtieth A. D., at the club-house, 206 E. Eighty-sixth street.

Thirty-first A. D., at 15 W. One Hundred and Twelfth street, residence of Comrade J. Hillquit.

Thirty-second A. D., at 1708 Lexington avenue, office of Dr. Rubinow.

Thirty-third A. D., at 121 E. One Hundred and Twelfth street, office of Dr. Ingerman.

BOROUGH OF BRONX.

Thirty-fourth A. D., at 380 Willis avenue, cigar store.

Thirty-fifth A. D., at 3309 Third avenue, club-house.

Annexed Districts, at Helde's Hotel, Tenth street and White Plains avenue, Williamsbridge.

By order of the General Committee of the Social Democratic Party of New York County.

——Uncle Sam and the Beef Trust have played one inning. The Trust does not appear to have been hit very hard. It will take heavier hitting than that so far indulged in to knock out the Trust, which is strong on "team work."—Typographical Journal.

IN THE WEST.

Further News from the Denver Conventions.

Text of Socialist Resolution—Western Labor Union Changes Its Name, Adopts Aggressive Measures, and Rejects Overtures of A. F. of L.

"Whereas, The time has come for undivided, independent working-class political action; be it

"Resolved, That the representatives of the Western Labor Union, in convention assembled, do hereby declare in favor of international Socialism and adopt the platform of the Socialist Party of America in its entirety as the political platform and program of said organization.

"Resolved, That we earnestly appeal to all members of the Western Labor Union, and to the working class in general, to be governed by the provisions of this resolution."

Such were the terms of the resolutions adopted by the Western Labor Union in convention at Denver on Tuesday, June 3.

On the following day, the convention of the Western Federation of Miners, carried, by a vote of 230 to 73, the following resolution on the same lines:

"Resolved, That we recommend the adoption of the principles of the Socialist Party platform, as outlined in the President's report; and be it further

"Resolved, That the tenth annual convention of the Western Federation of Miners does declare for a policy of independent political action, and does advise and recommend the adoption of the platform of the Socialist Party of America by the local unions of the Federation in conjunction with a vigorous policy of education along the lines of political economy."

Strength of the A. L. U.

A resolution practically identical with these was adopted by the convention of the United Association of Hotel and Restaurant Employees at the same city and in the same week. The three organizations number over 150,000 men.

President McDonald of the W. L. U., President Boyce of the W. F. of M., and ex-President Croskey of the Hotel Employees, all actively supported the resolutions. Lieutenant-Governor D. C. Coates and Comrades Debs, Rev. T. J. Hagerty, and Wm. H. Wise lent their counsels to the action and by their eloquence inspired great enthusiasm for the opening of a new era in the labor movement of the West.

Party Organization.

The action leaves the organization of the work on the political field in the hands of the Socialist Party. A state convention in Colorado will be held in July and a ticket put in the field, and Idaho, Montana, Utah, and other neighboring states will not be far behind.

President Daniel McDonald of the W. L. U. says in an interview in the Denver "Republican" that this organization "will be the medium for dissemination and distribution of speakers, as an adjunct to the separate Socialist Party organizations which will be organized and directed partly from the national Socialist headquarters of the United States."

The Western Labor Union took other important steps. The name of the organization was changed to American Labor Union. It was resolved to admit farmers and farm laborers to the local unions; also to admit women at half the per capita dues charged men.

No Affiliation with A. F. of L.

Aside from the endorsement of the Socialist Party, however, and the measures taken to carry it into effect, the most important question was that of the resolutions of the A. L. U. to the American Federation of Labor. These relations have not been friendly in the past and from now on a virtual state of war is recognized as existing.

Secretary Frank Morrison and Thomas I. Kidd came to Denver as representatives of the A. F. of L. to urge affiliation with that body. They were given the floor and the question was debated at length. Presidents Boyce and McDonald both opposed affiliation, and Comrade Debs, who, by vote of the convention, was given a voice in the deliberations, threw all the power of his eloquence on the same side. It would seem, however, that no such efforts were needed to defeat the proposition. The reactionary and ineffective policy of the A. F. of L. and, added to that, its partly open and partly disguised attacks upon the Western organizations in Western territory had already settled the question. It was a foregone conclusion that the delegates would reject the overtures of the A. F. of L., and it appears that the officers of the A. F. of L. have themselves chiefly to blame for it.

We are not yet definitely informed of the action taken, beyond the refusal to affiliate. But we may quote from an interview with Comrade Debs in the Denver Post of June 5, the following sentence: "The work of organizing and educating will now be carried forward more vigorously than ever, and before the conventions adjourn they will doubtless organize a propaganda which will cover the entire territory west of the Missouri river."

——The conservative thinks he conserves when he clings to the old forms; but the reformer is the real conserver, for he has detected the old vitality under the renewed form.—Conway.

THE REAL POINT AT ISSUE.

The one virtue of the New York "Sun" is its frankness. One always knows where the "Sun" will stand in any conflict between Labor and Capital. The "Sun" is consistently and vigorously against Socialism, against trade unionism, and for capitalism, three hundred and sixty-five days in the year.

The "Sun" often lies. But even its lies have a savor of honesty—they are such brutally thorough capitalistic lies. And the "Sun" never equivocates. It is often untruthful in matters of fact; but in matters of opinion it is never hypocritical.

Therefore the "Sun" is a good paper to read in time of strike.

Commenting on the coal miners' strike, the "Sun" says:

"To secure an understanding of the situation in the anthracite coal region it is necessary to grasp the fact that the fight now on is the same fight of which the strike of 1900 was only the preliminary skirmish. • • •

"There is no presidential election now pending to give the United Mine Workers the whip hand. If they win this time it will be a victory of sheer strength and skill. It is the pivotal issue that now is at stake—the same issue that was at stake in 1900 and was then shoved to the background in the truce which the political crisis of that year brought about. The issue is simple and clean cut. It is simply this:

"RESOLVED, THAT THE MINES AND MINING PROPERTY INTERESTS OF THE ANTHRACITE COAL REGIONS SHALL PASS FROM THE CONTROL OF THE PRESENT OPERATORS TO THAT OF THE UNITED MINE WORKERS OF AMERICA. • • •

"In this debate President John Mitchell and his now compact army of something like 140,000 men have the affirmative. The negative is maintained by the owners of the mines."

There could not be a clearer or a truer statement of the question than our old enemy has here given us. If the miners will recognize this fact and act upon it, victory will be on their side and the dominion of the Coal Kings will come to an end.

The war between Labor and Capital is a struggle in which there may be truces, but there can be no peace. It is easy to talk of compromise. But every man who has learned by experience in the labor movement knows that a compromise is only a breathing-spell, in which both sides prepare to renew the fight.

So long as the means of production—the land, mines, factories, railways, ships—remain the property of the capitalist class, so long the propertiless class will be robbed and oppressed and so long there will be masters and slaves.

Peace between masters and slaves means defeat for the slaves.

The Coal Kings are determined to crush the miners' organization if they can, to reduce them to absolute helplessness. The United Mine Workers are equally determined not to be crushed, but to enforce recognition.

But even recognition of the union will not settle the question.

The Coal Kings own the mines. The men who do all the useful work in the mines cannot live unless they have an opportunity to work. The Coal Kings let them work only if they, the owners, get a profit by it. That is to say, so long as there are capitalist owners of mines, the miners will be permitted to work and live only on condition that they give up a part of the product of their labor to the owners.

This exploitation of useful laborers, which gives useless capitalists their profit, is the root of the antagonism between them. While private ownership lasts, the real control will be in the hands of the Coal Kings and they will continue to rule, to oppress, and to exploit the miners.

Strikes and lockouts, boycotts and blacklists, with all the suffering they imply, will go on, with only intervals of truce, until the question of control is settled at the ballot-box—until the workers declare that they will own and control their means of livelihood.

Mine-workers, you have right on your side. You have might on your side, too, if you know how to use it. Accept the issue as your masters' paper, the "Sun," defines it. Stand together in this strike, as you have done so far, and stand for all of your demands. And at the ballot-box on November 4, where you outnumber your masters ten to one, strike together for more than your present demands—for the full product of your labor, for full industrial peace and freedom, as advocated in the platform of the Socialist Party.

BOYCOTT BUTLER.

New York Unions Join to Fight Grocery King.

Delegates of Forty Organizations Meet to Help Grocery Clerks in Struggle with Butler—"Journal" Refuses to Take Out Slave-Driver's Advertisement—The Clerks' Demands.

Last Sunday evening at Brevoort Hall, Fifty-fourth street near Third avenue, was held a conference of delegates from trade unions to take measures to help the Retail Clerks' Union in its fight with James Butler, the Grocery King. Delegates were present from the Bluestone Cutters, Typographical Union No. 6, Plumbers and Gas Fitters, Marble Polishers, Roofers, Tile Layers, Steam Fitters, Horse-Shoers, Photo-Engravers, Stereotypers, Cigar Makers' Union Nos. 13 and 257, Tar Felt and Waterproof Workers, Elevator Constructors, Metal Lathers, Firemen's Union No. 56, Coppersmiths, Dock Builders, Granite Cutters, House Smiths, Brass Workers, Pipe Calkers and Tappers, Amalgamated Carpenters, International Association of Machinists, Plasterers, Boiler Workers, Salamander Association of Pipe Felters, Electrical Workers, Tin and Sheet Iron Workers, Brownstone Cutters, Progressive Pavers, Terra Cotta Workers, Marble Cutters, Amalgamated Painters, Wood Carvers, Clothing Cutters, Cloth Spongers, Musicians No. 41, and Compact Labor Club.

Butler Boycotted.

A committee appointed at the request of the Retail Clerks to visit Butler and try to induce him to grant the Union's demands—six o'clock closing and recognition of the Union—reported that Butler had replied to them, in the most contemptuous manner, that he would never accede to the demands of the Clerks and their allies until it was proven to him that they could hurt his business.

It was thereupon decided to put a boycott on the Butler stores and to call on every workingman in the city and vicinity to refrain from buying of Butler until the demands of the Clerks are granted in full. The matter will be communicated to the state convention of the Allied Printing Trades and that organization requested to endorse the boycott.

Delegate Weisher, of the Clothing Cutters, in the name of his organization, handed $25 to the Treasurer to start the boycott fund, and most of the other delegates followed with donations of from $2 to $25 each.

"Journal" Defies Unions.

Another committee, which had been sent to the management of the New York "Journal" to ask that paper not to publish Butler's advertisement, reported that they were told that the advertisement would continue to appear in the pages of the "Journal" until it was shown that a boycott could hurt the circulation of that paper. It is very likely that a boycott will be put on the "Journal" also, although this was not definitely decided.

On Saturday afternoon, June 21, a great athletic and vaudeville entertainment will be held for the benefit of the boycott fund, at Equitable Park, West End avenue, between Sixty-sixth and Sixty-seventh streets, and in the evening of the same day at the Third Avenue Theater, between Thirtieth and Thirty-first streets, in which the Actors' Protective Union and other organizations will give their assistance.

The Clerks' Grievances.

The chief complaint of the grocery clerks is on account of their excessively long hours of labor. They are compelled to be on duty twelve, fourteen, or even sixteen hours every day, besides Sunday forenoon, so that they have hardly time for necessary sleep and none for social life, recreation, or reading. For many years the clerks have passively submitted to such a life of slavery, steadily growing worse and worse; but at last they have organized, affiliated with the workmen of other trades, and begun a vigorous fight. They insist on recognition of the union, because they know that without this any other concessions they might gain would soon be lost again.

Butler, who owns over a hundred grocery stores in New York and vicinity, is the worst as well as the largest of the slave-drivers. The clerks realize that he is a formidable enemy, but they hope, with the aid of other workingmen, to bring him to time.

COUNTY CONVENTION.

A convention of the Social Democratic Party of the County of New York to elect delegates to the State Convention of the Social Democratic Party of the State of New York, and to nominate candidates for the general election, will be held on Saturday, June 28, 7 p. m., at the Labor Lyceum, 64 E. Fourth street, in the city and county of New York.

By order of the General Committee of the Social Democratic Party of New York.

J. GERBER, Secretary.

KINGS COUNTY.

Assembly district branches of the Social Democratic Party in Kings County are hereby called to meet, according to instructions of the State Secretary, on Saturday, June 21, in primaries to elect delegates to a county convention. These delegates [illegible] meet in convention in the Borough of Brooklyn to choose delegates to our State Convention on July 4 in New York City. Secretaries of branches are instructed to make arrangements and send out notices to comrades.

WARREN ATKINSON, Organizer.

The Worker.

AN ORGAN OF THE SOCIALIST PARTY

(Known in New York State as the Social Democratic Party.)

PUBLISHED WEEKLY

AT 184 WILLIAM STREET, NEW YORK,

By the Socialistic Co-operative Publishing Association.

P. O. BOX 1512.

Telephone Call: 302 John.

TERMS TO SUBSCRIBERS.
Invariably in advance.

One year	50c.
Six months	25c.
Single copies	2c.

Bundle rates:

Less than 100 copies, per copy	1c.
100 copies	75c.
200 copies	$1.20
300 copies or more, per hundred	50c.

Weekly Bundles:

5 per week, one year	$1.75
10 per week, one year	3.50
25 per week, one year	7.50
50 per week, one year	12.50

Address all business communications, and make money orders, checks and drafts payable to The Worker.

Receipts are never sent to individual subscribers. Acknowledgment is made by changing the number on the wrapper, the week following receipt of money.

Communications concerning the editorial department of the paper should be addressed to the Editor.

All communications should be written with ink and on one side of the paper; words should not be abbreviated; every letter should bear the writer's name and address; and matter should be put in as few words as possible, consistently with clearness. Communications which do not comply with these requirements are likely to be disregarded.

Entered as second-class matter at the New York, N. Y., Post Office on April 6, 1891.

UNION PRINTER

SOCIALIST VOTE IN THE UNITED STATES.

In 1888 (Presidential)	2,068
In 1890	13,331
In 1892 (Presidential)	21,157
In 1894	33,133
In 1896 (Presidential)	36,564
In 1898:
S. L. P.	82,204
S. D. P.	9,545
In 1900 (Presidential):
S. D. P.	96,918
S. L. P.	33,450

THE PARTY'S EMBLEM.

THE AMERICAN LABOR UNION.

The news that comes from Denver on the decision of the Western Federation of Miners and the Western Labor Union—or American Labor Union, as it is now to be known—is interesting upon more sides than one.

We cannot fail to be pleased in the highest degree with the unqualified endorsement of the Socialist Party by these powerful organizations—coming, as it does, without solicitation, simply as the result of the experience and thought of the Western workers themselves. There is good reason to think that their action means far more than such endorsements usually do, that it will not end with words, but will be carried out in energetic action.

We greet our new comrades of the Rocky Mountain states and congratulate the whole party on such an addition to its strength. We wish them all success, for their success is also ours.

So much for the political side of the matter; the trade-union side is equally interesting and demands even more careful consideration.

It is evident that the American Labor Union is now definitely at war with the American Federation of Labor, and that an aggressive fight will be carried on, at least within the present territory of the American Labor Union, until one side or the other acknowledges defeat.

We could have wished that the question of the relations of the A. L. U. and the A. F. of L. had come to a different issue at the Denver convention. We regret every division in the trade union movement, as tending to weaken the working class in its battle with the capitalists. We advise every workingman to join the established union of his craft, and we advise all unions to unite in the closest possible relation with the organizations of other crafts. Observing the events from a distance and perhaps with an imperfect knowledge, we had hoped that the Western unions would decide to affiliate with the Federation, not to submit to its reactionary policy, but to join the growing band of progressive bodies in the East in working for a change of that policy.

Such was our wish and hope. But we must now recognize the accomplished fact. We know that the organizations forming the American Labor Union had good cause of complaint against the Federation, and perhaps we must admit that they were best qualified to judge of the case and decide it. Moreover, we know that the A. L. U. represents a bona fide labor movement, in fact, of the Rocky Mountain region. As such we recognize it and waste no further time in regretting its separation from the Eastern unions. Its spirit and its principles are also ours, and since it cannot co-operate with us directly in advancing these principles within the A. F. of L., we wish it all power in advancing them in the West, in setting an inspiring example to the less progressive bodies of the East. Here we shall fight on, striving to bring our organizations up to the standard set at Denver, in the hope that not many years will elapse before all obstacles to union will be removed.

From such reports as are now accessible we infer that it is not the intention of the A. L. U. to invade the Eastern field, although such an outcome has been confidently predicted by the capitalist press in the West.

Certainly it is to be hoped that no such attempt will be made. The complaint of the A. L. U. has been that, while they were the genuine de facto organization of the region, the A. F. of L. persisted in sending its agents into the field, whose efforts resulted only in discord and demoralization. We do not think that our Western friends will make the mistake of adopting that same policy against the Federation, for it would assuredly result, not in the regeneration of the Eastern movement, but in the arousing of all slumbering prejudices and factional animosities and in untold embarrassment to those Eastern unions which are now rapidly advancing toward the admirable position the A. L. U. has reached.

Even against the desires of the A. L. U., however, there is a danger that some such troubles will arise—as in the case of the Brewery Workers.

This union—one of the most intelligently aggressive and one of the strongest in the land—has been treated, as we think, with extreme injustice by the A. F. of L., with which it is affiliated. In its struggles with the boss brewers in the present year it has received little help and has suffered great hindrance from the actions of the Federation. And now the trouble seems to have come to a climax. The Western locals of the Brewery Workers are affiliated with the American Labor Union. These locals have always been true to their national union and the A. L. U. has been equally true to them. Now the Executive Council of the Federation has notified the national union that it must either compel these Western locals to withdraw from the A. L. U. or must itself be expelled from the Federation. And the A. L. U.—actuated by generous enthusiasm and fraternity, but still, as it seems to us, not correctly judging of all the facts in the case—has invited the Brewery Workers to accept the latter alternative, to leave the A. F. of L. and adhere as a body to the Western movement.

What the decision of the Brewery Workers will be, we do not attempt to predict. We do venture to give this advice to them: Stay in the Federation; if necessary, allow your Western locals amicably to sever their connection with the national union—assured that the separation will not be for long; maintain with them relations as friendly as now exist—and that is easily done if you really desire to do it; and, as a national body, carry your appeal to the floor of the New Orleans Convention next fall—and, in the meantime, to the floor of every union in which you can plead your cause—to get justice there and to do your part in clearing and strengthening the whole body of organized labor.

We suppose that the position we have taken will be unsatisfactory to very many of our comrades. We fear that it will seem a cool and ungrateful one to the Western workers. We regret this. We should be glad to speak in a different tone. But, in accordance with our established policy toward the trade unions, we can take no other position. We appeal to our comrades everywhere to consider the matter most carefully. And to the comrades of the American Labor Union especially we extend the assurance of sympathy and support which can be restrained or limited only by what seems to be demanded of us by our allegiance to the Socialist movement as a whole.

STILL, A RECORD OF FAILURE.

In the June number of the "Federationist," President Gompers of the American Federation of Labor and Andrew Furuseth and Thomas F. Tracy of the Legislative Committee (the lobbying committee) of that organization give an exhaustive review of the Chinese Exclusion question as it has been treated in the present session of Congress.

The report is a story of complete and ignominious failure. Twenty-four pages of the "Federationist" are taken up with a recital of the strenuous efforts by which the Lobbying Committee succeeded in accomplishing nothing at all. The Chinese Exclusion Law in its present form—full of loopholes as it is, and far more lax than the act which has just expired—would unquestionably have been passed even though not a representative of the Federation had been on the ground. Everything which the lobbyists asked for—and surely they asked it most humbly and respectfully—in the way of making the law strict, definite, and effective, was coolly and firmly refused.

It is worthy of note that Senator Hanna—aspirant to the Presidency, alleged "friend of Labor," and recognized friend of Samuel Gompers—was foremost in opposing the provisions which the Federation asked for. President Gompers seems to have learned nothing by the experience, but perhaps the rank and file of the trade unions will learn.

In summing up the defeat, President Gompers editorially remarks:

"Taking the entire law as it now stands, it presents one of the most conspicuous pieces of bungling or vicious legislation, or both, ever enacted by Congress. It is a menace not only to the workers of the United States but to our Republic and to our civilization, and unless rectified by timely legislation at this session of Congress, the entire responsibility for the injury to our people will rest upon the heads of the managers of the legislation in Congress—a responsibility which the workmen and the people generally of our country will not fail to appreciate, and repay in every lawful and honorable, way within the power of American manhood and American citizenship."

What President Gompers means by the closing phrases we do not know. But we do know that not a little of the responsibility will rest upon him and upon those high in the councils of the Federation, who oppose every aggressive step in the labor movement, who hold to the begging policy which has so long been proven fruitless of good and productive only of demoralization and discouragement, and who still cultivate the friendship of the very politicians who have repeatedly wronged and defied and insulted the working class of the land.

Commenting on President Gompers' annual report to the Scranton Convention last December, we said:

"The portion of the President's report which dealt with the attempts to get favorable legislation through the lobbying method was, on the whole, one long record of failure.

"The Eight-Hour Bill was passed without objection in the House and strangled in a Senate Committee—a very common trick. Common as the trick is, often as it has been played on labor bills, President Gompers expressed a sort of mild and innocent surprise at it."

And we proceeded to cite from the report the similar failures in the matter of the Prison Labor Bill, the Anti-Injunction Bill, and others.

It seems certain that at the coming convention in New Orleans the officers of the Federation will have an equally dismal report to make. One other thing is certain: That, while these officers will probably have no suggestions to make, while they will come there prepared to pursue their "dignified" policy of conservative begging, there will be a far larger delegation at New Orleans than there was at Scranton opposed to that policy and resolved upon aggressive action.

With Samuel Gompers as a man—with his honesty or his dishonesty, his wisdom or his folly, his dignity or his puerility—we have nothing to do. We have to do with Gompersism—which is but another name for pompous timidity, resolute inaction, and foredoomed defeat. We are opposed to Gompersism and we "see its finish."

According to the statistics of the United States Commissioner of Labor there have been 22,793 strikes in the United States during the years 1881 to 1900, involving 117,509 establishments and over 6,105,000 employees; and there were 1,005 lockouts in addition. And yet Socialists are criticized for dwelling on the class struggle! Perhaps these 23,798 strikes and lockouts are another proof that "the interests of Labor and Capital are identical!"

That government trust investigations are a continuous performance of farce and fake is a matter of common knowledge. Our imperial government is usually rendered helpless by the simple refusal of witnesses to answer. If the government is really looking for a method of extracting information and wants a way which is effective, and, having been approved by the Republican party, must conform to the highest standards of "law and order," why not try the water cure on the witnesses?

The New York "Commercial," among other distinctly capitalist papers, pays the Socialist members of the Massachusetts Legislature the compliment of a virulent attack on the score of their splendid fight for the bill assuring workingmen the right peaceably to picket strike and lockout shops. This is as it should be. Carey and MacCartney may be proud of their enemies.

You want some "immediate relief," something now," do you? And you think Socialism is not "practical," that it is too far off? Read in another column of Organiser Spring's work at Dexter, New York. The bosses did not fear their employees until they were threatened with an enthusiastic Socialist movement. At the first sign of this danger to their profit-rule, they "craw fished" and reinstated the men whose wages they had reduced for organizing a union. Is not that practical? If you can scare the bosses like that at the very start, how easy it will be to whip them to a standstill, if you only keep at it!

NOT BY VOTES ALONE.

The position of those avowed Socialists who want the movement to work for step-at-a-time reforms and adopt the tactics of conciliation, compromise, and opportunism, is almost invariably the result of an impatient desire for a great and immediate increase in the Socialist vote. The advocacy of such tactics also implies a lack of knowledge of the Socialist movement or a failure to understand its basic principles, but it is the hope of catching more votes for Socialism that is always advanced to justify their adoption. Passing over the fact that the adoption of such tactics has always resulted in disorganization and retrogression instead of increase, it is clear that votes for Socialism are not, in themselves alone, sufficient. Behind the vote must be an understanding, a responsibility, and a material class interest.

The fallacy that votes for Socialism gained by concessions to popular prejudice or ignorance can be worth the sacrifice, is given definite and concise expression in the statement of a correspondent that:

"The art of securing government may be reduced to the art of securing a majority of votes at the polls."

The working class casts a majority of votes for the Republican or Democratic parties, but the working class does not thus secure control of government, because the working class voters are not in a party of their own class, are not conscious of their own class interests, and do not know what is good for them or how to get it. Likewise, if the Socialist Party could get a majority of votes by the sacrifice or compromise of principle it would not be able to put real Socialist legislation into effect, because it would not have the determined support of a class-conscious working class behind it, and would cease to be a Socialist party except in name. If its electors were attracted to it more by the desire for reform than the desire for revolution, it would have to stop short at reform; and in ceasing to be strictly a working class party it would become a prey to capitalistic corruption. The acts of governments are determined by the class from which they draw their power, and therefore only a working class party could carry out a working class program. In other words, we cannot make Socialists out of voters without their knowing it, and such voters could not be relied upon for support if we could.

The statement that "the art of securing government is the art of securing a majority of votes" applies, in one sense, to the capitalistic Republican and Democratic parties—for, once given the vote of the duped working class, the power controlling these parties is the wealth and economic power of Capital. As long as the working class can be hoodwinked into voting for them, the old parties, which accept the system of private ownership of the means of production and are therefore logically forced to defend the interests of the capitalists, will secure control of government for the capitalist class, because they are the servants and political instruments of its economic power; but the power behind a party which is to obtain control of government for the working class must be the consciousness in that class of its own interests.

In another sense, the statement that "the art of securing government is the art of securing a majority of votes" does not apply even in regard to the capitalistic parties—for whenever the platforms of the old parties pledge them to legislation in favor of the working class such legislation is either not enacted or not enforced and thus the majority of voters do not secure the kind of government which they voted for. So, we see again that it is economic power and a consciousness of their own interests, together with the majority of votes given them by the workers, which gives control of government to the capitalist class—the majority in their favor is not a mere majority of voters, but also a majority of dollars and a majority of class-consciousness, for the capitalists are more class-conscious than the workers—and that only a majority of votes backed by class-consciousness will give control of government to the working class.

It is true enough that the majority of those whose votes are needed to win the victory for Socialism can never be thoroughly educated in economics and scientific Socialism, but, at least, the fact of the class struggle and its lesson can certainly be made plain to all. Also, it is quite probable that Socialist victory will come as the result of a widespread condition of unemployment consequent upon over-production. Someone has well said: "Wise men are instructed by reason; men of less understanding, by experience; the most ignorant, by necessity." The necessity of Socialism will be plain to the most stupid when it is impossible to get a job, and in such an industrial crisis class antagonisms will be so emphasized and the class struggle become so obvious a fact that instinct and immediate material interest will draw the class lines sharply and force the working class to act unitedly for its own interests. In such a crisis, if the Socialist movement has kept uncompromising, the rest of the working class will swing in line by a sort of instinctive class-consciousness; military writers tell us that if one-third of an army is daring and aggressive the rest will follow its lead, and it is to be supposed that the same psychology would apply in a political revolution. In such a crisis the statement that "the art of securing government is the art of securing a majority of votes" would be true.

But, in the meantime, if votes should be secured by compromise of the revolutionary spirit the muddled element brought in by these tactics would gain the ascendancy and disorganization, confusion, and impotence would be the result. One compromise leads to another, and if revolutionary principles were compromised to gain the votes of the prejudiced and the timid, still further compromises would have to be made to keep those votes.

Socialists desire to effect the social revolution peaceably at the ballot-box and the object of our propaganda is to get votes for Socialism, but votes are only means to an end and the votes must be for a definite principle and a definite means of putting that principle into effect, not merely for a vague desire for Socialism. The vote must be an expression of a class interest which is ready to support it to the end.

The "step-at-a-time" policy, the "get something now" tactics, the desire to capture the premature because uncomprehending support of the trade unions at any risk, the policy of catering to the prejudices and habits of mind fostered by capitalistic education and environment, in short all the tactics of conciliation and compromise known as opportunism, seek quick results by methods which would be fatal to the movement. And, moreover, these tactics do not gain more votes and do not arouse enthusiasm. It takes a big thing to make a man vote for a party which has no chance of immediate victory—and that big thing is the revolutionary principle of clear-cut Socialism.

We can "get something now" just as soon as the increase of the vote for real, revolutionary Socialism alarms the capitalist class into concessions through fear of the growing discontent, and the only "steps towards Socialism" are the election of revolutionary Socialists and the partial "public ownership" which capitalistic government may inaugurate as a concession to the revolutionary spirit; and the only way to get the trade union vote is by the steady and sound education of the rank and file.

Let it be remembered that Socialist propaganda is the work of steadily educating the working class to a knowledge of its own interests and arousing in it the revolutionary spirit; and that if votes are got thus they are worth while and otherwise not; and that the vote must be for a principle and a class interest, not for the name of a vague desire; and that we shall conquer by the understanding behind the votes, not by votes alone.

C. L.

THE CLERKS AND THE "JOURNAL."

When we have criticized the New York "Journal" and other papers of the same stripe, questioning the sincerity of their "friendship" for labor, we have often been accused of intolerance and jealousy.

We have pointed out that the "Journal" is a capitalist paper, a business enterprise, run for the private profit or advantage of the owner; that, in the nature of this, such a paper could not give sincere support to the labor movement; that it would be unreasonable to expect of the owner of the "Journal" or any similar paper that he should sacrifice his business interest for the love of the workers or of humanity in general; that such papers would naturally cultivate the friendship of the workers in order to increase their circulation, but that they would be careful not to endanger their advertising income by too vigorous support of the unions.

All this has been set down, as we say to intolerance and jealousy on our part.

Well, here you are. This same "Journal," to which trade unions have been sending letters of thanks whenever it published a simple matter of news for them, has flatly refused to sacrifice a single dollar of its advertising patronage when asked to help the oppressed grocery clerks. Were we right?

Don't blame the "Journal." Instead, help build up a daily press of your own.

"Truth and Freedom," a Socialist magazine published in Fitchburg, Mass., contains an article entitled "Fallacies in Relation to Socialism," and signed Andrew Davidson, which is a word for word plagiarism of the article in The Worker of December 15, 1901, entitled "The Essential Point in Socialist Propaganda."

Our Esteemed Contemporaries (and OTHERS)

The Miners' Magazine.

The Western workingmen are not yet prepared to follow Mr. Gompers into Mark Hanna's wigwam to be scalped with the knife of capitalistic arbitration and become the toy of Republican politicians. * * * We would like to know from Mr. Gompers if he proposes no other remedy for the solution of the labor question than Civic Federation arbitration.

If this is his remedy—and we have no information to the contrary—we say to Mr. Gompers, with all due respect to him as a man and an officer of the American Federation of Labor, that he is untrue to every wage earner in the United States, unworthy of recognition, for the interests of no labor organization is secure when submitted to a board of arbitration, a majority of whom are its bitter enemies, even though Mr. Gompers be its vice-president.

The laboring people have no interest in common with Mark Hanna and Grover Cleveland, nor will the western people be deceived by such methods as Mr. Gompers proposes. * * *

The Western Federation of Miners and the Western Labor Union are ready to join forces with any labor organization that offers a remedy, but they don't propose to be led like sheep into a slaughter pen to await the butcher's knife without a struggle.

The Public.

That there is less comfort than confidence in the prosperity which now prevails is evident from the signs. Colored census figures may indicate a flourishing condition for workingmen, but obtrusive facts grimly refute these rose-colored statistics. One instance is typical. The Johnstown "Democrat," which advertised recently in a trade paper for a printer, ordered the advertisement out, saying:

"Overwhelmed with replies. Your medium is too good. We're out about $2.00 in stamps notifying applicants that the place is filled."

If multiplying experiences of this kind were not enough to convince reasonable persons, the cry that some labor organizations are making about the "dead line" which large employers have established—refusing to hire men who are over 45 years of age—should do it. In one Chicago labor union the bafflement over this found expression in a bitterly satirical proposal to shoot every man of that age who is dependent upon his labor for a living. No such "dead line" could be maintained if opportunities for employment were really abundant; none would have been set up if the employers did not find workers in excess of demand. This makes prosperity, of course, for some persons. No one doubts the prosperity of the trusts. These exploiters say they are prosperous, and all the indications confirm them. But what is prosperity food to the trusts may be adversity poison to everybody else.

The Miners' Magazine.

Six weeks ago the Beef Trust raised the price of beef beyond the reach of many people, which caused the politicians and statesmen to shake their heads in despair to find a remedy that would bring the trust to time.

After a complete failure on the part of those gentlemen, the labor organizations of the East found a remedy without resorting to legislation. They met in their halls and adopted a dignified and intelligent (?) resolution which made the Beef Trust shake from hoof to horns. They resolved not to eat meat for a period of one month; if at the end of that time the Beef Trust did not come to time, they would boycott their stomachs for another month, which would surely scare the trust into submission.

At first glance it appears incredible to think that a party of workingmen in a labor union possess no more intelligence than to deprive themselves of the necessaries of life.

Just why those unions place a boycott on the Beef Trust for raising the price of beef is hard to understand, for not many of them who work for $2 per day are in much danger of an attack of the gout from eating porterhouse steaks. After the trade unions boycott the Beef Trust out of existence, we are anxious to know what they will do with the other trusts which are equally harmful.

The Labor Advocate, Nashville, Tenn.

The reason why capitalists have obtained complete control of the government is that capitalists are thoroughly class conscious. Capitalists work and vote as ONE BODY for the measures that benefit the capitalist class. They work and vote as one body against all measures for the protection of the laboring class. The capitalists of all countries thoroughly recognize the fact that the people of all countries are divided into two classes—the workers, who produce ALL the wealth of the nations and who compose more than 90 per cent. of the population, and the capitalistic parasites, who "toil not, neither do they spin," who produce nothing but poverty and distress and, though composing less than 10 per cent. of the population of earth, yet own 85 per cent. of all the wealth. When workers will vote as a class for their interests, just as the capitalists do, they will control the government much more easily than capital does and certainly with more benefit to humanity. "Workingmen of all nations, UNITE."

CONTRASTS.

Hundreds of thousands of pounds of bread and meat lie rotting unable to find a market, where tens of thousands of human beings are starving to death, unable to obtain work; human blood flows in streams, in order to gain markets for woollen cloths and velvets in far distant parts of the world, while the people who labor to produce these woollens and velvets wear calico and cotton prints.—Dr. W. Veresaev.

——The Democrats are looking for an issue on which they can win. Whether it is right or not is a matter of minor consideration.—Erie People

THE QUAY CHAIR AT THE UNIVERSITY OF PENNSYLVANIA.

BY HORACE TRAUBEL.

No good thing ought to be lost. I am glad the University of Pennsylvania is to provide for Quayism. Quayism is Pennsylvania in short and long. Quayism is the history and idealism of Pennsylvania writ large and small. Quayism has often been questioned. But Quayism has been as often endorsed as questioned. Therefore vive Quayism. It swords the gates of the commonwealth.

You are incredulous. But the University is not incredulous. The University will give Quayism a chair. And if a suggestion from me could count for anything in university circles I would like to cast my weight for Quay himself as the original occupant of the chair. Let Quay initiate the line of illustrious instructors.

Quay would set there in the shadow of learning and dispense Jovelike the decrees of his august estate. The young idea could thence learn how to shoot. Quayism would clear the atmosphere of moral foible. Quayism would show the youngster that he had no call to sit at the feet of the humanities to imbibe wisdom. Quayism would describe the circle of moral inanities and keep all youth outside on its perilous margins. Quayism would manicure and massage the ancient virtues—it would pare down the mediæval equities—so that the virgin consciousness of the modern boy might leave the shades of the university equipped at the start for the dubious rank and file—especially the rank—of the political hierarchies.

What use has Quayism for the virtues? Abolish the virtues. The virtues are not practical. They are never quoted in markets. They do not marshal parades or quicken the lobby. They shirk the caucus and ignore the bribe. Pennsylvania has slept itself into a moral mist. Pennsylvania refuses to make moral distinctions. It refers all its doubts to Quayism. Quayism is the final vagary. Politics can fall no lower. But Quayism is not Quay. Quayism is you. Quayism is me, in our moral lethargy. It is proper that we should celebrate ourselves. Therefore the new chair. Therefore the University throws its aegis about Quayism. It would be sacrilege for a great institution of learning to ignore or discredit the most serious political philosophy of its commonwealth.

Now you can get your boys started right. Now you can send them to Penn without fear that their impressionable brains will be rattled and addled with the outgrown sentimentalities of religions. Now your sons will get at once down to the spade and the hoe. Now they will take life at first hand. And, with Quay himself there, from the master himself. Think what it may mean for them to get their début from the master himself. For the master may not speak words. He may simply refer your sons over his shoulder to his own career. He will teach by autobiography. The boys will realize that they are in the presence of a world maker. They will feel the heat of the fire and work at the anvil and wipe off learning's brow the sweat of Quayey toil. And you will go about your business reassured. For you will know that your boys are not to come from the altars of culture incapable of making livings for themselves. You will know that they will come instructed and energized to pull the popular leg at the first fall.

I have often wondered what universities were good for. Now I see what they may be made good for. Now I see that a university may be as practical as faro. Now I see that a university may be as practical as a bribe.

Quayism has its crowning triumph. All chairs will defer to this chair. All wisdom will uncouch to this toilet. Dead learning will live again. Greek and Latin will crawl before this strut. All ethical lectureships will refer their problems to this latest born adjunct of culture. Quayism will wear the crown jewels. Quayism will establish a literature. The old text books will be foresworn. A new code will unfurl its standards. All past coats of arms will be sponged. A fresh intepretation will be given the ancient symbols. Two hands big enough to grab the whole earth. That will bring apology up to date. That will finish democracy. That will corral all moral prerogative at one roundup.

The University stands with the pioneers. Quayism will give the final touch to culture. Graduates have come from the university half done. We never knew exactly what was missed. But we knew the compound was not complete. Now the lost is found. Now imperfect becomes perfect. Quayism relieves education of all its peradventures. With culture quayed scholarship will no longer suffer its historic poverties. Scholarship will depart upon its mission schooled for all the exigencies of intrigue and success. The grave moral seniors retire. The pirate freshmen know that to make culture spell spoil is to have learned the final lesson.

Current Literature

All books and pamphlets mentioned in this column may be obtained through the Socialist Literature Company, 184 William street, New York.

The "Comrade" has enlisted the services of another cartoonist, Ryan Walker, some of whose work is excellent, though it does not all come up to the mark. "Uneasy Lies the Head that Wears a Crown" and "The Sower" are his two contributions to the June number—the first referring to the coronation of King Edward, the other to the unavailing persecution of Tolstoy. May we suggest, to him and to other artists—there are few who do not offend in this respect—that a good cartoon needs little or no lettering, that a label on every figure and object detracts from the effect instead of strengthening it. F. Dahme illustrates an amusing bit of satirical verse by Upton Sinclair, "The Battle of the Libraries," telling of a fierce conflict between Charley Squab of the Steal Trust and Andrew Arniky, Leading Gentleman of the Old Homestead Company. J. H. Morier has a telling cartoon showing the rôles of legislator, judge, and soldier.

Charley Lindley, General Secretary of the Socialist Party of Sweden, contributes a brief account of the movement in that country. Isador Ladoff tells "How I Escaped from Russia," and Caroline Pemberton, "How I Became a Socialist." The closing sentences of the last named article must be quoted: "I started out one day to find the Socialist Party of Philadelphia. It was hard work finding it. * * * But I found it at last and saw that it was made up of people—real people—working people—and since that day I have learned more of Socialism from them than I ever could have learned from books." We may add that it is due in no small degree to Miss Pemberton's work that the Socialist Party of Philadelphia is no longer hard to find.

"Cannibalism" is an admirable bit in W. A. Corey's well known humorous style; we could wish, however, that he had not dropped the humorous form in the closing paragraphs. Owen R. Lovejoy, taking young Rockefeller's "American Beauty" Sunday-school talk as a text, writes suggestively on "The Survival of the Fittest."

The Collectivist Society has published in pamphlet form W. J. Ghent's article in the "Independent" of April 3, entitled "The Next Step: A Benevolent Feudalism." Mr. Ghent's article, which has attracted much attention, is a very skillfully drawn picture of social conditions as they exist to-day, disguised as a prophecy of the future. From a note appended to the article we are amused to see that another man claims to have worked out the idea first. As a matter of fact, apart from an unwarranted pessimism, there is absolutely nothing in Mr. Ghent's article which has not been stated over and over again in the Socialist press. To Socialists the conditions described are a matter of commonplace knowledge, yet when a prominent magazine publishes an article skillfully presenting this knowledge, diluted with an invertebrate pessimism, the author is proclaimed a most wonderfully original and clever person.

BUY UNION LABEL GOODS.

PLAIN DUTY.

BY J. E. Nash.

A foolish young preacher proclaimed it
His duty, PLAIN DUTY to tell,
Some facts which he took from a Socialist book,
About our industrial hell.
His whole congregation were workmen,
With poverty sorely oppressed,
Except, if you will, the fine gent on the hill,
Who paid more than all of the rest

How strange; for he never attended,
He managed the men at the mill;
The shrewd superintendent, with jewels resplendent,
Who cut the men's wages at will.
It helped to keep dividends growing,
How skillful it made him appear;
So he asked, and he got, 'twas as easy as not,
A raise of ten thousand a year.

Now this is the preacher's announcement,
"Wage workers have rights to secure;
I claim they are slaves, from their birth to their graves,
And will preach on the cause and the cure."
It packed the old church to the pulpit,
Quite largely with men from the mill;
Two thousand and ten of those hard working men,
And likewise the man from the hill.

The pastor asked God for His blessing
On that which he purposed to say;
A chapter was read, and his text he it said,
Wise preachers skip over to-day.
All wealth is created, he told them,
By labor; but stolen away,
Through legal devices and trustified prices,
By profits and rents that they pay.

And false is our system of wages;
The surplus from labor retained,
Though legal the dealing, 'tis morally stealing,
And well was the system explained.
He said that the hard toiling workmen
Were slaves to a parasite class;
Who gave them less heed, in their trouble and need,
Than they gave to a mule or an ass.

I'll finish my sermon this evening,
As God shall direct me, said he,
And I'll point out the way, you may hasten the day,
That will set all humanity free.
Before it was evening this notice
Came in from the man on the hill:
My payment suspended, unless you have ended,
All questions concerning the mill.

That evening he preached about mansions
Where men after death may reside,
If on earth they repent and through life are content
With wages the Lord shall provide.
Thereafter like other wise preachers,
He studied the paymaster's will,
With salary doubled, and never more troubled
The system or man on the hill.

——He has laboring cattle—men, women, and children—to till the land, to smelt the iron, to weave the cloth; he has foremen and superintendents to rule the toilers; he has learned men to do his thinking. The capitalist's own work runs into the sewer exclusively.—Lafargue.

PARTY NOTES.

John C. Chase addressed Socialist locals and trade unions at De Soto, Carthage, and Springfield, Mo., last week.

State charter was issued to Utah on June 5.

The Socialist Party of Missouri held state convention at Springfield on June 7.

A resolution of thanks and many complimentary letters are being received at national headquarters as a result of the strike bulletins which are being issued by the Socialist Party.

Advices from San Juan, Puerto Rico state that the Socialists and trade unions are being bitterly persecuted by the authorities, and mobs instigated by them. The treasurer of the Socialist Party was attacked and brutally beaten on the public streets, and many other party members have been thrown into jail and unmercifully beaten.

Comrades of Skowhegan, Me., expect to elect a Socialist candidate to state legislature owing to split in Republican party. James F. Carey will stump the state shortly.

Our Virginia comrades have issued a little leaflet entitled "Why Workingmen Should Be Socialists," written by J. J. Quantz of Richmond.

The St. Louis comrades are working hard, holding meetings, distributing literature, and getting subscriptions for the "Missouri Socialist." They propose to ensure a good increase in the vote this fall, and are beginning early, with no intention to relax their efforts till the ballots are counted.—Other places in Missouri make good reports.

St. Louis unionists held a demonstration on Decoration Day to commemorate the massacre of union men on June, 1900, during the street railway strike. National Secretary Greenbaum of the Socialist Party delivered the principal address.

Local Wilkes Barre at its last meeting passed a resolution to admit mine workers who are on strike without paying any initiation fee or dues until the strike is settled.—Rev. Wagner, pastor of the Methodist Church in Luzerne, publicly declared himself a Socialist before his congregation while delivering a sermon on "The War Between Capital and Labor."

Comrade Chase is now in Nebraska, speaking for trade unions and Socialist locals. Thence he will proceed to the Northwest, spending July and August in the Rocky Mountain region.

William Thurston Brown, who recently resigned his pulpit in Rochester, is planning to go on a lecture tour. He is willing to make a few engagements in New England in July, August, and September, and after that he will make a trip to the Pacific Coast and back. Comrade Brown is an able man, a clear Socialist, and a good speaker.

Comrade Harris of Edwardsdale, Pa., reports that Spargo's address on Socialism created a great deal of talk there, and that more attention is given the subject now than ever before.

The "Idaho Socialist" is the latest addition to the Socialist press. A. M. Slatery, W. Y. Perkins, J. H. Reesor, and J. E. Miller constitute the editorial staff. Published weekly at Idaho Falls, Idaho. Price, $1 a year.

The Socialists of the Sixth Congressional District of eKntucky held a convention at Liberty Hall, Main street, Covington, June 5, and nominated George L. Breiel of Newport as candidate for Congress. It was the largest convention the Socialists of this district have ever held. Sixty delegates were present, divided as follows: Newport, 23; Covington, 18; Dayton, 10; Bellevue, 8, and Latonia, 1. The platform adopted by the national convention at Indianapolis, with local features attached, were adopted as the platform of the local party.

In West Elgin, Ontario, where H. Gaylord Wilshire ran for Parliament, the Socialist vote was 427, despite falsehoods disseminated by the Tory "Times."

A new branch of the Socialist Party has been organized in Bloomfield, Essex County, N. J., by County Organizer E. T. Neben. The new branch starts with fourteen members, including four former members of the S. L. P., who say the S. L. P. is done for and predict that more S. L. P. members will join at the next meeting. Four delegates were elected to the County Committee and a committee was elected to find permanent headquarters for the new local and put up a transparency. Comrade Heinze was elected organizer, and instructed to make arrangements with all unions of Montclair to have Comrade Neben lecture to them on Socialism and urge them to join the party. The next meeting of the new branch will be held at Essex Hotel, Bloomfield Center, Friday, June 13, at 8 p. m.

Several thousand copies of the Coal Strike and Meat Trust leaflets, several hundred copies of The Worker, and a quantity of Socialist pamphlets have been sent to the strike field in Pennsylvania at the expense of a few New York and New Jersey comrades. Comrade Roth of Wilkes Barre writes: "The ten copies of 'Labor Politics and Socialist Politics' will be placed in the hands of local labor leaders who are agitating independent political action, but who are not Socialists; 'The Class War in Idaho' will be handed to miners' delegates to the C. L. U.; the 'Clerical Capitalist' to ministers, and so on. Thirty copies of the 'Comrade' have been put in the barber shops where they will do the most good. We are perpared to take care of all the literature that comes our way." If anyone wishes to help in supplying the need, the Editor of The Worker will undertake to put to good use all the quarters or dollars sent him for the purpose.

The state convention of the Socialist Party of Illinois will be held at Peoria on July 4.

The meeting of the Speakers' Club held last Wednesday was well attended and all members showed great interest in the proceedings. A discussion lasting an hour followed the leading speaker, who had made a defense of the present tendencies of capitalism from a Republican standpoint. Many valuable points were scored, some of the new speakers showing excellent ability. Edlin, representing the committee on criticism, analyzed each speaker's remarks and gave a verdict favorable to the negative. The next meeting, Wednesday, June 11, will be taken up with a debate on the coal strike.

Comrade Krafft spoke at Ridgefield Park, N. J., last Saturday night. Result: Nine new subscribers to The Worker and a goodly sale of party literature.

As provided in the by-laws, the County Committee of Kings County will meet on Saturday evening, June 14, at the Socialist Club, Fulton street, near Ralph avenue.

The 1st, 3d, and 5th A. D. will meet at Comrade Mayes' home, 249 West Eleventh street, on Monday evening, June 16. Every member is expected to come; important business to transact. All enrolled S. D. P. voters are invited.

The Young People's Social Democratic Club of Yorkville will hold its first annual outing on Sunday, June 15, at Oerter's Park, One Hundred and Forty-seventh street and Southern Boulevard. Admission, including beer, $1.—The Club is getting ready to do good work in the coming campaign. All young Socialists in the Yorkville districts are invited to join. Meetings are held every Thursday evening, at 206 E. Eighty-sixth street.

The General Committee of Local New York meets Saturday evening, June 14, at the Labor Lyceum. Important business will be taken up.

The Entertainment Committee of Local New York will meet at the Labor Lyceum, Monday evening, June 16. The delegates elected by the assembly district organizations are requested to attend promptly at 8 p. m., as arrangements for the picnic of June 29 have to be completed.

The 22d A. D. will hold an outdoor meeting at the northwest corner of Thirty-ninth street and Third avenue on Friday evening, June 13. Members of the District are requested to be on hand promptly at 8 p. m. to help distribute literature and sell The Worker. On Sunday evening, June 15, Jas. N. Wood will lecture in the rooms of the Socialist Educational League, 215 E. Fifty-ninth street. Come and bring your friends.—Comrades wishing to take part in the ball game at the party picnic on June 29 at Sulzer's Park are requested to communicate with Ed. Loewenthal, 215 E. Fifty-ninth street.

We acknowledge an error—one among many. Comrade Jennings' present home is not at Newark, N. Y., but at Union Springs. He spent eighteen hours only at Newark, but that gave him time to organize a local.

The Socialist Club of Brooklyn will hold an important business meeting Friday, June 13, at 8:15 p. m.

Chas. H. Vail had a large and enthusiastic meeting at New Rochelle. Many questions were asked at the conclusion of the meeting and much interest manifested.

Comrade Vail had an excellent meeting at Newburg on Monday.

Comrade Jennings has organized another local of the party at Jamestown, N. Y.

The 34th A. D. will hold an open air meeting on Saturday, June 14, at Willis avenue and 138th street.

BETTER LATE THAN NEVER.

Organizer Gerber acknowledges the receipt of the following amounts on lists for last year's campaign fund:

List 5,020, Local Richmond, per Sutter	$ .50
List 5071, Local Richmond, per G. Theimer	2.35
List 477, B. Weissman	1.50
List 238, A. Kopf	.25
List 5332, Dram. Soc. Karl Marx	.75
List 5069, W. S. & D. B. F., Br. 24	1.10
List 5055, Do., Br. 17	.50
List 5153, Do., Br. 158	1.00
List 5155, Do	.50
List 5156, Do	.75
Previously acknowledged	2.254.65
Total	$2.266.75

Comrades who still hold lists, whether blank or with money, are requested to return them at once to the Organizer, J. Gerber, 64 E. Fourth street. This should have been settled long ago.

Letter Box

VARIOUS CORRESPONDENTS. — The meeting of Local New York was not reported for the reason that the one-third of the membership necessary to constitute a quorum was not present, and the meeting could therefore take no official action. The resolutions passed as the expression of the opinion of the comrades present were, in general, against both propositions.

FRANK OHNEMUS, Long Island City, N. Y.—We believe the "Chicago Socialist" took the right action in regard to your ad., and had your propaganda material been examined in his office the ad. would not have gone in this paper. We agree with you that "scientific words" should not be continually used in propaganda work, and believe that such words as "economic factor," "bourgeoisie," "class-consciousness," "proletariat," etc., should never be used in purely propaganda work unless their meaning is made plain. But surely the use of these words is not so bad as the distribution of the ravings of Hall Caine and the writings of the Single Tax advocate, which you propose.

However, we leave the dissection of your views to the "Chicago Socialist" and have no doubt that it will do the job properly.

NEW YORK STATE.

Report of Organizer Spring's Two Months' Work.

Shows Oppressed Paper Workers at Dexter How to Fight the Bosses—Forty-eight Meetings, Three New Locals, and a Hundred New Party Members Among the Results of Spring's Work.

State Organizer Spring returned to New York City last Saturday and will now devote some time to the thorough organization of Westchester County, after which he will take up other counties in succession, trying to put each in satisfactory working order before leaving it. If the local comrades give him hearty co-operation such work is sure to be of the greatest benefit to the party in the state.

During the week before his return Comrade Spring held a number of meetings in Watertown, Dexter, Gouverneur, Black River, and Brownville.

The comrades at Watertown, he reports, have regularly "got down to business." They intend to open headquarters by the time the campaign gets warm, and to make a good fight for the principles of Socialism.

Meeting at Dexter.

At Dexter, Comrade Spring first addressed the Paper Workers' Union. The workers in this trade are in very bad condition, working thirteen hours a day for wages of $1.25 or $1.50. The union at Dexter is of recent origin, and when Spring arrived it had just been showing some activity, to the great annoyance of the mill lords, who consider themselves rightful masters of the town and of all within it.

Some of the most active men in the union had been "disciplined" by the company, being taken from $1.50 jobs and put on other work at $1.25. This and the fear of still more severe measures caused some alarm among the more timid workers, and Spring came at an opportune moment.

The Way to Fight.

The union meeting which he addressed was well attended. He explained from the Socialist point of view the relation of employer and employee, and then turned to the experience which these workers were now having. He pointed out to them that, while the bosses could now tyrannize over them in the shop, they had a power at hand which, if they would use it rightly, would soon bring the capitalists to terms.

"Elect your own men to office in town and county on the Social Democratic platform," he said. "Show the capitalists that you, who are the majority, propose to rule. Show them that you are determined and they will treat you with respect. This paper mill where you work is assessed for taxation at $25,000; its real value is from $225,00 to $250,000. Let the owners see that you propose to use your votes to put workingmen in office and to make these exploiters pay taxes on the full value of their property for the benefit of the people of the town and county. Power is the only thing they respect. Use your political power and they will soon call a halt in their career of tyranny."

This advice was received with applause and it was the talk of the town next day. And it had its effect, for the men who had been "punished" by the bosses for their temerity in organizing a union were promptly restored to their old jobs.

The next evening another meeting was held in the Opera House. It was well attended, and a local of the Social Democratic Party organized with eighteen members. Socialism has been an unknown quantity in Dexter in the past, but it will now be a growing factor in the strength and hope of the oppressed workers there.

Another New Local.

At Gouverneur Comrade Spring addressed a large meeting in the park, accompanied by Thomas Pendergast of Watertown. Comrade Pendergast, by the way, is a good speaker and a devoted worker for the cause and gave the Organizer very efficient support. Several hundred people listened to the speeches in the park, after which those who sympathized with the movement were invited to a hall, where a local was organized with fourteen charter members.

A start was made at Black River and Brownville, which will be followed up later in the season.

The Buffalo Debate.

Two weeks ago The Worker told the story of the proposed debate in Buffalo between Comrade Spring and Attorney Thayer, who had been lecturing on the "evil" of Socialism. Spring challenged him and the challenge was accepted. The Buffalo Socialists hired the hall and paid all expenses, allowed Thayer to formulate the question, and supplied him with party literature. After the audience had gathered to hear the debate, Thayer sent a telegram from Rochester saying he could not come till aften ten o'clock—and he did not come at all.

Mr. Thayer now expresses deep regret at the failure of the arrangements and an earnest desire to hold the debate. Comrade Spring has accordingly written him that Comrade Vail will visit Buffalo within a few days and will gladly meet him in debate. It is hoped that he will not again run away.

Two Months' Work.

During the two months of Organizer Spring's work—April 7 to June 7—he has addressed thirty-six public meetings, five business meetings of locals, and six trade unions, besides speaking to the striking carpenters in Buffalo—in all, forty-eight meetings. The writing of 209 letters and cards has added to his labors and indicates the thorough way in which he has got in communication with comrades throughout the state. He has organized three new locals and ninety-eight new members have been added to the party at his meetings. Besides this, he has secured twenty subscriptions for The Worker and sold a considerable quantity of other Socialist literature. Finally, he has arranged for Vail's tour, which is now on foot, with twenty-two dates so far made.

In several places the trade unions co-operated in arranging public meetings and, in general, they showed the most friendly spirit.

IN NEW JERSEY.

At the last meeting of the State Committee delegates from Bergen, Camden, Essex, Hudson, and Passaic Counties were present. Camden reported activity and plans afoot for effective agitation. Essex reported that 124 Market street had been determined upon as headquarters for Essex County Local, subject to referendum, and that it was planned to utilize the room now sublet to trade organizations as a social meeting place for the comrades in which would be placed a pool table and sideboard; organization of new branch in Bloomfield reported; holding of County Convention reported at which a city, county, and congressional ticket was nominated, Billings being nominated for Congress, McIntosh for Mayor and Magnette for Sheriff; reported that trade unions were soliciting Socialist speakers. Hudson County reported five additions to membership since last meeting; reported that Decoration Day parade and memorial service in Arlington was a success and would doubtless prove beneficial to the movement; reported that question as to legality of recent election of state officers threshed out at last meeting of Hudson County Committee and settled amicably. Passaic County reported holding of convention on June 3, at which as complete a ticket as possible was nominated; also reported organization of auxiliary of Socialist women in this county.

Secretary submitted blank form for exact registration of names and addresses of members, list of officers, locals and branches and such other information as is essential to perfect organization, which had been endorsed by Hudson County and put into immediate effect. Secretary requested to communicate with each local, submitting said form and expressing the wish of State Committee that it be put in use. Treasurer reported balance on hand, $106.72; bills ordered paid, $29.10; balance remaining on hand, $77.62. Printing Committee ordered 1,500 constitutions and platforms and matter stereotyped for future use. As soon as printed the Secretary is instructed to forward to each local the number required, making a charge above cost that will cover express or postage. Agitation Committee to look into matter of congressional districts and ascertain the new boundaries. After lengthy discussion, motion that all matter emanating from State Committee should bear label of the Allied Printing Trades Council was carried. Oswald and Firth elected committee of two to assist Kearns in indexing by card system the party membership in the state. Glanz of Paterson suggested that The Worker be asked to furnish list of its readers in New Jersey as an aid to the plan under advisement of Organization Committee. No action was taken. Secretary instructed to notify locals that communications hereafter to secure recognition, must bear the seal of the organization and be signed by the secretary. Hudson County's delegate requested to ask his local to submit its system of bookkeeping with a view to its adoption by the other locals, that submitted by the National Secretary being considered too complicated for genera use. Moved by Ufert that State Committee purchase of Essex County Local 1,000 nominating petition blanks. So ordered.

H. R. KEARNES,
State Secretary Socialist Party.

HUDSON COUNTY.

The last meeting of Hudson County Committee of the Socialist Party of New Jersey was well attended and reports from all branches gratifying. Excursion Committee reported completion of arrangements for excursion on August 24, and asked for enlargement of committee and delegates were instructed to request election of three members from each branch to aid said committee. Delegate to State Committee explained action of State Committee on motion to request the association formed for the purpose of publishing Socialist Daily to elect two members on their Board of Management from the stae of New Jersey; he reported that State Committee voted it down because the state party constitution forbids official endorsement of any paper. In evidence of kindly feeling for the future daily and desire to help it, the delegates to State Committee supported motion of Organizer to purchase a share of stock and pledge the Local in the sum of $100. Motion lost because of desire to bring the matter before the mass convention of the county which meets the second Saturday in July. The subject will then be brought forward again, and it is safe to predict an outcome most favorable to the Socialist daily project. Comrade Butscher was granted the floor and outlined a plan for circulation of pledges which was accepted and committee elected to circulate pledges and secure contributions.

Comrade Goebel of Newark was granted the floor as representative of Secretary of late State Committee and submitted proofs relative to election of state officers. As a result of the controversy, which we are glad to feel has been satisfactorily settled, Hudson's delegate was instructed to ask the State Committee to rule that all communications going to that body hereafter shall bear the official seal of the branch or local and the signature of the secretary and if not so sealed and signed shall be rejected.

H. R. KEARNES,
Secretary, Local Hudson County.

PROGRESS IN NEWARK.

The opening gun of the coming campaign was fired on Tuesday evening, June 3, amid most pleasing and satisfactory surroundings. By special invitation representatives of the Socialist Party attended the regular quarterly meeting of Feeders' and Assistant Pressmen's Union, No. 19, in order to explain to them the attitude of the Socialist Party towards the trade union movement. John Spargo was the first speaker presented, and as he was fresh from the scenes of the miners' strike in Pennsylvania, he was in fine fettle, and delivered a masterly oration. It did not take the audience long to find out that Comrade Spargo understood every phase of the trade union question, and his clear-cut exposition of Socialism went straight home. At the close of his address he received an ovation.

Organizer Neben of Essex County was the next speaker, and he outlined the class struggle in his usual forcible and peculiar style. A recess of thirty minutes was here ordered, during which a collation was served, and which also gave an opportunity for the Socialists to fraternize with the boys. Chairman Frank Ostertag then called the meeting to order again and introduced Fred McIntosh, our candidate for Mayor. He spoke to the members from the standpoint of a practical pressman, outlining the gradual development of the automatic feeding machine from its inception to its present state of perfection, and showing by statistics the amount of human labor displaced. It was a plain statement of the cold hard facts that affect the very life of this particular branch of industry, and was listened to with rapt attention. His sarcastic arraignment of the studied silence of the national committees of both the Republican and Democratic parties in regard to the striking miners in the anthracite regions caused great enthusiasm, and the reading of National Secretary Greenbaum's message to President Mitchell was received with cheers. He closed his address with a strong appeal for the Socialist Daily and The Worker, and definite action will be taken on this matter by the organization at their next meeting.

Comrade Flewellen, one of the striking miners from Carbondale, Pa., was the last speaker. He gave an interesting account of mining life—an account that would never be printed in a capitalistic sheet.

This meeting marks an epoch in the Socialist movement in the state of New Jersey. The thin edge of the Socialist wedge has at last penetrated the trade union movement in this state, and no power on earth can keep it from striking the core.

A committee from the Socialist Daily recently visited one of the principal locals of the Brotherhood of Carpenters and stated the aims and objects of their coming paper. President Robert Hunter reports that after the committee withdrew the matter was taken up for discussion, and it was voted to lay it over until Monday, July 7, when a general meeting of all the locals will be held and one hour will be given to that particular subject, and the same committee is requested to be present at that meeting, as action will be taken at that time.

The progressive trade unionists in Newark are much elated over the election of Max Hayes as delegate to the American Federation of Labor by a referendum vote of the International Typographical Union. It is particularly gratifying because every union man in America knows upon just what platform the genial Max stands, and his election speaks volumes for the growth of Socialism in the ranks of the typos. It is truly amusing to watch the facial contortions of our so-called "safe and conservative leaders" when the name of Max Hayes is mentioned. They immediately gaze into vacancy and chew the end of reflection. And to add still more to their discomfiture comes the glorious news from Denver that the Western Federation of Miners have proven themselves worthy of the name of union men by adopting the Socialist platform in its entirely. Surely this has been a great week.

The Worker can now be found on sale every Saturday on the newsstand in Fireman's Building, corner Broad and Market street.

TREMAINE.

MAINE NOTES.

The comrades at Madison organized last week with a charter membership of twenty-seven.

J. D. Groves, State Committeeman for Lincoln County, sends in an application for membership from Wiscasset, adding one more town to those already represented in that county.

Local Portland reports a gain of twenty members for May. The local is holding weekly meetings, and hopes soon to open permanent headquarters in connection with the labor unions, which are about to lease a building.

Great interest is being manifested in the coming of Comrade Carey to work with us this summer. The Executive has been almost snowed under with requests for dates, and if all the time asked for had been assigned, Carey would have to prolong his stay far into the winter.

The following dates have been assigned and accepted: Camden, July 10; Rockland, 11; Thomaston, 12; Bath, 14; Freeport, 15; Bath, 16; Portland, 17; South Portland, 18; Westbrook, 19; Biddeford, 21. Other dates are in process of arrangement and will be reported later.

It is the intention of the Executive Board to close the state campaign with a series of mass meetings, to be held simultaneously throughout the state on the eve of election.

The boys are full of courage, and optimistic as to results. F. E. I.

—The fact that a caterpillar eats six hundred times its weight in food in a month is somewhat overshadowed by the fact that it takes so much to satisfy one Rockefeller for a month that several times six hundred men of his weight can't get enough to eat for two months.—The Socialist.

FOR THE BENEFIT OF THE CAMPAIGN FUND.

Picnic & Summer Night's Festival of

Local New York, S.D.P.

ON SUNDAY, JUNE 29,

AT SULZER'S WESTCHESTER PARK.

Tickets, 10 cents — At the Gate, 15 cents

Tickets can be had in all Assembly District Organizations or from the Organizer at 64 East 4th Street.

"WHERE WE STAND."

A lecture by John Spargo, editor of THE COMRADE. Originally delivered under the title, "Our Position, Economic, Ethical and Political." Five cents a copy, 10 for 35c., 50 for $1.40, 100 for $2.50, postpaid. Order now.

ILLUSTRATED AGITATION LEAFLETS.

Published by THE COMRADE PUB. CO., 11 Cooper Square, N. Y. "The Worker with the Capitalist Mind," by Herbert N. Casson, fifth edition; "Dialogue between the Machine Gun and the Musket," by Frank Stuhlman; "A Lesson from the Donkeys," by John Spargo. You should use these leaflets for distribution, as they are sure to be read by everybody who gets them. Price, 10c. a bundle of 50, one kind or assorted. SPECIAL.—Upon receipt of 50 cents in one-cent stamps we will send THE COMRADE, an illustrated Socialist Monthly, for three months, 300 illustrated leaflets, and a copy of "Where We Stand."

THE COMRADE PUBLISHING CO., 11 Cooper Square, New York (373 Bowery.)

R·I·PANS

I was troubled with torpid liver for many years and was subject to dreadful headaches, which confined me to my bed once a week. A friend recommended Ripans Tabules. I did not have much faith, but he persuaded me to try them, and inside of three weeks I was a cured woman. On account of my age I hardly thought it possible to effect a cure, as I had been subject to those awful headaches since I was a little girl.

At Druggists.

The Five-Cent Package is enough for an ordinary occasion. The family bottle, 60 cents, contains a supply for a year.

LOUIS D. BEHREN,
Manufacturer of UNION-MADE
HAVANA CIGARS
189 WILLIAM STREET.
Opposite the office of The Worker, New York
MAIL ORDERS PROMPTLY ATTENDED TO.

Attention, Workingmen!

If you are in want of Trusses, Abdominal Supporters, Shoulder Braces, Elastic Stockings, Knee Caps and Anklets, GO TO THE MANUFACTURER,

GUSTAVE BARTH,
22 ½ E. 125th St., bet. Madison and Fifth ave.
357 Bowery, bet. 3rd & 4th Sts., New York.

Dr. C. L. FURMAN,
DENTIST,
121 Schermerhorn street, Brooklyn.

COMRADES, PATRONIZE . . .
FRED. SONNENSCHEIN,
UNION BARBER SHOP
84 E. 4th Street, New York.

THE DECATUR LABOR WORLD
Decatur, Ill.
AN UP-TO-DATE LABOR PAPER.
Subscription $1 per year, in advance.
HAS A WEEKLY CIRCULATION OF 3,500 COPIES.
Advertising rates quoted on application. Address:
THE DECATUR LABOR WORLD,
231 N. Main St., Decatur, Ill.

Where to Lunch and Dine

Comrades, patronize those who advertise in your paper.

ABBOTT BROS.'
Lunch Room,
110 Bleecker St., near Greene St.
NEW YORK.
Kangaroos are welcome.
No line drawn on smaller animals.

LAWYERS.

MORRIS HILLQUIT,
Attorney-at-Law,
220 Broadway. Telephone 2576 Franklin

L. D. MAYES, LAWYER,
245 Broadway, New York City, Borough of Manhattan. Practice in all Courts. Consultation free

H. B. SALISBURY,
COUNSELLOR-AT-LAW
309 Broadway, Room 933. 50 Union Square.

Simon Sultan,
Counselor at Law.
203 Broadway (Mail and Express Building)
7th Floor, Room 711.
Residence 110 West 120th st., New York.

WHO WILL DO YOUR LAUNDRY WORK?
I. X. L. LAUNDRY, GUSTAV LEIST, 774 Second Ave.

SPECIAL NOTICES.

Under this heading any matter of interest to the Social Democratic Party (Socialist Party) will be inserted at FIVE CENTS PER LINE EACH INSERTION. Six words about equal one line. Cash must accompany advertisement IN EVERY INSTANCE.

WANTED.—An active comrade who will take the agency for The Worker for Detroit and vicinity.

NO TRUSTS! NO PRISONS! NO SWEAT SHOPS!
Shirts, Waists, Collars or Cuffs
BEARING THIS LABEL ARE O. K.
INTERN'L UNION SHIRT, WAIST & LAUNDRY WORKERS REGISTERED
This label is sewed on Shirts and Waists just below the tab or bosom and is stamped in miniature on Collars and Cuffs
No Chinese exclusion act needed when up-to-date Union Laundries use this Label to stamp Price List Slips on your laundry packages. Ask for it.

EGYPT . . .
Southern Illinois. A real Garden of Eden. No place in the United States produces a greater variety of finer fruits, vegetables and grains, or more of them. Splendid climate and water. Cheap lands. THE FARMERS' INSTITUTE, Carbondale, Ill., will tell you all about it. Four months for ten cents. Sample copy for two-cent stamp.

$1.00 OFFER FOR 60 CENTS.

Railroading in the United States by BEN. HANFORD	5 Cents
The Clerical Capitalist by REV. FATHER MCGRADY	10 Cents
Why Workingmen Should be Socialists by H. GAYLORD WILSHIRE	2 Cents
Labor Politics and Socialist Politics by ALGERNON LEE	3 Cents
The Proletariat by KARL KAUTSKY	5 Cents
The Class War in Idaho by JOS HARRIMAN. Third Edition	5 Cents
The Communist Manifesto by KARL MARX and FRED'K ENGELS	10 Cents
The Development of Socialism, from Utopia to Science. By F. ENGELS	5 Cents
A Debate on the Tactics of the S. T. and L. A. toward Trade Unions between Daniel DeLeon and Job Harriman	5 Cents
The Attitude of the Socialists toward the Trade Unions, by N. I. STONE	5 Cents
The Capitalist Class by KARL KAUTSKY	5 Cents
Now and Then. A Socialist Play by FRED'K KRAFFT	10 Cents
The Adventures of JOHN MCCUE—Socialist	10 Cents
This Religion of Capital by PAUL LAFARGUE / Social Effect of Machinery by FRANK W. COLTON	10 Cents
Where we stand by JOHN SPARGO	5 Cents
Socialism. A Reply to the Pope's Encyclical by ROBERT BLATCHFORD	5 Cents

On receipt of Only 60 Cents above 15 books will be mailed postpaid.
Socialist Literature Co., 184 WILLIAM ST., New York.
Largest Assortment of Literature on the Labor Question.
CATALOGUE FREE.

PUBLICATIONS.

SOCIAL JUSTICE.
EDITED BY FREDERICK G. STRICKLAND.
A monthly message from agitators in the field. Good for the man who hasn't thought and full of suggestions to Socialist workers.
25 Cents for Eight Months. 35 Cents per Year.
Address: SOCIAL JUSTICE, Yellow Springs, Ohio.

LATEST PUBLICATIONS.

"Adventures of John McCue" 10c. "American Farmer," By Simons. Cloth 50c. "American Communities." By W. A. Hinds. Cloth $1.00. "The Man with the Hoe," and other poems. By Edwin Markham. Cloth, $1; paper, 50c. "History of Trade Unionism." By S. & B. Webb. Cloth $2.00. "Religion of Capital." By Lafargue 10c. "Social Effect of Machinery." By Colton 10c. "Tales from Gorky" $1.20. "The Pride of Intellect." By F. H. Wentworth; and "What is a Scab?" By A. M. Simons 5c. "The Westcotes." By A. T. Quiller-Couth $1.00. "Useful Principles of Logic." By T. Bersford 15c. "Voice from England." By Father McGrady 10c. "The History of Trade Unionism." By Sidney and Beatrice Webb. New edition. New ork. Longmans, Green & Co. 1902. 558 pages. Cloth $2.60. "Industrial Democracy." By Sidney and Beatrice Webb. 229 pages $4.00. "Where We Stand." By J. Spargo 5c. "Woman." By Martha Moore Avery 10c.

A large stock of Labor Literature in English and German always on hand. Catalogues free.
SOCIALIST LITERATURE CO., 184 William St., New York.

Just Received from England
A large importation of
"CAPITAL," by Karl Marx.
Only authorized edition, translated by Samuel Moore and Edward Aveling, and edited by Frederick Engels.
CONTENTS:
Prefaces by the author and editor.
Part I.—Commodities and Money.
II.—The Transformation of Money into Capital.
III.—The Production of Absolute Surplus Value.
IV.—Production of Relative Surplus Value.
V.—Production of Absolute and of Relative Surplus Value.
VI.—Wages.
VII.—The Accumulation of Capital.
VIII.—The So-called Primitive Accumulation.
Library Edition, cloth, $2.50, postpaid.
SOCIALIST LITERATURE CO., 184 William Street, N. Y.

CO-OPERATE IN PUBLISHING SOCIALIST BOOKS
That is the way to get them at actual cost. $10 cash or $1 a month five months makes you joint owners in our business with the right to buy books at the prices in second column, postage included. Others have to pay prices in first column.

The American Farmer, Simons, Cloth	.50	.30
Collectivism, Vanderveide, Paper	.25	.15
Liebknecht's Life of Marx, Cloth	.50	.30
Last Days of Rights Commonwealth, Cloth	.50	.30
Engels' Origin of the Family, Cloth	.50	.30
Love's Coming-of-Age, Edward Carpenter	1.00	.60
Socialism, Utopian and Scientific, Engels, Cloth	.20	.12
Socialism, Utopian and Scientific, Engels, Paper	.10	.06
Socialism, Wilhelm Liebknecht, Paper	.10	.06
Life of Engels, Kautsky, Paper	.10	.05
Pocket Library of Socialism, Per copy	.05	.02
Pocket Library of Socialism, Per 100, assorted	2.25	1.00
International Socialist Review, Per copy	.10	.05
International Socialist Review, Per year	1.00	.50

Our co-operative plan is fully explained in a booklet entitled "How Socialist Literature is Published," mailed free on application. Locals Chicago, Philadelphia, Erie, Minneapolis, Davenport and many others are already with us.
CHARLES H. KERR & CO. (Co-operative) 56 Fifth Avenue, CHICAGO.

L'UNION DES TRAVAILLEURS,
730 Washington Ave., Charleroi, Pa.
A weekly advocate of Trade Unionism and Socialism. Should be read by every French speaking worker.
Send for sample copies.
Subscription, $1.00 per year.

SUBSCRIBE FOR
THE REFERENDUM,
the only English Socialist paper in Minnesota. Published at Faribault, Rice County. Fearless, bright, spicy; 75 cents a year, in advance; 35 cents for 6 months. By E. B. FORD.

HERE'S WHAT YOU WANT!
ILLUSTRATED PROPAGANDA LEAFLETS.
"What Is Socialism?" by Mills. Per 100..10c.
"Scientific Socialism," by Mills. Per 100..20c.
"The Civilized Monkeys," by Warren. Per 100 15c.
"Ahlt Grabitall, Financier," by Warren. Per 100 20c.
Convenient in Size. Convincing in Argument.
Send a dime for 10 weeks' subscription to The Coming Nation, an illustrated Socialist weekly, and sample copies of the above leaflets. Address:
THE COMING NATION, Rich Hill, Mo.

BUY UNION-MADE GOODS.

LABOR ORGANIZATIONS

Standing advertisements of Trade Unions and other Societies will be inserted under this heading at the rate of $1 per line per annum.

CIGARMAKERS' PROGRESSIVE INTERNATIONAL UNION No. 90. Office and Employment Bureau: 64 East 4th Street, —District I. (Bohemian), 331 East 71st Street, every Saturday at 8 p. m.—District II. (German), at 50 E. First street, meets every Saturday at 3 p. m.—District III. meets at the Clubhouse, 206 East 80th Street, every Saturday at 7:30 p. m.—District IV. meets at 342 West 42d Street, every Saturday at 8 p. m.—District V. meets at 517 East 157th Street, every Saturday at 8 p. m.—District VII. meets every Saturday evening at 1432 Second Avenue.—The Board of Supervisors meets every Tuesday at Faulhaber's Hall, 1551 Second Avenue, at 8 p. m.

LOCAL 476, MACHINE WOOD WORKERS AND TURNERS, United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners of America. Meets every Tuesday at Bohemia Hall, 323 East Seventy-third street, New York. Financial Secretary, W. E. P. Schwartz, 27 Fulton avenue, Astoria, L. I.; Recording Secretary, Chas. Fiescler, 522 East Eighty-fifth street, New York.

Workmen' Children Death Benefit Fund of the United States of America.
The address of the Financial Secretary of the Executive Committee is: HENRY HAUPT, Bible House, Room 42, Astor Place, N. Y. City, N. Y.

Arbeiter-Kranken- und Sterbe-Kassiner die Ver. Staaten von Amerika.
WORKMEN'S
Sick and Death Benefit Fund of the United States of America,
The above society was founded in the year 1884 by workingmen imbued with the spirit of solidarity and Socialist thought. Its numerical strength (at present composed of 130 local branches with 23,000 male and 4,500 female members) is rapidly increasing among workingmen who believe in the principles of the modern labor movement. Workingmen between 18 and 45 years of age may be admitted to membership in any of the branches upon payment of an initiation fee of $4.00 for the first class and $3.00 for the second class. Members belonging to the first class are entitled to a sick benefit of $5.00 for 40 weeks and of $4.50 for another 40 weeks, whether continuous or with interruption. Members belonging to the second class receive under the same circumstances and length of time $3.00 and $2.50 respectively. A burial benefit of $250.00 is guaranteed for every member, and the wives and unmarried daughters of members between 18 and 45 years of age may be admitted to the third class upon payment of an initiation fee of $1.00. Monthly assessments are levied for the three different classes of members of $1, 75 cents and 22 cents respectively. Members at large are not accepted, but all candidates have to join existing branches. In cities and towns where no branch exists, a new branch can be formed by 15 workingmen in good health, and men adhering to the above principles are invited to do so.
Address all communications to HENRY STAHL, Financial Secretary, 1-3 Third avenue, Room 2, New York City.

WORKMEN'S
Furniture Fire Insurance
Organized 1872. Membership 14,000.
Principal Organization, New York and Vicinity.
OFFICE: 64 East Fourth street. Office hours, daily, except Sundays and holidays, from 1 to 9 o'clock p. m.
BRANCHES: Yonkers, Troy, Binghamton, Gloversville, Schenectady, Albany, Oneida, N. Y. Paterson, Newark, Elizabeth, South River, Passaic and Trenton, N. J. Adams, Boston, Holyoke, Springfield, Mass. New Haven, Waterbury, Meriden, Hartford, and Bridgeport, Conn. Philadelphia, Pittsburg, Allegheny, Lazerne, Altoona, Scranton, Pa. Chicago, Ill. Cleveland, O. San Francisco, Cal.
For addresses of the Branch-bookkeepers, see "Vorwaerts." 229

CARL SAHM CLUB (MUSICIANS' UNION. Meets first and third Tuesday of the month, 19 a. m., at Club House, 206 E. Eighty-sixth street. Secretary, H. Frey, 171 E. Eighty-seventh street.

PENNSYLVANIA.
WILKES-BARRE—Local Wilkes-Barre, Pa., Socialist Party, meets in Central Labor Union Hall, 16 S. Main street, on the second and fourth Sundays of each month, at 3 p. m. All Socialists are invited.

Have Your Printing Done at Union Printers.
F. W. HEISS, 69 GOLD ST., New York City.
Use this Label. Union Printer
Lowest Prices. — Mail Orders Promptly Attended To.

GOVERNMENT OWNERSHIP.

By Edmond Kelly.

(Note.—Mr. Edmond Kelly is the author of "Justice" and "Collectivism" and late Professor of Economics and Municipal Government at Columbia University.)

In an article on "Government Ownership and Class Rule" in The Worker of April 6 it is argued that government ownership under capitalistic government will be of no benefit to the working class; that its indiscriminate advocacy is now a distinct hindrance to Socialist propaganda.

If this contention means that Socialists must not be content with pushing measures favoring government ownership, but perhaps at the same time organize for the purpose of securing control of the government, all Socialists are likely to agree.

"If, however, it means that the Socialists must control the government before efforts are made to secure government ownership, the contention is worth careful examination; for, if well founded, it would prevent Socialists from favoring any movement in the direction of government ownership until Socialists were themselves in control of the government.

This contention is a part of a general question of policy of immediate importance to all those interested in practical Socialism, and constitutes the great stumbling block in the way of concerted Socialistic action to-day in France. When parliamentary government was threatened in its very existence by the divers opinions held regarding the Dreyfus case, and the inability of any ministry to secure a sufficiently permanent majority to transact the business of the country, M. Waldeck-Rousseau was dragged from the retirement which he had earned because he seemd to be the only man in France capable of uniting a sufficient number of elements in the Chamber to weather the hurricanes that were blowing from every side of the compass at that critical juncture. Obviously, at that time there was only one issue upon which the parliamentary factions could unite: There must be either a majority found in favor of Dreyfus, or one found against Dreyfus. Waldeck-Rousseau found a majority consisting of the entire Left, including the Socialists pure and simple, in favor of a fair trial; and he constituted a cabinet in which all the factions of the extreme left were represented, including the Socialists themselves in the person of M. Millerand. For the first time in the history of France it became possible for the Socialists to exercise some influence upon legislation through representation in the ministry. The presence, however, of Millerand in the Waldeck-Rousseau Cabinet immediately determined a division in the ranks of the Socialists, an important part of them maintaining that Socialists should not compromise with a capitalistic government, but must remain in opposition until they were strong enough to elect a homogeneous Socialist ministry, capable of carrying through the entire Socialist program.

The argument presented by this faction of the Socialist Party in France, known as Guesdists, is very similar to the contention made in the article referred to, and as such is entitled to our most careful consideration; the issue it raises may be stated thus: Shall Socialists co-operate with those citizens who have not imagination enough to understand—or, perhaps, sincerity enough to admit—the righteousness of the Socialist cause, but who, nevertheless, are sufficiently impressed in favor of municipal ownership to vote for it. I venture to point out in support of the affirmative the following argument:

Assuming that the policy of the Socialist should be to secure control of the government, he can only do this in one way: By bringing to any one election a majority of voters to the polls. The art of securing government may be reduced to the art of causing a majority of votes to be cast at the polls. What, at the present moment, are the difficulties in the way of securing such a result, whether at a city, state, or a national election?

I take it that the greatest obstacle is ignorance. Not one cultivated man out of a hundred has yet taken the trouble to study Socialism; the general notion about Socialism is that it is a crazy expression of discontent, vaguely connected with anarchy and assassination. This creates an emotional opposition to Socialism. The few who reason on the subject of Socialism are opposed to it because they believe that Socialism is not practical; some believe that it is by the organization of trade unions alone that the workingman can fight the capitalist; others, who have studied Herbert Spencer, believe that there are scientific and philosophical reasons against Socialism. To the ignorant there is no lesson so potent as actual experience. It has been found quite useless to tell New York citizens that the city of Manchester manufactures gas at one-half the price that is charged by private companies in New York. They won't believe it; or they will endeavor to explain it away on some such theory as that of a lower rate of wages prevailing in England. The only way to satisfy the New York citizen that the city of New York can manufacture gas cheaper than private companies is for the city to do it. The only way to satisfy the New York citizen that the city can run tramways cheaper than private companies is for New York to do it. When the New York citizen finds that the city can manufacture gas and run tramways cheaper than private companies, he may then be induced to undertake the task of distributing coal, milk, ice, and other necessaries. When the New York citizen discovers that the city can do this cheaper than private companies, the citizen will then be prepared to take the next step looking towards an extension of municipal functions.

It is useless to ignore the lack of imagination of our fellow parishioners. They not only lack imagination, but they lack the faculty of their senses; to-day, as 1900 years ago, may it still be said "eyes have they and see not; ears and hear not!" If we wait until a majority of citizens are converted to the entire Socialistic program, we shall have to wait—like the Roman peasant—until the Tiber runs dry.

Fortunately, there are many men of ability who are preaching the economy of municipal ownership. These men have not yet grasped the whole Socialist program, and probably never will, but they are at present willing, not only to vote themselves for municipal ownership, but to induce others to do so. If to this the vote of all the workingmen could be added, it is not unreasonable to suppose that a majority could soon be secured, in most of the large cities of the Union, in favor of municipal ownership. This once achieved, a distinct progress would have been gained towards the securing of national ownership, and thus slowly the ignorance that doesn't believe in the economy of government ownership and that constitutes the most formidable obstacle to Socialism, would be gradually removed.

It is perfectly true that so long as government is in the hands of the capitalist class, so long the realization of the whole Socialistic program will be adjourned; but the question before us is not how would LIKE best to realize Socialism, but how we CAN best realize it. Obviously, we would all be most satisfied were we to be able to secure a majority in favor of Socialism at once, and at once carry out the whole Socialist program. But there are two convincing reasons why we should not be able to do this: The first is the argument drawn from history; the other is the argument drawn from existing facts.

The argument drawn from history may be briefly stated as follows: No radical, social or political change was ever effected in a short time; the more sudden a revolution, the greater the reaction from it; the slower the revolution, the less the reaction from it. The slower, therefore, the change, the more permanent is it likely to be. This is the lesson of history.

When we turn now to the existing facts we find that the ignorance that prevails on the subject of Socialism is so colossal that we cannot hope to dispel it, except by the slow persuasion which comes from the experience of actual results.

But there is another reason for preferring the slow method: The running of tramways is not an easy business to learn; the manufacture of gas can only be managed by experts; all business has its own special difficulties to overcome. The very distribution of coal requires knowledge of detail which is possessed only by those who have been long engaged in its business; the same may be said of the distribution of ice, milk, and all other necessaries. The great argument in favor of a municipality undertaking this class of business is that it ought to be able to do it more cheaply than a number of competing individuals. Just as it is easier for the national post office to distribute letters from door by door, so will it be cheaper for a city to distribute milk, coal, and other necessaries, door by door. But if the Socialists, having got control of the government, were to undertake immediately the business of manufacturing all the commodities which we need for our use and comfort, and the distribution of these commodities amongst all the citizens, with due regard to economy and fairness of distribution, without having previously educated a sufficient corps of officials to do this difficult task, is it not clear that their first efforts would result in confusion so bewildering that discredit would be thrown upon Socialism itself? Whereas if, on the contrary, a city or state were to assume, gradually, the manufacture of gas one year, the management of tramways the next year, the distribution of milk the next, the distribution of ice the next, and so on, is it not obvious that what a city could not undertake without the greatest danger at a single effort, it could undertake without danger by degrees?

There is, of course, a great deal more to be said on this subject. There is reason for believing that the transition from the fierce jealousy and hatred of individualism to the generosity and disinterestedness that should mark the Socialist régime is one that will require slow changes of temperament spreading over the lapse of considerable time; but it would take too long to develop the scientific arguments in favor of this contention. I shall therefore close this brief memorandum with the expression of regret that when the Central Labor Union of Toledo received a communication from the so-called Non-Partisan Federation, upon the board of which may be noticed such names as those of Samuel M. Jones, Frank Parsons, John R. Commons, H. D. Lloyd, and others, the co-operation of the Union was refused by unanimous vote. Would it not have been possible vigorously to stand by the principles of the Union without refusing the co-operation of men who, however little they may understand the real aim of the workingman, are nevertheless, with such light as they have, moving generally in its direction?

—C. F. Hudson, of Jamaica Plain, Mass., writes: "Please continue my subscription to The Worker for one year. It is the real thing and pleases me because it calls things by their name. There is only one brand of Socialism and we get that, unadulterated, through The Worker. When we get the Daily I will have no excuse for reading a capitalist paper."

—Socialism would not break up the home of the workingman, but it might cause the millionaire to get along with a few less servants in his house.—Erie People.

REPLY TO MR. KELLY.

The arguments advanced by Mr. Kelly, as a believer in Socialism, in favor of municipal ownership under capitalistic administration, have all received previous attention in The Worker, and the present treatment of the question will therefore be brief. Mr. Kelly's contribution, being a particularly good presentation of the opposite view, is published that the two positions may be fairly compared and the correct position for Socialists thus seen.

For a more complete treatment of the question the reader is referred to an article entitled "The Essential Point in Socialist Propaganda," in The Worker of December 15, 1901; an article on "Socialism and Public Ownership," in The Worker of May 1, 1902; and an editorial, "The Socialist View of Municipal or Government Ownership," in The Worker of May 18.

Millerand, whose case is cited by Mr. Kelly as another phase of the same question of co-operation with capitalistic forces, is universally condemned by the Socialist press and the Socialist parties of all countries. And even Jaurès, his one time supporter, has now stated that a Socialist cannot consistently become a minister in a capitalistic cabinet. The exigencies of the Dreyfus case and the supposed necessity of saving the republic were the only reasons advanced to justify his position, and these are no longer valid.

Our position is this: Municipal ownership under a capitalistic administration will not appreciably benefit the working class; and, conceding that the previous establishment of municipal ownership might be of some small advantage to a Socialist administration and a step in the transition to Socialism, the fact remains that the Socialist movement would lose its essential character and ultimate aim in advocating municipal ownership under capitalistic government, and that the spread of discontent and the pressure of an uncompromising, revolutionary Socialist movement will drive the capitalist political parties to establish municipal ownership sooner and more surely than any reform agitation could. It is this latter point that Mr. Kelly misses. The trusts are a step in the transition to Socialism, but Socialists would not for that reason spend their time in advocating the organization of trusts—the capitalists will attend to that themselves. And as mere municipal ownership, in itself, will not benefit the workers, it is a fatal mistake for believers in Socialism to advocate it independent of a change to working class government.

But the fundamental error in the position taken by Mr. Kelly—the idea that the course he favors would cause a beneficial increase in the Socialist vote—is centered in his statement that: "The art of securing government may be reduced to the art of causing a majority of votes to be cast at the polls." On this point, see editorial under the heading "Not by Votes Alone."

Mr. Kelly believes that we should "co-operate with those citizens who have not imagination enough to understand—or, perhaps, sincerity enough to admit—the righteousness of the Socialist cause." This does not require much comment. The question is one of material interests and those who have not the sincerity to admit the correctness of our position are those whose material interests are opposed to it, although their material interests may lead them to favor municipal ownership in order to reduce taxation, etc. Socialism will not come primarily because it is "righteous," but because the material interests and necessities of the producing class demand it and because economic evolution will force it.

Mr. Kelly lays great stress on the "economy" of municipal ownership, but the working class would not get the benefit of this economy—it would go to the property-owning class in the shape of reduced taxation. The working class do not pay the taxes except in the same sense that they pay the profits and dividends of the capitalist, for if reduction of taxation reduces the cost of living, a reduction in the cost of living is always followed by a reduction in wages, because the standard cost of living determines the wages of the workers, wages being forced down to this point by the competition for jobs. So the people who "endeavor to explain away" the economy of municipal gas in Manchester "on some such theory as a lower rate of wages prevailing" are right after all. The trusts effect great economies, but the savings made by these economies go to the owners of the trusts. Likewise the savings made by the economies of municipal ownership under capitalistic administration would mostly go, indirectly, to the capitalist class in control of the government.

We are not quite so despondent over the ignorance of the people as Mr. Kelly is. The increase of the national Socialist vote from 2,000 in 1888 to 130,000 in 1900 would seem to show that they are learning at quite a good rate. And two and a quarter million Socialist votes in Germany shows that the economic and political education and organization of the working class is anything but a hopeless task. And it must not be forgotten that a great industrial crisis from overproduction, throwing thousands of men into the army of the unemployed, is likely to swell the Socialist ranks enormously. Such a crisis would bring more to our ranks than would the success of municipal ownership in every city in the nation. If the statement be true that: "Not one cultivated man in a hundred has yet taken the trouble to study Socialism," it does not worry us in the least. For most of the men who have the time and money to become "cultivated" belong to the class whose material interests would cause them to oppose Socialism anyway. We do not think many workingmen, "having studied Herbert Spencer, believe that there are scientific and philosophical reasons against Socialism." The class which has time and education to study Herbert Spencer is the capitalist class, which we have to fight. Educated men who care more for the study of Herbert Spencer than the pursuit of wealth and whose intellect and idealism would lead them into the Socialist movement would, of course, be a great and welcome aid, but the mass of Socialists must come from the workers, whose class interests the Socialist movement represents. Mr. Kelly says: "To the ignorant there is no lesson so potent as actual experience." But if municipal ownership is not Socialism where will the "lesson of actual experience" come in? And if municipal ownership is Socialism how will those whose ignorance makes them opposed to Socialism be converted to it?

Mr. Kelly says: "No radical social or political change was ever effected in a short time." How about the Declaration of Independence and the freeing of the chattel slaves by the Emancipation Proclamation? However, the point is that social changes are effected by a long process of economic development (for instance, the trusts as the economic evolution towards Socialism) and this social change is then recognized and its logical conclusions carried out and institutions adjusted to it by political change which may be sudden and revolutionary.

It is true that we cannot at once carry out the whole Socialist program, but the steps towards carrying it out consist in the gradual conquest of the powers of government. Wherever the Socialist Party is put in power it will carry out as much of the Socialist program as its power enables it to, and when the Socialist Party has captured the national government there is no reason why it cannot at once proceed to carry out the whole Socialist program.

As to the ability of a Socialist administration to immediately undertake the administration of industry, it may be pointed out that the real work of management is done for the capitalists by hired managers. These same men, if necessary, could be hired, at least temporarily, by a Socialist administration. Also, it must be remembered that much of the work of management necessary under the competitive system, such as getting trade, beating rivals, business strategy, etc., would disappear under Socialism. But there is no reason to doubt that workingmen who are able to organize and successfully maintain immense trade unions, in the face of all opposition from capitalists, government, and press, could also organize and manage industrial affairs.

Mr. Kelly says: "There is reason for believing that the transition from the fierce jealousy and hatred of individualism to the generosity and disinterestedness that should mark the Socialist regime is one that will require slow changes of temperament spreading over the lapse of considerable time." This is aside from the question under consideration, but it may be remarked in passing that, although generosity and disinterestedness will no doubt mark the Socialist regime and be most natural under it, they are not prerequisites to its establishment, but will follow naturally after the removal of the economic causes of jealousy and hatred. Human nature changes quickly in response to education and right environment. Let the child of coarse and ignorant parents be adopted and educated by a refined, kindly, and intelligent couple, and if the child itself does not develop into a refined, kindly, and intelligent being, at least the children of that child will, if reared under the same circumstances. Considering this, it is doubtful if the change wrought in the race by the better environment of Socialism, will require a very considerable lapse of time to show itself.

As to Mr. Kelly's regret that the Central Labor Union of Toledo refused to co-operate with Samuel M. Jones, Frank Parsons, John R. Commons, H. D. Lloyd, and other "men who, however little they may understand the real aim of the workingman, are, nevertheless, with such light as they have, moving generally in its direction"—the question is not as to the sincerity of these men, but as to the intelligence and the correctness or incorrectness of their position. Sincerity does not render an illogical and mistaken position any less dangerous and harmful.

To come back to the subject of discussion, Mr. Kelly is correct in saying that our position "would prevent Socialists from favoring any movement in the direction of government ownership until Socialists were themselves in control of government." The Socialist position is that it is a matter of indifference to the working class, and that it is more likely to come as a concession to a revolutionary spirit in the working class than in any other way. We are opposed to the indiscriminate advocacy of mere municipal ownership in itself by those who avow themselves Socialists because it leads to confusion, compromise, and the weakening of the revolutionary spirit, and delays the growth of class-consciousness, by its failure to recognize the class divisions and antagonisms.

COURTENAY LEMON.

THE SOCIAL VOLCANO.

By Daniel K. Young.

We call them fools, those people of St. Pierre,
Who sat in peace while Pelee groaned in pain,
And heeded not those warnings shrieked in vain,
But said, "For us there is no cause for fear,
The ground is firm and our estates are here,"
Till in an instant that most hellish rain
Of fire and death had wiped them off the plain
And naught was left but desolation sere.
But what of them, who heedless of the groans
Of poverty and human sufferings,
Their fellow men continue to enslave,
With jeer and taunt at men's despairing moans?
Oh, plutocrats and emperors and kings
Take heed from Pelee's desolating wave.

Mosquito Bites

By PETER E. BURROWES

Persons whose call in this world it is to reform the wicked have always deplored that moral perversity of the criminal mind by which it becomes angrier with the fellow that "squeaked" on the criminal than with the criminal or his crime. President Roosevelt is just developing that very tendency which has brought forth so many lamentable prison sermons and made the righteous weep for so many ages. The President is crying, "Who squeaked on Arnold—the torturer of the Filipinos?" If he were not something very much less than a moralist, he would be asking, "Who dares to conceal these unmanly crimes under the guise of patriotism?"

If there is anything else outside the cat family as like to a cat as a kitten is, that something else is ultimately public opinion. You may kill your cat eight times, and as everybody knows, it comes up the ninth time smiling with a new lease of life, requesting your signature. The press, the school, the pulpit, the landlord, the grocer, the policeman, the army, the genteel world at large, have united in killing off pro-striker public opinion. Yet, marvellous to relate, the capitalist conspirators both in Chicago and Pennsylvania are to-day up against a stronger pro-strike public opinion than they ever faced during all their previous crimes against labor. So far they have succeeded in stifling off each little group of workers resisting on behalf of human liberty and life and the eight executioners above named have buried the strike opinion. But lo, here it is, the ninth time. We begin to understand now why Hanna takes an interest in arbitration.

The president of the War College, R. I., Captain Frank E. Chadwick, has delivered what is called a scholarly, and what was at least in one respect, an appreciative address on the inevitable character of our future wars. He said that, as wars in the past have generally been of a commercial character, so are they sure to be in the future. Of course this view takes the glory-halleiujah gilt off the warrior's gingerbread, and makes of such magnificent patriotic bombshells as Spooner and Grosvenor mere commercial drummers and fifers, mere commercial pig-stickers. Alas! Now if Chadwick would go a step farther and tell us that commerce is itself only a war upon the world's labor for the appropriation of workingmen's products by the parasite class in possession of the armies of the nations, his hearers would have had a true diagnosis of war. But you cannot expect to learn too much at a kindergarten like the War College.

There is a man out Chicago way who writes for the New York "Times," a tory paper of this city, and this correspondent of a good tory paper frequently distinguishes between workmen, or poor people, and citizens. The last case of this peculiar new Americanism is in his report of the blocking up of Halstead street during the teamsters' strike by a street car, which, he says, was full of "citizens" who appeared to favor the "workmen" on strike. This uncitizenizing of poorer people I also recall in a former report of some "citizens" who saw certain persons carrying away an old house for firewood. People in cars are citizens. People in want of firewood are not.

The press of Great Britain has its share of snob reporters; but there is nothing in all Snobland can match the perpetual sneer at London's poverty and London's poor which appears in the columns of our big New York dailies. The newspaper readers of London are still too democratic for the impertinent, cheap, cynical stuff that goes for clever description in a New York daily. How coarse, how vulgar, how ragged, how indecent, how ignorant, how noisy, the people of the East End of London appear to the little Yankee snob reporter you can see for yourself by reading the reports of the Mafeking and peace jubilations of poor London.

Well, the Boer war is over, and it is well over; and it will be better over if some of our Socialist comrades will learn in future not to slop over on mixed questions of this sort. We are friends of all attainable rightly based liberty, but not therefore blind advocates of every new brigandage which takes to the mountains in that sacred name. What connection is there between a war upon the principles of capitalism and a sentimental enthusing for the gloomy despotic Boer? I never mistook him for a champion of liberty; and I am glad to have escaped the company of his numerous and varied political friends here in the United States.

The question of who is boss in the United States is evidently not an open question in the minds of that great railroad president who has played such a conspicuous part in the organizing of the present railroad war upon trade unions known to us as "the miners' strike." He says, with reference to the New York Board of Trade's appeal to President Roosevelt to step in and do something, "I do not believe that President Roosevelt will be foolish enough to take these resolutions seriously." And then he intimates who is king by showing "the mischief of creating in the minds of the strikers the idea that there is a new way by which the operators (owners) can be forced to grant demands WHICH THEY ARE NOT DISPOSED TO GRANT AND WILL NOT GRANT." Now who is king? Show me any language of unreason and despotism to match that; and as applied to the head of a state, show me any language of rebellion and defiance to match it. But it comes from the capitalists, and our government has been so long bossed from that quarter that even Roosevelt is not strenuous enough to mind it. I wonder could we grow an Andrew Jackson to-day?

If that Captain, or Colonel, MacDonald, who was accused of cruelty, oppression, immorality, and a little meanness by one of his soldiers, can carry his bluff through of prosecuting and punishing his accuser, he will undoubtedly be regarded by the military as a friend of their order and a rehabilitator of their Americanism and their honor. To frighten off at this stage of our expansion the honest, simple, Christian soldier, brought up in our Sunday schools, from telling the truth when he sees a murder or a rape or things of that sort, which count for nothing among patriots, is very essential to the maintenance of a good old-fashioned blind soldiering which does nothing but obey.

Bishop Thorburn's wretched showing before the Philippine committee the other day ought to be a warning to ecclesiastics to avoid exposing how little they know about God's doings. Although he volunteered the statement that "God put us into the Philippines," he got badly rattled on a few hypothetical questions. The Bishop only proved that his God is a Republican politician who will do nothing detrimental to the interests of the party. That God, is a Methodist and a Republican is naturally enough the Bishops creed. He used to be a Democrat and belonged to other denominations before Lincoln's time.

All the bands in Germany are practising "Hail Columbia" and "Yankee Doodle." The Boer war is finished and the Kaiser's commercial expansion in that continent is therefore temporarily impeded. In one day the German press has passed from hatred to good fellowship with us and with the English. Prince Henryism means that there is business to be done. There is no objection to civility, of course; none to good-fellowship; none to learning our tunes and to flattering us. The only objection is to the rapidity and grossness of these changes as ordered from the circles of our masters. Insincerity, humbug, and lying are expected from a dime auctioneer; but the common people have not yet so fully realized the degeneracy of public life under capitalism as to hop about with kaisers and other montebanks with facility. The masses still retain some sense of public gravity and, though having little sense of pomp, they have a strong sense of decency.

A high and unusual compliment has been paid to Generals Corbin, Young, and Wood in the invitation to come to the military manœuvres in the Fatherland as the personal guests of his Majesty, Kaiser William, and he to pay all the expenses! Such a compliment has been paid by his Majesty to no other three gentlemen on earth. Now what more do you want? Now won't you do business with us? A Bowery boy could put a little more polish on than these potentates.

GOMPERS WAS TOO TIRED.

There is considerable dissatisfaction in many parts of the country with the disinclination of the several executive officers of the American Federation to exert themselves in helping strikers to gain their demands.

George Ramsey, chairman of the strike committee of the striking carriage workers of Cincinnati, in the official journal of the Carriage and Wagon Workers' International Union of North America, says:

"President Gompers of the A. F. of L., while in Cincinnati was visited by a committee of the locked-out carriage and wagon workers and requested to wait on the manufacturers in conjunction with the committee and see if they could bring about a settlement of the differences existing.

"Gompers said he was sorry for the carriage workers, that his heart beat for them, and that he sympathized with them. And when the committee told him that it was not sympathy they were after but assistance from him as the head of the A. F. of L., and the carrying out of the duties of his office and try to settle the lock-out and strike that had been endorsed by the A. F. of L., he said he did not have time and was tired, and that he would deputize Frank Rist in his place. This the committee declined to accept.

"Samuel, this is a very bad state of affairs for the A. F. of L. to have a representative who is too tired to fulfill the duties of his office. But it was no more than we expected of him, as it was in keeping with the action of Secretary F. Morrison, when he was in Cincinnati investigating the same affair. Now, Sam, you little know that the men you refused to help in their hour of need are the men who stood by you and the cigarmakers when the K. of L., through Powderly and the ex-board, were fighting you. Now, it seems that you have fallen into the same rut as Powderly. It seems that you have forgotten the men that compose the A. F. of L. and assume to be greater than the organization, in refusing to do the duties of your office.

"In toadying to the representatives of capital and ignoring the representatives of labor, I will call your attention to the fate of Powderly and suggest it may be yours if you don't change your ways."

A NEW LEAFLET.

What Do You Think of the Beef Trust?

10 copies ..... 5 cents.
50 copies ..... 15 cents.
100 copies ..... 25 cents.
1,000 copies ..... $2.00.
Postpaid, cash with order.

SOCIALIST LITERATURE CO.,
184 William St., New York.

FOR THE DAILY.

Report of Progress in Gathering Funds.

Important Report of Organization Committee—Considered by Board of Management and to Be Presented at Next General Meeting.

The Board of Management of the Workingmen's Co-operative Publishing Association met on Monday evening and received the report of the Organization Committee, which was exhaustively discussed and will be presented to the next general meeting of the Association on Monday evening, July 7. This report is of the utmost importance and there should be a full attendance to consider it.

Amounts Pledged.

Following is a statement of amounts pledged for the Socialist Daily Fund up to June 9:

Previously acknowledged	$5,833.00
Louis Michael, City	1.00
L. B. Palewsky, City	1.00
H. Goldberg, City	25.00
Frances J. Malloy, Brooklyn	5.00
Arb. K. u. S. Kasse, Br. 17, East New York	25.00
Mr. and Mrs. Max S. Hayes, Cleveland, O.	25.00
Edward Cole, Dover, N. H.	3.00
P. A. Levene, City	50.00
23rd A. D., City	10.00
W. E. Ottner, City	5.00
Fred. Ebbers, City	2.00
Total	$5,985.00

Cash Receipts.

The following amounts have been received on pledges and donations:

PAID ON PLEDGES.

Lena Rabinowitz, City	$ 2.00
Louis Michael, City	.50
S. Zechnowitz, City	10.00
F. J. Malloy, Brooklyn	1.00
Chas. R. Bach, Rochester	10.00
L. D. Abbott, City	5.00
A. Schonberg, City	1.00
J. A. Goldstein, City	2.00
A. S. Lindenmeyer, Hoboken	1.00
E. Neppel, City	5.00
P. Bauer, City	1.00
M. M. Bartholomew, City	1.00
E. P. Clarke, City	10.00
E. M. M., City	5.00
Miss J. Dubman, City	4.00
Jos. A. Dunne, City	2.00
A. William, City	3.00
Mr. and Mrs. Geo. D. Herron	200.00
Joshua Epstein	2.00

CASH CONTRIBUTIONS.

Tom Helde, Williamsbridge	.80
Chas. Moder, Williamsbridge	1.00
John F. Clark, City	5.00
Peter E. Burrowes, Brooklyn	1.00
Total for week: On pledges, $265.50; contributions, $7.80	$273.30
Previously acknowledged	1,338.68
Total cash	$1,611.98

Comrades who have made pledges are requested to notify Comrade Butscher at once of any change in address, as it will save considerable time and expense.

Comrades soliciting pledges are again urged to report promptly every week the result of their work.

District Organization.

The district managers are as follows:

4th A. D.—Dr. J. Halpern, 250 East Broadway.

6th and 10th.—Henry L. Slobodin, 60 Second avenue.

11th.—Geo. Brown, 423 West Thirty-eighth street.

12th.—Wm. Halpern, 492 Grand street.

13th.—Hugo Pick, 326 W. Thirty-eighth street.

15th and 17th.—Wm. Meyer, 408 W. Fiftieth street.

18th and 20th.—J. N. Wood, 321 E. Sixteenth street.

19th.—M. L. Klauber, 132 W. Sixty-sixth street.

21st.—E. M. Martin, 887 Columbus avenue.

22d.—A. Mayell, 220 E. Fifty-second street.

23d.—E. P. Clark, 501 W. One Hundred and Sixty-fourth street.

24th.—Siskind Goldbarth, 311 E. Fifty-fourth street.

Yorkville Agitation District.—H. C. Bowerman, 510 E. Eighty-first street.

34th and 35th.—A. Halpern, 670 E. One Hundred and Seventy-first street.

Newark and Vicinity.—D. Rubinow, 65 Sherman avenue, Newark.

Hudson County, N. J.—For Jersey City, F. Krafft; for North Hudson County, Ferd. Ufert.

Contributions and payments on pledges may be made to these agents, who will give receipts for all payments in the name of the Association.

Notice to Contributors.

Pledges should be drawn and checks and money orders made payable to the Workingmen's Co-operative Publishing Association. All communications should be addressed to the newly elected Agent of the Association, Wm. Butscher, Labor Lyceum, 64 E. Fourth street, New York.

The Worker will contain, each week, a list of contributions received up to Monday preceding the date of issue.

If any contribution sent is not promptly acknowledged the sender should at once inform Comrade Butscher, that the matter may be investigated and set right.

Those who have made pledges should remember to send in the monthly instalments promptly, saving the trouble and expense of notifying them. Let each one feel his personal responsibility for the work we have undertaken and his power to hasten the coming of the Socialist Daily.

SWEDISH WORKERS MEET.

On Saturday evening, June 14, there will be held in Teutonia Assembly Rooms, Third avenue and Sixteenth street, a mass meeting of Swedish workingmen to consider the question: Can we Swedish workers in this country do anything to help our struggling brothers in Sweden to gain universal suffrage?

BUY UNION LABEL GOODS.

OHIO CONVENTION.

Extends Fraternal Greetings to Striking Miners—Convention Both Spirited and Harmonious.

In Columbus, Ohio, on Decoration Day, the Socialist Party held its state convention. Forty-nine delegates were present, representing 539 party members. Secretary Critchlow's report showed twenty-nine locals in existence, with 822 members.

A full state ticket was nominated, as reported last week, headed by Max S. Hayes for Secretary of State.

Fred. G. Strickland of Yellow Springs was elected state organizer; Dayton was chosen as headquarters, and W. G. Critchlow as state secretary, with M. J. Hynes, Thos. Fisher, Edw. Gardner, Frank Tryer, and Geo. Webber as Local Quorum. The Secretary will receive a salary of $15 a week.

The following resolution, introduced by Delegate Keogh of Toledo, was adopted with ringing shouts of approval:

"We, the Socialists of Ohio, in convention assembled, send greetings to our fellow wage-earners the striking coal miners of Pennsylvania, and hereby pledge our moral and finacial support in so far as we are able to assist them, and earnestly hope they will carry their struggle to successful termination. We would call their attention to the fact that organized capital can be finally defeated by organized labor only at the ballot-box, and urge upon them the necessity of voting as they strike and elect members of the working class instead of representatives of those whose interests are opposed to them.

On this resolution the Cleveland "Citizen" comments thus: "We have heard of no other political party that has taken a stand on this question and don't expect to. The action taken at Columbus proves once more that the Socialist Party is not a 'friend of labor,' and does not deal in meaningless phrases and cheap gush, but it IS THE labor party of Ohio."

The convention was a spirited and yet a harmonious one. Most of those present actively took sides in all the discussions. One of the most earnest discussions was upon the adaption of the resolution introduced by C. R. Martin for national centralization in party affairs as opposed to state autonomy. On this question the old and experienced comrades, led by Martin and Hayes, were in favor of the resolution, while the newer comrades led by Strickland, were against its adoption. On a narrow margin the opposition succeeded in having the resolution tabled.

The draft of party constitution, as printed in The Worker of May 11, was taken up seriatim, altered, and corrected, and after earnest thought and careful deliberation the convention finally drafted a constitution which will be submitted to the membership for ratification or rejection. It provides, among other things, for a uniform system of dues of twenty-five cents per member per month, five cents of which goes to the National Committee, five cents to the State Committee and the balance to be retained by the locals.

WORK IN PENNSYLVANIA.

As a result of Comrade Collins' visit, Connellsville has a local of the Socialist Party, starting with sixteen members. Many locals have made preparations for meetings to be addressed by Collins and are asking for definite dates. The State Secretary will reply to those requests at the earliest possible moment. Local Spring Forge will issue a challenge in the name of Comrade Collins to debate with any defender of capitalism. Comrade Collins could not reach Austin by reason of train delays on Sundays. He speaks in the Coudersport opera house on June 10, and in the Montgomery opera house June 11.

A very successful county convention was held in Lancaster on June 4. A local will be formed in Maytown as a result. The following ticket was nominated: Congressman, L. L. Bixler, Lancaster; Sheriff, J. W. Johnson, Maytown; Prothonotory, Herman Appler, Lancaster; Registrar, Willis Mellinger, Lancaster; Treasurer, M. P. Wenger, Maytown; Clerk of Quarter Session, W. E. Worrel, Columbia; Coroner, F. B. Emig, Ephrata; Directors of Poor, I. S. Clare and V. Ross Stevens of Lancaster; Prison Inspectors, And. Bowman and E. W. Buchwalter, Rossmere; Auditor, D. K. Hartman, Witmer; Commissioner, Walter Pope, Lancaster; Assembly (northern district), S. A. Urich, Ephrata; A. M. Buchwalter, Rossmere, and E. B. Ebersole, Maytown; Assembly (city district), Herman Hoch, Lancaster; Senator, Harry Bowers, Maytown.

Philadelphia comrades are more active than ever. The very successful six months' lecture course at headquarters will close on Thursday, June 26. Miss Johanna Dahme of New York City will be the speaker that evening. Preparations are being made for open-air meetings. Candidates will be nominated in severa legislative districts.

Comrade Collins will reach the coal fields June 15, and will fill the following dates: June 15 to 17, Scranton; 18 to 20, Carbondale and vicinty; 21, Pittston; and for the following week in Wilkes Barre and vicinity.

Comrade Mailly of Massachusetts is in the strike field; besides distributing literature and holding meetings, he will supply the party press with reliable reports of the situation.

Contributions for agitation in the srtike region have been received as follows: Previously acknowledged, $21; Chas. Ricker, $1; Henry Backroth, $1; Women's Socialist Branch, No. 13, donation, $5; ditto, collection, $4.05; Vanderbilt comrades, $7.15; total, $39.20. Send all contributions to the Treasurer, J. Edelman, 807 West Cambria street, Philadelphia.

J. MAHLON BARNES,
State Secretary.
CAROLINE PEMBERTON,
Assistant Secretary.

—Again we say, don't try to remember all the boycotted goods on the market. Just purchase goods bearing a trade union label; that will do the business.—Brewers' Journal.

TO SUBSCRIBERS.
The date on which your subscription expires will be found on the wrapper.
The paper will be stopped on that day unless previously renewed.
No bills or receipts sent to individual subscribers.

The Worker.

AGENTS, ATTENTION!
Agents sending in subscriptions without remittance must state distinctly how long they are to run.
Agents are personally charged and held responsible for unpaid subscriptions sent in by them.
Only duly elected and approved agents acknowledged.

VOL. XII.—NO. 12. NEW YORK, JUNE 22, 1902. PRICE 2 CENTS.

NEW YORK STATE.

Report of Meeting of State Committee.

John Spargo Nominated for Fraternal Delegate to Canada—Preparations for State Convention on July 4.

Comrade Phillips occupied the chair at Tuesday's meeting of the New York State Committee.

A communication was received from the National Committee, calling for nominations for Fraternal Delegate to the convention of the Socialist Party of Canada. As nominations are to be in by July 1 and locals would not have time to make returns, the Committee decided to make the nomination for the state. John Spargo was nominated. The reason for his nomination is that he recently made an agitation tour through Canada and will be of great service to our comrades of Canada in clearing the Socialist movement in accord with the international Socialist movement.

Reports from the Field.

Reports were received showing that Comrade Vail had held successful agitation meetings in Schenectady, Catskill, Troy, and Newburgh. Comrade E. P. Jennings reported a good discussion meeting in Union Sprin[illegible]. Local Johnston reported the election of officers. Reports showing activity were also received from Locals Catskill, New Rochelle, Peekskill and Watertown. Highland Falls and Central Park, L. I., are preparing to organize.

Preparations for Convention.

Comrades Slobodin and Spring were elected to prepare the report of the State Committee to the Convention on July 4.

Organizer Spring made a report on the condition of locals throughout the state.

Julius Gerber, Organizer of Local New York, reported, that in accordance with instructions of the State Committee, he had sent out the call for State Convention, instructions for primaries, primary notice blanks, and credential blanks.

It was decided to hold a special meeting on Tuesday, June 24, and every member of the State Committee should be present.

Every local in the state should make a special effort to be represented by at least one delegate in the convention, as steps are to be taken to put the state organization in the best working condition for the campaign.

Work of Vail and Spring.

Comrade Vail's dates for the coming week are as follows: June 18, Watertown; June 19, Dexter; 20, Corning; 21, Hornellsville; 22 to 24, Buffalo. The comrades in Watertown are just in the mood to work enthusiastically to make his meeting a success. The lew local at Dexter, which State Organizer Spring started on the path last month, will be able greatly to strengthen its position by the aid of Vail's clear exposition of Socialist principles and policy. And at Buffalo, where the clergy are already regretting their ill-advised attack on Socialism, which served only to draw increased attention to it, he will undoubtedly have an opportunity to do good work. It is hoped that Attorney Thayer, who dodged Spring after accepting his challenge to debate, will give Vail a chance to make things clear to him.

Organizer Spring is now at work in Westchester County. Last Thursday he addressed a business meeting of Local Yonkers, and on Friday a good street meeting was held. On Saturday he spoke on the street in Tarrytown and found several good men willing to form a local of the party. Spring will visit Tarrytown again on Thursday, June 19, and will probably effect organization. On Sunday afternoon he spoke to a large meeting of the striking hatters in the park at Yonkers, accompanied by Comrades Bauerberg and Barondess. All were well received.

COUNTY CONVENTION.

A convention of the Social Democratic Party of the County of New York to elect delegates to the State Convention of the Social Democratic Party of the State of New York, and to nominate candidates for the general election, will be held on Saturday, June 28, 7 p. m., at the Labor Lyceum, 64 E. Fourth street, in the city and county of New York.

By order of the General Committee of the Social Democratic Party of New York.

J. GERBER, Secretary.

PRIMARIES IN NEW YORK COUNTY.

Primaries of the Social Democratic Party of New York County, to elect delegates to the County, Congressional, Senatorial, and Assembly District Conventions, will be held on Saturday, June 21, from 7 p. m. to 9:30 p. m., at the following places:

BOROUGH OF MANHATTAN.

Second A. D., at 184 William street, office of the "New Yorker Volkszeitung."

Third A. D., at 126 Varick street, residence of Comrade Lowstrand.

Fourth A. D., at the club rooms of the Socialist Literary Society, 241 E. Broadway.

Fifth A. D., at 249 W. Eleventh street, residence of Comrade Mayes.

Sixth A. D., at the Labor Lyceum, 64 E. Fourth street.

Seventh A. D., 330 W. Eighteenth street, residence of Comrade Lemon.

Eighth A. D., at 118 Division street, residence of Comrade Lane.

Ninth A. D., at 508 W. Twenty-sixth street, residence of Comrade Wecklein.

Tenth A. D., at 170 E. Fourth street, residence of Comrade Riegel.

Eleventh A. D., at 436 W. Thirty-eighth street, Meyer's Hall.

Twelfth A. D., at Great Central Palace, 90-96 Chrystie street.

Thirteenth A. D., at the West Side Labor Lyceum, 342 W. Forty-second street.

Fourteenth A. D., 238 E. Tenth street.

Fifteenth A. D., at 408 W. Fiftieth street.

Sixteenth A. D., at 817 E. Fifth street, residence of Comrade Panzer.

Seventeenth A. D., at 550 W. Fifty-first street, residence of comrade Fi[illegible]ass.

Eighteenth A. D., at 421 First avenue, hall.

Nineteenth A. D., at 125 Amsterdam avenue, hall.

Twentieth A. D., at 300 E. Twenty-sixth street, hall.

Twenty-first A. D., at 944 Columbus avenue, stationery store.

Twenty-second A. D., at 216 E. Forty-first street, hall.

Twenty-third A. D., at Beckman's Hall, N. E. corner of One Hundred and Forty-second street and Eighth avenue.

Twenty-fourth A. D., at 215 E. Fifty-ninth street, club room of the Socialist Educational League.

Twenty-fifth A. D., at 136 E. Twenty-fourth street, tailoring store.

Twenty-sixth A. D., at Preininger's Hall, 1432 Second avenue.

Twenty-seventh A. D., at 260 West Forty-first street, residence of Comrade Hoerdtner.

Twenty-eighth A. D., at 1497 Avenue A.

Twenty-ninth A. D., at 904 Eighth avenue, residence of Comrade Tauffer.

Thirtieth A. D., at the club-house, 206 E. Eighty-sixth street.

Thirty-first A. D., at 80 E. One Hundred and Sixteenth street, residence of Frank Hill.

Thirty-second A. D., at 1708 Lexington avenue, office of Dr. Rubinow.

Thirty-third A. D., at 121 E. One Hundred and Twelfth street, office of Dr. Ingerman.

BOROUGH OF BRONX.

Thirty-fourth A. D., at 380 Willis avenue, cigar store.

Thirty-fifth A. D., at 3309 Third avenue, club-house.

Annexed Districts, at Helde's Hotel, Tenth street and White Plains avenue, Williamsbridge.

By order of the General Committee of the Social Democratic Party of New York County.

J. GERBER, Secretary.

KINGS COUNTY PRIMARIES.

Comrades of the Social Democratic Party in Kings County are, by action of their County Committee, called to meet in their assembly district branches Saturday, June 21, before 9 p. m. at the following places respectively:

1st, 2d, and 3d A. D. Branch, at 121 Schermerhorn street.

5th A. D. Branch, at 119 Harrison avenue, residence of Comrade Joseph Dooley.

6th A. D. Branch, at 30 Sumner avenue.

12th A. D. Branch, at Concordia Hall, Prospect avenue, between Sixth and Seventh avenue.

13th A. D. Branch, at Eckford Hall, Eckford and Colyer streets.

14th A. D. Branch, at 110 Huron street, residence of Comrade Joseph Bell Clayton.

15th A. D. Branch, at 187 Montrose avenue.

16th A. D. Branch, at the Socialist Club, 9 McDougal street.

17th A. D. Branch, at 540 Hancock street.

18th A. D. Branch, at 1658 Dean street.

19th A. D. Branch, at the Labor Lyceum 955 Willoughby avenue.

20th A. D., Branches 1 and 2, at Koch's Hall, 257 Hamburg avenue.

21st A. D., Branches 1, 2, and 3, at Keystone Garden, 400 Glenmore avenue.

They are instructed to elect at these meetings delegates to a county convention called to meet on June 28 at the Socialist Club, near Fulton street and Ralph avenue, to choose the representatives for Local Kings County in the state convention, July 4th, in New York City.

WARREN ATKINSON,
Organizer.

NOTICE.

Subdivision of Local New York are called upon to elect delegates to the General Committee for the term beginning Saturday, July 12.

Financial Secretaries of subdivisions are called upon to send in their membership reports at once.

J. GERBER, Organizer.

CALL FOR NOMINATIONS.

To the State Committees and Comrades of the Socialist Party: Pursuant to an invitation extended through G. Weston Wrigley, Provincial Secretary, the National Committee of the Socialist Party at its meeting in St. Louis, Mo., decided to send a fraternal delegate to represent the Socialist Party at the Canadian Socialist convention to be held in Toronto between September 1 and 13 (approximately), 1902.

In accordance with the decision of the National Committee I hereby call upon all the locals of the party in the United States to make nominations for such fraternal delegate. Nominations close July 1. Returns should be made in organized states to the secretary of the State Executive Committee. In all other states returns should be made direct to the National Secretary.

LEON GREENBAUM,
National Secretary.

FOR THE DAILY.

Report of Progress in Gathering Funds.

Organization Committee at Work — Comrades Volunteering to Assist — More Helpers Needed.

The Organization Committee of the Workingmen's Co-operative Publishing Association met last Monday evening at the Labor Lyceum for the purpose of organizing committees to visit the trade unions of New York, explain to them the plans for the Socialist Daily, and ask their co-operation to the extent of sending delegates to a conference to be held at the Labor Lyceum on Thursday, July 24.

Eighteen comrades volunteered to engage in this work and will be advised by Secretary Butscher as to the bodies they are to visit. Any other comrades who can give a little time to the work, even one night a week, are requested to inform Comrade Butscher.

Amounts Pledged.

Following is a statement of amounts pledged for the Socialist Daily Fund up to June 16:

Previously acknowledged ...	$5,983.00
Jos. Barondess, City ...	10.00
John Szarko, Tuscan, Ariz...	25.00
A. F. Simmonds, Peekskill, N.Y.	10.00
Soshinsky, Newark, N. J.	5.00
D. Micholowski, City	6.00
Max Diamond, City	5.00
Carl Steinke, Norwich, Conn...	3.00
Chas. Schuefel, Newark, N. J.	6.00
Otto Schuefel, Newark, N. J...	5.00
Fritz Von den Steinen, Newark	5.00
Rich Vonden Steinen, Newark.	5.00
Wm. Hilt, Newark	5.00
Emil Zimmermann, Newark ..	5.00
Carl Schneider, Brooklyn	15.00
Total	$6,095.00

Cash Receipts.

The following amounts have been received on pledges and donations:

PAID ON PLEDGES.

John F. Handlon, City	$3.00
E. M. Meltzer, City	1.00
D. Micholowski, City	.50
Soshinsky, Newark, N. J.	1.00
Max Diamond, City.....	.50
Dr. Girsdanski, City	3.00
E. Spranger, City	2.00
W. Brayer, City	.50
W. C. Burgwald, City	.25
M. Guenther, City	1.00
Carl Steinke, Norwich, Conn...	1.00
Carl Classen, City	2.00
H. D., City	1.00
W. Butscher, Brooklyn	1.00
Ph. Lane, City	2.00
Emil Zimmermann, Newark...	1.00
Wm. Hilf, Newark	1.00
Chas. Schuefel, Newark	.50
Edw. Rau, Newark	1.00
Fred. McIntosh, Newark	1.00
Andrew Moeller, Newark	1.00
Timothy Ivers, Graniteville, Vt.	1.00
Carl Schneider, Brooklyn	2.00
J. C. Brann, City	1.00

CASH CONTRIBUTIONS.

Herman Langer, Roxbury, Mass.	$2.00
L. Roemer, Newburgh, N. Y.....	1.00
C. Peterson, Newburgh, N. Y...	1.00
O. Pfleger, Newburgh, N. Y.....	.25
John Feurstein, Newburgh, N.Y.	.25
J. Steffe, Newburgh, N. Y.	.25
Samuel Foster, Newburgh, N. Y.	.25
Dr. H., Bayonne, N. J.	10.00
Aug. Stehr, Granite Falls, Wash.	.50
Wm. Menzel, Granite Falls, Wash.	.50
Hy. Menzel, Granite Falls, Wash.	1.00
Gust. Messerschmidt, Granite Falls, Wash.	1.00
Joe Blankley, Granite Falls, Wash.	1.00
Chas. Fyl, Granite Falls, Wash.	1.00
Geo. Mengel, Granite Falls, Wash.	5.00
Geo. Burkhardt, Detroit, Mich...	2.00

Total for week: On pledges, $29.25; contributions, $27 .. $56.25
Previously acknowledged 1,611.98

$1,668.23

District Organization.

The district managers are as follows:

4th A. D.—Dr. J. Halpern, 250 East Broadway.

6th and 10th.—Henry L. Slobodin, 60 Second avenue.

11th.—Geo. Brown, 423 West Thirty-eighth street.

12th.—Wm. Halpern, 492 Grand street.

13th.—Hugo Pick, 326 W. Thirty-eighth street.

15th and 17th.—Wm. Meyer, 408 W. Fiftieth street.

18th and 20th.—J. N. Wood, 321 E. Sixteenth street.

19th.—M. L. Klauber, 132 W. Sixty-sixth street.

21st.—E. M. Martin, 887 Columbus avenue.

22d.—A. Mayell, 220 E. Fifty-second street.

23d.—E. P. Clark, 501 W. One Hundred and Sixty-fourth street.

24th.—Siskind Goldbarth, 311 E. Fifty-fourth street.

Yorkville Agitation District.—H. C. Bowerman, 510 E. Eighty-first street.

34th and 35th.—A. Halpern, 670 E. One Hundred and Seventy-first street.

Newark and Vicinity.—D. Rubinow, 65 Sherman avenue, Newark.

Hudson County, N. J.—For Jersey City, F. Krafft; for North Hudson County, Ferd. Ufert.

Notice to Contributors.

Pledges should be drawn and checks and money orders made payable to the Workingmen's Co-operative Publishing Association. All communications should be addressed to the newly elected Agent of the Association, Wm. Butscher, Labor Lyceum, 64 E. Fourth street, New York.

The Worker will contain, each week, a list of contributions received up to Monday preceding the date of issue.

If any contribution sent is not promptly acknowledged the sender should at once inform Comrade Butscher, that the matter may be investigated and set right.

Those who have made pledges should remember to send in the monthly instalments promptly, saving the trouble and expense of notifying them. Let each one feel his personal responsibility for the work we have undertaken and his power to hasten the coming of the Socialist Daily.

THE STRIKE OF YONKERS HATTERS.

Eleven Hundred Men Listen Gladly to Socialist Speakers—National Union Neglecting its Duty.

YONKERS, N. Y., June 16.—The strike of the eleven hundred men at Waring's hat works is still continued and the strikers are gaining ground, principally in becoming more conscious of the fact of the struggle between the working class and the capitalist class, our comrades not sparing any efforts to enlighten the strikers on the subject and to show them the real meaning of the strike.

Although no work is being done at Waring's at present, the shop is kept running and boxes, supposed to contain hats, are constantly carried out of the shop, in order to show to the strikers that the work is being continued and that they may as well give it up. The merry winds, though, last week exposed the game, by rolling a box off the wagon; the lid came off and showed the box to be empty.

The efforts of the police to provoke the strikers to a semblance of a riot have so far failed and the men are holding out in fine shape and are getting ready for a long struggle.

Meetings are being held daily, where the situation is explained to the men and various counsel and advice given. Comrade Bauerberg addressed about six hundred strikers on Friday last, when he told them that their present strike is only a little local skirmish, a part of the general war all over the world, where the army of the proletariat is battling against the forces of Capital. He advised them not to forget that the principal battle takes place on Election Day, and if they want to win their strikes and be men of thought and not beasts of burden, they should vote for their own party and not for the Republican or Democratic hirelings of Capital. All references to political action on independent labor lines were heartily applauded, and the general impression is that the Socialists are right and that they are the only friends of the strikers.

On Sunday Comrade Spring, State Organized of the S. D. P., was present at the meeting of the strikers. After Comrade Joseph Barondess had addressed the strikers on purely economic matters, and in a very clear and forcible way explained them the situation an dadvised to hold out in order to win. Comrades Spring and Bauerberg spoke to the men. Comrade Spring, who a night before addressed an open-air meeting near the strikers' headquarters, was enthusiastically received, listened to with remarkable attention and warmly applauded. Good results are expected from this agitation.

Meanwhile, Mr. Waring, the owner of the factory, who intended to spend his workingmen's money at the coronation, has hastily returned to Yonkers. Royal honors are apparently secondary in importance to money-getting, and Mr. Waring thought he could break the strike better than his hirelings. He came back, endorsed the acts of his superintendent, and is ready to buy any one who wants to sell himself.

The most deplorable thing in the situation is the fact that while the strike is on for the recognition of the label and the union, the strikers are not yet unionized. The officers of the United Hatters of North America give all kinds of flimsy excuses for not helping the strikers and with the sympathy of organized Labor on the side of the strikers, there threatens to develop an enormous scandal that will probably result in much trouble for the over-conservative president of the Hatters, M. Morrill. This gentleman, while not having enough backbone to tell the strikers that he does not care to unionize them and take them into the national organization, has first promised to come, then refused to come, and finally disappeared entirely, leaving the strike leaders unable to give a decent explanation to the rank and file of the reasons of Mr. Moffat's queer actions. If this strike is lost the blame should be placed directly on the shoulders of the officers of the United Hatters, for the local strikers are ready to hold out indefinitely if they are unionized. If not, their next best move would be the formation of an independent hatters' union with a label of their own. They do not care to take this step, but Mr. Moffat is forcing them on one side and Mr. Waring is fighting them on the other, and they are compelled to help themselves. The general public is in sympathy with the strikers and great credit should be given the president of the strikers' organization and the other officers for the able way in which they are handling the raw recruits of Labor in this difficult time. P. J. B.

KRELL PIANOS STILL BOYCOTTED.

The official organ of the Piano and Organ Workers' International Union denies the widely published statement that the boycott on the Krell Piano Company of Cincinnati has been lifted. The boycott is still on, affecting the Krell, Royal, and Studio pianos, and should be observed everywhere, as the Krell Company has paid no attention to the employees' demands.

BUY UNION-LABEL BREAD.

WESTERN UNIONS.

President McDonald Re-Elected in A. L. U.

President Boyce of the W. F. of M. Declines Re-Election—Choice of Officers Confirms Progressive Resolutions—Debs Says Only Danger Is in Too Rapid Growth.

The "Colorado Chronicle," a labor paper, published in Denver, in summing up the results of the convention of the Western Federation of Miners and the Western (now American) Labor Union, says:

"After a session lasting almost two weeks, the convention of the Western Labor Union adjourned last Saturday afternoon. We give the proceedings in full up to the closing session. The convention was a busy one, and many advance steps were taken.

No Dual Organization.

"Perhaps the most important step forward is a change in the name of the organization. Hereafter it will be known as the American Labor Union. This removes the sectional feature and will aid in the work of organization in all parts of the country. President McDonald says that the work of organizing the unorganized laborers will be pushed with all the more vigor, but that under no circumstances will dual organization be encouraged or countenanced. The American Labor Union will aid in every possible way organizations already in existence.

"The convention committed the unions affiliated to an active advocacy of Socialism in addition to the promulgation of the distinct trade union idea. It is hoped that this will prove to be a clear method of using the immense power of the labor organizations with wisdom, allowing them to fully utilize their great strength in the political field.

To Organize Farmers.

"The new executive board is authorized to look after organization among the farmers along the line of economics. The aim will be to bring this numerous class of laborers in harmony with the views of the trade unionists. To this end such adherents will be assessed just half the regular per capita tax, namely, five cents a month."

Debs' Comment.

Comrade Debs, who took an active interest in the work of the convention and was greeted with the greatest enthusiasm by the assembled workingmen at Denver, writes to the "Social Democratic Herald" of Milwaukee, under date of June 6:

"The conventions will close to-day or to-morrow and their work will be complete and glorious. The old politicians and their henchmen who did all in their power to defeat political action on the part of organized labor are stampeded and thoroughly alarmed. You would be surprised could you realize what a tremendous change has taken place during the past few days. In this city of 200,000 the one pervading theme, go where you may, is Socialism. The red buttons of our party are in the churches, the stores, the restaurants, and everywhere; stranger meets stranger as comrade, and all are happy over the inspiring outlook. The one danger that must be guarded against is too rapid growth. There may be trouble from this source, but I am confident that we have a sufficient number of comrades scattered over the state who are well grounded to keep the ship true to her course and guide her safely to her destined port."

Boyce Retires.

Edward Boyce, who has held the office of President of the W. F. of M. through the days of its early struggle and to whose ability and devotion those who are familiar with its history agree in ascribing a large share of the credit for its growth, declined re-election, on the ground that he needs a period of rest after ten years of hard work in the organization. The justice of his request to be excused was recognized, although he would have been the first choice of the convention, and Charles H. Mayer of Deadwood, S. D., was elected in his place. Edward Hughes of Butte, Mont., was chosen as Vice-President and Wm. H. Haywood was unanimously re-elected as Secretary-Treasurer.

McDonald Re-Elected.

In the A. L. U. convention Daniel McDonald was re-elected as President, with D. F. O'Shea of Cripple Creek, Colo., as Vice-President, while Clarence Smith was unanimously re-elected as Secretary-Treasurer. The headquarters were placed at Butte.

The choice of officers in both organizations confirms the position taken in the resolutions previously reported, and there is every reason to expect that their policy will be both progressive and aggressive.

UNITED BROTHERHOOD OF RAILWAY EMPLOYEES.

The "Railway Employees' Journal," the organ of the United Brotherhood of Railway Employees, published at San Francisco, advocates Socialism in every issue. The Brotherhood is growing rapidly. The "Journal" says that at the present rate the organization will have a million members in 1905—which is nearly the number of men now employed on the railways of the country. Thus far, the principal strength of the new Brotherhood is west of the Mississippi, although it has some locals in the East.

—If you get this paper without having ordered it, you may know that some friend has had it sent to you. Read it and pass it on.

TRUST RULE IN WEST VIRGINIA.

Court Helps Morgan to Crush Coal Strike.

Judge, Interpreter, Stenographer, and Witnesses, All Tools of the Soft Coal Trust.—A Travesty of Justice.

(Special Correspondence to The Worker.)

FAIRMONT, W. Va., June 12.—If anyone wishes to see to what an extent a gigantic trust can control the courts and apply their own laws, he need look no farther than Fairmont, the town from which Morgan's soft coal trust takes its name. Practically every mine in this district is owned by the Fairmont Coal Company, under the control of J. P. Morgan & Co.

Condition of the Miners.

It is a well known fact that the miners of this district are the worst oppressed and the least organized in the United States, and it is the attempt of the officers of the United Mine Workers to organize them that has brought down upon them the wrath of the combined millions of Wall Street.

The impression given out by the Trust that the men are an uncontrollable and vicious class is as false as their manufactured testimony in the trials now being held here, in which they are trying to convict seven officials of the U. M. W. of A. of violating an injunction which was secured by means of hoodwinking a court undoubtedly partial if not in actual sympathy with the Trust.

Thomas Haggerty, a national organizer of the United Mine Workers, with six assistants, came into this district about six weeks ago to more effectually organize the miners, and it is safe to say that his steps have been dogged by the Coal Trust's detectives every minute since he came. At every meeting he spoke, disguised detective stenographers have taken down his words, gaining admission by the false pretense that their reports were to be given to the Allied Trades Union.

The crime for which he is being tried, and for which he and his assistants have been deprived of their liberty, is the violation of a most infamous injunction. The men were practically enjoined from doing anything except eat and drink—and God knows they will do little of that; for, between the scant wages, the company store, and the company shanty, it is a constant nightmare to keep the wolf from the door.

No Rioting or Intimidation.

When the strike order was issued on June 7, all the union miners came out. They were promptly warned not to trespass on the Company's ground. At the mining hamlet of Monongah the men rented and paid for a building to stay in and, in fact, called it a "home." Here they congregated to talk over their affairs and listen to speeches and induced such of their friends as they could get to come to the meetings; they held several parades; but at no time did they trespass on anyone's land, simply using the public roads. The testimony of Sheriff Joliffe is that he never saw or heard anything like intimidation of other miners nor any riotous conduct, nor did he hear any threats against other miners or against the Company's property.

An Outrageous Injunction.

In the face of all this an injunction was secured. Some imported men who would stoop to anything for a dollar were hired to swear that they were afraid to go to work while the strikers were holding meetings. Then all was easy. An injunction was issued, FORBIDDING THE STRIKERS TO MARCH ON THE PUBLIC ROADS OR TO CONGREGATE WITHIN SIGHT OF THE COMPANY'S PROPERTY. Thus is "conspiracy" defined in West Virginia!

Trust Owns the Court.

The case is being tried before a justice who is a brother-in-law to Mr. Watson, millionaire coal magnate and head official of the Fairmont Coal Company, and his rulings are apparently all in favor of the Trust. The strikers' lawyers are C. B. Johnson of Clarksburg and A. G. Fickeisen of Wheeling, both able young men, who are making a strong case under the circumstances.

The witnesses are all Italians in the pay of the Fairmont Coal Company, and give their evidence through an interpreter who, by his own oath, is paid detective of the Company. The court stenographer was a stenographer-detective for the Trust. Thus the miners' chances of winning are about as remote as those of a man with one chance to win the capital prize in a lottery. The whole proceeding is a farce, a travesy of justice, and its sole purpose is to dispose of the organizers for the time and leave the men without a leader.

While Morgan is hobnobbing with King Edward, the West Virginia miners who create wealth for him are struggling against starvation. From the London dispatches I note that the Americans at Ambassador Choate's dinner were very attentive while the band played "God Save the King." No doubt, Morgan was wondering why someone in this country doesn't play "God Save the Country."

MINER.

—It does not establish the fact of a man's honesty to prove that he only steals or robs a little or a part of the time, or to show that his victims still have something left, or that his stealing or robbing actually benefits a lot of people.—Wm. T. Brown.

IN THE COAL STRIKE FIELD.

William Mailly Writes on Conditions Prevailing in the Anthracite Region.

A Well Conducted Strike—Miners' Confidence in Mitchell—Class Lines Sharply Drawn—Life of the Coal Miners.

(Special Correspondence to The Worker.)

WILKES BARRE, June 15.—Whatever doubt existed in this region as to the early settlement of the miners' strike was almost wholly dispelled during the past few days, and the sixth week begins with every probability of an existence of the struggle for at least several weeks longer. The publication by the mine owners, in connection with the investigation by Carroll D. Wright, of the correspondence between themselves and the miners' officials leading up to the strike, brought final conviction that this was to be really a fight to a finish.

Perhaps it is well that this be the case. Sooner or later the fight would have to come, for the miners were never more determined to adjust the grievances and remove the conditions that have borne heavily upon them for many years. The victory of 1900 gave them a foretaste of what they might have with thorough organization, and they have been preparing to enforce more demands ever since that time.

On the other hand, the mine owners have also been preparing. They may have yielded to the miners under the stress of political exigencies two years ago, but, if they did, they have probably regretted it ever since; for the result has been an almost perfect organization of the miners throughout the whole region, and with that has come a limiting of the exactions practised upon them and a hindrance to the previously unbridled exploitation of the mine workers of all kinds. The union is an incubus which retards robbery and fetters fleecing. The refusal to meet the miners' union and to arbitrate was all in the line of a supreme effort to be made to shake off this incubus, destroy the miners' union and return to the conditions existing for twenty years prior to 1900.

What will be the outcome of the struggle is, of course, problematical. At present the operators are making no efforts to run the mines, other than an attempt at keeping out water and preventing gas from accumulating. They are having a hard time doing this even, and they will suffer greatly financially; for in addition to the damage done to the mines, must also be reckoned that inflicted upon the machinery by the incompetent men brought from the outside. For instance, I am told that a valuable aircompressor, at the Cunyngham mine near here, has been nearly ruined since the strike began.

It is doubtful if the operators expected the miners to act so unanimously as they have. The strike is in splendid shape. Not only are the miners out solidly, but the engineers, firemen, and pumpmen have quit to an extent beyond all expectation. There never was a more wholesale tie-up. To make matters more interesting, fire-bosses have been quitting at various places during the week, and it is hoped that all of them that can be reached will be out within the next few days. This is what has made the keeping of the mines clear of water and gas so difficult. The imported men are both incompetent and ignorant. They are working night and day and many have collapsed under the strain. It is safe to say that while the Coal Trust may increase profits by adding to the price of coal, much of these profits will have to go toward repairing mine property damaged through the strike.

Confidence in Mitchell.

How much of the solidarity displayed by the men is due to a conscious desire to remove the conditions oppressing them and how much to a feeling of loyalty to President John Mitchell is an interesting question. Mr. Mitchell is the hero of the anthracite region. The confidence in him is unbounded and extends among the workers of all trades. They believe in his honesty and have faith in his judgment. In my association with the miners and other working people, since arriving here, I have not heard a single word that could be construed as reflecting upon Mitchell's character or intentions. This accounts in a great measure for the present situation, but it also makes Mitchell's responsibility a heavy one. That he realizes this I am full sure. He is passing through a critical period in his career. The close of the strike, while meaning much to the strikers, will also mean a great deal to their president.

So far as can be seen, Mitchell has conducted himself admirably. He has shown caution and foresight, and he has the faculty of "knowing when to keep his mouth shut" developed to a remarkable degree. Perhaps this is one of the secrets of his success, for the leader who talks little has less to take back. One remark of his, disclosed in the correspondence already alluded to, which quotes him as suggesting that the mine-owners advance the price of coal 10 cents a ton to the public so as to admit an advance to the miners, has been misconstrued, purposely, of course. What he did say was that he felt sure the public would be willing to pay 10 cents a ton extra if they felt sure the miners would get it.

But while confidence in or admiration for President Mitchell has had a great deal to do with the unanimous stoppage of work, yet the feeling of revolt against conditions existing before the strike is also strong and widespread. This feeling has been smoldering for years, and had its first outlet two years ago. It has reached its fullest expression in the present strike—that is, so far as the miners have learned to express revolt. All that was required was organization, directed by men in whom the miners had confidence, to crystallize this feeling into concrete force and bring about a condition which finds the working class of the anthracite region arrayed in solid phalanx against their enemies.

Class Lines Clearly Drawn.

The class lines are drawn in this fight with a vengeance. The strikers admit of no equivocation or hesitation in a person showing on which side he or she stands. It is a case of being either for or against, and the merchant, politician, hotelkeeper or what else that hesitates or shows courtesy or shelter to the enemy or its satellites suffers for it. This feeling extends even among families, and civil war never stirred up more bitter strife between relatives than this strike has. The fight is carried into local school boards and the schools themselves, as in one instance, where the children of strikers refused to be taught by the sister of a scab, and quit in a body. All this is incomprehensible to the business man who has to toe the mark, or the mine owner who finds his power and influence weakened through it.

The latter, especially, while inviting war, such as this surely is, refuses to abide by the rules of war. He assumes the right to import the city degenerates, to arm them and allow them to intimidate the strikers, to provoke outbreaks of violence, to shoot and kill, as was done to the little McCann boy at Ashley, to bribe workmen to betray their class, and use the press of the country to falsify and prejudice the miners' cause, but when the miner carries the war into Africa and retaliates in kind, his conduct is denounced as "fiendish" and "un-American."

With all this, however, it is astonishing how quiet these 150,000 idle men are. True there have been demonstrations against scabs at several places, but no more than might occur on a holiday. There will be far worse on the Fourth of July in every city in the country. These demonstrations have been denounced and discouraged by the union in many localities. There appears to be no desire to injure anyone. The miners are content to fight the battle out along the present lines. They have not allowed themselves to be provoked into outbreaks, such as the mine owners really desire and try to bring about. The discipline is good, and if maintained, should do more than anything else to bring victory.

But there is the question of food to be reckoned with. So far this has not troubled the union much. Yes, notwithstanding the low wages received, the miners have gotten along very well. This is due to the preparations made for some time past, and there have been few complaints heard and no appeals made for support. Those of the strikers who have nothing have been able to get credit at the stores. The uncompromising position of the men has prevented merchants, who might feel inclined to refuse credit to old customers, from doing so. They know that the strike cannot last forever, and, win or lose, they will be remembered. Of course, if the strike continues much longer, help will be needed and it should be forthcoming. No workingman, or sympathizer with the working class, would hesitate to give help were it possible for them to see and hear with their own eyes and ears the conditions under which the miners work and live.

In writing of these conditions I know it will be hard to be conservative enough to save myself from the accusation of exaggeration. But it would be harder still to succeed in telling the whole truth and feel the subject has received full justice.

The encircling hills make the Wyoming Valley a natural amphitheater, where, at this season of the year, everything is lovely except where man has left his handiwork to mar the scene. For let the eye turn where it will huge coal breakers, hugged close by grim culm piles, rise up to blot the landscape and remind you that here King Profit reigns. It is the abundance of natural beauty blooming everywhere in the valley that makes the conditions under which the human beings live here more revolting to contemplate.

The Miners' Homes.

There is a marked difference between the clean, well preserved towns of New England and the mining towns of Pennsylvania. Here the streets are poorly tended and the houses dirty looking and seldom painted, though this is by no means a criterion of the interior. Glimpses through open doors invariably show cleanliness and attention. The inmates are apparently making the best of what's within their reach. Here and there are gardens, with rose bushes climbing round the porches, but the fences are decrepit and needing repair. The best looking houses are those owned by the workers and tended by themselves. There is no inducement for them to repair property for which the owner extracts exorbitant rent and yet cannot see his way clear to keep in good condition.

The rented houses are constructed of plain boards, many are without plaster and the inmates have to paper the interiors themselves, in many cases. Four to six rooms make up the

(Continued on page 4.)

The Worker.

AN ORGAN OF THE SOCIALIST PARTY

(Known in New York State as the Social Democratic Party.)

PUBLISHED WEEKLY

AT 184 WILLIAM STREET, NEW YORK,

By the Socialistic Co-operative Publishing Association.

P. O. BOX 1512.

Telephone Call: 302 John.

TERMS TO SUBSCRIBERS.

Invariably in advance.

One year	50c.
Six months	25c.
Single copies	2c.

Bundle rates:

Less than 100 copies, per copy	1c.
100 copies	75c.
200 copies	$1.20
500 copies or more, per hundred	50c.

Weekly Bundles:

5 per week, one year	$1.75
10 per week, one year	3.50
25 per week, one year	7.50
50 per week, one year	12.50

Address all business communications, and make money orders, checks and drafts payable to The Worker.

Receipts are never sent to individual subscribers. Acknowledgment is made by changing the number on the wrapper, the week following receipt of money.

Communications concerning the editorial department of the paper should be addressed to the Editor.

All communications should be written with ink and on one side of the paper; words should not be abbreviated; every letter should bear the writer's name and address; and matter should be put in as few words as possible, consistently with clearness. Communications which do not comply with these requirements are likely to be disregarded.

Entered as second-class matter at the New York, N. Y., Post Office on April 6, 1891.

UNION PRINTER

SOCIALIST VOTE IN THE UNITED STATES.

In 1888 (Presidential)	2,068
In 1890	13,331
In 1892 (Presidential)	21,157
In 1894	33,133
In 1896 (Presidential)	36,564
In 1898:
S. L. P.	82,204
S. D. P.	9,545
In 1900 (Presidential):
S. D. P.	96,918
S. L. P.	33,450

THE PARTY'S EMBLEM.

Comrades in New York should take note of the party picnic to be held on June 29 at Sulzer's Park and should sell as many tickets as possible. We shall soon need money for the campaign. A word to the wise is said to be sufficient. Show your wisdom.

No local in the state of New York should fail to have at least one delegate at the state convention on July 4. It is important that the convention should be truly representative of the will of the party in the whole state. More than that, the delegates from new and weak locals, personally meeting those from the stronger organizations and deliberating with them, will come back full of new ideas for carrying on the work and will bind the whole party more closely and harmoniously together. Let every local be represented.

"REFORMING" THE SENATE.

There is a movement on foot for popular election of United States Senators. It has been on foot for a good many years. It will probably continue so for a good many more.

A great deal of quite unfounded enthusiasm is being worked up in some quarters over this proposition. It is a part of the business of the capitalist politicians to work up factitious enthusiasm over political reforms which will take a long time and use up a great deal of energy in carrying them through and which, when carried, will not amount to much, as a means of distracting the people's attention from the great economic revolution which could be carried through just as easily and which, when carried, will solve all the problems that these political reforms do not touch.

Certainly the present constitution of the United States Senate is very absurd. It is absurd that the Senators should be elected by the legislatures of the various states instead of being elected by the people direct. It is also absurd that little Nevada or Delaware should have equal representation with such populous states as New York, Pennsylvania, Illinois, and Ohio. The United States Senate is almost as absurd in its constitution as the British House of Lords; and it is much more dispowerful, for good or evil—mostly for evil—than that antiquated body. It would be a very sensible course to make the representation of the states in the Senate proportional to their population, as it is in the House of Representatives, and to provide for election of Senators by popular vote. It would be still more sensible to abolish the Senate altogether.

But after all, if it is merely a question of reforming or abolishing the Senate, it is a very small question and will not make much difference, one way or another.

A contemporary—one of those papers which are very loud and "radical" on everything except the real living question of the day—says:

"It is time for the people to take back to themselves the election of the Senate. While the trusts control senators, they control the country. Such a condition of affairs must become very serious for the nation, and ultimately very serious for the trusts. They would be better off if they would submit now to gentle curbing and control. Thus they might for a long time evade absolute suppression and confiscation.

"The people of this country will not permit any collection of corporate pocketbooks to rule through the senate, and Mr. Vest and others interested might as well make up their minds to that fact."

Anyone who follows the Washington dispatches knows that the House of Representatives is just as completely under the control of the trusts as is the Senate. Sometimes the Senate serves as a convenient shield for the rascality of the House, as when the House gains credit by passing labor bills and then sends them to the Senate to be strangled.

But that is all. There is no essential difference between the two bodies. The same set—or the same two sets, Republicans and Democrats—of capitalist politicians, tools of the trusts, control both branches of Congress. If we "reform" the Senate, it will be as good as the House—no better; and that means that it will be good for nothing, so far as the working class is concerned, until the working class begins to elect its own men on its own platforms, to make the laws.

Socialists will not waste any time on such petty reforms as direct election of Senators. We are after the whole thing. We advise the working class to elect their own men to the House of Representatives next fall. We advise them to elect their own men to the legislatures of the various states at the same time, and so to ensure the election of working class Senators, too. We can do all this just as easily as we would "reform" the Senate. And by doing it we will accomplish something in fact, not only in name, as in the case of Senatorial reform.

AN INSTRUCTIVE CONTRAST.

The workingmen of this country may well institute a careful comparison between two opposed policies as exhibited in the news reports of the last five months: The record made by the American Federation of Labor's Legislative Committee at the National Capitol, as told in the organ of the Federation; and the record made by the two Socialist members in the Massachusetts Legislature, as reported in The Worker from week to week.

The former is a record of disheartening failure, in spite of the Federation's membership of more than a million, in spite of its full treasury, in spite of the exalted society in which its officers move. The other is a record of progress, inspiring hope and enthusiasm in the mind of every Massachusetts workingman who has followed it; yet it is the record of only two men, backed by an organization of a few hundred men, with no money in their treasury, and with no "social position" and no support from the daily press.

The difference, which made the one a failure and the other a success, is the difference between the Socialist policy of independent and uncompromising political action on a working-class basis, and the Federation policy of begging for favors at the hands of our enemies.

If we may judge from our experience in Massachusetts, one Socialist in Congress would accomplish more practical good for the working class in one session than the labor lobbyists have accomplished in the last fifteen years.

THE FUTURE OF CUBA LIBRE.

Simultaneously with the establishment of the independent government of Cuba comes the emphatic announcement that "Cuba needs money." That foreshadows the fate of the new republic, as planned by the Capital Kings.

The historic drama which we may expect to see enacted within the next few years, with Cuba as its scene of action, just as it has previously been enacted, over and over again, with other small nations, is somewhat as follows:

Cuba needs money; most of the people are propertiless and depend on the land-owners and other capitalists, large and small, for an opportunity to work and live; the small land-owners, small manufacturers, and small merchants are short of capital and are, accordingly, dependent upon the big capitalists—especially on the great American financial and industrial magnates; these, in turn, will do nothing except at terms that will bring them satisfactory profits—and it takes a great deal to satisfy them. In order to raise money for roads, harbors, ports, etc., since the people are too deeply impoverished to pay heavy taxes, bonds must be issued by the new republic. The bonds will be taken—at a satisfactory discount—by the American and European financiers. Thus the financiers acquire a first mortgage on the island and all the product of its people's labor—a first mortgage guaranteed in law by the government of the Cuban republic and guaranteed in fact by the capitalist government of the United States.

And then? And then Cuba Libre is "libre" no more. Then, whenever it shall suit their interest, whenever it shall gratify their whim, the financiers can find a pretext or make a pretext for intervention and annexation.

Already, The Worker has received information of preparations made for such a possible coup. A man now in New York, who has lived in the West Indies, has been approached by the agents of great financial interests, and told that all his expenses would be paid and himself liberally rewarded if, at the proper time, he would proceed to San Domingo, enlist a crew of adventurers, land on Cuban shores, and raise an insurrection—as a pretext for armed intervention "for the protection of business interests." It may not come this year nor next year, but that is the sort of thing the Cubans may expect, sooner or later.

And if the Cuban government shall patriotically attempt to protect its people from the blood-suckers of Wall Street and Lombard Street it will find itself treated with as scant courtesy and as little mercy as has been shown to Egypt or to Crete, to the Boers or the Filipinos.

In that day our Cuban fellow workingmen will find but one true friend in the United States—the Socialist Party, composed of workingmen who pay tribute of sweat and blood to the same international gang of capitalists that rules at Washington and at London, at Paris and at Berlin. Meanwhile, let the Cuban toilers build up a Socialist Party of their own, a brigade in the international Army of Labor, as a bulwark against the common danger.

"MONARCHS OF INDUSTRY."

By Lydia Platt Richards.

The monarchs of Trade, in the saddle to-day—
Rough riders, indeed, on the people's highway—
Tax and take tribute with unrestrained hand;
The more they receive, the more they demand.

These monarchs of Trade, in their untrammeled greed,
Combine and conspire till they clutch all we need;
Control and collect with a high, golden hand
The profits and products of our boasted free land.

These tyrants of Trade, with invisible crowns,
Are ope with those judges in black, silken gowns.
The national finance, they hold in their hand
And armies rush forth at their beck of command.

These monarchs of Money are sovereigns supreme,
While kinglets, anointed, like phantom or dream,
A figure—a cipher—a tool to command—
A puppet to dance when the Trust moves its hand.

These despots of Finance are exploiters sharp;
They play on the people, like strings of a harp.
See them worship the Flag! Such devotion and zeal!
While Charities flaunt and their pliant knees kneel.

Still, tyrants of Traffic rate highest of all;
Kings born in the purple seem meaching and small,
Like lackeys, retainers, who serve and obey
Great trusts and combines in their unbounded sway.

Once robbers and butchers and killers of men
Were lauded and crowned by the sword and the pen;
Their children grew heirs to the kingdom and crown;
Thus royalty rose and the people bowed down.

A ruler of rulers has risen; to-day
Boy, red-handed kings, to the Trust Magnates' sway.
The products of Labor they clutch and control
And the masses beguile by the promise of dole!

These monarchs of Greed, with a smile or a frown,
Take tribute alike from the country and town.
Since laws may not reach, nor statesmen resist,
We meekly submit, while the screws turn and twist.

USELESS LABOR.

Dostoievski in his "Memoirs from the House of Death," speaking of the labor of prisoners, says: "If we would desire to completely crush, annihilate man, inflict the most cruel punishment upon him, so that even the most brutal murderer would shudder before such a penalty for his crime, it is only necessary to give to their labor the character of utter uselessness and senselessness. If, for instance, a prisoner were compelled to pour water from one pail into another, and from this back into the first, or pound sand and the like—I think the prisoner would in a few days kill himself or commit one thousand crimes, in order to deserve death punishment, and thereby escape from such humiliation, shame, and torture."

BUY UNION-LABEL BREAD.

Mosquito Bites

By PETER E. BURROWES

You can never look indulgently and good naturedly on the peculiarities of our beloved President until you get his keynote and understand how entirely he is a man of one idea, the idea of one man, and until you know who that one man is. Then you will appreciate the sanitarium persistency with which he harps upon that one string, "the individual," above all things, the string that leads to monarchy. Even when addressing West Point on the soldiering of the future, he declares that the regiment is no longer to be the unit, but the individual. A pretty clear case of reversion to the primitive type of warrior who wore no pants. While they are pouring all the young West Point officers into one rigid mould of militarism, they must give the boys some sort of a bluff to keep their little self-respect up.

That West Point celebration was amusing, even when you leave out what the President said. The invariable "American citizen" who invariably turns up with his invariable enthusiasm, was there; and, as he invariably does, he hustled and rushed himself, and trod on the A. C.'s corns, to get to the front. And there he soon found, again, occasion, as he invariably does, to declare himself an American citizen, which always seems a surprise to him. (And no wonder.) But the West Point sergeant ordered the soldiers to use their bayonets on the crowd if necessary. Then the A. C. pulled his toes in, cooled off, and went to another show next day to make the same astonishing declaration. How odd!

It is weariness, even to the flesh, to hear the constant accentuation and re-assertion of "our sex" which prevails among certain large social chunks of womankind. This re-iterated sexing of the sex by the sex might seem justifiable among some of the drudgers of wage slavery; but these are not the people that are starting that great Woman's Show in Madison Square Garden. They say it is to be a wonderful exhibition. Women doing everything, writing, typesetting, printing! Why should ten fingers setting type be a wonder with one sex behind the fingers rather than another. To the other wars of the world the professional lady has added this sex war of her mind, and the unfortunate part of it is she will soon be unable to save herself from the man's burden of our slavery, of which now she seems so proud. By the way. There is an old bachelor at my elbow who offers to bet me a dollar that they will not prevent men from going to look at them. Nay, that if no men were too look at them there would be no show. He is a cynic.

The bitter bit in the mouth of the railroad president is always turning up to the agitator, "the fellow who makes labor discontented and bids him ask for more. You never hear anything about the professional agitator who works among the mine owners. There is Truesdale, blatant, malignant and rash, as his words abundantly prove, a most dangerous agitator among a few powerful millionaires who really can be dangerous. Is it not full time that the country knew where to look for its agitators dangerous?

Here is a band of idle, selfish, unscrupulous men, in constant touch with each other, having the industrial map of the country before them, figuring up at what point and when they can smite the organization of Labor. Deliberately, in their guilty leisure and lordly cunning, making contracts with some sections of miners which will last over periods of anticipated strikes in other sections; so that the one set of men under contract may be used to subdue the other men not under contract. These arrogant traitors to man, when all is ready, make things intolerable for their victims, precipitate a strike and then roar their resolution over the country to permit no man to reason with them, to submit to no arbitration, to yield to nothing. Beside these, in dignity and composure, to say nothing of righteousness, how clean, liberal and decent are the agitators on the laborers' side.

Carroll D. Wright, with a string to him, came to New York, the other day, to inquire of the mine profit operators what the strike was about. Then Carroll D. Wright, with a string to him, calls upon Mr. Mitchell to inquire of Mr. Mitchell what the strike was about. Carroll D. Wright, without the string to him, could tell both parties, better than they know themselves, what the strike was about. But then people with strings to them only know what they are wanted to know. Two things Mr. W. tells—Mitchell isn't a bad man. Think of that! The miners under contract ought not to strike; they may lose the public sympathy. How much is that worth, Mr. Wright?

Our fellow sinners who love the flowing bowl, not wisely but too well, in Massachusetts, are likely henceforth to have a good time of it as far as the strong arm of the law is concerned, for Judge Cutler of Boston has decided that the law can punish no man for being drunk until his prosecutors can prove that he voluntarily got drunk. Now we all know how surprised a man is when you tell him he is drunk, and if a man does not even know when he is drunk, how can he have entered the intoxicated state voluntarily? Some carping Anarchist might here find much to say on the fallibility of written law and the limitations of human speech to defend itself against a judge.

That's a pretty piece of business. Here's all that beautiful patriotic, liberty-loving romance of ours; the liberation of Cuba, which was designed to form such a shining page in the school books of our baby boys and girls, turned into a mere vulgar dicker, with money paid down and receipts given, between the Sugar Trust and our government to carry on a sugar merchant's war, partly at their cost, to get possession of the sugar fields and sugar slaves of free Cuba, to run our beet sugar rivals out of business under the smoke of war and the magnanimous gift of freedom to the recumbent figure of a weeping Cuba.

One of the things that will refresh the bowels of the saints in connection with the Credit Men's Convention, which came off the other day at Louisville, Ky., is the evidence given by these men of their continued yearning after a higher standard of commercial morality. When we remember that this is an association of 4,000 persons who have contrived to get people all over the country into their debt, who spread their nets all the year round to catch a man in a corner, who then invoke the law to hold them there by the throat while they bleed him to death. When we remember how much they have to trust to malodorous spies, and resort to the complex dishonor and treachery of commercial agencies, can we wonder that they long to elevate the moral standard of all persons, outside the Credit Men's Association. But inside! Ah well, if we became moral inside, where would our credit be?

President Truesdale is one of the most aggressive and irrational of the so-called operators who are now fighting the public sense of fair play under the banner of "WE WON'T." No ill-tempered old woman (with apologies to my senile old lady friends, who are all good tempered) could put up such an exhibition of inanity as he does in his public statements. He began this strike with an artillery of insolence and "I will hear nothings." Now he says that he is resolved to hear nothing because of something that has happened since he first resolved to hear nothing, and he begins to peddle out to the newspapers dirty little lies about things the miners say about poisoning wells, etc. How are the mighty fallen!

A Miss Taylor of Washington, a government clerk, has committed an offense of so grave a nature as to incur dismissal at the hands of the high cockalorums who dismiss. Her offense was the entertaining and expressing of opinions about the government. This present administration, which has been so singularly indecorous in using its paid officials, high in office, for stumping the country as campaign agitators has discovered, very late, at least, in this one case, that officials should not have and utter their opinions so. If Root and the rest of them were not such inveterate offenders in Miss Taylor's way, their left-handed treatment of a frail and erring sister in their own sin would not look quite so bad.

Mark Hanna got mad in the Senate for being cartooned the other day. He says he'll go to law about it. Fancy Mr. Hanna going to law to defend himself from cartoons! Why, my dear Mark, Mother Nature in one of her benevolent moods created you to be the John Bull of America, and long after that slim figure of a bishop robed as a combination of striped clown harlequin and footman will have ceased to puzzle us, your bull formed embodiment of your monopolist brethren decked in dollar printed garments will point the moral and adorn the tale of those who would show how America fell and faded under the plutocrats.

The distinctions conferred on Whitelaw Reid, our Ambassador to King Edward's coronation, should satisfy the most enlightened Americans. The King talked alone with him. Some say for fifteen minutes, some say twenty; but the officials all commented on the unusual length of time. To find out what they talked about all that time, imagination's utmost stretch in wonder dies away. Now who would not be in the fool-making business? It seem so awfully easy. Go it again, Edward. You are about the only man that has quickened the pulse of Whitelaw Reid for many years. At home, among mere people, only vinegar and water fall through his bleached veins. Go it again, Edward.

TRULY, NO WONDER!

"No wonder Jay Gould said he could hire one-half of the working people of the United States to shoot the other half down, when the leaders of trade unions will sell their organizations to the Republican politicians for political appointments." This is the comment of the "Miners' Magazine" on the appointment of Frank P. Sargent, Grand Master of the Brotherhood of Firemen, to be Commissioner of Immigration. The one reason for Sargent's appointment, thinks our Western contemporary, is that "he was a splendid apologist for the corporations of the United States and a faithful lackey of the Republican party."

NOT A NEW GAME, THOUGH.

Kind Gentleman.—What is the matter, my little man?

Small Boy.—Johnny tole me to give him de cigar an' he'd show me a new game.

K. G.—Well, didn't he do it?

S. B.—Yep. He calls it Capital an' Labor. He's Capital an' I'm Labor. He's smokin' de cigar an' lettin' me smell de smoke.—Coming Nation.

——Fifty persons committed suicide in Chicago last month. It seems these people would rather brave the dangers of an orthodox hell, than to stand before the fierce fires of competition.—Coming Nation.

THE COAL STRIKE.

Comment of "International Socialist Review."

The coal miners of America are just entering upon what promises to be one of the most memorable struggles between exploiter and exploited that have taken place in many years. About 160,000 miners have laid down their tools and are demanding better conditions of life and work as a condition of once more selling themselves into wage slavery.

As to the merits of the question, even the mouth-pieces of capitalism can find little to say in favor of the mine-owners. Judged even by the ethics of exploitation, the misery and degradation of the anthracite miner has been condemned over and over again. Congressional committees, newspaper reporters, sensational novelists and sober historians have vied with each other in the effort to discover words and phrases strong enough to condemn adequately the conditions under which these workers in the blackened midnight of the mines must live and labor.

The story of the grinding, hopeless toil, petty cheating, false weighing and insolent tyranny endured by the dwellers in the "company" owned, ruled and cursed mining towns of the anthracite coal region, has been told so many times that there is no need of further repetition.

Neither need the specific nature of the present demands concern us. When men are asking for additional crumbs from a loaf, all of which they created and are entitled to receive, it is not for outsiders to question whether the particular portions demanded are most needed. The miners have not asked for too much; of that we may be assured. Whatever they have asked for every laborer or friend of Labor's cause will rejoice to see them obtain.

The strike has so far shown few startling or novel features. The National Civic Federation, that clever combination of dupes and duped, succeeded once more in proving its value to the masters by interfering at the beginning and securing just the delay that the mine owners needed to prepare for the fight. Just at present it seems to have stepped one side to await another opportunity to display its treacherous sympathy for Labor. We hope the officials of the United Mine Workers have learned their lesson sufficiently well not to give the Hanna arbitrators another opportunity to get in their dirty work. If the officials do permit further meddling from this source it cannot but give rise to suspicions of the honesty of those officials. Ignorance can no longer be pleaded as an excuse.

There is strong probability of the calling of a national convention to decide upon the question of the bituminous miners also going out. If they should conclude to join their anthracite brethren the struggle would at once reach a scale attained by but few of the great industrial battles of the last century.

Whatever may be done, the miners may be sure of the sympathy and support of every member of the Socialist Party. In its organized form the party has been quick to express this sympathy, and if an appeal for financial assistance is made, as there soon must be if the strike is not terminated, the party will be quick to give substantial form to its sympathy.

The Socialist Party is the only political party that will do this. It is the only political organization that dares to express its sympathy for the miners at the only time when they are in need of sympathy and support. Next fall, when no battle is being fought, and when no assistance is needed, the old party politicians will be full of sympathy. Just now, when help is so terribly needed, when every trifle of outside assistance counts so heavily, there comes no sound from Democratic nor Republican headquarters.

Let the miners and other workmen as well bear this fact in mind. The miners are not Socialists. Most of them will probably vote against Socialism at the next election, as they have at previous ones. But they are laborers, who just at this time are engaged in a portion of the great class struggle against capitalism, and the Socialist Party is the political expresser of the laboring class and the political representative of Labor in that struggle, whether the laborers themselves have sense enough to know it or not, and therefore it is on the side of the laboring class wherever and whenever it is battling for better conditions.

Some day the miners will grow intelligent enough to ask for the mines and all their toil produces. When they do this they will find that it is much easier to get this greater thing than the trifling favors for which they are now so desperately struggling. Just drop the request, in the form of a Socialist ticket, in the ballot box and the victory is won.

"EFFICIENCY."

(Dedicated to the Liberal and Progressive Imperialists.)

"Efficiency"—that is the watchword, since honor is out of date,
And justice draws no higher to the placeman's golden gate.

With a little lord to lead us, and a lawyer for the make),
We will tread the imperial pathway, nor heed the hearts that break.

"Trade," "temperance," "education"—so we but feather our nest,
What matter if red-mouthed ruin should swallow all the rest?

What matter, so we are scathless, if the battle-bolts be sped?
What matter if aliens famish, so we lack not for bread?

So we have effective "housing," what matter if, far away,
The glare of the burning homesteads affright the shameful day?

So our bank books show a balance, so our clocks keep true to time,
What matter the surging echoes of the Concentration crime?

Come, then, let us be "efficient;" let us shrewdly "cleanse our slate"
Of the love that makes men human, of the faith that makes men great.

Since brotherhood brings no guerdon, let us close our ranks, and dwell
A breed of efficient devils in an efficacious hell.

H. S. S., in London Justice.

——See the advertisement in this paper headed "An Offer." Send 60 cents to the Socialist Literature Company, 184 William street, New York, and get 15 good Socialist pamphlets.

Current Literature

All books and pamphlets mentioned in this column may be obtained through the Socialist Literature Company, 184 William street, New York.

SOCIALIST SONGS WITH MUSIC. Compiled by Charles H. Kerr. Second edition, revised and enlarged. Chicago, Charles H. Kerr & Co. 1902. Paper, 36 songs. Price, 20 cents a copy, or $1.50 a dozen.

We are pleased to see that the sale of the first edition of this excellent little song-book, issued about a year ago, has been so large as to call already for the publication of a revised and enlarged edition. The publishers say: "The first edition was criticized in some quarters as being rather too heavy and sober, and an effort has been made to remedy this defect by the addition of a few lighter songs." We are glad to observe that none of the songs, on the whole very judiciously selected, which appeared in the first edition have been excluded from this. Among the added songs are: "The Laborers' Battle Hymn," by J. L. Joynes, to the air of "Die Wacht am Rhein;" "Onward, Friends of Freedom," by John Glasse, to the air of "Onward, Christian Soldiers;" and "The Smith and the King," by Edward Carpenter, to the air of "The Miller of Dee." The book should prove acceptable wherever there are a few comrades who can sing and should be put to good use in rendering agitation meetings more attractive.

The June number of the "Socialist Spirit" contains some particularly good stuff by Editor Franklin H. Wentworth; also a timely article by Frederick Krafft on the value of propaganda among the young, so necessary to offset the perverting influence of capitalistic education. Wentworth has done a deal of strong writing of late. His "Price of Cleanliness" from the "Socialist Spirit" will shortly be published in pamphlet form by the Socialist Literature Company.

The feature of "Wilshire's Magazine" for June is an editorial on "The Morganization of the World." Although fanciful and satirical, it gives an insight into the purpose of "mergers," and the motives of the modern capitalist who desires power rather than luxury. The magazine also contains a wealth of selected articles.

No. 35 of the Pocket Library of Socialism is an exposition of "The Philosophy of Socialism," by A. M. Simons, excellent for its clearness and brevity.

Jewish-speaking Socialists will be interested to know that Comrade Winchevksy has assumed the editorship of the Jewish Socialist monthly, "Zukunft."

"Zukunft" is to be conducted as a scientific review, with articles on the economics and the philosophy of the movement, and discussions of important matters of current history and of Socialist theory and policy, giving as broad as field for the expression of opinion as may be consistent with fidelity to the cardinal principles of international Socialism.

Our Esteemed Contemporaries (and OTHERS)

Social Democratic Herald.

The policy of the leaders of the American Federation of Labor the past few years has been downright stupid. In the face of snubs from capitalistic legislatures, to whom Labor has asked in vain for favorable laws and in the face of a widespread and natural growth of Socialistic ideas among union men, President Gompers has forced his will on the federation, told the workers they must split their voting strength between the two parties or wings of the capitalists and on top of this has seemed to succumb to the blandishments of that old reprobate of a labor skinner, Marcus Hanna. He stands a chance of finding himself in the position of the hen that hatched out ducks' eggs. His brood will surely desert him. Already the ranks of the federation are honeycombed with Socialist workmen—honest, manly fellows, who are impatient to hurry on the day of wage emancipation by a conscious labor vote. The action at Denver last week is the first break. While it puts the new American Labor Union in the position of a rival to the A. F. of L., it is probably only toward the leaders that it will maintain antagonism. We believe the rank and file of the A. F. of L. will soon follow the example of the Western men and declare for Socialism. Then will follow a consolidation of forces.

Cleveland Citizen.

A brief dispatch from Denver states that the name of the Western Labor Union has been changed to American Labor Union, and that charters would be issued to national, state and local bodies throughout the country.

This means that the A. F. of L. will have to face a strong and growing rival organization in the work of combining the laboring people.

Just what the relationship will be between the two federations—whether it will be mutual aid or bitter war—is difficult to forecast at this time.

The Western unionists are inclined to radicalism—to combine their industrial efforts with political action, as is done in Europe. The A. F. of L. has given scant satisfaction to the radical element within the organization.

The developments in the older body during the past few years—the straddling of the question of labor class politics, the internal struggles between trade autonomy and industrialism; and the unauthorized action of certain officers in becoming connected with Hanna's Civic Federation, as well as minor matters—have caused a great deal of discussion of a more or less heated character.

It is our opinion that those who are at the head of the rival organizations should profit by the experiences of the past. Conditions have changed, especially during the past dozen years, and some arrangements should be made to prevent the recurrence of fratricidal war.

The rank and file of the American labor movement want peace and progress in the field of unionism, and it would be nothing short of high treason to comfort the trust power by inaugurating a war of extermination at present.

Saginaw Exponent.

"There is one thing sure; we will not start our mines on their propositions; and the mines belong to us."—R. M. Randall.

In the last sentence, as a daily paper quotes Operator R. M. Randall, lies the keynote of the whole situation in the coal industry of the Saginaw valley.

"The mines belong to us." Yet every dollar of invested capital in them is the product of the collective labor of thousands of human beings.

"The mines belong to us" Yet every dollar's worth of wealth extracted from them is the product of the collective labor of thousands of members of society.

"The mines belong to us" Yet every pound of coal was placed therein, without money and without price, by bounteous Mother Nature for the use of all her children.

Even the conservative American Federation of Labor advocates the collective ownership of the mines; yet how few of those affiliated with the Federation have ever voted the ticket of a political party that proposes to bring about such a condition! * * *

The only party which proposes to bring under collective ownership all those things with which men must labor, and without which they cannot live, is the Socialist Party.

Colorado Chronicle.

The coal miners' strike now in progress is one of the most peculiar that this country has ever witnessed. * * * At present, instead of starving miners calling for work at any conditions, or paralyzed operators losing millions in sales, we have a public without coal, coal that will be mined and sold later on, but which now is as far off as though there were none to be mined. Owing to this state of affairs, the public is the one injured, the public is the one crying for relief, for settlement.

Popular opinion, now so important in that it is demanding the settlement, is strongly with the miners. The refusal of the miners to resort to arbitration won for them immediately the sympathy will of the people, and the operators gained their corresponding ill-will in ignoring all these offers. The people think that this action on the part of the operators evidences a desire on their part to continue the strike; that a scarcity of coal will force the price up, and consequent profits will be large. Many advocate legal proceedings against the Beef Trust, but as yet the government has not instituted such action. That there is a Coal Trust none will deny; it fixes the amount of coal to be mined by each company, the amount to be hauled by each railway and the prices to dealers. But the futility of such an action is apparent. A concession can only be had when the Trust is broken, and the Anti-Trust Law is utterly useless in this direction. The only possible path of redress through the government is the public ownership of the collieries and railroads.

The Miners' Magazine.

From one end of the North American continent to the other, people of all shades of opinion and belief are discussing the trust question, and, excepting the few who are directly interested, it is admitted by all that the methods pursued by all trusts are detrimental to the general welfare of the people.

This being the case, what is the remedy?

So far as the Socialists are the only people who propose a remedy. What is it?

Let all the people own all the trusts for the benefit of all the people.

Those who wish to continue in the trust business thereafter must do so upon their merits, not behind the fortress of special privileges, as they are doing.

For the sake of argument, we will admit that this propoistion is entirely wrong in every detail, and we will retire from the rostrum and take a seat in the audience and listen to any party that proposes a better solution.

There is no logic in condemning the Socialists for advocating what they believe is right; propose something better so the people can judge and when this is done the Socialists will be the first to co-operate, because they are investigators earnestly seeking the truth.

Don't forever cry, "The Socialists are helping the Republicans to defeat the Democrats," "The Socialists are trying to capture the trade unions and take them into politics." We have heard all this and it don't scare the people any longer.

Propose a remedy; show you are a thinker, not a confirmed growler.

COLLINS IN STRIKE FIELD.

WILKES BARRE, Pa., June 16.—Comrade John Collins will attend the Luzerne County Convention of the Socialist Party in this city on Sunday afternoon, June 22, and will speak at the following towns in the vicinity during the following week: Monday afternoon, June 23, Ashley; Monday evening, Sugar Notch; Tuesday evening, Nanticoke; Wednesday evening, Luzerne; Thursday afternoon, Maltby; Thursday evening, Plains; Friday evening, Duryea; Saturday evening, Wilkes Barre. Readers of The Worker should assist in making these meetings successful.

WHO'S AFRAID?

King Alphonso XIII of Spain attained his majority Saturday and became king in fact as well as in name, having reached the age, 16, prescribed by the constitution.—Chicago Tribune.

I see a dog—no stone to shy at him;
Yonder a stone—no dog's in view;
There is your dog, here stones to try at him—
The king's dog! What's a man to do
—Paul E. More, in the Socialist Spirit

PARTY NOTES.

Readers of The Worker will be glad to learn that Comrade Charles H. Matchett, who is now in England, is in greatly improved health.

Comrade Brown of Rochester writes that he finds it impossible to begin his contemplated lecture tour before the last week of August. He will then be in a position to spend two or three weeks speaking for the party in Massachusetts, after which he will start on a tour of the West.

The agent of The Worker in Lowell, Mass., is D. T. Blessington, 287 Appleton street.

Miss Johanna Dahme of New York will speak in Philadelphia on Thursday evening, June 26, closing the series of lectures at the Socialist Headquarters, 1022 Arch street. Her subject is, "The Coming Liberty—Socialism." Admission is free and all are invited.

Since entering the Pennsylvania strike field Comrade William Mailly had visited, up to Monday last, the mining towns of Ashley, Sugar Notch, Nanticoke, Luzerne, and Duryea, distributing literature in each place. He addressed a meeting of striking engineers and firemen at Wilkes Barre on Wednesday and the Central Labor Union on Thursday evening, also a meeting of strikers in the miners' headquarters at Nanticoke. He has been well received at each place and our literature was eagerly taken. He will stay a few days longer in this district and then go to Hazleton, Shenandoah, and Shamokin.

T Socialist Party of Luzerne County, Pa., will hold a convention in Central Labor Union Hall, 16 South Main street, Wilkes Barre, Pa., on Sunday afternoon, June 22, at two o'clock, for the purpose of nominating candidates for public offices and transacting such other business as may relate to the welfare of the party in the county. All members not receiving invitations are requested to bring their membership card, which will entitle them to a voice and a vote in the convention. Let none fail to attend.

At Chas. H. Vail's recent meeting in Newburg the few remaining members of the S. L. P. in that city listened to his lecture with approval and afterwards fraternized with the speaker in cordial fashion. Comrade Vail believes that the rank and file of the S. L. P., who have been deceived as to the character of our party, are ready to leave the S. L. P., and will come to our ranks just as fast as they are shown what we really stand for.

The Social Democratic Club of Buffalo has made arrangements for Comrade Vail's meetings in that city. On Sunday, at 2:30 p. m., he will speak Schwartzmier's Hall; on Sunday evening, he will speak in the open air at Main and Genesee streets; on Monday evening he will speak on the East Side. All members of the Club should be present at the meeting in Schwartzmier's Hall.

At the last regular meeting of Local New Rochelle three new members were admitted. This was the result of Comrade Vail's visit. The Local has now eighteen members in good standing. A primary convention will be held in Music Hall, Mechanic street, Tuesday, June 24, between 8 and 9 p. m., for the purpose of electing a delegate to the state convention, to be held in New York City, July 4. An invitation is extended to our New Rochelle sympathizers to join the Local before that date, and participate in the primary. Send name and address to James Gagen, Recording Secretary, 50 Walnut street.

The Socialists of Rockland County, Ohio, held a convention at Lexington on June 15, formed a permanent organization, and nominated a strong ticket.

The Socialists of Ohio, and especially southeastern Ohio, are giving an outing on the Fourth of July at Woodsdale Park on the C., H. & D. Railroad, near Hamilton, and just between Dayton and Cincinnati. The proceeds are to go entirely to the propaganda of Socialism and the major part will be used to defray expenses of this fall's state campaign under the guidance of the state committee. Socialists from Chillicothe, Sidney, Piqua, Dayton, Xenia, Hamilton, Cincinnati and vicinity, Indianapolis Richmond and many other points will be in attendance and the present indications are that this will be the largest gathering of Socialists ever held in the state of Ohio. Comrade H. Gaylord Wilshire will be one of the speakers, as well as many other well-known comrades and many amusements of all kinds will be provided. For further information, address W. G. Critchlow, State Secretary, 26 Pruden Bldg., Dayton, O.

Comrade Wilshire addressed two successful meetings in Chicago last week and has since been speaking to large audiences in Milwaukee.

Local Spokane is keeping pace with the Socialist movement of the rest of Washington, which is growing rapidly. In February the local had but fourteen members; now it has fifty. A Socialist weekly, "The New Time," is to appear this month, with Joseph Gilbert as editor and Albert Strout, formerly of Davenport, as manager. Comrade Gilbert will be Spokane's delegate to the state convention on June 29.

The 6th and 10th A. D., last Friday, took up a collection to help the Pennsylvania State Committee in sending Socialist speakers and literature to the strike field.

The 18th and 20th A. D. held an outdoor meeting with the Beef Trust as subject Thursday evening last, at Twenty-seventh street and Second avenue. Mayes, Fielding, and Ward spoke, Paulitsch acting as chairman. A large number of Beef Trust leaflets and copies of The Worker were distributed. The meeting was successful in every way.

